Mr. Editor: We have just closed a very interesting and profitable District Meeting of the pastors and official members of the Vicksburg District Mississippi Conference.

The members assembled at the M. E. Church, in Port Gibson, on the 20th.

Rev. G. H. Clinton, Presiding Elder, in the chair.

Most of the charges of the district were represented.

A very interesting report from the Committee on Church Property was read, to which was annexed the following resolution:

That each Quarterly Conference be requested to furnish the next District Meeting with a full report of the condition of all the church property within its bounds.

The Committee on Relation to Colored Membership read their report, to which was appended the following resolution:

That notwithstanding the great embarrassments in our way, we will still show ourselves the faithful friends and spiritual advisers of the colored people.

Robert D. Howe was appointed to prepare a plan for raising the finances of the several pastoral charges in the district, to be submitted to each Quarterly Conference.

The following lay-delegates were elected to the ensuing Annual Conference: R. D. Howe, A. Belcher, Samuel McLelland, Thomas Reed, J. F. Reeves and Wm. J. Lunn.

Bishop Paine arrived Saturday morning, but was unable to meet with us. He, though very feeble from recent chills, preached for us on Sabbath, greatly to the edification and profit of the people. His sermon was full of the "fat" things of the gospel.

G. H. CLINTON.

REPORT ON EDUCATION.

Your Committee have not been furnished with the data necessary to a detailed report; yet we know that owing to the financial and social state of the country, our schools, generally, are in a depressed condition. Institutions of learning languish, teachers are poorly paid, and ignorance is on the increase. And yet, if there ever was a time and a country which called loudly and imperiously for exertion, self-denial, and perseverance on the part of the people in the effort to educate their children, this is the time and ours the country. Material wealth has been swept away, and the prospect for its renewed acquisition is certainly not encouraging. Our children can no longer depend for a "good start in life," or for position, upon the wealth or character of their parents. All that the father can now hope to secure to his child must be intrinsic to that child, not extrinsic. In the convulsions necessarily attendant upon a transition state in the social and political fabric, mind, right royal mind, can alone hope to win permanent success. The educated man and woman will rise; the uneducated will go down.

Our people, we fear, have not yet learned sufficiently the spirit and practice of present sacrifice for future good. We have known promising children taken from school, because their parents could not pay for their tuition, and soon after we have met those children gaily, fashionably, and expensively dressed; and we have thought, our children are indeed being educated, but, alas! how?

Our church is called to renewed energy upon this vital question. Let her see that the institutions of learning under her control and influence are supplied with proper officers—men and women well qualified to educate both the head and the heart, to lead our children to patient self-denying toil, to discipline them to right habits of thought, feeling, and action. Unfaithful, incompetent teachers must be set aside; faithful, competent ones must be encouraged and sustained. We must set the example, as becomes those who profess to "have been taught the truth as it is in Jesus," and to be controlled by the high and holy religion of the cross—the example of sacrifice in family comforts, in dress and equipage, in money-getting and money-saving, for the intellectual and moral advancement of those whom God has given to us. May the Great Father help us to do our duty towards them, and may they, through His mercy and our labors, be better prepared than ever we have been to meet the duties and responsibilities of the hour, and work out for the church and the country a present and a future glory.

REPORT OF COMMITTEE ON SUNDAY SCHOOLS.

They find that in nearly all the stations and circuits the duty of imparting religious instruction to the children of the church has not been neglected, but has been attended to to an extent that limited means and time from other duties allowed.

Your Committee are of the opinion that too often from the apathy of our older members of the church, the duty of teaching has devolved upon the young and inexperienced members, and sometimes on those who are not members of our church or of any other church. Such being the case, the instruction of the school is limited mostly to hearing repeated a few verses committed to memory, and the asking of such questions as the lessons call up upon geography and history, but very seldom to those great questions appertaining to our duties to God, the necessity of a Saviour and the provisions made for the redemption of the world. Another grand object of Sabbath schools your Committee fear has been neglected, and which they fear has led to losses in our membership, and that is that we as a church have neglected to instruct our children in our own denominational doctrines and usages. Should the question be asked, "Why am I a Methodist?" your Committee fear few could give a reasonable answer "for the faith that is in them." Hence we find many of the children of our church leaving its sacred fields and uniting themselves to other churches, considering that it is a matter of little importance to what church they belong, and in the list is included even the Romish Church. This tendency, particularly in our large towns, is to such an extent that your Committee are of the opinion that should it continue a few years longer, the necessity of another Luther or Wesley would arise, and the battles of the Reformation would have to be fought over again.

Your Committee beg leave to submit the following recommendations:

1. That, above all, our children in Sabbath school be taught from the Bible, and be required to memorize portions of it every Sunday.
2. That the older and more experienced members of the church be requested to give their time and attention to this subject.
3. That in our instructions to the children committed to our charge, more attention should be bestowed upon the distinctive doctrines and usages of the Protestant Church, and more particularly of the M. E. Church South.

How to do Good.—Dr. Johnson wisely said, "He who waits to do a great deal of good at once, will never do any thing." Life is made up of little things. It is but once in an age that occasion is offered for doing a great deed. True greatness consists in being great in little things. How are railroads built? By one shovel of dirt after another, one shovel at a time. Thus drops makes the ocean. Hence we should be willing to do a little good at a time, and never wait to do a great deal of good at once. We would do much good in the world, if we must be willing to do good in little things, little acts one after another, speaking a word here, giving a tract there, and setting a good example all the time. We must first thing we can, and do it, and then the next, and so on, producing good. This is the way to accomplish anything. Thus only shall we do all the good in our power.

From Nature and Art.

The Foundations of the Earth.

BY J. CARPENTER, F. R. A. S.

Kepler, and others among the early astronomers, imagined that the sun and stars—the suns of distant worlds—had been formed by the condensation of celestial vapors: Kepler basing his supposition upon the phenomena of the sudden bursting forth of new stars upon the margin of the milky-way, the only celestial appearance then known which seemed to be of a vapory nature. But when the telescope fathomed the depths of celestial space and revealed to our knowledge the existence of those mysterious patches of hazy luminosity that received the name of nebulae, strong evidence was afforded of the possible validity of the old astronomer's supposition. It may be necessary to inform those who are uninitiated in the details of celestial nature that these nebulae are faint patches of diffused light, which abound in great numbers all over the heavens; assuming an infinite variety of form, and looking like little wisps or spots of thin cloud, or fog, in the field of the telescope. The earliest telescopes served to discover but a very few of them; it was only when the immense and powerful instruments of the elder Herschel swept every nook and corner, as it were, of the heavens with their stupendous eyes, that their exceeding abundance came to be recognized. This giant among observers found no less than 2,500 of such nebulae, and yet he overlooked the thousands that have been detected by various subsequent astronomers.

During the earlier course of his nebular researches, Sir William Herschel appears to have inclined to the opinion that all nebulae were in reality remote clusters of stars, so remote and so thickly clustered as to affect the eye only by their united lustre,—just as a handful of sand thrown on the floor would look only like a dusky patch to an eye so distant that it could not perceive the individual grains. Some of them were clearly resolvable into their component stars with high telescopic power, and it was thought that a sufficient increase of optical power would resolve the whole of them. But as his familiarity with their features increased, he was led to an opinion analogous to that of some of the older astronomers; that was, that they were immense heaps of some vapory or elementary matter out of which stars were, in the course of countless ages, formed by a process of condensation, such as the attraction of one particle by another would produce. With this theory in his mind he was led to classify the various descriptions of nebulae that had passed in review before him, according to a plan or scheme of progressive development: sorting together into one grade all those of a certain extent of diffusion, and those of a more condensed nature into another. His first class included the extensively diffused and shapeless nebulae that are faintly discernible and traceable over large areas of celestial space; his second embraced those that exhibited a stage a little more approaching a regular form; and so on through about thirty classes, the latter of which included those in which the condensation had proceeded so far as to give them the appearance of planets or nebulous stars. Between the descriptions of the members of one class and those of another there was not a greater difference than—to quote his own words—"there would be in an annual description of the human figure were it given from the birth of a child till he comes to be a man in his prime." He further adds: "The total dissimilitude between the appearance of a diffusion of the nebulous matter and of a star, is so striking, that an idea of the conversion of the one into the other can hardly occur to any one who has not before him the result of the critical examination of the nebulous system which has been displayed in this (his) paper. The end I have had in view, by arranging my observations in the order in which they have been placed, has been to show that the above-mentioned extremes may be connected by such nearly allied intermediate steps as will make it highly probable that every succeeding state of the nebulous matter is the result of the action of gravitation upon it while in a foregoing one, and by such steps the successive condensation of it has been brought up to the planetary condition."

The observations of Herschel paved the way for the speculations of the illustrious Laplace. Herschel, from the evidence afforded by his observations, explained how, by the mere action of gravitation, a chaotic mass of primordial matter was probably transformed into a body of definite form and dimensions, though still of a somewhat diffused and nebulous nature; Laplace demonstrated how the known laws of gravitation could, from such a planetary mass of diffused matter, produce a system of bodies revolving about a great central one, such as we have an example of in our solar system. This theory has ever since been known as Laplace's nebular hypothesis. When its illustrious author put forth his conjectures, he did so, to use his own words, "with the deference that is not a result of observation and calculation;" at the same time he expressed his conviction that the striking coincidences of all the planetary phenomena with the conditions of his hypothesis, gave his conjectures a probability strongly approaching certitude.

Laplace supposed, then, that the whole solar system was once a huge nebula, with a slight condensation in the center, like many which we now find scattered about the heavens; and that it was endowed with a rotary motion around its center. (It must be borne in mind that a nebula as extensive as the limits of the solar system would be a very small one compared to many hundreds of those that are known.) He supposed that in the process of condensation, combined with the effect of the rotary motion, this nebula threw off or abandoned certain of its outlying portions from time to time; throwing off a zone or ring of matter which was to form the remotest planet of our system,—Neptune; then condensing a little more and casting off a second, within the former, which was to form the next planet,—Uranus; then a third to form Saturn; a fourth to form Jupiter; a fifth to form Mars; a sixth to form the earth, and so on. These various concentric rings or zones of matter he supposed themselves broke up and condensed and formed little nebulae, revolving about the central one which was left when all the above were cast off, and which of course constituted the sun itself; and these little nebulae, throwing off, in their turn, successive lesser rings, which were to form the satellites of each, the whole of the detached portions, the earth among the rest, in the course of time—immeasurable time—condensed into globular form, that form which all bodies left free to take their own shape naturally assume. One exception only to a globe occurs in the solar system, and that is the ring of Saturn, which Laplace considers to be an exception that proves the rule, inasmuch as it gives a strong confirmation of the probability of the original ringed condition of the various members of the system. The reason why this annulus is not found in other cases is that the mechanical conditions requisite for the permanent maintenance of a ring form would be very seldom fulfilled. Lest any one should be inclined to doubt the possibility of the solid earth and all its kindred planets ever having been a mass of vapor, we may state that if all the matter composing the whole system were so spread out and diffused as to be equally distributed over an area as large as the orbit of the planet Neptune, the expanded matter would be so light and thin as to exceed in rarity atmospheric air; its condition in such a state has been compared to the infinitesimal density of what is called a vacuum in the receiver of an air-pump. A ton weight of matter that would fill the space of a cubic mile must be as thin as a gas; but if that ton of matter could be condensed into the space of a cubic foot, it would be a material denser than iron.

When we consider the fact that the nebular hypothesis of Laplace satisfies nearly, if not actually, all the conditions that we observe in the solar system; when, too, we regard the character of its exponent, his stupendous mathematical achievements, and the improbability of his proposing a mere fantastic scheme without being satisfied of its validity on all points, we shall have no difficulty in appreciating the assertion of the illustrious Arago, that the ideas of Laplace upon the constitution of the solar system "are those only that by their grandeur, their coherence, and their mathematical character, can be truly considered as forming a physical cosmogony."

But skeptics had a good reason for disbelieving this theory. It depended solely upon the existence of this nebulous matter, of which the only evidence was the visibility of patches of nebulous light scattered about the heavens; and many of those were undoubtedly proved upon scrutiny by powerful telescopes to be nothing but remote clusters of thickly aggregated stars, so remote and so closely clustered that they were visible to the dimmer vision of less powerful instruments only by their united lustre. Why should not all the so-called nebulae be clusters, which future and yet more powerful instruments would resolve into their component stars? The question was one fraught with interest to speculative astronomers. One of the brightest nebulae in the skies, that in the sword-handle of Orion, although its brightness indicated a proximity that would have allowed its component stars to be seen with comparative facility, nevertheless baffled all attempts to resolve it, until at length the stupendous telescope of the Earl of Rosse was completed and turned upon it. Then, as was thought, it succumbed, for the Earl of Rosse declared, upon the authority of his observations, the greater part of the nebulae to abound with stars, and to exhibit the characteristics of—resolvability—strongly marked. With the supposed resolution of this nebula the last stronghold of the nebular hypothesis was thought to have been overthrown.

Thus the matter stood twenty years ago, and thus it might have remained till now, had not one of astronomy's sister sciences stepped in within the past few years, we might even say months, to lend her aid to the solution of the mystery. This science is optics, and that branch of it to which we are about to allude is the newly-found means of discovering the chemical constitution of celestial bodies by analysis of the light they emit. Every one knows that when a beam of light passed through a prism of glass, and falls upon a wall, it is formed into a beautiful luminous band tinged with all the colors of the rainbow; this luminous band being known as the prismatic spectrum. But it may not be known that this spectrum is not the same for every sort of light; that a different one is produced, according as the light emanates from one luminous source or another. For instance, a solid body in combustion will give one species of spectrum, while a flame of a particular gas will give one of a totally different class, and the light emitted from a metallic substance in a state of fusion another. So that if an astronomer applies a prism to the eyepiece of his telescope while observing any celestial body, he can tell something of what the chemical constitution of the body may be. The sun has been found to be a solid body, in a state of incandescence, surrounded by the intensely heated vapors of a variety of chemical substances. The fixed stars have been found to resemble the sun generally, but with slight variations attributable to a difference of some of the elements composing them. Now, if the nebulae were clusters of stars, it would be found that their light would yield spectra analogous to those of the stars; but, on the contrary, many of them yield spectra which leave no doubt whatever that they are composed of immense masses of some gaseous or vapory matter. The observations of this class are exceedingly difficult and delicate, and the subject is as yet comparatively in its infancy; but all that has been done, as yet, goes to support the nebular hypothesis, by at least proving that all the nebulae are not remote clusters of stars.

But, thanks to the scientific achievements of the past quarter of a century, we have yet another link between the facts that we observe and the theory by which we would explain them. That the foundations of our earth were laid under the action of a fervent heat, is a fact of which the igneous rocks that form those foundations yield abundant testimony; and whence was such a heat derived? This question carries us on to another, for we are led to inquire, What is heat? A few years ago we should have been told that it was a subtle fluid pervading the inter-atomic spaces of matter; now we learn that it is only one of the many phenomena of motion. The "mechanical theory of heat"—"the great philosophical doctrine of the present era of science," as it has been justly termed—teaches us that heat is nothing more than a species of motion amongst the atoms or molecules of bodies. Arrest the motion of a cannon ball by placing a target in its path; and what is the consequence? The ball is raised to a fiery heat by the concussion. We rub our hands briskly together, and they become warm. A blacksmith beats a bar of iron with his hammer, and it becomes red hot. Why is this? We appeal to the "mechanical theory," and we are told in reply that, whenever motion (i. e. force) is arrested, the motion of the mass becomes transferred to the atoms or molecules composing it, and this molecular motion is heat.

And now to apply this to our subject. In the collision, or condensation, or aggregation of the particles of matter that the nebular hypothesis affirms to have produced the various bodies of our system, an immense amount of motive power must have been arrested; and inasmuch as this great store of force could not be lost or turned to nothing, it appeared as heat, and an intensity of heat was generated sufficient to reduce the whole mass to a state of fusion. To quote the words of one of the most famous exponents of this new philosophy,—Dr. J. R. Mayer,—"Newton's theory of gravitation, whilst it enables us to determine, from its present form, the earth's state of aggregation in ages past, at the same time points out to us a source of heat powerful enough to produce such a state of aggregation, powerful enough to melt worlds; it teaches us to consider the molten state of a planet as the result of the mechanical union of cosmical masses, and thus to derive the radiation of the sun and the heat in the bowels of the earth from a common origin. And, as an example of the amount of heat this collision of cosmical masses would produce, Dr. Mayer cites that, supposing the earth to have been formed by the union of two large masses only, coming together from a great distance by the influence of their mutual attraction, the generated heat would have been sufficient, if the masses had been nearly equal size, to raise the temperature of the whole body to from 30,000 to 40,000 degrees of the centigrade scale,—twenty times the temperature of the melting point of iron; and the greater the number of parts thus brought into mechanical combination, the greater the quantity of heat that would be developed.

"The form of the earth is its history," and this form indicates with mathematical certainty that it was once a more or less fluid body; the flattening at the poles being precisely of that extent which a liquid mass rotating at the speed of the earth would be subject to; and the igneous phenomena of the earth's crust, and the store of heat yet bowed in its interior, are ample evidence that its former fluid condition was that of a molten mass rather than that of an aqueous solution.

But assuming this to have been the origin of the primary condition of the earth, there must have been a time when the igneous body began to part with its heat, by radiation into surrounding space; and is in this cooling process that we are to look for a cause for the diversity of geological features that the surface of our planet presents to view.

We may reasonably suppose that the heated state of the earth's interior supports the supposition that the first portion of the globe to cool was the exterior. The cooling and solidification of this portion would result in the production of a solid shell enclosing a molten nucleus, somewhat as we now find the case. Now between the solid shell and molten interior there would be a constant succession of conflicting action: the shell, contracting as it cooled, would squeeze up, as it were, the interior; the interior, in its turn solidifying, would expand—for all substances expand in passing from the molten to a solid state—and thrust outward the confining shell; then, contracting it further cooled, it would shrink away from the shell; which, unsupported, would fall in upon the retreating nucleus. By actions like these, the smooth surface which a planet might otherwise have related would be broken up and diversified; mountain ranges would be formed by the ejection of the molten interior through the broken shell; continents be produced by the alternate thrusting out and falling in and falling-in which the shell would be subject to; and those irregularities be occasioned which manifest themselves in the igneous foundations of the globe.

Fire on the one hand, and water on the other, are the two elements to which all the geological features of the earth are referable. The second of these elements we have no concern in this sketch; it is tolerably well known that its action produced those deposits which constitute the secondary and tertiary formations of the geology, and which we may regard as superstructures reared upon a foundation that had a fiery origin. Incredible as it may appear to those who look at the present condition of the world, they inhabit there can be no doubt that that world was once a fiery globe, glowing possibly with a fervor comparable with that of the sun as we now behold it, though of far less significant size. How many centuries—how many hundred centuries—have elapsed since this was the case? We have an approximation to the period, but may be enormously in error. William Thompson, from a calculation of the rate of cooling of earth's bodies, assigns for the cooling of the crust of the earth, from a state of fusion to its present temperature, a period of ninety-eight millions of years. And if this incomprehensible interval has elapsed since the earth took its finite form, how great how stupendous, must be the lapse of time that has intervened since the matter of which it is composed wandered through space a chaotic mass, "without form and void."

THE BEST GUY.—It should cheer the steps of a servant of Jesus Christ as he journeys, to know that even in darkness his guide is still with him, and that that guide is the King of the country through which he is traveling.—Aster.

"It is a great misfortune," says La Bruyere, "not to have mind enough to talk well, nor judgment enough to be silent."

THE OUTWARD BOUND SHIP.

BY BISHOP KIERER.

As borne along with favoring gale,
And streamers waving bright,
How gaily sweeps the glancing sail
O'er yonder sea of light!

With painted sides the vessel glides
In seeming revelry,
And still we hear the sailor's cheer
Around the capstan free.

In sorrow there, where all is fair,
Where all is outward glee?
Go, fool, to yonder mariner
And he shall lesson thee.

Upon that deck walks tyrant sway,
Wild as his conquering wave,
And murmuring hate that must obey—
The captain and his slave!

And pinching care is lurking there,
And dark ambition's swell,
And some that part with bursting heart
From objects loved too well.

And many a grief with gazing fed
On yonder distant shore,
And many a tear in secret shed
For friends beheld no more;

Yet sails the ship with streamers drost,
And shouts of seeming glee;
O God! how loves the mortal breast
To hide its misery.

Address of Judge E. T. Merrick.

The following extract is from able address delivered to the graduating class of Dolben Commercial College.

THERE IS DIGNITY IN LABOR.—

Some have failed to admire those

men, the accountants, who are

men, the accountants, who are

men, the accountants, who are

men, the accountants, who are

men, the accountants, who are

men, the accountants, who are

men, the accountants, who are

men, the accountants, who are

men, the accountants, who are

men, the accountants, who are

men, the accountants, who are

men, the accountants, who are

men, the accountants, who are

men, the accountants, who are

men, the accountants, who are

men, the accountants, who are

men, the accountants, who are

men, the accountants, who are

men, the accountants, who are

men, the accountants, who are

men, the accountants, who are

men, the accountants, who are

men, the accountants, who are

men, the accountants, who are

men, the accountants, who are

men, the accountants, who are

men, the accountants, who are

men, the accountants, who are

men, the accountants, who are

men, the accountants, who are

men, the accountants, who are

men, the accountants, who are

men, the accountants, who are

men, the accountants, who are

men, the accountants, who are

men, the accountants, who are

men, the accountants, who are

men, the accountants, who are

men, the accountants, who are

men, the accountants, who are

men, the accountants, who are

men, the accountants, who are

men, the accountants, who are

men, the accountants, who are

men, the accountants, who are

men, the accountants, who are

men, the accountants, who are

men, the accountants, who are

men, the accountants, who are

men, the accountants, who are

men, the accountants, who are

men, the accountants, who are

men, the accountants, who are

men, the accountants, who are

men, the accountants, who are

men, the accountants, who are

men, the accountants, who are

men, the accountants, who are

Interview with Old Thad.

Mr. Drake, one of the editors of the Times, at Union Springs, Ala., who is now traveling in the Northern States, had an interview a few days since with Thaddeus Stevens at his home. We copy Mr. Drake's interesting report of the conference.

Mr. Stevens was in his fine library, quite feeble physically, but intellectually more vigorous, prompt and lucid than is usual with men seventy-four years old. He is tall, and has the bone of a large man, but is now very thin in flesh. The face and head are both good—the eye uncertain; the mouth, with its thin, closed lips, and the strong jaw, tell the secret of the bitterness and love of despotic power and revenge that fills his heart and keep the man alive.

Upon first entering the room by a door, which gave me a full view of the man, there was something so like a smile on his face that I thought his heart and his speeches, his conscience and his words, were not in harmony. This soon lifted, and from that time to the close of the interview the whole countenance—from the grand, arched forehead to the hard chin—was the very ideal of cold, pitiless intellect. I told him who I was, the views I had entertained, and requested that he would say nothing to me which he would desire kept secret. As he had been talking a great deal, and was quite exhausted, I was forced to question rapidly, and confine myself to leading topics. The most of the conversation was heard by a gentleman who called with me, and who can vouch for its correctness, which is almost verbal.

I told him I had come to hear from him, whom I regarded as the great head and master of his party, just what his party demanded and where their demands would stop; upon what terms and at what probable time his party would recognize the Southern States as equal members of the government, and to ask his interpretation of the present measure of reconstruction. Then, prefacing the question with the remark that it was an indefinite one to put to a gentleman, I asked:

"Do you pursue your harsh policy as a party measure or for the purpose of intimidation?"

He answered at once: "I do nothing merely for party purposes. I regard my proposed action as equitable, and resting upon principles of law."

"But Mr. Stevens, by what provision of the Constitution are you warranted in perpetrating a war made to resolve a doubtful question, and the right itself to make which was doubtful, into an excuse for going beyond its purposes, in treating the defeated so harshly as you purpose?"

"The Constitution does not enter into the question—has nothing at all to do with it. You made an issue of war. The North—whether wisely or unwisely it is no use now to inquire—accepted the issue and conquered you. By a thousand acts, which some of my party seem now to forget, the government recognized you as a belligerent nation, and your defeat left you no rights under the Constitution, nor any claim to be treated by its provisions. While you were belligerents I regarded you also as great criminals, who had forfeited all rights of person as well as property. I propose to deal with you entirely by the laws of war, and though not caring to have those laws executed to the full extent of hanging the poor devils, I regard it as a matter of the simplest equity to punish you by fines at least sufficient to indemnify loyal men for the damage sustained at your hands."

"Will you persist in your confiscation measure, Mr. Stevens—will you be satisfied with no less?"

"No, sir! Anything less would be unjust to those wronged by your crime."

"Will you be able to bring your party to your support?"

"I do not know—we had a hard time to secure the passage of the military bill—but I shall take care of myself, and devote all of my strength and ability to this measure of justice."

"Well, Mr. Stevens, there are good men in the South; honest men, who took an oath of loyalty to the United States government in good faith, upon the assurance that they would be treated as citizens. The unsettled condition of politics bears hardly upon them. Lands are valueless, and industry is discouraged. If you—and I say you, because you are your party—intend to perfect the proposed confiscation, do it quickly. Do not torment the South by delay and deception. Bring Wilson home, and don't let him tell any more lies to honest people. Let the issue be distinct and well understood. You are consistent and have been frank, at least."

Mr. S. now complained of being overworked. I begged him to answer one or two more questions.

"Would you be pleased, to see organized in Alabama a government similar to that of Tennessee, under such men as Brownlow, a few of which, I am sorry to say, we have among us—Milt. Safford, for instance?"

He replied hesitatingly: "It is not a matter of men at all; it would depend upon circumstances and principles. We would inquire whether you had a State, and—"

I here, interrupted, feeling that he was dodging, and asked the following question:

"Suppose, sir, Alabama should organize a government enfranchising the negro, providing for his education, and giving ample guarantees for his protection before the courts and in society, and under that government should send good men, who could take the 'test oath,' to Congress, who would admit her to representation?"

Without a moment's pause, he answered with strong emphasis, "No, sir," and thus closed the interview.

From the New York Times.

Senator Wade's Speech at Lawrence, Kansas.

LAWRENCE, June 13.—I was greatly surprised on returning to Lawrence with the excursion party to find how imperfectly, and inaccurately the local journals reported the significant speech delivered in this place on Monday last by Senator Wade. Neither of the two daily papers makes an allusion to the closing part of the speech, in which the question of labor and capital was touched upon, and their reports in other respects are altogether inadequate.

After the applause with which he was welcomed had subsided, the Senator remarked that he had no intention of making a speech. He had tried to do so at Omaha, and as he then broke down in the midst of his remarks, he did not feel encouraged to repeat the attempt on the present occasion. Still there were some thoughts which always suggested themselves in Kansas: There the great battle between freedom and slavery had been fought out, and the cause of liberty had triumphed. If the slave power had succeeded there in its infamous efforts it would have gone on to nationalize the accursed institution, but it was defeated, and now there was not a remnant of it left in the land. [Applause.]

Mr. Wade then said that as he had kept in advance of the people in the great strife between freedom and slavery, he meant to do the same thing in the contest which had just commenced for extending the right of suffrage to women. He was unqualifiedly in favor of equal rights for all, not only without regard to nationality and color, but without regard to sex. Women were more virtuous than men; their perceptions were quicker and keener, and when they gained political power they would rectify many abuses which had thus far remained untouched. If he had not believed that his own wife had sense enough to vote he never would have married her—[laughter and applause]—and if any of his hearers had wives who were unequal to the discharge of the rights of suffrage he would advise them to go home and get divorced at once. [Renewed laughter.] The speaker denounced those women who did not want to vote because it was not fashionable, and said that he had a prediction to make: Female suffrage will be general in less than twenty years—[a voice—"That's too far off!"]—and he thought it likely that in Kansas the next Legislature might set the matter straight. [Applause.] He repeated that he intended to keep in advance of the people on this subject, and that he was now ready to take another jump forward, if necessary. In his view radicalism upon this and all other questions was righteousness, while conservatism was hypocrisy and cowardice. The conservative was a mere lickspittle and hanger-on; he was not only willing to be trampled in the dust, but was willing to remain there.

As regarded the political situation, he would only say that the Southerners now had the mildest terms offered them they ever would get. If they chose to accept them, well and good; they might have all the advantage of such action; if they refused them, another turn they would be given to the screw and whether they wished to or not Congress had thus far been with the people, and it would not now desert them under the lead of Johnson or the devil. His hearers might rest assured of one thing, that reconstruction was as certain to take place as that the sun was shining.

Senator Wade then proceeded to say that there was another question upon which he would express his views, although his hearers might differ from him in opinion. We had disposed of the question of slavery, and now that of labor and capital must pass through the ordeal. The shadow of the approaching struggle between these two great interests was already upon us, and it would do no good to turn our backs upon the question. It must be met. Property was not equally divided, and a more equal distribution of capital must be wrought out. That Congress which had done so much for the slave can not quietly regard the terrible distinction which exists between the man that labors and him that does not. [Applause.] "If you dull heads," said the speaker, "can't see this, the women will, and will act accordingly." It will not be long before the laborers will demand of canvassers upon the eve of an election, "What will you do for us?" and they will have a satisfactory answer. It is not right or just that any man should be compelled to labor until life is worn out and being is a curse. The Almighty did not intend that this should be the case, nor will it always remain so. More leisure must be given to the people for mental accomplishments, and labor-saving machines, since they had failed to effect this result. Here in Kansas, said the speaker, where every man is a capitalist to a greater or less extent, these inequalities are not so great and are not so keenly felt as they are in the East, and the speaker would advise every man in that section who is subject to a capitalist in any degree to cut loose from him and get two hours wearer sundown forthwith. "Men of Kansas," he said, "if you do as much for yourselves as the Almighty has done for you, you will be the lords of creation." Mr. Wade pledged himself to advocate the "natural rights of man" boldly and persistently; spoke of the great commercial results that would inevitably flow from the completion of the Pacific Railway, and then referred to the striking fact that the excursion party had, during the two weeks of its journeying, accomplished by rail a distance which would have taken a year to traverse by the old modes of conveyance. He concluded by thanking the people of Lawrence for the cordial welcome and kindly courtesies they had extended to the party he represented.

Mr. Wade's speech occupied about half an hour, and this sketch gives a fair idea of its drift.

The Views of Gerritt Smith—Why he Signed Mr. Davis's Bail Bond.

After a long season of reflection, Gerritt Smith has furnished the public with a minute and elaborate justification of his conduct in signing the bail bond of Jefferson Davis. He acknowledges the right of the public to question him, but he anticipates any subsequent interrogation by a most exhaustive defence. He believed Mr. Davis entitled to either trial or liberty, and thinks there could hardly have been sufficient reason for a delay of two years. Lawyers having decided that Mr. Davis was bailable, Mr. Smith says he did not trouble himself about that part of the affair, but believed himself under a moral obligation to sign the bond. He claims that he was acting in perfect consistency with his previous professions since the South laid down its arms. He totally disclaims the right to assume, as so many do, that Davis was guilty of other crimes than that of treason, such as assassination and the starving of prisoners. As for the crime of treason, Mr. Smith believes both North and South understood that they were fighting under the law of war, and that the North made a bargain with the South to that effect. Therefore we are not justified in holding Davis amenable to constitutional law. Mr. Smith is opposed to punishing the South, because he holds the North equally guilty and responsible in regard to the chief cause of the late war, and even more so. He believes the South has suffered enough already. The work of the conquering North should now be to heal and comfort, and win back the South. State governments, he believes, should be left to supply their own systems of education, as their black and white people call for it. He says the black man does not need either confiscation or the disfranchisement of any class of the whites, and it would be his own fault now if he does not possess himself of a home and a share of the comforts of life. Mr. Smith objects, to one-sided benevolence, and also to setting the blacks against the whites. Another reason why he signed the bond was, that he believed the people of the South would hail the liberation of Davis as an omen of good feeling on the part of the North. He laments that the Northern press has lent itself to the bad work of neutralizing the good that he had hoped for. Mr. Smith is of opinion that the road to a sure and perfect peace is a very plain one. All we should demand of the South, he says, is acquiescence in the abolition of slavery and in negro suffrage. A new spirit would soon rule those who were formerly the enemies of freedom. As for the charges of loyal men, he would like to see them paid out of the national treasury and not by confiscation, for the North is very rich and the South very poor. He believes, further, that it would be a wise and just policy for the Government to appropriate ten or twenty millions to relieve the sufferings of the South, and also for the present to exonerate that desolate country from the burden of taxation. "The greater the cost the greater, he says, the proof of our love and good-will; and the difficult problem of peace, he believes, can be solved by love, and by love alone."

EXECUTION OF MAXIMILIAN.

The Ranchero publishes a letter from San Luis Potosi, stating that at six o'clock, on the morning of the 19th, the troops of Escobedo formed, a short distance from the city, for the execution of Maximilian and his Generals, the people of Queretaro flocking by thousands to see the closing scenes in the life of the men they loved. The clock strikes seven, the bells toll and announce that the prisoners have left prisons for the last time, and are on their way to the execution. After a few moments they appeared, drawn in carriages, a large guard around them—the Emperor first, Miramon next, and Mejia last.

As they near the place convulsive sobs break from the crowd.

The carriages stop and the prisoners get out. Amongst the concourse you can hardly see a dry eye. Tokens of dissatisfaction are manifested. Maximilian, in alighting, is saluted by the people. In an easy and graceful manner, and with an elastic step he marched to the fatal spot. The prisoners were dressed in a plain manner. They were not bound nor blindfolded.

In taking his position, the Emperor spoke in a clear and firm manner, and with nothing of bravado. He seemed to feel his situation. He said, when he was first waited upon at home by the deputation from Mexico, who came with credentials, offering him the government of the country:

He refused. At a subsequent meeting the proposition was again presented. He replied that if convinced that the majority thought that it was to their interest to place him at the head of the government he might consent.

Another deputation waited on him and brought additional testimonials. Upon advice from the powers of Europe who advised him that there was no other course to pursue, he accepted the call. He denied that the court that tried him had power to do so. His was a case of good faith. The nations of the world had pledged their faith to him. He never would have done the act had it not been for the good of Mexico. He hoped his blood would stop the effusion of blood in the country.

Miramon spoke from a paper. The only regret he felt in dying was that, should the Liberal party retain the government, his children would be pointed out as the children of a traitor.

He told them that he was no traitor, but had always opposed liberal principles, and always been against the disorder of the country. He should die as he lived, a conservative, satisfied to die for his country. The name of his acts would live, and posterity would judge whether he was right or wrong. He closed with "Viva la Emperador! Viva la Mexico!"

Mejia made no address. He sent for Escobedo, and said he would die proud; that he had never made an effort to make money. His only wealth consisted in forty cattle in the mountains. He asked that the merchants of Matamoros, to whom he owed considerable, would not press his wife to pay his debts when they came into possession of the money left them by the kindness of the Emperor.

After Miramon ceased, the guard was drawn up—the prisoners were standing facing them—the Emperor called the sergeant, and drawing from his pocket a handful of twenty dollar pieces, he gave them to him, and requested that after his death he would divide them with his companions, and asking as a favor that he would aim his bullet at his heart.

The officer gave the signal and the volley was fired. The prisoner lay stretched on the ground. The Emperor was not quite dead.

There was considerable quivering of the muscles. Five balls had entered his breast. Two soldiers were called out who shot him in the side. Miramon and Mejia were killed by the first volley. Each of the four balls entered in the breast. A sheet was thrown over the Emperor by the doctor who was to embalm his body. The bodies were then taken by their respective friends.

The troops moved back to their quarters. Thousands remained, kept by a supernatural agency.

PUBLISHING COMMITTEES.

FOR MOBILE CONFERENCE:

Rev. J. Hamilton, D.D.,
Rev. A. H. Mitchell, D.D.,
Rev. Theo. W. Norman, D.D.

FOR MONTGOMERY CONFERENCE:

Rev. M. S. Andrews,
Rev. William A. Shapard,
Rev. J. B. Cottrell.

FOR MISSISSIPPI CONFERENCE:

Rev. W. H. Watkins, D.D.,
Rev. H. H. Montgomery,
Rev. William P. Barton.

FOR LOUISIANA CONFERENCE:

Rev. J. C. Keener, D.D.,
Rev. J. B. Walker, D.D.,
Rev. Linnas Parker.

New Orleans:

SATURDAY, JULY 13, 1867.

How to send money.—We are frequently receiving enquiries upon this point. We have scarcely lost anything by the mails, and consider them safe. The risk at any rate will be ours.

We are still asked shall we forward money by mail? Answer, YES. The Agent will notice, as above, that the risk is not his.

To subscribers.—Any person wishing to subscribe for this paper can do so, by paying the Methodist preacher in the circuit, and forwarding to us his receipt for three dollars, with the address of the subscriber upon it, stating Post office, State, Circuit, and Conference. The receipt ought to be taken in duplicate.

PERIODICALS.

We have received from "The Leonard Scott Publishing Company" the LONDON QUARTERLY for April, 1867. Contents: Character of George the Third; Sea Fish and Fisheries; Autobiography of a Physiologist; Westmoreland; The Poetry of Seven Dials; M. Du Chailu's Recent Travels; Curious Myths of the Middle Ages; New American Religion; Railway Finance; Wellington in the Peninsula; The Four Reform Orators.

The NORTH BRITISH REVIEW, June, 1867. Contents: Origin of Species; A Dutch Political Novel; Modern Views of the Atonement; Facetiae; Archbishop Sharp; Characteristics of American Literature—Poetry; M. Prevost—Paradox; Report on Scotch Education.

BLACKWOOD'S, June, 1867. Contents: Brownlow; the Reign of Law; My Hunt of the Silver Fox; Was George III. a Constitutional King?; Strikes and Trades' Unions; Dante in English—Terza Rima; the Reform Bill—Clause III and Mr. Lowe; Index.

We have received the METHODIST QUARTERLY REVIEW for July. Table of Contents: Scripture Inspiration; by Gilbert Haydn, A.M. The Sanscrit Language; by Rev. A. B. Hyde. The Greek Church in its relation to the Protestant; by R. B. Welsh. Chronology of the Old Testament; by Enoch Pond, D.D. The BRAHMO-SAMAJH—Mignes Roman Catholic Publishing House.

The HOME MONTHLY for July is also at hand. It displays a tempting table of contents. There is a lithograph of Stonewall Jackson, and Article No. II on the character of this distinguished Confederate General.

New Advertisements.

ST. LOUIS MUTUAL LIFE INSURANCE COMPANY.—Attention is called to the card. The Company is regarded as one of the best. Their policies are always paid.

PAYNE, HUNTINGTON & Co.—The card of this long established firm is continued in our columns. These gentlemen are all widely known, and their patrons are many. We never hesitate to recommend this house to our friends.

WHITWORTH FEMALE COLLEGE. For information concerning this excellent School see the notice in another place. Rev. H. F. Johnson is himself an experienced teacher. The location is accessible and healthy.

RECONSTRUCTION.

The Northern Methodist press is continually charging us with the grave offence of hindering and obstructing this object. The Church South, and especially the preachers, are said to be working against it. No doubt these writers would again invoke military interference to dispossess us of our churches, and other property, concealing the fang and venom of their malevolence under the lips of godly necessity.

We are at a loss to know what they mean by hindering, or being in the way of reconstruction. Our bishops, from the time of the surrender, have counseled peaceful submission to the powers. They are traversing the land preaching the pure gospel without taint of political mixture. Our preachers, so far as we hear, are attending to their pastoral work, and feeding the flock of God over which the Holy Ghost hath made them overseers. Our people are quiet and law-abiding, submitting with wonderful resignation to the loss of liberty and property. In our pulpits prayers are made for the rulers of the country and for all men.

We can not see how reconstruction has been hindered. All the steps to this consummation are being taken. General Sheridan says it has gone well so far, and there is nothing in the way of the completion of the work. Registration has led to no commotions, and in this district is nearly done. When it comes to voting there will be the same tranquility, and thus through all the stages of the process. We have advised the people to attend to their business, and to exercise such rights of registration and voting as the authorities may concede. Our pulpits and preachers have not, however, presumed, so far as our observation extends, to dictate or instruct in reference to the disposal of individual suffrage. In this respect we have kept to the principles of the church as delivered and vindicated at its establishment. Our preachers are not politicians, neither is our preaching political. In this we are now as heretofore, keeping close to our New Testament models.

In our views of the situation, we may not see any thing favorable to the liberties of the country; and we may go so far as to sympathize with the respectable minority in the North, who are opposed to the principles of the military bills. We may honestly dissent from the justice or expediency of negro suffrage, and from the doctrine of equality as held for a political purpose by some extremists. We may even believe that the whole country is on the verge of a centralized despotism, and that "Empire" is a truer style than any other national cognomen. But how all of this puts a straw in the way of reconstruction we can not understand.

What do these maligners of Southern Methodism want? Their holy crusade of absorption goes on too slowly. There are no signs of union with them, and, driven from this hope, their present policy is to place us in a position of antagonism, not merely to radical policy, but to the execution of the laws. Evidently their ideas of reconstruction are that we should join their church, think as they do and vote as they may direct. Any thing less will not satisfy. To this extent would they coerce, and if bayonets could reach the conscience, the affections, and the opinions, they would not hesitate to apply them. This is the difficulty in any plan for the maintenance of the final supremacy.

Any thing they choose to devise, the conquered South accepts. The President gave us a plan recognizing the integrity of our Statehood, and it was immediately adopted, though sufficiently humiliating. Congress broke this up, declaring us out of the Union and conquered provinces, placed us under martial law and military commanders, and established universal suffrage. Under this batch of bills supplemental and otherwise, the people are doing the bidding of the laws. If some think fit not to register, and if, after registering, some shall choose to vote in accordance with their life-long convictions, is there any ground of complaint? Or if many think themselves unjustly rejected by the registrars, and conclude that the whole thing is one-sided and partizan in purpose and execution, are they therefore contumelious rebels?

The hindrances to reconstruction are not in the South, nor in the temper and attitude of Southern Methodists, neither in the thing itself. The problem is a hard one, and ugly principles are involved in the present plan. The difficulties are inherent. How to get the South back into the Union, in such a way as to perpetuate the ascendancy of a party. The present scheme with its latest Congressional exposition may secure this result for a few years, but there is no guarantee that it will be perpetual. Peaceful submission to any and every plan has been our course, and will continue to be. The South is as passive and obedient as intelligent moral beings, who have been raised in the school of Constitutional liberty, can be. This, however, does not solve the problem. Voters are being born and are growing up. The negro decreases, is a plastic being, and may be manipulated by other hands after a while. Reflexive influences go out from all that the dominant party have done or shall do. The principles they have acted upon, and their consequences must in time return to their source.

The real trouble of Reconstruction is nowhere, nor are we as a Church obstructing it. But for the lies and misrepresentations of those who charge us with disloyalty, there would have been far less sectional and sectarian bitterness than now exists. The privilege of preaching the gospel and worshipping in their own sanctuaries is all that Southern Methodists have asked. Their offence is that they have not worshipped the image, nor received the mark of the beast; that they have treated the traducers and enemies of their Church as wolves in sheep's clothing; and that they have not surrendered their conscience and reason to the dictation of those who seek to absorb or destroy them. The Northern Methodist Church constitutes the strength of the dominant party, and is identified with it. They have sold themselves to this interest, and politics and religion are the same. Neither their money nor their menaces will be able to move our Church from her great and holy mission.

BALTIMORE.

This most beautiful of cities freshens with age. The material of which it is built gives it a very lively expression—a smooth, clear-lined, regular brick, and a pure white marble. Occasionally the red sandstone is used, and furnishes a fine contrast to the brick house. One is impressed with the architectural freedom and good taste displayed on every side. The situation and shape of the lot determines not the size of the building merely, but its expression and ornaments. The dead uniformity of long rows, as in Philadelphia, has been escaped. There must have been much classic taste in the builders who were at work here forty years ago, and the chaste lines of the Washington Monument are reproduced all over the place. It is a striking instance of the importance of public works of taste in educating the tastes and habits of a population. Having seen the great centres of Europe we speak with greater confidence when we say that this city is more imposing, and agreeable to the eye than any city of Europe. There is no such simple grandeur among the most aristocratic quarters of the old world, as we see in the several places immediately around the lofty marble shaft that crowns Baltimore. Nor is it less fortunate in the formation of the surrounding country, and in the villas which in great variety and richness stud the landscape. Hills and vales in easy and rapid succession follow each other in every direction, covered with patches of small grain, vegetable gardens, pear, peach, and apple orchards, and fields of timothy and clover. Nature and art have left but little to be desired; a covetous mind looks on in bewildered equipose, not knowing which to select for its own; and one who never expects to own anything can enjoy the rich display with exhilarating satisfaction.

The number of people in this city amazes a Southerner. The houses are compactly built, occupying but little earth-and-much heavenward air. On Sabbath evening, on the way to Church, we saw the inmates of these comfortable houses sitting out on the front door steps, every thing white and clean, and every house swarming with children—scarcely a house without a baby. By the by, children here are overhauled two or three times a day, stripped, washed, and dressed, and, strange to say, they look fresher and healthier than those we saw in the piney-woods. Children are often washed and dressed to death, but in this case extremes meet.

These snug dwellings and numerous hives send forth streams of people, on all sides, to the churches. The leisure and calm of the Sabbath is here lawfully maintained, and this might justly be called a city of churches. We passed four just being finished, all within a few squares of each other. The Catholics here, as elsewhere, make a display which might impress a casual observer with a high notion of their strength. But in fact, though they have some very imposing structures, they bear an inconsiderable proportion to the number and strength of Protestant Churches. The whole number of Catholic churches is 21; a few of these are large, but two-thirds are small. The Protestants have a total of 129 churches; of which 42 are Methodist Episcopal, 22 Presbyterian, 11 Lutheran, 10 Baptist, 8 Methodist Protestant, 5 African Methodist Episcopal, 4 Independent, 4 Methodist Episcopal Church South, 3 German Reformed, 3 Friends, 2 Evangelical, 2 Christian, and 2 United Brethren.

Besides this powerful array, there are many Sabbath School rooms and small chapels, which are at work forming the nucleus of churches. This is the uniform method of church extension with all denominations. A room is secured, a sabbath school gathered; on Sabbath afternoons the society which fosters it assemble in force about the nursing; some brother is presently put up at 11 o'clock, and the people in the neighborhood are attracted. If the position proves a good one and promises to reward the effort, a plain small chapel is erected and occupied, until, by and by, a church worth $30,000 to $50,000 displaces the humble building, and the threshold floor becomes a temple dedicated to God. The Methodist Church, South, has been very fortunate in securing an excellent Church at a very moderate rate, probably for one-half its first cost. It belonged to the Episcopalians, and was sold in view of their doing better. It is, in these ritualistic days, good enough and large enough for any church purpose.

We have one or two others owned or rented. Our church is ably represented here in its ministers; they are pulpits of high order; are hard at work, and must presently reap a large harvest. Here, as every where else, the country is holding its breath, watching what turn of the wheel will next disclose the schemes of the Republicans! The people are so much interested in looking at the fate of the South, as to be quite inattentive to the immense revolution which is actually going on in their own political condition. "The imperial republic shortly to be made manifest," as Mr. Draper calls it, will presently burst upon the Northern public in all its splendor, and from spectators they will awake to their true character of actors.

A good deal of rain has fallen this last week which will furnish the moisture and ammonia requisite to fill out the wheat. A day or two of cloudy weather ensued, now follows a hot clear sky with gentle breezes. These seem to be the exact conditions for the production of a first rate crop. So we hear on all sides that God has been bountiful in food, as well as in mercy and truth.

Business is stagnant in its legitimate channels; but the Wall street brokers have all taken to swapping jackets, rather than remain longer idle. Stocks, which have no more real value than politicians have real virtue, have been taken in hand, warmed into life, run up or down, as the progress of the game might suggest, and the ignorant and adventurous have been excited with visions of sudden wealth. As hungry wolves, who despair of finding prey, they run in a circle in order to devour the first that falls.

NEW BOOKS.

We have received from George Rutledge & Sons, No. 416 Broome street, New York, these three volumes:

OUR FATHER'S BUSINESS; by Thomas Guthrie, D.D. New York: Alexander Strahan & Co., Publishers, 139 Grand street. 1867.

OUT OF THE HARNESS; by Dr. Guthrie and by the same publishers.

CHARACTERISTICS OF CHRIST'S TEACHINGS, drawn from the Sermon on the Mount; by C. J. Vaughan, D.D., Vicar of Doncaster. London and New York: Alexander Strahan, Publisher. 1866.

OUR FATHER'S BUSINESS is in Dr. Guthrie's best vein; setting forth the practical religious work of Christians. The chapter on "man's inability" partially discloses the Calvinistic bias of the author. The style is animated, simple—abounding in illustrations. The book is an earnest appeal to the conscience of the Christian, and calculated to stir up the lukewarm to consecrated activity and usefulness.

OUT OF HARNESS, as the title imports, is in the character of literary recreations. The subjects are all well chosen, and are entertaining and instructive. The chapter on "Watch Night" is an excellent defence of this Methodist custom, and displays the catholicity of Dr. Guthrie's spirit. The chapter devoted to Paris we have marked as of special interest.

CHARACTERISTICS OF CHRIST'S TEACHINGS. This is substantially an able exposition, of the Sermon on the Mount. We have read and noted many passages of great power. There is luminous exposition and pungent application. A great subject and well handled. The author seems to be imbued with the spirit of the text.

All of these works are handsomely bound—type and paper faultless. For sale by S. H. Goetzl & Co., New Orleans.

NEWS FROM THE CHURCHES.

CHURCH DEDICATION.—At Cane Ridge, on Sabbath, 30th June, a church edifice was dedicated to the worship of God. On the morning of the day at nine o'clock, was held a church meeting, Rev. C. Chamberlin, pastor, chairman. After the transaction of business, and an intermission of a few minutes, Rev. J. G. Jones opened the Dedication services with reading the Scriptures, singing and prayer. Then followed an able discourse from Reverend Geo. H. Clinton, P. E. Then followed the administration of the Sacrament of the Lord's Supper, then reception of a member; after which, subsequent to dinner on the ground—a copious shower of rain descended, ed, which caused the detention of the audience, when an excellent discourse was given by Bro. Chamberlin.

Although old Cane Ridge meeting house was destroyed by fire, on the same site now stands a commodious edifice, erected and dedicated to the worship of the true God. It seems that paralysis has not affected the hearts and pockets of all in the country, but there is some life in the old land yet.

R. A. NEW.

FROM WASHINGTON.

WASHINGTON, July 10.—The defence in the Surratt trial has been engaged all day in impeaching witnesses, a number of whom swore that neither Tibbetts nor Cleaver could be believed on oath. Several parties swore that there was dancing at Metropolitan Hall on the afternoon of the 14th, and that there was no round table in the hall.

Hon. John Nugent of California is an applicant for the Mexican mission, backed by the California delegation.

Internal revenue receipts today $812,000.

House.—The time for taking evidence in the Kentucky election is extended to December.

A committee of five was appointed to inquire into the treatment of Union prisoners, with power to send for persons and papers.

A bill was introduced extending the provisions of the homestead act to Alabama, Arkansas, Mississippi, Louisiana and Florida. Reference to the reconstruction committee.

The Committee on foreign relations was directed to inquire whether any American citizens had been convicted in Great Britain for war crimes in America.

Wilson stated that the judicial committee had requested him to state that they were not ready to report on impeachment.

Boutwell offered a concurrent resolution to adjourn until October next, eliciting warm debate, which was interrupted by the announcement of Dennison's death. After the customary eulogies the House adjourned.

Senate.—The consideration of judiciary committee's reconstruction bill was resumed.

An amendment, giving commanders power to fill vacancies by appointing citizens or detailed soldiers was adopted by a vote of 20 to 15.

The following was added to the sixth section: "Whether holding such office at the time of the rebellion or before."

Dennison's death was announced and eulogies pronounced.

After which the Senate adjourned. The French tobacco seized captured property by the federal government, and for which the Rothschilds are suing, was sold today by the United States treasury agent, and the money is to be paid until the suit is decided. There are 319 hogheads.

Judge Lawrence, of the judicial committee, has prepared a minority report in favor of impeachment, and will present it when the House calls for it.

The extremists desire the committee to report now, and adjourn October for trial. There will be severe struggle over this. The Senate will endeavor to vote on its bill to-morrow, independent of that passed by House.

An effort was made to enfranchise negroes and get a declaration that voting session did not work disfranchisement.

A statement recently made that military commission which condemned conspirators, united in recommending President to pardon Mrs. Surratt, is a gross error. A majority of the commission recommended that her death sentence be commuted. This paper was seen by the President, nor had he heard of it until recently, through newspapers.

Stevens presented to the House petitions, one signed by four thousand the other by eight thousand persons Maryland, asking Congress to pass securing suffrage and establishing a militia system regardless of race or color, excluding participants in rebellion.

RICHMOND, July 10.—A meeting of citizens of Buckingham county yesterday adopted the Republican platform and endorsed the course of the Whigs.

Last night in Petersburg about two hundred negroes assembled at the camp rescued from the sheriff of Nanam county a negro who had committed a crime, and who was being brought to the penitentiary here. They made the produce the key to the handcuffs and made off with the prisoner. The was again arrested by the police of Petersburg this morning and brought to the penitentiary.

The majority of the negroes registered in this city so far is 1700.

WASHINGTON, July 11.—Coin has been paid, on loans of 1865-6. Balance of 1861 and 5-20's of recent issue, amounting to $18,500,000. $60,000,000 of 7-30's falls due on the 15th.

No further compound interest will be due until November except four and a half millions on ten-forties, due September 1st.

Interest on compound interest amounting to $14,000,000 current, due in August, October and December. The treasury holds $73,000,000 in gold and $20,000,000 in coin certificates.

A GOOD COOKING STOVE
Is one of the most necessary and desirable articles of household economy, and if properly managed, will promote the health, comfort, and happiness of every member of the family.

time, money, and extreme vexation, by delay of your daily meals, may be saved by using the CHARTER OAK COOKING STOVE.
Over 10,000 of these celebrated cooking stoves are in daily use throughout the city of New Orleans. Every one of them has been sold under a full guarantee, and we offer them as a reference wherever found.
The Improved Charter Oak Stove

Extension Top—The stove with has hut one damper, and is so simple in its construction that a child can manage it. The oven are larger, bake more uniform, and the stove heavier than any cooking stove of corresponding size ever made.

The Hot Water Reservoir Boiler furnishes a constant supply of hot water at all hours of the day, and for hours after the fire has been extinguished, without additional cost for fuel, a practical illustration of the economy of the

The Reflector Gridiron, original with the Charter Oak, and used on no other stove—the most perfect manner to broil meats and poultry, whereby the offensive odors arising from meats during the process of broiling are carried up the pipe, and juices of the meats preserved.

The Hot Closet, in which meats and poultry are kept warm for hours when there has been a delay at meals, besides enabling the cook to furnish the guests with a hot repast.

The Charter Oak Stove will do one-third more baking in a given time, and use 25 per cent. less wood than any stove now made.

Importers and Dealers in Hardware, Nails, Carriage, Gunns, Carpenters' and Coopers' Edge Tools, etc.

RICE, BROS. & CO., Sole Agents,
89 and 91 Camp street, near Poydras

and 565 Magazine st., near Magazine Market.
 sep 1 ly

GEORGE STROUD,
 Late of and successor to JOHN STROUD
MARBLE WORK
 158, 160, 162, & 164 ST. CHARLES ST.
 One door above Lafayette Square, New Orleans

Marble Mantel Pieces, Grates, Tombs, Monuments, Slabs, Head and Foot Stones, Tablets, Vases, etc.
jan 12 1 y

ROBERT SLARK,
ISAAC H. STAUFFER,
WM. A. KENN,
OHAS. MAOREADY
SLARK, STAUFFER & CO.,
No 71 Canal St., No 11 to 23 Dorsiere St. and 52 to 58 Canal St.

Importers and Dealers in]
HARDWARE:
Iron, Steel, Nails, Hoes, Axes, Rope, Tin
Pintes, Copper, Block Tin, Spelter, Lead, Shot, Paints, Oils, Glass, Hollow Ware, Circular Saws
MILL STONES,

INDIA RUBBER GIN BAND.
PLANTATION SADDLERY, Etc.
Constantly on hand a large assortment of
AGRICULTURAL IMPLEMENTS
Comprising PLOUGHS of the following celebrated makers: James H. Hall & Co., Sugar and Cotton; Garrett & Cottman, for Sugar and Cotton; Calhoun and Atkinson, for Cotton; Hall and Speer, Wrought and Cast for tion; B. F. Avery, Cast, for Cotton; John and Albert King, "Caray," for Cotton; Peoria Premium Steel, or "Prairie Plough;" Yeats Patent Ploughs and Scrapers.

Agents for the Vicilla Montagne Co.'s SHEET
ZINC and ZINC PAINTS, of Belgium. 013
GAINES & RELF, (Successors to HENDERSON & GAINES,
Importers and Dealers (Wholesale and Retail)

EARTHENWARE,
GLASS, CHINA,
JAPAN WARE,
PLATED WARE,
SILVER WARE,
FINE TABLE CUTLERY.

WATER PURIFIERS,
HOUSEKEEPING ARTICLES
All articles carefully packed for shipment to the country.
No. 100 CANAL STREET, NEW ORLEANS.
oct 13 1874
NORTH, BRUSH & M. SON,

Wholesale Dealers In
Fancy Goods,
STATIONERY, PERFUMERY, CUTLERY
HOSIERY,
Furnishing Goods, etc.

35 MAGAZINE STREET,
opposite the St. James Hotel, New Orleans, La.
Aug 25 ly

DANDOLPH MACON COLLEGE, VA., IN FULL OPERATION.
THIS TIME HONORED INSTITUTION IS now more in successful operation, with a FULL

RIPS OF PROFESSORS. The chairs of the rural schools are filled by able and experienced men. There are five literary and scientific schools, viz: OF ANCIENT LANGUAGES, CHEMISTRY and NATURAL PHILOSOPHY, MORAL PHILOSOPHY and MODERN LAN-GUAGES. In addition to the above the Board of Trustees have established a school of COM-MERCIAL SCIENCE, with the view of giving the young men of the country a BUSINESS EDUCATION.

Graduates in all these schools, Diplomas granted and the degrees of Bachelor of Arts and Master of Arts are conferred upon students to accomplish a certain course. The high grade of scholarship formerly required is still maintained. We have a full CHEMICAL and PHILOSOPHICAL APPARATUS for the illustration of the subjects taught.

The location of the College is unsurpassed for health and geniality. It is situated midway between ing the mountains and the seaboard; and a career of thirty-three years, and with hundreds of young men in attendance, there has never been a death arising from malaria or any other local cause. We profess to educate young men not only mentally but physically also.

BOARD IS SIXTEEN DOLLARS PER MONTH. Tuition from $40 to $90, according to number of schools attended. $250 will cover expenses of board, tickets for three schools, relatives and friends, and the ment provides his own tuition, fuel and tent. Young men who are preparing for the country and those disabled by the late war who are unable to pay their tuition, will be allowed to attend any or all of the schools free of charge. The college is situated near Boydton, the town seat of Mecklenburg county, Va. Students are made to transport themselves to the Railway Depot, on the Raleigh and Wilmington road.

1. Bond, whilst a conveyance leaves Roanoke station, on the Richmond and Danville Road, on Mondays, Wednesdays and Fridays, for the W. H. Frap Depot, on the same road, at 10 o'clock, Thursdays and Saturdays. The ticket entitles the passenger from Maryland, Virginia, North Carolina, from the West, and South west.

2. Passes will be received at any time. The ticket will entitle the passenger on the 6th day of the month next. Young men will be

The same person was so received and paid for the College proper. For further details address the undersigned at Boydton, Richmond County, Va.

THOS C JOHNSON,
 President R M College:

NEW ORLEANS MARKETS.

From the N. O. Current.

The general market continues to be characterized by the apathy usually prevalent during the summer season, and which is more marked this year than last, in consequence of the reduced supply of Cotton left on sale, the stock now being 69,067 bales less than at the corresponding period in 1866. The movement in the staple has consequently been on a very moderate scale. Operations in Sugar and Molasses have been mostly confined to retail transactions. Tobacco continues in good request for export, but sales are prevented by the bulk of the stock being held a little above the views of buyers. Most articles of Western Produce have exhibited increased firmness, and both Pork and Corn have advanced, but without showing much activity in the general trade.

The Mechanics' and Traders' Bank has declared a dividend of 6 per cent, or three dollars per share, from the profits of the past six months, payable to the stockholders on the 15th instant. The dividend for the previous six months having been 8 per cent; this makes a total for the year of 14 per cent, on the reduced shares of $50, or 7 per cent on their former par value, which is certainly more than could have been reasonably anticipated at the time the bank cut down its shares and resumed active business.

COTTON.—We left the market, at the time of our last report so much unsettled that we were compelled to omit our regular quotations, but with the remark that sales had been made at prices indicating a decline of 1/10 per lb. There was no improvement on Saturday, if anything prices exhibited still more irregularity, and on the whole greater weakness, while the business was confined to 1000 bales. On Monday the demand continued limited but although only a few buyers came forward, the business comprised 1200 bales, mostly of the better qualities, which from their scarcity command disproportionately high figures compared with the lower grades or mixed and undesirable lots which are forced off with difficulty at inside figures. Tuesday under the discouraging tenor of the foreign news, and with a very poor supply offering, while the inquiry ran mostly on the better qualities which were generally held above the views of buyers, the sales were only 1000 bales at prices indicating increased weakness, particularly in the poorer qualities. Low Middling and Middling showing more steadiness.

This makes an aggregate for the past three days of 3200 bales, taken partly for the North, but mostly for foreign export.

The receipts proper since Friday evening comprise 650 bales, against 1032 during the corresponding period last week, showing an decrease of 377 bales.

The receipts at this port, since the 1st of September, (exclusive of the arrivals from Mobile, Florida and Texas,) are 705,473 bales, against 668,298 bales to same date last year, and the decrease in the receipts at all the ports, up to the latest dates, as compared with last year, is 155,722 bales. In the exports from the United States to foreign countries, as compared with the same dates last year, there is a decrease of 19,840 bales to Great Britain, of 20,607 to France, and an increase of 50,809 bales to other foreign ports.

We quote as follows:

| | | |
|--------|----|----|
| Low | to | to |
| Good | to | to |
| Common | to | to |
| Medium | to | to |
| Fine | to | to |
| Choice | to | to |

TOBACCO.—During the past three days the market has been quiet, but very firm at the subjoined quotations:

| | | |
|--------|----|----|
| Low | to | to |
| Good | to | to |
| Common | to | to |
| Medium | to | to |
| Fine | to | to |
| Choice | to | to |

CATTLE MARKET.

| | | |
|--------|----|----|
| Low | to | to |
| Good | to | to |
| Common | to | to |
| Medium | to | to |
| Fine | to | to |
| Choice | to | to |

HORSE AND MULE MARKET.

| | | |
|--------|----|----|
| Low | to | to |
| Good | to | to |
| Common | to | to |
| Medium | to | to |
| Fine | to | to |
| Choice | to | to |

Monetary.

We have again to notice a quiet money market, with very little movement in any department. There is, however, no excess of idle capital. The offerings of good commercial paper, exchange and collaterals at the banks are fully equal to their available means. We hear of occasional negotiations of mortgage paper at 10 to 12 per cent. per annum.

N. O. WHOLESALE PRICES.

CAREFULLY CORRECTED AND REVISED WEEKLY.

(Made up from Actual Sales as they Transpire.)

| ARTICLES. | FROM | TO |
|------------------------------|--------|--------|
| Agricultural Implements. | 4 75 | 32 00 |
| Cotton and Sugar Plows. | 7 00 | 7 50 |
| Voss's Plows and Scrapers. | 0 50 | 10 50 |
| Cotton Scrapers. | 7 00 | 7 50 |
| Sweeps. | 7 50 | 7 50 |
| Onitators. | 10 00 | 18 00 |
| Shovels. | 10 00 | 18 00 |
| Spades. | 11 00 | 18 00 |
| Axes. | 15 00 | 18 00 |
| Bagging, per yard. | — | — |
| Kentucky. | — | — |
| East India. | — | — |
| Dale Rope, Kentucky, per lb. | 10 1/2 | 11 1/2 |
| Bran, per 100 lbs. | 2 10 | 2 15 |
| Bread, per 100 lbs. | 10 00 | 10 00 |
| Crackers. | 11 00 | 11 00 |
| Bricks, Lake, per M. | 20 00 | 25 00 |
| English, Fire. | 45 00 | — |
| Candles, per lb. | — | — |
| Sperin, N Bedford. | 42 00 | 43 00 |
| Tallow. | 16 00 | 20 00 |
| Admantine. | 16 00 | 20 00 |
| Star. | 16 00 | 20 00 |
| Chocolate, No 1 per lb. | 50 00 | 52 00 |
| Sweet and Spiced. | 35 00 | 37 00 |
| Cider, Western, per bbl. | none | here |
| Northern. | none | here |
| Coal, Canoni per ton. | 11 00 | 13 00 |
| Anthracite per ton. | 55 00 | 60 00 |
| Western, per barrel. | 22 00 | 25 00 |
| Coffee, Rio, per lb. | 22 00 | 25 00 |
| Havana. | 35 00 | 38 00 |
| Java. | 38 00 | 42 00 |
| St. Domingo. | 26 00 | — |
| Cotton Seed. | — | — |
| Rough, per ton. | 9 00 | 14 00 |
| Hulled, per bushel. | — | — |
| Copper, Braziers, per lb. | 38 00 | 40 00 |
| Shrubbing. | 35 00 | 40 00 |
| Copper Bolts. | 30 00 | 32 00 |
| Yellow Metal. | 30 00 | 32 00 |
| Cordage, Manila, per lb. | 23 00 | 24 00 |
| Tarred, American. | 20 00 | 21 00 |
| Ropes. | 30 00 | 30 00 |
| Corn Meal, per bbl. | 4 00 | 5 00 |
| Dyes, per lb. | — | — |
| Logwood, Campy. | 5 00 | 5 00 |
| St. Domingo. | 3 00 | 3 00 |
| Indigo, per lb. | 1 00 | 1 60 |
| Maize, per doz. | 18 00 | 18 00 |
| Eggs, per doz. | 20 00 | 20 00 |
| Feathers, per lb. | 90 00 | 1 00 |
| Fish, Cod, per box. | 1 95 | 2 00 |
| Herrings. | 75 00 | 75 00 |
| Mackerel, No 1, per bbl. | 21 00 | 20 00 |
| No 2. | 20 00 | 20 00 |
| No 3. | 16 00 | 16 00 |
| Flaxseed, per lb. | 4 00 | 4 00 |
| Flour, per bbl. | — | — |
| Superfine. | 11 00 | 18 00 |
| Extra. | 8 00 | 9 00 |
| Flour. | 8 00 | 9 00 |
| Fruit, Prunes, per lb. | 23 00 | 23 00 |
| Figs, Drum. | 6 00 | 7 00 |
| Dried Apples. | 17 00 | 19 00 |
| Unraints, Zante. | 34 00 | 34 00 |
| Almonds, soft shell. | 4 15 | 4 15 |
| Raisins, M R, per box. | 4 35 | 4 35 |
| Lemon Layer. | 8 00 | 8 50 |
| Lem's Sicily per box. | 8 00 | 8 50 |
| Malaga, per box. | 7 00 | 7 00 |
| Oranges, La. per 1000. | 3 50 | 4 25 |
| Sicily, per box of 50 feet. | 4 00 | 4 50 |
| Glass, 8 x 10. | 4 00 | 4 50 |
| 12 x 12. | 6 00 | 6 00 |
| Grain, per bushel. | 1 00 | 1 50 |
| Canada. | 1 90 | 2 00 |
| Oats. | 85 00 | 85 00 |
| Corn, shelled, per bushel. | 1 10 | 1 10 |
| Beans, per bbl. | 13 00 | 16 00 |
| Hops, per lb. | 65 00 | 70 00 |
| Gunpowder, per keg. | 7 50 | 8 50 |
| Gunny Bags, per bag. | 22 00 | 22 00 |
| Hay, Western, per ton. | 18 00 | 27 00 |
| Northern. | none | here |
| Louisiana. | none | here |
| Hides, per lb. | — | — |
| Dry salted Mexican. | 19 00 | 20 00 |
| Wet salted, city slaughter. | 9 00 | 10 00 |
| Kip skins. | 11 00 | 11 00 |
| Dry country. | 15 00 | 16 00 |
| Pelts, per piece. | 20 00 | 25 00 |
| Iron, Pig, per ton. | 45 00 | 45 00 |
| Country, Bar, per lb. | 6 00 | 7 00 |
| English, per lb. | 5 00 | 6 00 |
| Hoop, per lb. | 8 00 | 11 00 |
| Sheet. | 8 00 | 11 00 |
| Bolter. | 9 00 | 10 00 |
| Nail Rods. | 12 00 | 12 00 |
| Iron Cotton Ties. | 10 00 | 11 00 |
| Castings, American. | 7 00 | 8 00 |
| Lime, Western, per bbl. | 1 50 | 2 00 |
| Shell Lime. | 2 00 | 2 00 |
| Rockland, per bbl. | 2 00 | 2 00 |
| Cement. | 2 75 | 3 25 |
| Molasses, per gallon. | 40 00 | 45 00 |
| Louisiana. | 40 00 | 45 00 |
| Muscovado. | 47 00 | 50 00 |
| Refined, Reboiled. | — | — |
| Moss, per lb. | — | — |
| Gray, Country. | 3 00 | 4 00 |
| Black, do. | 4 00 | 5 00 |
| Select, water rotted. | 6 00 | 6 00 |
| Nails, Am. 4 x 8 d. per lb. | 6 00 | 6 00 |
| Wrought, per lb. | 15 00 | 20 00 |
| English. | 18 00 | 20 00 |
| Naval Stores, per bbl. | — | — |
| Tar. | 4 00 | 4 00 |
| Pitch. | 3 50 | 4 00 |
| Rosin A No. 1. | 3 50 | 4 25 |
| No. 2. | 3 25 | 3 50 |
| No. 3. | 3 00 | 3 00 |
| Spirits Turp. per gallon. | 4 75 | 5 00 |
| Varnish, bright. | 2 80 | 3 50 |
| Oils, Lead per gallon. | 1 10 | 1 15 |
| Coal Oil. | 45 00 | 45 00 |
| Cotton, in cases. | 60 00 | 65 00 |
| Cotton Seed, Crude. | 1 00 | 1 00 |
| Refined. | 1 25 | 1 50 |
| Tanners per gallon. | 1 25 | 1 50 |
| Oil Cake, Linseed per ton. | 37 50 | 37 50 |
| Cotton Seed. | none | here |
| Meal. | — | — |
| Provisions, per lb. | — | — |
| Beef, Mesa, Northern. | 20 00 | 23 00 |
| " " Western. | 15 00 | 20 00 |
| " " North half bbl. | 16 00 | 16 00 |
| " " Dried. | 16 00 | 16 00 |
| " " Tongues per doz. | 10 00 | 11 00 |
| Pork, Mesa. | 24 00 | 24 00 |
| Prime Mesa. | 20 00 | 21 00 |
| Hog, round, per lb. | none | here |
| Bacon, Hams, per lb. | 13 00 | 14 00 |
| " " Do, salted. | 16 00 | 19 00 |
| " " Sides. | 12 00 | 13 00 |
| Green Shoulders. | 10 00 | 10 00 |
| Lard, Prime, in tierces. | 12 00 | 12 00 |
| " " In kegs. | 13 00 | 14 00 |
| " " Fair, in tierces. | 15 00 | 15 00 |
| Butter, Northern. | 25 00 | 30 00 |
| " " Western. | 15 00 | 18 00 |
| Cheese, American. | 14 00 | 16 00 |
| Potatoes, per bbl. | 7 00 | 7 00 |
| Onions. | 6 00 | 6 00 |
| Green Apples. | 8 00 | 10 00 |
| Rice, per lb, Louisiana. | 9 00 | 12 00 |
| " " Carolina. | 10 00 | 11 00 |
| Salt, per lb. | 14 00 | 14 00 |
| Crude. | 13 00 | 13 00 |
| Salt sack. | — | — |
| Liverpool, fine, warehouse. | 2 30 | 2 50 |
| " " coarse, cargo. | 2 00 | 2 15 |
| " " from warehouse. | 2 25 | 2 35 |
| Turks Island, per bushel. | 8 00 | 8 00 |
| Soap, per lb, Western. | 8 00 | 10 00 |
| " " Northern. | 10 00 | 12 00 |
| Southern. | 8 00 | 10 00 |
| Castile. | 14 00 | 16 00 |
| Sugar, Louisiana, per lb. | 13 00 | 16 00 |
| Havana. | 14 00 | 15 00 |
| Yellow. | 11 00 | 13 00 |
| Brown. | 10 00 | 11 00 |
| Tobacco, in hhd, do. | 19 00 | 21 00 |
| Balers & Cutters. | 17 00 | 19 00 |
| Choice and Selections. | 12 00 | 13 00 |
| Medium Leaf. | 8 00 | 11 00 |
| Fair Leaf. | 5 00 | 8 00 |
| Common Leaf. | 4 00 | 5 00 |
| Good Refused. | 6 00 | 8 00 |
| Common Refused. | 4 00 | 5 00 |
| Twine, Cotton, per lb. | 60 00 | 60 00 |
| Baling. | 19 00 | 19 00 |
| Wood, Washed, per lb. | 28 00 | 28 00 |
| Bury. | 15 00 | 15 00 |
| Louisiana, Native. | 30 00 | 30 00 |
| Texas, per lb, Melrose. | 24 00 | 24 00 |

ADVOCATE CALENDAR, 1867.

| MONTHS. | Sunday. | Monday. | Tuesday. | Wednesday. | Thursday. | Friday. | Saturday. | MONTHS. | Sunday. | Monday. | Tuesday. | Wednesday. | Thursday. | Friday. | Saturday. |
|---------|---------|---------|----------|------------|-----------|---------|-----------|---------|---------|---------|----------|------------|-----------|---------|-----------|
| JAN. | 1 | 2 | 3 | 4 | 5 | 6 | 7 | JULY | 1 | 2 | 3 | 4 | 5 | 6 | 7 |
| FEB. | 8 | 9 | 10 | 11 | 12 | 13 | 14 | AUG. | 8 | 9 | 10 | 11 | 12 | 13 | 14 |
| MAR. | 15 | 16 | 17 | 18 | 19 | 20 | 21 | SEP. | 15 | 16 | 17 | 18 | 19 | 20 | 21 |
| APR. | 22 | 23 | 24 | 25 | 26 | 27 | 28 | OCT. | 22 | 23 | 24 | 25 | 26 | 27 | 28 |
| MAY. | 29 | 30 | 31 | 1 | 2 | 3 | 4 | NOV. | 29 | 30 | 1 | 2 | 3 | 4 | 5 |
| JUN. | 5 | 6 | 7 | 8 | 9 | 10 | 11 | DEC. | 5 | 6 | 7 | 8 | 9 | 10 | 11 |

B. S. HARPER. N. J. THAXTON.

Cotton and Tobacco Factors,

AND GENERAL COMMISSION MERCHANTS,

No. 81 Carondelet street, New Orleans.

aug 15 ly

CHENOWETH, CASEY & CO.,

COMMISSION MERCHANTS,

For sale of Pork, Bacon, Beef, Flour, and Western Produce generally.

53 Gravier street, New Orleans.

sep 15 ly

WRIGHT, ALLEN & CO.,

Cotton Factors & Commission Merchants

160 GRAVIER STREET, NEW ORLEANS.

aug 25 ly

THOS. H. ALLEN, JAMES M. ALLEN, New

Memphis, Tenn. PERRY NUGENT, Orleans

T. H. & J. M. ALLEN,

(Successors to ROBSON & ALLEN),

Cotton Factors & Commission Merchants

122 COMMON STREET, NEW ORLEANS.

aug 15 ly

WILLIAM FELLOWES, JUN.,

(Successor to FELLOWES & CO.)

Cotton Factor and Commission Merchant

188 COMMON STREET, NEW ORLEANS.

DAN. P. LOGAN, Agent. sep 15 ly

OBBER, NATION & CO., LEWIS, NATION & CO.,

New York. St. Louis.

OBBER, ATWATER & CO.,

Cotton Factors & Commission Merchants

38 UNION STREET, NEW ORLEANS.

sep 15 ly

N. Y. SWENSON, W. H. PERKINS,

N.Y., late of Austin, Tex. W. H. PERKINS,

Of Perkins & Co., N.O.

PERKINS, SWENSON & CO.,

GENERAL COMMISSION MERCHANTS,

No. 48 Carondelet, corner of Union street.

NEW ORLEANS.

SWENSON, PERKINS & CO.,

GENERAL COMMISSION MERCHANTS,

20 Exchange Place, New York.

sep 15 ly

EDWARD NALLE, W. C. DAY.

NALLE, DAY & CO.

Cotton Factors, Commission Merchants,

188 COMMON STREET, NEW ORLEANS.

sep 15 ly

ALEX. P. STEWART, CHAS. S. STEWART,

Of Lebanon, Tenn. Of New Orleans, La.

STEWART & BROTHER,

Cotton and Tobacco Factors,

General Commission, Receiving and Forwarding Merchants,

No. 124 CARONDELET STREET, NEW ORLEANS

sep 27 ly

S. H. ABY & JO.,

Cotton Factors, Commission Merchants

186 GRAVIER STREET, NEW ORLEANS.

oct 13 6m

E. S. KEPP, I. CAULFIELD,

KEEP & CAULFIELD,

Western Produce,

AND COMMISSION MERCHANTS,

Nos. 77 & 79 Poydras street, New Orleans.

oct 13 ly

HENRY WARE, WM. H. WARE,

OF TEXAS. OF TEXAS.

H. WARE & SON,

Cotton and Wool Factors,

AND COMMISSION MERCHANTS,

No. 63 Carondelet street, New Orleans.

oct 13 ly

CARHART, WHITFORD & CO.,

Manufacturers and Dealers in

PHILIP WERLEIN,

82.....Baronne Street,.....82

Successor of the well known music houses of

P. H. WERLEIN and P. P. WERLEIN & HAILEY,

Dealer in

PIANO FORTES, MELODEONS,

GUITARS, VIOLINS,

</

CHRISTIAN ADVOCATE

ORGAN OF THE M. E. CHURCH SOUTH FOR THE MOBILE, MONTGOMERY, MISSISSIPPI AND LOUISIANA CONFERENCES.

VOLUME XIII.—NUMBER 27.
WHOLE NUMBER 336.

NEW ORLEANS, SATURDAY, JULY 20, 1867.

($3.00 A YEAR IN ADVANCE.
OFFICE—112 CAMP STREET.

NEW ORLEANS CHRISTIAN ADVOCATE.

Official Organ of the Montgomery, Mobile, Mississippi, and Louisiana Conferences of the M. E. Church South.

Office: 112 Camp Street.

TERMS OF SUBSCRIPTION:

THREE DOLLARS A YEAR,

Invariably in Advance.

Address: REV. J. C. KEENER,

112 Camp Street, New Orleans.

AGENTS:

All the Members of the Patronizing Conference.

THE LARGEST GIFT.

The golden avalanche dashed down

With loud commanding crash,

And the gold within the treasury

Gave back an answering crash.

And the ruler, clad in purple robes,

And flashing back the sun,

Stood, proudly smiling, from the scene

Of a high duty done.

The other rich men heaped their gold

Within the sacred chest,

And, as he praised another's gift,

Each thought his own was best.

But the purple and the linen robes,

And the costly fare at home,

Were none the less, that they had given

From their abundance, some.

Their rich and flouting raiment brushed

Aside a sudden flame;

But the widow, in her rags, at last

Into the Temple came.

And her tiny offering fell,

With sound so thin and small

You would have said, if listening there,

It did not ring at all.

Over against the treasury

A watcher sat that day—

One who had perfect power and skill

All human deeds to weigh.

As his divine and loving eye

Beheld that pliance fall,

"I tell you of a truth," said He,

"Her gift is more than all."

O gracious Lord! so quick to take

For the great deed, the will;

The empty measure of our power

With our desire to fill.

Dear, blessed Lord, whose treasury

Is in the faithful heart,

Give all thy servants grace to act

The widow's noble part.

For the N. O. Christian Advocate.

HIGH CHURCH EPISCOPACY A-GAINST THE CHURCH.

NO II.

Mr. Editor: I have previously stated that the doctrine of high church Episcopacy, or apostolic succession, as it is frequently called, is not the doctrine, nor never was offered or held as a doctrine by any Protestant church in the world.—

The church of my friend, Bishop

Green, from its American origin to the present day, and the English church, from the days of Craumer, have even refused to avow it. The doctrine is held by the Bishop of the diocese of Mississippi, and by many other worthy gentlemen in his church, and elsewhere, but it is not the doctrine of his church, nor of my church, nor of any other church. Indeed, it is rather a thread-bar, worn out affair, long since remediated, and now again attempted to be introduced into respectable ecclesiastical company. I think it likely, this effort will meet the fate of many similar ones before.

About the beginning of the 17th century, an attempt was made to graft this doctrine upon the tenets of the English Church, by Archbishop Laud, and afterwards by others of his high aristocratic notions; but, when looked into, it was seen that this was but one attempt to re-introduce into the church, under the guise of another name,

the most objectionable features of the legal doctrines of Romanism, from which the church had so long suffered, and had but so recently gotten rid of. The doctrine—considered as it was with other cognate ones, was, after much contention, repudiated, and Laud, lost his life

by it. In those days of better toleration and less connection between the Church and the State, I sincerely hope my friend, the Bishop of this Protestant Episcopal diocese, may not for this singularity, suffer

a fate so terrible.

The Romish church, in the struggles of Reformation, took the very ground the Bishop now takes. They contended, not for the correctness of the conduct of the bishops and the pope, but that Luther and all others were bound absolutely to obey them, because of the office they held.—

They were ordained, it was contended, in regular succession, and therefore, their authority was not to be questioned. The church, they said, was the true and only true church, because the pope was ordained in a regular chain of succession.

What is called Protestantism begins right here. It declares against this principle. Having, of course, no objection to any ecclesiastical ancestral line, which any history, good or doubtful, might affirm with regard to any existing minister or ministers, it nevertheless protests against the doctrine that such ancestry must always, or even, be actually found. It declares that such a proposition is preposterous, because it might, and in the case now before them, certainly would compel them to violate God's written word, and do many things palpably wrong. And so, they protested against this absolute right, as inhering in some church officers by this supposed divine tenure.

The Reformers solemnly repudiated the principle, now contended for my friend, Bishop Green, and contended that such a doctrine, once acknowledged, would be very likely to destroy the church—that it had then led in many evils, and even abominations from which the church must rid itself, or suffer ruin. And so the Protestants protested against

BRITISH HONDURAS.

Since my last publication in the Advocate, so many enquiries have been made, on points not referred to in that piece, that I make the following statements.

A mail steamer leaves New Orleans about the 25th of each month, and gets to Belize in about six days, making no stoppage on the way.—

Fare fifty dollars in currency.

Schooners frequently go from N.

Orleans to Belize, or Ruatan Island, and passage can be had on them for about $30 currency.

Parties of fifty or more who would charter a large double deck schooner, could go with their baggage and many supplies, very safely and comfortably, and often nearly as soon as in any other way, and it would cost them only about $20 each, from New Orleans and the ports on the Gulf. On reaching Belize, very good board can be had for one dollar and a half a day, in silver, which is the currency of the country, and conveyance can be had to any part of the country, on reasonable terms, in boats of various sizes, and very soon I hope, by steamer up the Belize river, to Confederate country. There are no roads in the country, except those running from the mahogany forests to the banks of the rivers, and a new road four miles long, from Belize to a ferry, beyond which there is only a path for horses and cattle.

The English language is the language of the country, but a great many of the people, even the common laborers, also speak Spanish, and many of the Spanish and Indian languages speak some English; so that the knowledge of Spanish is not necessary, though it is very useful, and it should be learned by our people.

I advise persons who go out to Honduras, to take some flour, bacon and lard, with them, but no other article of food, unless, they may choose to take some butter and cheese. Woolen and linen goods are much cheaper in Belize than here, and anything in the way of clothing and hardware can be had in Belize; but it will be well to bring a cooking stove, and such articles of housekeeping now on hand, as cannot be sold to advantage, and a few agricultural implements, and a wagon, or cart and harness, if already on hand, but don't buy new ones to bring, as they can be made in Honduras. Everything is free of duty, that is brought by the emigrant for his own use, and not for sale, and the duty charged on all imports for sale, is only 7 per cent.,

except on wines, liquors, etc., which is very high, and I am glad of it.

Houses that are very comfortable, are built of iron-wood posts, and boarded with rived-boards of the cabbage wood, and covered with a kind of palm-leaf, fastened by vines, on poles, and resisting sun and rain equal to anything else; and very cheap, being only from $50 to $100.

When you hire all the work; and if a floor of plank be put in, no house that can be made, can be more comfortable, for there is no winter, and no objection to fresh air in the house, at any time. If stone houses are preferred, they can be built as cheap in Confederate county, as anywhere else, all the needed materials being at hand. In this, and other things, I refer to the upper country of the Belize valley, which I examined closely; and many other portions of the high lands are like it, I suppose and believe, but I write what I know, and leave to others to describe the good places which they know, and many of which I believe to be very good.

In Guatemala, which lies along

Confederate county for 20 miles, all kinds of stock can be had, by going or sending three or four days' journey; horses for about $25, mules

$40, oxen $10, cows and calves $8, and hogs very cheap, and all so cheap, that, until the colony shall be well settled up, it will be better to buy than to raise them. These prices I have from natives of the country. Enough pasturage is at hand for the support of the stock

that will be needed in the colony, but not enough to raise cattle for sale; I have been told that about 7 or 8 miles from Richmond, (that I hope soon will be,) there is a large pine forest of very fine timber trees,

a forest of lilly lands with delicious springs, and covered with grass.

Two old settlers described this, as a most healthy, and desirable place for raising cattle, but the land is sandy, and not rich like all the rest of Confederate county. This land would produce good corn, rice, and all tropical vegetables and fruits,

but not coffee nor sugar, though it might suit for cotton. Unfortunately, I had not time to see it, but hope soon to do so, and to have a road opened to Richmond, or at least to the river above Richmond. Fences are very easily made by sticking poles of wild plum, and other kinds of wood in the ground, and in a few weeks they take root, and have limbs and leaves, and grow sometimes to be large trees; and lime-seed are planted, and in two or three years make a fence that will turn any cattle, while vast quantities of limes, excellent for making lemonade, are produced. The game in the woods, consists of wild cows or tapirs, wild hogs, peccaries, (a species of hog,) deer, and many smaller quadrupeds, and royal pheasants, about half as large as turkeys, common pheasants, and

DOMESTIC MISSIONS.

Ma. Editor: I noticed in a late number of your paper, an earnest appeal from Dr. Neely, President of the Board of Domestic Missions, of Mobile Conference, to the pastors and church generally, to make a vigorous effort to collect money to meet outstanding drafts, (now past due,) given at the late session of the Mobile Conference, in favor of various missions in its bounds. I was glad to see it, and hoped for favorable results. I hold drafts, two instalments now past due, in favor of as needy and deserving men as we have among us. I wrote to the Treasurer, at Selma. He informs me, not a dollar has been paid him, and of course, he cannot pay the drafts. At all my Quarterly Meetings, I inquire as the form directs, "What is doing for missions?" The general answer, "nothing as yet." I resolved to try myself and ask for a collection at my Quarterly meetings. The result is, I have never asked in vain: From $12 to $30 have invariably been the response. I am sure the people will not lack bread more for this, nor the preacher get a less liberal support. I expect to keep it up, and recommend the plan to my brother Presiding Elders if they have no better. I am satisfied we give up too much to the cry and concern for bread, with which we are every where met. I know the times are stringent, but many I fear dress as fine and indulge in as many luxuries as they ever did, and retrench only in their benevolence. I think if there were a hearty will, there would be a way to do something for the Master, to pay for a church paper, sustain a worthy self-sacrificing missionary, and their own pastors too, quite as well as they now do. Prospects are rather encouraging in the District. Working people are very busy with their crops, but shortly there will be a little respite, when we will hold protracted and camp meetings, and enjoy, I trust, happy seasons. The good One is better to us than our fears, merciful to our unrighteousness, in sending us genial sunshine, and fruitful showers, causing our fields to wave with luxuriant corn, promising abundant seed, to the sower, and bread to the eater. General health prevails, and our people are, in the main, hopeful.

Very truly, yours, etc.,
W. MURRAH.
Pickens Co., Ala., July 8, 1867.

A SAD STORY.

Ma. Editor: A bright morning last April, about four o'clock, a minister was called upon to visit a sick man, who was represented as being in a dying condition. In obedience to the voice of duty, he rose from his slumbers, returned thanks to God, for his mercy during the past night, and started to the chamber of death. During the short ride, the quietude of the morning afforded an excellent opportunity for reflection and thought. He meditated upon the fleeting nature of all earthly things, the shortness of life, the certainty of death, the darkness of the grave, and the bright hope of immortality, beyond the shores of time. In the midst of a dark dense swamp, he soon came to a small cabin, where the sufferer lay. A deep sense of loneliness prevailed on every side. The feeble rays of light streaming from a few burning coals, which lay on a bank of earth in the middle of the floor, the murmur of the flowing waters of the creek near by, the monotonous roar of the mineral well, the melancholy notes of the whippoorwill in the forest, and the darkness of the night receding before the rising day, all gave the entire scene a ghastly appearance. As represented, the invalid was in a very precarious condition. Doctors S. and M.; who were in attendance, said he was liable to die at any moment. Having been made conscious of the minister's presence, the wretched man turned his eyes to him, and said, "Sir will you pray for me. I was once a member of the church, and enjoyed religion. I felt it my duty to preach the Gospel, but would not do so. I became wicked. I do not want to go to hell. Will you pray for me?" After directing his mind to Christ, and endeavoring to impress him with the power and willingness of Jesus to save, even in a dying hour; the minister read that comforting portion of scripture contained in the fourteenth chapter of the Gospel, by John, bowed before heaven, and to the best of his ability, presented his case to the Father of all spirits.

No comfort, no light, no hope came to the mind of this suffering man, during the hours in which the preacher was engaged in prayer and conversation with him. During the day, while his physical strength was rapidly giving away, his prospects for the future seemed to brighten. He said to his mother, "I am so happy, and am prepared for heaven." About twilight the same evening, the minister was again summoned to the bedside of this unfortunate young man. It was now, with the greatest effort, that he could keep himself from sleep; even while uttering the shortest sentence. When informed, that the preacher had come to see him again, with some agitation, he sat up in bed, and said in a sad tone, "will you pray for me?" On being asked, if he felt prepared to die, he said, "not as well as I desire to be." While those present sang the hymn commencing, "There is a fountain filled with blood," he joined, and when it was finished, said, "that is beautiful, beautiful. I was once a happy man, I ought have preached the Gospel." These were almost the last words he ever spoke. Calling for water, he drank, was laid back on the pillow, and breathed out his life. It was enough to move the hardest heart, to see the father, mother and sister weeping over a dying son and brother. All was over then. The strong man, of thirty-four, lay cold in the arms of death. The great agony of his dying hour, was on account of having made shipwreck of his faith; and refusing to preach the Gospel. Dear reader, if you are not discharging your duty, take warning, and repent before a dying hour.

The subject of the article, was the son of a pious minister of the gospel. He received a religious education, and was piously trained during childhood and youth; but like many others, was lead into the paths of sin and vice. A few months before his death, he fell a victim to heart disease, and after trying everything else within his reach, came to the mineral well as the last resort; lingered a few days and died.

July 12, 1867.

AN APPEAL FOR THE HOME MONTHLY.—The Editor is busily engaged sending out to the subscribers the July number of this excellent magazine. It is adorned with an engraving of General Thomas J. Jackson, whose military exploits excited the admiration and wonder of thousands, and whose character as a Christian—unpretending, unostentatious—made so deep an impression on all who enjoyed the privilege of his acquaintance. The present number is full of interest. In fact, we know of no magazine, published either North or South, that contains so much worthy to be praised, and so little that merits censure, as the Home Monthly. Edited by professor Stark, so well qualified for the responsible position, and favored with an able corps of contributors, it must continue a welcome visitor to the firesides of the lovers of literature throughout the South. To the people of the South it is indispensable, filling a place and accomplishing a work achieved by no other monthly. Issued from our own Publishing House, and bearing its imprint, endorsed as far as possible by the Book Committee, its Editor a member of our Church, and every way worthy the confidence of our people, we cheerfully recommended it to their patronage and support. Each volume contains six numbers. The third volume begins with this month. Send your subscriptions at once.

A. H. REDFORD.

GIVEN UP.—The followers of Theodore Parker have given up their regular service in Boston. The strongest kind of talent has been employed, from Ralph Waldo Emerson to Lizzie Doten, the "Medium," but the congregation could not be kept together.

Ceremonies of the Greek Church.

In the most ancient part of the Kremlin at Moscow is an old sacristy, and there is kept the original vessel which brought the chrisim, or anointing oil, from Constantinople, and which, by the orthodox of the Greek Church, was believed to contain a portion of the precious ointment used by Mary Magdalene. This vessel is a copper bottle or vase, silvered over and ornamented with mother-of-pearl.

In the same sacristy there are two large silver boilers and a third of larger dimensions, which were a present from the Empress Catherine; in these, there is, during Lent every year, made, or consecrated, a quantity of oil as a chrisim: this is done as a ceremony of great solemnity by the Metropolitan of Moscow, assisted by his clergy. The chrisim is compounded not of oil alone, but of about thirty ingredients, — oil and essential oils, white wine, gums, balsams, and spices, — and to the whole are added a few drops from the "alabaster," which is the title of the bottle of chrisim from Constantinople. When the whole is duly prepared, and consecrated by the ancient forms and ceremonies, a few drops from the mass are again put into the ancient "alabaster," and by this practice, sixteen silver bottles, similar to the ancient one, are filled, and the original stock of precious ointment is duly preserved. This sacred oil is called "Mir," and these bottles are sent to the different bishops of Russia. It is used for the following ceremonies: the Emperor at his coronation is anointed with it; it is used at the consecration of all churches of the orthodox communion, and at the baptism of every orthodox Russian subject.

The ceremony of baptism, like all the ceremonies of the Greek Church, is very beautiful, and ought to impress those who go through its performance with a sense of its solemnity. The godfathers and the godmothers proceed with the child to the church, and are met at the door by the priest: he gives the child the sign of the cross on the forehead, and pronounces the benediction, saying, "The Lord preserve thy going out, and thy coming in?" The sponsors present four lighted candles, which the priest puts upon the font; he then consecrates the water, by dipping the cross into it; he then, after the use of incense, leads the sponsors, with candles in their hands, in a procession round the font; having circumambulated the font three times, the sponsors give the name of the child in writing; the priest attaches the name to one of the images of the church, and laying it on the breast of the child, asks "whether the child believes in God the Father, the Son, and Holy Ghost?" The answer, "yes," is given three times, and the sponsors then turn their backs to the font, as a sign of their aversion to the next three questions, which are, "Whether the child renounces the devil? Whether he renounces his angels? Whether he renounces his works? They have to answer to each question, "I renounce," and spit three times upon the ground, in token of malediction; on turning again to the font, they are asked by the priest, "Whether they promise to bring up the child in the true Greek religion?" A satisfactory reply to this being given, the priest puts his hand upon the child, and blows three times, saying, "Get out of the child, thou unclean spirit, and make way for the Holy Ghost." After this he cuts off four small locks of hair from four points, forming a cross on the head; these locks he wraps up in wax, and throws into the font; he then takes the child, naked, and plunges it into the water three times, uttering the words of the sacrament, "I baptize thee in the name of the Father, and of the Son, and of the Holy Ghost." Complete immersion is the practice of the Greek Church, so a pretty large font is necessary.

The ceremony of baptism contains two sacraments: the second is called the "Baptismal Unction." This is done with the sacred oil, which is prepared in the sacristy of the Kremlin, and which is believed to contain a portion—however minute—of the "costly pound of ointment." The child receives the Holy Ghost through the virtue of this baptismal unction. As this ceremony is always performed at baptism, it renders confirmation unnecessary in the Greek Church. The priest anoints the mouth, eyes, ears, hands, and feet, as well as the back and breast. The month is anointed so that it may only speak that which should be spoken by a child of God; the eyes, that may only see good; the ears, that nothing may pass through them to the mind but what is pure; the hands, that they may do no wrong; and the feet, that they may walk in the way of life. He then puts a grain of salt in the child's mouth, and, in token of the hopes of purity, he dresses it with a clean shirt, and repeats the words, "Thou art as clean, as clear from original sin, as a small cross of lead, silver, or gold — according to the means of parents — is put round the infant's neck: this is carefully preserved, because the rites of Christian burial are denied to any who die without them. Sponsors are considered so nearly related, that they are not permitted to marry.

Marriage is also a very elaborate ceremony, and its celebration occupies a considerable length of time. Some details of the late marriage of the Czarewitch will convey a good idea of forms gone through, for they are exactly the same as those of the poorest individuals.

The Metropolitan and principal clergy of St. Petersburg came to the door of the chapel, there to receive the marriage procession. One priest held a candlestick with three tapers, which was so arranged that they produced only one flame, — this was in token of the Three in One; another held a basin of holy water, and a bay-leaf to sprinkle it with; and the Metropolitan held in his hand a golden cross about ten or twelve inches in length. The bride and bridegroom were sprinkled with the holy water; they were then blessed by the Metropolitan, and each kissed the cross in his hand. As a woman cannot enter within the enclosed place of the altar, a temporary altar is put on the outside of the screen, for the ceremony of marriage to be performed. This is nothing but a small reading-desk, covered with cloth embroidered with gold crosses, and a copy of the four Gospels is placed upon it. The bride and bridegroom took up a position in front of this, with lighted tapers in their hands, and the officiating priest asked, "Alexander Alexandrowitch, hast thou a good unrestrained will and firm intention to take unto thee to wife this woman, Marie Feodorowna, whom thou seest here before thee?" The Czarewitch replied, "I have, most reverend sir." The priest again asked, "Hast thou not promised any other woman?" And the answer was, "I have not promised another." The same questions were put to the bride, after which came the benediction. Then the deacon said the Ectenia, into which were introduced the following words for the occasion: "For the servants of God, the Czarewitch, Grand Duke Hereditary orthodox, Alexander Alexandrowitch, and the Grand Duchess orthodox, Marie Feodorowna, now joined together in holy wedlock, and for their salvation." A number of prayers were then repeated, and two crowns were brought on a tray; the priest took one, and making the sign of the cross with it over the head of the bridegroom, said, "The servant of God, Alexander Alexandrowitch, is crowned for the handmaid of God, Marie Feodorowna, in the name of the Father, and of the Son, and of the Holy Ghost." The Czarewitch kissed the crown, and one of the Garcons des Noces held it over the head of the bridegroom during the remainder of the ceremony. A similar service was performed with the other crown and the bride, and it was also held over her head till the end. A benediction was then given, — "O Lord our God I crown them in like manner with glory and honor." The crowns in this rite have nothing to do with the rank of the couple; crowns are used at every marriage ceremony. There was a slight difference in the two crowns, which may be worth noticing: that held over the bridegroom had on it the figure of Christ, while that over the bride had a figure of the Virgin. — The "Prokimenon" now follows, —

"Thou hast put crowns of precious stones upon their heads; they asked life of Thee, and thou gavest them a long life; for thou shalt give them the blessing of eternal life; thou shalt make them glad with the joy of thy countenance. Then comes the "Epistle of the Office," Eph. v. 20-33. The priest then reads the Gospel; that chosen was the second chapter of St. John's Gospel, which relates the marriage in Cana, ending with the 11th verse. An anthem, "Glory be to thee, O Lord, glory be to thee," is sung before and after the Gospel. The "Common Cup," containing wine, is now given by the priest to the bride and bridegroom, who each drink out of it three times in remembrance of the marriage in Cana. Up to this point of the ceremony the contract may be broken off, but now comes the most important part of the rite, which makes the marriage indissoluble, for the Greek Church never permits divorce. The priest covers his right hand with his robe, and on it the bride and bridegroom place their right hands, and, with the crowns still over their heads, the priest slowly leads them three times round the altar. This part of the ceremony is understood to typify that the pair are thus to walk together through life, and the Divine Presence along with them, which is here typified by the priest, as the representative of God; the mystical three times is symbolical of the Holy Trinity. While this is doing, the choir are singing, "Exult, O Isaiah, for a virgin has conceived and brought forth a son, Emmanuel, God and man; the East is his name; him do we magnify, and call the Virgin blessed." The two are now bound as one in the ties of holy matrimony. The priest takes off the bridegroom's crown, saying, — "Be thou exalted, O bridegroom, like unto Abraham, and blessed like unto Isaac, and multiplied like unto Jacob. Walk in peace, and do all according to the commandments of God." Taking the bride's crown, he says, "And thou, O bride, be thou exalted like unto Sarah, and rejoice like unto Rebecca, and multiply like unto Rachel; rejoice with thy husband, and keep the ways of the law; and the blessing of God be with thee." A couple of prayers then follow, after which the couple kiss each other three times, and the ceremony may be said to be ended.

In the Jewish form of marriage, a cup of wine is drunk by the bride and bridegroom.

and brought forth a son, Emmanuel, God and man; the East is his name; him do we magnify, and call the Virgin blessed." The two are now bound as one in the ties of holy matrimony. The priest takes off the bridegroom's crown, saying, — "Be thou exalted, O bridegroom, like unto Abraham, and blessed like unto Isaac, and multiplied like unto Jacob. Walk in peace, and do all according to the commandments of God." Taking the bride's crown, he says, "And thou, O bride, be thou exalted like unto Sarah, and rejoice like unto Rebecca, and multiply like unto Rachel; rejoice with thy husband, and keep the ways of the law; and the blessing of God be with thee." A couple of prayers then follow, after which the couple kiss each other three times, and the ceremony may be said to be ended.

In the Greek Church some of the clergy are married and some are monks, but a monk cannot celebrate the ceremony of marriage; it is only a married priest who can do so. For this reason the Metropolitan of St. Petersburg, who is a monk, could not officiate.

Dr. Clarke, in his "Travels," gives such a graphic account of the funeral of Prince Galitzin, that it may be taken as a fair description of the burial ceremonies.

On the 28th of May, we again saw Plato in great pomp, at the burial of Prince Galitzin, in Moscow. This ceremony was performed in a small church near the Marschal bridge. The body was laid in a superb crimson coffin, richly embossed with silver, and placed beneath the dome of the church. Upon a throne, raised at the head of the coffin, stood the Archbishop, who read the service. On each side were ranged the inferior clergy, clothed, as usual, in the most costly robes, bearing in their hands wax tapers, and burning incense. This ceremony began at ten in the morning. Having obtained admission to the church, we placed ourselves among the spectators, immediately behind his Eminence. The chanting had a solemn and sublime effect; it seemed as if choristers were placed in the upper part of the dome, and this perhaps was really the case. The words uttered were only a repetition of "Lord, have mercy on us!" or, in Russian, "Ghospedi pomilui?" When the Archbishop turned to give his benediction to all the people, he observed us, and added in Latin, "Pax vobiscum!" to the astonishment of the Russians; who, not comprehending the new words introduced into the service, muttered among themselves. Incense was then offered to the pictures and to the people; and, this ceremony ended, the Archbishop read aloud a declaration, purporting that the deceased had died in the true faith, that he had repented of his errors, and that his sins were absolved. Then turning to us, as the paper was placed in the coffin, he said again in Latin, "This is what all you foreigners call the passport; and you relate in your books of travels that we believe no soul can go to heaven without it. Now, I wish you to understand what it really is; and to explain to your countrymen, upon my authority, that it is nothing more than a declaration of certificate concerning the death of the deceased." Then laughing, he added, "I suppose you commit all this to paper; and some future day, perhaps, I shall see an engraving of this ceremony, with an old archbishop giving a dead man his passport to St. Peter."

The lid of the coffin being now removed, the body of the prince was exposed to view; and all the relatives, the servants, the slaves and the other attendants, began the Utation, according to the custom of the country. Each person, walking round the corpse, made prostration before it, and kissed the lips of the deceased. The venerable figure of an old slave presented a most affecting spectacle. He threw himself flat upon the pavement, with a desperate degree of violence, and, being quite stunned by the blow, remained a few seconds insensible; afterwards, his loud lamentations were heard, and we saw him tearing off and scattering his white hairs. He had, according to the custom in Russia, received his liberty upon the death of the prince, but choosing rather to consign himself for the remainder of his days to a convent, he retired for ever from the world, saying, "Since his dear old master was dead, there was no one living who cared for him."

A plate was handed about, containing boiled rice and raisins, — a ceremony we are unable to explain. The face of the deceased was then covered with linen, and the Archbishop poured consecrated oil, and threw a white powder, probably lime, several times upon it, pronouncing some words in the Russian language; these he afterward repeated aloud in Latin, "Dust thou art; and unto dust thou art returned." The lid of the coffin was then replaced, and after a requiem, "Sweet as from blest voices," a procession began from the convent in the vicinity of where the body was to be buried. There was nothing solemn in the slaves of the ceremony. All of whom were in mourning, bearing tapers; then was a body, on a common droshky of the driver being in a crape; afterwards processions of carriages, of the most before described. But, the slow movement usual in the streets of funeral processions, and the people ran as they could, and the jolted along in a very manner. Far behind the lining vehicle were seen passing, quite out of breath, able to keep up with their ions." — Clarke's Travels.

In the present day, funerals are managed with decorum: a special vehicle is hired for the coffin; a decorated palanquin over it; and every street takes off his hat as it passes.

Such are the three great events of life, — birth, marriage, — and the ceremonies of the Church connected with them.

The illustration represents an ancient vase which bears the figure of that of the Metropolitan of Moscow, and the oldest is, by right, the spiritual head of the Church at present in power. He is 83 years of age, though weak in body, he is in the perfect use of his mind, and has a very bright expression of face. The Archbishop, during his late Moscow, visited this city, and the dress shown in the illustration was that worn on that occasion.

A Man-Wall.

Rev. Dr. Butler, the Methodist missionary, finished the mission of the India in 1856, recently in this country. He made a statement of a remarkable case.

In 1859, a British ship, bearing a dispatch from the United States, was wrecked on the coast of India. The captain, who was a man of some standing, and with him a hundred and fifty men, were all drowned. The only survivor was a man, who was found by the natives, and taken to the town. Dr. Butler, who had been in the country for some time, and was apparently about thirty years of age.

The captured creature, who had been in the country for some time, and was apparently about thirty years of age.

He had been in the country for some time, and was apparently about thirty years of age.

He had been in the country for some time, and was apparently about thirty years of age.

He had been in the country for some time, and was apparently about thirty years of age.

He had been in the country for some time, and was apparently about thirty years of age.

1. The first step in the process is to identify the problem or issue that needs to be addressed. This involves gathering information and understanding the context of the problem.

100

11

PUBLISHING COMMITTEES.

FOR MOBILE CONFERENCE:

Rev. J. Hamilton, D.D.,
Rev. A. H. Mitchell, D.D.,
Rev. Theo. W. Dorman, D.D.

FOR MONTGOMERY CONFERENCE:

Rev. M. S. Andrews,
Rev. William A. Shepard,
Rev. J. B. Cottrell.

FOR MISSISSIPPI CONFERENCE:

Rev. W. H. Watkins, D.D.,
Rev. J. H. Montgomery,
Rev. William F. Barton.

FOR LOUISIANA CONFERENCE:

Rev. J. C. Keener, D.D.,
Rev. J. B. Walker, D.D.,
Rev. L. M. Parker.

New Orleans:

SATURDAY, JULY 20, 1867.

How to send money.—We are frequently receiving enquiries upon this point. We have scarcely lost anything by the mails, and consider them safe. The risk at any rate will be ours.

We are still asked shall we forward money by mail? Answer, YES. The Agent will notice, as above, that the risk is not his.

To subscribers.—Any person wishing to subscribe for this paper can do so, by paying the Methodist preacher in the circuit, and forwarding to us his receipt for three dollars, with the address of the subscriber upon it, stating Post office, State, Circuit, and Conference. The receipt ought to be taken in duplicate.

New Advertisements.

Special attention is called to the card of W. W. CHAPMAN, Commission, Receiving and Forwarding Merchant, at Monroe, La.

WOODVILLE FEMALE SEMINARY. It will be seen by the advertisement that this School opens on the 25th September, 1867. Rev. W. T. J. Sullivan is the Principal. None of our Institutions are under better management; none in a more able or more trust-worthy hands.

FEMALE COLLEGIATE INSTITUTE, Jackson, Tenn. This Institution is under the presidency of Rev. A. W. Jones. Situated in a refined and religious community, and in a healthy country, we are glad to learn that it is growing rapidly in deserved popularity and patronage. For particulars see advertisement.

Health of the City.

For information upon this subject we refer to the subjoined report of the last meeting of the Board of Health, held on the 16th inst.

The Board of Health met at 7 o'clock last evening, Dr. S. A. Smith in the chair, and Drs. Foster and Austin and Messrs. Creevy and Pennington present.

The minutes of the last meeting were read and approved.

Ten cases of cholera were reported in the Third District since Saturday last, and four in other portions of the city; and four cases of yellow fever. Added to this are two cases of yellow fever among United States troops, one at the Barracks.

Several communications were read from the City Physician, none, however, of any special importance.

Dr. Austin introduced a resolution that the President request the Medical Director to report the deaths of soldiers by yellow fever or cholera in the city. Adopted.

An important communication was read from Capt. Calves Lawson, at Fort Pike, to Gen. Hartman, relative to quarantine regulations, recommending the removal of the quarantine further out on the Rigolets. This recommendation is endorsed by the Medical Director and Gen. Hartman, and referred to the Board of Health.

Referred to special committee of two, with power to act. Dr. Foster and Mr. Pennington were appointed.

A communication was received from the Street Commissioner announcing that he had informed John Doell, keeper of the Fourth District nuisance wharf, that after the 18th inst. he must cease dumping Jefferson City offal into the river from that wharf.

All communications on disinfectants were referred to the Committee on Health, with instructions to examine and report at once.

MILITANT.

Rest is the boon which most Christians seek and desire. The rest that Christ gives, and peace with God, they have found. The unrest of condemnation, and the "certain fearful looking for of judgment and fiery indignation," have given place to love and assurance. But after conversion the believer finds himself upon a stormy sea of another kind. He has attained to the peace of justification, and of a regenerated spirit, but gradually as he enters upon the new life, now elements of conflict are revealed. Depravity, as he never felt and understood it before, shapes itself into the easily besetting sin; and a more perfect self-acquaintance discovers to the tender conscience evils of which there was no previous recognition. The moral perceptions are quickened as we advance in healthful religious experience, and the spiritual discernment is intensified. The heart and the Gospel are both comprehended better. The defects of the one are more and more disclosed by the continually expanding breadth of the other. The unconverted are in alliance and friendship with the inordinate affections and appetites. The course of nature flows evenly with the drift of the world, and there is no conscious conflict with the power of darkness. The struggle of "the natural man" is in harmony with these, and against the Spirit and the truth. In conversion the arrangement and disposition of forces are reversed. The soul is now in opposition to its old allies, and in coalition with the divine and good. The heart becomes a battle ground where the opposing powers are marshaled. Here is the field of inward strife. Defensive at first; the effort to resist and repel. Afterwards more aggressive in wresting every stronghold from the enemy, and in dislodging everything inimical to Christ.

Thus, the Christian at the beginning of his career discovers the nature of his enterprise to be everything but repose. If he be not stagnant and dead, he is contending against the triple alliance of the world, the flesh and the devil. He fights for victory over himself. There is a painful crucifixion to be submitted to until the old nature dies. The affections and lusts must be ignominiously put to death. That conversion secures the principles of organized triumph, we may suppose, but at the same time there may be something of development and detail in the actual consummation. There is a specific plate in the armor for each and every missile; and the assaults are met, and the blows are parried as they are made. Our actual strength and our real victories can be declared to ourselves, only in the hour of trial. A man cannot say that he has overcome the world until he has wrestled with it. He is master so far as the contest has gone, and it is well for him that the enemy has been met in detachments, rather than in combined force.

Growth in grace may suggest some misleading analogies. Especially if we attach to it the idea of personal passivity. So far as it declares progress to be the law of the religious life, we are safe. But we can take no step forward in religion without effort; often it must be the effort of agonizing. The tree grows under the warm sunshine, and the gentle rain, and its roots spread, in the nutritious mould, without effort. There is no violence in the phenomena of circulation when the body expands from childhood into maturity. The soul grows by conflict. The processes are denial, daily dying, watchfulness, and an absorbing strain after the higher forms of love and goodness. The sun and the shower may bleach the linen, slowly, insensibly, passively. Christians do not thus become holy. To grow is to fight. Every step of progress is the fruit of a deep struggle, and is a conquest over the corruptions of the heart.

To suppose that our growth is measured by our privileges, by the mere lapse of time, or by some mysterious and unselfish influence, is a manifest delusion. Unless there is conscious struggle, there is really no advance. The promise is "to him that overcomes," and we are certainly out of its range, if we have not felt the enemy. Have worldliness, selfishness, sensuality and pride been overcome without special prayer and long vigilance? Have avarice, inordinate affection, and uncharitableness, and unsanctified tempers been cast out, without overgrappling with them in stern and mortal combat? There is a peace which is no peace, and these unholy affections, against which the most eminent saints have waged a protracted warfare, may yet remain.

The soul would rest but it may not. Every day brings with it some new trial of faith or patience, or charity. Temptations addressed to the weakness, and infirmities of nature are sure to meet us at every turn. Some thorn in the flesh, some satanic buffetings are sent to keep down unmeasured exaltation. When we think ourselves done with the devil, and complete master of the situation, he comes back to sift us as wheat. When we have supposed his quiver exhausted and his bow-string snapped, the heavens are darkened with arrows dipped in the infernal fires. The Christian had believed all malice gone, and that his love could safely defy human malignity. Sweetly and complacently his heart responded to the injunction, "dearly beloved, avenge not yourselves;" but here is a provocation which sounds and more than touches bottom, and he begins to inquire, what is meant by loving our enemies? Does it mean such enemies as these? His antagonist has returned with reinforcements, and the battle of love must be fought over again.

There are those who have been waiting, and expecting more favorable surroundings. A situation in life and in business less inimical to their religious peace. But it does not come. Near the harbor, they have been driven back, and are as far out at sea as ever, with wind and tide against them. There is no getting away from the world. They must continue to battle with its meanness, and selfishness, and meanwhile to keep their garments unspotted. Is there to be no peace? This armed attitude towards the world; against infidelity, bigotry, and insidious and protean heresies, and the differences amongst Christians. Shall they continue and how long? Contend we must for the faith once delivered to the saints, and that earnestly. This is the nature of our earthly probation.

We would have it otherwise. Rest and peace is the prayer of the soul. Assurance and comfort, and hope are given: but armor and a sword also. There remaineth a rest to the people of God, but now is the time of strife. Peace, final and everlasting, follows the conflict and the victory here. If we would attain to the blessedness of the pure in heart, we must contend for it in the government and discipline of the affections. And the encouragement to success lies in the fact that God worketh in us. While this is so, the weakest believer is assured of success. Work, because God works in you. To feel the soreness of the battle, and to realize that you are in the midst of a stoutly contested field is a good sign. There is life where this is the case, and there are those prophetic aspirations which are the harbingers of victory over sin.

BISHOP KAVANAUGH.—From the glimpses we have caught of our Bishop through the papers, we infer that his visit to Southern California has been attended with much benefit to the cause of religion. A writer—evidently not a professor of religion—in the Mariposa Mail, says he likes the Bishop because he "looks well fed and happy," which leads us to suppose that our friends in the lower country have taken good care of him, and given him plenty of preaching to do. He thrives on much preaching.—San Francisco Spectator.

The reciprocity treaty between the United States and Hawaiian Islands was sent to the Senate for ratification a few days ago.

CONGRESS.

The present July session of Congress offers a fine opportunity to one at all curious as to the moral and intellectual aspects of that body. Stepping out of the cars the visitor sees the dome of the Capitol rising grandly above him, surmounted by a huge goddess of liberty. This figure is entirely out of reach, and the legislation of the houses transpires at a considerable distance beneath it. The porticoes and architecture of the building are Grecian, and of unsurpassed harmony and effect. One readily dismisses aerial and classical thoughts upon entering the gallery of the House. Here are the rulers of the people fresh from the people, the vox populi who dearly love the people.

"Which is Morrissey?" asks a young man on the right. We had some curiosity as to which was Stevens, which Butler, but had forgotten all about the prize-fighter. Every man after his sort, and no doubt to a large proportion of the gallery, Morrissey was a more important personage than the atrabilious Pennsylvanian. We had the great "rough" pointed out, and found him to be well-formed and well-dressed, with black hair, black whiskers, and a broken nose. Presently Gen. Butler came into the House. We had formed an idea of him from the photographs which record his residence at the South. We could not say of this noted personage, with the editor of the New York Methodist, that "in reviewing his career from the beginning, and especially at New Orleans, we became conscious of a feeling of unmingled approbation, if not of admiration." His countenance is a shade less unpleasant than we had imagined it. He gets about in the Hall with great readiness, and evidently exercises a decided influence upon its counsels. He speaks with ease, propriety, and force. We are disposed to believe that he commands as much consideration as any one of the black republicans excepting Mr. Stevens.

There is much to be seen in the mere process of legislation. The relative importance of parties discovers itself in the attention given, the clustering of satellites, and the final rally at the passage of any party measure. We were surprised to find Gen. Butler side by side with Mr. Stevens and Mr. Sumner in manipulating the House and Senate. There are other men of course, important members, Bingham, Schenck, Ashley, Logan, Colfax; and in the Senate Wade, Wilson, &c., "howbeit they attain not to the first three." This decided position of Gen. Butler is doubtless owing partly to his own force of character, and partly to the inclination of others to avoid all collision with a man made desperate by a world-wide anathema.

The appearance of Mr. Stevens, of Pennsylvania, is that of a superannuated Methodist preacher. He is tall, dresses loosely in black, is gaunt, steps short, bearing hard upon his cane, as if carrying eighty years, walks erect, and somewhat lame. He wears a fanatical looking black wig, has a bony, long face; his eye expresses hunger, strong purpose, and nervous irritability; the brow is full, the mouth and nose regular; on the whole, a strong, thoughtful, enthusiastic face. As he came directly in front to his seat, he looked to be a walking sepulchral embodiment of the Military Reconstruction Bill. He impressed a man from the South like an apparition of Lord Justice Jeffreys might be supposed to impress an English whig. Mr. Stevens is, as we say, "at the head of the profession"; is evidently at the top of this Olympus. He brings in a bill and announces that he is ready to move the previous question. The opposition beg him for some opportunity to discuss its merits. He announces that it will "be taken tomorrow at twenty minutes past one." It is evident that the real discussion, so far as the republican members are concerned, has already taken place; that the bill has been shaped in caucus and only brought there to receive the Government seal. By this scheme the mutual check which two Houses are supposed to have upon each other in the legislation of Congress disappears. A party caucus decides every thing and rules the country. The men who rule this caucus are the real masters of the Republic. To those already named must be added the Secretary of War and Gen. Grant.

The supplementary Military bill of the House and that of the Senate differ somewhat, the House bill representing the most intense wing of the party. Both bills put the finishing touch to the absolute military government proposed for the South. They deprive the Southern States of existence, and declare that their governments existing on the 23d of March, 1867, "were illegal and void." This nullifies, not by taking out of the Union, but out of existence "the States of Virginia, North Carolina, South Carolina, Georgia, Mississippi, Alabama, Louisiana, Florida, Texas and Arkansas" were not legal State governments, and it continued, were continued subject in all respects to the military commanders of the respective districts, and to the paramount authority of Congress.

Sec. 2. Be it further enacted, etc. That the commander of any district named in said act shall have power, subject to the disapproval of the general of the army of the United States, to have effect all disapproval, whenever in the opinion of such commander the proper administration of said act shall require it, to suspend or remove from office or the performance of official duties and the exercise of official powers, any officer or person holding, exercising, or professing to hold or exercise any civil or military office or duty in such district, under any power, election, appointment or authority derived from or granted by or claimed under any so-called State or government, thereof, or any municipal or other division thereof; and upon such suspension or removal such commander, subject to the disapproval of the general as aforesaid, shall have power to provide from time to time for the performance of the said duties of such officer or person as suspended or removed, by the detail of some competent officer or soldier of the army or by the appointment of some other person to perform the same, and to fill vacancies occasioned by death, resignation or otherwise.

Sec. 3. Be it further enacted, etc. That the general of the army of the United States shall be invested with all the powers of suspension, removal, appointment and detail granted in the preceding section to district commanders.

Sec. 4. Be it further enacted, etc. That the acts of the officers of the army already done in removing in said districts persons exercising the functions of civil offices and appointing others in their stead are hereby confirmed; provided that any person heretofore or hereafter appointed by any district commander to exercise the functions of any civil office may be removed either by the military officer in command of the district or the general of the army; and it shall be the duty of such commander to remove from office as aforesaid all persons who are disloyal to the government of the United States or use their official influence in any manner to hinder, delay, prevent or obstruct the due and proper administration of this act and the acts to which it is supplemental.

Sec. 5. Be it further enacted, etc. That the boards of registration provide for in the act entitled an act supplementary to an act entitled an act to provide for the more efficient government of the rebel States, passed March 2d, 1867, and to facilitate restoration, passed March 23d, 1867, shall have power, and it shall be their duty before allowing the registration of any person, to ascertain upon such facts or information as they can obtain, whether such person is entitled to be registered under said act, and the oath required by said act shall not be conclusive on such question, no person shall be registered unless such board shall decide that he is entitled thereunder, and such board shall also have power to examine under oath (to be administered by any member of such board) any one touching the qualification of any person claiming registration; but in every case of a refusal by the board to register an applicant, and in every case of striking his name from the list as hereinafter provided, the board shall make a note or memorandum, which shall be returned with the registration list to the commanding general of the district setting forth the grounds of such refusal, or such striking from the list; provided, that no person shall be disqualified as a member of any such board of registration by reason of race or color.

Sec. 6. Be it further enacted, etc. That the true intent and meaning of the oath prescribed in said supplementary act is, among others, that no person who has been a member of the legislature of any State, or who held any executive or judicial office in any State, whether he has taken an oath to support the Constitution of the United States or not, and whether he was holding such office at the commencement of the rebellion, or had held office before and who was afterwards engaged in insurrection or rebellion against the United States, or has given aid or comfort to the enemies thereof, is entitled to be registered or to vote, and the words "exclusive or judicial office in any State," in said oath mentioned, shall be construed to include all civil offices created by law for the administration of any general law of a State, or for the administration of justice.

a healthy complexion, and Gen. Butler commands from any body "a feeling of unmingled approbation," such as the Methodist has for him, we shall have seen a few things. At present these gentlemen are evidently determined that no one shall set the prairie on fire before them.

New Reconstruction Bill.

Last week we published the bill as it passed the House. Some changes were made in it before it finally passed both Houses. The following is the bill as passed, by the Senate and House of Representatives, and will in a few days become a law.

Be it enacted by the Senate and House of Representatives of the United States of America in Congress assembled, That it is hereby declared to have been the true intent and meaning of the act of the 2d day of March, 1867, entitled an act to provide for the more efficient government of the rebel States, and of the act supplementary thereto, passed on the 23d day of March, in the year 1867, that the governments then existing in the rebel States of Virginia, North Carolina, South Carolina, Georgia, Mississippi, Alabama, Louisiana, Florida, Texas and Arkansas were not legal State governments, and it continued, were continued subject in all respects to the military commanders of the respective districts, and to the paramount authority of Congress.

Sec. 2. Be it further enacted, etc. That the commander of any district named in said act shall have power, subject to the disapproval of the general of the army of the United States, to have effect all disapproval, whenever in the opinion of such commander the proper administration of said act shall require it, to suspend or remove from office or the performance of official duties and the exercise of official powers, any officer or person holding, exercising, or professing to hold or exercise any civil or military office or duty in such district, under any power, election, appointment or authority derived from or granted by or claimed under any so-called State or government, thereof, or any municipal or other division thereof; and upon such suspension or removal such commander, subject to the disapproval of the general as aforesaid, shall have power to provide from time to time for the performance of the said duties of such officer or person as suspended or removed, by the detail of some competent officer or soldier of the army or by the appointment of some other person to perform the same, and to fill vacancies occasioned by death, resignation or otherwise.

Sec. 3. Be it further enacted, etc. That the general of the army of the United States shall be invested with all the powers of suspension, removal, appointment and detail granted in the preceding section to district commanders.

Sec. 4. Be it further enacted, etc. That the acts of the officers of the army already done in removing in said districts persons exercising the functions of civil offices and appointing others in their stead are hereby confirmed; provided that any person heretofore or hereafter appointed by any district commander to exercise the functions of any civil office may be removed either by the military officer in command of the district or the general of the army; and it shall be the duty of such commander to remove from office as aforesaid all persons who are disloyal to the government of the United States or use their official influence in any manner to hinder, delay, prevent or obstruct the due and proper administration of this act and the acts to which it is supplemental.

Sec. 5. Be it further enacted, etc. That the boards of registration provide for in the act entitled an act supplementary to an act entitled an act to provide for the more efficient government of the rebel States, passed March 2d, 1867, and to facilitate restoration, passed March 23d, 1867, shall have power, and it shall be their duty before allowing the registration of any person, to ascertain upon such facts or information as they can obtain, whether such person is entitled to be registered under said act, and the oath required by said act shall not be conclusive on such question, no person shall be registered unless such board shall decide that he is entitled thereunder, and such board shall also have power to examine under oath (to be administered by any member of such board) any one touching the qualification of any person claiming registration; but in every case of a refusal by the board to register an applicant, and in every case of striking his name from the list as hereinafter provided, the board shall make a note or memorandum, which shall be returned with the registration list to the commanding general of the district setting forth the grounds of such refusal, or such striking from the list; provided, that no person shall be disqualified as a member of any such board of registration by reason of race or color.

Sec. 6. Be it further enacted, etc. That the true intent and meaning of the oath prescribed in said supplementary act is, among others, that no person who has been a member of the legislature of any State, or who held any executive or judicial office in any State, whether he has taken an oath to support the Constitution of the United States or not, and whether he was holding such office at the commencement of the rebellion, or had held office before and who was afterwards engaged in insurrection or rebellion against the United States, or has given aid or comfort to the enemies thereof, is entitled to be registered or to vote, and the words "exclusive or judicial office in any State," in said oath mentioned, shall be construed to include all civil offices created by law for the administration of any general law of a State, or for the administration of justice.

This city notifies the common council that $1,250,000 of illegal money has been issued by the controller of the treasury. The common council refuse to investigate to ascertain the facts, and the city attorney refuses to sue out an injunction to stop the issue. I fear the chaos which the opinion will make, if carried out, is but little understood. Every civil officer in the State will administer justice according to his own views. Many of them, denouncing the military bill as unconstitutional, will throw every impediment in the way of its execution, and bad will go to work, unless this embarrassing condition of affairs is settled by permitting me to go on in my just course, which was endorsed by all the people except those disfranchised—most of whom are officeholders or desire to be such.

P. H. SHERIDAN, Maj. Gen.

Gen. Sheridan to Gen. Grant, June 28:

I am in receipt of a communication from the Adjutant General's Department, dated June 20, in reference to registration. I am at a loss to know whether it is an order or not. The form and phrasing are not that of an order; but I may be mistaken, and I ask for information whether I am to regard it as an order.

P. H. SHERIDAN, Maj. Gen.

Gen. Grant to Gen. Sheridan, June 28:

You dispatch of yesterday is received. Inforce your construction of the military bill until ordered to do otherwise. The opinion of the Attorney General has not been distributed to the district commanders in language or manner entitling it to the force of an order, nor can I suppose that the President intended it to have such force.

U. S. GRANT, General.

Gen. Grant to Gen. Sheridan, June 29:

I think it advisable for you to extend the term for registration in Louisiana until July 10 throughout the State. The President will have returned by that, and will decide as to the further extension.

U. S. GRANT, General.

Gen. Sheridan to Gen. Grant, June 29:

The registration in the State of Louisiana will be continued, in obedience to the orders of the President, unless I receive further orders to the contrary.

P. H. SHERIDAN, Maj. Gen.

Gen. Sheridan to Gen. Grant, July 2:

I did not get your dispatch of June 29 until to-day. It was mislaid in the Washington office. I had already ordered the extension in the State, except in the parish of Orleans, until July 15, and after the receipt of your letter of July 24 the extension was made indefinite. The Boards now have nothing to do in this city and most of the parishes.

P. H. SHERIDAN, Maj. Gen.

OBITUARIES.

ANOTHER SAINT GONE TO REST.

Mrs. MARGARET F. DU BOSE, consort of Rev. Malachi Du Bose, of Floyd, La., after a protracted and painful illness, departed this life on the 3rd of May, aged 50 years.

The deceased attached herself to the Poydras street M. E. Church, in New Orleans, under the ministry of Rev. Wm. M. Curtis, (the pastor of said church,) as a seeker of religion in the year 1841. She was one of the ten persons who joined on the Sabbath after the death of the lamented Elijah Steel. After an earnest struggle of about two years, she found "peace with God through faith in Christ, in 1843; at a camp-meeting in Covington, St. Tammany Parish, La., an occasion to which she ever after referred with unspeakable pleasure. After an acquaintance of about twelve years, with the subject of this notice, (commencing with a pastoral connection of two years) during which it has been our privilege to meet her in the classroom, in the Sabbath school, in the chamber of the sick, at the bedside of the dying, in the house of mourning, and by the altar crowded with agonizing penitents; we may safely say, that no character has ever fallen on our observation more radiant of Christian beauty. She was one of the purest and most faultless models of unostentatious sincerity, unassuming dignity, and unobtrusive devotion we ever beheld. She exerted unconsciously a powerful influence upon every community in which she resided, for notwithstanding the retiring modesty of her manner, and her angelic delicacy of feeling, caused her to instinctively shrink from notoriety—yet such was the transparency of her character—such the lustre of Christian principle that shone through every act, and guided every motion, that she became to all who knew her, a luminous manifestation of the beauty of Christianity, a living refutation of infidelity, to which skepticism could frame no rejoinder. Upon the young ladies who grew up in her Sabbath School Classes, she left the hallowed impress of a mind remarkably conversant with Biblical literature and Methodist Theology, and of a heart imbued with the purest Christian sympathies. It was a beautiful sight to behold with what affectionate and almost breathless attention, they sat round her, on the Sabbath morning their animated faces beaming with the expression of excited intelligence and reciprocal love, reminding us of Satellites revolving round some beautiful and luminous centre and absorbing its rays, until fully charged with its beams, they refract them through a thousand angles to cheer and bless the circles, which are to be compassed in all their future revolutions.

During her illness, the distinguishing manifestations of gentleness, tenderness, and love "to all who came within her presence, and especially to her husband," were but the natural fruits of such a life; "tis like the fragrant sandal tree, which "in dying breathes its scented breath." That a "branch suspended upon the Rose of Sharon" should even fill the air of death's cold chamber with its redolence is not surprising.

Gen. Grant to Gen. Sheridan, June 28:

I see a dispatch from Gen. Grant announcing that the 7th of War and myself favoring your action in the Governor of Louisiana. There is not one word of the story.

U. S. GRANT, General.

Gen. Grant to Gen. Sheridan, June 28:

Gen. Sheridan has assumed the duty of a man of integrity, and I now feel as though I were not his laborer. As it has been said, there was no security, and I have not rid of an unprincipled trickster here but a bold and strong man, and I am supported by every class and party.

P. H. SHERIDAN, Maj. Gen.

Some weeks before her death, she expressed a desire to "have a more heart felt sense of the love of God, but when asked if she felt any sense of condemnation. She promptly replied in the negative. She occasionally repented the lines, "Afflictions, though they seem severe, Are oft in mercy sent."

As her sufferings grew more intense, the light of reason became obscured—like the moon which has lit with beauty some brilliant night, but approaches the horizon behind a single cloud, as if to graduate its decline, and soothe away its light by stealth in mercy to man, so departed our lovely sister. Farewell! till we meet in heaven. May He who tempers the winds to the shorn lamb, "So temper this dispensation to the bereaved husband and daughter, that upon the falling dews of wounded affection may arise the morning of promise, chasing away the night of sorrow."

H.

SPECIAL NOTICES.

Summerfield District Meeting.

A District Meeting for the Summerfield District will be held at Uniontown, commencing Thursday, the 12th Sept. The official members of the church within the bounds of the district, are all members of the District Meeting Conference, and are earnestly requested and expected to attend. Arrangements will be made to carry the members over the railroads at half price.

A. H. MITCHELL, P. E.

Yazoo District—Mississippi Conference.

THIRD ROUND OF QUARTERLY MEETINGS.
Lexington, Oregon June 15, 16
Greenwood, at Greenwood 22, 23
Carrollton, at Mt Zion 29, 30
Emory, at Enon July 6, 7
Holmes, at Wheeling 13, 14
Richland, at Goodman 20, 21
Black Hawk, at Sweetwater Aug 3, 4
Mount Olivet, at Fletcher Chapel 17, 18
Yazoo, at Mt Carmel 24, 25
Yazoo City Station Aug 31 Sept 1

In addition to the above appointments I will preach, Deo volente, at the following places and times.

Lexington, June 19, 8 o'clock P. M.
Sweetwater, " 19, 11 " A. M.
Black Hawk, " 20, 8 " P. M.
Carrollton, " 27, 8 " " "
Eden, " 28, 8 " " "
Durant, July 10, 8 " "
Benton, Aug 10, 8 " "

BRETHREN: Have religious services on the stated fast-days. Our District Meeting will commence at Sweetwater, Black Hawk Circuit, on the first day of August. I urge upon the Brethren the importance of having everything in readiness for the Quarterly Meetings. They should be made, as far as possible, occasions of interest and profit to the Church.

J. M. PUGH, P. E.

Tuskaloosa District—Mobile Conference.

THIRD ROUND OF QUARTERLY MEETINGS.
Marion May 25, 26
Greensboro June 1, 2
New Bern and Oak Grove " 8, 9
Brush Creek " 15, 16
Liberty " 22, 23
Scottsville and Carthage July 6, 7
Tuskaloosa " 13, 14
Havana " 20, 21
Eutaw " 27, 28
Forkland Aug 3, 4

J. L. COTTER, P. E.

The District Meeting for the Jacksonville District, Montgomery Conference, will be held at Columbus, Ga., to commence on Friday before the third Sunday in July next. Bishop Wightman will be present. All the preachers, traveling and local, elected delegates and official members, are expected to attend. Ample accommodations, and a hearty welcome are extended to all.

L. M. WILSON, P. E.

Columbia, Ala., June 19, 1867.

Lake Providence Dist.—La. Conference.

THIRD ROUND OF QUARTERLY MEETINGS:
Delhi & Floyd Ct., at Midway, July 29, 28
Carroll, at Curtis's, Aug 3, 4
Oakley, at Bonif Prairie 10, 11
Ion, Little Creek Chapel, 24, 25
Tensas and Sicily, Sicily Island Sept 7, 8
Waterproof & St. Joseph, Waterproof 14, 15
Also a District Meeting for Lake Providence District, to be held at Oakley Camp ground, to commence on the 27th Sept., at which all the traveling and local preachers, exhortors, district stewards, Sunday-school superintendents and class leaders, are respectfully requested to attend, and as many of the members of the church as possible.

WM. G. McGAUGHEY, P. E.

Brookhaven Dist—Miss Conference.

THIRD ROUND OF QUARTERLY MEETINGS.
Wesson June 8, 9
Chrystal Springs, Georgetown 22, 23
Hazlehurst, White Bay 15, 16
Brookhaven, " July 6, 7
Holmesville, Summit 13, 14
Meadville, Smyrna 20, 21
Bayou Chitto, Monticello 27, 28
Bayou Pierre, Pleasant Valley Aug 3, 4
Pearl River 10, 11
Scotland, Bethesda 17, 18

G. W. MILLSAP, P. E.

Mobile District—Mobile Conference.

THIRD ROUND OF QUARTERLY MEETINGS.
Mobile, St. Paul's June 22, 23
Franklin street " 29, 30
St. Francis July 6, 7
Whistler & Cottage Hill, at Cottage Hill 13, 14
Citronelle, at George's 20, 21
Eastern shore & Fish River, at P. Clear 27, 28
Bay shore and Pascagoula at Zion Aug 3, 4
Ocean Springs at Ocean Springs 10, 11
Waynesboro, at Buckatunna 17, 18
St. Stephens & State Line, at State Line 24, 25

THOS. W. DORMAN, P. E.

Shreveport Dist.—Louisiana Conference.

THIRD ROUND OF QUARTERLY MEETINGS.
Many, at Bayou Lee, Jano 1, 2
Anacoco, Kismetie, " 8, 9
Pleasant Hill, at Bethel, " 15, 16
Shreveport July 6, 7
N. Rossier, at Collinsburg, " 13, 14
Caddo, at Keatchie, " 20, 21
Belle Bower 27, 28
Springville, at Holly's S. H. Ang 3, 4
Mansfield, at Foster's Chapel 10, 11

B. F. ALEXANDER, P. E.

Address: Mansfield, La.

NOTICE.

For reasons considered just and good, the meeting of the Convention of Natchez District is postponed until the 25th of September next.

J. A. GODFREY.

NEW ADVERTISEMENTS.

WOODVILLE FEMALE SEMINARY.

WOODVILLE, WILKINSON COUNTY, MISSISSIPPI.

Will begin its THIRD ANNUAL Session on Wednesday, September 25th, 1867, and close it on the First Wednesday in July, 1868.

CHARGES PER HALF SESSION.

BOARD $150
TUITION IN PRIMARY GRADE 30
" MIDDLE GRADE 40
" COLLEGIATE GRADE 50
MUSIC with use of Piano 45
" ORNAMENTALS at FAIR PRICES. 60
For particulars send for Circular to W. T. J. SULLIVAN, Principal. July 20

"FEMALE COLLEGIATE INSTITUTE."

JACKSON, TENNESSEE.

Rev. A. W. Jones, President.

The Institution for young ladies, of the South send your daughters, and full satisfaction shall be given in all respects.

For particulars, address the President. July 20-6w

FOR RENT.

Lake shore Residence—on Ocean Springs: directly fronting the beach: five rooms: wide galleries front and rear. Forty-seven feet long: some heavy furniture in the house. Apply to the office of New Orleans Christian Advocate.

W. W. CHAPMAN.

Commission, Retailing and Forwarding

MERCHANT.

MONROE, LA.
REFERENCES: Messrs. Nalle, Day, & Co., Spilke & Sandigge, Cowen & Mayo, Mr. R. I. Walker, New Orleans, La. July 20

PAUL J. CHRISTIAN.

GENERAL

MERCANTILE AND STEAMBOAT

STATIONER.

BLANK BOOK MANUFACTURER

and

JOB PRINTER.

.....NO. 38 CAMP ST.....

All orders in my line promptly filled. July 13-6m

JOHN W. MADDEN.

LATE FIRM OF

PAUL J. CHRISTIAN & CO.

Printer, Ruler and Blank Book Manufacturer, and Lithographer.

No 73 Camp street, New Orleans.

Blank Books made to any pattern desired and at reasonable rates. July 13-3m

ST. LOUIS MUTUAL LIFE INSURANCE COMPANY.

D. A. JANUARY, President.

GEO. H. LUCAS, Vice President.

J. R. PURVIS, Agent.

Office No 44 Camp Street, New Orleans, La.

RICHARDSON & COLEMAN.

ATTORNEY AT LAW.

.....No. 5 Commercial Place.....

New Orleans.

THE BRANCH OF THE SOUTHern Methodist Publishing House, at 112

Camp street, is ready to fill orders for the latest revised edition of the Discipline, with the paragraphs relating to Lay Representation.

24 mo. mail 90c.

Sent by mail at 70c.

Prices for other qualities of binding, unchanged.

Also a duodecimo Edition of the Discipline with large margins for the convenience of those who wish to make notes.

Road $1-50

" Gilt 2 00

Turkey Morocco 3 00

Sent by mail for 20 cts additional.

Also just received,

THE SUNDAY SERVICE,

ordered by the late General Conference.

Sheep $1 25

Road 1 50

Road Gilt 2 00

Turkey Morocco 3 00

Sent by mail for 20 cts additional.

July 13

E. J. HARP, Agt.

CENTRAL AMERICA.

BELIZE, BRITISH HONDURAS.

Will sail positively on SATURDAY, July 27, at 6 P. M.

The splendid steamship

General Sherman,

JEFF. PENDLETON, Commander.

Carrying the United States and British Honduras mails, will sail as above, from Post 15,

First District, for Belize direct. All mail matter must pass through the Post Office. No berths secured until paid for.

For freight or passage apply to

LOVELL & BAILEY,

23 Carondelet street.

Parties desiring to visit Santa Thomas, Tisabel and Omoa can secure passage on the Steamer

Enterprise or schooners from Belize. July 13-3t

FOR BRITISH HONDURAS.

A Very fast superior copper fastened vessel has been engaged by a party of emigrants, to start from New Orleans to Belize, on Tuesday

23rd July, at about 11 o'clock A. M. I am so much pleased with the superior cabin, and other arrangements of this vessel, that I have engaged to go out in her, with my family; and one more family is engaged. Persons who wish to go in this vessel, will please write to me, that their names may be entered in time to secure a passage. Fare $30 00 Currency.

Those who wish to return in a few days, can come back of the same vessel. Address, Rev.

R. B. Doyal, New Orleans, La.

Care, Rev. Dr. Keener, 112 Camp St. July 13-2t

ALAN BRITTON.

A. BRITTON & CO.,

General Steamboat Agents,

COMMISSION & FORWARDING MERCHANT.

No 7 Front street, New Orleans

July 5-6m

WHITWORTH FEMALE COLLEGE.

BROOKHAVEN, MISS.

128 miles from New Orleans, on N. O. & G. N.

Rail Road.

The next session will open on Wednesday,

the 11th of September, 1867.

There is a full corps of teachers; the instruction will be thorough; the discipline firm and strict.

The building is large and well arranged; the play ground ample; the location healthy.

The Institution is under control of the M. E.

Church, South.

The entire expenses in the Collegiate Department for board, tuition, books and incident als, including music and the ornamental branches, need not exceed $125 00 for term of twenty weeks.

Each boarder must furnish her towels, one pair of blankets and sheets.

For further information, address

REV. H. F. JOHNSON,

July 13-6m Pres't Whitworth Female College.

SOULE UNIVERSITY.

CHAPPELL HILL, TEXAS.

The Board of Trustees take pleasure in announcing to the people of Texas and of Louisiana

the re-organization of Soule University, under the direction of the following faculty.

OH MCOWEN, A. M. Pres't and Prof. of Greek and Latin Languages.

REV. J. C. MOORE, A. M. Prof. of Mathematics.

REV. B. F. KAVANAGH, M. D. Prof. Biblical Literature and Moral Science.

TH KAVANAGH, M. D. Prof. of Natural Science

REV. BROWN, A. B. Principal Preparatory Department.

B. V. LUM, Librarian.

The first Session of

THE CHILD'S CORNER.

LIFE'S LOT.

BY THE DEAN OF CANTERBURY.
I know not if the dark or bright
Shall be my lot;
If that whereof my soul delight
Be best or not.

It may be mine to drag for years
Till's heavy chain;
Or day and night my meat be tears
On bed of pain.

Dear those may surround my hearth
With smiles and glee;
Or I may dwell alone, and sigh
Be strange to me.

My bark is wafted to the strand
By breath Divine,
And on the helm there rests a hand
Other than mine.

One who has known in storms to sail
I have on board;
Above the raging of the gale
I hear my Lord.

He holds me with the billow's might—
I shall not fall;
If sharp, 'tis short; if long, 'tis light;
He tempest all.

Safe to the land—safe to the land—
The end is this;
And then with Him go hand in hand
Far into bliss.

Give us this Day our Daily Bread.

In a miserable hovel at the bottom of a hill, two children hovered over a smouldering fire. A tempest raged without—a fearful tempest—against which man and beast were alike powerless.

A poor old miser, much poorer than these shivering children, though he had heaps of money at home drew his cloak around him as he crouched down at the threshold of the miserable door. He dared not enter for fear they would ask pay for shelter, and he could not move for the storm.

"I am hungry, Nettie."
"So am I, I've been hunting for a potato paring, but can't find any."
"What an awful storm!"

"Yes the old tree has blown down. I guess God took care that it didn't fall on the house. See, it would certainly have killed us."

"If he could do that, couldn't he send us bread?"

"I guess so. Let us pray, 'Our Father,' and when we come to that part, stop till we get some bread."

So they began, and the miser crouching and shivering, listened.

When they paused, expecting in their childish faith to see some miraculous manifestations, a human feeling stole over his heart—God sent some angel to soften it. He had bought a loaf of bread at the village, thinking it would last him a great many days, but the silence of children spoke louder than the voice of many waters.

He opened the door softly, threw in the loaf, and then listened to the wild and eager cry of delight that came from the half-famished little ones.

"It dropped right down from heaven didn't it?" questioned the younger.

"Yes," was the reply. "I mean to love God always for giving us bread because we asked him."

"Let us ask him to give father work to do all the time, so we need never be hungry again. He'll do it—'I'm sure.'"

A little flower had sprung up in the old miser's heart; it was no longer barren.

In a few weeks he died, but not before he had given the cottage which was his to the poor laboring man.

And the little children ever after felt a sweet and solemn emotion, when in their maternal devotion they came to those trustful words, "Give us this day our daily bread."

"NAY STRIFE UP HERE."—It is related that an old Scotch elder had once a serious dispute with his minister at an Elders' meeting. He said some hard things, and almost broke the minister's heart. Afterward he went home, and the minister went home too. The next morning the elder came down, and his wife said to him:

"Ye look sad, Jan: what is the matter with ye?"

"Ah!" he replied, "yon would look sad too if you had such a dream as I have. I dreamed that I had been to the Elders' meeting, and said some hard things, and grieved the minister; and when he went home I thought he died, and went to heaven; and I thought afterwards I died too, and went to heaven; and when I got to the gates of heaven, out came the minister, and put his hands out to me saying, 'Come along, Jan, there's nae strife up here—happy to see ye.'"

The elder went to his minister directly to beg his pardon, and found he was dead. The elder was so stricken with the blow that two weeks after he also departed. "And I should not wonder," said he who related the incident, "if he met the minister at heaven's gate, and heard him say: 'Come along, Jan, there's nae strife up here.'—[Presbyter.

SCOTCH PROVERB—He that teaches himsel a fool for his minister.

FARM AND GARDEN.

WHEN A HEN WILL AND WILL NOT LAY.—When a hen is satisfied it will lay. It is satisfied when it has enough to eat and drink, and that of a good quality. It is satisfied when it has warm quarters (in winter, it is satisfied when it is unmolested. It is satisfied when it has a safe, retired place to lay, for a hen does not want to be annoyed with doubt in regard to its future progeny. It is satisfied when it has room enough. It is satisfied when it has a place to wallow in. It is satisfied when it finds gravel and bits of burnt bone strewn where it is. It is satisfied with a variety of food, animal and vegetable, and vegetables from the garden, such as cabbages, onions, etc. It is satisfied when it feels the warming influence of pepper mixed with its food. It is particularly satisfied when it has somebody to give it these things daily, and be a daily friend to it—for the hen is social and companionable. And, lastly, it is satisfied with a rooster.

But it is not satisfied when it suffers for the want of food. It is not satisfied with dirty water. It is not satisfied with shivering in the cold. It is not satisfied with disturbances and danger. It is not satisfied when thrust with a great number of hens and jostled about. It is not satisfied when it has a hard, naked floor, where its bright eye cannot detect a grain of sand to form a shell for its egg. It is not satisfied when it has no safe place to lay. It is not satisfied when it is neglected. And, last of all, it is greatly dissatisfied when forsaken and left to shift for itself, as is usually done in barns, often trodden upon, at least its toes, if not frozen off.—[Colman's Rural.

A NEW HORTICULTURAL PROCESS.—At the last meeting of the Agricultural Society in India, the Rev. Mr. Firminger communicated a plan by which the stones of fruit may be reduced or made to disappear, and the pulp increased in size and flavor. At any time during the cold season select a branch that is to be used afterward for inarching. From both halves of the branch thus split scoop out clearly all the pith, then bring the split halves together again, and keep them bandaged till they have become thoroughly united. At the usual time, the beginning of the rains, inarch the branch thus treated upon suitable stock, taking for the place of union the portion of the Branch just below where the split was made. Upon a branch of the tree thus produced a similar operation is performed, and so on for successive seasons; the result being that the stone of the fruit becomes less and less, after each successive operation.

CULTURE OF CANTALOUPE.—The culture of this fruit, unequalled by any other that is grown, we are glad to see is becoming more general. Almost every person having a garden of any size, is beginning to try his hand at it, and it can be done with as much success as raising a crop of corn. The ground should have a warm exposure, and be friable clay (mould not being adapted); the hills should be dug out six inches and filled with well-rotted manure and rich soil—five or six seeds should be put at equal distances about an inch in depth and the "hill" should be even with the other soil. The hills should be about six feet apart each way, and the plants when they have passed all danger, should be thinned out to about three in a hill. The bed must be kept clear of all weeds and grass, and when the vines commence running they should not be disturbed, or the rootlets connected with the vine and by which it is largely supplied with nourishment, will be broken. The ground, as the vines begin to extend, should be gone over with an iron rake, especially after a heavy shower, to loosen it and give these rootlets a chance to take hold. They should be planted at the time of complaining.

There is no reason why all our farmers should not have a patch of cantaloupes for family use. A plot of ground 40 by 20 feet would be enough for a moderately-sized family.—[Germantown Telegraph.

POISONING NOXIOUS INSECTS.—The Practical Entomologist for February copies from a correspondent of the Agricultural Bureau, in Trimble county, Ky., the following:

"The tobacco worm is the most formidable adversary the farmer has to contend against in the culture of the weed, and this season many planters in this county and elsewhere are providing and administering poison to the fly that lays the egg. The process generally pursued is to drop a few drops of ratsbane or others poison, in liquid form, into the flower of the Jamestown weed, wild morning glory, etc., into which they are sure to insert their large bills and die almost instantly. With the death of each fly, or miller as they are termed, three to five hundred eggs are destroyed, each of which produces a worm."

Mr. Walsh, the editor, not only endorses this, but recommends poison, administered in molasses and rum, for the destruction of the cotton moth, boll worm moth, and other insects, but we would remind him and his reader that twenty years ago, the same thing was practiced extensively in Florida, and had to be abandoned on account of the general destruction of the honey bees, that resorted to the same flowers for honey; and the poisoned honey stored by the bees poisoned a number of persons. It was then tried more cautiously, by putting the poison in the flower late in the evening after the bee ceased to fly, and removing the poison flower early in the morning, but the poison adhering to the "large bills" of the tobacco fly was distributed to other flowers, that they visited after those containing the poison; so that it was entirely abandoned. It is also sure to kill all the humming birds.

CHARCOAL FOR FATTENING FOWLS.—Charcoal has been tried in fattening fowls, with marked advantage: the difference in weight produce amounting to fifteen or twenty per cent. besides, a decided advantage in tenderness and flavor. The charcoal was pulverized and mixed with the food, about a gill daily to one turkey, and also left free on the ground.

SCIENTIFIC.

Theories of the Structure of Iron.

A highly suggestive paper on the structure of iron was read at a late meeting of the South Wales Institute of Mining Engineers, by M. M. Vivian, Esq. Mr. Vivian's somewhat novel data invite careful testing, and if confirmed, the theory to which they appear to lead would become an interesting subject of discussion, strikingly in harmony with the present tendency of speculation in physics. He asserts positively, from a wide and protracted range of microscopic study of the metals in their various conditions, that they are invariably found (according to previous treatment) in one of these two kinds of molecular formation: either angular and crystalline, or cellular: the fibrous condition being a mechanical modification of the latter, showing under the microscope an ellipsoidal extension and concatenation of the cells, which are at the same time flattened and laminated upon one another like scales, or links in a flattened chain.

We lately quoted a theory which attributed the fibrous condition of wrought metals to the interposition of slag which became minutely flattened and lengthened out within the structure, by the process of manufacture, so as to separate the mass longitudinally into fibers. The more usual and plausible explanation of this condition is that by stretching and doubling a tenuous mass very many times over, a multitude of fresh surfaces are successively formed and brought into contact, which not being in a state of fusion, cannot mingle their particles, but adhere superficially, with a certain distinctness or separation preserved; so that the mass is made up of minute parallel strips, coherent but not consolidated or mingled, and possessing each in itself the flexibility which is found in a fine thread even of the most brittle substance; while their limited cohesion to each other allows a certain flexible play within the mass, as in bending a bundle of rods. It is seen that these theories are all ductile enough to be run into each other as one, with a little mutual accommodation, supposing Mr. Vivian's microscopic observations to be correct. Granting the flexibility of puddled iron to be accounted for by the usual explanation above given, it is a question whether some other cause must not be sought for its increased tensile strength. And again, the unsurpassed flexibility and tenacity of Bessemer steel remain quite unaccounted for by the ordinary theory. So that there is unquestionably room for inquiry on this subject.

No metal is ever really solid, and all good malleable iron is "as porous as a sponge." Mr. Graham's researches have shown that the metals absorb and retain mechanically, various proportions of different gases, in their cellular spaces. Mr. Vivian makes the interesting statement, from his own observations, that the best known conductors of heat and electricity, such as silver, copper and iron, have the most perfectly cellular structure, and their conductive power varies in accordance with the variations of this condition. His idea is that the cells afford a vacuous channel for these forces: which is not as philosophical as to suppose that the forces are forwarded by the continuity and elasticity of the cellular partitions.

As to the cause of the exchange of the crystalline for the cellular (or else amorphous) structure, and vice versa the present state of inquiry (for science there is none) allows a variety of conjectures. In the state of fusion, the molecules of the structure are partially liberated by the force of cohesion or gravitation to one another. At the same time the ultimate contents of the molecules themselves may be affected likewise, so as to assume the natural form of matter in freedom (or rather in action, through the force of heat) which is spherical. From this modification of their form and loosening of their cohesion, results fluidity, or the smoothness and freedom with which the molecules roll over one another. Mr. Vivian attributes the alleged cellular formation to an equilibrium of the opposing forces of expansion and contraction, but as these act in exactly opposite directions, the result of their equilibrium would be rest, at a single point of time. If at that point of time the molecular form were fixed beyond disturbance from the further progress and predominance of the contractile force, the result might be a globular, but not necessarily a cellular structure. If on the contrary, the withdrawal of the caloric and ascendancy of the contractile force be violently accelerated, it is conceivable that the globular molecules might be given by an irregular conflict of forces in straight lines, producing a formation in planes, or crystals. The alleged cellular condition of the globular molecules would remain to be accounted for, by enclosed gases for instance—a cause apparently not of sufficient universality—or else by some undiscovered law.

This brings into play Helmholtz's new theory of "wirbelbewegung," or vortex motion. Supposing it a law of caloric force (or, as we more habitually regard it, fluid freedom) in matter, to produce motion in circles, we have at once a clear cause for the alleged cellularity, and a clear necessity, both for its maintenance—in case the heat-motion be not suddenly overcome and the arched condition of the matter be enabled to sustain itself without violent opposition until it grows turgid and finally rigid—and on the other hand for its disruption in planes of cleavage, in case the contractile force be suddenly and violently accelerated. This account of the process, if true, would also account for the brittleness of the ruptured and crystalline structure, as well as for its density and hardness. The crystalline or "shot" quality of iron worked too hot, would also be explained on the same principle—the sudden contraction from the sudden escape of heat, cooperating perhaps with mechanical force, to rupture the cells or arches at the critical moment of consolidation. We shall not be understood, of course, as advocating any of the actual or supposable theories, which we repeat only by way of information and stimulus to inquiry.

According to Mr. Vivian's observations, the walls of the metallic cells, being smoothly formed and inaccessible to oxidation, are exceedingly brilliant, and reflect light from innumerable facets, when the mass is fractured. As before said, by rolling they are supposed to be flattened out like links, into chains or fibers, and by drawing as wire, this effect becomes still more marked. If then the bar, or especially the wire, be broken short off at right angles, it shows a dull gray color, because we look into the cells lengthwise, and the light is but faintly reflected from their depths. On the other hand, where the bar shows a longitudinal fracture, slightly bent to one side, the most lustrous effects are seen. Mr. Vivian thinks that the tensile strength of wire is reduced by repeated annealings during the process of drawing, in consequence of ruptures of the cells by expansion. If his views are correct, the test of iron and steel which he recommends, by examining the molecular structure with the microscope, when sufficiently understood, would become of great value.—[Sci. Am.

CONDENSED MILK AND MEAT.—Milk as it comes from the cow, contains 85 per cent. of water. The process of condensing milk, consists in expelling about 75 per cent. of water, without otherwise changing the milk. This is done by boiling in a vacuum. The air is exhausted from the alembic or boiler, by an air pump, and heat applied by surrounding it with hot water. Under these circumstances milk boils at the temperature of 120 degrees, which is too low to change its qualities. Powdered loaf sugar is added as a preventive of decomposition. The process is a rapid one, seven hundred gallons being condensed in an hour in Borden's factory in New York. Condensed meats are made by cutting up the meats to be used very fine, by knives worked by steam. It is then boiled by steam and the pulp thus produced, placed in a powerful press which forces out every particle of juice. The dry residuum is then thrown away, having no more nutriment in it than saw dust. The juice obtained is then condensed by the same process used for milk.

THE "ARROW TIE."

AND PAINTED IRON BANDS,
For sale at the lowest prices, by
H. T. BARTLETT & R. W. KAYNE,
General Agents, No. 43 Carondelet street.

The above popular fastening is the best now in use for baling Cotton. They are approved by the Insurance Companies of this city, and are used at the Cotton Presses in New Orleans, Memphis, Mobile, Galveston, Savannah, and by Planters everywhere with success and approbation.

N. B.—Said ARROW TIES are on sale by dealers in New Orleans, and everywhere throughout all the Cotton growing States, at the lowest prices. jo 22-67-6m

PRIVATE BOARDING.

Belize,
British Honduras.
The undersigned respectfully solicits from the public a share of their patronage.
jo 15-3m R. S. WEA.

MRS. DYER'S BOARDING HOUSE.

This is situated on Camp street, the first door above St. Patrick's Cathedral, No. 174.
References: Rev. Dr. Keener, Dr. Walker, Linn's Parker, R. J. Harp. jo 6-6m

FOR RENT.

Lake shore Residence—at Ocean Springs: directly fronting the beach: five rooms: wide galleries front and rear, forty feet seven long: some heavy furniture in the house: Apply to this office of New Orleans Christian Advocate.

HENDERSON A. MORSE,

ATTORNEY AT LAW,
—and—
Commissioner of Deeds.
For the States of South Carolina, Mississippi, Kentucky, Tennessee, Georgia, Alabama, Pennsylvania, Missouri, Maryland, Texas, Florida, Arkansas. No. 23 Commercial Place, Third Floor.
April 20 1y New Orleans.

It is an unfailing remedy in all cases of Neuralgia, Sciatica, often effecting a perfect cure in less than twenty-four hours, from the use of no more than two or three pills.

No other form of Neuralgia or Nervous Disease has failed to yield to this wonderful remedial agent.

Even the severest cases of Chronic Neuralgia and general nervous derangements, of many years standing,—affecting the entire system, its use for a few days, or a few weeks at the utmost, always affords the most astonishing relief, and very rarely fails to produce a complete and permanent cure.

It contains no drug or other materials in the slightest degree injurious, even to the most delicate system, and can always be used with perfect safety.

It has long been in constant use by many of our most eminent physicians, who give it their unanimous and unqualified approval.

Sent by mail on receipt of price, and postage.

One package, $1.00 Postage 6 cts

Six packages, 5.00 " 27

Twelve packages, 9.00 " 43

It is sold by all wholesale and retail dealers in drugs and medicines throughout the United States, and by

Turner & Co., Sole Proprietors,
je 22 120 Tremont street, Boston, Mass.

THE SOUTHERN FARMER.

A Monthly of 16 pages, devoted to Agriculture, Horticulture, Stock Raising, and all the Industrial and Mechanical Interests of the South.

Edited by Dr. M. W. Phillips, assisted by Prof. E. W. Hilgard, University of Mississippi; Prof. W. L. Jones, University of Georgia, and P. J. Berckmans, Augusta.

Terms—$2 per annum.

Published by M. W. PHILLIPS & Co. Memphis, Tenn.

A STEAMER FOR BELIZE RIVER.

I have obtained a vote of the Assembly of British Honduras of a subsidy of $100 specie, for each trip I may make in a steamer up the Belize River to Richmond, and back for six months, and a monopoly of the steam navigation of that river for five years, and I wish to get some one to join me in furnishing and running a small steamer. This is a first rate chance for any one having a suitable boat, or the capacity to buy one, as the rates of freight will pay very well, and the trade of Guatemala must pass that way.

Persons who may call on me next Tuesday in Dr. Keener's office, 112 Camp street, or write to me to his care, can make some arrangement.

je 29 B. R. DUVAL.

COPARTNERSHIP.

The undersigned, for many years in the house of J. Marks & Co., has this day formed a copartnership with Mr. J. H. Massey, 100 Common street, for the purpose of conducting a Wholesale Dry Goods Business, under the style and firm of

J. H. MASSEY & CO.,

and respectfully solicits the patronage of his old friends.

D. V. BENJAMIN.
New Orleans, January 1, 1867.

J. H. MASSEY & CO.,

WHOLESALE DEALERS IN

DRY GOODS AND CLOTHING,

100 Common Street, opposite City Hotel.

mar 2-67

BELEZE, BRITISH HONDURAS

Putnam & Cary.

GENERAL COMMISSION RECEIVING AND FORWARDING MERCHANTS.

—and—
Custom House Block, Belize, British Honduras.

je 16-3m

DOLBEAR COMMERCIAL COLLEGE.

On the corner of Camp and Common sts. (In the Spacious and Elegant Story Building.) Is constantly in session under able Professors. It was founded in 1852, and is chartered by the State. Its former students may be found as Principals or Book-keepers in a large portion of the old homes of this city and over the Southern States. Ladies or gentlemen can attend the COMMERCIAL COURSE; or Book-keeping, Penmanship, Mathematics, English, French or Spanish, separately. A business education, that enables one to earn $1000, $2000, or $3000 annually, is the best fortune parents can give their sons: A DIPLOMA from this College is a passport in all Commercial communities. Ladies and Gentlemen are invited to call. We have ample arrangements for 1000 students the present year. Liberal arrangements made for Clergymen or their sons and crippled soldiers. Catalogues sent to all who desire them.

nov 17 1y RUFUS DOLBEAR, President.

KNIGHT & CO.,

Dealers in

PLANTATION, MILL, & WOOD-WORKING

MACHINERY,

And Agricultural Implements.

Keep constantly on hand a large assortment of articles peculiar to our business, and through our agents in the North and East, can fill promptly all orders for articles in our line not usually kept in this market.

The great change in our labor system necessitates a corresponding change in the Implements used, and we have prepared ourselves to offer the latest Improved

LABOR-SAVING MACHINES,

both for Agricultural and Mechanical purposes, at prices that will warrant their purchase.

Also, REEDS & CO'S Sugar Kettles, Newell Screws, Gin Gearing, &c; and will contract for any kind of work done at their establishment, at their prices.

172 GRAVIER STREET, NEW ORLEANS.

n17 1y

AUSTIN & GOODWIN,

Wholesale Dealers and Manufacturers of

TINWARE,

COOKING AND HEATING STOVES.

Of all kinds, sole Agents for the Good Samaritan Cooking Stove.

25 Peters, formerly Front Levee, Corner Customhouse street, NEW ORLEANS.

oct20 1y

SOUTH-WESTERN BIBLE SOCIETY.

Where is it located? Its Depository and Bible-House is at its own building, No. 163 Canal street, New Orleans.

When was it established? 1850.

Who is its General Agent to whom correspondence on its business should be addressed? Rev. W. H. Bayless.

Where is the Society's field of labor? All of Louisiana, and all of Mississippi, south of the 33rd parallel of North latitude.

What is the object of the Society? To preach and supply (gratuitously where needed) the destitution of the Holy Scriptures.

What are the resources and whence the income of the Society? From the annual contributions of its members. Collections of Churches within its field, collections at public meetings and anniversaries. Appropriations of the surplus funds of its auxiliaries, the donations of generous individuals, testamentary bequests, and the annual donation in Books of the American Bible Society.

What is the Society's method of work? By cultivating its own local work in the city and district of New Orleans; then through Auxiliary Societies established or to be established in every Parish and County in the field, and the employment by them of Agents, who will accomplish the object of the Society.

What are the terms of membership? The payment of $25 at one time constitutes a life member.

The payment of $150 at one time, constitutes a life Director.

The payment of $1000 at one time, constitutes a life Patron.

The payment of $3 annually, constitutes a member.

The taking up of a collection by a church constitutes the honor of an honorary member.

Having thus briefly stated the main features of the Society's work, income and expenditure, the Board of Directors for the current year confidently ask the aid of all lovers of the Bible, whether professors of religion or not; to strengthen the hands of the S. W. B. S. by founding or reviving Auxiliaries, by donating and urging donations, by expounding and reporting the destitution of the Scriptures, by commencing or renewing memberships of all grades and by establishing connections with the Society as the Lord has prospered them according to their faith and ability.

Let them say: Lay not up for yourselves treasures upon earth, where moth and rust doth corrupt, and where thieves break through and steal; but lay up for yourselves treasures in heaven, where neither moth nor rust doth corrupt, and where thieves do not break through and steal." To ministers and pastors of Churches of every Order, Protestant Churches, the Board of Directors, representing in its body such within our bounds, appeals with confidence to aid them by judicious effort, a prompt performance of duty and a prayerful commendation of the Society to the blessing of Almighty God, for except the Lord build the house, they labor in vain that build it, except the Lord keep the city, the watchman waketh but in vain.

Our last thought is the hearty cry of the Great Reformation: "No forbidding of the Word: so tampering with the text: no man's word a yoke upon the Word: Christ's Word: the Holy Spirit's Word: Free: Free: Free: $25 1y."

SOUTHERN SHOE MANUFACTORY

H. H. DRAKE,

Manufacturers of

Men's, Boys', Ladies', Misses' & Children's

BOOTS AND SHOES,

WHOLESALE AND RETAIL,

No. 56 Camp Street, New Orleans, La.

We call the attention of the public to our extensive stock of fine custom-made Gents' Boots and Shoes, for Gents, Boys, Youths, Ladies, Misses and Children, made of the best imported stock, by skillful workmen.

We design furnishing goods that combine elegance with durability, at a less price than common goods are usually sold for in this city.

OUR LAST-FOR-EVER BOOTS!

Every man in this State should have a pair of our Last-for-ever Boots. They are warranted waterproof, and to last one year, or the money returned.

Our stock of Family and Plantation Shoes are the best that can be made.

One pair will outwear any three pairs bought at auction. Country Merchants will do well to make a note of this.

We have better goods and sell them lower than any house in Louisiana.

Orders filled at ten per cent. on the original cost of manufacture.

All goods warranted to satisfy, or they may be returned. Planters will instruct their Custom Mission Merchants to buy their shoes of

H. H. DRAKE, 156 CANAL STREET.

aug18 1y

D. J. M. MAGEE,
DENTAL SURGEON,
No. 107 Carondelet Street,
One door above Poydras, on the left hand side.
Jan 26 ly

LATEST FASHIONS.

J. W. BRADLEY'S
DUPLEX ELLIPTICAL
[Or, Double Spring]

SKIRT!

THEY WILL NOT BEND OR BREAK
Like the Single Spring, but will preserve their perfect and graceful shape when three or four ordinary Skirts are thrown aside as useless—hence are the CHEAPEST.

Each Hoop is made by braiding two springs together, edge to edge, forming the STRONGEST, most FLEXIBLE, and still the LIGHTEST Hoop made.

In fact, for promenade, or the house, or the church, or the theatre, or for crowded assemblies, railroad cars, carriages, etc., they are superior to all others, affording COMFORT TO THE WEARER, with that ELEGANCE OF SHAPE which wins favor with all, and has made the "DUPLEX ELLIPTICAL"

The Standard Skirt of the Fashionable World. For misses and young ladies they are superior to all others.

For Sale Everywhere.
Manufactured exclusively by the owners of the Patent,
WESTS, BRADLEY & CARY,
97 Chambers, 79 and 81 Reade sts, New York.

CAUTION.

The Duplex Skirt will admit a pin being run through the centre of each hoop, thereby proving there are TWO SPRINGS braided together therein, which is the secret of their remarkable STRENGTH and FLEXIBILITY—a combination not possessed by any SINGLE-SPRING Skirt.

The red ink stamp, viz: "J. W. BRADLEY'S Duplex Elliptical Springs," will be found upon the waistband of every Skirt; none other are genuine.

n24 cm

MANSFIELD FEMALE COLLEGE.

The next Spring Session of this well known institution will commence on the 10th day of February, 1867. It is owned and controlled by the Louisiana Conference, is thoroughly organized, and is the enjoyment of an extensive patronage. Few institutions can present greater advantages in the way of a healthy situation, refined society, commodious buildings, thorough instruction, efficient government, and reasonable charges.

TERMS:
For a session of four and a half months, (one half to be paid on entrance; the remainder on the 15th day of April.)
Board, including Washing, Fuel, and Room Rent, payable in gold $67 50 Regular Tuition, " " " " " 25 00
Incidental Fee, " " " " " 2 00
French " " " " " 15 00
Music on Piano or Guitar, with use of instrument, each " " " 37 50
Ornamental branches at usual prices.

Each boarding pupil will furnish a pair of blankets, a pair of sheets, a pair of pillow cases, a corset or apron, and her own towels and nightgown.
After admission, no reduction will be made for the charges for board and tuition, for the session, except in cases of sickness protracted at least to the period of a month.
For further particulars, address
CHARLES B. STUART, President,
Mansfield, La.

CENTENARY COLLEGE.

Established by the State of Louisiana in 1825, and transferred to the Methodist Episcopal Church South in 1845. It is now under the patronage of the Mississippi and Louisiana Conferences.
The College exercises were necessarily suspended during the war; but were regularly resumed, after reorganization, on the first Monday in October, 1865. The approaching session will open on the first Monday of October next.

Tuition, $75 per annum, payable semi-annually in advance.
Boarding can be obtained at from $20 to $25 per month.
The Buildings, Libraries, Apparatus, Laboratory and Society Halls, the location in point of beauty, health, ease of access and good society, are all unsurpassed by those of any institution in the Southern States.
The past history of the College is the pledge of its future prosperity.

The Board and Faculty promise the public that nothing shall be wanting on their part to secure the thorough education of the young men committed to their care, in both Preparatory and Collegiate Departments.
The old students, alumni, and friends of the Institution, are requested to give publicity to the full reorganization and opening of the College, as stated above.

W. H. WATKINS, President.

SOUTHERN UNIVERSITY.

The exercises of this institution will be resumed on the first Wednesday in October next. Instruction will be given in the Schools of Ancient and Modern Languages, Mathematics, Mental and Moral Philosophy, Chemistry, Natural Philosophy, and Biblical Literature. Civil Engineering and Analytical Chemistry will also be taught.
TERMS:
Tuition fees per term, $40 00
Boarding fees, " " " 5 00
Board can be obtained at $20 to $25 per month.
W. M. WIGHTMAN, Chancellor

COLLEGIATE INSTITUTE AT

BARON ROUGE.
The ninth session of this school will begin on Wednesday, 3d October, 1867.
The object of the school has ever been to afford a good classical and practical education, or a complete preparation for any stage of a College or University course.
TERMS: Tuition and Board, per month, $40.
Payable $200 in advance; balance on the 1st of March.
Every student who enters the school is expected to remain to the close of the session in July, and will be held liable for the bills in all cases, unless protracted illness shall compel his removal.
Families are required to furnish their own bed clothing, towels, wash-basin, mosquito-bar, etc. Circumstances can be obtained by addressing us at Baton Rouge, or Rev. J. C. Keener, D.D., New Orleans, La.

As the number of students is limited, it is earnestly requested that application be made as soon as possible.
W. H. N. MCGRUDER,
Baton Rouge, La., August 24, 1866.

COAL! COAL!! COAL!!!
Yard on Josephine st. bet. Prytania & Coliseum
MR. GEO. O. BEATTY
Would inform his friends and the public generally that he is now prepared to fill orders for COAL and WOOD, and hopes, by giving his personal attention, to secure and merit their patronage.
Best ASH WOOD delivered at $10.
Best OAK " " 9.
COAL $1.
Orders left at Yard, or Price Current office, 129 Gravier street; or Peter Williams, corner Jackson and Rousseau streets, will meet with prompt attention.
nov 1 1866

GEORGE W. RACE, W. H. POSTER, R. T. MERRICK, La's Chief Justice La
RACE, FOSTER & E. T. MERRICK,
Attorneys at Law,
CORNER OF CAMP STREET & COMMERCIAL PLACE, opposite 15 ly
New Orleans.

SUNDAY SCHOOL VISITOR.

112 CAMP STREET, NEW ORLEANS.

Our readers will be delighted to learn that this beautiful Sunday School Paper is to be resumed the first of January. It will be published by the S. M. Publishing House, Nashville, Tennessee, and simultaneously at 112 Camp st., in this city. Those desiring the NEW ORLEANS edition should forward immediately to Rev. R. J. HARR, Agt., Lock Box 814, New Orleans.

SUBSCRIPTION PRICE FOR ONE YEAR
For Single Copies, " " " " " each 50¢
For any number less than 5 " " " " " 50¢
For any number over 5, and less than 25, to one address, " " " " " 40¢
For any number over 25, " " " " " 30¢
Will ship by Boat, Express or Mail as directed.

Cash in Advance.

EVERY SATURDAY:

A Journal of Choice Reading, Selected From Foreign Current Literature.

This popular Weekly reproduces promptly for American readers the best and most readable portions of European periodicals. It embraces Serial Tales, Short Stories, Essays, Biographical and Descriptive, Poems, Sketches, and Adventure, Literary Intelligence, and popular papers on Science. Translations from the admirable French Periodicals are a prominent feature.

Among the Periodicals from which selections are frequently made are Once a Week, Chambers Journal, All the Year Round, The Spectator, The Reader, The Athenaeum, The Illustrated London, Saturday, and the Examiner; Fraser's, Blackwoods, Macmillan's, the Victorian, Argosy, New Monthly, and London Society Magazines; Revue des Deux Mondes, L'Evening, and the Revue.

Among the authors represented in EVERY SATURDAY are many of the wisest and most distinguished writers of Europe, as Henry Kingsley, Anthony Trollope, Matthew Arnold, Charles Kingsley, Edmund Yates, Frances Power Cobbe, Christina G. Rossetti, Arthur and George Douglas, George Sand, Edmond About, Alexandre Dumas, Mrs. Oliphant, J. Ruffini, Alexander Smith, J. C. Swinburne, Robert Buchanan, John Lowell, and Miss Thackeray.

EVERY SATURDAY is intended for Town and Country for the People. The Publishers intend to aim to commend it to all classes of cultivated and intelligent readers by the freshness and variety of its contents.

Every SATURDAY contains weekly 40 double-column large octavo pages.

TERMS:—Single Number, 10 cents; Yearly Subscription, $5 00 in advance; $4 00 a year to subscribers for any other periodical published by Ticknor and Fields. Monthly Parts, 50 cents a number. Yearly subscription, same as for Weekly Part.

TICKNOR AND FIELDS,
Publishers, Boston.

BRITISH PERIODICALS.

THE LONDON QUARTERLY REVIEW (Con.)
THE WESTMINSTER REVIEW (Whig.)
THE NORTH BRITISH REVIEW (Radical.)
AND
BLACKWOOD'S EDINBURGH MAGAZINE (Tory.)

These foreign periodicals are regularly published by us in the same style as heretofore. Those who know them and who have benefited by them, need no reminder; those who have not, will find them well adapted to the civil war of the last few years, and the progress of European science and literature.

TERMS FOR 1867.
For any one of the Reviews, $4 per annum
For any two of the Reviews, " " " 7 " "
For any three of the Reviews, " " " 10 " "
For all four of the Reviews, " " " 12 " "
For Blackwood's Magazine, " " " 4 " "
For Blackwood and one Review, " " " 7 " "
For Blackwood and any two of the Reviews, " " " 10 " "
For Blackwood and 3 of the Reviews, " " " 13 " "
For Blackwood and the 4 Reviews, " " " 16 " "

A discount of twenty per cent. will be allowed to clubs of four or more persons. Thus, four copies of Blackwood, or of one Review, will be sent to one address for $12 80. Four copies of the four Reviews and Blackwood, for $48 00, and so on.

Clubs.

When sent by mail, the POSTAGE to any part of the United States will be but Twenty-four Cents a year for "Blackwood," and Eight Cents a year for each of the Reviews.

PREMIUMS TO NEW SUBSCRIBERS.

New Subscribers to any two of the above periodicals for 1867 will be entitled to receive, gratis, any one of the Four Reviews for 1866. New Subscribers to all five the Periodicals for 1867 may receive, gratis, Blackwood or any two of the "Four Reviews" for 1866.

These premiums will be allowed on all new subscriptions received before April 1, 1867. Subscribers may also obtain back numbers at the following reduced rates, viz:—
The North British from January, 1863, to December, 1866, inclusive; the Edinburgh and the Westminster from April, 1864 to December, 1866, inclusive; and the London Quarterly for the years 1865 and 1866, at the rate of $1 50 a year for each or any Review; also Blackwood for 1866, for $2 50.

Neither premiums to Subscribers, nor discount to Clubs, nor reduced prices for back numbers, can be allowed, unless the money is remitted direct to the Publishers.
No premiums can be given to Clubs.

The Leonard Scott Publishing Co.,
38 Walker street, N. Y.

The L. S. PUB. CO. also publish the FARMER'S GUIDE.

by HENRY FARMER, of Edinburgh, and the late J. P. NORRIS, of Yale College. 2 vols., Royal Octavo, 1600 pages, and numerous Engravings.
Price, $7 for the two volumes—by Mail, post paid, $8.
Feb 2

HOMOEOPATHIC PHARMACY.
RICHARD ANGELL,
156 Julia street, bet. Camp and St. Charles
PURE AND FRESH MEDICINES;
Cases, Books, Certificates, &c.
Chilli Drops, the best curative known for Ague, Bilious Fever, &c.; Bardotte's Worm Drops, and other approved Remedies for domestic practice

DR. JOHN G. ANGELL,
(Graduate of the Philadelphia Dental College.)
Has established himself at No 109 Carondelet street, near Poydras, where he will perform all Dental Operations in a skillful and satisfactory manner. Teeth inserted upon Gold or Vulcanite base. Being familiar with all Anesthetics, he will extract teeth without pain, by the use of such as best suits the case. Particular attention given to the medical and surgical treatment of diseases of the mouth and teeth.
nov 27 ly

COAL OIL AND LAMPS.

HILL & VEAZIE,
Having removed from No 31 Chartres street to No 74 Camp street, have received large additions to their former stock, making the assortment of Coal Oil Lamps, and all the articles necessary to use with them, very extensive; together with Lamps from the small Hand to the large Station. FISHER'S PATENT COOKING LAMPS for coal oil and gas, very useful and economical; also EDIE'S COOKING STOVES, assorted sizes, heated by kerosene, with many other useful and convenient articles.
Always on hand the best Kerosene and Coal Oil manufactured.
Call and examine.

HILL & VEAZIE,
No 74 Camp street,
nly Between Natchez street and Times Office

MAGAZINE STREET.

Between Gravier and Natchez Streets,
NEW ORLEANS, LA.

CHAS. E. SMEDES,.....Manager.

This establishment is now open for the reception of guests.

It is newly furnished from the Kitchen to the Roof. Spring Beds, fair Mattresses, Linen Sheet, etc. The Furniture and Table Ware all new, of the latest style and most costly material. The Table is furnished with every luxury the Market affords. The Bars with Liquors comfortable and pleasant. A home, as far as possible, guaranteed to its guests.

The House itself may be said to be entirely new and fresh. The undersigned will spare neither labor or expense to merit a continuance of the liberal support with which he has thus far been honored.
CHAS. E. SMEDES.
nov 13 ly

CARPET WAREHOUSE.

17 Chartres Street,
Lately received Carpeting of all kinds and qualities; Floor Oil Cloth of all qualities, which we cut to suit rooms; Carpet Matting, Lace Curtains, Cornices and Bands in great variety; Window Shades, Hair Cloth, Crumb Cloth, Table and Piano Covers, China and Cocoa Matting of all widths.
oct 13 ly

A. BROUSSEAU & CO.

H. P. BUCKLEY,

WATCHMAKER,

No. 5.....Camp Street.....No. 5

Dealer in fine WATCHES,

JEWELRY AND SILVERWARE,

SPECTACLES OF ALL KINDS.

—Also—

GUNS AND PIROLO.

Every sort of Gun and Pistol Repairing attended to, by
J. E. BAILEY,
Feb 9 ly Formerly of Chartres Street.

PEET, SIMMS, & CO.

Importers and Wholesale Dealers in

DRY GOODS,

No. 23 & 25 MAGAZINE STREET, NEW ORLEANS

A NEW THING UNDER THE SUN

PRICE'S

Patent Texas Tonic.

PURELY VEGETABLE.

It is a certain antidote against Constipation of the Bowels, Torpor of the Liver, Palpitation of the Heart, Determination of Blood to the Brain, Indigestion, Pain in the Head and Vertigo; also a remedy for—
CHILLS AND FEVERS.
For particulars, see accompanying Envelope with each bottle.
For sale at 59 Camp street, New Orleans,
THOS. K. PRICE, Vendor.

Read the following opinions of some of our old and well known citizens of—

PRICE'S PATENT, TEXAS TONIC,

Or, Vegetable Medicine.

T. K. PRICE, Esq., Vendor of "Price's Patent Texas Tonic," or Vegetable Medicine:
"DEAR SIR—After a fair and deliberate use and experiment of your Vegetable Medicine, known as PRICE'S PATENT TEXAS TONIC, we give it as our decided opinion, that it is the best recipe that we have ever known, for Indigestion, Torpor of the Liver, Constipation of the Bowels and Dyspepsia. We consider your Vegetables Medicine worthy of all commendation and therefore feel no hesitation in recommending its use to all our friends, as well as the public at large, and that in doing so we are contributing to all the afflicted. Many of us have been suffering from these evils from ten to fifteen years, and have been greatly benefited."
Wishing you great success in introducing this valuable medicine,
I remain yours truly,
J. T. MULLIN, Pastor St. Patrick's Church, J. L. HOWELL, of Gas Works, City N. O., SAM'L SUMNER, of Home Insurance Office T. GREENFIELD, of House of Fellows & C. LEWIS ECKIN, Merchant, New Orleans. GEO. W. H. NICHOL, Ship Agent JACOB BARKER, Bank of Commerce.
New Orleans, June, 1863.

TERMS:
4 oz Bottles.....$2 00
6 " " " " " 2 50
8 " " " " " 3 00
12 " " " " " 5 00
Sold to Druggists by the dozen for 50 per cent discount of retail price.
All orders will meet with prompt attention.
sep 22 ly
THOS. K. PRICE.

F. FOLGER, L. FOLGER, W. THOMAS

FOLGER & CO.,

Dealers in

Hardware, Iron, & Ship Chandlery,

37 & 39 MAGAZINE STREET, NEW ORLEANS.

(Opposite the St. James Hotel)

—Nails and Spikes; Hoop, Sheet and Bar Iron, Shovels and Castles; Shot, Copper and Zinc; Iron Axes and Hoes; Lead Pipe and Sheet Lead; India Rubber Belting, Hose and Packing; Circular, Mill and Cross Cut Saws.

aug 15 ly

E. GIQUEL,
Wholesale and Retail Dealer in FOREIGN, FANCY AND STAPLE
DRY GOODS.
Also, a large and varied supply of HOUSEKEEPING and PLANTATION GOODS,
Constantly on hand, at 126 Canal Street,
NEW ORLEANS.

S. ANDERSON, PHOTOGRAPHER
And PHOTOGRAPHIC STOCK DEALER,
61 Camp street, New Orleans.

Cartes de Visite,
Hyalotypes, Ambrotypes,
Pictures on Porcelain,
And every description of Pictures known to the Art.
All kinds of Photographic Materials at the lowest price for cash.
sep 1 ly

J. A. BRASELMAN & CO.,

Wholesale and Retail Dealers in

FOREIGN & DOMESTIC DRY GOODS

Possess great facilities for buying goods cheap which enables them to sell below market prices.

Special attention given to orders.

No. 586 and 588 Magazine Street.

Corner of St. Andrew Street,
NEW ORLEANS.

oct 6 ly

NEW CARPETS.

L. ELKIN,

Carondelet Street.

Has just received from England, per steam ship Luxor, a large assortment of superior

WILTON, BRUSSELS, TAPESTRY & INGRAIN

CARPETS,

RUGS,

WINDOW SHADES,

CORNICES,

OIL CLOTHS,

And a complete assortment of Curtain Material such as Brocades, Satin de Laines, all-Wool Damasks, etc., with corresponding Trimmings.
oct 13 ly

G. MONTER, T. K. PETERSON, E. C. FENNER,

Late of Magee & Late of Goff & Pe—New York

HORTER, PETERSON & FENNER

(Sign of the Black Horse.)

MANUFACTURERS OF SADDLES, HARNESS,

AND TRUNKS.

Importers of Saddle and Coach Hardware

7 MAGAZINE STREET, NEW ORLEANS.

sep 21 ly

BELLS! BELLS! BELLS!!!

BUCKEYE BELL FOUNDRY

Established in 1837.

VANDUZEN & TIFT,

Of the late Firm and Successors to G. W. COFFIN & CO.,

102 & 104 East Second street,

Cincinnati, Ohio,

Manufacturers of BELLS for Churches, Academies, Plantations, etc.

Made of Genuine Bell Metal, and mounted with our improved Rotary Yoke.

All Bells warranted to prove satisfactory, or subject to be returned.

Illustrated Catalogue and Price List sent free upon application.

sep 16 ly

GUSTAVE VOM HOFE,

Manufacturer of Upright Pianos,

807 MAGAZINE ST., NEW ORLEANS.

Pianos sold at moderate prices, with five years guarantee.

One of these Pianos has just been awarded a Medal at the recent Louisiana State Fair, for superior richness of tone and great durability.

dec 16 ly

TURNER & COHEN,

Photograph and Fine Art Gallery,

NO. 57 CAMP STREET.

Trusting that the liberal patronage of our friends and the public will continue, we have engaged the services of Mr. E. M. HOWELL, an operator who cannot be surpassed for skillful and artistic ability. Our artist, Mr. REICHMAN, is second to none in the country.

These gentlemen, with many others for our business, have lately arrived from New York, and we are now prepared to make pictures from the smallest miniature on your watch dial to full-size portraits.

The public are invited to call and make a critical examination for themselves of the many specimens we have of well known citizens of this city.

oct 13 ly

EVANS' FASHIONABLE RETAIL

Hat Emporium.

No 62 CAMP STREET,

Next door to the Picayune Office, New Orleans.

A complete assortment of the Latest Styles by every steamer, at Moderate Prices.
n 13 ly

W. SHEPARD, A. A. ABBOTT, ROBERT HUTCHINSON

SHEPARD, ABBOTT & CO.,

No. 65 Camp street, New Orleans,

Nearly opposite Picayune Office,

CROCKERY AND GLASS WARE,

PLATED WARE,

House Furnishing Goods,

AND KITCHEN WARE.

We beg leave to inform our friends and the public in general, that we have on hand a large and well selected stock of the above goods, and are constantly receiving them directly from the manufacturers in France, England, and the United States; and we flatter ourselves that we can sell our goods as low as any house in the city. For variety in the house-furnishing line, our stock is unequalled in the South.

Call in and see for yourself before purchasing elsewhere.

NEW ORLEANS MARKETS.

From the N. O. Price Current.

The general market exhibits the inactivity usual at this season of the year, but still a moderate business has been done in our leading staples, with an improvement of 10c toward the close, and a fair jobbing business in Western Produce. In the latter, we notice a firm market for provisions, with an advance in both Lard and Bacon, the former caused by some speculative enquiry and the latter by light supplies. We are still without any active movement to report in Tobacco, although it is understood there are orders pending, the execution of which would absorb most of the stock on sale. Operations in Sugar and Molasses are confined to retail transactions.

COTTON.—We left the market, at the time of our last report depressed by the rumor of the Liverpool telegrams. On Saturday there appeared to be very little enquiry at the opening of business, but subsequently several buyers came forward, and although the movement was checked by the unsatisfactory assortment offering, yet the sales summed up 1050 bales, at about previous rates. There was no material change on Monday, when 1150 bales were taken at Saturday's rates. Tuesday the market opened with an improved enquiry, which was subsequently stimulated by the encouraging tone of New York dispatches, and although the supply offered but little scope to buyers, yet the business comprised 1450 bales, at figures indicating an improvement in all grades of 1/2c per lb.

This makes an aggregate for the past three days of 3650 bales, taken partly for the North, but mostly for foreign export.

The receipts proper since Friday evening comprise 419 bales, against 650 during the corresponding period last week, showing an increase of 231 bales.

The receipts at this port, since the 1st of September, (exclusive of the arrivals from Mobile, Florida and Texas), are 706,340 bales, against 670,384 bales to same date last year, and the decrease in the receipts at all the ports, up to the latest dates, as compared with last year, is 157,989 bales. In the exports from the United States to foreign countries, as compared with the same dates last year, there is a decrease of 24,594 bales to Great Britain, of 18,378 to France, and an increase of 54,114 bales to other foreign ports.

We quote as follows:

| | |
|---------------|------------------|
| Low | 17 1/2 to 18 1/2 |
| Good Ordinary | 21 to 22 |
| Medium | 23 to 24 |
| High | 25 1/2 to 26 1/2 |

TOBACCO.—During the past three days the market has been quiet, but very firm at the subjoined quotations:

| | Light | Heavy |
|---------------|--------------|--------------|
| Low Refused | 4 to 4 1/2 | 4 1/2 to 5 |
| Good do | 5 to 5 1/2 | 5 1/2 to 6 |
| Common Leaf | 6 to 6 1/2 | 6 1/2 to 7 |
| Medium | 7 to 7 1/2 | 7 1/2 to 8 |
| Fair | 8 to 8 1/2 | 8 1/2 to 9 |
| Prime | 9 to 9 1/2 | 9 1/2 to 10 |
| Choice Select | 10 to 10 1/2 | 10 1/2 to 11 |

FLOUR.—The market has continued rather quiet. There is a good demand for the choice grades of Extra, which are very scarce and command high figures. Other grades are in fair supply and moderate request.

Cattle Market.

| JEFFERSON CITY. | |
|---------------------------------------|------------------|
| Western Beef, choice per lb. net | 10 to 11 |
| Western Beef, 2d quality, per lb. net | 9 to 10 |
| Texas Cattle, choice per head | 45 to 55 |
| Texas Cattle, 2d quality, per head | 30 to 40 |
| Texas Cattle, 3d quality, per head | 15 to 20 |
| Hogs per lb. gross | 7 to 8 |
| Sheep in lots per head | $5.00 to $6.50 |
| Crook Sheep, per head | $2.50 to $3.50 |
| Texas Sheep, per head | $1.50 to $2.00 |
| Milk Cows, choice per head | $80 to $100 |
| Milk Cows, per head | $50 to $80 |
| Texas Cows, with Calves | $8 to $15 |
| Yearlings, per head | $5.00 to $10 |
| Calves per head | $5.00 to $10 |

HORSE AND MULE MARKET.

| | |
|---------------------------------|----------------|
| Saddle and light harness Horses | $200 to $400 |
| Heavy draft Horses | 175 to 350 |
| Common do | 75 to 180 |
| Mules, 1st quality, broke | 200 to 220 |
| Do 2d do | 140 to 160 |
| Do 1st do unbroke | 150 to 180 |
| Do 2d do do | 75 to 120 |
| Mexican Mules | 40 to 90 |

Monetary.

We have again to notice a quiet money market, with very little movement in any department. There is, however, no excess of idle capital. The offerings of good commercial paper, exchange and collateral at the banks are fully equal to their available means. We hear of occasional negotiations of mortgage paper at 10 to 12 per cent. per annum, but dealers require not only productive city property as security, but signatures which guarantee prompt payment.

Gold has exhibited continued buoyancy, the upward course of the New York market having enabled sellers to realize advanced rates. The movement, however, has not shown much activity. The market closed at 140.

EXCHANGE.—Owing to the advance in gold and the scarcity of bills, foreign Exchange has improved. Sterling may be quoted at 149 to 150 for bill lading bills, 151 to 152 for A1 to first class clear, and 153 to 154 for bank, and France at 3.72 1/2 for A1 commercial, and 3.71 1/2 for bank.

N. O. WHOLESALE PRICES.

CAREFULLY CORRECTED AND REVISED WEEKLY. (Made up from Actual Sales as they Transpire)

ARTICLES. FROM TO

| | | |
|------------------------------|--------|--------|
| Agricultural Implements | 4 75 | 22 00 |
| Cotton and Sugar Hops | 9 50 | 10 50 |
| Cotton Scrapers | 7 00 | 7 50 |
| Cultivators | 13 00 | 13 00 |
| Shovels | 10 00 | 18 00 |
| Spades | 11 00 | 20 00 |
| Axes | 15 | 18 00 |
| Bagging, per yard | — | — |
| Kentucky | — | — |
| East India | 26 | 27 |
| Bale Rope, Kentucky, per lb. | 104 | 11 |
| Bread, per 100 lbs. of Flour | 2 10 | 2 35 |
| Crackers | 11 00 | 11 00 |
| Bricks, Lake, per M | 20 00 | 25 |
| English, Fire | 45 00 | — |
| Candles, per lb. | — | — |
| Sperm, N Bedford | 42 | 43 |
| Tallow | 16 | 21 |
| Adamantine | 16 | 21 |
| Star | 16 | 21 |
| Chocolate, No 1 per lb | 55 | 67 |
| Sweet and Spiced | — | — |
| Cocoa, Western, per lb | — | — |
| Northern | — | — |
| Coal, Cannel, per ton | 11 | 13 00 |
| Anthracite, per ton | 55 | 60 |
| Western, per barrel | 22 1/2 | 24 |
| Coffee, Rio, per lb | 35 | 38 |
| Havana | 38 | 42 |
| Java | 38 | 42 |
| St. Domingo | 26 | — |
| Cotton Seed | — | — |
| Bongh, per ton | 9 00 | 14 00 |
| Tulled, per bushel | — | — |
| Copper, Blasted, per lb | 38 | 40 |
| Sheathing, per lb | 38 | 40 |
| Copper Bolts | 38 | 40 |
| Yellow Metal | 30 | 32 |
| Cardage, Manila, per lb | 23 | 24 |
| Tarred, American | 30 | 32 |
| Russia | 30 | 32 |
| Corn Meal, per bbl | 4 00 | 5 00 |
| Dyes, per lb | — | — |
| Logwood, Camp's | 5 | 6 |
| St. Domingo | 3 | 6 |
| Flat, Tampico | 5 | 6 |
| Indigo, per lb | 1 00 | 1 60 |
| Madder | 18 | 20 |
| Eggs, per doz. Western | 90 | 100 |
| Feathers, per lb | 90 | 100 |
| Fish, Cod, per box | 1 95 | 2 10 |
| Herrings | — | — |
| Mackerel, No 1, per bbl | 21 00 | — |
| No 2 | 20 00 | — |
| No 3 | 16 50 | — |
| Flaxseed, per lb | 4 | — |
| Superfine | 11 00 | 11 00 |
| Extra | 11 50 | 12 00 |
| Fine | 8 00 | 9 00 |
| Fruit, Prunes, per lb | 18 | 20 |
| Figs, Drum | 23 | — |
| Dried Apples | — | — |
| Crabapples, Zante | 17 | 19 |
| Almonds, soft shell | 34 | — |
| Raisins, N. H., per box | 4 15 | — |
| Lemon | 4 35 | — |
| Lemon Sicily, per box | 11 50 | — |
| Malaga, per box | — | — |
| Oranges, La. per 1000 | — | — |
| Glass, per box of 50 feet | 7 00 | — |
| French, 8 x 10 | 3 50 | 4 25 |
| 10 x 12 | 4 00 | 4 50 |
| 12 x 18 | 6 00 | — |
| Grain, per bushel | — | — |
| Malt, Western | 1 00 | 1 80 |
| Oats | 1 90 | 2 00 |
| Corn, shelled, per bushel | 1 25 | 1 90 |
| Beans, per bbl | 14 00 | 17 00 |
| Hops, per lb | 65 | 70 |
| Gunpowder, per keg | 7 50 | 8 50 |
| Cannon, per lb | 18 00 | 22 1/2 |
| Hay, Western, per ton | 18 00 | 20 00 |
| Northern | 18 00 | 20 00 |
| Louisiana | 18 00 | 20 00 |
| Hides, per lb | — | — |
| Dry salted Mexican | 19 | 20 |
| Wet salted, city slaughter | 19 | 20 |
| Kip Skins | 11 | 11 1/2 |
| Dry country | 15 | 15 1/2 |
| Pelts, per piece | 20 | 25 |
| Iron, Pig, per ton | 45 00 | — |
| Country, per ton | 64 | 75 |
| English, per lb | 52 | 6 |
| Hoop, per lb | 8 | 11 |
| Sheet | 8 | 11 |
| Bolter | 9 | 10 |
| Nail Rods | 12 | 14 |
| Iron Cotton Ties | 10 | 11 |
| Castings, American | 1 50 | 2 00 |
| Lime, Western, per bbl | 1 50 | 2 00 |
| Shell Lime | 1 50 | 2 00 |
| Rockland, &c | 2 10 | 2 00 |
| Cement, per gallon | 2 75 | 3 25 |
| Louisiana | 40 | 45 |
| Muscovado | 47 1/2 | 50 |
| Refined, Rebolted | — | — |
| Moss, per lb | — | — |
| Gray, Country | 34 | — |
| Black do | 42 | 54 |
| Select, water rotted | 6 | 7 |
| Nails, Am. 4 & 6d, per lb | 15 | 16 1/2 |
| Wrought, German | 15 | 16 1/2 |
| English | 18 | 20 |
| Naval Stores, per bbl | — | — |
| Pitch | 4 00 | 4 00 |
| Rosin, No 1 | 3 50 | 4 00 |
| No 2 | 3 25 | 3 50 |
| No 3 | 3 00 | — |
| Spirits Turp, per gallon | 47 1/2 | 50 |
| Oil, Lard, bright | 2 00 | 3 50 |
| Coal Oil | 1 10 | 1 15 |
| In cases | 45 | 45 |
| Cotton Seed, Crude | 60 | 65 |
| Refined | 1 05 | 1 05 |
| Tanners' per gallon | 1 25 | 1 50 |
| Oil, Lard, Linseed, per ton | 37 50 | — |
| Cotton Seed | — | — |
| Provisions, per bbl | — | — |
| Beef, Mess, Northern | 20 00 | 23 00 |
| Western | 15 00 | 20 00 |
| North half bbl | 16 50 | — |
| Dried, per lb | — | — |
| Tongues, per doz | 16 | 11 00 |
| Pork, Mess | 24 75 | 25 00 |
| Prime Mess | 21 00 | 22 00 |
| Hog, round, per lb | — | — |
| Bacon, Hams, per lb | 15 | 16 |
| Shoulders | 16 | 20 |
| Sides | 13 | 14 |
| Green Shoulders | 11 | — |
| Lard, Prime, in tierces | 13 | — |
| Fat, in tierces | 14 | — |
| Butter, Northern | 25 | 30 |
| Western | 25 | 30 |
| Cheese, American | 14 | 16 |
| Potatoes, per bbl | 2 50 | 4 00 |
| Onions | 6 50 | 6 50 |
| Green Apples | 3 00 | 6 00 |
| Rice, per lb, Louisiana | 11 | 11 1/2 |
| Carolina | 11 | 11 1/2 |
| Salt, refined, per lb | 14 | 22 |
| Crude | 13 | 15 |
| Salt, per lb | — | — |
| Liverpool, fine, warehouse | 2 20 | 2 50 |
| coarse, cargo | 2 15 | 2 50 |
| from warehouse | 2 15 | 2 50 |
| from store | 2 25 | 2 50 |
| Turkey Island, per bushel | 40 | 50 |
| Soup, per lb, Western | 8 | 10 |
| Northern | 10 | 12 |
| Southern | 10 | 12 |
| Castile | 14 | 16 |
| Sugar, Louisiana, per lb | 13 1/2 | 15 1/2 |
| Havana, White | 14 1/2 | 15 1/2 |
| Brown | 11 1/2 | 13 1/2 |
| Tobacco, in bbls, per lb | 10 1/2 | 11 1/2 |
| Jalisco, Cutters | 19 | 21 |
| Choice and Selections | 17 | 19 |
| Fine Leaf | 13 1/2 | 14 1/2 |
| Medium Leaf | 8 | 11 1/2 |
| Fair Leaf | 11 | 13 1/2 |
| Common Leaf | 6 1/2 | 8 1/2 |
| Good Refused | 5 | 6 |
| Common Refused | 4 | 5 |
| Texas Cotton, per lb | 60 | 60 |
| Balling | 15 | 15 |
| Hemp, Washed, per lb | 34 | 34 |
| Barry | — | — |
| — | — | — |

ADVOCATE CALENDAR, 1867.

| MONTHS. | Sunday | Monday | Tuesday | Wednesday | Thursday | Friday | Saturday |
|---------|--------|--------|---------|-----------|----------|--------|----------|
| JAN. | 1 | 2 | 3 | 4 | 5 | 6 | 7 |
| FEB. | 8 | 9 | 10 | 11 | 12 | 13 | 14 |
| MAR. | 15 | 16 | 17 | 18 | 19 | 20 | 21 |
| APR. | 22 | 23 | 24 | 25 | 26 | 27 | 28 |
| MAY. | 29 | 30 | 31 | 1 | 2 | 3 | 4 |
| JUNE. | 5 | 6 | 7 | 8 | 9 | 10 | 11 |
| JULY. | 12 | 13 | 14 | 15 | 16 | 17 | 18 |
| AUG. | 19 | 20 | 21 | 22 | 23 | 24 | 25 |
| SEP. | 26 | 27 | 28 | 29 | 30 | 1 | 2 |
| OCT. | 3 | 4 | 5 | 6 | 7 | 8 | 9 |
| NOV. | 10 | 11 | 12 | 13 | 14 | 15 | 16 |
| DEC. | 17 | 18 | 19 | 20 | 21 | 22 | 23 |
| JAN. | 24 | 25 | 26 | 27 | 28 | 29 | 30 |

B. S. HARPER & CO.

Cotton and Tobacco Factors, AND GENERAL COMMISSION MERCHANTS, No. 81 Carondelet street, New Orleans.

CHENOWETH, CASEY & CO.

COMMISSION MERCHANTS, For sale of Pork, Bacon, Beef, Flour, and Western Produce generally, 53 Gravier street, New Orleans.

H. M. WRIGHT & CO.

Cotton Factors & Commission Merchants, 159 GRAVIER STREET, NEW ORLEANS.

T. H. & J. M. ALLEN.

(Successors to ROBSON & ALLEN), Cotton Factors & Commission Merchants, 192 COMMON STREET, NEW ORLEANS.

WILLIAM FELLOWES, JUN.

(Successor to FELLOWES & CO.), Cotton Factor and Commission Merchant, 186 COMMON STREET, NEW ORLEANS.

ORR, NANKIN & CO.

Cotton Factors & Commission Merchants, 38 UNION STREET, NEW ORLEANS.

PERKINS, SWENSON & CO.

General Commission Merchants, No. 48 Carondelet, corner of Union street, NEW ORLEANS.

SWENSON, PERKINS & CO.

GENERAL COMMISSION MERCHANTS, 26 Exchange Place, New York.

NALLE, DAY & CO.

Cotton Factors, Commission Merchants, 158 COMMON STREET, NEW ORLEANS.

ALEX. P. STEWART & CO.

Cotton and Tobacco Factors, General Commission, Receiving and Forwarding Merchants, No. 124 CARONDELET STREET, NEW ORLEANS.

S. H. ABY & CO.

Cotton Factors, Commission Merchants, 155 GRAVIER STREET, NEW ORLEANS.

KEEP & CAULFIELD.

Western Produce, AND COMMISSION MERCHANTS, Nos. 77 & 79 Poydras street, New Orleans.

H. WARE & SON.

Cotton and Wool Factors, AND COMMISSION MERCHANTS, No. 63 Carondelet street, New Orleans.

CARHART, WHITFORD & CO.

Manufacturers and Dealers in CLOTHING, AMERICAN EXPRESS BUILDING, Hudson street, New York.

HEWITT, NORTON & CO.

COTTON FACTORS, AND Commission Merchants, 188 COMMON STREET, NEW ORLEANS.

WATTS, OIVEN & CO.

W. C. WATTS & CO., Liverpool, England. GIVENS, WATTS & CO., COTTON Factors & General Commission Merchants, No. 103 Poydras street, New Orleans. Parties shipping their Cotton to us, can make their selection and have their choice of this, the New York or Liverpool markets. Advances made on Cotton to our houses, Watts, Crane & Co., New York, and W. C. Watts & Co. Liverpool.

PHILIP WERLEIN.

Successor of the well known music house of P. P. WERLEIN and P. P. WERLEIN & HALEY, Dealer in

PIANO FORTES, MELODEONS,

GUITARS, VIOLINS,

And other musical instruments. Also, Music and Instruction Books, Music Folios, Note Paper. In fact everything belonging to music trade. The repairing and tuning of Pianos will be attended to, arrangements having been made with that well known Piano Maker, M. BURCHARDT, who will take charge of that department. Parties wishing can have their Pianos stored, sold on commission, boxed, or shipped to order. Findings for repairing Pianos, such as Wire, Felt, Cloth, etc., constantly for sale. Piano Stools, Covers of elegant patterns, etc., on hand. Any information on musical matters cheerfully given. Teachers recommended. Music neatly bound. P. P. WERLEIN will be found at times at the above place, and will aid in making selections. He recommends his son PHILIP WERLEIN to his former friends and customers, and solicits their patronage for him.

LOEB, SIMON & CO.

Importers and Jobbers of FOREIGN AND DOMESTIC DRY GOODS, 86 Canal Street, NEW ORLEANS.

McCUTCHON & HUBBELL.

Importers and Dealers in FOREIGN AND DOMESTIC HARDWARE, Hoops, Axes, Nails, etc., No. 74 GRAVIER STREET, NEW ORLEANS.

D. H. HOLMES.

Direct Importation of FANCY AND STAPLE DRY GOODS, AT WHOLESALE AND RETAIL, No. 155 Canal Street, NEW ORLEANS.

Gen. James Longstreet. W. M. OWEN. E. OWEN.

LONGSTREET, OWEN & CO.

COTTON FACTORS, AND General Commission Merchants, 37 UNION STREET, NEW ORLEANS.

HARVEY, MAHON & CO.

COTTON FACTORS, Commission and Forwarding Merchants, 122 Carondelet street, Davidson's Row, NEW ORLEANS.

R. B. HARVEY, New Orleans.

Thos. M. Mahon, Madison county, Miss. Wm. Portant, New Orleans. oc13 6m

J. B. JENNINGS. J. W. WICKS. M. J. WICKS.

JENNINGS, WICKS & BRO.

Cotton Factors & Commission Merchants, 39 PERDIDO STREET, NEW ORLEANS.

STAFFORD & WILSON.

COMMISSION MERCHANTS, No. 66, Magazine Street, NEW ORLEANS.

W. A. VIOLETT. R. Y. BLAKE. S. H. SNOWDEN.

VIOLETT, BLACK & CO.

COTTON FACTORS, And General Commission Merchants, 133 Gravier street, New Orleans.

W. B. LOTT. Madison County, Miss. C. W. WOOD. Canton, Miss.

LOT, WOOD & CO.

Wholesale Grocers & Commission Merchants, 65 COMMON & 46 CANAL STS., NEW ORLEANS.

Maj. G. C. Sebastian has charge of our sales Department.

E. A. BAKER. W. W. LORINO. O. W. VENABLE.

BANKS, LORING & CO.

COTTON FACTORS, And General Commission Merchants, 26 CARONDELET STREET, NEW ORLEANS.

CHRISTIAN ADVOCATE

ORGAN OF THE M. E. CHURCH SOUTH FOR THE MOBILE, MONTGOMERY, MISSISSIPPI AND LOUISIANA CONFERENCES.

NEW ORLEANS, SATURDAY, JULY 27, 1867.

$3.00 A YEAR IN ADVANCE.
OFFICE—112 CAMP STREET.

NEW ORLEANS CHRISTIAN ADVOCATE.

Official Organ of the Montgomery, Mobile, Mississippi, and Louisiana Conferences of the M. E. Church South.

Office: 112 Camp Street.

TERMS OF SUBSCRIPTION:

THREE DOLLARS A YEAR,

Invariably in Advance.

Address: REV. J. C. KEENER.

112 Camp Street, New Orleans.

AGENTS:

See Mews in Winter Time.

BY JEAN INGLOW.

Wailed beside a dark gray sea,

And said, "O world how cold thou art!

Thou poor white world, I pity thee,

For joy and warmth from thee depart.

"In rising wave flecks off the snow,

Wade on the drag each other chase,

Woe powdery whirle they blow

Woe misty fragments down its face.

"The sea is cold, and dark its rim,

Water also covering on the wild,

And I, beside this watery brim,

Am also lonely, also cold."

Up, and drew toward a rock,

Where many mews made twittering sweet;

Wings appeared, the clustering flock

Did pat the sea-grass with their feet—

Rock but half submerged, the sea

Rise up and washed it while they fed;

Their food and foolish ecstasy

A wondering in my fancy bred.

Joy companied with every cry,

Joy in their food, in that keen wind,

That heaving sea, that shaded sky,

And in themselves, and in their kind.

The phantoms of the deep at play!

What fables traced the twittering things;

Laughing paddlings in the spray,

And delicate lifting up of wings.

Then all at once a flight, and fast

The lovely crowd flew out to sea;

Each own life had been recast,

And had not looked more changed to me.

"Where is the cold? You clouded skies

Have only dropped their curtains low

To shade the old mother where she lies

Shrouding a little 'neath the snow.

"The cold is not in crag, nor scar,

Not in the snows that lap the lea,

Not in the wings that beat the air,

Delighting, on the crested sea;

"No, nor in you exultant wind

That shakes the oak and bends the pine.

Look near, look in, and thou shalt find

Some sense of cold, fond fool, but true!"

With that I felt the gloom depart,

And thoughts within me did unfold,

Woe machine warned me to the heart;

Troubled in joy, and was not cold.

O. Christian Advocate.

LETTER FROM CHINA.

SHANGHAI, China, May 15, 1867.

Editor: I see that you are as to the increasing facilities of communication being developed between America and China, and am happy to acknowledge the receipt of a large file of your excellent paper, per the Pacific and China mail steamer Colombia. It has been a long while since I enjoyed such a treat. Previous messengers of the Churches, now refreshing in this land of darkness!

It will be nine years next December since my appointment to the China mission, and seven next since my arrival in Shanghai, for five years of that time we have been without letters or pa-

and we in turn will send you from time to time, if not regularly, such items as may contribute to your information and interest in this great work. Remember, brother, we are becoming acclimated in the full sense of the word. We have been in China so long, and have become so accustomed to the Chinese style and appearance of things that there is nothing new or strange to our eyes, and all the force and vividness of first impressions have long since abated.—Would be glad to contribute, either publicly through the papers, or privately by letter, any information relating to China and the Chinese, whether of a political or religious nature, provided I had some intimation of what is demanded.

This is an ancient and vast country, and the people among whom we live at this time belong rather to the days of Moses than of Christ. Indeed the China of the present is a fossil of great antiquity, and presents the rare phenomena of a people, who, surprised, as one might believe, by a sudden congelation, preserve, even at this advanced period of their existence, the attitudes, manners, opinions, costumes, institutions, and language, in a word, the whole manner of life, in the midst of which they were seized by that sudden cataclysm. This view is forced upon us by the date and appearance of everything around us.—The country is denuded and barren—there is nothing fresh and new. The chair of State is broken at every joint—the government is helpless, a mere shadow of power—a pretense. The whole affair resembles more an automaton on a treadmill than anything of which we can conceive. The people are stupid conformers to "old custom," whose brain is in their belly, and their destiny, according to popular belief, a bird or a beast. There is no power or influence of amelioration present. This is the dark and populous valley of the shadow of death—everything is wasting, decaying—there is nothing vital, substantial. Even Fovism and Buddhism, those twin promulgators of all idolatry and superstition; and Confucianism, the great-est emise and clog the nation ever felt, are fast perishing with the nation whose downfall they have long since prepared.

Now is the time for the Christian church to manifest herself, to enlarge her borders and strengthen her stakes in this land. "Thou fool," says St. Paul, "it shall not be quickened unless it die," and from what observations I have been able to make as to China, I am ready to pronounce the process of dying far advanced, and that the Gospel of the Son of Righteousness, with healing, life-giving beams cannot be denied to it much longer without jeopardizing the hopes of the Church and indefinitely deferring the regeneration and future glory of this people. I think the present aspect of affairs should encourage, rather than discourage, every available effort on the part of Christendom. There are not wanting evidences that the Chinese begin to see themselves as they are seen. There are also symptoms of distrust and doubt manifest. China is not all the world; the "Son of Heaven" (Yun-le) the only thing required in a nation. These, and such as these, are the lessons which this inert and slow-bellied people are gradually learning, yet without the assistance of the Church when will they arrive at the truth?

There is a great work beginning here—now is the time, the opportune moment, to prosecute it. The field, the harvest, is great but the laborers are few. Rich rewards await the coming of our Zion, let her be bold and vigorous; her patience in prayer and labor of love shall be crowned with success. I long to see the day when the vigorous ubiquity of our self-denying itinerancy shall possess the length and breadth of this land. We are gathering around us young men who are willing to engage in the work of evangelization. Some are being instructed and trained for helpers and preachers, and we hope from this time forth to be able constantly to increase our numbers and thrust them out as fast as the means are forthcoming to sustain them. They are our main dependence; the work must be prosecuted through their agency and instrumentality. I recently recommended them to the special consideration of the Board, and urged that immediate provision be made to avail to the utmost extent possible of their services.—Once get the work properly organized, and an efficient corps of native helpers in the field, and it will not be long till our system can be made self-sustaining, and the work of the foreign missionary be limited to the preparation of a Church literature, and instructing and superintending the work of the native agents, which in comparison will require but few in number.

Would that our people could be awakened to the lofty conceptions of what awaits their faithful efforts in the China mission. What if the past has been slow and grievous, and each soul obtained at the enormous price of a thousand taels, be not discouraged, the time is at hand when every tael shall be rewarded with a soul, and it may be that for every cash (mill) so expended a compound return shall be made. I confess to an enthusiasm for this work. I left all to identify my life and labors with it. I love it, and that old text, "whatsoever thy hand findeth to do, do it with all thy might," is my motto and watch-word in its prosecution.

The Chinese mission has long been a sort of spiritual epiphyte, attached to, and in some sense in contact with, the M. E. Church, South, but destitute to a great extent of its vitality and energy.—The last five years of its existence have been extremely perilous, yet scarcely passed notwithstanding its entire separation from our— I hope, therefore, that wise counsels and liberal plans will now obtain, and a vigorous prosecution of this work be at once determined upon. During the trying period above alluded to your missionaries did not suffer want, but our mental agonies and anxieties for the fate of the mission were intense. When our funds failed we betook ourselves to secular engagements, preaching and laboring at such times as the circumstances left available. The evil effects, however, of our embarrassments and secular engagements upon our Church and other churches here were deleterious in the extreme. They were unable to understand the necessities of our situation, and prone, as all Chinamen are, to estimate any relation or calling by the amount of profit in cash realizable therefrom, they naturally came to the conclusion that money is the paramount consideration and chief motive of our efforts. Show me your money and I will show you my faith, is the rule of Chinese practice, and our example encouraged rather than discouraged its avowal in the Church. I tell you these things plainly because I fear there are some whose sympathies are wrongly excited. We have not suffered physical destitution—are not heroes in distress.—We have always, so far, been able to secure a livelihood and maintenance by effort, and are doing so even now, both brother L. and myself, but the Mission, the Mission needs all your sympathies and demands your speedy assistance. We entered into our present engagements, hoping that this year's remittances would suffice to liquidate the debt we incurred last year in expectation of being able to give unremitting attention to the prosecution of our legitimate labors. The debt is fully due and our anxiety to receive the promised remittance is great. A recent remittance enabled me to pay up part of it and our credit is good yet, but I am anxious to have done with the darkness and suspense of the past and enter upon a new and unembarrassed career.

Brother L. is at present engaged as Interpreter to the Municipal Council in the English Settlement, and I have charge of the Chinese Government School in the city of Shanghai, and in the mean time we prosecute our work as far as possible. My position in the School is a desirable one, and it is a question in my mind whether under the best of circumstances it would not be well, if possible, to hold on to it. I had it in 1864 but was thrown out of it by an anti-foreign Tontar, who substituted an indifferent Chinese scholar, a friend of his, notwithstanding the whole School and the Literary Chancery entreated to the contrary. I was restored last March, on the removal of the Tontar who introduced the Chinaman. The School is in connection with the Chinese College of this place, and consists at present of about forty pupils, mostly from 12 to 20 years of age, and of the better class of society. I serve them in the morning from 9 to 12, three hours, each day except the Sabbath, and have every afternoon and the Sabbath for the regular mission employments, during which time I preach in the chapels and also make bi-monthly visits to our out-stations. My circuit work is partially abandoned at present, and we are unable to extend our visits to Szechow as formerly. At Nan Tsiang I baptised the infant daughter of our native assistant last quarter and admitted one candidate on probation. Last Sabbath, in one of our little chapels in this place, I admitted four candidates to a probationary relation, one of them a student formerly taught by me in the Government School. We have now on probation eight candidates for full admission into the Church, and there are others who are almost persuaded to be Christians—halting between two opinions. We have two day schools in operation, in which are about 25 boys, who are engaged studying christian books, under christian teachers. They constitute an interesting Sabbath School class, and are storing in their minds an immense amount of valuable christian truth. The teachers are young men whom we design to instruct with a view to future usefulness. Upon the whole our work is in a healthful condition and our prospects brightening.

The health of our families remains very good. The spring is advancing and the intense and much dreaded summer will be here soon. I do not, however, apprehend anything like an epidemic or even an unusual season. Sun-stroke or heat apoplexy was the only unfavorable symptom of the last summer. Cholera was here in 1862-3, and since that time has gradually withdrawn westward visiting successively almost every nation in its course. I fear, from the reports I see in the papers, that you will have its presence in your city and the South generally this year.—May the good Lord spare you the scourge and save our dear people from further sorrow and depletion.

Now, my dear brother, I must close, as the "Colorado" will be here soon on her return trip to America, and I have availed myself of her passing to send you a few lines and initiate, if desirable, a "now and then" correspondence with you. I have not much time for writing, besides, I am so unaccustomed to it, having been denied the pleasure so long, that it is quite a laborious task for me. I hope, however, that I shall be able to send you something by each return of the China Mail Steamer, at least for the present. Will you please call the attention of all those who may be interested in the fact, to the mail service of the West Pacific Company, which extends to China and Japan. The postage on letters from America to China is only ten cents, I believe, and from the first of July next will come to hand monthly; whereas via Southampton, England, the postage is 45 cents, and letters would not arrive any sooner although we have a semi-monthly service from thence. In haste, YOUNG J. ALLEN.

For the N. O. Christian Advocate.

LETTER FROM SWITZERLAND.

ZURICH, Switzerland, June 26, '67

DEAR ADVOCATE:—Thinking my brother preachers would like to hear from me, and not knowing their Post Offices, nor having time to write to each individually, I desire the privilege of addressing them through your columns.

I have not quite turned to a Dutchman, but I'll say to my German brethren, that I can attend their meetings when I return, and know when and to what, to say "amen." I hope also, to be able to do the same in French. It is now my purpose to be back in time, to take part in the proceedings of our next conference session, which I learn is to be convened in New Orleans. I have occupied the pulpit but few times on the continent, but have tried to preach by example, and to improve the time by preparing a religious work, which I trust under God's blessing will prove "good seed," and bring forth abundant fruit for the glory of God, in the salvation of many souls. I could not be idle and be satisfied. I feel that my mission and work are not finished. I feel that to preach Jesus is the happiest, as well as highest and holiest calling on earth. I often yearn to be with you in your labors and sacrifices. It is my sincere prayer that you all may be abundantly successful. By a letter from Bro. Wynn, I learn that Father Kinsley and Bro. R. E. Alexander have fallen at their posts, and have gone up to possess that goodly heritage which is reserved for the faithful. May God bless their families, and may we all like them be ready when our Master calleth. The German and Swiss Conference, of the M. E. Church, with Bishop Kinsley presiding, has just closed its annual session at this place. I had the pleasure of attending its deliberations, and am much pleased with the men who compose it. They are a fine body of men, numbering about thirty, I think. The work has been somewhat successful the past year. There were five Deacons and six Elders ordained this Conference. It was a very harmonious session. They resolved to build their new Martin Mission House, in Frankfort on the Main. T. Martin, of New York, has given the mission $25,000 for this purpose. I do not know that it is good policy to expend so much money and labor, as they are spending, in a country already Christian and Protestant. The Lutheran and Zwingli churches are generally very orthodox, and are well supported and attended. I have heard many true evangelical sermons here, at the "Frau Munster," and three thousand people join in singing praise to God, at one time. The membership of the M. E. Church, here, are generally very ignorant, and it will be a long while before the better classes will be reached by them. I trust God may make them the instruments of good.—Bishop Kinsley is a very good Presiding officer, and preached as a very good sermon on Sabbath.—There is one thing which I think decidedly wrong; that is to represent to these poor people, that the negro is an object of charity, to whom they should lend assistance. There is not a negro in the South, but who, if he will, can earn three times as much per day, week, month or year, as can be earned in Europe. I admit that the negro's situation at present, is unenviable; still it is far better than that of the laboring class of Europe. The negroes of the South as a class, have always had more real gospel privileges than this people. I could write a good deal, but I hope to see you soon, face to face. May God abundantly bless you all.

Yours in Christ,

R. F. WHITE.

MOBILE CONFERENCE.

We are requested to publish the following report on District Conferences for the information of all whom it may concern. We believe it has appeared in our columns before.

REPORT ON DISTRICT CONFERENCES.

The following amended Preamble and Resolutions in reference to District Conferences, was adopted by the Mobile Conference.

WHEREAS, the late General Conference adopted a plan of Lay-representation in the Annual and General Conferences, and submitted the same to the several Annual Conferences for ratification or rejection; and in case of ratification, empowered each Annual Conference to devise its own plan for the election of lay-delegates from the several Presiding Elders' districts of the same; therefore,

Resolved, That in the contingency named, this business shall be transacted by District Conferences, to be constituted as follows:

1. A meeting of all the traveling preachers and official members of the Stations, Circuits, and Missions, within each Presiding Elder's district, shall be called annually by the Presiding Elder thereof, at such time as he shall specify, and at such place as he shall specify for the meeting.

2. In the absence of a Bishop, the Presiding Elder of the district shall preside in the Conference; and in the absence of both, the Conference shall elect its own presiding officer.

3. The Conference shall elect a Secretary to keep a record of the proceedings of the body, and to this office the duties of Treasurer shall also be appended.

4. It shall be the duty of the District Conference to adopt such measures for the advancement of all the interests of the Church in its bounds as it may deem best, consistent with the laws of the Church, according to an order of business to be adopted by the same. It shall also appoint the place of its own meeting.

5. If the plan of Lay-delegation shall become a law of the Church, it shall also be the business of the District Conference to elect delegates to the Annual Conference. Provided, that no traveling preacher who has avoted in the Annual Conference, shall vote on this question in the District Conference.

6. The holding of District Conferences shall not be contingent upon the final adoption of Lay-representation by the Church.

For the N. O. Christian Advocate.

Mr. Editor: What is the essential point of difference between Papal and Protestant Christianity? What is the pivot, or point of difference? I understand it to be this: On the part of Luther, and those prominently engaged in the Reformation of the church in the 16th century, it was contended that the pope and his bishops enacted church laws, and practiced, and propagated things, and doctrines which were not only detrimental to but subversive of the Christian religion. They pointed to many laws and acts of this kind, and claimed that the notorious religious condition of the church, which nobody could fail to see or to acknowledge, was owing to this exercise of unlawful authority on the part of the Pope. On the other hand, these laws and church practices were not, as a whole, defended, or attempted to be defended by the defenders of popery. Nevertheless, while they did by no means admit the justness of all these complaints, they contended that the remedy proposed for such as might be liable to complaint, was illegal, subversive of a fundamental principle in Christianity, and would in the end do more harm than good.

While it was agreed on all hands that there was, or at least might be, many things in the church needing reformation, or modification, they differed radically, and as wide as the poles, as to the proper remedy. On the one hand it was contended that there was an inherent and fundamental principle lying in the very foundation and being of the church, which must be adhered to under all circumstances—that was the immediate and perpetual existence of paramount church authority in permanently existing church officers and their legal successors. The persons now in office, it was contended, have the rightful authority, and there can by possibility be no other. The functions of authority have come regularly down to them, man by man, from the Apostles of Christ. The present pope is the supreme power, because this supreme power has descended to him by a regular and unbroken succession of transfers, and it has not so descended to any other man now living in the world. To resist his authority, therefore, is to resist divine authority; in effect, it is the same thing.

And so, their argument continued—if there be laws in the church, that need modification or change, a very probable thing—approach the pope and his counsel, show the necessity of the reform, and he will correct such abuses and irregularities as he may be convinced, need reformation. This, they say is his business,—he is engaged all the while in this wholesome oversight of the church. But, they say, for men to resist his authority, authority thus regularly possessed by regular, successive ordination thereto—is upon schism which cannot be justified under any circumstances.

This was the ground taken by the papists. The question was not as to the justification of every church law, and practice especially considered, but as to where church authority was to be found and by what means it was to be ascertained. They relied, exclusively on the principle or doctrine, now commonly called Apostolic Succession.

And now, how was this plausible argument—certainly it is plausible—met on the other hand, by those dissenters we commonly call the Reformers?

They replied, that the doctrine contended for, could not possibly be the fundamental law of the church, for that it would make the church provide for its own ruin. They contended, that it was unnatural, illegal and even preposterous to suppose that the church could deliberately, and by fundamental law, make provision for the subversion of Christianity, and the ruin of the church. They pointed to the history of the church for several hundred years then last past, and to its then present condition, as incontrovertible proof that the doctrine contended for, had resulted in the almost total extinction of Christianity—that is, the religion of Christianity, from the Church—that under this doctrine, what was now called church, was a mass of political putridity, corruption and crime; that it not only did not teach, but did not tolerate religion; that under this regime, Christianity was a crime punishable with the highest penalties.

This is exactly the issue, first and last, between Protestantism and Romanism, and there is none other, except adjunctively and collaterally. And yet the worthy but mistaken bishop of the diocese of Mississippi, being a Protestant, writes contrary to his church and to mine, in support of this fundamental principle of Romanism. R. AUBREY.

For the N. O. Christian Advocate.

(CONCLUDED FROM LAST WEEK.)

As an excuse for non-attendance on social prayer, another says, "it's not convenient." If, indeed it is so great an inconvenience that the observance would involve more loss than gain, more injury than benefit, you may be excused. Let us ask you if it is such an inconvenience, that it would keep you from any other interesting assemblage for pleasure or business? "But we only go to the prayer-meeting? Some professedly religious people never go at all." "But we can pray at home." Certainly, and we hope you do, but, are you likely to do so more frequently, or faithfully by absenting yourself from the social meeting for prayer? We fear not. If the word of God, and the practice of the pious may guide our conclusion, we must fear you will not be so much in the spirit of devotion at home, if you neglect to cultivate the devotional spirit elsewhere. You are a dependent mortal, and you need the help of God's house to stir and move your heart. But further—according to Scripture teaching, and the example of the pious, it will not be safe for you to take the position that you are to do nothing that is inconvenient, or that cost some sort of sacrifice. If heaven is worth anything, it is worth everything: If we will do nothing for God's cause, but that which is entirely convenient, and compatible with worldly things, we shall do nothing, and all public efforts to be useful and do good, must be given up. Are you willing to be recognized as only a sort of lobby, and outside member of God's church? Surely not.

But lastly to get at the bottom of your difficulties in relation to this matter, we must express for you, what you have never said aloud, or scarcely allowed yourself even to think. "We do not feel like going to prayer-meeting." Alas! if this be so, the real cause of the various excuses you have urged, it is a most alarming spiritual symptom. If prayer be the breath of the soul, and if spiritual breathing has become so difficult and painful, it requires no great skill to make out a diagnosis of your case, or to determine the fatal result, unless there is a great and speedy improvement. The mournful fact, that although professedly pious, we feel no disposition to join in social prayer, is most alarming.

Let us now consider some of the more obvious and important benefits of social prayer. We must think the important spiritual uses of social prayer have not been intelligently considered, and appreciated by quite too many professing and calling themselves Christians. To illustrate, suppose that men had long realized their helplessness, and had long deplored the insufficiency of the world to give them peace, and had long sought this way and that, in vain for joy. Suppose then it were announced for the first time that God would hear prayer, would pardon sin, would renew our natures, and give us the rest and peace we had so long sought, and sought in vain, and in addition to all this, would give the gracious privilege to pray for others, for all our race. What a thrill of joy would such an announcement send through the church!

Yet, this is the privilege with which we have long been familiar. Fallen angels, and finally impenitent men who have abused and lost the "day of salvation," are denied this gracious privilege. If it could only be granted them with the blessed aid of the Holy Spirit, as we enjoy it, it would make hope blossom in the shades of despair, and lost souls bound with immortal rapture. Now do we appreciate our privileges as glad tidings? Alas! many do not. An announcement for a meeting where guilty and miserable men may pray, falls upon the ear as a dull and common thing. Of all evils, sin is the greatest—of all deliverances, salvation from sin is the best, it is for this we gather in social prayer.

Attendance on social prayer is a good example to the young, a comfort to the bereaved, and a help to the penitent. It is promotive of Christian acquaintance and fellowship—it binds us to one another, and to the church of God. Our interest is increased in the subjects of our prayer, the success of the preached Word, the prosperity of the church, and the triumph of the gospel in the earth.

A large attendance would exert a social and moral power, and bring many of the unconvinced into the hallowed circle, and thus instrumentally lead them to God.

What should ever be of profound and abiding interest to us, the meeting for social prayer may be a means of quickening our spiritual life, and cultivating the graces of the spirit. This is personally the noblest end to which we can aspire, the best consummation we can desire. Let us not be calculating how little purity, how little love, and how little spiritual power will do, but let us seek how much purity, how much power, and how much love may be ours. We desire, if earnest Christians, we must desire to see Christ's cause prosper, and his kingdom come, souls bought with his blood brought to the knowledge of the truth, and made sons and heirs of God. Forsake not then the assembling of yourselves together as the manner of some is. W.

WASHINGTON, July 16.—The bill introduced by Mr. Stevens, Pennsylvania, to-day, to enable the inhabitants of the Southern States to form State governments, is as follows:

Be it enacted by the Senate and House of Representatives of the United States of America in Congress assembled, That all governments and pretended governments within that portion of the territory which lately claimed to belong to the Confederate States of America, and which the United States have conquered, to-wit: the territory lately called the State of Virginia, (here follows names of all the Southern States, designated as Virginia is, and the bill then proceeds as follows:—) are hereby declared null and void and of no effect, other than that which they shall derive from the action of Congress. The municipal corporations and offices existing de facto for local purposes shall be continued until Congress, or those authorized by Congress, shall determine their existence.

Sec. 2. And be it further enacted, That until the said territory shall be prepared with proper constitutions and regularly admitted into the Union as new States it shall be governed as follows: Three commissioners, civilians, shall be chosen by the joint action of the Senate and House of Representatives for each of the divisions now called military districts, two of whom shall be nominated by the House and one by the Senate, who shall be called Commissioners of Reconstruction. They shall discharge all the duties which, by the act of March 2, 1867, and its supplement of March 23, 1867, are now enjoined upon the military commanders, except so far as is altered by this act, and they shall proceed to correct and complete the registration already in progress with all convenient speed. When the registration is completed they shall take the same action with regard to the formation of the Constitution as is now prescribed to the military commanders in the acts of March 2, and whenever any portion of said territory shall have been formed into a proper State, and its Constitution submitted to Congress and approved by it, it shall be admitted into the Union and declared capable of representation in the Congress of the United States. The military commanders and all military authority are hereby relieved from any duty within said Territory, except the preservation of the peace, which they shall enforce, upon the demand of the commissioners of reconstruction or any of them. The admission of new States into the Union and the reconstruction of old ones is the sole duty and work of Congress, and neither the President or any head of department, nor the judiciary nor the military, have any right to interfere in such matters unless required by the Congress of the United States. The opinion of the Attorney General upon any point connected with the admission of new States or the reconstruction of destroyed ones, is unauthorized and ought not to be obtained upon Government, lest there may be a misunderstanding with regard to who are entitled to exercise the elective franchise, both in the election of delegates to form a convention, and in the confirmation or rejection of any Constitution they may form; it is declared that all such persons who voluntarily engaged in the late rebellion shall be excluded from registration, and such fact may be proved by parole evidence, and for that purpose the commissioners of Reconstruction, or either of them, shall have full power to call witnesses, administer oaths, ask questions, and conduct the examination in such manner as may be necessary to ascertain the truth. Any false swearing under this law shall be deemed felony and punished as such. The residence required in said acts must be continuous, immediately preceding the election at which the vote is offered. No person who during the time of the rebellion, held any judicial or executive office under the Government called the Confederate States of America, or under either of said States, shall be registered, nor military officers who, during the existence of the Government of the Confederate States, held offices either in its army, or in the army or militia of said States; and nothing in this act shall be held to admit to registration any of the classes excluded by the act to which this is a supplement.

Sec. 3. And be it further enacted, That the Commission of Reconstruction, each within its own jurisdiction, shall have full power to remove any municipal officer or magistrate or State judge, and if it sees proper, to fill the vacancy by new appointment whenever it shall deem the public good shall require it. From the acts and doings of the respective boards and commissions there shall be no appeal except to Congress.

Sec. 4. And be it further enacted, That so much of the act of March 2, 1867, and its supplement of March 23, 1867, as is not altered by this act, shall remain in full force and virtue.

Added to the bill, but without any words of enactment, is a paragraph in these words:

"If the Commissioners of the State of Texas and the State of Louisiana shall adjudge that the interests of the country require the division of Texas into two States, they shall proceed to run and mark the division line and prepare them for admission into the Union as herein prescribed."

The following is the closing speech of Mr. Thad. Stevens on the new reconstruction bill. Our position as conquered territories is pungently defined.

Mr. Stevens, of Pennsylvania, then took the floor and said he must confess that a small portion of the blame for the condition of affairs may be attached to Congress, because the proper language had not been used in former bills owing to the indistinct knowledge of the condition of the country. If the States lately in rebellion had been recognized as conquered provinces and had been treated accordingly from the beginning, there would have been but little difficulty in the way of a proper reconstruction of the entire South. But we were not all prepared to understand or agree that it was conquered territory in the usual acceptance of that term. A nation was afflicted with a civil war which for a time was called and denominated an insurrection. It included in its territorial borders twelve millions of people who no longer claimed to belong to the United States and who attempted to set up an independent Government. They raised large armies to defend their pretensions and we recognized them, not as an independent nation, but as independent belligerents, subject to all the rights, pains, penalties and forfeitures of belligerents. We were then at war as two independent nations, and after we conquered it was for us to say whether we would treat them as a vanquished nation or whether without penitence we would permit them again to resume their places with us. We conquered, and what did we conquer? The Confederate Government. We conquered all the States that became by their own act part or parcel of the Confederacy. We conquered a Government which claimed that it owed no allegiance to the Government of the United States, and for gentlemen now to claim that these States still have supreme rights, and that they are still States in the Union, looks like a bald absurdity. We conquered the Confederate armies and placed the States at once under the control of military law. When territory is once conquered by arms it is always governed by the military power and by the command of the army until the legislative power shall have spoken, and the legislative orders must then be obeyed, and not till then is the territory relieved of military rule. Much is said of the President of the United States being the Commander-in-Chief of the armies and of the enforcement upon his powers. Until superseded by Congress there was no objection to the President's exercise of military rule in the Southern States. But he assumed legislative powers, and instead of treating the Southern communities as conquered, he proposed to receive them back as sovereign States. That was no part of the duty or prerogative of the Commander-in-Chief of the army. If an insurrection breaks out among the Indians of Nebraska, Congress can pass a law to quell that insurrection and can give orders to the commander of the armies and send him there; but it is no part of the duty of that commander to do any act to regulate the government of that insurrectionary district. He can only execute the orders given to him by Congress. The Constitution declares that Congress may make all needful rules and regulations for the government of the army and navy; and with that the Executive has nothing to do; and when, military law prevailing, he appoints civil officers, he makes a mistake. The military may be placed in the South as a police until peace is fully restored, and if Congress chooses to put military officers there as its agents, it has the right and power to do so. He (Mr. Stevens) denied that the President could call upon his Attorney General for instructions to be given to military commanders under a law of Congress. It was the business of Congress itself to construe the law. As to the constitutional right, it should be known to the President by this time (and he hoped there was not a negro school that did not know it), that the Constitution does not apply to the Territories. The Constitution was made for States and the Territories belong to the whole number. The States having been conquered, are in the attitude of Territories. The Confederate States are our property and its citizens are our subjects, and subject to the supreme rule of Congress and of no other body, and no other power has any right to interfere. But one thing is clear, and that is that the people are and have been under military authority and subject to military rule and trial by commission and court-martial, and if he had had his way he would have organized a Military Commission long ago and tried Jeff. Davis and all his Cabinet for the murder of Union prisoners at Andersonville and Salisbury. He would not say what he would have done with them after the conviction, but he would at least have tried them. In conclusion, Mr. Stevens referred to Mexican affairs and said he would not shrink from saying that such a punishment as Maximilian had received was in his view very proper. [Applause.] He would not advocate executions here, but he condemned the sickly sentimentalism that pretended such a shudder at the shedding of reasonable blood.

The question was then taken upon the adoption of the amendment proposed by Mr. Wilson, of Iowa, and Mr. Benjamin, of Missouri, and they were agreed to.

"THE OHISIS." Under this title, the National Intelligencer, of the 18th, contains a leader, which discusses, in its grave and solemn manner, the former and the recently passed reconstruction acts, showing particularly, the latter's effect as respects the Presidential office. The following extract will show the position of the Intelligencer.

Without considering whether or not by an abuse of the constitution, Congress has thought fit to occasion an immense accession to the jurisdiction of the United States, as a Government of limited powers, and consistently with the accession, has made provision for a corresponding complement of officers and agents, greater in number, perhaps, than the entire official list of the United States hitherto; and, also, for a system of colonial government and political regulation, comprised in the residuum of former laws of the States respectively, and in the statutes of which these, including the present bill, are the principal, which may go under the general name of "reconstruction laws," the marked features of this system are three:

1. That the Government is essentially military.

2. That all the officers and agents employed in its administration, executive, legislative and judicial—primarily Federal, or so by adoption, under and by virtue of said statutes—are removable at pleasure.

3. That the President of the United States is virtually exonerated by these laws from agency or responsibility in their execution. A fourth peculiarity of the highest consequence at an earlier day, has now fallen somewhat behind the present inquiry, except as facilitating apprehension, viz: The President was ousted in his magistracy, in a great degree, over these States, in common with the other States of the Union, in as far as their constitutional relations correspond with the latter, by the passage of the act of the 2d of March. But the pleasure of Congress in excluding all their representatives left their condition such as to render it expedient, in his judgment, rather to waive the question than to prolong the disturbance. This forbearance he had the power, however ineffectually for the end, to exercise, because he was bound to decide upon the constitutionality of the acts. They were acts which could be executed, and if so, but one executive existed to perform that duty. But acts of Congress, which purport to execute from or forbid the President to execute them, cannot be laws. States which the President is bound to execute. The starting question, then, is, whether the right to treat as laws, in actual instance, the several provisions of this bill that contemplate their execution without his authority?

Rest satisfied with doing well, and leave others to talk of you what they please.

GROWTH OF THE DUTCH CHURCH. During the last forty years, the Dutch Reformed Churches have increased from 150 to 434; the membership from 10,000 to 50,000. The last decade has been a period of prosperous growth. In it more than half a million of dollars have been raised for educational purposes within the previous century. In 1857, the receipts for domestic missions and building fund were little over $16,000; in 1867, they were $46,498. The receipts for foreign missions increased nearly fivefold—from $12,303 to $110,000. The Church contributed nearly $250,000 to benevolent objects last year. It comprises 424 churches, 55,917 members, over 3,000 whom were added last year by profession.

THE BAPTISTS IN AMERICAN CITIES. Rev. A. C. Osborn, D. D., of Louisville, made a speech at the Chicago Anniversaries, which attracted special attention, and from which the following extract is made:—"According to the latest census, the most reliable ecclesiastical statistics, there is in the United States one evangelical Christian in every six of the population. In the city of New York, there is one in twenty. In St. Louis is one in twenty-two. The disproportion between city and country is still more marked in the Baptist denomination. The following table will exhibit this fact:

| | Population. | No. of Baptists. | No. of Presbyterians. |
|---------------|-------------|------------------|-----------------------|
| New York City | 8,880,734 | 16,741 | 14,100 |
| New York City | 813,668 | 10,469 | 11,200 |
| Rochester | 69,000 | 1,290 | 1,200 |
| Albany | 2,250,000 | 46,129 | 1,200 |
| Chicago | 200,000 | 2,567 | 1,100 |
| St. Louis | 1,000,000 | 60,900 | 1,100 |
| Detroit | 75,000 | 8,588 | 1,100 |
| Kentucky | 1,155,738 | 81,588 | 1,100 |
| Louisville | 120,000 | 2,800 | 1,100 |
| St. Louis | 1,155,738 | 44,817 | 1,100 |
| St. Louis | 204,227 | 2,647 | 1,100 |
| St. Louis | 154,605 | 1,998 | 1,100 |
| St. Louis | 31,443,750 | 1,040,303 | 1,100 |

From this it will appear that the Baptists are relatively far weaker in the cities named than in the States in which these cities are situated. Even Rochester, sometimes called the headquarters of the Baptist denomination for the State of New York, is reported behind the State itself. Sufficiently accurate information has been obtained in cities of Boston, Philadelphia, Baltimore, Cincinnati and New Orleans. Indeed, there is not a large city in the United States that has so great a proportion of Baptists as the entire country at large. Rochester has but one in forty-six, while in the States and Territories, cities included, there is one in thirty."

U. P. STATISTICS.—The statistics of the United Presbyterian Church for the year ending May, 1867, show a very encouraging increase in Church numbers, life and work during the past year. The West is being occupied by experienced workers; a larger average of additional to the Church is shown than in any year before since 1859, and the average amount paid for support of the ministry has doubled in that time. The statistics are as follows:

| | |
|---------------------------------------|-----------|
| Synods | 23,800 |
| Presbyteries | 4,370 |
| Total ministers | 3,719 |
| For missionaries and teachers | 61,489 |
| Home missionaries | 2,567 |
| Missionaries and teachers to freedmen | 2,567 |
| Families | 23,800 |
| Members added on profession | 4,370 |
| Members added on certificate | 3,719 |
| Total membership reported | 61,489 |
| Contributed to Church funds | $108,365 |
| Salaries paid pastors | $26,121 |
| General contributions | $24,132 |
| Total contributions | $34,883 |
| Average per member | 11 |

EFFECTS OF DANCING.—An article in the Boston Transcript discusses the "star" dancers with the following sweeping hit: "Shall we look at the premier? You will be worse off than ever. To be a first danseuse is to commit suicide in a tolerably gradual form. Nine in ten of the queens of the ballet have sunken cheeks and chests, and complexions suggesting a diet of arsenical wafers. The excessive exertion of high-art dancing in a heated theater is fatal to beauty. The unhappy votary saps every wholesome tissue in her frame, and becomes, at last, as Fanny Elssler, by daylight, was once described—'A yellow specter in a bundle of old shawls.'"

To do much good and make but little noise is a singular thing. Some say much, but do nothing; but Christians should do much and say nothing.

Little Feet and Little Footprints.

BY JULIA WESTWOOD.

Many nectared lips have sung,
Both cheerily and sweet,
Of the charming little pit-a-pat,
Of cutting little feet.

Out upon the vine-clad porch,
And through the spacious hall,
Oh! the treasured joys they bring,
With every silvery fall.

Out upon the roadside too,
And close down by the spring,
See the little saucy print,
A fairy-fashined thing.

Down within the meadow green,
And near the rippling rill,
Where the fleecy lambkins lie,
Where "lie-tac," goes the mill.

Out upon the hill side moss,
And down within the vale,
Where the blue-eyed daisies grow,
Refreshed by every gale.

Out where gentle, lowing kine,
Come nightly o'er the sea,
Oh! the blessed little print,
So beautiful to see.

Telling tales of bluest eyes,
And blackest eyes, and brown,
All swimming full of sunshine bright,
With n'er an anxious frown.

Telling tales of chubby hands,
The fairest to behold,
Telling too of silken locks,
Both raven-black and gold.

Telling tales of rounded limbs,
Aye, scarcely ever still,
Telling of the dainty feet,
Wandering up Life's hill.

Telling tales of little hearts,
All fluted up to brim,
With rainbow-tints and starlight,
That no wan care can dim.

Telling tales of merry lips,
Where humming birds and bees,
Come to gather honey sweet,
Oh, beautiful to see.

In this little prototype,
Just find it where you will,
Of little head, and heart and hand,
Meandering Life's hill.

And oh! as thus they travel on,
Through smiling dust and heat,
May God's celestial guardians,
Walk nigh the little feet.

And lead them to that Father-land,
That blissful best abode,
Whose golden streets and pearly gates Conduct them close to God.

The N. O. Christian Advocate.

BRITISH HONDURAS.

BELIZE, July 8, 1867.

EDITOR.—You may be weary of the many letters on the subject of this country, but nevertheless I will give you one more. As very particular description has been given of this City, allow me to give your readers some idea of the town. We came to anchor about midnight, half a mile from the town, in fine water. In the early morning when we awoke and looking forth, we were delighted to see so beautiful and picturesque. Between us and the shore was an old fort, and around us lay ten or twelve vessels of various sizes and of different nationalities; among them one of the B. M. war vessels. The town is situated on a point of land which juts out into the sea, equal to about 500 acres, and is divided by Belize river which flows into the bay at two points, one at the termination of the point, and the other a mile up the shore. The town is built on both sides of the river which is spanned by a beautiful bridge, painted white. The bridge is about 150 feet wide. Near the bridge is a commodious market under very good regulations. On Saturday evening and not again until Monday morning. The town is well laid out—the streets running parallel to the bay, about 60 feet wide, with sidewalks. They are solid, and smooth as stone, though sand, higher in the centre of the streets, with shallow gutters close up to the houses and door yards. These streets are kept very clean, and are never muddy. The houses are mostly two or three stories high, built of brick, iron, or wood. Those of brick are painted white, the iron and wood are painted red—the corners around the doors, windows, and cornices with white effect. The roofs are quadrangular, some made of slate, some of corrugated iron, galvanized, and some of shingles. They are generally fine commodious buildings; many of them having a veranda in front at each story, some of wood and some of iron. Nearly all are surmounted with ventilators but no chimneys.

The signs for stores and shops appear very primitive and look much like they came from London a hundred years ago. The houses are constructed in a most airy style—the partitions not reaching the ceiling, but left open about two feet at the upper portion for ventilation. They also have rolling blinds put through the partitions between the rooms and halls that are opened and closed at pleasure. The walls are painted and papered with great taste. Beautiful shade trees, such as the Bread-fruit, Cocoa-nut palm, Mimosa, and handsome flowering shrubs are in every yard. In fine it is a novel and delightful place, showing taste and beauty.

There are a number of fine churches. The church of St. John, Episcopal, is said to be the oldest church in the West Indies or Central America. It is of brick—finished inside with mahogany pulpit and pews, the pulpit at least ten feet above the floor, and the pews awkward, old-fashioned, coming about up to your neck when you sit down. The heavy frame work of the roof, all of mahogany, is in full view. A most beautiful stained glass window in one end, and a gallery and organ at the other end. We attended the service at 6 p. m., and heard the Lord Bishop of Jamaica preach. It was a good evangelical sermon.

The Wesleyan Chapel is quite an ornamental piece of architecture. It is built of English brick of two colors—red and drab—the latter used around the doors, windows, cornice, corners, &c., with very pretty effect. The inside is all finished in mahogany—pulpit, pews, pillars, gallery, &c., with a light looking roof in Gothic form, of iron frame, and a stained glass window, the emfain of which was at least thirty feet high. In the basement is a fine room for Sunday Schools, and in the rear of the chapel, on the upper floor, is a cool, light, and airy study and library.

There are also several other chapels, Presbyterian, Baptist, and Roman Catholic. A more orderly city cannot be found anywhere. Yesterday was Sunday, and not a grog-shop or store of any kind was to be found with either door or shutter ajar, but few persons to be seen on the streets except on their way to or from church. What a contrast to New Orleans!

Along the banks of the Belize river, a little above the town, are the yards of the Mahogany and Logwood Companies. In these yards the great logs of this wood are hewed and prepared for shipping. It requires many boats to bring these logs down the rivers, and to get the rafts out to the ships, laying about half a mile off. These boats are of two kinds, one long and narrow, the other broad and short. The latter tow the rafts to the vessels, the former tow the logs down the river. There are also yards with Logwood, Brazil wood, and Fustic in large piles ready for shipment.

On Tuesday we start down the coast 75 miles to look at lands on Deep river at Point Icaas. We expect to be back in about two or three weeks, and then we will be able to inform you what kind of lands, &c., we have found. Mr. George Fearn goes up on the Gen. Sherman, and as he has visited these same lands and nearly all of British Honduras, he will be able to give you his report and he is more than pleased with all he saw. For the present, adieu.

W. C. CHAMBERLIN.

Don't be always telling what you are going to do. Do something and that will speak for you.

The Grand Council in Rome.

Rome (June 22) Correspondence of the Pall Mall Gazette.

The Grand Council in Rome.

The procession of Corpus Christi took place the day before yesterday, and was very splendid. It had in special feature in the number of prelates in its ranks, amounting with the cardinals, to no less than 348. The bishops of the Latin rite all wore white mitres and white capes without any embroidery; and the cardinals were only distinguished from them by the satin work on their mitres. Oriental bishops, with the archbishops, primates and patriarchs, were, on the contrary, attired in all the magnificence of the east—their miters embroidered with gold and richly jeweled, and their diadems, which took the shape of an imperial crown, blazing with gems. The pope appeared, in spite of the doctors, looking very pale and faded. The French priests assembled in thousands to see the procession, and, confident in their numbers, gave free expression to their zeal, knocking off the hats of those spectators who did not uncover at the proper moment. It may have been in consequence of this violence that a French priest was pained in the evening in the Piazza della Maddalena. His wounds are serious and his recovery uncertain.

Yesterday, the anniversary of his coronation, the pope was present at a service chanted by Cardinal Mathieu, in the Sistine Chapel. The edifice was completely filled by the bishops. The foreign priests thronged the royal saloon and the approaches to the foot of the stairs. The pope had to traverse the saloon several times to change his vestments and ornaments in the Pauline Chapel; and on each occasion was received with cries of "Long live the pope!" In the afternoon there was a review of the pontifical army in the grounds of the villa Borghese, and here the foreign ecclesiastics worked themselves into a perfect frenzy in their acclamations of the Zouaves, thus rendering both the Zouaves and themselves more odious than ever to the Roman population.

Among our recent arrivals is Monsignor Darboy, archbishop of Paris, who has taken up his residence at the French embassy. He comes, indeed, somewhat in an ambassadorial character, being commissioned by the Emperor Napoleon to invite the pope to Paris for the double purpose of seeing his godson, the prince imperial and the Exhibition. There is no likelihood of the holy father accepting the invitation.

The foreign bishops have brought the pope some magnificent presents. Their donations, in money alone amount to 1,500,000 crowns, or 7,500,000 francs, and their other gifts are of great value. Cardinal Mathieu, Archbishop of Besancon, has presented him with an os encoir several feet high, and having its massive gold disc enriched with diamonds and rubies of rare brilliancy. The bishops of Canada have brought a work of art in the shape of a silver ship, with every detail beautifully executed. The ballast of this costly toy is composed of gold nuggets, and each of the cabins contains a heap of gold money from a different country. The masts and cordage are gaily dressed with bank notes of every color and from every country in the world. A very old bishop sought an audience of the holy father leaning on a large thick staff. Monsignor Pacea, master of the ceremonies, told him that he must first lay his staff aside, as the etiquette of the court did not permit of his carrying it into the pope's presence. The bishop claimed exemption from the rule, and the pope hearing what was going on, ordered him to be admitted. Accordingly he appeared before the holy father, and, rendering his homage, stated that his diocese was so poor he had nothing to bring him but his stick. This the pope took in his hand and found very heavy, on which he looked at it more closely and perceived that it was formed of solid gold. The archbishop of Mexico has sent the Holy Father 80,000 crowns, and an English bishop has presented him with the large sum of £100,000 sterling. The American bishops are said to be bringing an enormous tribute.

[From the Paris Union, July 1.]

The Pope's Allocution.

The address of the pope, made in presence of five hundred bishops, forming the consistory that met on the 26th of June, commences with congratulations offered to the prelates assembled in Rome to defend the Catholic religion. Pius IX., however, tempers his expressions of congratulation with words of complaint when he alludes to the state of the church in the remark, "The Catholic faith and authority of the Apostolic Seat are attacked with the most implacable machinations." Continuing, and alluding to the same subject, the pope says: "Indeed, why should we deceive ourselves? Venerable brethren, for many years past we have stood on the battle field and struggled in defense of religion and justice against perfidions and undaunted enemies. The struggle is so prolonged, so terrible, that the united forces of the sacred militia appear scarcely equal to resist it. As for ourselves, fighting in the cause of the Church for liberty and the rights appertaining to our supreme charge, until now we have escaped—thanks to the assistance of the Almighty—many mortal perils."

"Yet, though hurried along and tossed at the caprice of the winds and stormy waves, we dread not shipwreck, for the present help of our Lord Jesus Christ preserves us from fear; but we are deeply afflicted at the promulgation of so many new and monstrous doctrines; at the sight of so many crimes and acts of impiety committed against the church and the apostolic seat. We have already reprobated and condemned these proceedings, and now again, in performance of our duties, we reprove and condemn them."

"You, venerable brethren, will understand, with your time-strengthened wisdom, how important it is to oppose the designs of the impious and to heal the wounds of the church. Let your unanimous agreement with ourselves and with the apostolic seat shine more brightly than ever, and become more deeply rooted within you from day to day."

"It is necessary that the adversaries of religion understand, from her teachings, that she is the strength and life of that Catholic Church which they unceasingly pursue with their hatred; that they learn how mad and powerless is the insult they apply to her when they charge her with being exhausted and unworthy of the age; that they learn how inspired they are to trust in their own success, in their own efforts, and in their own enterprise, and that they see that no one can break a fascis of forces such as that which Jesus Christ and his divine virtue bound upon the stone of the commission of the Apostles. Now, more than ever, venerable brethren, men must see clearly that there is no narrow and trusty bond between souls, but while there reigns over all the single and self same spirit of God, and must know that if they abandon God and despise the authority of the church, they do not attain that felicity which they seek in the path of crime, but are hurled into the cruellest discussions and the most terrible storms."

In concluding, the pope says:

"Let us then pray our Lord Jesus Christ humbly and continually, to rescue His church from so many evils and dangers, to give her the joy of peace, victory over her enemies, so that for the glory of His name, He may inspire with salutary resolutions all those who are now in error, and upon you, venerable brethren, who will pray for this result, upon you, upon all our venerable bishops of Catholic nations, upon all the faithful in your charge, from whom we have received and are receiving so many proofs of piety and love, we bestow, from the bottom of our heart, our apostolic blessing joined with all our prayers for their happiness."

THE BISHOP'S REPLY TO THE ALLOCUTION

The address presented yesterday by 430 bishops to the pope, in reply to this allocution, attests their entire obedience to his holiness, and declares that they believe and teach what he believes and teaches. The bishops thank the pope for his solicitude in endeavoring to preserve intact public morality to resist dangerous machinations and to confound error, and express the wish that the voice of the pontiff may lead those who are erring back to the good path. The address proceeds to speak of the admirable harmony of the christian nations rallying round the papal chair, and expresses joy at the proclamation of the speedy assembly of an ecumenical council from which the bishops expect abundant fruit. It concludes by declaring that neither princes nor nations will permit the rights or authority of the pope to be ignored. In reply to the address which has been presented to the pope by the deputation from the Italian towns, his holiness declared that he had always aided Italy, but in such manner only as was in accordance with her true interests, and he hoped that those who disposed of her destinies will save the common fatherland from moral and religious ruin.

The pope has again received a number of Catholics of various nationalities, to whom he made a speech in the French language. His words were greeted with enthusiastic applause. —Rome July 2 Telegram London Times.

KIND WORDS.—Kind words are the brightest flowers of earth's existence; they make a paradise of the humblest home the world can show. Use them, especially around the fireside, and you will find them more precious to heal the wounded heart, glad, than the weighed-down spirit earth can give.

SEA FISH AND FISHERIES.

From the Edinburgh Review.

If the sea is prodigal of life to a degree that baffles our powers of conception and calculation, it is no less a scene of boundless destruction. The life of all fishes is one of perpetual warfare, and the only law that pervades the great world of waters is that of the strongest, the swiftest and the most voracious. The carnage of the sea immeasurably exceeds even that which is permitted to perplex our reason on the earth. We know, however, that without it the population of the ocean would soon become so immense that, vast as it is, it would not suffice for its multitudinous inhabitants. Few fishes probably die a natural death, and some seem to have been created solely to devour others. There is probably none which does not feed on some other species or on its own. Many of the monster that roam the watery plains are provided with maws capable of engulfing thousands of their kind in a day. A hoghead of herrings has been taken out of the belly of a whale. A shark probably destroys tens of thousands in a year. Fifteen full-sized herrings have been found in the stomach of a cod. If we allow a codfish only two herrings per day for his subsistence, and suppose him to feed on herrings for only seven months in the year, we have 420 herrings as his allowance during that period, and fifty codfish equal one fisherman in destructive power. But the quantity of cod and of ling, which are as destructive as cod, taken in 1861, and registered by the Scotch Fishery Board, was, say the commissioners, over 81,000 cwts. On an average, thirty codfish make one hundred weight of dried fish, and 2,400 will equal 48,000 fishermen. In other words, the cod and ling caught on the Scotch coast in 1861, if they had been left in the water, would have devoured as many herrings as were caught by all the fishermen of Scotland, and six thousand more, in the same year. But as the cod and ling caught were certainly not one-tenth of those left behind, we may fairly estimate the destruction of herrings by those voracious fish alone as at least ten times as great as that effected by all the fishermen of Scotland.

Sea-birds are scarcely less destructive to fish than fish are to each other. The solan goose can swallow and digest at least six full-sized herrings per day. It has been calculated that the island of St. Kilda, assuming it to be inhabited by 200,000 of these birds feeding for seven months in the year, and with an allowance of five herrings each per day, the number of fish for the summer subsistence of a single species of bird cannot be under 214,000,000. Compared with the enormous consumption of fish by birds and by each other, the draughts made upon the population of the sea by man, with all his ingenious fishing devices, seem to dwindle into absolute insignificance.

There is no department of natural history in which it is so difficult to obtain accurate information as ichthyology. We cannot visit the depths of the sea and investigate the phenomena connected with subaqueous life. We know the amazing fecundity of its inhabitants, but we know little more. We certainly do not know either the numbers, the rate of multiplication, or the conditions of existence of any kind of fish, so as to enable us to form even an approximate estimate of the effect produced upon the aggregate quantity of fish by any given destruction of its young. The Commissioners state that on the eastern coasts of Scotland and England herrings have been taken in great and steadily-increasing quantities for centuries, and that the captures are, nevertheless, as great, if not greater, than ever. On the other hand, we have the most positive assertions of experienced fishermen that certain kinds of fish are not so plentiful as they were, and that, although the means of capture have been enormously multiplied, the catches, instead of being greater in proportion, are less. It has been asserted of the great Wick herring fishery that some of the shoals have disappeared, and that the cause of such disappearance is over-fishing. The area of the Wick fishery is thirty miles by five, and within that space more than a thousand boats nightly in the season spread nineteen million yards of netting—eight times the quantity formerly employed—while the amount of herrings now caught is only double of that formerly secured. It is, however, possible that the quantity of herrings in the sea may not have permanently diminished, although the catches by each boat have decreased. The immense fishing power now brought to bear upon the shoals may have had the effect of breaking up and driving them to greater distances from the shore.

The total annual European catch may be computed at from four to five thousand millions. Vast as is the produce of the Scotch herring fishery it is exceeded by that of Norway. In the course of last year a shoal of prodigious magnitude made its appearance off the coast, and so dense was the mass that although a thousand tons of fish were taken from it there was no sensible diminution in the quantity. The movements of the herring on the Norwegian coasts are extremely uncertain. In the year 1567 the fish disappeared altogether, and did not again visit that part of the North Sea until 1808. Sweden has experienced similar variations, but the fish have not yet reappeared on the coasts of that country or in the Baltic. On the coast of Norway the shoals are extremely erratic, and the telegraphic wire has accordingly been brought into requisition to counteract the effect of such roving propensities. Stations have been erected at different points on the coast, from which the movements of the shoals can be watched, and field telegraphs are laid down to summon the fishermen from the most distant parts of the country on the first appearance of the fish at any unusual place.

The mackerel season is, while it lasts, one of great activity, and the high prices often obtained for the first fish, make the opening of the season one of some excitement on our coasts. The largest sum known to have been paid for these fish was forty guineas per hundred, or seven shillings a piece; yet they were so plentiful at Dover in one year (1807) as to have been sold sixty for a shilling. The success of the mackerel fishery on the eastern coast in 1821 was unprecedented, £14,000 having been realized by the owners of the fishing-boats on the Suffolk coast in a single day. The Yarmouth boats have occasionally realized £35,000 in a season. No means exist for ascertaining the aggregate quantity of mackerel annually taken, but the demand for them is so great, that it answers for the Norwegian fishermen to pack them in ice, and consign them to the English markets. The average annual consumption of mackerel in London alone has been estimated at 25,000,000. It was once thought that they migrated from the northern to a southern latitude, but, like the herring, they are found in our seas at all seasons. They are taken off the coast of Cornwall by drift-nets early in March—the movement of the shoals being from west to east. Mackerel are said to be caught with greater facility than almost any other description of fish. "In vain, we know," says a popular writer, "is the net spread in the sight of any bird," and though fish may not equal birds in cerebral development, yet few of the finny tribe appear to view the meshy machinations of the fisherman with absolute indifference, or without betraying some symptoms of distrust. The mackerel alone shows no such timidity; the very neighborhood of a decoy has charms for his inexperience, and it is the area accordingly fixed upon by the shal for public games, and the bempen walls are looked upon as a common lounge benevolently stretched out by the fishermen for their benefit.

Up to the fatal engine swims the whole legion, eyes it first, then noses it in motionless wonder and delight, and finally, waxing bold from impunity, begins, like the Trojan youth, to play with the threads of destiny. "Fumes finis contingere gaudet," moving the meshes with sportive tails, rubbing their sides against the holdfasts, playing at prison-bars, and coursing rapidly through every open square that will admit a free passage to the bodies. Thus in they go, and out they glide, up and down, backwards and forwards, round and round, till, finding a hole too small for egress, each struggling detenu becomes immovably fixed, and is secured with many a partner in misfortune.

THE NATURE OF THE PHOTOGRAPHIC IMAGE.—The solution of this problem has for years engaged the attention of scientific observers, and a variety of explanations have been given. One of the most recent theories is that light acts upon the sensitive plate by a sort of mechanical pressure, in proof whereof it has been shown that if an object be pressed against the sensitive film, in the dark, the image of the impressed object may be at once developed, by the use of the usual developing agents.

But by far the most clear and satisfactory explanation of the phenomenon is that presented by M. Carey Lea, in the last number of the Philadelphia Photographer, which we publish in another column. Dr. Lea's contributions to chemical photography are widely known for their excellence and accuracy. The beautiful theory now made known by him is the result of a long series of laborious experiments. Make not the hungry souls sorrowful; defer not the gift to the needy; for if he curse thee in the bitterness of his soul, his prayer shall be heard of Him that made fishery it is exceeded by that of him.

PUBLISHING COMMITTEE.

FOR MOBILE CONFERENCE:

Rev. J. Hamilton, D.D.,
Rev. A. H. Mitchell, D.D.,
Rev. Theo. W. Dorman, D.D.

FOR MONTGOMERY CONFERENCE:

Rev. M. S. Andrews,
Rev. William A. Shepard,
Rev. J. B. Cottrell.

FOR MISSISSIPPI CONFERENCE:

Rev. W. H. Watkins, D.D.,
Rev. H. H. Montgomery,
Rev. William F. Barton.

FOR LOUISIANA CONFERENCE:

Rev. J. C. Keener, D.D.,
Rev. J. B. Walker, D.D.,
Rev. Liane Parker.

New Orleans:

SATURDAY, JULY 27, 1867.

How to send money.—We are frequently receiving enquiries upon this point. We have scarcely lost anything by the mails, and consider them safe. The risk at any rate will be ours.

We are still asked shall we forward money by mail? Answer, YES. The Agent will notice, as above, that the risk is not his.

To subscribers.—Any person wishing to subscribe for this paper can do so, by paying the Methodist preacher in the circuit, and forwarding to us his receipt for three dollars, with the address of the subscriber upon it, stating Post office, State, Circuit, and Conference. The receipt ought to be taken in duplicate.

DAY OF FASTING AND PRAYER.

Our Bishops in their address recommend that Friday, the 16th of August, be observed by our Church as a day of fasting and prayer. From the notices in the Church papers the indications are that the recommendation will be generally carried out. The whole church will be at prayer on that day, and whoever engages in special devotions may be sure that many thousands are breathing their supplications at the same time. It is recommended, that services in our churches be protracted whenever practicable, from the Sunday preceding the fast day, so as altogether to include the week. We believe that our preachers will not fail to preach on Friday, and that many of them will hold protracted meetings. For the extreme South it is rather early in the season, as it is the time of most sickness and the greatest heat. But on the other hand, in the country it is usually a period of comparative leisure, just between the "laying by" and the gathering of the crop. On the Circuits there cannot be preaching at every appointment, but could there not be at least a prayer meeting? Where no public means are available, let the fast be observed at home; and let special prayer be made in the closet and at the family altar for the prosperity of our Zion.

PORT GIBSON COLLEGIATE ACADEMY.—We have received the Annual Circular for 1867-8. The session begins Sept. 9. For the last four years the School has been conducted by Mr. A. J. Wright as President. He is assisted by his accomplished wife, who has special charge of resident pupils, and also by an efficient corps of teachers. The buildings are spacious and adapted to the purpose. The location is beautiful, salubrious, and necessary. The community noted for good order, and good society. We recommend this institution to our friends who have daughters to be educated.

At latest date, great financial and commercial depression existed at Jamaica.

COST OF SOULS.

Our China letter will be read with interest and profit. Up to date the converts have cost us about one thousand Taels per head. The calculation is easily made. So much money has been appropriated to the China Mission, and so many persons have been converted. Result gives one soul for about every fifteen hundred dollars expended.

We do not know the cost of souls in other missions, nor whether an estimate of the kind has been made. We might institute a comparison with our negro missions, or with the expenditures upon California of former years, if we had the figures at hand. Could not an approximation be reached of disbursements and returns in our regular work at home? How much money for every soul converted? Our gospel arithmetic might be carried up to the final application, how much for every convert, since the day of Pentecost? Directly or indirectly what amount has been expended on our individual salvation? To answer this last question we would have to go a long way back, and the sum total might be no inconsiderable item.

Money in this connection has a peculiar attribute. So we thought in reading the China letter. Ordinarily it represents values. There is in a given sum, so much food, a ship and its cargo, lands, houses, raiment, the capital of a snug business, or ten per cent. of interest. But here is a value of another sort. Money represents souls. In a given field of evangelical labor it is ciphered out to a cent. Every convert has cost about one thousand Taels. These souls would have remained in their sins, and have been lost forever but for this money.

Without it neither missionary nor Bible could have reached them. Here is a new and peculiar value put upon what we possess, out of which grows a solemn and startling responsibility. The Christian's wealth cannot be divested of this fearful element of accountability. What has been expended upon our lusts, the extravagancies of fashion, or hoarded in the grasp of avarice, represents souls which might have been saved had it been devoted to the cause of God. Our missions have always been straitened for means. Ten times the amount expended upon them, would doubtless have secured a like proportion of spiritual results. Ten souls would have been converted where one has been. Who will be held accountable for these lost souls? It is a question for those to ponder who have kept back the tithes due to God's house.

Nor does this principle apply only to foreign missions. The money put in a Church represents the good that such a church would accomplish; and that which is expended in keeping up the preaching of the Gospel, and sustaining missionaries in weak and destitute Districts, stands for the spiritual and immortal benefits secured by these instrumentalities.

Devoted men are necessary as missionaries, but these have been more easily found than the means for their support. Think of our two missionaries in China, with the field white to the harvest, and they compelled to curtail their labors for the want of a meagre support which the church at home withholds! There is need also of prayer, and the pervading ministry of the Holy Spirit, but neither of these will obviate the want of pecuniary aid. The grace of giving is as essential as that of faith. The salvation of souls costs money, as well as labor and prayer. These souls in China have cost a great deal, but the missionary comforts us with the hope that the rate will soon be reduced from a thousand to one tael per soul.

That the larger figure is a high price depends upon such considerations as these. The absolute value of a soul saved in heaven. "What shall it profit a man if he shall gain the whole world and lose his own soul?" Some of these fruits of our mission are now in heaven, and we are sure they do not feel that too much has been paid. Nor would those who remain on earth, rejoicing in the hope of glory, sell their faith for ten times the entire cost of our missions. The money would have effected more somewhere else. This is doubtful, unless it is clear that the money would have been directed to some other field. But nobody can suppose that the mere pittance we have been sending to China, has lessened the contributions to other objects. On the contrary, the reflexive influence upon the piety and liberality of the Church has enriched and strengthened us at home. The souls saved in China are a clear gain, besides the benefits which, giving, and thinking and preaching about them, have brought to our own doors. Missions are the life of the church, and the farther from home the greater their power of reaction upon us. The good which flows from them depends greatly upon their cost. David would not sacrifice of that which cost him nothing. Neither should we. It is this which exhibits faith and takes the churl out of the heart.

There is another view to which our correspondent refers. The prospective work in China. A large outlay at first as in many secular enterprises, but there is a good interest in the time to come. The preparatory steps, it may be, have involved heavy expenditures and small returns. But now the prospect brightens and the way is open to reach and save these benighted millions. Much of our impatience is due to our avarice. Suppose none had been converted as yet, is not our duty plain to give the gospel to every creature? Whether the people shall be evangelized slowly, rapidly, or not at all may be no business of ours. Our responsibility begins and ends with doing our part. Here, however, we have assurance that nothing has been undertaken in vain.

The wonder is that so rich a harvest is about to reward the very stunted sowing. Events in China, under the hand of Providence, have long been shaping, for a great triumph of the Gospel. Fifty years hence a new estimate will have to be made. What will have been the cost of souls then, as compared with the present? If up to this time it had been ten thousand taels a piece, what will it be when the teeming millions of the East shall be born again? As Christians, we ought to be thankful that such a chance for investment is afforded; and for this opportunity of making to ourselves friends of the unrighteous mammon.

CONGRESS AND THE CONSTITUTION.

The Legislation of Congress proceeds upon the practice of "broken doses." The public are prepared a little at a time for the policy of the Radicals. Mr. Stevens brings in another modification of the Reconstruction Bill, on yesterday, (July 16,) which places three "Commissioners of Reconstruction" in the supreme control of the "territory lately called the State of Virginia," etc., instead of the military commanders who are now over the several Southern Military Districts. That is three in place of Gen. Sheridan, three in place of Gen. Sickles, and so on, say in all fifteen civilians in place of the Major Generals. "Military commanders and all military authority are truly relieved from any duty within said Territory, except the preservation of peace, which they shall enforce upon the demand of the Commissioners of Reconstruction, or any of them." These three Commissioners are to have all the powers which by the bills of March last are vested in the Military Commanders. They may also run a line, and form Texas into two States, "if they adjudge that the interests of the country require it."

This Bill also declares "that all persons who voluntarily engaged in the late rebellion shall be excluded from registration." In a word, it places a Committee of Safety over every District in the South, with full power to order, change, and remove all Municipal, or State Governments, or officers, to construct new States, to determine who shall vote, and to reconstruct, after their own likeness and image, the whole "conquered" territory into States. All legislation which has transpired in the Southern States since the peace is declared to be "null and void and of no effect."

No one after this will suspect Mr. Stevens being troubled during the night from "fragments of the Constitution" on his kidneys. He openly disavows any such weakness. We suppose he refuses to legislate for Southern territory only, in this connection: but if the Constitution is to be considered equally dead, while legislating for Northern, Western, and loyal States generally, then Congress, and the whole country is fairly upon an open sea of legislation. To judge what the intent of the Radical party is, from the Reconstruction Acts, Original, Supplementary, and Explanatory is not difficult, it is the absolute, complete control of the South for the purpose of keeping in power. With the Senators of the ten rebel States, and the three border States, and one new State, that is twenty-eight Senators, it will not be difficult to overcome any opposition which may spring up unexpectedly in the West, or North.

A military man is an inconvenient agent; his buttons and his sword are points upon which the "popular administration is apt to gather," and the faithfulness of the officer may win a dangerous personal popularity for the man. Already the Major Generals have their admirers who are calling for a vote of thanks for them in Congress, and, out of Congress, are connecting their names with the future Presidency. The gentlemen in control of the Government now have no military laurels of their own to show, and are therefore naturally suspicious of any undue consideration which attaches to the mere profession of arms. Hence, they are beginning to prepare for displacing the Major Generals with "Commissioners." It is along here that we have hope: all of the Radicals cannot be in office, and those who constitute the outs are fully as mortal as those who compose the ins: they will divide among themselves over the spoil; and the virtue which is now confined to the Black Republicans, will find its way to some offshoot of that party which will dispute with them the control of the country. The prestige which the success of this party derived from the four years' war, will enable it to lead the entire North anywhere, even to the verge of ruin. A general bankruptcy, or a foreign war might break this influence, but nothing less considerable. The only possible relief must come from its own internal dissensions. Mr. Stevens sees this; he therefore is ready to sacrifice everything to the unity of the party. He knows the importance of pronouncing for measures which will rally by their novelty, and severity, the undying loyalty and war-spirit of the Northern masses. He does not stop for the Constitution, or the Laws of Nations, or the abstract principles of the Declaration of '76, he asks only for the reins of the Present, and leaves the Past, and the Future, to take care of themselves—"Might is Right," if not, it can soon be made so. He is for impeachment, for confiscation, for disfranchisement universal of rebels, for indemnifying all sufferers in the North at the cost of the South, for anything that is sufficiently bold to surprise, sufficiently severe to arouse his war constituents. The only fear with him is that this line of policy will exhaust itself, for there is an end we suppose to all excitements; as there has been to the resisting power of the South. When the goose is fairly dead, the agricultural resources of that fertile region ruined, its legislation perfected, and its tropical productions destroyed; when it ceases to export cotton and sugar, and is forced into manufacturing all that it once bought, then we suppose the Political Philanthropist will upon some other section of the country illustrate his views of constitutional liberty. K.

NEWS FROM THE CHURCHES.

SEVILLA Circuit, July 15, '67.

Mr. Editor: The Lord is beginning to revive his work within the bounds of this circuit. We have just closed a four days' meeting at P., where twenty persons were converted and joined the Church. Others would have joined, had it not been for their ungainly relations. How desperately wicked a man must he who refuses to let his wife or daughter join the church! Circumstances compelled us to close the meeting with a very serious congregation, and the altar crowded with penitents.

I am happy to state that our people are taking more interest in Sabbath Schools this year than formerly. I have ten appointments and eight Sabbath Schools. In addition to this, we have two Sabbath Schools among the colored people, that are well attended. These unfortunate people seem very eager for the word of life. I am sorry that I am doing so little for your paper. If we had other mail routes beside the R. R., it would be different. Some of the subscribers that you now have, live over twenty miles from the Post Office.

Fraternally yours,

W. W. GRAHAM.

Spring Creek Circuit—La. Conference.

JESSAMINE HILL, May 20, '67.

Mr. Editor: Perhaps you would like to hear from our far off quiet portion of the Conference. Far off because we have no mails or Post Offices in our section of the country—quiet, because we are away from any Rail Road, or navigable stream.

Here we have as good water as ever ran out of the earth. We manage to get enough to eat—and have a plenty of hard work to do which gives us an appetite. The Spring Creek Circuit is a part of the old Coteau Circuit. I have extended my lines farther south and east—have taken in a part of Bayou Boeuf. We have had some very good meetings. The people are glad of another opportunity of attending church, and not only that, but of attaching themselves to the church again. I have organized one new society in a new church, 12 members. Re-organized one old society where the church was broken up, with ten members. I will soon have a society organized at every appointment on the circuit, both among the whites and the colored. I am sorry that I have not a college, the people are anxious for the gospel. They want preaching in every neighborhood. Many places where they never had preaching before. The field is ripe unto the harvest. But the laborers are few. O that the Lord would send forth more laborers into his vineyard. We have several interesting Sabbath Schools on the Circuit, and everything bids fair for a glorious revival all around the Circuit. I have no ministerial aid at all. The people here stand in great need of books, Hymn books, Testaments and Bibles, Sabbath School books, etc. But bread stuffs are so scarce that they cannot spare the money to buy them—for bread, they are compelled to have. There are several families within the bounds of this circuit that have not a copy of God's Holy Word. What can be done for them?

They are as anxious to read the Advocate as the man who took his horse out of the plough and rode 30 miles to get to read it—for it is even that far to the nearest Post Office. It is but seldom that I get time, and I assure you that it is a welcome visitor when it comes. Crops are beginning to look well: I do hope that the Lord will reward the laborer this year.

Yours in the bonds of a peaceful gospel.

FRED WHITE.

JESSAMINE HILL, July, '67.

The above letter, dated May 20, was sent to the dead letter office, and returned to me a few days ago. I will start it again with this note enclosed. Since my letter was written, I have held several two days' meetings on the Circuit, with some success. At one place I took new members into the church; had an excellent meeting.

There will be little or no corn made in this section, for the pillars have already made their appearance. But the corn crop be abundant.

Yours, as over,

FRED WHITE.

THE PRESIDENT'S MESSAGE.

The following is the message of the President entire, a synopsis which appeared by telegraph several days ago. A reference to published proceedings of Congress of the 17th instant will show that called forth a resolution of Congress.

I transmit herewith reports to the Secretary of War and Attorney General, containing the information called for by the resolution of the Senate of the 3d inst., requesting the President to communicate to the Senate copies of all orders, instructions, circular letters, or letters of advice issued to the respective military officers assigned to the command of the several military districts under act passed March 23, 1867, entitled an act to provide for the more efficient government of the rebel States, and an act supplementary thereto, passed March 23, 1867, also copies of, and all opinions given by him, by the Attorney General of the United States, touching the construction of an interpretation of said acts, and all correspondence relating to the operation or execution of said acts, and such as may have taken place between him and any such commander, or between him and the General of an army, or between the latter and a commander touching said acts. Also copies of all orders issued by said commanders in carrying out the provisions of said act, or of them. Also, that he inform the Senate what progress he has made in the matter of reconstruction under said acts, and whether any of money appropriated for carrying them out be probably sufficient. In answer to that portion of resolution, whether the sum of money appropriated for carrying the acts into effect is probably sufficient, reference is made to the accompanying report of the Secretary of War. (It will be seen from report, that an appropriation of $5,000,000, made in act approved March 30, 1867, for the purpose of carrying into effect an act approved March 23, 1867, for the more efficient government of the rebel States, passed March 23, 1867, and the act supplementary thereto, passed March 23, 1867, has been expended by the Commissioner of the sum of $1,645,277 in required for present purposes.)

It is exceedingly difficult at present time to estimate the probable expense of carrying into effect the two acts of March 23, 1867, and the bill which passed the Houses of Congress on the 17th inst. If the existing government of the ten States of the Union are to be deposed, and their entire machinery to be placed under the exclusive control and authority of respective district commanders, expenditures incident to the administration of such governments necessarily be incurred by the Federal Government.

It is believed in addition to $2,100,000 already expended, estimate for the sum which will be required for this purpose would be less than fourteen millions, aggregate amount expended to the rebellion in the administration of their respective governments by these States, embraced in provision of these acts. The expended would no doubt be considerably augmented if the making of these States is to be operated by the Federal Government, and if the largely increased if the States, by abolishing the existing State governments, should be responsible for the liabilities incurred by them before the rebellion.

In laudable efforts to develop resources, and in no wise created for insurrectionary purposes, the of these States, thus legitimately incurred, when accurately ascertained, will, it is believed, approximate a hundred million dollars; and to be held not only by our own citizens, among whom are residents portions of the country which have ever been loyal to the Union, but persons who are subjects of foreign governments.

It is worthy of the consideration of Congress and the country whether the Federal Government action were to assume such obligations, so large an addition to the public expenditures would not seriously impair the credit of the nation; or, on the other hand, whether the refusal of Congress to guarantee payment of these States, having displaced or abolished the State governments, would not be viewed as a violation of good faith, and the repudiation by the National Legislature of the liabilities which these States had justly and legally incurred.

(Signed) ANDREW JOHNSON.
Washington, July 15, 1867.

OBITUARIES.

Tribute of Respect.
Adopted by the second Quarterly Conference for Yazoo city station, Mississippi Conference, June 1st, 1867.

WHEREAS, The great head of the church has removed from our midst, Bro. Robert S. Holt, a member of this church and Quarterly Conference, therefore,

Resolved, 1st. That while we bow in humble submission to the Divine will, and rejoice in the assurance that his end was peaceful, we feel that this Church and community have suffered a great loss.

Resolved, 2nd. That we cherish the memory of his many virtues, and are by this dispensation admonished to be always in readiness for the Master's call.

Resolved, 3rd. That we deeply sympathize with the family of our deceased brother in their bereavement.

Resolved, 4th. That these resolutions be published in the New Orleans Christian Advocate, and a copy of them be furnished to the family of the deceased.

P. B. Cook, J. M. Pugh,
Secretary. P. E.

Died at her residence, in Hale county, Ala., on the 26th May, 1867, Mrs. SUSAN M. GRAY, relict of the late James Gray, of Tuscaloosa county, Ala., in the 71st year of her age. Mrs. G. was born in the State of Virginia, Nov. 8th, 1796, and was married to Mr. James Gray, in Elbert county, Ga., Nov. 5th, 1813, from whence they removed, in 1820, to Tuscaloosa county, Ala.

Rarely are we called upon to record the death of one so entirely beloved, so universally regretted, as was this most estimable lady. In her life was realized all those virtues, those Christian graces, enjoined upon us by our great Exemplar. With that enlarged charity which embraces every object within its reach, she was ever ready with kind words of heartfelt sympathy, and noble deeds of benevolence, to comfort the distressed, and to aid the needy. In her conversation she was never known to violate the law of love to her neighbor; but the promptings of her kind heart, ever led her to make some suggestion of excuse for the erring, some palliation for the offences of the evildoer. For more than half a century, she lived a member of the Methodist Church—upright in her walk, quiet and unpretending in her manner, amiable in disposition, unostentatious in her charity—all these attested to the truth of the religion of the Lord Jesus Christ, and its deep vitality in her heart. But it was at home, as wife, mother, and hostess, that the loveliness of her character shone most brightly. Her tender care for, and unwearied devotion to the wants and wishes of her household and guests, revealed her purely unselfish nature. And it is as the genial hostess, the charitable neighbor, the kind mistress, the true, loving help-meet, the devoted Christian mother, that she is embalmed in our hearts and memories. Who can fully estimate the influence of such a character, such an example? The great day of accounts will reveal—Such was our thought, as we stood by, and looked upon the mortal remains ready for consignment to the tomb. Three score and ten years had silvered her hair, and cares and trials had left their traces on her brow; but disease had not wasted her, and her face, sweetly, smilingly calm, as if in peaceful sleep, was eloquently suggestive of the blissful end of the Christian wife and mother. It seemed as though her pure spirit, had, ere it parted with its tenement of clay, left its peacefully sweet impress on her features, a sign and a seal to the bereaved on earth, that

"Borne by angels on their wings
Far from earth the spirit flies:
Finds her God and sits and sings Triumphing in Paradise."

H.
June, 1867.

Died, at Crawfordville, Miss., on the 20th June ult., at the residence of her husband, Mrs. MILDRED ANN, wife of Doctor N. F. Scales, and daughter of William S. and Mildred Webb, of Williamson county, Tenn. She was in the forty-ninth year of her age, and had been married to Dr. Scales nearly thirty years. Sister Scales professed religion in early life, and attached herself to the Methodist Church, of which she remained a consistent and useful member until death.

Those who knew her best, accord to her the character of a good woman in the several spheres of life; as wife, mother, mistress, and above all, as a pious, active Christian.

Her generous sympathetic heart, all aglow with fervid charity, was ever found at the bedside of the sick; experienced and fertile in resources as a benevolent nurse, no labor was spared to soothe the asperities of disease, and soften the couch of the afflicted; many a heavenly benediction rested upon her here.

She was taken sick while on a visit to her aged father, in Tennessee, in September last; the disease assumed a chronic character, and was protracted through many wearisome months of painful affliction, all of which she bore with Christian fortitude and resignation.

It was my privilege to visit her at various times in my pastoral relations. I always found her in possession of a beautiful Christian serenity, with no unwavering faith in Christ, an implicit trust in his atoning blood for the remission of sins, and full and final redemption through that blood. On several occasions when we bowed at her bedside to invoke the Divine blessing, there was an extraordinary sense, and fullness of the Divine presence; by which we were assured that God was with her, and "made all her bed in sickness."

She leaves behind a husband and nine children, to whom the remembrance of her is anointment poured out, and under whose maternal training, her children have been made ornaments to society.

May they all embrace that faith which sustained and consoled her, under the trials and conflicts of life, and through which she triumphed in death, and husband, and children, with her, form an eternal reunion in the church triumphant above.

Thos. W. Crymes,
Crawfordville, Miss., July 12, 1867.

SPECIAL NOTICES.

NOTICE.

For reasons considered just and good, the meeting of the Convention of Natchez District is postponed until the 25th of September next.
J. A. GODFREY.

Summerfield District Meeting.

A District Meeting for the Summerfield District will be held at Uniontown, commencing Thursday, the 12th Sept. The official members of the church within the bounds of the district, are all members of the District Meeting Conference, and are earnestly requested and expected to attend. Arrangements will be made to carry the members over the railroads at half price.
A. H. MITCHELL, P. E.

Yazoo District—Mississippi Conference.

THIRD ROUND OF QUARTERLY MEETINGS.
Lexington at Oregon June 15, 16
Greenwood, at Greenwood 22, 23
Carrollton, at Mt Zion 29, 30
Emory, at Emory July 6, 7
Holmes, at Wheeling 13, 14
Richland, at Goodman 20, 21
Black Hawk, at Sweetwater Aug 3, 4
Mount Olivet, at Fletcher Chapel 17, 18
Yazoo, at Mt Carmel 21, 22
Yazoo City Station Aug 31 Sept 1

In addition to the above appointments I will preach, Deo volente, at the following places and times.

Lexington, June 18, 8 o'clock P. M.
Sweetwater, " 19, 11 " A. M.
Black Hawk, " 20, 8 " P. M.
Carrollton, " 27, 8 " " "
Eden, " 28, 8 " " "
Durant, July 19, 8 " "
Benton Aug 16, 8 " "

BRETHREN: Have religious services on the stated fast-days. Our District Meeting will commence at Sweetwater, Black Hawk Circuit, on the first day of August. I urge upon the Preachers the importance of having everything in readiness for the Quarterly Meetings. They should be made, as far as possible, occasions of interest and profit to the Church.
J. M. PUGH, P. E.

Tuscaloosa District—Mobile Conference.

THIRD ROUND OF QUARTERLY MEETINGS.
Marion May 23, 26
Greensboro June 1, 2
New Berne and Oak Grove " 8, 9
Brush Creek " 15, 16
Liberty " 22, 23
Scottsville and Carthage July 6, 7
Tuscaloosa " 13, 14
Havana " 20, 21
Eutaw " 27, 28
Forkland Aug 3, 4

J. L. COTTON, P. E.

The District Meeting for the Jacksonville District, Montgomery Conference, will be held at Columbia, to commence on Friday before the third Sunday in July next. Bishop Wightman will be present. All the preachers, traveling and local, elected delegates and official members, are expected to attend. Ample accommodations, and a hearty welcome are extended to all.
L. M. WILSON, P. E.
Columbia, Ala., June 19, 1867.

Lake Providence Dist.—La. Conference.

THIRD ROUND OF QUARTERLY MEETINGS.
Delhi & Floyd Ct., at Midway, July 29, 28
Carroll, at Curtis's, Aug 3, 4
Oakley, at Bonf Prairie 10, 11
Ion; Little Rock Chapel, 24, 25
Tensas and Sicily, Sicily Island Sept 7, 8
Waterproof & St. Joseph, Waterproof 14, 15

Also a District Meeting for Lake Providence District, to be held at Oakley Camp ground, to commence on the 27th Sept., at which all the traveling and local preachers, exhorters, district stewards, Sunday-school superintendents and class leaders, are respectfully requested to attend, and as many of the members of the church as possible.

W. A. McGAUGHEY, P. E.

Brookhaven Dist.—Miss Conference.

THIRD ROUND OF QUARTERLY MEETINGS.
Wesson June 8, 9
Chrysal Springs, Georgetown 22, 23
Hixiehurst, White Bay 15, 16
Brookhaven, July 6, 7
Holmesville, Summit 13, 14
Meadville, Smyrna 20, 21
Bayou Chitto, Monticello 27, 28
Bayou Pierre, Pleasant Valley Aug 3, 4
Pearl River 10, 11
Scotland, Bethesda 17, 18

G. W. MILLSAP, P. E.

Mobile District—Mobile Conference.

THIRD ROUND OF QUARTERLY MEETINGS.
Mobile, St. Paul's June 22, 23
" Franklin Street 29, 30
" St. Francis July 6, 7
Whistler & Cottage Hill, at College Hill 13, 14
Cliftonville, at George's 20, 21
Eastern shore & Fish River, at P. Clear 27, 28
Bay shore and Pascagoula at Zion Aug 3, 4
Ocean Springs at Ocean Springs 10, 11
Waynesboro, at Hukkatanna 17, 18
St. Stephens & State Line, at State Line 21, 22
Tos. W. DORMAN, P. E.

Shreveport Dist.—Louisiana Conference.

THIRD ROUND OF QUARTERLY MEETINGS.
Many, at Bayou Lee, June 1, 2
Amoco, at Kentschie, " 8, 9
Pleasant Hill, at Bethel, " 15, 16
Shreveport July 6, 7
N. Rossier, at Collinsburg, " 13, 14
Caddo, at Keatchie, " 20, 21
Belle Bower 27, 28
Springville, at Foster's S. H. Aug 3, 4
Mansfield, at Foster's Chapel 10, 11
B. F. ALEXANDER, P. E.
Address: Mansfield, La.

NEW ADVERTISEMENTS.

WANTED.

TEACHER'S SITUATION WANTED.
A lady who can produce the first testimonials of ability and success as an instructress, wishes to engage a position as teacher for the ensuing scholastic year; is well qualified to teach the English branches, French, and music. References given and required. Terms, for a limited number of scholars, $40 per month, and board. Address, A. B. C. care of Rev. Doctor Neely, Mobile.

R. RICHARDSON. A. H. MAY

RICHARDSON & MAY,
COTTON FACTORS,
And General Commission Merchants,
No 40 Perdido Street, New Orleans.
July 27

SOUTHERN UNIVERSITY, GREENSBORO, ALA.

FACULTY.
Bishop W. M. Wightman, D. D., LL. D.
Rev. E. Weddoway, A. M., D. D.
O. F. Casey, A. M.
Rev. J. C. Wills, A. M.
N. T. Lupton, A. M.

The next session of this institution will begin on the first Wednesday in October next. Instruction will be given in the Schools of Ancient and Modern Languages, Moral Philosophy, Mathematics, Chemistry, Natural Philosophy, and Biblical Literature.

The Preparatory School will be under the direct supervision of the Faculty.

The Session is divided into two terms.
Tuition in University per term, $40 00
Incidental fee, " 5 00
Tuition in Preparatory school per term $30 to $35
Contingent fee, " $2 50
Board, exclusive of washing and lights, $20 to $25 per month. All dues payable in advance.
July 27th O. F. CASEY, Sec. Faculty.

RANDOLPH MACON COLLEGE, VA.

The next session of this institution commences on the 19th September, 1867. As evidence of her success as an educator of young men, she points to her graduates all over the South. No location surpasses this in point of health. The town of Boynton and surrounding country has but one physician, and he is but half employed. In addition to the schools of Moral Philosophy, Ancient Languages, Mathematics, Natural Philosophy and Modern Languages, we have also a school of Commercial Science, in which are taught the branches of a business education. Young men attend any schools they wish, and get a showing for whatever they accomplish. It is our intention hereafter, to fill up our vacancies with a special session, so that young men can review any studies they wish but more particularly to teach English grammar, Commercial Arithmetic, Book-keeping, Penmanship, and Commercial Law. Thus, our students can take the Literary and Scientific course during the session, and get a practical instruction in business during the vacations. The Special Session in vacation covers the heated term in the South when business is over, and young men already engaged in business can come here to perfect their knowledge of Commercial Science, and return to the South in time to resume business.

Expenses for ten months, including meals, use of furniture, (averaged,) fuel, lights, washing, matriculation and contingent fee, tuition in three schools, so as to occupy the student's whole time—$300, one-half payable at the commencement of each term.

A daily line of boats, Sundays excepted, runs from Roanoke station (Richmond & Danville Railroad) to Boynton. Send for circulars.

Randolph, Maccon College, Boynton, Mecklenburg Co., Va., July 20, '67.
Thos. C. JOHNSON, President.

PAUL J. CHRISTIAN.

GENERAL

MERCANTILE AND STEAMBOAT

STATIONER.

BLANK BOOK MANUFACTURER

ad.

JOB PRINTER,

NO. 38 CAMP ST.

All orders in my line promptly filled. —
July 13-14m

EMORY & HENRY COLLEGE,

WASHINGTON CO., VA.
Our Fall session begins on the 15th of August next. Charges for session of five months, payable in currency and in advance, are as follows:

Tuition in collegiate course, $30 00
Fuel, room, food and contingent fee, 10 00
Tuition in Preparatory Department is $5 less.
Board can be had in private families at the College, for $13 per month, if paid or satisfactorily arranged, monthly in advance. Those seeking college advantages are invited to investigate ours. For additional information.
Address, E. E. WILLY, Pres't.
Emory P. O., Va.

CENTRAL AMERICA.

BELIZE, BRITISH HONDURAS.

Will sail positively on SATURDAY, July 27, at 5 P. M.

The splendid steamship

General Sherman.

JEFF. PENDLETON, Commander.

Carrying the United States and British Honduras mails, will sail as above, from Post 15, First District, for Belize direct. All mail matter must pass through the Post Office. No berth secured until paid for.

For freight or passage apply to

LOVELL & BAILLY,
23 Carondelet street.

Parties desiring to visit Santa Thomas, Triabiel and Omoa can secure passage on the Steamer Enterprise or schooners from Belize, July 13-31.

THE BRANCH OF THE SOUTHern Methodist Publishing House, at 112 Camp street, is ready to fill orders for the latest revised edition of the Discipline, with the paragraph relating to Lay Representation.

24 mo. mass. 60c.
Sent by mail 70c.
Prices for other qualities of binding, unchanged.

Also a duodecimo Edition of the Discipline with large margins for the convenience of those who wish to make notes.

Roan $1 50
" Gilt 2 00
Turkey Morocco 3 00

Sent by mail for 20 cents additional.

Also just received,

THE SUNDAY SERVICE,

ordered by the late General Conference.

" Sheep $1 25
" Roan 2 00
" Roan Gilt 2 00
Turkey Morocco 3 00
S. S. Bible (single) $4 25 per doz.
" (Double) 6 50

Sent by mail for 20 cents additional.

July 13 R. J. HARP, Agt.

WOODVILLE FEMALE SEMINARY.

WOODVILLE,
WILKINSON COUNTY, MISSISSIPPI.

Will begin its THIRD ANNUAL SESSION on Wednesday, September 25th, 1867, and close it on the First Wednesday in July, 1868.

CHARGES PER HALF SESSION.

BOARD $150
TUITION IN PRIMARY GRADE 30
" MIDDLE GRADE 40
" COLLEGIATE GRADE 50
MUSIC with use of Piano 45
" ORNAMENTALS AT FAIR PRICES. 60
For particulars send for Circular to W. T. J. SULLIVAN, Principal. July 20

FEMALE COLLEGIATE INSTITUTE.

TULSA, JACKSON, TENNESSEE.

Rev. A. W. Jones, President.

The Institution for young ladies, of the South, Send your daughters, and full satisfaction shall be given in all respects.

For particulars, address the President. July 20-6w

JOHN W. MADDEN,

LATE FIRM OF

PAUL J. CHRISTIAN & CO.,

GENERAL MERCANTILE STATIONERS,
Printer, Ruler and Blank Book Manufacturer, and Lithographer.

No 73 Camp street, New Orleans.

Blank Books made to any pattern desired and at reasonable rates. July 13-3m

ST. LOUIS MUTUAL LIFE INSURANCE COMPANY.

D. A. JANUARY, President,
GEO. H. LUCAS, Vice President,
J. R. PUGH, Agent.

Office No 44 Camp Street, New Orleans, La.

ALEX. BRITTON. RICH'D P. BRITTON.

A. BRITTON & CO.,

General Steamboat Agents,
COMMISSION & FORWARDING MERCHANTS,
No 7 Front street, New Orleans

July 5-6m

RICHARDSON & COLEMAN.

ATTORNEY AT LAW.

No. 5 Commercial Place, New Orleans.

W. W. CHAPMAN.

Commission, Receiving and Forwarding MERCHANT.

MONROE, LA.
REFERENCES: Messrs. Nalle, Day, & Co.,
Spike & Sandilge, Cowen & Mayo, Mr. R. L. Walker, New Orleans, La. July 20

FOR RENT.

Lake shore Residence—at Ocean Springs: directly fronting the beach: five rooms: wide galleries front and rear, forty-seven feet long: some heavy furniture in the house. Apply to the office of New Orleans Christian Advocate.

TO RENT! TO RENT!

Two story liberal tenement, the new and beautiful two-story, containing eight rooms, all elegantly finished.—Inquire of Henry Myer, corner of Josephine and Franklin streets. July 25

W. H. MAYO, C. W. HODGE,
New Orleans. Union Parish.

COTTON FACTORS

And General Commission Merchants,
No. 59 CARONDELET ST., NEW ORLEANS, La., July 13

MARTHA WASHINGTON COLLEGE.

Abingdon, Va.

Under the patronage of the Holston Conference, Methodist Episcopal Church, South.

First term of twenty weeks, for the opening year, begins the first Wednesday in August, and closes the 21st of December.

Second term begins 16th February, 1868, and closes second Wednesday in July.

Board for Session of ten months $150
Tuition in Collegiate department, 10 mos., 60
" Preparatory " " 40
Fuel, for Boarders, " 10
Music on Piano, " 8
French, German, Spanish or Italian, each, 20
No extra charge for Greek or Latin.
Young ladies pay for their own washing and lights.

No charge for use of room or use of piano.

Oil Painting, " $30
Drawing, Water Colors, Crayon, &c., each, 20
No tuition charged to Ministers' daughters.

Bills payable semi-annually, in advance.

For further information, apply to July 6-3m B. ARBOGAST, Pres't.

SOULE UNIVERSITY.

CHAPPELL HILL, TEXAS.

The Board of Trustees take pleasure in announcing to the people of Texas and of Louisiana, the re-organization of Soule University, under the direction of the following faculty:

O. H. McCOMBER, A. M. Pres't, and Prof. of Greek and Latin Languages.
GEN. J. C. MOORE, A. M. Prof. of Mathematics.
GEN. B. F. KAVANACH, M. D. Prof. of Biblical Literature and Moral Science.
TH. KAVANACH, M. D. Prof. of Natural Science.
B. F. BROWN, A. B. Principal Preparatory Department.
B. V. LUM, Librarian.

The first Session of Collegiate year begins on the First Monday in September; ends December 20th, 1867. The second Session opens Jan. 4, 1868; closes last Wednesday in June.

TERMS

—SHORT TERM OF FOUR MONTHS.—
Collegiate, $24 00. Preparatory, $20 00
Elementary, 10 00. Primary, 13 00

—LONG TERM OF SIX MONTHS.—
Collegiate, $36 00. Elementary, $24 00
Preparatory, 30 00. Primary, 20 00
Modern Languages, (extra) $2 00 per month.

No incidentals. Board can be obtained in private families at $15 00 per month. Tuition due upon entrance in specie—a proportionate part of which will be returned in cases of protracted sickness, and in no other cases.

O. H. McComber, Pres't., Chappell Hill, Texas. July 13-3m

WHITWORTH FEMALE COLLEGE,

BROOKHAVEN, MISS.

128 miles from New Orleans, on N. O. & G. N. Rail Road.

The next session will open on Wednesday, the 11th of September, 1867.

There is a full corps of teachers; the instruction will be thorough; the discipline firm and strict.

The building is large and well arranged; the playground ample; the location healthy.

The Institution is under control of the M. E. Church, South.

The entire expenses in the Collegiate Department for board, tuition, books and incidentals (not including music and the ornamental branches) need not exceed $125 00 for term of twenty weeks.

Each boarder must furnish her towels, one pair of blankets and sheets.

For further information, address REV. H. F. JOHNSON, July 13-6m Pres't Whitworth Female College.

BELLS! BELLS!! BELLS!!!

BUCKEYE BELL FOUNDRY

Established in 1837.

VANDUZEE & TIFT.

Of the late Firm and Successors to G. W. COFFIN & CO.

102 & 104 East Second Street, Cincinnati, Ohio.

Manufacturers of BELLS for Churches, Academies, Plantations, &c.

Made of Genuine Bell Metal, and mounted with our Improved Rotary Yoke.

All Bells warranted to prove satisfactory, or subject to be returned.

Illustrated Catalogue and Price List sent free upon application.

THE GOOD SAMARITAN COOKING

STOVE.

The great and serious objection to Stove Ovens has been entirely overcome in the

GOOD SAMARITAN,

by the adoption of a New Principle of heating and Ventilating the Oven, by means of the Hot Draft formed by the Ventilation of the Oven, the temperature of the fire is so much increased that a large supply of fuel is never necessary, as the Oven can be thoroughly heated, and all the different operations of Cooking performed with a saving of fuel of

At Least Thirty

CHRISTIAN ADVOCATE

ORGAN OF THE M. E. CHURCH SOUTH FOR THE MOBILE, MONTGOMERY, MISSISSIPPI AND LOUISIANA CONFERENCES.

NEW ORLEANS, SATURDAY, AUGUST 3, 1867.

Subscription price, $1.00 A YEAR IN ADVANCE. OFFICE—112 CAMP STREET.

NEW ORLEANS CHRISTIAN ADVOCATE.

Organ of the Montgomery, Mobile, Louisiana, and Mississippi Conferences of the M. E. Church South.

112 Camp Street.

TERMS OF SUBSCRIPTION:

THREE DOLLARS A YEAR,

variably in Advance.

REV. J. C. KEENER,

112 Camp Street, New Orleans.

AGENTS:

For the Patronizing Conferences.

THE SWEETEST WORD.

BY HERBERT NEWBURY.

One sweet word of holy meaning

Cometh to me o'er and o'er,

And the echoes of its music

Linger ever—evermore.

There's no other word we utter

So sweet and precious here,

Bringing all life's jarring discords

Into heavenly harmony.

Words of thickest blackness gathered

O'er the soul's dark sea of sin,

And the port of heaven was guarded

From my guilty entering in.

Then came Jesus, walking to me

O'er the surging waves of sin,

Calling, clear above the tempest,

"He that trusteth, heaven shall win!"

Now, through all the sacred pages,

Where my woe and doom had been,

Gleam those golden words of promise,

"He that trusteth, heaven shall win!"

Blessed, sure, and blood-bought promise,

Let me drink its sweetness in;

He that trusts his soul to Jesus,

"He that trusteth, heaven shall win!"

Tears—O Saviour! give its fulness

To me at thy feet in prayer;

Grant my lips to breathe it,

Leave its lingering sweetness there—

Sweetness there, to stay the breaking

Of the heart which love me so;

Whispering from my silent coffin,

"Trust the hand which lays me low!"

Loved ones, as ye rear the marble

Pure above my waiting dust,

Have no other word upon it

But the holiest, sweetest—TRUST;

By this pass-word know the angels

Guarding o'er the peary door—

Pass-word to his blessed presence,

Whom I trust for evermore.

CENTENARY COLLEGE.

REPORT OF EXAMINING COMMITTEE.

JACKSON, LA., July 8, 1867.

TRUSTEES CENTENARY COLLEGE: Gen-

llemen—The Examining Committee respectfully beg leave to submit the following report of their decisions on the qualifications and merits of those students who were present at the examination. * * * * *

With one exception, the status of the absent from examination was considered by the Committee, being left with the Faculty to require such an examination as may be proper, should they present themselves for higher honors.

Owing to the excited times and unsettled state of affairs, through which our country has just passed, the Committee did not expect to find high a character of scholarship as would have been displayed under other circumstances; many of the young men connected with this institution are fresh from the carnival of war; battle-scarred veterans at age when they should have been laying the foundation of a complete and thorough education; already in experience acquired in a men, in the acquisition of their education, consistent with their sense of justice and right; but should they have the pleasure of meeting them hereafter in the same exercises, will be more rigid and exacting.

The examination reflects great credit upon the College, the Faculty and Students: upon the College in the grade of scholarship; upon the Faculty, in the able discharge of their duties; and upon the students in the creditable manner in which they acquitted themselves.

From the opportunities now afforded by this institution for theoretical and practical instruction, we earnestly and sincerely trust that the next annual examination may find her halls filled with the young men of our country, applying themselves to become honorable and useful members of society.

All of which is respectfully submitted.

JAMES STRATTON, Committee
H. C. QUIN, on
H. L. POND, Examiners.

On motion,

Resolved, That the Ministers of the patronizing Conferences be, and are hereby respectfully requested to read the foregoing report to their congregations on or before the first sabbath in September next.

The following

PLAN FOR THE ENDOWMENT OF CENTENARY COLLEGE

was reported. To wit:

Your Committee, to whom has been reported the question of recommending a plan for an endowment fund, beg leave to ask the Board to adopt the following resolutions as their report:

First. Be it resolved by the Board of Trustees of Centenary College, that experience has demonstrated the wisdom of securing to its Professors and Teachers their salaries independent of the means arising from tuition.

Second, That it has likewise been demonstrated, that the most practical mode of securing the same, is, by the creation of an endowment fund sufficiently large to produce said fund from the interest.

Third, That it is the sense of this Board that an endowment fund of ONE HUNDRED AND FIFTY THOUSAND DOLLARS ($150,000) will be sufficiently large to provide the necessary means to secure to the Faculty their salaries, independent of tuition fees.

Fourth, That the most judicious mode of raising said endowment fund, will be by the sale of scholarships; and that a scholarship for TEN YEARS be fixed at one hundred dollars, ($100,) and that a perpetual scholarship be fixed at two hundred dollars, ($200).

Fifth, That in order to increase the present endowment fund to ONE HUNDRED AND FIFTY THOUSAND DOLLARS, ($150,000,) two or more efficient agents be appointed by the President of the Board of Trustees, or by the President of the College, whose duty it shall be to obtain a sufficient number of scholarships by subscription, to increase the present endowment fund to said sum of one hundred and fifty thousand dollars, ($150,000).

That until the meeting of the Mississippi and Louisiana Conference, the President of the College and the Preachers of those Conferences shall be agents, authorized to obtain the subscriptions, and that, as compensation for their services, any agent obtaining twenty scholarships, shall be entitled to one.

Sixth, That every person subscribing for one or more scholarships shall sign an obligation or obligations for the same, payable and demandable on condition that ONE HUNDRED THOUSAND (100,000) DOLLARS be subscribed.

Seventh, That each and every scholarship shall forever bear the name of the original subscriber, and if the same person shall purchase more than one scholarship, the same shall be numbered from one to such number as he may purchase.

Eighth, That as soon as the purchaser of any scholarship shall pay into the hands of the Treasurer of the College the amount of his purchase, and shall obtain the receipt of the Treasurer for the same, a certificate for each scholarship shall be issued to him, in his name, expressing the terms of said scholarship, and the same shall be signed by the President of the Board of Trustees, and countersigned by the Secretary of said Board, and by the Treasurer, and that said certificate shall bear the seal of the College, and shall be transferable by indorsement; and any party holding one of said certificates of scholarship so indorsed, shall be entitled to the benefits of the same, and that no person entitled to the benefits of a scholarship shall be required to pay any tuition fee.

The foregoing document was adopted as follows, to-wit:

Be it Resolved by the Board of Trustees, that in order to place the means of a collegiate education within the reach of all, and especially to secure to the sons of those whose fortunes have been broken and lost by the late war, the foregoing series of Resolutions presented by the Committee on Endowment be, and they are hereby unanimously adopted by this Board.

On motion, it was Resolved that the series of Resolutions just adopted, and the forms for obligation, to be signed by subscribers to scholarships, be printed under the supervision of Rev. R. J. Harp.

J. A. GODFREY,

Sec'y of Board.

SOUTHERN UNIVERSITY.

COMMENCEMENT.

TUSCALOOSA, Ala., July 15, '67

Mr. Editor: The annual examinations commenced on the 14th, and continued until the 28th of June. They were conducted in writing, both as to the requisition of Professor and the response of the students. These exercises having proceeded and closed under the critical scrutiny of the professors, and having received their decision, the annual sermon was preached in the Methodist Church, on Sabbath 29th of June, by Rev. Dr. J. Hamilton, of Mobile.

Text. "In all thy ways acknowledge Him, and he shall direct thy paths." Prov. 3. vi.

Of course, the sermon was directed especially to the young men. But under it there was more of emotion in the hearts of the older. Reasonably so. For while the great truth exhibited, could but be interesting to the thoughtful youth, yet, most affecting would it fall upon the hearts of those, who, standing in the shade of life's last horizon, should turn to contemplate the dark seasons and rugged ways, through which, passing in hesitating doubt, and trembling fear, they now feel the hand of God had led them.

The Annual Meeting of the Board of Trustees was held on Monday July first.

On Tuesday, the Annual Address before the Literary Societies of the University, was delivered by Rev. Dr. T. O. Summers, of Nashville, Tenn., in the Chapel of the University. The Dr. had been called at a late hour to this service, and while his discourse was without elaborate preparation, and the classic finish sometimes seen on such occasions, it was sustained with important sentiment and painted to practical effect.

At night, of that day, the exhibition of the Clariophonic Society was held, when original speeches were delivered on the following subjects, by the persons annexed.

Crime, not the scaffold makes the shame.—A. H. Benner, Greensboro, Ala.

What next?—William Walker, New Orleans.

Self conquest.—W. S. Wightman, Greensboro, Ala.

Development of Speculative, Philosophy.—N. B. Chapman, Monroe, La.

On Wednesday 3rd, came Commencement Day. Young men who were to receive degrees, delivered speeches on the following subjects. Mere intellect moves nothing.—Thos. O. Summers.

I, the heir of all the Ages.—Homer B. Magruder.

I will achieve it or die.—Thos. W. Dyer.

The Mission of the English Language.—D. M. Callaway.

Superiority of Truth to Beauty.—Thos. L. Leary.

Opinionum commenta delet dies.—Junius Jordan, Jr.

Commencement.—John W. Sampey.

Degrees were then conferred as follows:

A. B. Thomas O. Summers, Nashville, Tenn; John W. Sampey, Belleville, Ala.

A. M. Heman B. Magruder, Baton Rouge, La; Thomas W. Dyer, New Orleans, La; Danby C. Callaway, Greensboro, Ala; Thomas L. Leary, Greensboro, Ala; Junius Jordan, Jr., Eufaula, Ala.

The following young gentlemen graduated in chemistry.

L. D. Webb, and T. Y. Ramsey, Greensboro, Ala; John D. Portis, Suggsville, Ala.

The degree of D. D. was conferred upon Rev. O. P. Fitzgerald, of California Conference, and Rev. N. H. Lee, of Louisville Conference.

I could not hear the Baccalaureate of the Chancellor, but see it highly spoken of in the Selma and Greensboro papers.

The friends of the University were gratified at the manifestation given by the young men, who participated in the commencement exercises of their scholastic training, and they leave their friends about their Alma Mater, indulging the hope of their honorably prosecuting a useful career.

Some of these young men, we are glad to hear, are looking to the ministry as their vocation.

I am glad to have been informed, that during the past session, the Professors, instead of being called upon to stimulate the pupils to duty, have had, rather, to restrain them, from a proper regard to their health and strength.

In my visits to, and sojourning in Greensboro, I am pleased to be permitted to say, that I have observed in these young men, what I consider preferable to all intellectual attainment, and can but cause to follow them, the kind regards of those with whom they were associated, and if continued will receive for them the good esteem of those with whom they may associate in future.

I allude to their uniformly correct conduct, and their respectful demeanor in the exercise of the proprieties and amenities of life. These are the outgrowth of good principles, and kind hearts, nurtured by refined associations. And by no parent should the influence to be exerted by his companions, be overlooked in considering the circumstances under which he would have the character of his son formed.

The number of students in the Academic Schools of the University, during the past year was 56. In the Preparatory Department, 31.—Total, 87.

The Preparatory school will be under the direct supervision of the Faculty, and taught chiefly by them.

J. L. COTTELL.

For the N. O. Christian Advocate.

SHARON FEMALE COLLEGE.

Mr. Editor: I was appointed by the Mississippi Conference, one of the visitors to Sharon Female College, and was the only one in attendance on the commencement, which took place last week:

The Institution is recovering from the late disasters of the country, and but for the calamity of the crop-failure of the past year, would now be in a good condition. Outside of Sharon, I have had opportunity of knowing that the college maintains fully its old and high reputation.—Much of the literature and finish of the surrounding country is owing to the labor of this college.

The commencement exercises were all decidedly respectable.—There were four graduates to the degree of Mistress of English Literature, viz: Misses Mollie Holloman, Hellen Cross, Mattie McCool, and Elizabeth Barnes. And the degree of Mistress of Arts was conferred on Miss Martha A. Smith, of Madisonville, in this county, and Miss Eliza Mann, of Carthage, Leake Co., in this State. Both those ladies are former graduates of this college.

The college is now in vacation, but will resume about the first October, as I am informed. President Akin leaves the institution on account of long protracted illness of his amiable lady. His successor, I am told by the Trustees will soon be announced. I think the friends of this Institution may continue to maintain their high regards for it.

R. ABBEY, Visitor

from Mississippi Conference.

Sharon, July 23, 1867.

For the N. O. Christian Advocate.

WOODVILLE FEMALE SEMINARY.

Report of Committee appointed to visit Woodville Female Seminary.

To the Bishop and Mississippi Conference.

BRETHREN: The annual term ended July 5th, and the last five days were occupied in publicly exhibiting indices of the work done in the school.

The examination of classes was continued through five consecutive days, and was so conducted as fairly to manifest the attainment and training of the pupils. The pupils of the primary classes showed they had well studied the branches prescribed for them, and that they began to learn by beginning to learn to think. The pupils of the more advanced classes knew much of the subjects studied, but what is more important, they gave clear proof that they knew how to study. Those examined in Latin, showed the knowledge and training necessary to free and faithful translating, and also that they had been taught to analyze the language. Mathematics showed in the examined the intelligence of thought, and not the facility of note.

On the fifth day, prizes were presented to two pupils, for improvement in chirography. The presentation was performed by Mr. Van Eaton, in an address, brief, full and appropriate. Several young ladies read their respective compositions, and the degree of M. A., was conferred on the graduating pupil, Miss Lucy Barber.

By request, Prof. Magruder, of Baton Rouge, addressed the audience, made several wise and useful suggestions, which, if embodied in visible facts, will be creditable to the community, and available utilities to the school.

A concert of vocal music and performances upon the piano, told favorably of the labor and skill of the teachers, and the diligence of the taught.

The economic arrangements are as complete as the available means will allow. The resident pupils are well boarded and lodged, and the endeavor is to make the institution as home-like as is computable with the nature and ends of a true school. The Principal and teachers understand and feel the responsibility of their respective positions, and in Christian honesty try to meet it.

Those who sympathize with well-doing and well-doers will find in this school much to commend. The range of instruction is wide, and the educating thorough. The effort is, not to cram, but to develope; not to varnish, but to purify, not to achieve a praise—receiving nothing, but a praise deserving something, not to guild with the semblance of wealth, but to enrich with the treasure that is neither corrupted nor stolen.

This school commenced life in the midst of the war. In its material appointments it has the lacks of infancy, but longer and fuller life will supply those. A large sum has been donated to the institution by Judge E. McGehee, which it is thought will be soon available. The Christian liberality of this gentleman ought to inspire others with a like holy generosity; but if others fail to catch his spirit and to imitate his example, it is cheering to know that now and then is found a man who honors God, and elevates manhood by beneficence, and sanctifies wealth by holding it as the faithful steward of the All Possessor.

Whoever wishes his children well governed and well taught; whoever desires for them moral instruction without cant, and intellectual culture without sham, can have in this school the thing sought.

Whenever men practically believe that "life is more than meat," the world's emancipation will be accomplished. The school and the church will be accepted as divinely authorized institutions, in which will be taught the Alpha and Omega of human duties, and fulfilled the first and last of human obligations.

P. LANE, } Com.
J. CARR, }

THE TUSCALOOSA FEMALE COLLEGE, under the direction of Prof. W. C. L. RICHARDSON and LADY, has just closed a most harmonious and successful session.

During the past term, seven (7) instructors have been engaged in the college, with a patronage of 94 pupils. The next term will open September 30.

The Examination of classes occurred on Friday, 21st June.

The commencement sermon was delivered in the M. E. Church, by Rev. Wm. H. Armstrong, on Sunday, 23d.

The Concert Monday night.

On Tuesday the annual Literary Address by Prof. B. F. Meek. Compositions by the sub-senior class, and the award of prizes for scholarships and good conduct to quite a number of the pupils of the upper classes.

On Wednesday, the Diplomas were awarded to the members of the graduating class.

Salutatory, in Latin, Miss Lila McQueen. French Composition, Miss Jennie Hemphill. Valedictories—Miss Anne Garland.

The Art Department containing a large number of beautiful sketches in crayon and oil, the work of the pupils, was kept open during the entire week, and was visited by throngs of admiring spectators.

The Trustees of the Tuscaloosa Female College, have, at their recent session, made Latin and Vocal Music a part of the regular course, and in view of the fine crops have reduced the price of Board, so as to offer additional facilities to those desiring to patronize the school.

Jas. L. COTTELL.

WILMINGTON, N. C.—A correspondent of the Raleigh Episcopal Methodist says:—The revival at Front street church, still continues. So far, about seventy persons have made a profession of faith and fifty-one have connected themselves with the church, and last evening there were 14 penitents at the altar. Many of our young men (among whom are some who were formerly considered the worst in the city,) have made a profession of faith and manifested great interest in the cause of God and the salvation of souls. Bro. Wood, formerly a missionary from our Conference to China, preached for us on yesterday morning. His sermon was good and the gospel held forth by him in all its simplicity.

There are five hundred woolen factories in Indiana.

For the N. O. Christian Advocate.

State of the World before Adam.
Pascucci's Home Book.

MR. EDITOR: I read with great surprise the other day from the pen of our great historian an article on the above subject—surprise, that with all his learning and research, aided by the light of modern science, and in an age of independent thought, he still adhered to the antiquated notion of the molten origin of the earth. That it was ushered into being in a state of intense heat and fusion, and for ages rolled round its orbit like a mass of burning lava, until it ultimately cooled down to a solidity and temperature adapted to vegetable and animal life.

How long before the days of Buffon this notion prevailed I have no means of knowing, but he imagined that the earth was a fragment of the sun chipped off by a passing comet and driven into space beyond the sun's attraction and left to cool at its leisure to a habitable temperature; while to an independent thinker, the reverse of this long cherished system is self-evident.

The stratified structure of the rocks, the uniform succession and variety of strata, from the granite nucleus to the surface limestone, the remains and tracks of extinct animals, the mark of wave-ripples on the rocks throughout the whole series, each member revealing the history of ages and generations, all conspire to prove the sedimentary formation of our planet. And except where their constitution and texture have been changed by local causes, there is not the slightest evidence of original fusion to be found by the widest and deepest investigations instituted by man. It is passing strange that a theory so contrary to, and contradictory of, so many well known and universally acknowledged facts of geology, should still linger in the brain of reflecting men. Even Hugh Miller, than whom no more profound thinker ever investigated the mysteries of geology, could not entirely divest himself of the venerable heresy. Nor did even Humboldt, the great text-book of modern geology, venture to disturb a prejudice endorsed by the most illustrious signatures of earth.

Copernicus was persecuted, impoverished, and imprisoned for advancing astronomical truths, believed now to be self-evident, merely because they seemed to contradict the record of Moses; yet this molten heresy which contradicts the first—at any rate the second—sentence of God's revelation, has not only escaped rebuke, but has been cherished and endorsed by great names.

"And the earth was without form, and void; and darkness was upon the face of the deep; and the Spirit of God moved upon the face of the waters."

It is strange, indeed, that these wonderful words did not at once point the geologist to the true philosophy of creation, and that they have not been used as a key to unlock the first great secret of nature.

The astronomer has doubtless often turned his telescope on a faint nebulous cloud in the far-off heavens, surrounding a luminous centre, without thinking that such was once the appearance of our world when seen from some of the older planets, thousands, perhaps millions, of years ago. These nebulous clouds are no doubt masses of unorganized matter upon which the Spirit of God is still moving by a system of appropriate laws, as it did upon the great deep of our earth, when it was without form, and void. And may we not hazard the conjecture that that mysterious milky way which now belts the heavens, under the influence of the same transforming energy, will one day be organized into constellations of glorious worlds.

That the centre of our globe is in a state of fusion, glowing with an inconceivable intensity of heat I am willing to admit, but that it was ushered into being in a state of fusion, and that it acquired its present solidity and wonderful organization by the simple process of cooling, is a conclusion not only unauthorized by the imperishable records of nature, but contradictory of reason, revelation, and experience. It is far less difficult to conceive of the cause of heat, and even perpetual fusion in the interior of our globe, than to believe in the burning and cooling theory of Prescott.

I once saw a blacksmith lay a piece of cold iron on his anvil, and beat it with his hammer until it became too hot to be borne in the hand, and he was well satisfied by the result of many experiments, that a continuation of the process would raise the temperature to a red heat.

Now if the stroke of a smith's hammer, which did not continue its pressure a thousandth part of the time which intervened between the blows, was equal to the pressure of an hundred tons, how inconceivable must be the heat produced by the continued pressure of four thousand miles of solid ponderous matter on the earth's centre. Were we entirely ignorant of the existence of heat in the interior of the earth, a philosophical deduction from what we do know of the heat generating power of mechanical pressure would necessarily lead the mind to that conclusion.

So far then from our world commencing its being in fire and fusion, we have the most conclusive evidence that it began the aggregation of its present mass in cold and darkness.

"And darkness was on the face of the deep." This could not have been true if the earth had been glowing with a fervor sufficient to fuse the solid matter of which it is composed. Every one who has witnessed the lava flowing from an active volcano, speaks of it as not only visible but luminous. The truth is, "the earth was without form, and void"; it had neither centre, circumference, form, nor organization, when God said—

"Let there be light: and there was light." This command would not have been given if light already existed. Indeed, philosophers have generally agreed that all void space is dark, and that light can only be developed in an appropriate material medium. And therefore, in the progress of organization, light could not have existed until the atmosphere was illuminated from the general mass.

It is difficult for us to determine the physical laws by the operation of which our earth was aggregated from the gaseous ocean from which it was condensed. Whether by molecular attraction, chemical affinity, or the universal law of gravitation, or all combined; we only know that each of these agencies has left an imperishable record of its presence and power in the construction of our world.

The different solid strata of our planet have evidently been precipitated at different and distant periods of the world's history. Each stratum seems to bound the existence of an animated world, whose epitaph is written upon the rocks coeval with their being. These fossil records of the past intimate most clearly that some element of which their tomb is composed was essential to their being, and when that was eliminated from the medium in which they lived they gave place to a new and distinct race adapted to the change, who, like their predecessors, yielded to similar changes and left their obituary written on cotemporary rocks. And may we not hazard the conjecture that similar elemental changes are still in progress, and that the time will come when the present inhabitants of the earth and sea will disappear and give place to a new and nobler race of creatures.

We have been speaking of the earth as no longer "without form, and void." It had assumed its globular form, and was surrounded by an unbroken ocean of water, for no fossil record is found of the existence of animal, or vegetable, except such as belong to the water. Then,

"The Spirit of God moved upon the face of the waters." "And God said, let the waters under the heaven be gathered together unto one place, and let the dry land appear."

May we not suppose that for a long period, this beautiful liquid globe rolled in placid majesty through space unconscious of the convulsive throes that awaited it, or of the magazines that were accumulating in its bowels to break up its solid foundations and mar its beauty.

Meantime the elastic vapors disengaged by central combustion were exerting their might upon their prison walls, until at length their weak points began to yield; and the earth began to heave and groan as if in the agonies of dissolution. The placid water on the surface began to ebb and flow, responsive to the convulsive heaving beneath, until finally retreating from the surface of upheaved islands and continents, it was "gathered together unto one place, and the dry land appeared."

There now appears to have elapsed a long period in the which the earth was unadapted to the existence of the higher order of animal and vegetable life, which may be termed the reptile age; during which period the earth teemed with enormous lizards and crocodiles, and creeping things, which delighted in bogs and fens and mud and slime, and the ocean with monsters of the deep.

Then went forth the Divine command,

"Let the earth bring forth grass, the herb yielding seed, and the fruit-tree yielding fruit after his kind, whose seed is in itself, upon the earth."

Then followed the creation of fowls and quadrupeds, as the earth was adapted to their mode of living; and last of all, the climax of creative genius, man, came forth in the image of God. R. B. R.

For the N. O. Christian Advocate.

LANGUAGE—Its Origin.

BY PROF. J. B. A. AHRENS.

Language is the gift of God.—When He endowed man's physical frame with the organs necessary for articulate utterance, He at the same time bestowed upon his intellect—as an integral part of the same—that impulse and power requisite for the construction of language. Not inappropriately, therefore, may language be deemed identical with the human intellect. "But both, language and intellect, have—says Wm. von Humboldt—their mutual origin there, where all the individual intellects have their common centre, and from which all the intellectual manifestations radiate." Beyond all question language is—how much soever the host of anti-supernaturalists may battle against it—a Divine activity in man, and is inseparably interknit with his intellect. Language is, therefore, not what some have thought to show, an organic product of nature, nor a human invention, nor the child of intellect—as Herder meant—nor the final result of a constant imitation of the voices of the brute creation.

An imitation of the voices of brutes! Luckless Plato! Of what, then, please inform us, is human thought an imitation? The voices of the "dumb creation" are not nearer related to human language than the instincts of an animal are related to man's independent mental activity. The voices with which the various species of brutes are endowed are uniform and invariable; but human language is variable and admits of an indefinite variety. But as almost immediately after birth all the powers of the brute are already fully developed, and as man, so far as the non-animal ends of his existence are concerned, can only through constant exercise, and oft-times assiduous toil, perfect himself for the same: so must language be also acquired. Nevertheless, this innate faculty of acquiring language is only man's prerogative. The assertion that language is not innate, or inborn, and hence not of Divine but human origin, rests, therefore, exclusively on the uncombated fact, that children, after their birth, can give utterance to purely animal sounds, like the bleating lamb, and chirping bird in the nest; that these would then soon adopt the peculiar sounds, common to their several species, but that a child had neither from nature inherited a certain language, nor, as concerned its descent, possessed any peculiar proclivity for the acquisition of a fixed language. To all this we answer that, at any rate, the child was organized for the acquisition of language. From whence, then, came this organization?

The absurd theory that all language was the offspring of necessity—an invention—is admirably refuted by Wm. von Humboldt—brother to the great Cosmopolitan—when he says that, in order to have effected such an invention, language must have already previously existed; for the necessary agreement on certain points could not have been otherwise possible. To this we add that, if language was the product of necessity, if the constant intercourse between men had called all language into existence, then would, as a matter of course, the sphere of all language be circumscribed by the external necessities of mankind. But is not this sphere of development illimitable? And does not this show that language is unconcerned about external necessities, but flows from the deepest depths of human individuality? Only with the development of this individuality is language developed.

But, after all, the origin of language—by the child as well as in the beginning of all things—yea, the origin of all organic life on earth—lies beyond the scope of human observation. And as the origin of human language, in general, lies beyond the scope of history, so also does the origin of the "confusion of tongues." All we learn from the Biblical narrative of this "confusion" is, that it is of Divine appointment. The origin of language as well as its subsequent "confusion" is, therefore, involved in the same darkness as also is the origin of our race, and its subsequent division into four or five distinct species.

MISSIONARY COLLECTIONS.

REV. AND DEAR BRETHREN:—The Conference season is rapidly approaching. Have you taken your collections for Foreign and Domestic Missions? If not, please delay no longer. The calls are numerous and the demands pressing. Among our own population and within our own boundaries there is great destitution. Thousands are without the means of grace, and cannot be supplied only through missionary effort. Will you, in view of the claims of the poor, strive to bring up something in aid of missionary labor among the destitute? O brethren, let me entreat you not to neglect this important part of your work as pastors! Please to be particular to observe the rule of the Discipline in reference to Missionary Collections. Keep the collections for Foreign and Domestic Missions separate, and so report to your Conference.

And now, dear brethren, let each man do his duty, and God will be honored and souls saved.

J. B. McFERRIN,
Secy Domestic Board.

There are now thirty producing sugar plantations on the Hawaiian group of the Sandwich Islands. The number of acres planted with cane is 10,106. The capital in the business is $2,000,000.

Proceedings of the District Meeting for the Brookhaven District, Miss. Conf.

Brookhaven, July 5, 6, and 7, '67.

FIRST DAY, 2 o'clock, P. M.

Opened with religious exercises conducted by Rev. B. Jones. Rev. W. G. Millsaps, P. E., took the chair and Rev. L. R. Redding was elected Secretary.

The following committees were appointed, viz:

On Public Worship.—L. R. Redding, J. W. Martin and John S. Beasley.

On the state of the Church.—B. Jones, R. W. Millsaps and Thomas King.

On Sunday Schools.—Thomas Nixon, H. J. Harris, R. C. Bethea and J. W. Martin.

On Finance.—E. G. Cook, J. Harvey Thompson and M. J. Whitworth.

On Education.—H. J. Harris, B. Nicholson, Geo. F. Thompson and R. W. Millsaps.

On Revivals.—The Presiding Elder, and all the preachers present.

The last named committee was suggested in a series of resolutions offered by Rev. L. R. Redding, looking to the necessity for organized and vigorous effort throughout the district for the promotion of all the interests of the church.

Reports were read from the various charges in the district and appropriately referred.

The election of Delegates to the Annual Conference was made the order of the day for 10 o'clock, A. M. to-morrow.

On motion the meeting adjourned with the benediction, to meet again at 8 o'clock, to-morrow morning.

SECOND DAY.

The meeting assembled pursuant to adjournment at 8 o'clock, A. M., Rev. W. G. Millsaps in the chair. Religious services by Rev. Thomas Nixon.

The committee on Revivals reported 1st. A resolution locating a District camp ground within a mile of the railroad and near the town of Wesson, Brookhaven or Crystal Springs. The following committee was appointed to make inquiry and to correspond with the Presiding Elder in reference to the location of the proposed camp ground, viz: Revs. W. G. Millsaps, B. Jones, Whitworth, Harris, Nixon, and Messrs. J. H. Thompson, Beasley and Wesson, laymen.

This committee also reported, 2d, a system of protracted meetings, one for each charge in the district naming the time and place of said meetings and the preachers both local and traveling were earnestly invited to attend them. (See list of appointments.)

The committees on S. Schools, Finance, Education and the State of the Church, each made interesting reports which were severally adopted. The Sunday School report exhibited a remarkable increase of interest in the cause of S. Schools, throughout the greater part of the district.

Encouraging reports came from Brookhaven, Wesson, Hazlehurst, Crystal Springs, and Bayou Peirre Circuits.

The committee on Education congratulated the church and community on the flattering prospects of Whitworth Female College, located at Brookhaven. Rev. H. F. Johnson, A. M., a ripe scholar, well and favorably known, throughout central and southern Mississippi, takes the presidency, at the opening of the next session. Rev. L. R. Redding, Professor of Mathematics, Mrs. Julia T. Chrisman, English Literature, Mrs. Rachel Thompson, Preparatory department. In a supplemental report the committee suggested a plan for the education of at least two preachers annually, from the district.

A standing committee was appointed to provide ways and means and to whom application must be made. This committee consists of the Presiding Elder and his successors, Chairman, and Revs. B. Jones, D. Leggett, E. G. Cook, Warren Black, M. J. Whitworth, R. C. Bethea, Benjamin, John W. Sandel, W. H. B. Lane and J. M. Sample, who are instructed to recommend none for this benefice who in their judgment is not called of God to preach.

The chairman and any two of the committee shall constitute a quorum to transact business.

The hour of ten o'clock, having arrived, the meeting proceeded to the order of the day, to wit, the election of delegates to the annual conference, with the following result. Rev. E. G. Cook, Local preacher, Rev. M. J. Whitworth alternate; R. W. Millsaps, Dr. J. W. Martin, alternate, L. B. Moody, John S. Beasley, alternate and John H. Thompson with V. J. Wroten, alternate.

Report of the committee on the state of the church exhibited some interesting facts accounting for the want of vitality, power and progress in the church. The financial embarrassment of the country, resulting in the partial secularization of our ministry, crippling our energies and crippling our enterprises. The church in some places is exhibiting commendable liberality in building up parsonages and supporting her pastors. In other places, on people seem to neglect their own church and preacher and yet give liberally to build up other churches and establish other sects in their communities; permitting their own church to labor under the pressure of debt while helping to build others. It is christianlike and proper to help our neighbor but certainly not to the neglect of our own house hold.

The Finance committee in their report suggested that the habit of depending upon a few men for large sums and neglecting the promises of the many for the pounds of the few, is a fruitful source of financial embarrassment.

The Committee further recommended the immediate securing of church and parsonage lots in all our railroad towns.

After discussing and adopting these reports the meeting resolved itself into committee of the whole on the arrangement of the work; and after an interesting and somewhat spicy discussion participated in by Revs. Millsaps, Jones, Harris and Redding, the committee arose and reported the following:

Resolved, That we recommend the proper authorities to disconnect Crystal Springs, Hazlehurst, and Summit from country appointments, making of the former, stations with resident Pastors, and arranging the country appointments in circuits. (Laid on the table.)

On motion of Rev. L. R. Redding, Resolved, That we recommend our people to take our Church papers, and to subscribe at once for the N. O. Advocate and Jackson Methodist.

Appointments for Protracted Meetings on the Brookhaven District.—Arranged by the District Meeting.

Smyrna, Meadville ct., Qly Meeting, 3d Sunday in July.—W. C. Millsaps P. E., Wm. Finn, R. C. Bethea, E. A. Flowers, and Levi Godbold.

Pleasant Valley, Bayou Peirre ct., Qly Meeting 1st Sunday in August.—Wm. G. Millsaps, P. E., A. B. Nicholson, E. A. Flowers, H. J. Harris, L. R. Redding, M. J. Whitworth, Thomas Simmons and E. G. Cook.

Topasaw, Pearl River ct., Qly Meeting.—2d Sunday in August.—W. G. Millsaps, P. E., A. Day, Geo. F. Thompson, Henry D. Berry, R. C. Bethea, E. A. Flowers and G. J. Mortimer.

Brookhaven sta., 2d Sunday in August.—L. R. Redding, Thomas Nixon, B. Jones, E. G. Cook, A. B. Nicholson, J. W. Welborne, and W. Beason.

Hazlehurst ct., Qly Meeting, 1st Sunday in Sept.—W. G. Millsaps, Thomas Nixon, H. J. Harris, L. R. Redding, A. B. Nicholson, E. N. Talley and J. W. Welborne.

Bogue Chitto ct., 1st Sunday in Sept.—P. E. Green, B. Jones, A. Day, George F. Thompson, W. H. B. Lane, Thomas King, Jordan D. Johnson, Acee L. Potter, Geo. J. Mortimer, Pearce and Shirley.

Summit, Holmesville ct., 2d Sunday in Sept.—H. D. Berry, Benjamin Jones, E. G. Cook, E. A. Flowers, D. Leggett, L. R. Redding, and John B. Bowen.

Galatia, Scotland ct., 3d Sunday in September.—E. A. Flowers, H. J. Harris, E. G. Cook, L. R. Redding, A. B. Nicholson, R. C. Bethea, A. Day, Levi Godbold and Elisha F. Mullins.

Beauregard, 4th Sunday in Sept.—B. Jones, L. R. Redding, H. J. Harris, Geo. F. Thompson, Thos. Nixon, Charles J. Hendry, W. H. Mullins, and E. F. Mullins.

Rehoboth, Bayou ct., 1st Sunday in October.—A. B. Nicholson, H. J. Harris, John B. Bowen, M. J. Whitworth, E. A. Flowers, D. Leggett, J. D. Cudd, Thomas Simmons, Wesley Funches, Green Millsaps, and Warren Black.

Crystal Springs, 2d Sunday in October.—Thomas Nixon, J. W. McNeill, H. J. Harris, George F. Thompson, B. Jones and D. Leggett.

N. B. These meetings will commence on Saturday before the Sundays mentioned. Careful inquiry was made with reference to assigning all the preachers, local and traveling, in the district, to some one of these appointments. A general and earnest invitation is extended to all. If the names of any have been omitted it was by no means intentional. We sincerely hope the churches and the people in the neighborhood of these appointments will lock and pray for a season of refreshing from the presence of the Lord.

Ordered, That the proceedings of the meeting be published in the Advocate, Methodist, and Hazlehurst News.

Camp meeting appointed to commence on Friday night before the 5th Sunday in September next. Meeting then adjourned to meet again at Hazlehurst, at such time this fall as the Presiding Elder may appoint. W. G. Millsaps, P. E. L. R. Redding, Secy.

At the recent annual meeting of the French Freemasons, the question was raised, whether or not the use of the formula "to the glory of the great Architect of the Universe" was to be held obligatory in all cases. After a warm debate the formula was retained by a vote of 100 against 67.

From the Christian Treasury.

GOING HOME.

Where are you going so fast, old man?
Where are you going so fast?
There's a valley to cross, and a river to ford;
There's a clasp of the hand, and a parting word,
And a tremulous sigh for the past, old man—
The beautiful, vanished past.

The road has been rugged and rough, old man;
To your feet it is rugged and rough;
But you see a dear being, with gentle eyes,
Who shared in your labor and sacrifice.

Al! that has been sunshine enough, old man,
For you and me—sunshine enough.

How long since you passed o'er the hill, old man?
Of life—o'er the top of the hill?

How long since you passed o'er the hill, old man?
Of life—o'er the top of the hill?

How long since you passed o'er the hill, old man?
Of life—o'er the top of the hill?

How long since you passed o'er the hill, old man?
Of life—o'er the top of the hill?

How long since you passed o'er the hill, old man?
Of life—o'er the top of the hill?

How long since you passed o'er the hill, old man?
Of life—o'er the top of the hill?

How long since you passed o'er the hill, old man?
Of life—o'er the top of the hill?

How long since you passed o'er the hill, old man?
Of life—o'er the top of the hill?

How long since you passed o'er the hill, old man?
Of life—o'er the top of the hill?

How long since you passed o'er the hill, old man?
Of life—o'er the top of the hill?

How long since you passed o'er the hill, old man?
Of life—o'er the top of the hill?

How long since you passed o'er the hill, old man?
Of life—o'er the top of the hill?

How long since you passed o'er the hill, old man?
Of life—o'er the top of the hill?

How long since you passed o'er the hill, old man?
Of life—o'er the top of the hill?

How long since you passed o'er the hill, old man?
Of life—o'er the top of the hill?

How long since you passed o'er the hill, old man?
Of life—o'er the top of the hill?

How long since you passed o'er the hill, old man?
Of life—o'er the top of the hill?

How long since you passed o'er the hill, old man?
Of life—o'er the top of the hill?

How long since you passed o'er the hill, old man?
Of life—o'er the top of the hill?

How long since you passed o'er the hill, old man?
Of life—o'er the top of the hill?

How long since you passed o'er the hill, old man?
Of life—o'er the top of the hill?

How long since you passed o'er the hill, old man?
Of life—o'er the top of the hill?

How long since you passed o'er the hill, old man?
Of life—o'er the top of the hill?

How long since you passed o'er the hill, old man?
Of life—o'er the top of the hill?

How long since you passed o'er the hill, old man?
Of life—o'er the top of the hill?

How long since you passed o'er the hill, old man?
Of life—o'er the top of the hill?

How long since you passed o'er the hill, old man?
Of life—o'er the top of the hill?

How long since you passed o'er the hill, old man?
Of life—o'er the top of the hill?

How long since you passed o'er the hill, old man?
Of life—o'er the top of the hill?

How long since you passed o'er the hill, old man?
Of life—o'er the top of the hill?

How long since you passed o'er the hill, old man?
Of life—o'er the top of the hill?

How long since you passed o'er the hill, old man?
Of life—o'er the top of the hill?

How long since you passed o'er the hill, old man?
Of life—o'er the top of the hill?

How long since you passed o'er the hill, old man?
Of life—o'er the top of the hill?

How long since you passed o'er the hill, old man?
Of life—o'er the top of the hill?

How long since you passed o'er the hill, old man?
Of life—o'er the top of the hill?

How long since you passed o'er the hill, old man?
Of life—o'er the top of the hill?

How long since you passed o'er the hill, old man?
Of life—o'er the top of the hill?

How long since you passed o'er the hill, old man?
Of life—o'er the top of the hill?

How long since you passed o'er the hill, old man?
Of life—o'er the top of the hill?

How long since you passed o'er the hill, old man?
Of life—o'er the top of the hill?

How long since you passed o'er the hill, old man?
Of life—o'er the top of the hill?

How long since you passed o'er the hill, old man?
Of life—o'er the top of the hill?

How long since you passed o'er the hill, old man?
Of life—o'er the top of the hill?

How long since you passed o'er the hill, old man?
Of life—o'er the top of the hill?

How long since you passed o'er the hill, old man?
Of life—o'er the top of the hill?

How long since you passed o'er the hill, old man?
Of life—o'er the top of the hill?

How long since you passed o'er the hill, old man?
Of life—o'er the top of the hill?

How long since you passed o'er the hill, old man?
Of life—o'er the top of the hill?

How long since you passed o'er the hill, old man?
Of life—o'er the top of the hill?

How long since you passed o'er the hill, old man?
Of life—o'er the top of the hill?

How long since you passed o'er the hill, old man?
Of life—o'er the top of the hill?

How long since you passed o'er the hill, old man?
Of life—o'er the top of the hill?

How long since you passed o'er the hill, old man?
Of life—o'er the top of the hill?

How long since you passed o'er the hill, old man?
Of life—o'er the top of the hill?

How long since you passed o'er the hill, old man?
Of life—o'er the top of the hill?

How long since you passed o'er the hill, old man?
Of life—o'er the top of the hill?

How long since you passed o'er the hill, old man?
Of life—o'er the top of the hill?

How long since you passed o'er the hill, old man?
Of life—o'er the top of the hill?

How long since you passed o'er the hill, old man?
Of life—o'er the top of the hill?

How long since you passed o'er the hill, old man?
Of life—o'er the top of the hill?

How long since you passed o'er the hill, old man?
Of life—o'er the top of the hill?

How long since you passed o'er the hill, old man?
Of life—o'er the top of the hill?

How long since you passed o'er the hill, old man?
Of life—o'er the top of the hill?

How long since you passed o'er the hill, old man?
Of life—o'er the top of the hill?

agent is one capable of moral actions; an action is rendered moral, first, by being voluntary, and secondly by its reference to some rule that determines its quality. An infant is incapable of a moral action, for it has no intelligent will; it cannot determine the quality of actions, and therefore an infant cannot be born a sinner. If it were possible for us to be born sinners, or transgressors, it would be possible for infants to be eternally lost, and there might be such unfortunate creatures as non-"elect infants," predestinated to everlasting woe. We rejoice to know that under the gracious remedial system this is not so, but that "of such is the kingdom of heaven," which, whether it means the kingdom militant, or triumphant, it is conclusive as to the salvation and eternal blessedness of all who die in childhood.

We are responsible for sin, but we cannot be for inheriting a depraved nature; but the gospel makes provision for all our spiritual necessities. As the death of Christ stoops to our judicial needs, and makes it possible and just for God to pardon the guilty, so the gift and aid of the Holy Ghost stoops to our moral destitution, and enables us to overcome our moral infirmities, to cease to do evil, to repent, and trust in the atoning and saving merit of Christ. When our co-working can go no further, God, in the exercise of Sovereign Grace, pardons our sins, makes us new creatures in Christ Jesus, witnesses our adoption and makes us heirs and joint heirs with Christ, to an inheritance incorruptible, undefiled, and that fadeth not away.

For the N. O. Christian Advocate.
HIGH CHURCH EPISCOPOACY Against all the Churches.
No. IV.

MR. EDITOR: I have already stated that the precise point of difference between Popery and Christianity was, the doctrine of divinely transmitted ministerial authority, or, as it is sometimes called, apostolic succession. This is the foundation, the main pillar on which all the other Romish heresies are built. And I have stated that this never was a question among churches, for it was the very thing protested against by Protestants—that is, the parent, the producing cause of all the things objected to by Protestants. Romanism is the Apostolic Succession acted out practically and legitimately.

The European churches examined this matter to the bottom, and saw, or thought they saw, in the doctrine in question, the entire ruin of christianity. According to its principles anything the bishops chose to call Church, whether it should have a particle of christianity in it or not, was not only a true, evangelical church, but in the nature of things, an infallible church. It is historically true, that, under the legitimate operations of this principle, some of the wickedest and most appalling profanity and corruption the world was ever called to mourn over—murder, prostitution, simony, blasphemy, perjury, &c., wholesale and retail, was not only in the church, but the church was made up of it for considerable periods of time. Let any one read that strange book, by Dr. Mosheim, strangely misnamed Church History, or any other similar book.

Under the rule that church authority must be recognized in those bishops who claimed it by transmission in ordinances, the crimes punished most certainly and most surely was the crime of the christian religion. No complaint could be made, of course, against the bishop thus "regularly ordained."

The particular things complained of by the early Reformers were not defended on the ground that they were justifiable in themselves, but on the ground that they were the acts of the Church—the Church with its regularly ordained bishops. Protestantism declares it to be possible for men, however ordained, to become corrupt and even criminal.

We all know that the immediate occasion of the rupture in the church between Luther and the Pope, was the sale of indulgences, or pre-absolution from crime. But this brought out the real issue.—The Pope and his party declared it could not be objected against, because it was a regulation of the bishops, sanctioned by the pope, and their authority was valid because it was regularly derived in ordination. And in all that eventful struggle everything was found to hinge on the authority thus supposed to be transmitted in ordination.

And right here it ought to be stated, that there is much misunderstanding about the formation, or beginning of the Church of England. There was no formation of a church. The church in England had long existed; and like all others in Europe, was under the jurisdiction of the Pope. The English clergy had, many of them, become really and virtually protestants; but the first public act in England, that was really protestant, was the divorce of King Henry from his wife Catharine, by the Universities, and its ratification by the English churches. This put the authority of the Pope at open defiance. And this repudiation of the supposed immaculate purity of this chain of succession, applied, of course, not only to the pope and his remaining bishops, but to themselves likewise. Now they, by this act, declared that they exercised their office, not by virtue of this supposed transmitted authority in ordination, but by authority derived immediately from their church.

In this way, and by many other successive acts of a similar character, independent of the pope, the church in England solemnly repudiated the doctrine of Apostolic Succession as the immaculate channel and vehicle in which church authority is derived and by virtue of which it is administered. And with the exception of some troubles on the subject, mostly in the reign of Mary, who was a bigotted papist, the English church has maintained its protestant and anti-succession character to this day.

Nevertheless the church of England has never been without a popish party, who, with more or less zeal, talent and consistency, have held on to the Apostolic Succession. Sometimes this party has been pretty strong—strong in talent and strong in numbers; but the church has remained protestant and ignored the doctrine in all her official declarations.

The Protestant Episcopal church in the United States is well known to be virtually the church of England, separated only by civil necessities and considerations. This church has always been protestant, as well in principle as in name. I wish I could say as much for all her bishops, ministers, and laymen. It has invariably ignored the Apostolic Succession doctrines, though she too has always had in her bosom a strong popish party with strong popish proclivities under the Apostolic Succession doctrine.

I think, however, many of them are not aware of the essential and necessary popish tendency and character of the doctrine. Many of them, I have reason to believe, advocate it for the sake of the popery, and others they know not why.

REVIVAL OF RELIGION.—A gracious revival of religion is progressing at the M. E. Church, South, in this place. The altar is daily crowded with anxious inquirers after truth. Many have professed religion, the church being greatly revived and backsliders reclaimed. God is doing great things for us whereof we are glad both in temporal as well as in spiritual matters. While He sends His Spirit in refreshing showers upon the Church and people, He is also blessing us with refreshing showers of rain, which are making the earth yield an abundant increase.—Cartersville Express.

From the People's Magazine.

THE SUPPLY OF IVORY.

An enormous number of elephants are destroyed in the course of every year, often as unpleasant neighbors to man in the wild state, prone to make havoc with the rice and grain fields, but far more persistently and fully to meet the demands of commerce for the ivory of the tusks. Though the largest and the strongest of all existing quadrupeds, the animal is very readily decoyed into captivity in order to be domesticated, and is as easily slain by the hunter's rifle. The great bull elephant of three tons weight—leader of a herd—generally falls lifeless in an instant, if a ball is skillfully planted in the eye, or at the base of the trunk, or behind the ear; and "crack" spoolsmen have been known to kill right and left, one with each barrel. In part of the northern province of Ceylon, upon the reward of a few shillings per head being offered by the authorities, 3,500 were despatched in less than three years by the natives. Sheffield alone requires annually the slaughter of a large army of the huge pachyderms, estimated some years ago at 23,000, to furnish ivory for the various articles produced in its manufacturing establishments; and every civilized country needs a supply of the material for the useful and ornamental arts. Hence, not being prolific, it is by no means improvable, that long before our human story is over the elephant will be numbered with extinct species.

The tusks of the elephant are genuine teeth, but of peculiar form, and large dimensions when perfectly developed. They alone supply that variety of dentine or tooth-substance which is properly called ivory, though many other animals, as the hippopotamus, narwhal, and walrus, possess teeth, horns, or tusks of sufficient size and density to be used in the arts for the like purposes, and which hence popularly bear the same name. Of the two existing species of elephant, the Indian and the African, the latter has by far the larger tusks. They supply the manufacturer with his best material, valued on account of its closer grain, superior whiteness, and capability of receiving the highest polish. Sometimes the tusks are stunted, being not more than ten or twelve inches in length, and weighing only a few pounds; but when completely formed a single tusk will sometimes weigh 170 lbs., and occasionally considerably more. A pair appeared in the Great Exhibition of 1851, taken from an elephant killed on the Banks of Lake Ngami, which weighed 325 lbs. Each tusk measured eight feet six inches in length, and had a circuit of twenty-two inches at the base.

In very high latitudes, where the remains of animals are preserved for ages by the rigorous cold of the climate, a further supply of ivory is obtained from the tusks of extinct species, which, with the bones, sometimes even the flesh and hair, are found imbedded in the frozen soil, having undergone but little alteration. The northern parts of Siberia, especially the lower valley of the Lena, and some islands in the polar waters, are well-known localities for these "Adamic things," or "things of Adam's time," as they are locally called, from their obvious antiquity. In the year 1770, an obscure fur trader named Liakhov, having occasion to visit the shore of the Arctic Ocean, saw while there a herd of reindeer coming over the ice from the north. Guided by the track of the animals, he travelled with sledge and dogs over the ice-fields for nearly fifty miles, and then came to an island, beyond which was another, the members of a small archipelago now known as the Liakhov group, or New Siberia. Few spots are more geologically remarkable. Hills of fossil wood line the shores, while large tracts are composed of tusks, and other animal remains deposited in the superficial sand, gravel, and loam, cemented by ice. It is remarkable of this curious produce that the tusks decrease in size and weight from south to north, as if they had been borne to their present sites by some great drift in that direction, which carried the lighter ones the farthest. Those of the islands are the smallest, but are much whiter and apparently fresher than those of the continent.

The best known and most abundant of these relics of ancient life belong to the Elephas primigenius of Blumenbach, called Elephas fossilis by Cuvier, the mammoth of popular speech. The latter name signifies "an animal of the earth." It originated with the ignorant presumption, that being unable to endure the light of day the creature was chiefly subterranean in its habits, like the existing mole. But some of the simple-minded natives had another theory, and were only concerned to have the remains undisputed. "Take from us," said they to the first Russian adventurers, "our gold if you will; but leave us the bones of our great ancestors."

Under a similar misconception, Pontopidan reported the discovery of the bones of giants in Norway, doubtless those of the extinct elephant, which are very widely distributed, and found in the Pleistocene deposits all over Europe.—Admirably well preserved in the cold climate of Siberia, where the soil is perpetually frozen at the depth of a few feet beneath the surface, the tusks are regularly searched for by "ivory hunters," and are disposed of at the annual fairs held in the summer months at Yakutsk, along with the teeth of the walrus, and the furs and peltry of the Arctic zone. The fossil ivory is of inferior quality to that obtained from the living species, being exceedingly dry, hard, and brittle.—But it is used in the arts, especially in Russia, and boiling in a solution of gelatine imparts the waxy softness in which it is deficient.

The mammoth is the only fossil animal which has come under the observation of man in a perfect condition; but only two complete specimens of the gigantic quadruped have yet been met with. In the case of all other remains the hard portions have alone been preserved, and these are frequently of a very fragmentary kind, requiring the highest skill to make out from them the form and character of the creature to which they belonged.

It was at the close of the last century that the first entire example was discovered by a Tungusian fisherman. Near the mouth of the Lena and the shore of the polar ocean he observed a strange shapeless mass projecting from a bank of frozen earth covered with ice, which, in the summer of 1801, when the season was warmer and the thaw greater than usual, became partially disengaged, and proved to be the carcass of an enormous animal. It eventually fell from the bank on the sandy beach, but was not examined by any naturalist till Mr. Adams travelled to the spot for the purpose from Yakutsk, in 1806. By that time native hunters had carried off portions of the flesh with which to feed their dogs, while white bears, wolves, Wolverines, and foxes had devoured the remainder. But the skeleton was entire, and is now one of the curiosities of St. Petersburg. It stands nine feet four inches in height, and measures sixteen feet four inches in length. Following the curve the tusks extend to nine feet six inches. The animal was a male, furnished with a long mane, and coated with a skin covered with a reddish wool, adapted therefore to endure a cold climate. During the last year our Royal Society received information of a second perfect example having been discovered by a Samoiede in the frozen soil near the eastern arm of the Gulf of Obi. It is not improbable that careful explorations in the vast region of northern Asia, very imperfectly known at present, may be made with benefit to the ivory market as well as to natural history.

Ivory has been known from remote antiquity, and appreciated as an ornamental material. Processions of human figures are extant on the walls of tombs and palaces in Egypt—black, crisp-haired men, evidently natives of central Africa—who appeared as the bearers of presents, among which the tusks of the elephant are conspicuous.—Phœnician traders had ivory in such abundance that the chief seats of their galleys were inlaid with it. "The company of the Ashurites, have made thy benches of ivory brought out of the isles of Chittim." Solomon's ships visited the shores of the Indian Ocean for the product; and "the king made a great throne of ivory, and overlaid it with the best gold." The erection of a house of ivory is named among the acts of Ahab. By the Greeks and Romans this article of luxury was highly valued and extensively used. Homer, in a comparatively primitive age, makes mention of it in the palace of Menelaus. Phidias the sculptor produced a statue of Jupiter Olympus of the material; so beautiful and imposing, that it was considered a misfortune to die without having seen it. But modern times supply the most remarkable example on record of what may be called its barbaric use. In the sixteenth century Akbar, the Great Mogul, built an octagonal hunting-tower of ivory, which is still standing, some twenty miles to the west of Agra. It bristles with one hundred and twenty-eight enormous tusks disposed in ascending lines, sixteen being on each of the eight sides.

The earliest mention of the product in our national literature is by Chaucer, who describes one of his characters in the Canterbury Tales as carrying

"A staff tipped with horn,
A pair of tables (writing tables) all of ivory."

Great Britain imports annually from all parts not less than 500 tons, which may be valued at £400,000. The chief consumption is for knife-handles, the keys of musical instruments, mathematical scales, dice and chessmen, billiard-balls, inlaying, and artistic carvings, some of which are rendered extremely costly by the taste and skill displayed in their execution.

Vegetable ivory, derived from the nuts of an exquisitely beautiful South American palm, is in extensive use for umbrella-handles, buttons, trinkets and other ordinary articles; but it soon tarnishes and wears rapidly if exposed to much friction. In France an excellent imitation of ivory is now made from a mixture of papier-mache and gelatine, called Parisian marble. But no substance, natural or artificial, is at present known so well adapted as the true material for the purposes to which it is applied. Yet long before the elephants are no more, and the mammoths are used up, an adequate substitute may have been found, and had reconciled the world to a loss which is inevitable.

EMORY COLLEGE.—On the day of graduation, after a brief but touching and appropriate baccalaureate from Dr. Thomas, and the conferring of the degrees, he announced the names of the former graduates upon whom the degree of A. M. was now conferred in course; and also, that the Trustees had conferred the honorary degree of A. M. on the Rev. George G. Smith, now of Baltimore, and Dr. Francis A. Thomas, of Oxford; that of D. D. on the Rev. John M. Bonnell, the Rev. Josephus Anderson, the Rev. Wm. P. Harrison, and the Rev. Luther M. Smith; and that of LL.D. on Dr. H. V. M. Miller, now of Atlanta, Ga. At this point, Bishop Pierce, President of the Board of Trustees, rose and begged that Dr. T. would excuse him; for a little he should usurp the President's prerogatives. This was allowed, although the President, taken unawares, could not guess why, for this part of the programme had been carefully concealed from him. The Bishop proceeded in a very happy address to express the deep regret which all felt in parting with Dr. Thomas, who is about to remove to California. While bowing to that decision he has made under what he believes an imperative call of duty, the Trustees desire that he shall take a higher acknowledgment of their full sense of his talent, worth and capabilities, than mere verbal resolves convey, and they feel that they honor themselves while they only do justice to him in conferring upon him that degree which indicates the highest titular honor within their gift—that of LL.D. Dr. T., taken by surprise, answered in a few modest words, and to the regret of all, his connection with Emory College was closed. Many blessings follow him and his family to their distant home, and Georgia will always be proud to bear of the success, which his friends have no doubt of his achieving with favoring health and under the smiles of a kind Providence.

The Board of Trustees made no selection of a successor to Dr. Thomas. Dr. L. M. Smith was made temporary President.—S. C. Advocate.

THE SULTAN IN LONDON.—London July 12.—Abdul Aziz, sultan of Turkey, who left Paris yesterday, after a pleasant voyage across the channel, landed, on the 12th, on the shores of England, and was received by the Prince of Wales, acting for the queen, and by his majesty Ismael, sovereign of Egypt, and was by them escorted to the city of London, where he met with an unusually brilliant and imposing reception. The London and Dover railway station in which he alighted was richly and appropriately decorated, and the streets through which he was to pass were covered with flags and streamers, and spanned by triumphal arches and festoons of flowers. The entire route of the procession, from the railroad depot to Buckingham Palace, was guarded on both sides by unbroken lines of troops. Behind these, vast multitudes of spectators were packed in solid mass, on the side walks, and crowded every window and house-top. When the sultan, accompanied by the King of Egypt and Prince of Wales, passed between the lines of soldiers, the people, struck by the novelty of the spectacle, manifested the most unbounded enthusiasm, and the shouts of welcome, cheering and waving of handkerchiefs and banners did not cease until the sultan had entered the gates of the Palace Royal. The residence has been placed in a state of complete preparation for the accommodation of his Ottoman majesty, and will be occupied by him during his stay in London.

MORE TROUBLE FOR AUSTRIA.—Reports received at London, on the 12th from Vienna, says a serious disturbance has broken out in Galicia. The Austrian troops dispatched to put it down have been beaten by the rioters. It is believed these riots are fomented by Russian emissaries, who worked upon the national proclivities of the Slavonic population, and created by their intrigues a feeling of discontent.

PUBLISHING COMMITTEES:

FOR MOBILE CONFERENCE:

Rev. J. Hamilton, D.D.,
Rev. A. H. Mitchell, D.D.,
Rev. Theo. W. Dorman, D.D.

FOR MONTGOMERY CONFERENCE:

Rev. M. S. Andrews,
Rev. William A. Shepard,
Rev. J. B. Coltrill.

FOR MISSISSIPPI CONFERENCE:

Rev. W. H. Watkins, D.D.,
Rev. H. H. Montgomery,
Rev. William P. Barton.

FOR LOUISIANA CONFERENCE:

Rev. J. C. Keener, D.D.,
Rev. J. B. Walker, D.D.,
Rev. Linus Parker.

New Orleans:

SATURDAY, AUGUST 3, 1867.

How to send money.—We are frequently receiving inquiries upon this point. We have carefully lost anything by the mails, and consider them safe. The risk at any rate will be ours.

We are still asked, shall we forward money by mail? Answer, YES. The Agent will notice, as above, that the risk is not his.

To subscribers.—Any person wishing to subscribe for this paper can do so, by paying the Methodist preacher in the circuit, and forwarding to us his receipt for three dollars, with the address of the subscriber upon it, naming Post office, State, Circuit, and Conference. The receipt ought to be taken in duplicate.

Health of the City.

During the week ending Sunday, July 18th, the number of deaths from all causes was one hundred and fifty-seven. Of this number 17 were from Cholera, and 5 of Yellow Fever. The following items from the proceedings of the Board of Health, which met on the evening of the 30th July, show that these professional gentlemen, who have facilities of knowing all about the matter, regard the sanitary condition as good.

The President stated that cholera and yellow fever had almost entirely disappeared. All localities where these diseases had occurred had been thoroughly disinfected, and the disinfectants appeared to have had beneficial effects.

Dr. Austin, chairman of the Committee on Health, submitted a verbal report, stating that the city was perfectly healthy. A few cases of yellow fever had occurred in the First District, one case at 233 Julia street, and resulted fatally.

The weather for the past week has been more settled, steadily hot, with only one or two light showers. August and September are our worst months, and they are yet before us. Conjectures as to the probable increase of the two worst dreaded diseases are worthless.

COLLEGIATE INSTITUTE AT BATON ROUGE.—We invite attention to the advertisement of this School, in another column. Professor Magruder is widely known and appreciated as one of the best Educators in the country. We are glad to be able to contradict the report of his intention to emigrate to Honduras. Professor Magruder assures us that he has no such idea. The Institute will be opened as usual, October 2d, 1867. We bespeak for it a liberal patronage from our friends who wish their sons to be under the highest literary, as well as religious care.

KNICKERBOCKER LIFE INSURANCE COMPANY.—We call attention to the card of the Knickerbocker Life Insurance Company in our issue of today. The commission offered by the Company to Agents, we are informed by the General Agent is liberal and with moderate success on the part of Agents they will soon be able to insure their own lives.

PREVENTIVE DISCIPLINE.

Christians sometimes write bitter things against themselves when the rod of affliction is upon them. That their sufferings are disciplinary, they believe, and that in their chastisements God deals with them as sons. They know that "He doth not afflict willingly, nor grieve the children of men." God has no pleasure in human suffering; none in the troubles and sorrows of his children. Neither is it in wrath, but in love that they are visited.

The inference, however, is a hasty one, and often erroneous, that these inflictions argue some actual and present sin, or some defection from the path of duty. This is sometimes the case, and self-examination, honestly prosecuted, will reveal the reason. The end of the grievous dispensation will be made clear, leading to penitence, and to the fruits of righteousness. But in how many instances do we not find the application of this principle where it is utterly out of place? Christians may condemn themselves where God does not. They go upon the supposition that their sufferings are for some fault or unfaithfulness, and that their actual sins have called for the loving severity of their Heavenly Father.

They are often greatly perplexed to know precisely what is the occasion of these afflictions; supposing, as a matter of course, that it is some transgression, some sin of temp., or that they have grieved the Holy Spirit; they seek in vain to ascertain the ground of correction. With very little if any sense of condemnation, and with consciousness void of offence, they are driven to the conclusion that there is some "secret thing," which defies the search of the tenderest spiritual sensibilities. We have seen many a perplexed saint in affliction, asking in vain for the reason. Conscience of his religious integrity, his acceptance with God, and his entire devotion to Christ, he finds nothing that points to the final cause. It must be that I have sinned, but wherein, and how? Thus the soul is in a maze of doubts and uncertainty, groping after some clue that shall lead out into light.

The meaning is, not that we are unfaithful and condemned, or that we have sinned against the privileges and obligations of our high calling. For nothing in the past, and for nothing in the present, are these troubles sent. Paul's diagnosis of the thorn in the flesh was to this purpose: "Lest I should be exalted above measure." Not for any sin of the past, nor for any sin of the present; but for a temper and spirit to which he was liable. The thorn in the flesh was preventive in its object, and in anticipation of what might arise under peculiar and powerful temptations. We may suppose that this principle often characterizes the dealings of God with his people. Not that it is the true solution in every case, but in many. The solicitude and anxiety of the sufferer may thus often find relief. What have I done that I am thus afflicted? Of what secret sin—of what omission am I guilty? It may be on account of none of these things. Pure in heart, it is that you may be kept so; humble and submissive in spirit, it is that pride and self-exaltation may be forestalled, and that the soul may be fortified against them.

It is a blessed thing for us that this preventive discipline obtains in the economy of grace and providence, and that God takes upon himself to administer preventives as well as remedies. We have in it the explanation of much that would be otherwise inscrutable, and the obd of God is furnished with a key wherewith to unlock the most mysterious aspects of his experience. We may not always see our own danger, nor the extent to which our souls are in peril. The deceitfulness of the heart is such, that often neither conscience nor reason give warning. Against the dangers pointed out in the Word of God, we may feel secure. At the same time there are buddings of mischief in the tendencies of the heart, and in the temptations awaiting it. Our afflictions come in to arrest the evil before it is fairly developed, and we are, by a Divine hand, tided over the shoals, without knowing of the rocks which we have barely escaped.

No good thing is withheld from them that "walk uprightly." We would not hesitate to trust ourselves with the most ample wealth, and with every element of prosperity and power. How few Christians would keep themselves in the love of God, and save their souls, if they had their own way? God knows the heart, its weaknesses, its peculiar liabilities to sin, and wisely withholds what we most desire. Where we would trust ourselves, he cannot. He sees what we do not; he knows what we cannot know, and his discipline is adjusted to the wider range of an infinite and unclouded vision.

In the devout mind, exercised under this kind of discipline, there is peculiar temptation to both error and rebellion. To err in tracing our afflictions and privations to a wrong cause, and in ascribing to them a wrong end, stripping them of their preventive character, and referring them, as remedies, to present sins and imperfections. To rebellion, because it is almost impossible for us to appreciate the nature and extent of the perils from which they are designed to rescue us. A faith both enlightened and submissive is needed to reach the sanctified lesson, and to partake of the glory which is wrought. Submission to the means, and a discernment of the end, go hand in hand in our emancipation from the bondage of sight.

"Faith lends its realizing light,
The clouds disperse, the shadows fly.
The invisible appears in sight,
And God is seen by mortal eye."

THE SEASON.

August has come at length, and is the first of three important months to the Church in the South. It is in these months of August, September and October, that we look for revivals of religion. The last Quarter lies chiefly within them, and the finishing up of the year.

The annual collections are mostly to be taken. Too many of these are left till the end of the year, and the Stewards' accounts are usually far, far behind. This is an evil habit. It would be better to keep everything square as we go, and to bring up every account settled at the close of each quarter. Also would it be better to distribute the collections with some degree of equality through the year. To do this, however, is the exception rather than the rule. The final financial agony is a heavy one, and the Circuit or Station begins the new year exhausted with its recent struggle.

Prominence to any one collection perhaps ought not to be given. All of them at least should be fully exhibited to every congregation, and their objects discussed freely. The preacher may hesitate to plead for his own support, and may even feel a delicacy in stirring up the Stewards, because of his dependence upon them. But these stated collections have no reference to his own comfort or profit, and he may urge them without embarrassment. The principle of giving is the same, to whatever object applied, and this principle should come in for thorough analysis and exposition. There can be no embarrassment in this course, and we are persuaded that the backwardness of the people is largely owing to the want of light. The subject must be brought home to the understanding and the conscience. We meet with lively pious people who seem oblivious of any demands upon their means for religious purposes. Considerable revivals occur without any corresponding relaxation of this pecuniary tightness. It can be accounted for only upon the supposition that special light and information are needed upon this point.

A good sermon upon the objects, principles, and duty of giving ought not to be considered out of place, at a Camp meeting, or during the progress of a revival. The circumstances of the people and the condition of the country, have no more to do with the matter, than they have with prayer or any other branch of Christian duty. That these may affect the amounts raised is probable, but the principle, "as God hath prospered him," applies in hard times, as well as in prosperous. There are not many members of the church who cannot give something. If it be but five cents to each object, let it be so. None of us have discharged our debt to God until we have contributed according to the measure of our resources. There was a people, mentioned by Paul, of whom he says, "their deep poverty abounded unto the riches of their liberality." The preachers are so far responsible as the enlightenment of the people, and the earnest presentation of the cause and the opportunity of contributing are concerned. Where this duty is performed there will be few blank reports at the Annual Conference.

This is the time when statistics are to be gathered. Here let us remind the Presiding Elders of the fact that, if the pastors fail they will be held responsible. Sometimes the pastor leaves this to the Secretary of the Church Meeting, and at the Quarterly Conference, no one is prepared to give the items required. Our church property is oftentimes neglected. Buildings are out of repair, debts have been running on indefinitely, titles are not known to be secure. Trustees must have their reports ready, and a full and careful investigation be made.

It is also the revival season. We will not except to the terms. It is taken for granted that efforts to save souls have not been postponed, like the finances, until the end of the year. This is the period for special and protracted services—what our country friends sometimes call "big meetings." We have known people who never expect to have much religion or to see any body converted in any other way. But these are few. "The feast of tabernacles" is appreciated by the devout and exemplary believer. It is to him a period of refreshment, and spiritual good. He can be religious, holy and happy without it, and prosper under the ordinary means of grace: but he enters upon these special occasions with thankfulness and profit. It is a time of more intimate and enlarged spiritual communion; ministers unite in their efforts, and there is the concentration of the Circuit or District at a single point.

We know of no good reason why we should not have revivals everywhere during these three months. "The Lord's hand is not shortened." The hindrance is in ourselves, if anywhere. Instead of looking forward to a revival atmosphere, merely to vitalize your own soul, suppose you were to feel that you must yourself be the instrument of bringing it about? Instead of waiting for a revival you would create one; and instead of going to seek one you would carry it with you. The success of protracted meetings depends greatly upon the tone of piety in the Church. It takes a week of preaching and praying sometimes to get the church ripe for a blessing, and the precious opportunity for the conversion of sinners is measurably lost. We should get ourselves in a condition, not only to receive but also to give. The piety that has been growing all the year on "the sincere milk of the Word," and has been nursed by watchfulness and prayer at home, should come up to the gathering with its own contribution of light, warmth and power.

Many are now looking forward to the Fast day on the 16th of this month, and beyond, as the time when the refreshing shall come. Are they praying as well as looking? Is there an earnest of what they look for in their own hearts? Is it not too soon to begin the work of self-examination. The kingdom of God is within you, and there let us seek for the first token of good. The awakening must begin in some individual soul. Why not in yours or mine now? Revival to the Christian is not the dead soul brought to life, but it is a march forward in holiness: and that is the greatest work which finds a healthy religious state to improve upon. Then there is the leaving of the principles of the doctrines, and a going on to perfection. The covenant is renewed, perfect consecration is attained, and the believer is "filled with all the fullness of God."

The season is full of vast interests to the church and to souls. We cannot predict great and sweeping revivals. We believe they may be, but the faith of all can alone say they shall be. If every one gets his own heart right, the general result cannot be doubtful. A consecrated ministry and a devoted membership will insure a joyful harvest of souls this year.

NEWS FROM THE CHURCHES.

FAYETTEVILLE CIRCUIT—MONTGOMERY CONFERENCE.

Mr. Editor: The prospect of a bountiful harvest of Corn, Cotton, Potatoes, &c., is quite flattering here. The forward Corn is nearly made, and the later bids fair to be abundant.

Showers of grace also in copious streams are being poured upon us. I have just closed a meeting of 14 days continuance, which resulted in fourteen conversions, and six recommitments, i. e., persons who had been on probation, and whom I took into the Church under the formula laid down in the discipline. These latter had gone to the length of their probationary tether, and had well nigh snapped it—but are now, by this opportune revival, rendered useful members of the Church. We regard this meeting as a signal success. The more so, because the little village (Mardesville) affords but a small congregation. I preached every sermon, after the first Sabbath, except one by Brother Enry, who, as he was passing to his appointment, preached, much to the edification and encouragement of the Church, and congregation.

On my way from this meeting to Fayetteville, I preached by request, at a private house, at 5 o'clock, and by 9 o'clock that night there were seven conversions. At this meeting, a mother and three grown daughters were converted. Some days after I visited them, (they are the wife and daughters of a member of the Baptist church.) On the occasion of my visit, after their conversion, I had a most delightful family service with them, in which the father and husband took much interest, and who treated me with kindness and cordiality.

At Fayetteville, there were evident signs of grace, but I could not continue, because the people were too busy in their crops. We hope to have a strengthening of our stakes, and enlarging of our borders here during the fall. The rust is evidently disappearing. The brethren seem quite in earnest.

Bro. Enry is a laborious preacher—attends promptly to his appointments. I think handles his district pretty well.

Brother H. Clay Stone (supernumerary) is doing what he can. Hard at work on his farm, and preaching with great acceptability at such appointments as he can conveniently reach. But little money yet, and won't be until cotton comes in.

If the people had money, I could get quite a number of subscribers for your valuable paper.

Although the warm weather oppresses me very much, yet my health is good, and my spirits buoyant.

I pray that this may be the most fruitful (as it certainly is the most laborious) year of my itinerant life.

DAN'L DUNCAN.
Talladega, Ala., July 25, '67.

Mr. Editor: I am endeavoring to labor diligently in and for the cause of Zion. In town and country wherever and whenever I can obtain hearers, the word by me is expounded. Although in the town of Rodney, a mile from which I reside, we have no meeting house of our own, we have a few members, constituting a church. Sometimes I preach in the Baptist, sometimes in the Presbyterian place of worship, and at other times to the colored race in their places of worship—

Baptist and Methodist. The denomination has separated from the Methodist church. All of us in community labor harmoniously together. Last week, regular services were conducted, and about five hundred and eighty became members, whom only one eighth were new. My day school, of about sixty scholars, are will close at the end of month—healthy, flourishing, disciplined properly. Religion at a low ebb with us, but we and labor for better things.

Indications of cholera are among us, but we hope to stand firm the beaten anvil." The crops prospective are meagre.

Yours truly and fraternally,
R. A. NORTON.
Highlands, near Rodney, Md.

GORDON CIRCUIT, MONTGOMERY CONFERENCE.—Last Saturday, June 1st, commenced a protracted meeting at Sonle Chapel, assisted by brothers Weaver (of Ga.), Clifton, and Singleton. Saturday seemed to be very little manifested. At night several persons came to the altar for prayer. Sunday, at 11 o'clock, we had a congregation. Four persons were received into the church. At night, a good feeling seemed to pervade the entire congregation. Monday we had no service at 11 o'clock. At night we had a sermon from the third chapter and verse of the Gospel of St. John. It seemed to me that all the persons seemed to realize God's love to them. The old church sounded with praise to God. Some who never shouted before their lives, that night shouted to God. As the congregation returned home, the stillness seemed to pervade was broken the repeated shouts of glory to Tuesday, at 11 o'clock, we had a good meeting. Tuesday night another time of refreshing hearts were filled. Eight persons were converted. All refreshed, and have set out with the determination of running with patience the race that is before them.

The old church members say it was amongst the best meetings that they have seen at that place for many years. We continued meeting from Saturday, the 1st to the night of the 18th. All to feel that it was a time long remembered as a time of blessing. Yours truly,
T. S. ARMSTRONG.

NORTH PORT, ALA., July 1st.
Dear Brother:—A good many subscribers could be procured, but the want of funds. I have edited the paper and solicited subscriptions all round my circuit, and met everywhere with the reply, "want the paper, but am not ready to take it." If you can live through the present year, and no other befalls the now promising crop, will be able, I hope, to have a paper in almost every family in the year.

We are looking and praying for a revival of religion, and the indications are favorable. Have no spiritual services yet, owing to scarcity of provisions and the want of secular engagements of our members. Pray for us.

Your brother in Christ,
E. M. TURNER.

CRYSTAL SPRINGS, Miss., July 30, 1867.

Dear Brother:—I have some encouraging news to write. I sent, some month or two since, Cayuga circuit to Burlington, and I found it almost in a disorganized state. However, we went to have organized to some extent, and have good meetings, especially the church meetings. The people are willing to take up each important subject, and do justice to it. They are alive to taking the church literature. The Association share considerable of the patronage. We intend that it shall, at least. Your brother in Christ,
P. A. JONES.

CARTON CIRCUIT, MOBILE CONFERENCE.
Mr. Editor: This Circuit has been extended to six appointments, two of which are in south Sumpter, and one in north Choctaw. In addition to these, we have three large congregations of colored people, who seem to be satisfied and doing well. All preaching, and visiting of Sabbath schools has to be done on Sunday. Last year we could get no more than six Sabbath School scholars. This year, we have eight schools under Methodist control, (six of which are in a flourishing condition) and one or two nation schools. I have never seen more interest manifested anywhere. The whole Circuit is alive on the subject. The neighborhoods are so situated, that we have but three schools at the churches, the others are in schoolhouses and cabins. Where we can do no better, they clean up an old negro house, use that for a school, and get done working their hands at which time, they intend to build larger houses. A few Sabbath ago, I visited one of these schools, where they have about thirty scholars, and usually quite a number of spectators. The superintendent, (a very energetic young man) had promised to give a lecture to the school, if the preacher did not get there in time. As the preacher had to deliver two sermons in the morning, at a church about six miles distant, he did not reach the school until the superintendent was closing his location on the blessings of a Sabbath school, and the comforts of the religion of Jesus. The preacher then gave them a talk on the expansion of the Kingdom and the enlargement of the Church. Though the roads were muddy and the weather inclement, the house was filled to its utmost capacity. Oh! the joy that thrills a minister under such circumstances. What do I hear? The voice of a faithful, worn-out boy, appealing to his seniors in arms, and the youths in old homes (who have been deeply impoverished) to look into the "perfect law of liberty," and upon Jesus for safety, comfort, and eternal riches. Another appointment, (a little later) it was said, owing to the poverty of children and the intercession of the people, that we could secure more than half-a-dozen scholars. However, at our last meeting, the superintendent reported forty-four scholars. Every man, woman and child in the community attend, and all are much concerned. During the week, you may see men at the stores, at the stores and whisky, with their Bibles and Quakers, studying diligently; while asking information of whom they may chance to see. On Sabbath evening, after the service there at five o'clock, I was expectedly called to the house, to preside over a temperance meeting. It is said that there never been a more interesting place in the State. These men came to the superintendent and requested him to give a pledge, binding them upon honor, to abstain from drinking liquors, unless recommended by a physician. In the midst of all their wickedness, they themselves, and bring their children to the Sabbath school. When I visit these schools in log cabins, and see boys in their shirt sleeves, boys and girls bare-footed, clad in home-spun, with an old blanket, bought before the war, I often think how little your children in the towns appreciate their advantages. Stimulate them by giving them our condition. We have books, but can't get them; and that without fine carriages, and often bare-footed. May the Lord bless the children, help them to grow up to be men and women in the gospel.]
 Yours truly,
 J. P. EVANS.

ATHENS, Miss., July 22, '67.
Mr. Editor: I have just closed an interesting meeting. The church was graciously revived. There were about twenty-five conversions; twenty-five joined the church; it was a time of refreshing indeed. There seems to be a spirit of revival throughout the circuit. We trust that much has been done. Much remains to be done. Pray for us.
 J. T. GREGORY.

LATEST NEWS.
 London, July 31.—Lord Stanley announced in the House of Commons that Napoleon had written to the King of Prussia, but the disclosures of the note at present would be improper.

Paris, July 31.—The crops are damaged by drought.

McCormick's reaper was victorious in the reaping match on Napoleon's Vincennes farm.

Washington, July 31.—Revenue receipts $789,000. Receipts for the month $24,500,000.

Several parties have forwarded proofs that they came honestly by the Missouri bonds stolen from the Interior Department. The Secretary has removed the caveat from such cases and the interest will be paid.

A delegation from Pennsylvania, representing conservative Republicans, called on the President. They represent themselves in no condition to act with the Democratic party but propose acting distinctly.

The President declined to give them advice, but expressed himself hopeful, saying that the issue of the hour was in the people's hands.

Mr. Merrick commenced his argument to the jury for the defence. He said the feelings with which he argued the case were beyond his powers of description. It was one of unexampled character, and the manner of prosecution unprecedented in the history of the country.

It was a case of greater magnitude than any he had ever known, and its surroundings were painful in the extreme. Under your oaths you have the prisoner at the bar in charge. The Government, believing the young men to be guilty of the crime charged in the indictment, has caused him to be arraigned before you.

I find arrayed against my client the best talent at the bar, and a large number of counsel in court and out of court, and I find high officers of the Government leaving their duties and devoting themselves to manipulating the witnesses for the prosecution. I find numbers of detectives all over the country, working up the testimony in this case, and millions of dollars appropriated, and all for what? To consign to the gibbet the poor, penniless young man, who have heard much about conspiracies, gentlemen, there are other conspiracies, why is it that there are all these appliances and all this vast machinery in this case?

Why all this wonderful array of counsel here and elsewhere? The course of this prosecution has convinced me that although they nominally represent the interests of society, there are two sets—one represents the government of the United States in its assumed official majesty, and the other represents certain officers of the government seeking to justify themselves.

What has been the case in this trial? Wherever any technical rule of law could be invoked, it has been to exclude testimony to throw that light on the subject which you ought to have. One hundred and fifty odd exceptions taken by the defendant's counsel encumber this record; it can only be accounted for by the fact that the attorneys of the United States have strained every point, and invoked every discretion of the court against my client. Instead of representing the United States properly, every sentiment calculated to excite your prejudice has been urged upon you, such as I have never heard or seen before. Why has the District Attorney told you of the shooting of Union soldiers? Why has he told you of the hanging of the telegraph operator, and why has he looked at the prisoner at the bar, and told him, "you are a dying man, a traitor and a coward." It was to stir up in your heart all the passions and animosities which we have seen during our late war. Shame on the United States! I blush to see my country thus degraded in this way—asking twelve honest jurors such questions.

Memphis, July 31.—There are no apprehensions of trouble here to-morrow.

The cholera has again appeared in the southern part of the city. There were six deaths in a house on Mulberry street, and five in one on Front Row.

St. Louis, July 31.—An Omaha dispatch says the Indians are concentrating at Big Mud River Mountains.

The exports of assayed bullion from Nevada last week were $221,000. Receipts of crude bullion, $641,000.

France and Mexico.—The New York Tribune, in an editorial on this subject, says:

It is difficult to say what influence the defeat of the French government, first in Mexico, and now in the Legislative body, may have upon the condition of the Empire, and the prospects of the Napoleonic dynasty. Candid observers, however much they may regret the misrule to which France has fallen a prey, can hardly deny that Louis Napoleon has really control of the votes of the immense majority of Frenchmen. If wholesale frauds at the election were easy as some imagine, the French government would hardly have resisted the temptation of securing some representation in Paris. The political sentiments of cities and provinces show themselves now-a-days on many other occasions than election day; and all the information that we get from the rural districts in France, concurs in showing the people to be, if not ardent Napoleonists, at least servile adherents of the existing government. Before we can expect the French peasants to be influenced by the speeches of Thiers and Favre, they must learn to read. Diffusion of elementary education must precede the progress of liberal opinions, and it would therefore, we believe, be unreasonable to expect from debates like those on the Mexican expedition any sudden and radical influence upon the state of public opinion.

ECCLIASTICAL TROUBLE.—Rev. Stephen H. Tyng, Jr., it would seem, has got into difficulty in New Jersey. The facts, in brief, are stated as follows:

"The Doctor is an extreme low churchman. A few Sundays ago he preached in a Methodist church at New Brunswick, both morning and evening, in disregard of the remonstrance and prohibition of the Rev. Dr. Stubbs, rector of Christ Church."

On the following day proceedings were commenced against Mr. Tyng for his breach of church law, and immediately after a formal presentment was made to Bishop Odenheimer, who in accordance with the canon, transmitted a copy of it to the standing committee of the Diocese of New York, the ecclesiastical authority with whom the matter now rests.

The standing committee, it is understood, are unanimously in favor of bringing the offender to trial, in order to make a test case that will put an end to all such alleged irregularities of the Episcopal Church.

SAILED FOR OREGON.—Bishop Kavanaugh and wife, with Rev. Joseph Emery and family, left San Francisco on the Oryzopsis, on Monday last, for Portland, Oregon. The Bishop proposes to visit the principal localities in Oregon, prior to the time of holding the Columbia Conference, which is to meet at Corvallis, August 28th. May great good result from the labors of our devoted and beloved Bishop in Oregon!—San Francisco Spectator, June 22d, 1867.

DISCOVERIES IN SYRIA.—Lovers of biblical antiquities will rejoice to hear that the excavations now being made in Syria have resulted in the discovery at Nadir Sarape, of a Hebrew house dating from about the second century before Christ. Some of the rooms, with their contents, are in perfect preservation, among the latter being a number of Hebrew books, showing that the house belonged to literary man. Besides the books of Moses and the Psalms of David, there is a collection of Hebrew poems, absolutely unknown to the Orientalists of our day. These interesting remains, many of which bear traces of Egyptian origin, have been sent to the Asiatic Society of London.

MARRIED.
 On Tuesday evening, the 23rd July, at the Methodist Church, in Brookhaven, Miss., by Rev. L. R. Redding, Pastor, Mr. WILLIAM B. M. GILBERT, of New Orleans, to Miss MOLLIE L. daughter of Rev. Geo. F. Thompson, of the Mississippi Conference.

SPECIAL NOTICES.
NOTICE.
 BASTROP, July 20, '67.

There will be a District Meeting for Monroe District, to be held at Bastrop, to commence on the 30th day of August, '67, at which all travelling and Local Preachers, exhorters, District stewards, Sunday-school Superintendents, and class leaders, are respectfully requested to attend, and as many of the members of the church as possible.

JAMES S. WRIGHT, P. E.

NOTICE.
 For reasons considered just and good, the meeting of the Convention of Natchez District is postponed until the 25th of September next.
 J. A. GODFREY.

Brookhaven Dist.—Miss Conference.
THIRD ROUND OF QUARTERLY MEETINGS.
 Wesson June 8, 9
 Crystal Springs, Georgetown 22, 23
 Hazlehurst, White Bay 15, 16
 Brookhaven, July 6, 7
 Holmesville, Summit 13, 14
 Meadville, Smyrna 20, 21
 Bayou Chitto, Monticello 27, 28
 Bayou Pierre, Pleasant Valley Aug 3, 4
 Pearl River 10, 11
 Scotland, Bethesda 17, 18
 G. W. MILLSAP, P. E.

Summerfield District Meeting.
 A District Meeting for the Summerfield District will be held at Uniontown, commencing Thursday, the 12th Sept. The official members of the church within the bounds of the district, are all members of the District Meeting Conference, and are earnestly requested and expected to attend. Arrangements will be made to carry the members over the railroads at half price.
 A. H. MITCHELL, P. E.

Yazoo District—Mississippi Conference.
THIRD ROUND OF QUARTERLY MEETINGS.
 Lexington at Oregon June 15, 16
 Greenwood, at Greenwood 22, 23
 Carrollton, at Mt Zion 29, 30
 Emory, at Enon July 6, 7
 Holmes, at Wheeling 13, 14
 Richmond, at Goodman 20, 21
 Black Hawk, at Sweetwater Aug 3, 4
 Mount Olivet, at Fletcher Chapel 17, 18
 Yazoo, at Mt Carmel 24, 25
 Yazoo City Station Aug 31 Sept 1

In addition to the above appointments I will preach, Deo volente, at the following places and times.

Lexington, June 18, 8 o'clock P. M.
 Sweetwater, " 19, 11 " A. M.
 Black Hawk, " 20, 8 " P. M.
 Carrollton, " 27, 8 " "
 Edan, " 28, 8 " "
 Durant, July 19, 8 " "
 Benton Aug 16, 8 " "

BRETHREN: Have religious services on the stated fast-days. Our District Meeting will commence at Sweetwater, Black Hawk Circuit, on the first day of August. I urge upon the Preachers the importance of having everything in readiness for the Quarterly Meetings. They should be made, as far as possible, occasions of interest and profit to the Church.

J. M. PUGH, P. E.

The District Meeting for the Jacksonville District, Montgomery Conference, will be held at Columbia, to commence on Friday before the third Sunday in July next. Bishop Wightman will be present. All the preachers, traveling and local, elected delegates and official members, are expected to attend. Ample accommodations, and a hearty welcome are extended to all.
 L. M. WILSON, P. E.
 Columbia, Ala., June 19, 1867.

Lake Providence Dist.—La. Conference.
THIRD ROUND OF QUARTERLY MEETINGS.
 Delhi & Floyd Ct., at Midway, July 29, 28
 Carroll, at Carlisle, Aug 3, 4
 Oakley, at Bonif Prairie 10, 11
 Ion, Little Creek Chapel, 24, 25
 Tensas and Sicily, Sicily Island Sept 7, 8
 Waterproof & St. Joseph, Waterproof 14, 15

Also a District Meeting for Lake Providence District, to be held at Oakley Camp ground, to commence on the 27th Sept., at which all the traveling and local preachers, exhorters, district stewards Sunday-school superintendents and class leaders, are respectfully requested to attend, and as many of the members of the church as possible.

Wm. G. McGAUGHY, P. E.

Tuskaloosa District—Mobile Conference.
THIRD ROUND OF QUARTERLY MEETINGS.
 Marion May 25, 26
 Greensboro June 1, 2
 New Bern and Oak Grove " 8, 9
 Brush Creek " 15, 16
 Liberty " 22, 23
 Scottsville and Carlhage July 6, 7
 Tuskaloosa " 13, 14
 Havana " 20, 21
 Rutaw " 27, 28
 Forkland Aug 3, 4
 J. L. COTTON, P. E.

Mobile District—Mobile Conference.
THIRD ROUND OF QUARTERLY MEETINGS.
 Mobile, St. Paul's June 22, 23
 Franklin street 29, 30
 St. Francis July 6, 7
 Whistler & Cottage Hill, at Cottage Hill 13, 14
 Citronelle, at George's 20, 21
 Eastern shore & Fish River, at P. Clear 27, 28
 Bay shore and Passagoula at Zion Aug 3, 4
 Ocean Springs at Ocean Springs 10, 11
 Wayneboro, at Buckatuna 17, 18
 St. Stephens & State Line, at State Line 24, 25
 Thos. W. DORMAN, P. E.

Shreveport Dist.—Louisiana Conference.
THIRD ROUND OF QUARTERLY MEETINGS.
 Many, at Bayou Lee, June 1, 2
 Anacoco, Kissatchie, " 8, 9
 Pleasant Hill, at Bethel, " 15, 16
 Shreveport July 6, 7
 N. Rosier, at Collinsburg, " 13, 14
 Belle, at Keatchie, " 20, 21
 Caddo, at Keatchie, " 27, 28
 Springville, at Holly's S. H. Aug 3, 4
 Mansfield, at Foster's Chapel 10, 11
 B. F. ALEXANDER, P. E.
 Address: Mansfield, La.

NEW ADVERTISEMENTS.
KICKERBOCKER LIFE INSURANCE CO., OF NEW YORK.
 Mutual Plan.....Assets $2,450,000
 General Agent for the State of Mississippi,
 H. S. FULKERSON.....JACKSON, Miss.

NOTE: Ministers of the Gospel in the State of Mississippi, upon giving satisfactory reference, will be appointed agents of this Company, upon applying in person, or by letter, to the General Agent at JACKSON, Miss., or when more convenient to H. O. PAXSON, Manager, 50 and 52 Camp street, New Orleans, by whom the necessary blanks will be sent to them. Aug 3-3m

RICHARDSON & MAY, COTTON FACTORS, AND GENERAL COMMISSION MERCHANTS.
 No 40 Perdido Street, New Orleans.
 July 27 tf

W. R. MAYO, New Orleans. C. W. HODGE, Union Parish.
MAYO & HODGE.
COTTON FACTORS
 And General Commission Merchants.
 No. 50 CARONDELET ST., NEW ORLEANS, LA.,
 July 17 tf

J. W. BURBRIDGE & CO., Cotton Factors & Commission Merchants.
 No. 180 GRAVIER STREET, NEW ORLEANS.
 sept 6m

COLLEGIATE INSTITUTE AT BATON ROUGE.
TENTH SESSION.

The exercises of the school will be resumed on Wednesday, October 24, 1867.

The facilities are afforded for the acquisition of a first-rate education: Particular care is bestowed on the moral and social culture of the pupils.

There is but one session in the year and every student who enters the school is expected to continue to the close of the session in July, and will be held liable for the bills in all cases, unless protracted illness shall compel his removal.

Every pupil is required to furnish his own bedding, towels, wash-basin, mosquito-net, all marked distinctly with his own name—also, a satchel for dirty clothes.

It is urgently requested that Students be prompt in their attendance. A few days absence at the beginning is often a serious disadvantage during the entire session.

TERMS: Board and Tuition per session, $360. PAYMENTS.—$200 in advance—balance 1st March.

Tuition of Day Scholars, per session, $75 00 payable—one half in advance—balance 1st March.

Modern languages will be taught when the wants of the School demand it, at an extra charge as low as it can be made.

No expense is spared to secure as Teachers, gentlemen of the highest character and ability.
 W. H. N. MAGRUDER, Jr.
 Baton Rouge, La., June 1867. Aug 8-6m

WANTED.
TEACHER'S SITUATION WANTED.
 A lady who can produce the first testimonials of ability and success as an instructress, wishes to engage a position as teacher for the ensuing school year: is well qualified to teach the English branches, French, and music. References given and required. Terms, for a limited number of scholars, $40 per month, and board. Address, A. B. C., care of Rev. Doctor Neely, Mobile. July 27

SOUTHERN UNIVERSITY, GREENSBORO, ALA.
FAULTY.
 Bishop W. M. Wightman, D. D., LL. D.
 Rev. E. Weddworth, A. M., D. D.
 O. F. Casey, A. M.
 Rev. J. C. Williams, A. M.
 N. T. Laplan, A. M.

The next session of this institution will begin on the first Wednesday in October next. Instruction will be given in the Schools of Ancient and Modern Languages, Moral Philosophy, Mathematics, Chemistry, Natural Philosophy, and Biblical Literature.

The Preparatory School will be under the direct supervision of the Faculty.

The Session is divided into two terms. Tuition in University per term, $40 00 incidental fee, 5 00 Tuition in Preparatory school per term $30 to $35 Contingent fee, 10 00 Board, exclusive of washing and lights, $20 to $25 per month. All dues payable in advance. July 27 tf O. F. CASEY, Sec. Faculty.

RANDOLPH MACON COLLEGE, VA.
 The next session of this Institution commences on the 19th September, 1867. As evidence of her success as an educator of young men, she points to her graduates all over the South. No location surpasses this in point of health.

The town of Boydton and surrounding country has but one physician, and he is but half-employed. In addition to the schools of Moral Philosophy, Ancient Languages, Mathematics, Natural Philosophy and Modern Languages, we have also a school of Commercial Science, in which are taught the branches of a business education. Young men attend any schools they wish, and get a showing for whatever they accomplish. It is our intention hereafter, to fill up our vacations with a special session, so that young men can review any studies they wish, but more particularly to teach English grammar, Commercial Arithmetic, Book-keeping, Penmanship, and Commercial Law. Thus, our students can take the Literary and Scientific course during the session, and get a practical instruction in business during the vacations. A Special Session in vacation covers the heated term in the South when business is over, and young men already engaged in business can come here to perfect their knowledge of Commercial Science, and return to the South in time to resume business.

Expenses for ten months, including meals, use of furniture, (averaged,) fuel, lights, washing, matriculation and contingent fee, tuition in three schools, so as to occupy the student's whole time—$300, one-half payable at the commencement of each term.

A daily line of hacks, Sundays excepted, runs from Roanoke station (Richmond & Danville Railroad) to Boydton. Send for circulars.

Randolph, Macon College, Boydton, Mecklenburg Co., Va., July 20, '67.
 July 27 tf Thos. C. JOHNSON, President.

EMORY & HENRY COLLEGE, WASHINGTON CO., VA.
 Our Fall session begins on the 15th of August next. Charges for session of five months, payable in currency and in advance, are as follows:

Tuition in collegiate course, $30 00 Fuel, room rent and contingent fee, 10 00 Tuition in Preparatory Department is $5 00.

Board can be had in private families at the College, for $13 per month, if paid or satisfactorily arranged, monthly in advance. Those seeking collegiate advantages are invited to investigate our terms. For additional information, Address, E. E. WILEY, Pres't, Emory P. O., Va. July 29

PAUL J. CHRISTIAN, GENERAL STATIONER, BLANK BOOK MANUFACTURER.
 NO. 38 CAMP ST.,
 All orders in my line promptly filled. July 13-6m

CENTRAL AMERICA.
 BELIZE, BRITISH HONDURAS.

Will sail positively on SATURDAY, August 24, at 6 P. M.

The splendid steamship General Sherman.
 JEFF. PENPLETON, Commander.

Carrying the United States and British Honduras mails, will sail as above, from Post 16, First District, for Belize direct. All mail matter must pass through the Post Office. No berths secured until paid for.

For freight or passage apply to LOVELL & BAILEY, 23 Carondelet street.

Parties desiring to visit Santa Thomas, Tinsabel and Omas can secure passage on the Steamer Enterprise or schooners from Belize. Aug 4-3t

THE BRANCH OF THE SOUTHERN METHODIST PUBLISHING HOUSE, at 112 Camp street, is ready to fill orders for the latest revised edition of the Discipline, with the paragraphs relating to Lay Representation.

24 mo muslin 60c.
 Sent by mail at 70c.
 Prices for other qualities of binding, unchanged.

Also a duodecimo Edition of the Discipline with large margins for the convenience of those who wish to make notes.
 Roan $1 50
 " Gilt 2 00
 Turkey Morocco 3 00

Sent by mail for 20 cts additional.
 Also just received, THE SUNDAY SERVICE, ordered by the late General Conference.

Sheep 1 25
 Roan 1 50
 Roan Gilt 2 00
 Turkey Morocco 3 00
 S. S. Bells (single) $4 25 per doz.
 " (Double) 6 50
 Sent by mail for 20 cents additional.
 July 13—R. J. HARR, Agt.

WOODVILLE FEMALE SEMINARY.
 WOODVILLE, MISSISSIPPI.
 Will begin its THIRD ANNUAL Session on Wednesday, September 25th, 1867, and close it on the First Wednesday in July, 1868.

CHARGES PER HALF SESSION.
 BOARD.....$150
 TUITION IN PRIMARY GRADE.....30
 " MIDDLE GRADE.....40
 " COLLEGIATE GRADE.....50
 Music with use of Piano.....45
 ORNAMENTALS AT FAIR PRICES.
 For particulars send for Circular to W. T. J. SULLIVAN, Principal. July 20

MARTHA WASHINGTON COLLEGE, Abingdon, Va.
 Under the patronage of the Holston Conference, Methodist Episcopal Church, South.
 First term of twenty weeks, for the ensuing year, begins the first Wednesday in August, and closes the 31st of December.

Second term begins 19th February, 1868, and closes second Wednesday in July.

Board for Session of ten months.....$150
 Tuition in Collegiate department, 10 mos., 60
 " Preparatory " 40
 Fuel, for Boarders, " 10
 " Day scholars, " 5
 Music on Piano, " 8
 French, German, Spanish or Italian, each, 20
 No extra charge for Greek or Latin.
 Young ladies pay for their own washing and lights.
 No charge for use of room or use of piano.
 Oil Painting.....$30
 Drawing, Water Colors, Crayon, &c., each, 20
 No tuition charged to Ministers' daughters.
 Bills payable semi-annually, in advance.
 For further information, apply to July 6-3m B. ARBOGAST, Pres't.

FEMALE COLLEGIATE INSTITUTE, JACKSON, TENNESSEE.
 Rev. A. W. Jones, President.

The Institution for young ladies, of the South. Send your daughters, and full satisfaction shall be given in all respects.
 For particulars, address the President. July 30-4w

ST. LOUIS MUTUAL LIFE INSURANCE COMPANY.
 D. A. JANUARY, President.
 GEO. H. LUCAS, Vice President.
 J. R. FURVIE, Agent.
 Office No 44 Camp Street, New Orleans, La.

ALEX. BRITTON, RICH'D. F. BRITTON, A. BRITTON & CO., General Steamboat Agents, COMMISSION & FORWARDING MERCHANTS.
 No 7 Front street, New Orleans
 July 6-6m

F. L. RICHARDSON, J. D. COLEMAN, RICHARDSON & COLEMAN, ATTORNEY AT LAW.
 No. 5 Commercial Place, New Orleans.

DR. O. J. BICKHAM, OFFICE—COLLEGE BUILDING, Corner Baronne & Common Streets, Residence, 1850 Magazine street, between Philip and First streets, New Orleans. Office hours, From 11 o'clock, A. M. to 3 P. M. July 29

DR. J. M. MAGEE, DENTAL SURGEON.
 No. 107 Carondelet Street.
 One door above Poydras, on the left hand side.
 Jan 20 ly

FOR RENT.
 Lake shore Residence—on Ocean Springs: directly fronting the beach: five rooms: wide galleries front and rear, forty-seven feet long: some heavy furniture in the house. Apply to the office of New Orleans Christian Advocate.

100-100000

127

12

U. S. DEPARTMENT OF AGRICULTURE

may be dated back, if desired.

NEW ORLEANS MARKETS.

From the N. O. Price Current.

The general market has exhibited even more than its usual summer dullness, since our last issue. The stock of Cotton is now reduced to so low a point that there is very little scope left to buyers, who have great difficulty in finding the descriptions they want in the supply offering at the ruling rates. A part of the stock, as is usual at the close of the season, is held back until a later period. The movement in Western Produce has been on a limited scale, very little has been done in Tobacco, and the sales of Sugar and Molasses have been confined to retail transactions. We notice the receipt of a bale of new Cotton at Savannah. None has come to hand here yet. Our first receipt last year was on the 7th August, but there have been receipts on the 5th, 15th, 25th and 29th July.

The course of the New York market and the scarcity of commercial bills have imparted increased buoyancy to Foreign Exchange, but with very slight offerings the movement has been of limited extent. Domestic has continued quiet, with a very moderate counter demand, and no quotable variation in rates.

We have no change to notice in Freight. The offerings are limited, and rates steadily maintained.

The weather has been warm and showery. The accounts from several parts of Louisiana are more favorable for cotton. The rains had nearly ceased and the caterpillar was disappearing under a dry hot spell. From other quarters our advices are less encouraging.

COTTON.—We left the market, at the time of our last review, with limited supplies and favorable intelligence from Liverpool, by which factors were enabled to realize a slight improvement. On Saturday, there being few inducements offered to buyers either in the supplies offering or the views of factors, the demand was limited and the sales were confined to 350 bales. On Monday, although there was little more competition among buyers, yet the market exhibited increased buoyancy, and in some instances factors realized an advance of about 1/2c per lb, the business was on a limited scale not exceeding 500 bales. Tuesday the movement was more active. A larger number of brokers participated in the business, and as factors evinced a willingness to meet the demand at Monday's prices, fully 1500 bales changed hands at figures in accordance with our revised quotations.

This makes an aggregate for the past three days of 2350 bales, taken partly for the North, but mostly for foreign export.

The receipts proper since Friday evening comprise 564 bales, against 723 during the corresponding period last week, showing an increase of 159 bales.

The receipts at this port, since the 1st of September, (exclusive of the arrivals from Mobile, Florida and Texas,) are 708, 556 bales, against 673,402 bales to same date last year, and the decrease in the receipts at all the ports, up to the latest dates, as compared with last year, is 179,306 bales. In the exports from the United States to foreign countries, as compared with the same dates last year, there is a decrease of 10,353 bales to Great Britain, of 17,669 to France, and an increase of 61,896 bales to other foreign ports.

We quote as follows:

| | |
|---------------|----------|
| Low | to |
| Ordinary | 20 to 22 |
| Good Ordinary | 23 to 24 |
| Low Middling | 25 to 26 |
| Middling | 27 to 28 |

TOBACCO.—During the past three days the market has been quiet, but very firm at the subjoined quotations:

| | |
|-------------|------------|
| Light | Heavy |
| Low Refused | 4 to 4 1/2 |
| Good do | 5 to 5 1/2 |
| Common Leaf | 6 to 6 1/2 |
| Medium | 7 to 7 1/2 |
| Prime | 8 to 8 1/2 |
| Choice | 9 to 9 1/2 |

Cattle Market.

| | |
|--------------------------------------|-------------|
| Western Beef, choice per lb net | to |
| Western Beef, 2d quality, per lb net | to |
| Texas Cattle 2d qual, per head | $45 to 55 |
| Texas Cattle 3d qual, per head | $30 to 40 |
| Texas Cattle 4d qual, per head | $15 to 20 |
| Wagon 1st qual, per head | $20 to 25 |
| Sheep, 1st quality per head | $20 to 25 |
| Sheep, 2d | $15 to 20 |
| Sheep, 3d | $10 to 15 |
| Milch Cows, choice per head | $80 to 125 |
| Milch Cows, per head | $50 to 80 |
| Texas Cows, with Calves | $5 to 20 |
| Yearlings, per head | $5 to 15 |
| Calves per head | $4 to 10 |

HORSE AND MULE MARKET.

| | |
|---------------------------------|----------------|
| Saddle and light harness Horses | $200 to $400 |
| Heavy draft Horses | 175 to 350 |
| Common do | 75 to 150 |
| Mules, 1st quality, broke | 200 to 220 |
| Do 2d do | 140 to 160 |
| Do 1st do unbroke | 150 to 180 |
| Do 2d do do | 75 to 120 |
| Mexican Mules | 40 to 90 |

Monetary.

The money market proper is without any material change since our last report. The general stagnation of trade has diminished the call for accommodations from the commercial classes, but still there is a moderate amount doing by the banks in unexceptionable business paper. They also accept mortgage paper to a limited extent at 8 per cent per annum. In the open market the latter is done at 10 to 12 but lenders exact productive city property as security, and demand which secure prompt payment.

N. O. WHOLESALE PRICES.

CAREFULLY CORRECTED AND REVISED WEEKLY.

(Made up from Actual Sales as they Transpire)

| ARTICLES. | FROM | TO |
|-------------------------|-------|-------|
| Agricultural Implements | 4 75 | 22 00 |
| Cotton Sugar Yarn | 9 50 | 10 50 |
| Cotton Scrapers | 7 00 | 7 50 |
| Sweeps | — | 7 50 |
| Calivers | — | 13 00 |
| Shovels | 10 00 | 18 00 |
| Spades | 11 00 | 20 00 |
| Axes | 15 | 18 00 |

| | |
|-----------------------------|-------|
| Dogging, per yard: | |
| Kentucky | — |
| East India | 26 |
| Bate Rope, Kentucky, per lb | 104 |
| Brass, per 100 lbs | 1 25 |
| Crackers | 11 00 |
| Bricks, Lake, per M | 20 00 |
| Englab, Fire | 45 00 |
| Candles, per lb: | |
| Sperm, N Bedford | 42 |
| Tallow | 20 |
| Adamantine | 16 |
| Star | 16 |
| Chocolate, No 1 per lb | 50 |
| Sweet and Spiced | 35 |
| Cider, Western per bbl | none |
| Northern | none |
| Cord, Cannel per ton | 11 |
| Western, per barrel | 55 |
| Coffee, Rio, per lb | 22 |
| Havana | 35 |
| Java | 38 |
| St. Domingo | 26 |

| | |
|-------------------------|-------|
| Cotton Seed: | |
| Anthracite per ton | 11 |
| Western, per barrel | 55 |
| Copper, Rio, per lb | 22 |
| Havana | 35 |
| Java | 38 |
| St. Domingo | 26 |
| Copper, Braziers per lb | 38 |
| Sheathing | 38 |
| Copper Bolts, 10 x 12 | 30 |
| Yellow Metal | 30 |
| Cordage, Manila, per lb | 23 |
| Tanned, American | 21 |
| Russia | 30 |
| Corn Meal, per bbl | 6 00 |
| Logwood, Camp's | 5 |
| St. Domingo | 3 |
| Fustic, Tampico | 5 |
| Indigo, per lb | 1 00 |
| Madder | 18 |
| Eggs, 8 doz, Western | 90 |
| Feathers, per lb | 1 00 |
| Fish, Cod, per box | 1 85 |
| Herrings | 75 |
| Mackerel, No 1, per bbl | 21 00 |
| No 2 | 20 00 |
| No 3 | 16 50 |

| | |
|----------------------------|--------|
| Flaxseed, per lb: | |
| Superfine | 11 00 |
| Extra | 11 50 |
| Flour, per bbl: | |
| Superfine | 8 00 |
| Extra | 9 00 |
| Fruit, Prunes, per bbl | 18 |
| Pigs, Drum | 23 |
| Dried Apples | 6 |
| Currents, Zante | 17 |
| Almonds, soft shell | 34 |
| Raisins, M R, per box | 4 15 |
| Lemon, soft shell | 4 35 |
| Lem's Selly, per box | 11 50 |
| Mulaga, per box | — |
| Oranges, Lm, per 1000 | 7 00 |
| Glass, per box of 50 feet: | |
| French, 8 x 10 | 4 50 |
| 12 x 18 | 6 00 |
| Grain, per bushel: | |
| Malt, Western | 1 00 |
| Oats | 1 50 |
| Corn, shelled per bushel | 1 00 |
| Beans, per bbl | 16 00 |
| Hops, per lb | 65 |
| Gunpowder, per keg | 7 50 |
| Gunny Bags, per bag | 22 1/2 |
| Hay, Western, per ton | 18 00 |
| Northern | 30 00 |
| Louisiana | none |

| | |
|---------------------------|-------|
| Hides, per lb: | |
| Dry salted Mexican | 19 |
| Wet salted city slaughter | 20 |
| Kipshins | 11 |
| Dry country | 11 |
| Pelts, per piece | 20 |
| Iron, Pig, per ton | 45 00 |
| Country, Bar, per lb | 6 1/2 |
| English, per lb | 8 1/2 |
| Hoop, per lb | 8 |
| Sheet | 11 |
| Boller | 9 |
| Nail Rods | 12 |
| Iron Cotton Ties | 9 |
| Castings, American | 7 1/2 |
| Lime, Western, per bbl | 1 50 |
| Shell Lime | 1 50 |
| Rockland, do | 2 10 |
| Cement | 2 75 |
| Molasses, per gallon: | |
| Louisiana | 48 |
| Muscovada | 48 |
| Refined, Reballed | 48 |
| Moss, per lb: | |
| Gray, Country | 3 1/2 |
| Black do | 4 1/2 |
| Sisal, water rotted | 6 |
| Nails, Am, do 4 x 4 1/2 | 16 |
| Wrought, German | 16 |
| English | 18 |

| | |
|----------------------------|--------|
| Naval Stores, per bbl: | |
| Tar | 4 00 |
| Pitch | 3 50 |
| Rosin & N No 1 | 3 50 |
| No 2 | 3 50 |
| No 3 | 3 25 |
| Spirits Turp, per gallon | 48 |
| Varnish, bright | 2 90 |
| Coal Oil, per gallon | 1 10 |
| Coal do | 1 15 |
| Colton Seed, Crude | 45 |
| Refined | 48 |
| Tanners' per gallon | 1 25 |
| Oil Cake, Linseed per ton | 37 50 |
| Cotton Seed | none |
| Meal | here |
| Provisions, per bbl: | |
| Beef, Mess, Northern | 20 00 |
| Western | 15 00 |
| North half bbl | 14 00 |
| Dried, per lb | 15 |
| Tongues, per doz | 1 00 |
| Pork, Mess | 26 00 |
| Prime Mess | 21 00 |
| Hog, round, per lb | none |
| Bacon, Hams, per lb | 15 |
| Do, canvassed | 19 |
| Sides | 14 |
| Shoulders | 13 1/2 |
| Green Shoulders | 13 |
| Lard, Prime, in tierces | 13 1/2 |
| Do, in kegs | 14 |
| Butter, Northern | 23 |
| Western | 23 |
| Cheese, American | 10 |
| Potatoes, per bbl | 4 25 |
| Onions | 6 00 |
| Green Apples | 4 50 |
| Rice, per lb | 10 |
| India | 11 |
| Carroll | 14 |
| Saltpetre, refined, per lb | 14 |
| Crode | 12 |

| | |
|------------------------------|--------|
| Salt per sack: | |
| Liverpool, fine, warehouse | 2 25 |
| from store | 2 25 |
| coarse, cargo | 2 00 |
| Liverpool | 2 10 |
| from warehouse | 2 20 |
| Cakes, brine and, per bushel | 8 |
| Soap, per lb | 8 |
| Northern | 10 |
| Southern | 10 |
| Casile | 14 |
| Sugar, Louisiana, per lb: | |
| Havana, White | 13 1/2 |
| Yellow | 14 1/2 |
| Br w | 10 1/2 |
| Tobacco, in hds, per lb: | |
| Bakers & Cutters | 19 |
| Choice, Selection | 17 |
| Medium Leaf | 13 1/2 |
| Pair Leaf | 11 |
| Common Leaf | 9 1/2 |
| Good Refused | 5 |
| Common Refused | 4 |
| Texas, Cotton, per lb | 9 |
| Balling | 50 |
| Wool, Washed, per lb | 27 |
| Berry | 10 |
| Louisiana, Native | 18 |
| Texas 1st Melina | 21 |

ADVOCATE CALENDAR, 1867.

| MONTHS. | SUNDAY. | MONDAY. | TUESDAY. | WEDNESDAY. | THURSDAY. | FRIDAY. | SATURDAY. |
|---------|---------|---------|----------|------------|-----------|---------|-----------|
| JAN. | 1 | 2 | 3 | 4 | 5 | 6 | 7 |
| FEB. | 1 | 2 | 3 | 4 | 5 | 6 | 7 |
| MAR. | 1 | 2 | 3 | 4 | 5 | 6 | 7 |
| APR. | 1 | 2 | 3 | 4 | 5 | 6 | 7 |
| MAY. | 1 | 2 | 3 | 4 | 5 | 6 | 7 |
| JUNE. | 1 | 2 | 3 | 4 | 5 | 6 | 7 |
| JULY. | 1 | 2 | 3 | 4 | 5 | 6 | 7 |
| AUG. | 1 | 2 | 3 | 4 | 5 | 6 | 7 |
| SEPT. | 1 | 2 | 3 | 4 | 5 | 6 | 7 |
| OCT. | 1 | 2 | 3 | 4 | 5 | 6 | 7 |
| NOV. | 1 | 2 | 3 | 4 | 5 | 6 | 7 |
| DEC. | 1 | 2 | 3 | 4 | 5 | 6 | 7 |

B. S. HARPER & CO., N. J. THAXTON.

Cotton and Tobacco Factors,

AND GENERAL COMMISSION MERCHANTS,

No. 81 Carondelet street, New Orleans.

aug18 17

CHENOWETH, CASEY & CO.,

COMMISSION MERCHANTS.

For sale of Pork, Bacon, Beef, Flour, and

Western Produce generally,

53 Gravier street, New Orleans.

sep15 17

H. M. WRIGHT, C. W. ALLEN, J. HIDDLESTON

(1st August, 1865)

WRIGHT, ALLEN & CO.,

Cotton Factors & Commission Merchants

169 GRAVIER STREET, NEW ORLEANS.

aug25 17

THOS. H. ALLEN, JAMES M. ALLEN, New

Memphis, Tenn. FERRY NOBLE, Orleans

T. H. & J. M. ALLEN,

(Successors to ROBSON & ALLEN),

Cotton Factors & Commission Merchants

102 COMMON STREET, NEW ORLEANS.

aug18 17

WILLIAM FELLOWES, JUN.,

(Successor to FELLOWES & CO.)

Cotton Factor and Commission Merchant

186 COMMON STREET, NEW ORLEANS.

DAN. P. LOGAN, Agent.

sep15 17

OSER, NANKIN & CO., LEWIS, NANKIN & CO.,

New York, N.Y. St. Louis.

OBER, ATWATER & CO.,

Cotton Factors & Commission Merchants

88 UNION STREET, NEW ORLEANS.

sep15 17

S. M. SWENSON, W. M. PERKINS, J.

N.Y., late of Austin, Tex. D. L. KERNION,

Of Perkins & Co., N.O.

PERKINS, SWENSON, & CO.,

GENERAL COMMISSION MERCHANTS,

No. 48 Carondelet, corner of Union street,

NEW ORLEANS.

aug25 17

SWENSON, PERKINS & CO.,

GENERAL COMMISSION MERCHANTS,

26 Exchange Place, New York.

sep15 17

EDW'D NALLE, W. C. DAY,

NALE, DAY & CO.,

Cotton Factors, Commission Merchants,

168 COMMON STREET, NEW ORLEANS.

n13 17

ALEX. P. STEWART, CHAS. S. STEWART,

OF Lebanon, Tenn. OF New Orleans, La

STEWART & BROTHER,

Cotton and Tobacco Factors,

General Commission, Receiving and For-

warding Merchants,

No. 124 CARONDELET STREET, NEW ORLEANS

oct27 17

S. H. ABY & CO.,

Cotton Factors, Commission Merchants

186 GRAVIER STREET, NEW ORLEANS.

oct13 6m

ES KEPP, I. CAULFIELD,

KEEP & CAULFIELD,

Western Produce

AND COMMISSION MERCHANTS,

Nos. 77 & 79 Poydras street, New Orleans.

oct13 17

HENRY WARE, WM. H. WARE,

OF Texas.

H. WARE & SON,

Cotton and Wool Factors,

AND COMMISSION MERCHANTS,

No. 63 Carondelet street, New Orleans.

oct13 17

CARHART, WHITFORD & CO.,

Manufacturers and Dealers in

CLOTHING,

AMERICAN EXPRESS BUILDING

Hudson street,

New York.

april 20-27 3m

RATKINSON & CO, JAMES BEWITT & CO.,

New York. Liverpool.

HEWITT, NORTON & CO.,

COTTON FACTORS,

And Commission Merchants,

188 COMMON STREET, NEW ORLEANS.

—

As Cash Advances made on consignments to us by Hewitt, Swinson & Co., Galveston,

Texas.

sep15 17

WATTS, GIVEN & CO, WATTS, CRANE & CO

Pacific, N.Y. New York.

C. W. WATTS & CO, Liverpool, England.

GIVEN, WATTS & CO, COTTON

Factors & General Commission Merchants,

No. 103 Poydras street, New Orleans. Parties shipping their Cotton to us, can make their election, and have their choice of this, the New York or Liverpool market. Advances made on consignments to our houses, Watts, Crane & Co

New York, and W. C. Watts & Co. Liverpool.

sep13-17 12

PHILIP WERLEIN,

82.....Baronne Street.....82

Successor of the well known music houses of

PH. P. WERLEIN and P. P. WERLEIN & HALEY.

CHRISTIAN ADVOCATE

ORGAN OF THE M. E. CHURCH SOUTH FOR THE MOBILE, MONTGOMERY, MISSISSIPPI AND LOUISIANA CONFERENCES

NEW ORLEANS, SATURDAY, AUGUST 10, 1867.

$3.00 A YEAR IN ADVANCE.
OFFICE—112 CAMP STREET.

NEW ORLEANS CHRISTIAN ADVOCATE.

Official Organ of the Montgomery, Mobile, Mississippi, and Louisiana Conferences of the M. E. Church South.

Office: 112 Camp Street.

TERMS OF SUBSCRIPTION:

THREE DOLLARS A YEAR,

invariably in Advance.

Address: REV. J. C. KEENER.

112 Camp Street, New Orleans.

AGENTS:

At the Member of the Patronizing Conference.

Blackwood's Magazine.

FRAXITILES AND PHYRNE.

A thousand silent years ago,

The starlight faint and pale

Was drawing on the sunset glow

The soft and showy veil;

When from his work the Sculptor stayed

His hand, and turned to one

Who stood beside him, half in shade,

And, with a sigh, "The done."

Phyrne, thy human lips shall pale,

Thy rounded limbs decay,

For love nor prayers can aught avail

To bid thy beauty stay;

But there thy smile for centuries

On marble lips shall live—

For Art can grant what love denies

And fix the fugitive.

"Sad thought! nor age nor death shall fade

The youth of this cold bust!

When the quick brain and hand that made

And thou and I, are dust!

"When all our hopes and fears are dead,

And both our hearts are cold,

And Love is like a tale that's played,

And Life a tale that's told.

"This counterfeit of senseless stone,

That no sweet blush can warm,

The same enchanting look shall own,

The same enchanting form.

"And there, upon that silent face,

Shall unborn ages see

Perennial youth, perennial grace,

And sealed serenity.

"And strangers, when we sleep in peace,

Shall say, not quite unmoved,

Beautied upon Phyrne's face

The Phyrne whom he loved."

For the N. O. Christian Advocate.

THE CHURCH EPISCOPACY

Against all the Churches.

NO. V.

MR. EDITOR: In bishop Green's letter to the Rev. Mr. Leray, a Roman Catholic priest, published in the Herald & Mississippian of June last, he objects to the doctrines of the worship of Mary, the intercession of saints,

the dominion of the pope;

at the same time he expressly denies to her doctrine of an "unbroken succession in the ministry."

He understands him to mean, not by the mere necessity of ministers being ordained by ministers, that the succession of ordina-tions conveys divine ministerial authority to the incumbent, by which he judges of and performs the functions of his office; and that also the minister must see, historically, the several links in the chain of succession, and know that they are valid.

Now, I will endeavor to show,

in as brief a manner as I can, that these two things are inconsistent with each other—that they cannot therefore be both true at the same time—that while the bishop asserts are performed by divine authority, or command rather; that is, that the Scriptures prescribe in all cases; but this cannot be the meaning when official duties are in question. Or if this be all that is meant, then I am perfectly satisfied, for this is exactly the doctrine I contend for. But the Apostolic Succession doctrine must mean, and is always explained and understood to mean, that discretionary authority is conveyed in the chain of ordinations to the ordained minister to decide questions of church order and policy.

If it does not mean this, it can mean nothing.

Then if the incumbent has received authority, by this extraordinary mode, to judge of doctrines or principles in the church, how can any one step in between him and God and say that this or that is erroneous? That would be to say, either that such authority was not given, which would give up the question, or that God gave authority erroneously, which I presume no one could say.

If I have received divine authority, by some means outside the written Scriptures, to officiate in a certain office, then how can any one not divine, complain of what I may do in that office? None but divinity could call me to account.
If my acts should not be understood, or not be approved, I need only point to my commission—to my credentials—to my authority.

When the clerk of the U. S.
House of Representatives hesitated as to administering the oath of members to John Randolph, on account of his very youthful appearance, and asked him if he was twenty-one years old, Mr. Randolph, remembering that he was not the judge of his duties in the premises, pointing to his credentials, said to him, "Ask my constituents."

Just so might Mr. Leray reply to bishop Green, when the latter complains of the former for preaching the doctrine of the worship of the Virgin Mary, the invocation of saints, etc. He might say to him:
"Why, bishop, how am I to understand you? You say I act by divine authority in this thing, and yet you complain of the things I do. Then lodge your complaint against the erring party—the party standing behind me who you say gives me my authority and credentials."

The bishop's complaints are certainly misplaced. What is authority? Authority is a legal power to do at will, or a right to command, or to act. Then if Mr. Le-ray, or those instructing him, possess this power to choose between this or that—anything possible, coming within the purview of episcopal action—and this authority comes from the Almighty, through some particular channel, how can a person not almighty, call him to account, or say he does wrong?

Suppose this authority were communicated to a present bishop in some other mode. Suppose God should speak audibly to him, and thus invest him with authority. It cannot matter to us how it be done. No matter what channel of intercourse be selected, the arrangement is personal between the Lord and the bishop. And if the bishop has the authority, why then he has it. It is contradictory to suppose I have authority, to do certain things, or to act in certain premises, and yet that I may not thus act.

Mr. Leray, in this argument with bishop Green, as the bishop has stated it, has only to point to his authority—the so-called succession of ordinations—and say to him, "Is your authority to supervise me greater than that?"

Now, I believe Mr. Leray has no such ecclesiastical authority, derived from the Almighty in any way, through any channel. He has no authority to minister religion at all, except such as we all read in the Scriptures, and such as his church invested him with, humanly. If divinely called to, or distinguished for, the ministry of the gospel, then so far he acts by divine authority. But this authority, manifestly, cannot be brought into action but by its human recognition—by human authority to use it. Thus the church, a church of human persons, gives authority to minister in the church. It is human authority, given him by his church, under and regulated in all cases by the written Scriptures.—
And so, if he do or teach contrary to Scripture, as he most assuredly does in the things complained of, bishop Green or any one else may rightfully call him to account.

But the bishop cannot complain of Romish bishops, or their clergy under them, for doing this or that, so long as he is under the estoppel he thus places upon himself. I think Mr. Leray's authority to commit the abominations the bishop so clearly points out, and so justly complains of, is mere human, church authority, with no divine sanction or authority about it.—
And for myself, I feel under great obligations to bishop Green for his very timely and proper exposition of these monstrosities.—
Romanists do, as the bishop says, exalt a creature, to the level of the Almighty; they prefer the intercession of saints to that of the Saviour; and they claim universal dominion for the pope. And so, because they do these and many other unauthorized things, I oppose the "Apostolic Succession" doctrine under color of which they claim the authority to do so.

And as to the other point I suggested, the historic chain of successive ordinations, I must reserve that for another paper. Meanwhile I will observe, that there is no such historic chain, neither good, bad, or doubtful. It is all a mistake.
R. ARNEY.

For the N. O. Christian Advocate.
UNIVERSALISM.

MR. EDITOR: Few themes come to us with more engaging demands and plausible reasons than Universalism, which professes to teach the word and will of God, so as to secure the final salvation and happiness of all mankind. Is not such a system charming to contemplate?
Does it not well-nigh look up the powers of investigation? stultify perception? and de throne reason?
It comes with broad-sweeping wings, and embraces and saves all without regard to character. However, this system is compelled to make partial selections of texts in the Bible, or place far-fetched and extraneous expositions upon other portions of the Scriptures, in order to sustain its theory. Lest this remark should be thought unjust to the theory in question, I will make some specifications.

To sustain their theory with regard to the existence of the "Devil," Universalists are compelled to bring to their aid such an explanation as resolves the whole matter into an "evil principle." How does this agree with the advice of the Apostle Peter, in 1st Peter, 5th, viii. v. 2? Did he mean by "Devil," "Diabolus,"—that an "evil principle" was going about seeking whom he might devour? How can we understand this principle of interpretation when we turn to Matt,
iv. ch. 1v. 2? Are we to understand that Christ was tempted by this "evil principle" in Himself? Is this what the inspired penman meant, when he said that Jesus was "tempted of the Devil"—"Diabolus"? If this principle of interpretation is allowable in these and other particular passages, to be consistent, it must be applied to other questions in Revelation? If this be granted, suppose, for instance, you subject "God,"—

"Theos," to its grasp, and when let loose, you will have a "good principle" remaining instead of "God"! Or you may find yourself standing upon Olympian heights, gazing up at the great "Jupiter" of ancient times, then turning, you may look down upon old "Pluto"? Or, if you look back upon the records of time in the heathen world, especially Persia, you will see all resolving into "Light" and "Darkness"? Such a mode of explaining the Bible partakes largely of infidelity, and in return imparts liberally to its cause.

In like manner, Universalists attempt to explain away the place of the damned. However, all do not agree upon this, as some of them hold to a "hell," in this, and some to a "hell" in the world to come.
They say: "The Bible is not as full of fire and brimstone, as Christians are wont to teach," and that "this theory is gotten up to frighten bad people into submission." The Bible does not manufacture "scare crows," simply to appeal to "baser sort." The Bible comes to us with broad conceptions, lofty motives, deep and enduring principles, and commands us in calm and sublime dignity, to believe its truths, embrace its promises, obey its precepts, and avoid "the hell" of which it warns, and secure "the Heaven" set forth, and promised upon its golden pages.—
At this point, I would make a number of quotations, showing that the Bible teaches the doctrine of a future "hell," were it not for treapassing too much upon your columns. Nevertheless, I will make a few. In Matt. 23ch, 33v., the Saviour says: "How can ye escape the damnation of hell"—"geena." Mark 9ch, 43, 44vs. He says: "It is better for thee to enter into life maimed than having two hands to go into hell"—"geena"—"into the fire that shall never be quenched; where their worm dieth not, and the fire is not quenched." In this same chapter, the Saviour uses the word "hell"—"geena"—three times, and employs such qualifying terms as to preclude a misapprehension of its meaning when looked at in the spirit of candor. In Luke 12ch, 5v., he says: "I will forewarn you whom ye shall fear:
Fear Him which after He hath killed, hath power to east into hell"—
"geena."—"yea, I say unto you, Fear Him." Again He says, in St.
John, 5ch, 28 vs.; "Marvel not at this: for the hour is coming in the which all that are in the graves shall hear His voice, and shall come forth; they that have done good unto the resurrection of life; and they that have done evil, unto the resurrection of damnation." Taking the question, all in all, consistency of interpretation sustains the belief of "hell" as well as the belief of "Heaven;" and if you destroy the one you destroy the other; for if "geena" does not mean the place of the damned, then "ouranos" does not mean the place of the blessed.

But Universalists find great trouble in limiting the sufferings of the damned, so as to sustain the eternal joys of the blessed. The Bible fairly and evidently explains, settles the question. It is written, Matt. 25ch, 45v., "These shall go away into everlasting"—
"aion"—punishment; but the righteous unto life eternal—"aion". As the very same word—in the original—is used in both members of the above sentence, it is plain that whenever "the torments of the one shall cease," "the joys" of the other will terminate. The Apostle Paul, 2nd Thess. 1ch. 9v., speaking of the second and final coming of Jesus Christ, and speaking of the portion of the wicked, says: "They shall be punished with everlasting"— "aion"—destruction." And it must be borne in mind that the word—

"aion" is compounded (of all, ever) and "On" (being)—ever-living, and as used above means, "ever-living punishment," and "life ever-living," and therefore, precludes the idea of annihilation.
A. DOWLING.

Milton, Fla., July 15, 1867.

For the N. O. Christian Advocate.

NE-BAU.

DEAR BROTHER: Please give publication to this letter which I received by the last mail, from our Chinese boy, NE-BAU, now in Lebanon. I have written it word for word, except a few errors which I have corrected. You have his idea. Dear Christian friends, there is a call in your very midst for you to help poor China. Here is a boy struggling for knowledge, and he wants to be a missionary. Who will help him?
Who will help poor heathen China?

My heart is filled with joy to know that our work is not in vain.
Dear brethren of Mississippi Conference, will you not help this poor boy? He is in your midst, crying for help. He wants an education that will fit him to be a Missionary to China. Say yes. I could not refrain from weeping when his letter came. Thank God, for he directs.
I feel greatly encouraged.

My health has been entirely restored, and with it, God has given me an increased desire to be entirely his. We are having frequent applications for baptism. Three persons handed in their names on yesterday. I baptised also poor little Mary Kelley, on yesterday, May 12, lying in bed unable to move. She has been deeply afflicted for near two years, and now before leaving us, she professes faith in Christ, and asks for Christian baptism. Dear brethren, you cannot imagine my feelings as I knelt in that poor, humble hovel, at the bedside of that poor child, and offered up prayers in her behalf. There were three or four native Christians present, and the poor heathen crowded the doors to see the Christian baptism. I could not help weeping. This little girl was once one of Mrs. L's school-girls, and knows almost the whole of the gospels from memory. I have supported her since returning to China, and when she was able she always came and recited her lesson to Mrs. L. But now she will read no more. No, I told her she would soon be with Jesus, to await our coming. She seemed very happy after baptism, although in great pain all the time. My little daughter had given her a few flowers, at which she smiled. I could not but think, she would soon be where flowers never fade. Glory to God in the highest. Pray for us and the work in China from your brother.

J. W. LAMBUTH.

LEBANON, TENN., Feb. 17, 67.

My Dear Mr. and Mrs. Lambuth:
With the greatest joy and delight I received your kind letter, of Oct. 8, 1866, which reached here not long since, I was still more happy to hear that you were all well, and have especially escaped the great and fearful tyrant of sickness, (cholera), which has already swept many natives and foreigners to their long home and silent graves. Many have also died from it in Nashville, and the surrounding country, but only one case has appeared in Lebanon, during the past year. Then, let us uplift our hearts, praises and thanks to God for His unbounded mercies, who has brought us to another, and has given us brighter hopes of success in the future.

I am glad to hear from Mr. Wood's letter to Dr. Schon, that there has been a great revival in China. It seems to me that it is almost too good to be true. But "God's ways are not our ways," and let us leave it entirely with him, and look with patience for better success in future. I trust that the day will come when we are beneath the dreary clay, that China with her four hundred million of inhabitants shall cast away idols "to the moles and to the bats." Superstition and wickedness will have no power, but godliness and piety shall prevail over the darkness of the land. The Star of Bethlehem shall be her guiding star, and the "Banner of Peace" shall be their only standard.

Then, the Missionaries' name will not be blotted to oblivion, and their fame spread more gloriously than the crusaders who fought for mere ambition, while missionaries with their "Banner of Peace" spread the "tidings of great joy" to every creature.

I am still enjoying good health, and striving to do my best for a living. I am still living here in Lebanon, but hope soon to leave for Nashville, if nothing happens.
Please give my best love to Walter and Nora, and to my Chinese friends, and all, all, all, write soon.

Yours, very Respectfully.

J. R. LAMBUTH, or NE-BAU.

For the N. O. Christian Advocate.

THE CROPS.

Near Jackson, East Feliciana, La.,

July 27th, 1867.

MR. EDITOR: As you are perhaps aware, we yet cling to the old custom of planting very little else besides cotton and corn, and frequently far too little of the latter; but the experience of the last six or eight months, surely ought to teach us to raise our bread at home, and never again (if it can be avoided), depend upon buying it.

In many places there has been too much rain even for corn; but this crop generally is very good, out on the high, sandy and even poor lands, one would be astonished to see what fine crops of corn are now maturing. Almost every farmer in our section of country who has been industrious, and not too eager to bow down to king cotton, will have "bread enough and to spare," without depending upon the west for it.

The cotton crop is not so good.
Long continued rains have made both it and the grass grow too rapidly. Cotton in most places is and has been, very badly choked by grass and weeds; but where this is not the case, there is very little of what we call bottom crop, it has grown to weed. Consequently it will not open so early, nor yield so well; as it must depend principally upon the middle and top.

The proportion in cultivation as compared with last year, I think is considerably less; as last year almost every farmer planted nearly all cotton; this year their corn is increased while their cotton is diminished to the land.

Although there has been a great outcry about the caterpillar I trust that it is all a false alarm. I have visited some of those fields where it was reported that the "real caterpillar" was there, and would soon eat them out; and found the real grass worm, but saw no caterpillar.
I trust that the good Lord will give us a tolerable crop of cotton, and not suffer the destroyer to come in and devour the fruit of our labor.
An abundant corn crop is already given, for which our hearts should swell with gratitude to Him who is the giver of all we enjoy.

T. F. DIXON.

"The flowers will tell to thee a sacred mystery.
How moistened earthily dust can bear celestial glory;
On thousand stems is found the love-inscription graven,
How beautiful is earth when it can image himself."
Wouldst thou first pause to thank thy God for every pleasure,
For no more overjoyed, thou couldst not find the love of God."

The Church in East Tennessee.

Mr. Editor: Our people feel a lively and sympathetic interest in the condition of our ministry and members in East Tennessee; and having just made a month's tour of labor and observation in those parts, I propose a notice of the more noteworthy facts.

On Sunday evening, June 2d, I preached to a good congregation in the Court House at Athens. Here Bro. Bruner, the pastor, gathers his flock. We have a neat and comfortable brick church in Athens, but the Northern Methodists took possession of it in 1865, and continue to hold it. They have no right, legal or moral, but the right of possession, and this our brethren are contesting in the courts. Here, also, is our beautiful Female College, which a presiding elder of that Church, boasted in the columns of the New York Christian Advocate, that they had obtained at less than half its worth. Our members here abide steadfast "in the kingdom and patience of Jesus Christ." They have been tried, and are not found wanting in devotion to a sound, non-political Methodism. They were of different politics before the war; but what has that to do with their Church relations and their Christian faith? When we obtain our church again, it will at once be filled with a Sabbath school and a worshipping congregation.

Here, in Athens, Bishop Clark organized the Holston Conference of the Northern M. E. Church, in 1865. They began by appropriating our property. Of the temper of that body a friend said to me: "It was a singular mixture of bitterness, boldness and loyalty." "It really seemed," said another, who ventured in a back seat occasionally, "it really seemed they would kill us. Such fiery, intolerant impatience of every Methodist who did not rush into the loyal Church. Men who had passed through the war-times without disturbance, began to fear violence from the bad blood and passions stirred by that Conference."

Subsequently, Rev. C. Long, Presiding Elder, and Rev. J. G. Swisher, of the Decatur Circuit, were holding a quarterly meeting about fourteen miles from Athens. A mob of seventeen or eighteen persons, in which the Northern Methodist Church was well represented, took them by violence, and being providentially restrained from harsher deeds, brought them to Athens, and made them ride into town, and around the public square, each with a pole on his shoulder.

Not far from this time, Rev. J. Brilhardt was met at the door of a church, four miles from Athens. Ladies were in company; but this was to protection. He was carried to the rear of the house, where a mob, headed by a Northern Methodist class leader, awaited him, and without any cursing or naughty words on their part, a rail was run between his legs, and two stout fellows put their shoulders under it, while others held him (n. Bro. B. told me that the spirit of his Master was given him in that hour in blessed measure; and that not only in his heart, but with his voice, he prayed for them. While these indignities were being prepared and going on, these, our brethren, were glad if they would join the "loyal" Church they might preach, but Southern Methodists should not exist there. They had borne themselves meekly through the war, giving no offense to any party. Their sense was in steadfastly adhering to us. Subsequently Bro. B. was met with curses and threats of death. Our dear Bro. Swisher went to paradise last year—dying gloriously. Mobs, as the supporters of a "loyal" gospel, have ceased in that immediate portion of East Tennessee—let us hope forever.

The meeting for Abingdon District was held at Elk Garden, twenty miles west of the college. Crossing Clinch Mountain and the North Fork of Holston, on horseback, with a goodly company, on Thursday evening we are in the neighborhood. They build large log houses in this region, and put them well together. This one has galleries on three sides. Near by, among these, venerable oak, is the site of the former house, which once knew the ministry of Asbury.

On Friday morning our company, conducted by the Rev. G. W. Miles, Presiding Elder of the Jonesboro District, is at Johnson's Depot, where his district meeting is appointed. We have now returned to East Tennessee. That "rival body," which proposes to "disintegrate" the M. E. Church, South, is here. The Abingdon District, over which Bro. Dickey presides, adjoins the Jonesboro. That, in Virginia, is free from intrusions, and is smooth as a land-locked bay. This, in Tennessee, is favored with their missionary operations; and is a rough sea. Before holding our first service Friday morning, we learned that a convulsion of some sort had been held the night before, in which, after grave consultation, it was graciously concluded, not without dissent, to let us hold our meeting.

As a compromise, they would discourage attendance. But the people would not be discouraged; they came in crowds—ambulance, bugles, wagons, horseback and afoot. We worshipped under the spacious shed of what was once called Brush Creek Campground—half a mile from the depot. Here the Rev. E. F. Sevier was converted, and for years came a long distance to build annually his tabernacle. "On that spot," an old man said to me, "I was licensed to preach, and Alexey presided in the Quarterly Conference." The name of Patton is as ointment poured forth, and in the neighborhood is a spacious chapel named for him. There were present those who tenderly remembered the former days, and could weep like Jeremiah over the desolations of Jerusalem, and pray with David to see His glory and His power so as they had seen them in the sanctuary. It was good to be there, both in the councils of the district meeting and in the congregation. An unction was upon the word. The Lord's Supper was administered to a large number of communicants after the eleven o'clock sermon, and in the afternoon a deacon was ordained. "There are people here," it was remarked, "who have not been at church for five years. They could not bear a Southern Methodist preacher, and they would not hear any other sort." This remark will be explained.

A bold spring breaks out near the stand, and sweeps round the camping ground, affording much water. Our circuit parsonage, built just before the war, is supplied from this spring, and located with eligible grounds. It is occupied by the Northern Methodist, the Rev. Mr. Miles, who is on the circuit. His membership here, I understand, is about one-third of ours. "Does he pay rent?" Nay. He does not even say to us, "By your leave gentlemen." That is a way they have.

Our district meeting brought out painful and surprising facts of hindrance and mobs. I say surprising, not being prepared for such things as have occurred since our Annual Conference in Asheville, when the present appointments were made. The name of the Greenville Circuit was called and this account given, with corroboration of testimony: At the close of the war a small debt hanging over our house of worship in Greenville. The Northern Methodists were on hand; the debt was hunted up, and a decree was sought and pushed through to sell the property without right of redemption. They obtained it for the debt, $208, and procured titles! (Will such titles stand in equity?) The house is comparatively new, of brick, eligibly located, and valued at $3,000 to $4,000. An old Tennessee merchant heard this case after used as an argument to quicken donations before a Church extension meeting in one of the Eastern cities. The preacher appointed to that work last fall sought to occupy our parsonage in Greenville. It was occupied by the brother who holds appointment under the Northern Church, who refused to give it up. They don't pretend to have bought that, even under a forced sale. Rhetown, was included in Brother Long's work this year, and he next tried for our parsonage there; but a preacher of the Northern Church in that vicinity, though not occupying, had rented it out. Men not only went to his churches to deter him and disperse congregations, but to the families which attended, and threatened them. I met Brother Long at another point in the Conference, having abandoned his appointment. We have a faithful and worthy membership in Greenville and Green county, who wait our coming.

The name of Fall Branch Circuit was called. The preacher sent by us was doing his work faithfully, discreetly, and only too successfully. As he could not be deterred, resort was had to warring the families which lodged him on his rounds. And those warnings were not empty. He staid one night at a house, and soon thereafter their stock and poultry yard paid for it. Another night, at another place, and that family was mulcted a little deeper by unknown hands. Another, and the mob followed, and more boldly, stripping the beds of their clothing, and putting indignities upon the family. Once more, and the preacher approached a house known in itinerant annuals as a preacher's home. He was met, before alighting, by the good man, who, with emotion declined to receive him—"Brother, you know how my heart is, and that my house has always been a preacher's home; but you know their threats and what has happened. I am too old to be broken up now, or to move away—I can't let you stay; you must excuse me." And the preacher rode on, crossed to the other side of the river, and at night-fall reached lodgings. Is it any wonder, or any reflection on the moral heroism of our preachers or people, that one portion of that circuit is abandoned for the present? Our Presiding Elder of the Jonesboro District acts also as a preacher in charge for the circuit by that name. As some of his churches in a certain neighborhood had become "uncomfortable," he had gathered their faithful adherents to a central point—for peace sake abandoning, not the right, but the occupation elsewhere. A meeting had been given on a peach-orchard, accompanied by a preacher, Ebenezer, and there a mob of sixteen—eight of whom were members of the Northern Methodist Church—stood at the door, with clubs and long hickories, "to must" the rebel preacher out of service," as their phrase is, should he attempt to preach. He remonstrated mildly, and the ladies more spiritedly. "No—if he would join the loyal Church he might preach." The ladies described this scene to me, as they only can.

Bro. Miles was preceded in one of his appointments by a preacher of the M. E. Church (North), who, in winding up his post-sermon notices, said: "I understand that Mr. Miles is to preach here this day two weeks, if the boys in blue will let him. He had better make his peace with them first."

This "boys-in-blue" gentleman, by-the-way, went from us. Some, one belonging to our Conference, went into Bishop Clarke's organization, through misapprehension or stress of weather, and took the first opportunity to return. But those who, ex animo, joined the Northern Methodists, are represented to me, with a few honorable exceptions, as their most bitter and unscrupulous agents.

I have traveled to and from Chattanooga to Bristol, the full length of East Tennessee, and held three district meetings in it, and preached and held interviews with our pastors in the other two districts, and I hear, upon diligent inquiry, of but four chapels, owned by the Northern Methodist Church: one, an old house of ours at Rogersville, which they bought at second-hand; one at Greenville—the same spoken of before—and two log houses built by their adherents within the bounds of the Newport Circuit. Besides these, if they have any houses of worship in their "Holston Conference," I could not ascertain it. And yet they claim, in a publication recently made, six districts, seventy-five charges, sixty-four traveling preachers, one hundred and fifty local preachers and twenty five thousand members.

Where do they preach? In our chapels, to be sure, as they live in our parsonages. With most unblushing modesty they make their appointment, and claim it of right. Where they have but a small following, they take it, turn about, with us; but where they have perverted a majority of the membership to their views, or have the mob with them, they forbid and lock our doors against us. A letter from an old and reliable citizen of East Tennessee, now before me, says: "On the . . . Circuit, last month, the Northern Methodist preacher took a number of men with him to W. . . . Church, turned out our Sabbath school, and organized one of his own in the house." At another church, the pastor had concluded his service with notice that he would preach there again that day four weeks, at 11 o'clock. As the benediction was being pronounced, the Northern preacher, who had come in and taken a seat near the door, abruptly called attention and announced: "I will preach here this day four weeks, at 10 o'clock, when I will take possession of that pulpit—peaceably if I can; forcibly if I must."

Our Church in Jonesboro has a history. It is one of the best in the Conference—quite too good to be overlooked by Rev. Mr. . . . of the Northern Church, a presiding elder. He laid hands on it in 1865, and is disinclined to let go. A small debt was found, of the nature of builder's lien, but before the Greenville strategy could be played, the money was raised by our friends and the debt paid. Then our Northern brethren found a larger debt quietly in the hands of a worthy citizen not disposed to press it to our injury—about $1,700. Balked in the first movement, they managed to get hold of his claim and brought suit, aiming to make quick work. The case seemed perilous, but our vigilant and energetic presiding elder went about for aid. Generous Baltimore received him in her own style, and friends in the district did what they could, and the money was raised and tendered within time. Still they hold our house.

They claim some of our chapels on the ground that they were built before the separation and deeded to the M. E. Church, which body they profess to represent. This was built since 1846. Again, it is pretended that a majority of the trustees are with them. Three out of five of the Jonesboro trustees are with us. The membership is with them! Nay—the majority of the membership faithfully remains with us. They, the loyal ones, contributed the most money toward building the house! Nay—it is averred, by those qualified to know, and who offer the proof, that five-sevenths of the money came from our side. Notwithstanding, they keep our house. Revs. Messrs. . . . seem to have been imported into East Tennessee for managing this ecclesiastical raid upon our people and property. They are men of ability and energy in this line of things. These divines have got ahead of Caesar in the work of confiscation. The opinion of Chief Justice Taney, McLean, and others of the Supreme Court of the United States, settling the church property case in our favor, is by those new lights set at naught. Those were slavery times.

I must admire and commend to the Church at large, the perseverance and Christian spirit with which our preachers and members endure this great fight of afflictions. Yet these Northern brethren are industriously publishing themselves as a persecuted people.

The feuds and passions engendered by civil war were strong in this beautiful but afflicted land; but social and economical reasons suggest the necessity of peace, and weary nature tends to subside. The Northern Methodist Church was planted in East Tennessee upon the temper and condition that immediately follows civil war. It took advantage of them, and was served by them. Said the good Bishop Clarke to two of our ministers who had an interview with him in McMinn county, when he was organizing his Conference: "Your Church can't exist here. If your preachers come where our churches are, and attempt to organize classes, our Union soldiers won't let you!"

That Church has relied on such aid. Their agents have counted on mobs, and consented to be helped by them; and truth obliges me to go farther, when the mob-spirit has flared, they have in known instances stimulated it. Let law and order return to East Tennessee, and they are ejected from our parsonages and chapels as they have been in Nashville, Memphis, N. Orleans, and elsewhere. The fine show of statistics with which they entertain distant missionary-meetings in return for the thousands of dollars spent to keep the preachers going, would suddenly shrink into small proportions.

A pamphlet published by the Northern Methodists, and being circulated in East Tennessee, has already been quoted from, claiming 25,000 members. After giving figures, it triumphantly says: "This Church, then, has made a more vigorous growth in three years than the old Methodist Episcopal Church did before the secession of 1846, in twenty-five years; or than the Methodist Episcopal Church, South, had made in eighteen years."

This disproportion is striking. The "old" Church and the M. E. Church, South, in East Tennessee (identically and historically the same) were strangers to the "vigorous" measures lately practiced, and therefore had not that "vigorous growth." If the work of Alexey, Stevens, Eakin, and their co-laborers in that field, was of slower growth, it will be of longer duration. If they wanted a house, they honestly built or bought one; they did not take it. Getting a college that belonged to other people, at less than half its worth, or a church for $208, worth $3,000 or $4,000, were tricks they were not used to. The methods of getting members, practiced by these newcomers, deserves mention.

The preacher has good news: You are all poor; times are hard. The old mother Church knows it, and her treasury is full. Millions are at her control. Join us, and we will give you a free gospel.

The preacher has sad news: The M. E. Church, South, is dead. It was born with secession and died with it. The leading preachers and members are returning to the "old Church" as fast as they can. I have the means of knowing what I say. That secession, rebellious, disloyal Church will never be allowed to reorganize. The Government would not suffer it. This is reliable. Their preachers will not be allowed to preach any more, if you desire to be Methodists still, your only chance is with us. Our arms are open to receive you. I have the class-book in my hand, and will call over the names; all who wish to be no longer Methodists can speak out.

This putting the question in the negative has carried whole classes, non omnes, in ten minutes, which Catlett, and Sevier, and Patton, and their co-laborers, were ten years in getting converted and bringing into society. A friend assured me he had met with old and worthy members who were confused as to their status; for, in order to keep from joining that Church, they had to quit their own.

The preacher has strong news: You are informed that a certain rebel establishment which had Calhoun for its godfather, a so-called pro-slavery, secession Church, was doomed to die, and yet, in some places, pretended to live. Loyal men had their eyes on it. Rebellion was not dead, as long as that Church lived. There could be no better evidence of disloyalty than for a man to belong to it. And this community is not the place for rebels or rebel sympathizers. Our best blood has been shed, etc. I have in my hands the class-book. Slavery is dead, and all genuine Methodists ought to be one now; but I will call the roll, and if anybody wishes still to belong to that rebel organization, let him or her rise up when the name is called. [Roll is called. Nobody rises up.] You are all members of the M. E. Church, in good standing.

I blame not the reader if incredulity comes over him. I was incredulous before stronger testimony, and said to brethren, Can these things be? Such outrages upon the kingdom of heaven, committed in its name and by its titled servants! The reply was, "They can be proved by multitudes of the best witnesses." I heard the same, substantially, in five districts, from distant and different sources. Sometimes these appeals were varied to suit the fears or helplessness of the hearers. Lands and homes are liable to confiscation if they are in the "rebel" Church, and many fine baits were fixed up out of the fabulous proceeds of the "Centenary" collection.

Like "bummers" after watches and jewelry, these ecclesiastical raiders sought our Church-registers and class-books. They were the basis of wholesale operations.

Let not those at a safe distance judge them harshly who succumbed to such methods of promoting a "vigorous growth." Imagine yourself without newspapers, except such as reflect only one side of current events; imagine yourself and your wife and children in a neighborhood where the violence so gently invoked has its fresh and alarming records, and you would hardly rise up, unless ready to be a martyr as well as a confessor. You would perhaps allow your name to "slide," as one said, and bide your time—"They count me in," said another, "but I was conscripted."

I am deliberately of opinion that there are now thousands swelling the list of the Northern Methodist Church in East Tennessee, who were thus beguiled or compelled to come in; and they wait for information or opportunity to return gladly to their places in our fold. Hence Northern Methodist preachers are so strangely favorable to that local terrorism which keeps us from coming freely before the people. Our very presence refutes their statements and provokes them. They feel like one who, upon oath that his brother was dead, had administered on his estate. Their situation is embarrassing, and demands pity.

The Presiding Elder of one of the lower districts told us it was no unusual thing for him to take back whole Churches. "Do you count them as new members?" "No, we merely regard them as coming home again." And the Presiding Elder of one of the most troubled districts made his way a few weeks ago into a quiet neighborhood, and took back twelve officials and sixty members at one place. And so this mushroom "growth" of three years will melt like frost-work before the sun, if we can but get our party rights protected before the local courts, and the mobs held off.

"To belong to that Church," said a modest layman in one of our deliberations, "covers a multitude of sins." One instance may be given: In a village lying towards Cumberland Gap was a local preacher suspected of Confederate sympathies; but he kept quiet and held on to our Church. His neighbor was an out-and-out "rebel," advocated the black flag, and a hard fighter all through the war; he returned at the surrender; comprehended the situation; took the first opportunity to ask the Presiding Elder home with him; joined—and all was right. Nobody questioned his loyalty. At the end of the meeting, though many opportunities had been given and pressing invitations, said "local," though regular in attendance, had not done as he was expected to do. After meeting broke up, he was accosted by one with whom he had not been on the best terms. "Ah," thought he, "mellowed by the meeting, he is coming to ask my pardon." Not so; but "local" was told to get out of that place very quick and not to be seen there again if he valued a whole hide. He had had several chances to join a loyal Church and hadn't done it, and now they understood him. I met this man afterward, a good way from home, and had half an hour's talk with him. Repeating the above story as it was told to me, I asked him if it was correct. "There was more than one of them," said he, "and nothing was said then about chances to join; but," he added, "official members of that society did tell me afterward, as friends, I had better join for the present to secure person and property."

About 11 o'clock, a. m. (June), the train reaches Morristown, we alight among friends. Bro. Thompson conducted us to lodge and Col. James showed no kindness. We are in the Roanoke District, the Presiding Elder, Rev. W. Robinson, having us before.

The reports of the Rogers District show it to be better organized and more prosperous than in upper East Tennessee. One of the preachers was deterred from coming to a circuit by the rumor that reached him; yet it is served partially, and with good results, by the pastor of an adjacent one. Another has been mobbed a few times, and such is the pressure he can't hold out to the end of the year. Notices have been served on families that it will be well for them "if that preacher eats any more of meat and bread." Two bones of local preacher led one of the mobs. An actor in another related afterward, and was heard to say he wouldn't have done it, but he had promised Parson. . . . travelling preacher of the Northern Church,) to see to it that no mob should preach there. Parson. . . . had met our brother a while before with words as soft as butter, and wanted to know why there could not be a union!

It was a relief to hear of at least two of their preachers who disclaimed these "vigorous" aids to the gospel; declined them; proclaimed that if their case could not succeed fairly it might as well

Neighborly words were also reported the scene of full congregations and of revivals. . . . Coming a chapel near J. . . . the preacher found it shut, and the benches up against the door, and ominous ill within view, and significant wiles. Congregation standing without. Men who had faced bayonets in both armies were there, and disputed the mysterious, high power that had thus forbidden a few women got through the windows, and began to arrange the benches. Two ex-Federal soldiers stepped forward and helped to complete the job. "We had a glorious meeting that day," and an open door ever since.

A certain Judge was reported declaring on this wise, in a crowd after the sitting of our Conference in Asheville: I have been disposed to protect Southern Methodists while they behaved peaceably; rebels as they are; but since they have had the impudence to appoint their preachers all over this country, and are trying to re-occupy it, they must accept the consequences of their own doing. The Presiding Elder inquired of his Honor if he had such language. Replied that he had not. "Have you used its equivalent, Judge?" Admitted it might have been done so, and added: "Mr. E. . . . you won't be allowed to travel your District—they'll whip you, and go before a magistrate and confess and get fined $250, and then whip you again." Our Presiding Elder has made his regular rounds. There is a reaction, little as certain parties desire to see it. I need not state what are the Church relations of this model Judge.

A letter was shown me, addressed by an ex-Presiding Elder to one of our most successful and heroic laborers. Said ex-P. E. is getting more from his present employment than at any time for the last twenty years he got among us. I do not only justice in saying that in some cases, they pay well. This letter (four pages foolscap, and of recent date,) gave me a good deal of light on their plan of operating. The ex-P. E. rather wonders that his letters do not seem to be appreciated by Southern Methodist preachers, once they were—does not know that "he has done anything of the sort" that should lower him in public estimation as a Christian or as a Christian Minister. He was "quoted in the M. E. Church, South" until about the close of the war. Then "circumstances" dictated his return to the "old Church." He rings changes on the "old Church" as though he were an honestly taken-in novice. If the leaders in the Southern Church continue to oppose a union, "the old Church" is going to absorb us. I do not mean to absorb us. The sooner the Methodists all return to the bosom of the "old mother Church" the better it will be for them. "Such" the state of things in this region that I think it will be to the interest of every Methodist minister and member to make that move at once for themselves. . . . He is getting on finely; has a prosperous time in the ministry; has no embarrassments like our preachers have. Even private members, so long as they "hold on" to that Church, must labor under embarrassment. He feels for some of his particular friends, and has "the means of knowing that a mere change in their Church-relations will tend very much to the bettering of their condition." He advises him, if he ex-

to remain in East Tennessee an itinerant Methodist preacher, make something of an effort, if would be required in this case, his consent to take a position Conference of the "Old Church" all," and a place is ready for Against such as this have we to attend in East Tennessee. Indeed, make no apology for alluding in this manner to a letter that was sent along with the preachers, with wholesome disgust, and a copy of which, at my request, was furnished me. It is entitled to consideration as much as would have been a similar letter, in time of war, from B. A. A. to Light-Horse Harry Lee, after the former patriot

"betrayed" his condition.

Nothing is said of right or wrong, no principle. And though the charge of honor and conscience rise it, something of an effort is to be made to swallow the "Old Church" will. He has the means of knowledge. What does this signify? That matters will grow worse for Southern Methodists in East Tennessee? or, that a good price can be had, if this brother will sell himself? Perhaps both are obscurely hinted at. So Mr. P. E. comes at him with the other. Before this he has received an answer from our brother that he is not for sale.

Knoxville was reached about Monday, (June 24,) and Brother Bates, the pastor, met me there. The quarterly meeting had just graduated a day, and there was an appointment for me that night.
I met the Rev. Geo. Stewart, pastor of the "Old Church," who was assisting in the meeting; also, Brothers Atkins, Maupin, and Laynes. The latter had been sent to the Maryville Circuit, lying in Montgomery County but he had been driven by mobs from Maryville, Middle Settlement, Axley's Chapel, Copper Springs, and Louisville, and his life threatened; and so was here to report. The sheriff of the county was in one of the mobs, which was headed by a brother-in-law of the Northern preacher on the circuit. Two others were led by a member of the Northern Methodist Church and a justice of the peace.

Persons may ask: Why do our people submit to be locked out of their own churches? Their conduct is lame in the estimation of some.
Why don't they prosecute? What means, think you, would they have the law? "Break open the lock,"
—take off the lock which the Southern Methodists have put, or would be put on your churches? " At large—not now," is the answer, "it would give them a case against us, which, however frivolous and in our favour, would serve them. They would throw us into prison, and then, with such officers as jurors, what would become of us?"

Under notorious grievances they are often disinclined to make a publication. When I intimated my purpose, to a few judicious friends, publish these notes, some heartily approved, others discouraged.
The latter—"We are living and suffering them down. Our way is opening in spite of the adversaries, they have overdone their part.
If publication is made, and names and places given, you only help their malignity afresh," and are helpless before the law." I do then the cases instituted reach higher courts they expect their rights in the Church property suits, to have little expectation from the lower courts.

We are kindly tendered the use of their house by the Presbyterians in Knoxville, when not using it themselves. Here Brother Bates, on Sabbath afternoons, gathers his flock. We have here a house of our own, and long have had; but it is as elsewhere. By a shrewd strategy they got the key, and keep it. I suppose they claim it.
Through this country they have appointed "untrusts" to our houses!
Knoxville is an exception in one thing. The Federal army used our Church to much injury. Application with unusual persistency and success was made for damages by our trustees. The Government granted us $3,500. Our people "on hearing of it, applied to the authorities for the money. They were too late. An agent of the Northern Methodists had been on and got it a month before. The Government official seems to have shared in the surprise at this flank movement, and upon our demand for the agent's announcement gave the names of their trustees.

The reader may think this was getting money under false pretences. But they got it, and keep it. The old building is sadly in need of repairs, but I could not see, from outside, that any had been made. Close by is the foundation of a chapel, recently laid, and the only one I saw being built by the Northern Methodists in East Tennessee.

Brother Stewart is working this District under many difficulties;

but he will succeed. Here in Knoxville lives the reverend agent who collected our claim for us, and it is the headquarters of two or three more of the same sort. They are active, and their employees bold.
Not long since our chapel, five miles from Knoxville, was locked against Brother M., who is on the circuit. The Northern preacher said to him: "You have no business here. The people ought to drive you off, and I'll help them to do it." To which our brother had the grace to reply: "There would not be much religion in that."

The work of ecclesiastical invasion has been inaugurated. We see here what is its style and spirit, where circumstances allow them play. I must do the justice to Northern Methodists, as a body to say I cannot believe them aware of the conduct of their agents in the South, or that they could approve it, if it was known to them. But they are furnishing the sinews for this war. It is carried on in their name and by their money. Their Bishops and missionary officials who have charge of this work cannot be ignorant of these wrongs, unless they choose to be ignorant.

Northern Methodism in East Tennessee is a practical apostasy. Its ministers are evangelical, so far as I have heard, in the utterance of doctrine—when they do utter it;
they abide by the dogmatic standards of Methodism; but under the pressure of fanatical influences, and the ambition of power and numbers and extension, they have taken a dangerous latitude in their teachings, and vehemently espoused a cause other than the gospel. Their pulpit has degenerated to a hustling.

This seems to be their evangel: Now abideth faith, hope, and loyalty, and the greatest of these is loyalty. Ordinary loyalty will not suit them; it must be their sort. We have Union men in our Church; I have met them in District meetings, and they make up a valuable portion of our membership; their anti-secession and government-record is unimpeached. But what of that? Just nothing with loyal Conferences, and Churches, and preachers. Loyalty means their party platform, for reconstructing the Southern States. They favor the extreme measures. Having begun confiscation on their own account, of course they favor it in full, their correspondence inflames the Northern mind against the South, and invokes grinding measures.

They lend themselves, with all good conscience doubtless, to such misrepresentations of facts and public opinion, as justify the relenting conscience of the ruling majority in laying on a heavier hand. The words rebel and loyal have served them instead of arguments, and titles, deeds, and doctrine—pretty much their stock in trade. They bitterly and indecently inveigh against the Executive Department, because it does not harmonize with their views; and are ready to spit upon and rend the Judiciary Department if it does not do their behest: of the remaining Department of the Federal Government—the Legislative—they are in favor, just now. But let Congress—to which their conditional loyalty has been narrowed down—take a step defeating their hope of plunder and power, and they will turn against Congress.

Northern Methodism in East Tennessee is factious. Let them cast their sixty-four traveling preachers upon the 25,000 members they claim, as we do, without any missionary appropriations, and their "Holston Conference" fades from the map. It was made and is upheld by foreign aid. Like an inverted pyramid, it cannot stand alone. Some members will adhere in genuine communion of spirit and usage. Here and there a few stations or circuits may be kept up; but—eject them from our personages and chapels, suppress the mobs, cut off the flow of material aid from abroad, and it dwindles into insignificance.

Our pastors there are doing a good work—laborious, devoted, self-sacrificing. They are preaching a pure gospel; and the Lord gives his testimony to the word of his grace. They have not the spirit of fear, but of power, and of love, and of a sound mind. I have found more young men in this region looking to an entrance upon the ministry than elsewhere. Our members love the Church more than ever. Tried, defamed, threatened, all but destroyed, they have stood the test. Their hearts are with us, even when forced into positions that do their true sentiments injustice. Beautiful upon those mountains will be the fact of them who bring good tidings, who publish peace.

H. N. McTear.

A number of Californians are organizing a company with $500, 000 capital to buy up good lands to sell again to actual settlers, at long credits and low interest, together with seed, farm implements and live stock; manufacturers will also be encouraged.

THE THUNDER-STORM.

FROM THE GERMAN OF SCHWAB.

Grandfather, grandmother, mother and child,
Close seated together, the time beguiled;
The child he played by his mother's knee,
The grandmother spinning so busily;
While the aged man bent the storm behind—
How heavy and thick blew the sultry wind!

Said the child: "To-morrow's a holiday;
Then will I haste to the fields and play—
Then will I pluck from the meadows green
The fairest flowers that were ever seen.
Ah! in the woods there are joys untold—
Hark! did you hear how the thunder rolled?"

Said the mother: "To-morrow's a holiday;
Then will I walk in my best array;
We will haste to the joyous feast again,
Life has much of pleasure, if much of pain.
And the sun will shine like the living gold—
Hark! did you hear how the thunder rolled?"

Said grandmother: "Ah! 'tis a holiday,
But I have never the time to play;
I took the food and I spin amah,
This life is trouble, and toil, and pain,
It may be well for the young and bold—
Hark! did you hear how the thunder rolled?"

Said grandfather: "Ay! 'tis a holiday,
And these aged limbs may be lifeless clay;
For I can just and sing no more,
Or work or toil as I did before.
No place for me in the world, it seems—
Look! do you see how the lightning gleams?"

They do not see and they do not hear
How the cruel lightning is gleaming near;
On grandfather, grandmother, mother and child
The bolt has fallen so fierce and wild;
Four lives are reft in one flash away,
And the morrow morn 'twas a holiday.

Philip Phillips and his Work.

Since Philip Phillips came promi-nently before the public as a singer of rare gifts, devoting himself with marked singleness of purpose, and with a zeal only equaled by his success, to the work of encouraging heartfelt congregational singing throughout the Church, not a few requests from strangers have reached us asking personal information concerning him. As he is now absent from the city, and cannot know of this paragraph until too late to request its omission, we answer in brief the inquiries alluded to.

Mr. Phillips is a native of Western New York, and his earlier training was received on a farm. While a plain farmer boy his interest in the study and practice of music, which was very early developed, became intense, so much so that every spare hour was devoted to
it. His advantages were, of course, very limited; but he persevered, often walking several miles after a hard day's work on the farm to take the coveted music lesson. In the year 1861 we heard of him in the State of Ohio teaching singing classes and holding Sunday-school conventions.

About this time, while confined to his room by a protracted illness, he conceived the idea of making a book of Sunday-school music. His first effort in this line was entitled "Spring Blossoms." The popularity of the author as a Sunday-school singer was such that the work soon met with a sale of several thousand copies. It was finally sold out to a large publishing house in Cincinnati.

He now commenced a system of writing which has contributed in no small degree to the popular and practical character of his books.
Whenever he writes or selects a Sunday-school tune he immediately has it set up and a number of leaves printed. He then takes them into the Sunday-school and sings them with the children. If, after a thorough test, they are found to be valuable, and appropriate to the Sunday-school work, they are preserved for the forthcoming book, but if it is found that they do not sing well, they are thrown aside as useless.
In this way every piece is found to be a good, practical working tune before it is admitted into the book.
The "Musical Leaves," which have had and are still having an immense sale all over the country, were, as the name would indicate, a collection of pieces which Brother Phillips had sung with the Sunday-schools in the form of detached leaves.

The same plan was in a great measure pursued in making the "Singing Pilgrim," the most original and one of the most popular Sunday-school singing books of the day. The "Musical Leaves" have been lately revised, with important additions, and the two books,
"Singing Pilgrim" and "Musical Leaves," bound in one volume, making a most complete library of Sunday-school music.

About two years since the work of compiling a new Hymn and Tune Book was placed in his hands, and the result was the "Centenary offering of Praise," or the "New Hymn and Tune Book" for the M. E.
Church, which is being published at the Book Concern, and which,
from the extent of sales already reported, we hope may bring the people back to congregational and devotional singing. It is pronounced by competent judges to be the best book for congregational worship extant.

Mr. Phillips has been traveling and singing constantly for the past two years. He has sung on an average at least five nights in each week, either in concerts for the benefit of some benevolent object, or in large Sunday-school and other religious gatherings. He is now at the West attending the chain of Sunday-school state conventions and meetings of the conferences.

His singing is earnestly spiritual,
and his mission among the people has for its leading purposes the improvement of the heart. As a "singer in Israel" he goes about doing good.—C. Advocate

"The most certain fact of History."

It is in these triumphant terms that the Commentator Lange speaks of the resurrection of Jesus Christ.
Judged according to the ordinary canons of evidence, there is no event of the past so well established as this. The strongest possible testimony from witnesses whose credibility cannot be impeached has been in possession of mankind from the date of the event to the present time. It occurred among the bitterest enemies, the murderers of Christ, men shrewd and powerful, no less than eager to fasten falsehood upon the story if they could. Even the amazed disciples of Jesus discredited it, at first, as stoutly as his enemies.

Their words seemed to them as idle tales and they believed them not. Honest, blunt, incredulous Thomas, the very sort of an ally which skeptics would have desired to have among the disciples at such a time, would listen to no hearsay testimony whatever. The thing was impossible in his view. Nothing but the most overwhelming sensible proofs would satisfy him of such a fact. Even this obstinate doubter was more than silenced; with joyful adoring wonder he was fain to cry out, "My Lord and my God." Thus the risen Lord was obliged to convince his very friends, as well as his enemies, of the reality of his resurrection. Their testimony has all the value of that of men convinced against the current of their opinions and beliefs.

And only such an event as the Resurrection can at all account for the subsequent history and the invincible life and power of Christianity. Had Christ died and disappeared like any ordinary man, we may be sure the Christian religion would have been a poor pietism, would have died out from the active forces of the world. It is utterly impossible that the Acts of the Apostles would have been done or written. Those great Christian heroes would have remained a poor stricken band, never to be rallied from dispersion caused by the cruel and ignominious death of their Master. The mighty movement which stirred the whole world, which overthrew the splendid idolatries of Greece and Rome, which in three centuries converted the civilized world through the zeal of martyr witnesses, would have been as great a miracle as the resurrection itself, had not Christ himself risen.
That Resurrection is the only adequate explanation of such a wonderful series of events in the world's history.

And the Resurrection of Christ is that one great event which however, surprising, would alone give congruity to the life and works of such a being. He who had so marvellous a beginning who taught duty and morality and truth in such a matchless style of authority, simplicity and purity; who wrought by his single word such mighty works, cleansing the leper, giving sight to the blind, hearing to the deaf, and speech to the dumb; who cast out devils and raised the dead; who suffered himself to be announced as the world's promised Redeemer and divine sacrifice, that he should die and pass away; that his body should see corruption; that he should share the common lot and never be heard of more, would be so out of all keeping as to mar irremediably the whole narrative. Beginning and middle would be discredited by such an end.
Slow as his followers were to believe it, only a resurrection on the third day becomes the exalted Jesus, the Great Teacher, the mighty healer, the Redeemer of mankind.—American Presbyterian.

THE BLIND MAN'S SERMON.—A few persons were collected around a blind man, who had taken his station on a bridge over a London canal, and was reading from an embossed Bible. Receiving from the passers-by of their casual things, he was amusing to them spiritual things.
A gentleman on his way home from the city was led by curiosity to the outskirts of the crowd. Just then the poor man, who was reading in the fourth chapter of the Acts, lost his place, and, while trying to find it with his finger, kept repeating the last clause he had read "none other name—none other name—none other name—none other name." Some of the people smiled at the blind man's embarrassment;
but the gentleman went away deeply musing. He had lately become convinced that he was a sinner, and had been trying, in many ways, to obtain peace of mind. But religious exercises, good resolution, altered habits, all were ineffectual to relieve his conscience of its load, and enable him to rejoice in God. The words he had heard from the blind man, however, rang their solemn music in his soul: "None other name!" When he reached his home, and retired to rest, these words, like evening chime from village tower nestling amongst the trees, were still heard: "None other name—none other name—none other name!" And when he awoke, in more joyful measure, like matin bells saluting the morn, the strain continued: "None other name—none other name—none other name!" The music entered his soul, and he awoke to a new life. "I see it all! I have been trying to be saved by my own works—my repentance, my prayers, my reformation. I see my mistake. It is Jesus who alone can save." To Him I will look. "Neither is there salvation in any other." For there is none other name—none other name —none other name—under heaven given among men whereby they must be saved."

The Church will read the following letter from Rev. Dr. Maclay superintendent, with thanksgiving to God, and with increased hope in the China Mission, which bore no fruit of personal conversions for ten years from the time it was instituted. In our closet devotions let us not forget the China Mission:

I am thankful to say that we continue to enjoy God's blessing on our work. At the time of my last visit to Kucheng City I administered the ordinance of baptism to one adult and one child. On Sunday, April 14, I was in the southern portion of our work. In the forenoon of that day was at a village on the seashore called Hait'an where I baptized fourteen adults and two children.
At the close of these services we took up our carriages and went up to Hockching City, a distance of twelve miles, where he held an afternoon service, and I baptized eleven adults and one child. Twenty-eight baptisms in one day! I am aware that these figures will not seem large to those familiar with the Acts of the Apostles, or even to those acquainted with the glorious triumphs of Methodism in the United States; still I assure you they seem large to us here in China, and they thrill our souls with the cheering hope that the "night of toil" is closing and the morn is at hand when "a thousand shall be born in a day."—Canada Christian Advocate.

AN AFFECTING SCENE.—The following is copied from a late number of the Memphis Christian Advocate:

"At Albany, Ga., there has been a gracious revival, during the process of which, a correspondent of the Southern Christian Advocate says, the pupils of the Sunday school of Rev.
Mr. Sweet, the efficient preacher and superintendent, all collected around the altar, and their parents knelt with them. Gen. Colquitt led in prayer. He burst into tears. Ministers wept, parents wept, the radiant cheeks of beautiful childhood, unused to tears of sorrow, were bathed in floods of gushing sensibility. What a scene! There was a man on his knees, in the midst of little, precious, darling children, the mothers of many of them looking down upon them from their bright homes above—looking on their sweet orphans, pinched with poverty and destitution. Then, the man on his knees was one who led his gallant brigade through battles' roaring howling tempest of shell and shot, through death and carnage, for four long, sanguinary years. Strange!
Providence spared him to prostrate himself on a peaceful Sabbath, amid weeping and subdued parents and children, to offer an humble and penitent prayer to the Father of the fatherless, and the friend of the sinner. What a singular, affecting spectacle—what a picture for a sinner!"

CONVERSION OF LOYOLA.—Mr. Parkman thus sharply sketches the conversion of Loyola, the founder of the Jesuits:

Loyola's training had been in courts and camps; of books he knew little or nothing. He had lived in the unquestioning faith of one born and bred in the very focus of Romanism; and thus, at about the age of thirty, his conversion found him.
It was a change of life and purpose, not of belief. He presumed not to inquire into the doctrines of the Church. It was for him to enforce those doctrines, and to this end he turned all the faculties of his potent intellect and all his deep knowledge of mankind. He did not aim to build up communities of secluded monks aspiring to heaven through prayer, penance, and meditation, but to subdue the world to the dominion of the dogmas which had subdued him; to organize and discipline a mighty host, controlled by one purpose and one mind, fired by a quenchless zeal or nerved by a fixed resolve, yet impelled, restrained, and directed by a single master hand.

Foreign Methodist Items.

The thirteenth Conference of the Wesleyan Methodist Church of Eastern British America, commenced its session at Brunswick-street Church, Halifax, on June 26th, remaining in session till July 6th. A decrease in membership of four hundred and nine, during the past year, was reported.

The sixteenth session of the Conference of the Wesleyan Methodist Church in France and Switzerland, was held in Lausanne, from the 15th to the 21st of June—R. Lanson, Pastor, presiding. This Conference consists of three districts and sixteen circuits. It has 29 ministers, 185 chapels and preaching places,
19 colporteurs and school-masters,
96 local preachers, 1890 members, 176 probationers, and 49 Sunday-schools, with 275 teachers, and 2385 scholars. The increase during the past year includes 5 local preachers, 208 members, 8 Sunday schools, 53 teachers, 434 scholars, and about 600 hearers, the whole average of persons attending the ministry being 10,000. More than £1000 have been raised for the expenses of public worship and the support of the ministry, £110 for the Missionary Society, and £760 for chapel building or chapel debts. The total receipts for the official funds amounted to £2350. The next conference will be held in Paris, on May 22d, 1868.

The Conference plan for the session of the British Wesleyan Conference has been published. The official sermon of the retiring president will be preached on Sunday, July 28th, in the morning, and that of the newly-elected president in the evening—in both instances in Old Market Chapel, where the sittings of the Conference will be held.

THE PRIMITIVE METHODIST CONFER-ENCE.—The Forty-eighth Conference of the Primitive Methodist Connection of England was held at Luton, County of Bedford, on June 5th, closing on June 14th. The periodical publications of this denomination are the Primitive Methodist Magazine, with a circulation of 11,268; Christian Messenger, circulation 23,332; Juvenile 30,283; and Child's Friend, circulation 20,265. A Ministerial Candidates' Institution was founded and trustees and a committee appointed. £700 was pledged for the work. A difference of opinion existed as to the location of the institution, some favoring London, others Manchester, and others Sunderland. From the statistical tables of the Connection, we learn that the membership numbers 154,950, being an increase in the past year of 3513. There are 891 travelling preachers, an increase of 11, and 13,865 local preachers, an increase of 138. The Connection has 9224 class leaders, 3118 chapels, being an increase of 126; 3152 rented chapels and rooms, increase of 9; and 2934 Sunday-schools, with 234,794 scholars and 41,191 teachers.

The Conference of the Methodist New Connection, of England, commenced on Sunday, June 9th, at High-street chapel, London. The Rev. John Taylor was elected President. From the report read by the Rev. S. Hume, the ex-President, we learn that there are in the Connection 232 chapels, 510 societies, 190 society probationers, 109 missionaries, 9424 members, 574 probationers, 147 Sabbath-schools, 1224 teachers, and 8571 scholars. The increase has been about £5100; special donations, £50; home mission, £901 16s. 3d. The expenditure would absorb the balance in treasurer's hands at the last Conference.
They needed £7000. Income from the circuits of the English Connection to the foreign and colonial mission, £5022 14s. 4d; for the home mission from the same circuits, £901 16s. 3d.

NOT QUALIFIED.—When John Brown, D. D., had settled in Had-dington, the people of his parish gave him a warm and enthusiastic reception; only one of the members of that large church and congregation stood out in opposition to him. The reverend doctor tried all the means in his power to co-vert the solitary dissenter to the unity of feeling which pervaded the whole body, but all his efforts to obtain an interview proved abortive. As Providence directed, however, they happened one day to meet in the street, when the doctor held out his hand saying,
"My brother, I understand you are opposed to my settling at Hadding-ton."

"Yes, sir," replied the parish-er.

"Well, and if it be a fair question, on what grounds do you object to me?"

"Because, sir," quoth he, "I don't think you are qualified to fill so important a post."

That's my opinion," replied the doctor; "but what, sir, is the use of you and I setting up our opinion in opposition to a whole parish?"

The brother smiled, and then friendship was sealed forever. How very true and forcibly God's word—
"A soft answer turns away wrath."

PUBLISHING COMMITTEES.

FOR MOBILE CONFERENCE:

Rev. J. Hamilton, D.D.,
Rev. A. H. Mitchell, D.D.,
Rev. Thos. W. Dorman, D.D.

FOR MONTGOMERY CONFERENCE:

Rev. H. S. Andrews,
Rev. William A. Shepard,
Rev. J. E. Cottrell.

FOR MISSISSIPPI CONFERENCE:

Rev. W. H. Watkins, D.D.,
Rev. R. H. Montgomery,
Rev. William F. Barton.

FOR LOUISIANA CONFERENCE:

Rev. J. C. Keener, D.D.,
Rev. J. E. Walker, D.D.,
Rev. Elias Parker.

New Orleans:

SATURDAY, AUGUST 10, 1867.

How to send money.—We are frequently receiving enquiries upon this point. We have carefully lost anything by the mails, and consider them safe. The risk at any time will be ours.

We are still asked shall we forward money by mail? Answer, YES. The Agent will notice, as above, that the risk is not his.

To subscribers.—Any person wishing to subscribe for this paper can do so by paying the Methodist preacher in the circuit, and forwarding to us his receipt for three dollars, with the address of the subscriber upon it, giving Post office, State, Circuit, and Conference. The receipt ought to be taken in duplicate.

NEW ADVERTISEMENTS.

MANSFIELD FEMALE COLLEGE.—We publish this week the advertisement of this Institution. The report of the Visiting Committee will appear next week. The Fall session opens on Wednesday 25th September. The Institution is the property and under control of the Louisiana Conference. The President, Rev. C. B. Stuart, has a long experience in teaching, and in the conduct of schools, and was chosen for the position, because of eminent qualifications and fitness.

The card of Given, Brown & Co., will be found in the list of late advertisements. This firm succeeds the old firm of "Given, Watts & Co." The names of the gentlemen composing the new firm will not fail to command the confidence of the community, and an extensive patronage.

Health of the city is considered good for the season. Total mortality for week ending Sunday the 4th, 137—8 deaths from cholera, 29 from yellow fever.

On Thursday, the 31st, the City Council was removed by military order, and a new set of Aldermen and Assistant Aldermen appointed. The colored element is in the new Boards to a limited extent. Subsequently the city treasurer was removed, and another put in his place. These officials were all impugned to reconstruction, and we suppose the General Commanding very reluctantly put them out of the way. It is understood that the work of decapitation is by no means finished. Meanwhile, rumors thicken, that Sheridan himself will soon be superseded in the command of this District. Within the last two weeks, Throckmorton, Governor of Texas, has been removed, and Pease appointed.

Elections in Tennessee and Kentucky are recently over. Kentucky has gone strongly for the Democrats. Congress will have to reconstruct her, and Maryland also. Poor Tennessee! Brownlow's majority, say about thirty thousand, and the whole radical ticket elected everywhere. So it will be in these Southern and Gulf States.

The Empire Parish of the 3d inst. says: The Rice crop, this year, will be the largest ever gathered in this parish.

UNCONVERTED CHRISTIANS.

A misnomer perhaps, and yet a term which describes a large class of people. We limit its application to members of the church who are without a comfortable assurance of acceptance and pardon. Christians in profession, and in doctrines of the Gospel, believers. Orthodox in what they hold, and equally so in what they discard. Sound on the fundamental truths of revelation. Having the form of godliness, but not the power.

Some have come into the church as seekers, professing "a desire to flee from the wrath to come, and to be saved from their sins." They were sincere and in earnest, but not obtaining any satisfactory assurance, they have gradually settled into a state of inaction. They may have concluded that in their cases the work must be gradual, and that no indication of the passage from death unto life is to be expected. Or they have determined to adhere to the outward forms and duties of religion, hoping that by some gracious intervention they shall be fitted for heaven. Not many in the Methodist Church who expect to be saved by contrast with, and mere observance of, the forms and sacraments. Probably there are some who build upon this false foundation. Many no doubt cling to their church relationship, believing that it will in the end lead to their salvation. Others there are who have joined the church when interested on the subject of religion, and who without reaching a change of heart have relapsed into a state of comparative indifference.

Thus it has happened that unconverted persons have come into the church, and that they remain unconverted. They are not hypocrites, nor do we condemn them for joining the church, nor for their continuance in it. They are, however, to be condemned for being at ease in Zion, when their souls are in danger, and when they ought to be pressing into the Kingdom of God. They are at the feast without the wedding garment, and sleeping, like the foolish virgins, whilst utterly unprepared for the midnight cry.

Again, there is a considerable class of backsliders. Those who have been converted. Their condition is one of classification and degrees, varying from partial spiritual decline to the entire loss of spiritual life. The regression has gone on in many instances until the present state is none other than the unconverted. They have no religion now. It is altogether an affair of other days. There is condemnation, absence of comfort, and an aversion to know and acknowledge to themselves the real condition of the soul. Once warm and zealous, they are now mere connecting links between the church and the world; in spirit, belonging as much to the one as the other.

Whatever may have been the past experience the real test is as to the present life of the soul. If you have gone so far back as to have lost all comfort and peace, and if your present is a condition of darkness and conscious unfitness for eternity, what are you but an unconverted man? There is this difference from sinners in general, that you have peculiar guilt, and a larger measure of responsibility, but beyond this, you are numbered amongst the herd of unbelievers and sinners.

Here then are two considerable classes of people in the church who are unconverted. Those who have come in without the blessing of justification, and have remained without it; and those who have lost the power and purity of their once happy religious change. Without attempting to estimate the proportion of these, to those who are born again and maintain consistent and holy lives, the general fact is sufficiently suggestive.

Self-examination is obviously appropriate. "Prove yourselves," if dead or a living branch, which do I belong to the converted or the unconverted side of Christianity? No doubt many are deceiving themselves as to the fact of a change, and resting in something besides the unmistakable witness of the spirit. Some are maintaining a dead routine of religious profession, whilst any actual experience of the Holy Ghost, is a reminiscence of other years. It seems to have been to the church that Paul applied the Scripture, "Wherefore sit, saith, awake thou that sleepest, and arise from the dead, and Christ shall give thee light."

The general fact to which we have adverted also suggests the importance of insisting upon the gospel standard of doctrine. Preachers may be to blame in the matter. They urge seekers into the church, but sometimes fail to follow them up with earnest concern for their conversion. There may be a hurtful compromise to the witness of the spirit, and the new birth. The Wesleyan exposition of these doctrines has sometimes been weakened, and their edge and power have been greatly impaired. Let Zion's watchmen all awake to the importance of the frequent and persistent statement of the great experimental verities of the gospel. And let them especially insist upon the work and witness of the Holy Ghost.

NEW YORK.

It seems as if the whole country, and every man, woman, and child in it, is directly or indirectly tributary to this great Emporium of America. Its lines go out into all the Western world. By rail, by canal, by sea steamers, people and wealth are pouring hourly into its crowded streets. As we had not seen it for eight or ten years, the improvement which it presented upon all recollection of its former size and grandeur was something marvellous. Whole blocks of four-story warehouses built of white marble now take the place of the substantial brick houses we used to see. The shops in Broadway seem to have multiplied themselves in number and brilliancy many fold. We doubt if the world can equal them in attractiveness, and in solid value. Leaving this central artery, and flowing with the crowd toward the water-fronts of the city, one finds himself among factories and workshops of all kinds, until it becomes difficult to decide whether New York is greater as a manufacturing, than as a commercial city. Every craft is here followed, and displayed upon a gigantic scale. One single article in one department of any branch of trade is made a specialty and rises to the largest proportions.

On the corner a store with a red front, gaudily gilded, and figures of Chinamen, attracts the stranger; inside wheels are revolving in a distracting way, and about thirty men, in a fever, are running to and fro, waiting on customers, and wrapping up small packages of "Hyson," "Bohea," "Imperial," and "Gunpowder." Can it be possible that this is going on all the time just retailing tea? So it seems, and much more, for one of these red-front Tea-Stores discovered itself every eight or ten squares, and their similarity suggests that they are all owned by one Great Tea Company. Large capital is required to do business successfully where there is so much competition, and the expenses of living are so considerable. Trade is followed with an eagerness and solemnity which would seem only to belong to eternal things. The warehouses are imposing; an atmosphere of worshipful consciousness as in the immediate presence of Mammon, pervades the minds of principals, while order, diligence, promptness, silence, and profound respect for the firm, no-characterize all employees. "No room for mirth or trifling here."

Next to the grand stores, banks, and insurance offices, one is impressed by the churches. These are not numerous, but are, in the main, costly and imposing. The presence of a church worth from $100,000 to $150,000 acts favorably upon the general style of the neighborhood, if it does not decide it. Speculators see advantages in building a church which we of New Orleans have been slow to discover. The fashionable quarters here abound in piles of marble and red sandstone shaped in every form of church edifice, but the dense parts of the city, where the lower orders of the people live, contain very few churches. It appears that Protestant Christianity has yielded the Irish and foreign population to the Catholics. This impression is not altogether from observation, but from those thoroughly informed. What can be done to reach these masses, to attract them to the pure word of God, to draw them away from the mummeries and symbolic superstitions of Loyola priestcraft; to leaven this vast multitude of living souls? This is a problem as yet unsolved. "How fast your city is growing!" we remarked to an old man in the cars. "Yes," he replied, "too fast, unless something can be done for the people."

On the one hand are wealth and extravagance unbounded, on the other, want, wretchedness, and crime, unequalled for depth and extent. With these merchant princes, twenty thousand dollars is not an uncommon sum for a family to expend in a single year; while on the other extreme hundreds of tenement-houses are packed with from five to twenty families, each and all thrown and huddled together in a promiscuous misery. One's heart sickens at the bare sight of the wretched women and children, and depraved men and boys which swarm whole districts of the city. Doubtless many minds and benevolent spirits are seeking some solution of this great and threatening evil.

The war has added largely to the wealth of this place, and men have become rich beyond estimate, who, six years ago, despaired of ever possessing more than a competency. No little of the huge bulk of debt which lays upon the whole country can here find explanation. But fortunes made with the quickness and mystery of Arabian magic paralyze industry and breed vagabonds. The honest laborer becomes imputing of the slow rewards of daily toil, and looks about him for some piece of good fortune, or run of luck, which will in a moment deliver him from a lifetime of bondage. Lottery-tickets, gambling, idleness, and drunkenness follow in natural and rapid succession and do their fatal work. In the corrupt mass the Irish element preponderates largely, and wretched as it is, it is probably in far better condition than when it was in Ireland. (The note to Great Britain which it was said Russia, France, and Prussia united in, enquiring into the present condition of Ireland, and looking towards some settlement of that distracted country, ought to be written. As it now is, England keeps Ireland to supply the U. States with voters, Catholics, and vagabonds. This city is ruled by the Irish vote, and the city council have recently given to the Catholic church two entire squares of ground of immense value. Bread cast upon the waters in such quantity will be gathered not many years hence. The enormous wealth of the Trinity Episcopal church has put the Episcopalians here considerably in the advance of other denominations. The Methodists have but forty seven church buildings, while there are more than a hundred Protestant Episcopal. This unusual difference in the two bodies can be accounted for in no other way; and so the wealth which the disciples of Loyola, under various titles, are gathering in this city and country, must tell disastrously upon the faith of its people.

The poor can find a delightful breathing place in the Central Park. Its lawns, fountains, lakes, walks, common, trees, bridges, rocks, grottoes, and music, are only less than Paradise when compared with the fetid atmosphere and confined places where they live. New York may well be proud of this public work. Next to the Croton Aqueduct we suppose that it contributes most largely of all improvements to the health and enjoyment of the people. Squalid poverty can here recreate amid pure air, sparkling fountains, and smooth lawns of this luxurious retreat.

For the first time we visited the villages of Sing Sing, Tarrytown, and Irvington, situated on the high banks of the North River, about forty miles above New York. On these heights her merchant princes have built their nests. Italian villas, Grecian and Gothic styles of architecture crown the rocky terraces and peaks of the river bank. Millions of dollars have been lavished to soften these rough sites and cover them with structures of every order and grace, with orchards, vines, evergreens, hothouses, fish pools, marble walks and drives, surpassing all that we had ever seen for variety and beauty. One can here see the end of ambition, and of all that "labor under the sun," which fills the hands and the imagination of a New York merchant, the grand consummation of his earthly desires, a villa on the Hudson. Many men have lost their souls for less. In the North something inaccessible by reason of cost, is necessary to constitute an exclusive class of society. Those who, having made money, feel themselves to be something, are certainly at a great loss in these days of universal suffrage, for adequate exclusion. Fine houses, fine horses, and "no poor kin," solve the problem. The two first can be purchased, and the last you can move away from.

While in Sing Sing, we attended a Northern Methodist camp meeting. We had not seen them under their own vine and fig-tree since the war, and felt desirous to see them in their highest religious mood, far removed from any temporary mood to appropriate other people's church property. The assemblage was not near so considerable as we expected to find. Rain interfered with the public services.

Two excellent discourses without admixture of politics repaid us for the visit. At a Love-feast which was held on Sabbath morning, about eighty persons spoke; we heard but six speakers, of these three professed perfect love, meaning, as we understood it, entire sanctification. A whole camp meeting was held at Vineland, N. J., two weeks ago for the express purpose of seeking this blessing. This is something new in Methodism, and threatens to be more serious than novel. Quite a division exists between this set and highly demonstrative way of becoming perfect, and those who reject such forced methods of experimental spiritual growth. The day before we arrived on the camp ground, a returned missionary from the heathen land of S. Carolin preached. He gave a sad picture of the moral state of the white man in the Palmetto State. That the only hope was in the blacks—the "poor white trash" were overruled by the better class of the whites, who were themselves too proud to tend church. That upon his val in Charleston he found no bel preachers, "they had fled escape hanging, which they deserved." He believed in promiscuous assembling of whites and blacks—"if God had intended a separation, He would have given us a black Jesus and a black bible." He preferred a "man with a white soul to a man with a black soul." Such address must have been very satisfactory to a refined audience, to gentlemen of the Mission Board present, so far as it affirmed the cast and temper of principal agent. They might see at a glance in this man a main difficulty in the way of construction. Such as live by turbulence, and receive consolation only when times are only joint, may be expected to exalt the art of abuse.

EAST TENNESSEE.

We publish this week an abridgment of Bishop McTear's account of the state of the Church in Tennessee. The Bishop's narrative will be read with interest, of space compelled us to leave out many paragraphs. We had to hard to discriminate, and have so with reluctance. It is a sad picture altogether, and one which poses the animus of the Northern Methodists. Here and there found a man of their communion who does not sympathize with their persecution and robbery. The wonder is, that whilst they related must be known to church in the North, that no censure or protest is uttered. They are generally and fully we do not believe, but to some extent and in some quarters they be, but there are none who the Christian courage to rise and denounce these things, characterize them as they do.

Rev. Joseph E. White.

The death of this estimable minister was announced some time in a note to the Advocate, Rev. B. White makes the following mention of his deceased brother.

"I have recently learned of the death of my eldest brother, Rev. E. White, lato of the Tennessee Conference, recently transferred to the Mississippi Conference, died at Cooper's Well, Mississippi June 24th, of chronic diarrhea. For many years an active member of the Tennessee Conference, in the vigor of manhood usefulness he is cut down. He wears his crown. Some of my best religious impressions are associated with him. Poor stranger's hands laid him out, rest in Jesus 'till the triumph shall peel forth the departed time. He sought no or praise of men—he sought to do his duty. His record is on his tombstone."

May we sing up there, When our songs end here?

Death of Rev. Robert W. Lambuth.

The subjoined note from Bro. Copeland informs us of this event. A good and faithful minister has fallen. The summer sudden, but we doubt not he was ready to depart. Let all of our watchmen be faithful and ready at the midnight cry.

Madison County, Aug. 10, 1867.
Mr. Editor: I write to inform you to the death of our good brother Robert W. Lambuth, of Clinton county, Mississippi Conference, died of cholera, was taken sick the morning and died in the evening of July 30th, and was buried yesterday, at Pearl River Church.

Yours truly,
H. Copeland.

NEWS.

Registration closed in Louisiana on the last of July. The result, as it stood a few days before the time expired.

The whole number of registered voters in the State, it will be found by together the above totals, is 219,999. Majority of blacks over whites being 664. That there will be very little change in the above figures may be judged from the fact that during the past two weeks only 1300 names have been added to the lists in the entire State.

round of six of the smallest parishes in a majority throughout. The preponderance of white voters amounts to but 1876 votes, while the majority of the black voters is nearly equal to the white majority. The number of black voters in the parish of Orleans is an exception, the number of blacks being but sixty-two.

Second.—That every person engaged in such conspiracy, as long as he continues a member of it, is responsible not only for the act of treason, but for any murder or other crime which may flow from it.

Third.—That the Government may waive the charge of treason against one or all of the conspirators, and proceed against them for the small crime of murder, included in the greater crime of treason.

Fourth.—That under an indictment for a murder resulting from the prosecution of such conspiracy, evidence of the entire scope of the conspiracy may be considered in estimating the heinous character of the offense laid in the indictment.

Fifth.—That it was not necessary to aver in the indictment the fact that Abraham Lincoln, the victim of the murder, was at the time of its commission President of the United States, or to prove, in order to allow the jury to take that fact into account in determining the heinous character of the crime, it being a fact of which courts will take a judicial cognizance.

Sixth.—That he who does an act by another does it by himself and is responsible for its consequences in criminal as well as in civil cases.

Seventh.—That, although an alibi when clearly established, forms a complete and unanswerable defense, the mere absence from the immediate scene of a crime resulting from a conspiracy, unrepented of and unadmitted by the party charged with it, will not avail him if he were at some other place assigned him, performing his part in that conspiracy.

Eighth.—That this plea is, unless clearly made out, always regarded with suspicion, and a circumstance weighing against him who attempts it, because it implies an admission of the truth of the facts alleged against him, and the correctness of the inference drawn from them.

Ninth.—That the flight from the scene of crime, the fabrication of false accounts, the concealment of instruments of violence, are circumstances indicating guilt.

Tenth.—Although a confession in the slightest degree tainted with the promise of favor, or by duress or fear, is not admitted as evidence against him who makes it, yet if made freely and voluntarily, is one of the surest proofs of guilt.

The foreman of the jury requested a copy of the recorded evidence. Fisher said it was annexed. The defense was willing, but the prosecution objected, so the jury retired without documents. The verdict is waited for with feverish anxiety.

LATEST NEWS.

LONDON, August 6.—2 P. M.—Heavenly storm prevailing.

WASHINGTON, August 6.—The amendment increasing the term of office of the President from ten to fifteen years, was rejected. The bill was sent to a third reading to-night.

WASHINGTON, August 6.—Thirty-three persons have been convicted in the case of the late President.

WASHINGTON, August 6.—Minister of Prussia has arrived.

WASHINGTON, August 6.—It is reported that the King of Prussia has arrived.

WASHINGTON, August 6.—Active negotiations are progressing between the President and the Holy See for the settlement of a new concordat.

WASHINGTON, August 6.—Garibaldi has abandoned the movement to Rome for the present, expecting himself confident of ultimate success.

WASHINGTON, August 6.—Secretary Sewell has returned.

WASHINGTON, August 6.—The cabinet did not attend to day's cabinet.

WASHINGTON, August 6.—The revenue receipts today $900,000.

WASHINGTON, August 6.—A comparative statement of the public debt for two months, shows that the public debt has increased $2,700,000. The debt bearing currency has decreased $90,726,910. The total debt decreased $90,726,910. The total debt decreased $90,726,910. The total debt decreased $90,726,910.

WASHINGTON, August 6.—The President's formal intimation to the Senate of his resignation would be accepted with excitement in political circles.

WASHINGTON, August 6.—Stanton has replied to the Senate. He says in effect that the consideration of those of a high character—which would make his resignation acceptable to the Senate, is acceptable to the Senate. He says in effect that the consideration of those of a high character—which would make his resignation acceptable to the Senate, is acceptable to the Senate.

WASHINGTON, August 6.—Yessels arrived from a tremendous hurricane, which has done much damage. Pieces of wreck have been picked up by various pilot boats.

WASHINGTON, August 6.—Election returns from the Democratic victory in the State. The majority is estimated at over 60,000.

WASHINGTON, August 6.—Galloway, Democratic candidate for the Third District, still the favorite by the recent death of Hise, is elected by a almost two vote.

WASHINGTON, August 6.—Gen. Sickles has been post commander here to notify the adjourned August of the Legislature is postponed under orders.

WASHINGTON, August 6.—Benjamin Harrison, a wealthy planter of Beaufort, N.C., who was recently placed in the army at Columbia, committed suicide by hanging yesterday. His insanity was from depression caused by the gloomy outlook of the country.

WASHINGTON, August 6.—Gen. Sickles has been post commander here to notify the adjourned August of the Legislature is postponed under orders.

WASHINGTON, August 6.—Ex-Gov. Porter died today, aged ninety years.

WASHINGTON, August 6.—Judge Lawrence was appointed by Gen. Canine to the charge of the negroes discharged from military service in providing for their future.

WASHINGTON, August 6.—Capt. Arms with a party of men was surrounded by Indians at Fort Hays.

WASHINGTON, August 6.—The party cut their way out and reached Hays, but pursued. Being reinforced from the fort they moved against Indians. Nothing has been learned of the result.

WASHINGTON, August 6.—Gen. Pope has been appointed to the command of the troops in cases against soldiers who committed in accordance with military orders.

WASHINGTON, August 6.—Holve's majority reached forty thousand.

WASHINGTON, August 6.—Charge of the Judge.

WASHINGTON, August 6.—Judge Fisher's decision covers four and a half columns. It is regarded as unfavorable to the principle of the summing up to the jury. The following is his summing up to the jury, you will infer: First that a conspiracy formed in time of war to take the life of the President and Vice President of the Republic, and the heads of the executive departments, for the purpose of aiding the enemies of the Federal Government, by throwing it into anarchy and confusion, is treason as heinous and as heinous as the treason of the King or Queen of Great Britain is to the subjects of that realm.

Second.—That every person engaged in such conspiracy, as long as he continues a member of it, is responsible not only for the act of treason, but for any murder or other crime which may flow from it.

Third.—That the Government may waive the charge of treason against one or all of the conspirators, and proceed against them for the small crime of murder, included in the greater crime of treason.

Fourth.—That under an indictment for a murder resulting from the prosecution of such conspiracy, evidence of the entire scope of the conspiracy may be considered in estimating the heinous character of the offense laid in the indictment.

Fifth.—That it was not necessary to aver in the indictment the fact that Abraham Lincoln, the victim of the murder, was at the time of its commission President of the United States, or to prove, in order to allow the jury to take that fact into account in determining the heinous character of the crime, it being a fact of which courts will take a judicial cognizance.

Sixth.—That he who does an act by another does it by himself and is responsible for its consequences in criminal as well as in civil cases.

Seventh.—That, although an alibi when clearly established, forms a complete and unanswerable defense, the mere absence from the immediate scene of a crime resulting from a conspiracy, unrepented of and unadmitted by the party charged with it, will not avail him if he were at some other place assigned him, performing his part in that conspiracy.

Eighth.—That this plea is, unless clearly made out, always regarded with suspicion, and a circumstance weighing against him who attempts it, because it implies an admission of the truth of the facts alleged against him, and the correctness of the inference drawn from them.

Ninth.—That the flight from the scene of crime, the fabrication of false accounts, the concealment of instruments of violence, are circumstances indicating guilt.

Tenth.—Although a confession in the slightest degree tainted with the promise of favor, or by duress or fear, is not admitted as evidence against him who makes it, yet if made freely and voluntarily, is one of the surest proofs of guilt.

The foreman of the jury requested a copy of the recorded evidence. Fisher said it was annexed. The defense was willing, but the prosecution objected, so the jury retired without documents. The verdict is waited for with feverish anxiety.

Disagreement of the Sumratt Jury.

WASHINGTON, Aug. 7, 9 P. M.—No verdict in the Sumratt case. The court-house is filled with an anxious crowd.

WASHINGTON, Aug. 7, 10:30 P. M.—Fisher took his seat, and the Bailiff started that there was no prospect of an agreement among the jurors. Some of them were disposed upon lounges, while others were arguing matters. Fisher, without adjourning court, said he would go home, and he received the verdict until morning. It is seriously apprehended that the jury will hang.

OUR SPIRIT AND MANNERS.—Our manners must be tender and winning. The nail of reproach, says an old writer, must be well oiled in kindness before it is driven home. Meddling with the faults of others, is like attempting to move a mountain with gout—it must be done slowly and tenderly, nor must we be frightened by an outcry or two! The great thing is to show the person that you really love him; if you manifest this in the sight of God, he will bless your efforts, and give you favor in the sight of an erring brother.

OBITUARIES.

Another saint has gone to rest. SE. MANTHE, widow of Rev. Miles Harper formerly of the Mississippi Annual Conference, died at her residence, Monticello, Texas Parish, La., on the morning of Tuesday, 9th July, 1866, aged sixty-nine years. The deceased was a native of South Carolina. Her maiden name was Ford. In her youth, she renounced a home of affluence to follow and partake of the labor of Him whose praise was in "all the churches" (Methodist) throughout Tennessee, Kentucky, Mississippi, and in latter years Louisiana. The intellectual and moral were happily blended in her character.

She failed not to do her whole duty as an itinerant's wife. During the war, Yankee guerrillas, and so-called rebels, were all around her residence, in Texas, but none disturbed her, or hers, such was her faith in God. Her last illness was brief, borne with patience and resignation—ever trusting in the merits of her adorable Lord for present and future salvation. Her illness was of one week's duration. She died in peace, and has gone to join the company of the beloved ones above. The loving traits of our mother were indomitable will and perseverance. Sainted one, we shall meet thee above.

R. A. NEW.

Died, in Jackson county, Miss., July 17, 1867, Mrs. LUCINDA, wife of Joseph Carter, aged forty-nine years.

In all the relations of life, she was an exemplary woman, discharging all the duties growing out of the various relations that she sustained. In early life, she joined the M. E. Church, South, and from that time until her death, she maintained an unblemished Christian character. Her religion was not theory alone, but something of practical and experimental import. She, it is true, had her sorrows, cares, and perplexities, but her practice was to trust God, and do her duty, and thus her faith would make the dark clouds withdraw, pain would become pleasure, and loss, gain.

Her last sickness was severe and protracted, but she never let go her hold on her Saviour. It was her constant delight to have her friends sing the songs of Zion in her room, and when her strength would permit, she would join in singing these songs of praise. She was often comforted and made happy by those grand old Methodist hymns that have been sung for more than a century with the same results. Thus, has passed away another faithful servant of God, leaving husband, children, and friends to mourn her loss, but, thank God, they have a comfortable assurance that she has gone to die no more. And while they mourn, they feel that she is safely housed in the Paradise of God.

Brother WM. L. DORRIS, who was born the 21st of June, 1842, very suddenly passed from our midst, 15th of July, '67. His death was occasioned by a fall. He is running rapidly down a precipitous place of the earth, was entangled in some grapevines, which threw him upon his face, and his chest coming in contact with a small stump, opposite his heart, resulted in his death in about fifteen minutes. Although, he so unexpectedly had to bid this world adieu, we have the evidence that he was ready to depart and be at peace.

He was born of the Spirit in the month of October, 1859, and at once connected himself with the M. E. Church, South, and was a faithful good man to the last.

He was also, a brave, good soldier, for four years in the army of the Southern States. Capt. Larke, who was with him all the time during his stay in the army, witnessed that he was a good man while there. The writer of this notice has had the pleasure of his society often during the past few months, and always found him calm and unexcited on all subjects; never manifesting any disposition to murmur at the Providence of God; but ever confiding in Him who doeth all things well, and ever manifesting a strong confidence that God would yet over-rule the calamities of our country, to the good of his people. Whatever was his affliction, and tribulation or sorrow, he was ready to sing the sentiment of Wesley.

"Commit thou all thy griefs,
And wait on his hands,
To his sure trust and tender care
Who earth and heaven commands."

"He lived the life of the righteous,
His last end was like his."
"Peace be to his ashes." He has left many dear relatives to weep over his dust, and among others, is a good wife and two little orphans. May "God, who is the widows' judge, and the orphan's friend," bless and comfort them in their forlorn condition. And may they all soon reunite where sad accidents are not known.

His Pastor,
Tallapoosa, Ala., July 20, 1867.

Southwestern Christian Advocate
please notice.

SPECIAL NOTICES.

OPELOUSAS DISTRICT.

There will be a District Meeting for Opelousas District, held at New Iberia, on the 13th and 14th days of September. All the itinerant and local preachers in the District, together with the official members of the several churches are requested to attend.

A. E. GOODWIN, P. E.

A District meeting for Montgomery District, Montgomery Conference, will be held at Auburn, Ala., commencing Thursday evening the 5th of September. On that evening the opening sermon will be preached by Rev. O. R. Blue. All the official members and elected delegates of the District, are earnestly requested to attend.

M. S. ANDREWS, P. E.

Arcola District Meeting.

Arcola District Meeting, Mississippi Conference, will commence at Day's Church, in St. Helena Parish, La., on the fourth Sabbath in August, at 10 o'clock, the local and itinerant, exhorters, stewards and class leaders, are earnestly requested to attend, from all the circuits in the District, with reports on the various interests of the church, at which the stewards are to elect four Lay Delegates to the Annual Conference.

J. NICHOLS, P. E.

Brookhaven Dist.—Miss Conference.

THIRD ROUND OF QUARTERLY MEETINGS.

Wesson June 8, 9

Chrystal Springs, Georgetown 22, 23

Hazlehurst, White Bay 15, 16

Brookhaven, July 6, 7

Holmesville, Summit 13, 14

Meadville, Smyrna 20, 21

Bayou Chitto, Monticello 27, 28

Bayou Pierre, Pleasant Valley Aug 3, 4

Pearl River 10, 11

Seotland, Bethesda 17, 18

G. W. MILLS, P. E.

Yazoo District—Mississippi Conference

THIRD ROUND OF QUARTERLY MEETINGS.

Lexington at Oregon June 15, 16

Greenwood, at Greenwood 22, 23

Carrollton, at Mt Zion 23, 24

Emory, at Euon July 6, 7

Holmes, at Wheeling 17, 18

Richland, at Goodman 20, 21

Black Hawk, at Sweetwater Aug 3, 4

Mount Olivet, at Fletcher Chapel 17, 18

Yazoo, at Mt Carmel 24, 25

Yazoo City Station Aug 31 Sept 1

In addition to the above appointments I will preach, Deo volente, at the following places and times.

Lexington, June 18, 8 o'clock P. M.

Sweetwater, " 19, 11 " A. M.

Black Hawk, " 20, 8 " P. M.

Carrollton, " 27, 8 " "

Eden, " 28, 8 " "

Durant, July 19, 8 " "

Benton Aug 16, 8 " "

BRETHREN: Have religious services on the stated fast-days. Our District Meeting will commence at Sweetwater, Black Hawk Circuit, on the first day of August. I urge upon the Brethren the importance of having everything in readiness for the Quarterly Meetings. They should be made, as far as possible, occasions of interest and profit to the Church.

J. M. POON, P. E.

Lake Providence Dist.—La. Conference.

THIRD ROUND OF QUARTERLY MEETINGS.

Delhi & Floyd Ct., at Midway, July 29, 28

Carroll, at Curtis's, Aug 3, 4

Oakley, at Bonell Prairie 10, 11

Ion, Little Creek Chapel, 24, 25

Tensas and Sicily, Sicily Island Sept 7, 8

Waterproof & St. Joseph, Waterproof 14, 15

Also a District Meeting for Lake Providence District, to be held at Oakley Camp ground, to commence on the 27th Sept., at which all the traveling and local preachers, exhorters, district stewards, Sunday-school superintendents and class leaders, are respectfully requested to attend, and as many of the members of the church as possible.

W. M. McGAUGHY, P. E.

Tuskaloosa District—Mobile Conference.

THIRD ROUND OF QUARTERLY MEETINGS.

Marion May 25, 26

Greensboro June 1, 2

New Bern and Oak Grove " 8, 9

Brush Creek " 15, 16

Liberty " 22, 23

Scottsville and Carthage July 6, 7

Tuskaloosa " 13, 14

Havana " 20, 21

Etaw " 27, 28

Forland Aug 3, 4

J. L. COTTON, P. E.

Mobile District—Mobile Conference.

THIRD ROUND OF QUARTERLY MEETINGS.

Mobile, St. Paul's June 22, 23

Franklin street " 29, 30

St. Francis July 6, 7

Whistler & Cottage Hill, at Cottage Hill 13, 14

Citronelle, at George's 20, 21

Eastern Shore & Fish River, at P Clear 27, 28

Bay shore and Pascagoula at Zion, Aug 3, 4

Ocean Springs at Ocean Springs 10, 11

Waynesboro, at Buckatanna 17, 18

St. Stephens & State Line, at State Line 24, 25

THOS. W. DOWMAN, P. E.

NOTICE.

BASTROP, July 20, '67.

There will be a District Meeting for Monroe District, to be held at Bastrop, to commence on the 30th day of August, '67, at which all traveling and Local Preachers, exhorters, District stewards, Sunday-school superintendents, and class leaders, are respectfully requested to attend, and as many of the members of the church as possible.

JAMES S. WRIGHT, P. E.

Summerfield District Meeting.

A District Meeting for the Summerfield District will be held at Uniontown, commencing Thursday, the 12th Sept. The official members of the church within the bounds of the district, are all members of the District Meeting Conference, and are earnestly requested and expected to attend. Arrangements will be made to carry the members over the railroad at half price.

A. H. MITCHELL, P. E.

Shreveport Dist.—Louisiana Conference.

THIRD ROUND OF QUARTERLY MEETINGS.

Many, at Bayou Lee, June 1, 2

Anacoco, Kissatchie, " 8, 9

Pleasant Hill, at Bethel, " 15, 16

Shreveport July 6, 7

N. Rosier, at Collinsburg, " 13, 14

Caddo, at Keatchie, " 20, 21

Belle Bower " 27, 28

Springville, at Holly's S. H. Aug 3, 4

Mansfield, at Foster's Chapel 10, 11

B. F. ALEXANDER, P. E.

NEW ADVERTISEMENTS.

EDUCATIONAL.

A young lady educated in Europe, with five years' experience in teaching there—desires an engagement. Prefers a pleasant home to a large number of scholars. Qualified in French and music. Will be here in October. Address, Rev. JAS. MACLENNAN, Greenville, Miss., stating terms, etc.

WANTED.

TEACHER'S SITUATION WANTED.

A lady who can produce the first testimonials of ability and success as an instructor, wishes to engage a position as teacher for the ensuing academic year: is well qualified to teach the English branches, French, and music. References given and required. Terms, for a limited number of scholars, $40 per month, and board. Address, A. B. C. care of Rev. Doctor Neally, Mobile.

Yazoo District—Mississippi Conference

THIRD ROUND OF QUARTERLY MEETINGS.

Lexington at Oregon June 15, 16

Greenwood, at Greenwood 22, 23

Carrollton, at Mt Zion 23, 24

Emory, at Euon July 6, 7

Holmes, at Wheeling 17, 18

Richland, at Goodman 20, 21

Black Hawk, at Sweetwater Aug 3, 4

Mount Olivet, at Fletcher Chapel 17, 18

Yazoo, at Mt Carmel 24, 25

Yazoo City Station Aug 31 Sept 1

In addition to the above appointments I will preach, Deo volente, at the following places and times.

Lexington, June 18, 8 o'clock P. M.

Sweetwater, " 19, 11 " A. M.

Black Hawk, " 20, 8 " P. M.

Carrollton, " 27, 8 " "

Eden, " 28, 8 " "

Durant, July 19, 8 " "

Benton Aug 16, 8 " "

BRETHREN: Have religious services on the stated fast-days. Our District Meeting will commence at Sweetwater, Black Hawk Circuit, on the first day of August. I urge upon the Brethren the importance of having everything in readiness for the Quarterly Meetings. They should be made, as far as possible, occasions of interest and profit to the Church.

J. M. POON, P. E.

Lake Providence Dist.—La. Conference.

THIRD ROUND OF QUARTERLY MEETINGS.

Delhi & Floyd Ct., at Midway, July 29, 28

Carroll, at Curtis's, Aug 3, 4

Oakley, at Bonell Prairie 10, 11

Ion, Little Creek Chapel, 24, 25

Tensas and Sicily, Sicily Island Sept 7, 8

Waterproof & St. Joseph, Waterproof 14, 15

Also a District Meeting for Lake Providence District, to be held at Oakley Camp ground, to commence on the 27th Sept., at which all the traveling and local preachers, exhorters, district stewards, Sunday-school superintendents and class leaders, are respectfully requested to attend, and as many of the members of the church as possible.

W. M. McGAUGHY, P. E.

Tuskaloosa District—Mobile Conference.

THIRD ROUND OF QUARTERLY MEETINGS.

Marion May 25, 26

Greensboro June 1, 2

New Bern and Oak Grove " 8, 9

Brush Creek " 15, 16

Liberty " 22, 23

Scottsville and Carthage July 6, 7

Tuskaloosa " 13, 14

Havana " 20, 21

Etaw " 27, 28

Forland Aug 3, 4

J. L. COTTON, P. E.

Mobile District—Mobile Conference.

THIRD ROUND OF QUARTERLY MEETINGS.

Mobile, St. Paul's June 22, 23

Franklin street " 29, 30

St. Francis July 6, 7

Whistler & Cottage Hill, at Cottage Hill 13, 14

Citronelle, at George's 20, 21

Eastern Shore & Fish River, at P Clear 27, 28

Bay shore and Pascagoula at Zion, Aug 3, 4

Ocean Springs at Ocean Springs 10, 11

Waynesboro, at Buckatanna 17, 18

St. Stephens & State Line, at State Line 24, 25

THOS. W. DOWMAN, P. E.

NOTICE.

BASTROP, July 20, '67.

There will be a District Meeting for Monroe District, to be held at Bastrop, to commence on the 30th day of August, '67, at which all traveling and Local Preachers, exhorters, District stewards, Sunday-school superintendents, and class leaders, are respectfully requested to attend, and as many of the members of the church as possible.

JAMES S. WRIGHT, P. E.

Summerfield District Meeting.

A District Meeting for the Summerfield District will be held at Uniontown, commencing Thursday, the 12th Sept. The official members of the church within the bounds of the district, are all members of the District Meeting Conference, and are earnestly requested and expected to attend. Arrangements will be made to carry the members over the railroad at half price.

A. H. MITCHELL, P. E.

Shreveport Dist.—Louisiana Conference.

THIRD ROUND OF QUARTERLY MEETINGS.

Many, at Bayou Lee, June 1, 2

Anacoco, Kissatchie, " 8, 9

Pleasant Hill, at Bethel, " 15, 16

Shreveport July 6, 7

N. Rosier, at Collinsburg, " 13, 14

Caddo, at Keatchie, " 20, 21

Belle Bower " 27, 28

Springville, at Holly's S. H. Aug 3, 4

Mansfield, at Foster's Chapel 10, 11

B. F. ALEXANDER, P. E.

NEW ADVERTISEMENTS.

EDUCATIONAL.

A young lady educated in Europe, with five years' experience in teaching there—desires an engagement. Prefers a pleasant home to a large number of scholars. Qualified in French and music. Will be here in October. Address, Rev. JAS. MACLENNAN, Greenville, Miss., stating terms, etc.

WANTED.

TEACHER'S SITUATION WANTED.

A lady who can produce the first testimonials of ability and success as an instructor, wishes to engage a position as teacher for the ensuing academic year: is well qualified to teach the English branches, French, and music. References given and required. Terms, for a limited number of scholars, $40 per month, and board. Address, A. B. C. care of Rev. Doctor Neally, Mobile.

Yazoo District—Mississippi Conference

THIRD ROUND OF QUARTERLY MEETINGS.

Lexington at Oregon June 15, 16

Greenwood, at Greenwood 22, 23

Carrollton, at Mt Zion 23, 24

Emory, at Euon July 6, 7

Holmes, at Wheeling 17, 18

Richland, at Goodman 20, 21

Black Hawk, at Sweetwater Aug 3, 4

Mount Olivet, at Fletcher Chapel 17, 18

Yazoo, at Mt Carmel 24, 25

Yazoo City Station Aug 31 Sept 1

In addition to the above appointments I will preach, Deo volente, at the following places and times.

Lexington, June 18, 8 o'clock P. M.

Sweetwater, " 19, 11 " A. M.

Black Hawk, " 20, 8 " P. M.

Carrollton, " 27, 8 " "

Eden, " 28, 8 " "

Durant, July 19, 8 " "

Benton Aug 16, 8 " "

BRETHREN: Have religious services on the stated fast-days. Our District Meeting will commence at Sweetwater, Black Hawk Circuit, on the first day of August. I urge upon the Brethren the importance of having everything in readiness for the Quarterly Meetings. They should be made, as far as possible, occasions of interest and profit to the Church.

J. M. POON, P. E.

Lake Providence Dist.—La. Conference.

THIRD ROUND OF QUARTERLY MEETINGS.

Delhi & Floyd Ct., at Midway, July 29, 28

Carroll, at Curtis's, Aug 3, 4

Oakley, at Bonell Prairie 10, 11

Ion, Little Creek Chapel, 24, 25

Tensas and Sicily, Sicily Island Sept 7, 8

Waterproof & St. Joseph, Waterproof 14, 15

Also a District Meeting for Lake Providence District, to be held at Oakley Camp ground, to commence on the 27th Sept., at which all the traveling and local preachers, exhorters, district stewards, Sunday-school superintendents and class leaders, are respectfully requested to attend, and as many of the members of the church as possible.

Yazoo District—Mississippi Conference

THIRD ROUND OF QUARTERLY MEETINGS.

Lexington at Oregon June 15, 16

Greenwood, at Greenwood 22, 23

Carrollton, at Mt Zion 23, 24

Emory, at Euon July 6, 7

Holmes, at Wheeling 17, 18

Richland, at Goodman 20, 21

Black Hawk, at Sweetwater Aug 3, 4

Mount Olivet, at Fletcher Chapel 17, 18

Yazoo, at Mt Carmel 24, 25

Yazoo City Station Aug 31 Sept 1

In addition to the above appointments I will preach, Deo volente, at the following places and times.

Lexington, June 18, 8 o'clock P. M.

Sweetwater, " 19, 11 " A. M.

Black Hawk, " 20, 8 " P. M.

Carrollton, " 27, 8 " "

Eden, " 28, 8 " "

Durant, July 19, 8 " "

Benton Aug 16, 8 " "

BRETHREN: Have religious services on the stated fast-days. Our District Meeting will commence at Sweetwater, Black Hawk Circuit, on the first day of August. I urge upon the Brethren the importance of having everything in readiness for the Quarterly Meetings. They should be made, as far as possible, occasions of interest and profit to the Church.

J. M. POON, P. E.

Lake Providence Dist.—La. Conference.

THIRD ROUND OF QUARTERLY MEETINGS.

Delhi & Floyd Ct., at Midway, July 29, 28

Carroll, at Curtis's, Aug 3, 4

Oakley, at Bonell Prairie 10, 11

Ion, Little Creek Chapel, 24, 25

Tensas and Sicily, Sicily Island Sept 7, 8

Waterproof & St. Joseph, Waterproof 14, 15

Also a District Meeting for Lake Providence District, to be held at Oakley Camp ground, to commence on the 27th Sept., at which all the traveling and local preachers, exhorters, district stewards, Sunday-school superintendents and class leaders, are respectfully requested to attend, and as many of the members of the church as possible.

W. M. McGAUGHY, P. E.

Tuskaloosa District—Mobile Conference.

THIRD ROUND OF QUARTERLY MEETINGS.

Marion May 25, 26

Greensboro June 1, 2

New Bern and Oak Grove " 8, 9

Brush Creek " 15, 16

Liberty " 22, 23

Scottsville and Carthage July 6, 7

Tuskaloosa " 13, 14

Havana " 20, 21

Etaw " 27, 28

Forland Aug 3, 4

J. L. COTTON, P. E.

Mobile District—Mobile Conference.

THIRD ROUND OF QUARTERLY MEETINGS.

Mobile, St. Paul's June 22, 23

Franklin street " 29, 30

St. Francis July 6, 7

Whistler & Cottage Hill, at Cottage Hill 13, 14

Citronelle, at George's 20, 21

Eastern Shore & Fish River, at P Clear 27, 28

Bay shore and Pascagoula at Zion, Aug 3, 4

Ocean Springs at Ocean Springs 10, 11

Waynesboro, at Buckatanna 17, 18

St. Stephens & State Line, at State Line 24, 25

THOS. W. DOWMAN, P. E.

NOTICE.

BASTROP, July 20, '67.

There will be a District Meeting for Monroe District, to be held at Bastrop, to commence on the 30th day of August, '67, at which all traveling and Local Preachers, exhorters, District stewards, Sunday-school superintendents, and class leaders, are respectfully requested to attend, and as many of the members of the church as possible.

JAMES S. WRIGHT, P. E.

Summerfield District Meeting.

A District Meeting for the Summerfield District will be held at Uniontown, commencing Thursday, the 12th Sept. The official members of the church within the bounds of the district, are all members of the District Meeting Conference, and are earnestly requested and expected to attend. Arrangements will be made to carry the members over the railroad at half price.

A. H. MIT

THE CHILD'S CORNER.

From the Sabbath at Home.

THE DARK.

BY M. E. LARSON.

Where do the little chickens run
When they are afraid?
Out of the light, out of the sun.
Into the dark, into the shade,
Under their mother's downy wing,
No longer afraid of anything.

Dear little girl, dear little boy,
Afraid of the dark?
Bid your good-by to the daylight with joy,
Be glad of the night, for hark!
The darkness no danger at all can bring,
It is the shadow of God's wing.

Where do the little violets creep
In the time of snow?
Into the dark, to rest and sleep,
And to wait for the spring, they go
Under the ground where no storm can reach,
And God takes tenderest care of each.

Are you afraid, little girl or boy,
Of the dark of death?
Jesus will carry you, full of joy,
To the world of light, he saith.
And under the ground where the violets sleep,
Your little body the Lord will keep.

From the Family Treasury.

ON THE WRONG SIDE.

On a beautiful July evening as the railway-train approached the terminus at L., a pleasant-looking group appeared on the platform,—a tall, dark gentleman, with a fair-haired lady on his arm, and several bright, lovely children at their side, all evidently on the outlook for some friend's arrival. The engine hurried past, the carriages followed; the lady held back her youngest child, while her husband and the others hastened forward.

"There is Aunt May, all right?" said a little boy, clapping his hands, as he looked up into one of the carriages.

Aunt May soon emerged, a short, slight figure, her fair hair and blue eyes showing her relationship to the mother rather than the father of the merry little band who were so eager to welcome her. She was not young, bright smile and fair complexion made her appear much younger than her real age; and the children considered her almost one of themselves. She had been only absent at this time on a day's excursion; and to judge by her welcome back, that had been thought quite long enough.

Her reticule, parasol, etc., having been disposed of among the children, all wishing some share in the good work of "helping Aunt May," the whole party walked homeward to a small but comfortable dwelling, beautifully situated in a Highland valley about a mile from the railway-station at L.

"And you must tell us all your adventures, Aunt May," said the eldest girl.

"I am thankful to say my dear, I found my friends well, and spent a very pleasant day with them, and a safe journey there and back again."

"Oh, but you must have something to tell us about,—something to make a story of," said little Charlie.

"Well we shall see, after tea: but I must have that in the first place." Aunt May was believed to possess an unlimited stock of stories, or of the power of "making" them; and her little hearers were insatiable in their demands.

So, when tea was over, she was settled in the large easy-chair, with Charlie on her lap, and the others gathered round her, while the calls for "her adventures" were loudly repeated.

"You can make a story out of anything, Aunt May," said her brother-in-law, as he left the room; "I only wish I had leisure to stay and listen to it."

"Thank you for the compliment; but I am very glad you are to be better employed. Now, children, I really have had no adventures; nothing wonderful happened to me today."

"Oh, that was a pity."

"What I would you have liked me to have been chased by a bull on the road, or my watch taken from me by a robber, or my leg or arm broken in a railway accident?"

"Oh, no, Aunt May. But do tell us about something."

"Well, I shall tell you something which made me think a good deal on my way home; and perhaps it will make you all think a little, and that will be useful. After dinner, when it was time to go, my friend Miss B.—walked with me to the station. It was a long walk from her lodgings, and the day so hot, that we were very tired, and obliged to hurry. We were in time, but not much more; for just as we got on the platform the engine came puffing along; and Miss B.—said to me suddenly, with such a frightened look—

"Are you sure we are not on the wrong side?"

"Oh, no," I replied; "I took care to inquire and make sure as to that when I first arrived in the morning."

So she kissed me and said good-by, and I stepped quietly into the carriage. But when we were in the point of starting, I heard a cry of distress on the other side of the line. I looked out, and saw a woman, whom a railway porter was keeping fast hold of.

"Oh," she cried, "let me go! let me cross! I shall be in time yet! I am on the wrong side!"

"No," said the porter; "you should have crossed at first; it would be too dangerous now."

"And then we started, and I only saw her look of despair, and heard her cry, 'Oh, my baby! what shall I do!'"

"Poor woman! I suppose," said Mary, "she had been visiting friends, like you, and had left a baby at home. What would she do?"

"This is Saturday night; so, if she was too far from home to walk, she would probably be kept till Monday at B., and her family left in distress all that time. I felt very sorry for her; and then I began to think of my friend's question to myself, 'Are you sure you are not on the wrong side?' I thought, if I had made a mistake, how distressed I should have been, and how anxious your papa and mamma would have felt all to-morrow; for it was the last train, and you know there is no telegraph yet to L. And then I thought, if a mistake in a short day's excursion would have made myself and others so unhappy, oh, what would it be, at the end of a life's journey, to find one's self on the wrong side? Do you understand what I mean, Mary?"

Mary was the eldest of the little group. She looked grave as she replied, "Yes, auntie: you mean, when we came to die to find we were not going to heaven."

"How dreadful that would be! And always remember, there are just two roads through this life on earth,—one which will end in the place of darkness and despair, and the other leading to that blessed home above, which Jesus calls his Father's house, where those who love and serve him are to be happy for ever. And there is a broad line of separation between the two ways. The travelers on the one side, whether they are old or young, are careless about God and heavenly things; they indulge proud, angry, selfish tempers, and speak unkind and untrue words. The travelers on the opposite road are humble, gentle, and holy, with hearts full of love to God and to one another. We all begin life on the wrong side; we are all born into this world sinful creatures, who begin to sin as soon as we can speak or understand. Now the great question for every one to consider, who is old enough to understand what it means, should be like that of my kind friend to myself. 'Are you sure you are not on the wrong side?' I felt so thankful this evening that I could answer in my heart, Yes; by the goodness and grace of God I do feel sure that I am loving and trusting in Jesus, and seeking to obey his commands, and that he is leading me in the way to heaven. Oh, my dear children, how happy those are who cross the line early, who have no need to be frightened and hurried at the last, who give their young hearts to the Saviour, and ask him to keep them all their lives walking in the way of his commandments! They will be happy all through the journey; for his ways are ways of pleasantness and peace; and happiest of all at the end, when he shall say to each of them, 'Well done, good and faithful servant, enter thou into the joy of thy Lord; and the holy angels and dear friends in heaven shall give them a joyful welcome, such as you gave to me to-night, only happier still, for there will be no fear of parting again. As your hymn says, 'Oh, that will be joyful when we meet to part no more!'"

The children were silent and serious as Aunt May finished her "story."

"Now, good-night, my darlings," she said; "mamma is ready to hear you say your prayers, and then you will sleep soundly, and we shall talk more about these things after church to-morrow."

FARM AND GARDEN.

From the American Agriculturist.

Hints About Work.

Animals at Pasture.—Look to the water supply, and see that no animals suffer for it. Nothing but absolute starvation pulls them down in condition faster than thirst. In the very hottest and driest weather, horses get little good in the field, unless they have thickets and woods to stand in, and get away from flies. It is best to stable horses during the heat of the day, if one has no use for them, and turn them out towards night. Flies are exceedingly annoying on damp days, when storms are approaching, and at such times horses should be taken in. Give salt regularly, or keep it in sheltered mugs, always accessible to cattle and sheep at pasture, away from the shore, where, from 10 to 20 miles inland, it is regarded as unnecessary.

Sheep should have their noses barred; and should be separated from the ewes, and lambs of suitable age and vigor, weaned. In weaning lambs, put the ewes on the dryest pastures, but leave the lambs where they are accustomed to be, with a few large weathers for flock-leaders. They should be out of hearing of one another's calls. The ewes should be driven several evenings into pens and examined, and if their bags are tender, caking, or hot, they should be milked.

Milk Cows.—Need regular feeding with some green fodder as the pastures get dry; yarded, and thus fed in the evening, the gain in milk, to say nothing of the milk, pays well for the trouble.

Seeds.—Give plenty of green food. If there are no weeds to pull or mow for them, then cut clover or grass. The trimmings along fences, and sods cut wherever the ordinary field culture cannot extend, are excellent. Some fresh earth, either upon the roots of weeds or in sods is essential to health. Charcoal is very beneficial, and plenty of fresh water desirable. At all events, the hogs should have daily a good drink of pure water, no matter how liquid their usual food, and last, not least, they should have a dry, clean, bed at all seasons.

Wounds.—Upon animals, at this season of flies and quick putrefaction, need the most prompt attention. We know of no better application than hot pine tar, (not hot enough to burn.) It may be put on alone, or as a plaster upon a piece of cotton cloth. Look especially to the heads of rams.

Poultry.—It is desirable to shorten the moulting season as much as possible. To this end feed well and give range, or green food, daily. Make the most liberal provision for their dust-baths; a box with mixture of coal and wood ashes, sifted, and kept where it will never get wet is best. Give them the range of stubble fields, if possible.

Kitchen Garden.

If weeds have been industriously kept down, this month will be one of comparative leisure to the gardener. Still he must look out for his future interests in the careful saving of seeds, and occupy ground cleared of early crops with such late ones as may be desirable and which have time to grow.

Asparagus.—Old beds will only need to have the coarse weeds pulled out. Seed beds, properly hoed and thinned, will give better plants at a year old than those neglected and over-crowded will furnish at the end of two years.

Beans.—The bush varieties may be planted for late crops, and to give a supply for salting.

Beets.—Give plenty of room in the rows, and thin.

Cabbage and Cauliflowers.—Plants, especially in the warmer States, may be set for a late crop. Lime will destroy slugs, and also prevent club-foot.

Carrots.—Hoe, thin, and weed, and if young roots are desired, seed of the early sorts may be sown.

Celery.—Plants may still be set with the prospect of fair-sized roots, by frost. Keep the earlier planted free of weeds, and the soil mellow by frequent use of the cultivator or hoe. At the end of the month commence to earth up the more advanced plantings.

Corn.—Save seed from the finest and earliest ears.

Cucumbers.—Will need picking over every day, or every two days at least, if small pickles are wanted.

Egg Plants.—Caterpillars will often make great havoc with the leaves, and must be picked off. Give liquid manure, and keep the heavy fruits from contact with the ground by the use of mulch.

Endive.—Transplant a foot apart each way, and sow seeds for the latest crops and for winter use.

Herbs.—Cut and dry as they begin to flower.

Lettuce.—Sow small quantities for succession.

Melons.—Increase the size and quality of the fruit by preventing the vines from overbearing. Save seed only from those varieties that have grown at a distance from other plants of the same nature.

Onions.—Harvest as soon as the tops fall over. Those that are to be stored for winter should be thoroughly dried. Take up onion sets, dry them, and spread with their tops on in an airy loft, putting them not over four inches deep.

Radishes.—Sow early sorts, if wanted so late in the season. The best winter radish is the Chinese Rose-colored Winter, which may be sown now or later, and treated in all respects like turnips. If sown too early, it will get overgrown.

Spinach.—Some may be sown for fall cutting, but the crop for next spring's use should not be put in until next month.

Squashes.—Seed of the early kinds should be secured. Let the vines of the running sorts take root at the joints. Crush all the eggs found on the underside of the leaves. Examine often.

Sweet Potatoes.—If the soil be kept mellow and free from weeds, there is no difficulty in getting a satisfactory crop. At the North, it is not advisable to allow the vines to root at the joints, nor is it well to clip them, as it diminishes the crop.

Tomatoes.—The great enemy to the tomato is the one that causes such annoyance to the tobacco grower. A large and most voracious green "worm," the larva of one of the Sphinxes. It spares neither leaves nor green fruit, but eats its way in the most unrelenting manner, until nothing but the firmer stems are left. Fortunately, its copious droppings give unmistakable evidence of its presence, and he must be a careless cultivator who allows the "worm" to get much the better of him. Pick off the fellow and crush him, using gloves if you are squeamish; though repulsive, it is harmless.

Turnips.—Rutabagas may be sown early in the month, and the early sorts at the end. As soon as up dust with lime, or a mixture of equal parts of plaster and ashes, to keep away the "flea," or fly.

Weeds.—We only repeat our frequent caution to always keep a little ahead of these.

Flower Garden and Lawn.

This is the month in which the lover of flowers perhaps gets less return for his labor than in any other. All the early flowering things are gone, and there are not enough of the later ones in bloom to give the garden a very attractive appearance.

Lawns.—are to be mowed, and if the clip is light, leave it, especially on new lawns, to serve as a mulch to the roots. See that the roots of the grass do not run into beds cut in the lawn, and give Grass Edgings.—the same care. Coarse weeds, like plantains, thistles and dandelions in lawns and edgings, must be pulled up by hand.

Chrysanthemums.—These, so appreciated in autumn, their season of bloom, are too often neglected in their early growth. Thin out useless branches, and leave only a few strong ones. We prefer to grow them with three good stems, and then pinch these to make them throw out laterals. The hairy caterpillars seem to be very partial to these plants, and they should not be allowed to suffer from their depredations.

Roses.—The free use of the knife on the constant bloomers will keep up a new growth and a succession of flowers. Of course, the slug and all other enemies, must be kept in check by whale oil soap or tobacco water. Tobacco smoke is the best thing for Aphids. We use a "crinoline," made of stiff paper, which is simply to confine the smoke for a few minutes, as soon as the lice are stupefied, a smart showering will finish them.

Fuchsias, as bedders, are a mere provocation; they do well until hot weather, and then shed leaves and buds, and go into a state of rest.

There are a few varieties that will not do this, but of these we unfortunately have lost the names. With those that thus unpleasantly strip themselves, the best way is to prune them rather severely, and when the heat moderates, they will push anew and give late flowers. Start new stock from cuttings.

Dahlias.—These are grand for a few weeks before frost, but, except the dwarfs, or "Bonquet Dahlias," we think that in small grounds they are more trouble than they are satisfaction. It is all sticks and strings, and picking off grasshoppers, and looking after borers. It is best not to allow the tall-growing sorts to bloom in this hot weather.

Gladiolus is a great boon to the gardener, as it is good single, in groups, or in beds. Keep the stems erect by neat stakes, and as fast as the lower flowers are past their prime, pull them off.

"Foliage Plants," a name that we despise, but which we use for want of a better, may be made much more effective by judicious cutting. Coleus—the best of them—is much better when cut back and kept bushy. This remark does not apply to Cannas and things that do not branch freely.

Propagation of bedding stuff for another year should now go on. There are but few things of which the old plants are of much value, and it is much better to lay in a stock of new plants to winter over in the greenhouse. Those who have no greenhouse had better buy each year. Those who have, should start a stock of plants.

Seeds.—As a general rule, sow seeds of perennials as soon as ripe. Some of the hardy annuals, such as Pansies, Larkspurs, etc., are best when fall sown. It is by taking advantage of every accidental perfection that improvement is made. Like does not always produce like, but the seeds of the best flowers are most likely to give good results.

The Viceroy of Egypt is the owner of more than one hundred steam plows.

All the railroad conductors in the State of New York are to be uniformed after the first of October next.

THE "ARROW TIE."

AND PAINTED IRON BANDS.

For sale at the lowest prices, by

H. T. BARTLETT & R. W. RAYNE.

General Agents, No. 43 Carondelet street.

The above popular fastening is the best now in use for baling Cotton. They are approved by the Insurance Companies of this city, and are used at the Cotton Presses in New Orleans, Memphis, Mobile, Galveston, Savannah, and by Planters everywhere with success and approbation.

N. B.—Said ARROW TIES are on sale by dealers in New Orleans, and everywhere throughout all the Cotton growing States, at the lowest prices. je 22-67-Gm

PRIVATE BOARDING.

Belize.

British Honduras.

The undersigned respectfully solicits from the public a share of their patronage. je 15-3m

R. S. WEIR.

MRS. DYER'S BOARDING HOUSE.

This is situated on Camp street, the first door above St. Patrick's Cathedral, No. 174.

References: Rev. Mr. Keener, Dr. Walker, Linnus Parker, E. J. Harp. je 8-Gm

BELLS! BELLS! BELLS!!!

BUCKEYE BELL FOUNDRY

Established in 1837.

VANDUZEN & TIFT.

Of the late Firm and Successors to G. W. COFFIN & CO.

102 & 104 East Second Street, Cincinnati, Ohio.

Manufacturers of BELLS for Churches, Academies, Plantations, etc.

Made of Genuine Bell Metal, and mounted with our improved Rotary Yoke.

All Bells warranted to prove satisfactory, or subject to be returned.

Illustrated Catalogue and Price List sent free upon application. je 15

HENDERSON, A. MORSE.

ATTORNEY AT LAW.

—and—

Commissioner of Deeds.

For the States of South Carolina, Mississippi, Kentucky, Tennessee, Georgia, Alabama, Pennsylvania, Missouri, Maryland, Texas, Florida, Arkansas. No. 22 Commercial Place.

Third Floor. New Orleans.

April 20 1y

It is an unfailing remedy in all cases of Neuralgia, Rheumatism, Migraine, Dyspepsia, Colic, Bruises, Burns, Scalds, and all Affections of the Nervous System. Facially, often effecting a permanent cure in less than twenty-four hours, from the use of no more than two or three pills.

No other form of Neuralgia or Nervous Disease has failed to yield to this wonderful remedial agent.

Even the severest cases of Chronic Neuralgia and general nervous derangements,—of many years standing,—affecting the entire system, its use for a few days, or a few weeks at the utmost, always affords the most astonishing relief, and very rarely fails to produce a complete and permanent cure.

It contains no dangerous or other materials in the slightest degree injurious, even to the most delicate system, and can always be used with perfect safety.

It has long been in constant use by many of our most eminent physicians, who give it their unqualified and unqualified approval.

Sent by mail on receipt of price, and postage. One package, $1.00 Postage 6 cts. Six packages, $5.00 " 27. Twelve packages, $10.00 " 43.

It is sold by all wholesale and retail dealers in drugs and medicines throughout the United States, and by

Turner & Co., Sole Proprietors,
120 Tremont Street, Boston, Mass.

je 22

THE SOUTHERN FARMER.

A Monthly of 16 pages, devoted to Agriculture, Horticulture, Stock Raising, and all the Industrial and Mechanical Interests of the South.

Edited by D. M. W. Phillips, assisted by Prof. E. W. Hilgard, University of Mississippi; Prof. W. L. Jones, University of Georgia, and P. J. Berckmans, Augusta.

Terms—$2 per annum.

Published by M. W. PHILLIPS & Co., Memphis, Tenn.

je 22

COPARTNERSHIP.

The undersigned, for many years in the house of J. Marks & Co., in this city for need a Copartnership with Mr. J. H. Massey, 100 Common street, for the purpose of conducting a Wholesale Dry Goods Business, under the title and firm of

J. H. MASSEY & CO.,
and respectfully solicits the patronage of his old friends.

D. V. BENJAMIN.
New Orleans, January 1, 1867.

je 22

J. H. MASSEY & CO.

WHOLESALE DEALERS IN

DRY GOODS AND CLOTHING,

100 Common Street, opposite City Hotel.

mar 2-67

BELIZE, BRUSH HONDURAS

Putnam & Cury.

GENERAL COMMISSION

RECEIVING AND FORWARDING

MERCHANTS.

—and—

Custom House Brokers.

Belize, British Honduras. je 15-3m

NORTH, BRUSH & M. SON,

Wholesale Dealers in

Fancy Goods,

STATIONERY, PERFUMERY, CUTLERY,

Hosiery,

and all kinds of goods, etc.,

35 MAGAZINE STREET,

Opposite the St. James Hotel, New Orleans, La.

aug 25 1y

DOLBEAR COMMERCIAL COLLEGE

On the corner of Camp and Common

(In the Spacious and Elegant Story

It was founded in 1836, and is chartered

State. Its former students may be theod houses of this city and over the States. Ladies or gentlemen can

COMMERCIAL COURSE, or Book

Penmanship, Mathematics, English,

Spanish, separately. A business course enables one to earn $1000, $2000, or usually, in the best form of this College

port in all Commercial communities and gentlemen are invited to call simple arrangements for 1000 students sent year. The liberal arrangements

Clergymen or other persons and crippled

Catalogues sent to all who desire them.

RUFUS DOLBEAR

nov 17 1y

KNIGHT & CO.,

Dealers in

PLANTATION, MILL, & WOOD-

MACHINERY

And Agricultural Implements

Keep constantly on hand a large of articles peculiar to our trade, and our agents in the North and East sell

UNIVERSITY.

CHAPMAN HILL, TEXAS.
Board of Trustees take pleasure in announcing to the people of Texas and of Louisiana, the opening of the University, under the following faculty:

Prof. A. M. Frost, and Prof. of Greek and Latin Languages.
Prof. A. M. Frost, and Prof. of Mathematics.
Prof. A. M. Frost, and Prof. of Natural Science.
Prof. A. M. Frost, and Prof. of Natural Science.

Session of Collegiate year begins on Monday in September; ends December 1867. The second Session opens Jan. 1868. Session closes Wednesday in June.

TERMS
First Term of Four Months.
Elementary.....$20 00
Primary.....13 00

Second Term of Six Months.
Elementary.....$24 00
Primary.....20 40
Extra $2 00 per month.

Board can be obtained in advance at $15 00 per month. Tuition and board in a proportionate amount, and in no other Address—Chapman Hill, Texas, July 13-14

WORTH FEMALE COLLEGE,
BROOKHAVEN, MISS.
From New Orleans, on N. O. & G. N. Road.
The session will open on Wednesday, 21st of September, 1867.

The college is a full corps of teachers; the instruction will be thorough; the discipline firm and well regulated; the location healthy.

The building is large and well arranged; the grounds ample; the location healthy.

The expenses in the Collegiate Department for board, tuition, books and incidentals, will not exceed $125 00 for term of one year.

For more full particulars, send for circulars, or address
REV. H. F. JOHNSON,
President of Worth Female College.

JACKSON, Louisiana,
The State of Louisiana has transferred to the Methodist Episcopal Church South in 1845. It is now under the management of the Methodist Episcopal Church South.

Colleges exercises were necessarily suspended during the war, but were regularly resumed in October, 1865. The approaching year will open on the first Monday of October.

Cost, $75 per annum, payable semi-annual. Tuition can be obtained at, from $20 to $250, according to the course pursued.

Buildings, Libraries, Apparatus, Laboratory, and all the modern appliances of a health, ease of access and good society, unsurpassed by those of any institution in the South.

past history of the college is the pledge of its future. The Society for the promotion of the education of the young, and the friends of the cause of education, are invited to give publicity to the organization and opening of the College.

W. H. WATKINS, President.
W. H. WATKINS, President.

WHI. A COLD, OR A SORE THROAT.
Immediate attention, and should be followed to continue.

the Lungs, a Permanent Throat Tonic, or Consumption.

BRONCHIAL TROCHES
give direct influence to the parts, and give immediate relief.

Amidst, Asthma, Catarrh, Croup, and Throat Diseases, are used with always good success.

Troches useful in clearing the voice before Singing, or Speaking, and the throat after an unusual exertion of the voice. The Troches are recommended by Physicians, and have had the most successful results in the treatment of the most severe cases of the disease.

GOOD SAMARITAN COOKING
STOVE.
The most perfect Stove Ovens
ever invented, and the only one
that will cook any kind of food
without the use of fuel.

GOOD SAMARITAN;
The most perfect Stove Ovens
ever invented, and the only one
that will cook any kind of food
without the use of fuel.

When sent by mail, the Postage on any part of the United States will be but Twenty-four Cents a year for "Blackwood," and Eight
Cents a year for each of the Reviews.

PREMIUMS TO NEW SUBSCRIBERS.
New Subscribers to any two of the above periodicals for 1867 will be entitled to receive,
gratis, any one of the Four Reviews for 1868.
Now Subscribers to all five of the Periodicals for 1867 will receive, gratis, Blackwood or any two of the "Four Reviews" for 1868.

These premiums will be allowed on all new subscriptions received before April 1st, 1867.
Subscribers may also obtain back numbers at the following reduced rates, viz:
The North British from January, 1863, to December, 1866, inclusive, the Edinburgh and
the Westminster from April, 1864, to December, 1866, inclusive, and the London Quarterly for the years 1865 and 1866, at the rate of $15 00 per year for each or any Review; also Blackwood
for 1866, for $2 00.

Neither premiums to Subscribers, nor discount to Clubs, nor reduced prices for back numbers, can be allowed, unless the money is remitted direct to the Publishers.

No premiums can be given to Clubs.
The Leonard Scott Publishing Co.,
23 Walker street, N. Y.

THE L. S. PUB. CO. also publish the FARMER'S GUIDE,
By HENRY STEPHENS, of Edinburgh, and the late J. P. Norton, of Yale College. 2 vols.
Royal Octavo, 1600 pages, and numerous Engravings.
Price, $4 for the two volumes—by Mail, post paid, $4.

STOVE EVER INVENTED.
The most perfect Stove Ovens
ever invented, and the only one
that will cook any kind of food
without the use of fuel.

STOVE EVER INVENTED.
The most perfect Stove Ovens
ever invented, and the only one
that will cook any kind of food
without the use of fuel.

STOVE EVER INVENTED.
The most perfect Stove Ovens
ever invented, and the only one
that will cook any kind of food
without the use of fuel.

COAL! COAL! COAL!!!

WOOD! WOOD!! WOOD!!!

Yard on Josephine st. bet. Prytania & Coliseum

MIL. GEO. O. HEATY

Would inform his friends and the public generally that he is prepared to fill orders for COAL, and WOOD, and hopes, by giving his personal attention, to secure and merit their patronage.

Best ASH WOOD delivered at $10.
COAL $1.
Orders left at Yard, or Price Current office,
129 Gravier street; or Peter Williams, corner Jackson and Rousseau streets, will meet with prompt attention.

GEOR. W. RACK, W. H. FOSTER, E. T. MERRICK,
RACE, FOSTER & E. T. MERRICK,

Attorneys at Law,
CORNER OF CAMP STREET & COMMERCIAL PLACE, sept 15 New Orleans.

SUNDAY SCHOOL VISITOR.

112 CAMP STREET, NEW ORLEANS!

Our readers will be delighted to learn that this beautiful Sunday School Paper is to be resumed the first of January. It will be published by the S. M. Publishing House Nashville, Tennessee, and simultaneously at 112 Camp st., in this city. Those desiring the NEW ORLEANS edition should forward immediately to Rev. ROBT. J. HARR, Agt., Lock Box 814, New Orleans.

SUBSCRIPTION PRICE FOR ONE YEAR.
For Single Copies.....each 50c
For any number less than 5.....50c
For any number over 5, and less than 25, to one address.....40c
For any number over 25.....30c
Will ship by Boat, Express or Mail as directed.

Cash in Advance.

EVERY SATURDAY:

A Journal of Choice Reading, Selected
From Foreign Current Literature.

This popular Weekly reproduces promptly for American readers the best and most readable pieces of European periodicals. These embrace Serial Tales, Short Stories, Essays—Biographical and Descriptive—Fables, Sketches of Travel and Adventure, Literary Intelligence, and popular papers on Science, Translations from the admirable French Periodicals are a prominent feature.

Among the periodicals from which selections are frequently made are Once a Week, Chamber's Journal, All the Year Round, The Spectator, The Reader, The Athenaeum, The Examiner,
The London Saturday and Portly Review; Fraser's, Blackwood's, Macmillan's, the Victoria,
Argus, New Monthly, and London Society Magazines; Revue des Deux Mondes, L'Evenement, Le Sidell.

Among the authors represented in Every Saturday are many of the wisest and most witty writers of Europe, as Henry Kingsley, Anthony Trollope, Richard Henry Stoddard, Charles Kingsley, Edmund Yates, Frances Power Cobbe, Christina
G. Rossetti, Alphonse de Lamartine, George Sand, Edmond About, Alexandre Dumas, George Ogilby, J. Ruffin, Alexander Smith, A. C.
Swinburne, Robert Buchanan, Jean Ingelow, and many others.

Every Saturday is intended for Town and Country, for the Friside, the Seaside, the Railway, and the Steamboat. The Publishers will aim to commend it to all classes of cultivated and intelligent readers by the freshness and variety of its contents.

Every Saturday contains weekly 40 double-column large octavo pages.
TERMS.—Single Number, 10 cents; Yearly Subscription, $5 00 in advance; $4 00 a year to subscribers for any other periodical published by Trotter and Franks. Monthly Parts, 50 cents a number. Yearly subscription, same as for Weekly Part.

TICKNOR AND FIELDS,
Publishers, Boston;

BRITISH PERIODICALS.
THE LONDON QUARTERLY REVIEW (Cont.)
THE EDINBURGH REVIEW (Wkly.)
THE WESTMINSTER REVIEW (Wkly.)
THE NORTH BRITISH REVIEW (Free Church)
AND BLACKWOOD'S EDINBURGH MAGAZINE (Fry.)

These foreign periodicals are regularly published by the same style as heretofore.
Those who know them and who have long subscribed to them, need no reminder; those who the civil war of the last few years has deprived of their once welcome supply of the best periodical literature, will be glad to have them again within their reach; and those who may never yet have met with them, will be glad to well pleased to receive a complete and reliable progress of European science and literature.

TERMS FOR 1867.
For any one of the Reviews.....$4 per annum
For any two of the Reviews.....7 " "
For any three of the Reviews.....10 " "
For all four of the Reviews.....12 " "
For Blackwood's Magazine.....4 " "
For Blackwood and one Review.....7 " "
For Blackwood and two Reviews.....10 " "
For Blackwood and three Reviews.....13 " "
For Blackwood and the 4 Reviews.....15 " "

A discount of twenty per cent. will be allowed to clubs of two or more persons. Thus, four copies of Blackwood, or of one Review, will be sent to one address for $12 80. Four copies of the four Reviews and Blackwood, for $48 00, and so on.

When sent by mail, the Postage on any part of the United States will be but Twenty-four Cents a year for "Blackwood," and Eight
Cents a year for each of the Reviews.

PREMIUMS TO NEW SUBSCRIBERS.
New Subscribers to any two of the above
periodicals for 1867 will be entitled to receive,
gratis, any one of the Four Reviews for 1868.
Now Subscribers to all five of the Periodicals
for 1867 will receive, gratis, Blackwood or any
two of the "Four Reviews" for 1868.

These premiums will be allowed on all new subscriptions received before April 1st, 1867.
Subscribers may also obtain back numbers at
the following reduced rates, viz:
The North British from January, 1863, to December, 1866, inclusive, the Edinburgh and
the Westminster from April, 1864, to December, 1866, inclusive, and the London Quarterly for the years 1865 and 1866, at the rate of $15 00
per year for each or any Review; also Blackwood
for 1866, for $2 00.

Neither premiums to Subscribers, nor discount to Clubs, nor reduced prices for back numbers, can be allowed, unless the money is remitted direct to the Publishers.

No premiums can be given to Clubs.
The Leonard Scott Publishing Co.,
23 Walker street, N. Y.

THE L. S. PUB. CO. also publish the FARMER'S GUIDE,
By HENRY STEPHENS, of Edinburgh, and the late J. P. Norton, of Yale College. 2 vols.
Royal Octavo, 1600 pages, and numerous Engravings.
Price, $4 for the two volumes—by Mail, post paid, $4.

STOVE EVER INVENTED.
The most perfect Stove Ovens
ever invented, and the only one
that will cook any kind of food
without the use of fuel.

STOVE EVER INVENTED.
The most perfect Stove Ovens
ever invented, and the only one
that will cook any kind of food
without the use of fuel.

STOVE EVER INVENTED.
The most perfect Stove Ovens
ever invented, and the only one
that will cook any kind of food
without the use of fuel.

STOVE EVER INVENTED.
The most perfect Stove Ovens
ever invented, and the only one
that will cook any kind of food
without the use of fuel.

STOVE EVER INVENTED.
The most perfect Stove Ovens
ever invented, and the only one
that will cook any kind of food
without the use of fuel.

STOVE EVER INVENTED.
The most perfect Stove Ovens
ever invented, and the only one
that will cook any kind of food
without the use of fuel.

STOVE EVER INVENTED.
The most perfect Stove Ovens
ever invented, and the only one
that will cook any kind of food
without the use of fuel.

STOVE EVER INVENTED.
The most perfect Stove Ovens
ever invented, and the only one
that will cook any kind of food
without the use of fuel.

STOVE EVER INVENTED.
The most perfect Stove Ovens
ever invented, and the only one
that will cook any kind of food
without the use of fuel.

STOVE EVER INVENTED.
The most perfect Stove Ovens
ever invented, and the only one
that will cook any kind of food
without the use of fuel.

STOVE EVER INVENTED.
The most perfect Stove Ovens
ever invented, and the only one
that will cook any kind of food
without the use of fuel.

STOVE EVER INVENTED.
The most perfect Stove Ovens
ever invented, and the only one
that will cook any kind of food
without the use of fuel.

HOMOEOPATHIC PHARMACY.

RICHARD ANGELL

156 Julia street, bet. Camp and St. Charles

PURE AND FRESH MEDICINES.

Cases, Books, Carates, &c.
Chill Drops, the best curative known for Ague, Bilious Power, &c.; Barletto's Worm Drops, and other approved Remedies for domestic practice

DR. JOHN G. ANGELL,
(Graduate of the Philadelphia Dental College.)
Has established himself at No 109 Carondelet street, near Poydras, where he will perform all Dental Operations in a skillful and satisfactory manner. Teeth inserted upon Gold or Vulcanite base. Being familiar with all Anesthetics, he will extract teeth without pain, by the use of such as best suits the case. Particular attention given to the medical and surgical treatment of diseases of the mouth and teeth.

COAL OIL AND LAMPS.
HILL & VEAZIE,
Having removed from No 31 Chartres street to No 74 Camp street, have received large additions to their former stock, making their assortment of Coal Oil Lamps, and all the articles needful to use with them, very extensive and satisfactory.
Lights, suitable for lighting Churches, large Halls, Parlors, etc.; and every variety of Lanterns from the small Hand to the large Station.
FISH'S PATENT COOKING LAMPS for coal oil and gas, very useful and economical; also EDDIE'S COOKING STOVES, assorted sizes, heated by coal oil; with many other useful and convenient articles.

Call and examine.
HILL & VEAZIE,
No 74 Camp street,
Between Natchez street and Times Office

ST JAMES HOTEL,
MAGAZINE STREET,
Between Gravier and Natchez Streets,
NEW ORLEANS, LA.

CHAS. E. SMEDS, Manager.

This establishment is now open for the reception of guests.
It is newly furnished from the Kitchen to the roof. Spring Beds, Hair Mattresses, Linen Sheeting, etc. The Furniture and Table Ware all new, of the latest style and most costly material. The Table is furnished with every luxury the Market affords. The Bars with Liquors of all kinds to be used in private families and the comforts and pleasures of a home, as far as possible, guaranteed to its Guests.

The House itself may be said to be entirely new and fresh. The undersigned will spare neither labor or expense to merit a continuance of the liberal support with which he has thus far been honored.

CHAS. E. SMEDS.

CARPET WAREHOUSE,
17 Chartres Street,
Lately received Carpeting of all kinds and qualities; Floor Oil Cloth of all qualities, which we cut to suit rooms; Curtains, Materials, Linen Curtains, Cornices and Bands in great variety;
Window Shades, Hair Cloth, Crum Cloth, Tulle and Piano Covers, China and Cotton Mattings of all widths.

A. BROUSSEAU & CO.

H. P. BUCKLEY,
WATCHMAKER,
No. 8.....Camp Street.....No. 8

Dealer in fine WATCHES,
JEWELRY and SILVERWARE,
SPECTACLES OF ALL KINDS.

—Also—
GUNS AND PISTOLS.

Every sort of Gun and Pistol Repairing attended to, by
J. E. BAILEY,
Feb 9, 1y Formerly of Chartres Street.

PEET, SIMMS, & CO.,
Importers and Wholesale Dealers in
DRY GOODS,
Nos. 23 & 25 MAGAZINE STREET, NEW ORLEANS

A NEW THING UNDER THE SUN
PRICE'S
Patent Texas Tonic.

It is a certain antidote against Constipation of the Bowels, Torpor of the Liver, Palpitation of the Heart, Determination of Blood to the Brain, Indigestion, Pain in the Head and Vertigo; also a remedy for CHILLS AND FEVERS.

For particulars, see accompanying Envelope with each bottle.
For sale at 50 Camp street, New Orleans,
THOS. K. PRICE, Vendor.

Read the following opinions of some of our old and well known citizens of PRICE'S PATENT TEXAS TONIC,
Or, Vegetable Medicine.

T. K. PRICE, Esq., Vendor of "Price's Patent Texas Tonic," or Vegetable Medicine:
DEAR SIR—After a fair and deliberate use and experiment of your Vegetable Medicine, known as PRICE'S PATENT TEXAS TONIC, we give it as our decided opinion, that it is the best recipe that we have ever known, for Indigestion, Torpor of the Liver, Constipation of the Bowels and Dyspepsia. We consider your Vegetables Medicine worthy of all commendation, and therefore feel no hesitation in recommending its use to all our friends, as well as the public at large, and that in doing so we are contributing to the relief of many of our fellow citizens who are suffering from these diseases, and have been greatly benefited.

Wishing you great success in introducing this valuable medicine,
We remain your truly,
J. I. MULLIN, Pastor St. Patrick's Church,
J. H. CALDWELL, of Gas Works, City N. O.
SAML. SUMNER, of Home Insurance Co.
T. GREENFIELD, of Louisiana & Co.
LAWIS ELKIN, Merchant, New Orleans.
GEO. W. H. NOLAN, Ship Agent.
JACOB BARKER, Broker of Commerce,
New Orleans, June, 1865.

TERMS:
4 oz Bottles.....$2 00
8 " ".....2 50
12 " ".....3 00
12 " ".....5 00
Sold to Druggists by the dozen bottles or more at 33 per cent discount off retail price.
All orders will meet with prompt attention.

THOS. K. PRICE.

F. FOLGER, L. FOLGER, W. H. THOMAS,
FOLGER & CO.,
Dealers in
Hardware, Iron, & Ship Chandlery,
31 & 33 MAGAZINE STREET, NEW ORLEANS,
(Opposite the St. James Hotel)

Nails and Castings; Iron, Sheet and Bar Iron, Shovels and Spades; Sheet Copper and Zinc; Pumps,
Axes and Hoes; Lead Pipe and Sheet Lead; India Rubber Binding, Hoses and Packing; Circular, Mill and Cross Cut Saws.

aug 15

SHEPARD, ABBOTT & CO.,
55 Camp street, New Orleans.

W. H. BLACKMAN'S COMMER-CIAL COLLEGE, 136 Canal street, Opposite the St. James Hotel. Entrance on Carondelet street. Open daily and evening sessions. Permanent, Book-keeping, Mathematics and Languages, practically taught by experienced professors. The instruction is private to each student. Clergymen's sons and crippled soldiers taken for half price. Young men from the country can board with the principal, or in respectable families, English or French. For circulars and terms, etc., address
J. W. BLACKMAN, Principal.

aug 15

aug 15

aug 15

aug 15

aug 15

aug 15

E. GQUEL.

Wholesale and Retail Dealer in

FOREIGN, FANCY AND STAPLE

DRY GOODS.

Also, a large and varied supply of HOUSEKEEPING and PLANTATION GOODS.

Constantly on hand, at 126 Canal Street,
NEW ORLEANS.

S. ANDERSON, PHOTOGRAPHER
And PHOTOGRAPHIC STOCK DEALER,
61 Camp street, New Orleans.

Cartes de Visite,
Hyalotypes, Ambrotypes,
Pictures on Porcelain,
And every description of Pictures known to the Art.

All kinds of Photographic Materials at the lowest price for cash.

J. A. BRASELMAN & CO.,
Wholesale and Retail Dealers in
FOREIGN & DOMESTIC DRY GOODS

Possess great facilities for buying goods cheap which enables them to sell below market prices.
Special attention given to orders.

Nos. 586 and 588 Magazine Street,
Corner of St. Andrew Street,
NEW ORLEANS.

NEW CARPETS.
L. ELKIN,
Carondelet Street.

Has just received from England, per steam ship Luxor, a large assortment of superior WILTON, BRUSSELS, TAPESTRY & INGRAIN
CARPETS

RUGS,
WINDOW SHADES,
CORNICES,
OIL CLOTHS,
And a complete assortment of Curtain Materials such as Brocades, Satin de Laines, all Wool Damasks, etc., with corresponding Trimmings.

HORTER, PETERSON & FENNER
(Sign of the Black Horse),
MANUFACTURERS OF SADDLES, HARNESS,
AND TRUNKS.

Importers of Saddlery & Coach Hardware
7 MAGAZINE STREET, NEW ORLEANS.

NEW BOOKS.
BRANCH
Southern Methodist Publishing House
112 CAMP STREET,
NEW ORLEANS.

"INTRODUCTION OF PROTESTANTISM INTO MISSISSIPPI AND THE SOUTH
WEST," by J. G. Jones $1 25
AN APPEAL TO ALL CHRISTIANS, ES-PECIALLY TO MEMBERS OF THE M. E.
CHURCH, AGAINST THE PRACTICE OF SOCIAL DANCING; by Rev. J. G. Jones 50c
THE BISHOP'S COUNCIL, WITH REMINIS-CENCES OF AN ANNUAL CONFERENCE;
by an Ex Presiding Elder. $1 50
PHILOSOPHY OF CHURCH HISTORY FROM THE TIMES OF CHRIST TO THE PRESENT; by J. Ditzler $2 00
SUNDAY SCHOOL COLLECTING CARDS, with instructions for using, in PACKS of 100, at $1 00 per pack. By mail $1 25
NEW ENGLISH GRAMMAR, by John L. Spencer, Late Principal of the "Floridan Academy" Greensburg, La. Muslin $1 00

"ALBERT NYANZA; Or, the Great Basin of the Nile." Baker.....$5 00
Superior Muslin, Gilt.....6 50
ST. ELMO, from Miss Augusta Evans. 2 00
BILL AIRP.....1 50
PHOTOGRAPHIC FAMILY BIBLES; Quarto; Roan, Gilt, Apocrypha, Extensive Concordance, Psalms in Rhyme, Family Register, with an ALBUM FOR FAMILY PHOTOGRAPHS.....10 00
KITTO'S BIBLICAL GEOGRAPHY; Greatly enlarged, beautifully illustrated, 3 Large Vols., Cloth.....25 00
Full assortment of Southern Methodist Hymns, Sunday School and Miscellaneous Books.
Catalogues sent to all who request it.
Address: R. J. HARR, Agent,
112 Camp street, New Orleans.

TURNER & COHEN,
Photograph and Fine Art Gallery,
NO. 57 CAMP STREET.

Trusting that the liberal patronage of our friends and the public will continue, we have engaged the services of Mr. E. M. HOWELL, an operator who cannot be surpassed for skillful and artistic ability. Our artist, Mr. REICHMAN, is second to none in the country.
These gentlemen, with many others for our business, have lately arrived from New York, and we are now prepared to make pictures from the smallest miniature on your watch dial to full-size portraits.

The public are invited to call and make a critical examination for themselves of the many specimens we have of well known citizens of this city.

W. C. SHEPARD, A. L. ABBOTT, ROBT. G. HUTCHINSON
SHEPARD, ABBOTT & CO.,
No. 55 Camp street, New Orleans,
Nearly opposite Picayune Office.

CROCKERY AND GLASS WARE,
PLATED WARE,
House Furnishing Goods,
AND KITCHEN WARE.

We beg leave to inform our friends and the public in general, that we have on hand a large and well selected stock of the above goods, and are constantly receiving them directly from the manufacturers in France, England, and the United States; and we flatter ourselves that we can sell our goods as low as any house in the city.
For a large line in the house-furnishing line, our stock is unequalled in the South.

Call in and see for yourself before purchasing elsewhere.

SHEPARD, ABBOTT & CO.,
55 Camp street, New Orleans.

aug 15

NEW ORLEANS MARKETS.

CAREFULLY CORRECTED AND
FROM THE N. O. PRICE CURRENT.

We have no material change to notice in the general market since our last review. Demand, in nearly every department of trade, is reduced to the usual narrow limits of the summer season. In our leading staple, however, there has been a fair degree of animation, considering the limited supply on hand, while prices have ruled rather more in favor of factors, agreeing in this particular with the course of the New York market. About the usual movement has been noticed in Western Produce, without any important variations. Nothing of any moment has been reported in Tobacco, and the sales of Sugar and Molasses have been confined to retail transactions.

It is hoped that the change in the City Council, made by the District Commander, will have the effect of harmonizing its proceedings with the Mayor and thereby lead to some prompt action with regard to the City notes, which will restore public confidence, so essential to their improvement in the money market.

The demand for cotton having been mostly for Northern account, the supply of Foreign Exchange has continued extremely dull, but rates exhibit no material change. Domestic Exchange has been hardly as firm. The counter demand is limited and the offerings of Commercial are slight.

COTTON.—We left the market, at the time of our last report without change from previous quotations, but the better qualities commanding outside figures, and the demand for all descriptions limited. Saturday opened with a better and more general enquiry, and although operations were checked by the poor assortment offering and increased stringency in the pretensions of factors, at least for the higher grades, yet the sales summed up 950 bales, and prices were stiffer, but without any notable improvement. On Monday the demand continued good, but the movement was again restricted by the causes that checked it on Saturday, especially by factors asking extreme outside figures, or even higher rates. The sales, nevertheless, were to a fair extent, again embracing 950 bales, while, in some instances, the prices paid indicated an improvement of $\frac{1}{16}$ per lb. Tuesday the demand was continued with considerable spirit, and although buyers met still more stringent pretensions on the part of factors particularly for all desirable descriptions or even running lists, yet 1000 bales changed hands at figures showing increased irregularity or a wider range, but a marked upward tendency in the higher grades. There was some enquiry for the lower qualities but at prices below the views of factors.

This makes an aggregate for the past three days of 2900 bales, taken for the North.

The receipts proper since Friday evening comprise 705 bales, against 564 during the corresponding period last week, showing an increase of 141 bales. The receipts at this port, since the 1st of September, (exclusive of the arrivals from Mobile, Florida and Texas), are 709,786 bales, against 674,869 bales to same date last year, and the decrease in the receipts at all the ports, up to the latest dates, as compared with last year, is 183,187 bales. In the exports from the United States to foreign countries, as compared with the same dates last year, there is a decrease of 17,841 bales to Great Britain, of 15,404 to France, and an increase of 43,742 bales to other foreign ports.

We quote as follows:

| | | | |
|---------------|----|----|----|
| Low | 20 | to | 22 |
| Ordinary | 20 | to | 22 |
| Good Ordinary | 23 | to | 24 |
| Medium | 25 | to | 26 |
| High | 27 | to | 28 |

TOBACCO.—There has been a fair demand for foreign export, but the views of holders being largely in advance of buyers' limits, the latter have been compelled to forego the execution of their orders and await the effect of further developments. We report the market stiff at the annexed quotations:

| | | | |
|---------------|-------|----|-------|
| Light | 4 | to | 4 1/2 |
| Heavy | 4 1/2 | to | 5 |
| Low Refused | 5 | to | 5 1/2 |
| Good do | 5 1/2 | to | 6 |
| Common Leaf | 6 | to | 7 |
| Medium | 7 | to | 8 |
| High | 8 | to | 9 |
| Choice | 9 | to | 10 |
| Choice Select | 10 | to | 11 |

Cattle Market.

| | |
|--------------------------------------|--------------|
| Wednesday evening, August 6, 1867 | |
| Western Beef, 24 quality, per lb net | to |
| Texas Cattle Choice per head | $45 to $55 |
| Texas Cattle 2d qual, per head | $30 to $40 |
| Texas Cattle 3d qual, per head | $15 to $20 |
| Sheep, 1st quality per head | $20 to $25 |
| Sheep, 2d " " " " | $15 to $20 |
| Sheep, 3d " " " " | $10 to $15 |
| Wool, choice per head | $50 to $60 |
| Wool, 2d " " " " | $40 to $50 |
| Wool, 3d " " " " | $30 to $40 |
| Wool, 4th " " " " | $20 to $30 |
| Wool, 5th " " " " | $15 to $20 |
| Wool, 6th " " " " | $10 to $15 |
| Wool, 7th " " " " | $5 to $10 |
| Wool, 8th " " " " | $5 to $10 |
| Wool, 9th " " " " | $5 to $10 |
| Wool, 10th " " " " | $5 to $10 |

Horse and Mule Market.

| | |
|---------------------------|----------------|
| Medium draft horses | $200 to $400 |
| Heavy draft horses | $175 to $300 |
| Common do | $75 to $150 |
| Males, 1st quality, broke | $200 to $250 |
| Do 2d do do | $150 to $200 |
| Do 3d do do | $100 to $150 |
| Do 4th do do | $75 to $100 |
| Do 5th do do | $50 to $75 |
| Do 6th do do | $40 to $50 |
| Do 7th do do | $30 to $40 |
| Do 8th do do | $20 to $30 |
| Do 9th do do | $15 to $20 |
| Do 10th do do | $10 to $15 |

N. O. WHOLESALE BICES.

CAREFULLY CORRECTED AND (Made up from Actual Sales at the Exchange)

| ARTICLES. | FROM | TO |
|-----------------------------|--------|--------|
| Agricultural Implements | 4 75 | 22 00 |
| Cotton and Sugar Plows | 9 50 | 10 50 |
| Vost's Plows and Scrapers | 7 00 | 7 50 |
| Cotton Scrapers | 7 00 | 7 50 |
| Sweeps | 15 00 | 15 00 |
| Cultivators | 10 00 | 18 00 |
| Shovels | 11 00 | 20 00 |
| Spades | 15 00 | 18 00 |
| Axes | 15 00 | 18 00 |
| Belting, 3/4 yard | 26 | 28 |
| East India | 104 | 11 |
| Bale Rope, Kentucky, 3/4 lb | 104 | 11 |
| Bran, 100 lbs. Pilot | 10 00 | 10 00 |
| Crackers | 11 00 | 11 00 |
| Bricks, Lake, 2000 | 20 00 | 25 00 |
| English, Fire | 45 00 | 45 00 |
| Candles, 1 lb | 42 | 43 |
| Sperm, N Bedford | 20 | 20 |
| Tallow | 16 | 21 |
| Adamantine | 16 | 21 |
| Star | 16 | 21 |
| Chocolate, No 1 3/4 lb | 25 | 25 |
| Sweet and Spiced | 35 | 67 |
| Cider, Western 3/4 bbl | none | here |
| Northern | none | here |
| Coal, Cannon 3/4 ton | 11 | 13 00 |
| Anthracite 3/4 ton | 11 | 13 00 |
| Western 3/4 ton | 23 | 25 00 |
| Coffee, Rio, 3/4 lb | 35 | 38 |
| Havana, 3/4 lb | 38 | 42 |
| Java, 3/4 lb | 38 | 42 |
| St. Domingo, 3/4 lb | 26 | 26 |
| Cotton Seed | 9 00 | 14 00 |
| Bong, 3/4 ton | 38 | 40 |
| Hulled, 3/4 bushel | 38 | 40 |
| Copper, Braziers 3/4 lb | 38 | 40 |
| Sheathing | 38 | 40 |
| Copper Boils | 38 | 40 |
| Yellow Metal | 30 | 32 |
| Cordage, Manila, 3/4 lb | 23 | 24 |
| Tarred, American | 20 | 21 |
| Russia, 3/4 lb | 20 | 21 |
| Corn Meal, 3/4 bbl | 6 00 | 7 00 |
| Dyes, 3/4 lb | 5 | 5 |
| Logwood, Campy | 3 | 6 |
| St. Domingo | 3 | 6 |
| Castile, 3/4 lb | 1 00 | 1 00 |
| Indigo, 3/4 lb | 1 00 | 1 00 |
| Madder | 15 | 20 |
| Eggs, 3/4 doz Western | 22 | 25 |
| Feathers, 3/4 lb | 90 | 1 00 |
| Fish, Cod, 3/4 box | 1 95 | 2 10 |
| Herrings | 20 | 20 |
| Mackerel, No 1 3/4 bbl | 20 | 20 |
| No 2 | 20 | 20 |
| No 3 | 16 50 | 16 50 |
| Flaxseed, 3/4 lb | 4 | 4 |
| Flour, 3/4 bbl | 11 00 | 11 00 |
| Superfine | 11 00 | 11 00 |
| Extra | 8 00 | 8 00 |
| Fine | 8 00 | 8 00 |
| Fruit, Prunes, 3/4 lb | 18 | 20 |
| Figs, Drum | 23 | 23 |
| Dried Apples | 6 | 7 |
| Oranges, Zante | 17 | 10 |
| Almonds, soft shell | 15 | 15 |
| Raisins, M R, 3/4 box | 15 | 15 |
| Lemon, 3/4 box | 4 35 | 4 35 |
| Malaga, 3/4 box | 11 50 | 11 50 |
| Oranges, La, 3/4 box | 7 00 | 7 00 |
| St. Domingo, 3/4 box | 7 00 | 7 00 |
| Glass, 3/4 box of 50 feet | 3 50 | 4 25 |
| French, 8 x 10 | 4 00 | 4 50 |
| 10 x 12 | 4 00 | 4 50 |
| 12 x 18 | 6 00 | 6 00 |
| Grain, 3/4 bushel | 1 00 | 1 50 |
| Mail, Western | 1 00 | 2 00 |
| Canada | 1 00 | 2 00 |
| Oats | 1 00 | 1 50 |
| Corn, shelled 3/4 bushel | 1 05 | 1 25 |
| Beans, 3/4 bbl | 15 00 | 16 00 |
| Hops, 3/4 lb | 65 | 70 |
| Gunpowder, 3/4 keg | 7 50 | 8 50 |
| Gun, 3/4 box | 18 00 | 22 00 |
| Hay, Western, 3/4 ton | 18 00 | 32 00 |
| Northern | none | here |
| Louisiana | none | here |
| Hides, 3/4 lb | 19 | 20 |
| Dried Mexican | 19 | 20 |
| Wet salted, city slaughter | 9 1/2 | 10 |
| Kip Skins | 15 | 11 1/2 |
| Dry country | 15 | 11 1/2 |
| Pelts, 3/4 piece | 10 | 25 |
| Iron, Pig 3/4 ton | 45 00 | 45 00 |
| Country, Bar 3/4 lb | 6 1/2 | 7 1/2 |
| English, 3/4 lb | 5 1/2 | 6 |
| Hoop, 3/4 lb | 8 | 11 |
| Sheet | 8 | 11 |
| Bolter | 8 | 11 |
| Nail Rods | 12 | 14 |
| Iron Cotton Ties | 9 | 11 |
| Castings, American | 7 1/2 | 8 |
| Lime, Western 3/4 bbl | 1 50 | 2 00 |
| Shell Lime | 1 50 | 2 00 |
| Rookland, &c | 2 10 | 2 00 |
| Cement | 2 75 | 3 25 |
| Molasses, 3/4 gallon | 40 | 45 |
| Louisiana | 48 | 54 |
| Muscovado | 48 | 54 |
| Refined, 3/4 bbl | 48 | 54 |
| Moss, 3/4 lb | 3 1/2 | 4 1/2 |
| Gray, Country | 3 1/2 | 4 1/2 |
| Black do | 4 1/2 | 5 1/2 |
| Select, water rotted | 6 | 7 |
| Wrought, German | 15 | 20 |
| Wrought, English | 15 | 20 |
| Naval Stores, 3/4 bbl | 18 | 20 |
| Tar | 4 00 | 4 00 |
| Pitch | 3 50 | 4 00 |
| Rosin, No 1 | 3 75 | 4 00 |
| No 2 | 3 50 | 3 50 |
| No 3 | 3 25 | 3 25 |
| Spirits Turp 3/4 gallon | 2 90 | 3 50 |
| Oil, Lard 3/4 gallon | 1 10 | 1 15 |
| Coal Oil | 45 | 48 |
| Castor Oil | 60 | 65 |
| Cotton Seed, Refined | 85 | 85 |
| Tanners' 3/4 gallon | 1 25 | 1 50 |
| Oil Cake, Lined 3/4 ton | 37 50 | 37 50 |
| Cotton Seed | none | here |
| Produce, 3/4 lb | 23 00 | 24 00 |
| Beef, Mess Northern | 23 00 | 24 00 |
| Western | 23 00 | 24 00 |
| " North half bbl | 16 | 16 |
| Dried, 3/4 lb | 10 00 | 11 00 |
| Tongues, 3/4 doz | 20 00 | 26 00 |
| Prime Mess | 21 00 | 22 00 |
| Hog, round, 3/4 lb | 15 | 16 |
| Bacon, Hams, 3/4 lb | 15 | 16 |
| Do, canvassed | 19 | 23 |
| Sides | 14 1/2 | 15 1/2 |
| Shoulders | 13 1/2 | 14 1/2 |
| Green Shoulders | 13 1/2 | 14 1/2 |
| Lard, Prime, in tierces | 13 1/2 | 14 1/2 |
| In kegs | 13 1/2 | 14 1/2 |
| Pair, in tierces | 26 | 32 |
| Butter, Northern | 15 | 18 |
| Western | 15 | 18 |
| Cheese, American | 10 | 18 |
| Potatoes, 3/4 bbl | 3 25 | 3 25 |
| Onions | 5 00 | 6 00 |
| Green Apples | 5 00 | 6 00 |
| Red, 3/4 lb, Louisiana | 10 | 12 1/2 |
| Carolina | 11 | 11 1/2 |
| Saltpetre, refined, 3/4 lb | 14 | 14 |
| Crude | 13 | 15 |
| Salt 3/4 sack | 2 20 | 2 20 |
| Liverpool, fine, warehouse | 2 25 | 2 45 |
| from store | 2 00 | 2 00 |
| from warehouse | 2 20 | 2 30 |
| Turkey, 3/4 bushel | 8 | 10 |
| Soap, 3/4 lb, Western | 10 | 12 |
| Northern | 8 | 10 |
| Southern | 8 | 10 |
| Candle | 14 | 16 |
| Sugar, Louisiana, 3/4 lb | 13 1/2 | 14 1/2 |
| Havana White | 14 1/2 | 15 1/2 |
| Yellow | 11 1/2 | 12 1/2 |
| Black | 10 1/2 | 11 1/2 |
| Tobacco, in bulk, 3/4 lb | 19 | 21 |
| Bakers & Cutters | 17 | 19 |
| Good and Selections | 13 1/2 | 18 |
| Medium Leaf | 8 | 11 1/2 |
| Fair Leaf | 11 | 13 1/2 |
| Common Leaf | 6 1/2 | 8 1/2 |
| Good Refused | 4 | 5 |
| Common Refused | 4 | 5 |
| Texas, Cotton, 3/4 lb | 80 | 80 |
| Do 2d do do | 19 | 20 |
| Do 3d do do | 10 | 12 |
| Do 4th do do | 10 | 12 |
| Do 5th do do | 10 | 12 |
| Do 6th do do | 10 | 12 |
| Do 7th do do | 10 | 12 |
| Do 8th do do | 10 | 12 |
| Do 9th do do | 10 | 12 |
| Do 10th do do | 10 | 12 |

ADVOCATE CALENDAR, 1867.

| MONTH. | Sunday | Monday | Tuesday | Wednesday | Thursday | Friday | Saturday |
|--------|--------|--------|---------|-----------|----------|--------|----------|
| JAN. | 1 | 2 | 3 | 4 | 5 | 6 | 7 |
| FEB. | 1 | 2 | 3 | 4 | 5 | 6 | 7 |
| MAR. | 1 | 2 | 3 | 4 | 5 | 6 | 7 |
| APR. | 1 | 2 | 3 | 4 | 5 | 6 | 7 |
| MAY. | 1 | 2 | 3 | 4 | 5 | 6 | 7 |
| JUN. | 1 | 2 | 3 | 4 | 5 | 6 | 7 |
| JULY. | 1 | 2 | 3 | 4 | 5 | 6 | 7 |
| AUG. | 1 | 2 | 3 | 4 | 5 | 6 | 7 |
| SEP. | 1 | 2 | 3 | 4 | 5 | 6 | 7 |
| OCT. | 1 | 2 | 3 | 4 | 5 | 6 | 7 |
| NOV. | 1 | 2 | 3 | 4 | 5 | 6 | 7 |
| DEC. | 1 | 2 | 3 | 4 | 5 | 6 | 7 |

THE BRANCH OF THE SOUTHern Methodist Publishing House, at 112 Camp street, is ready to fill orders for the latest revised edition of the Discipline, with the paragraphs relating to Lay Representation.

Prices for other quantities of binding, on changed.

Also a duodecimo Edition of the Discipline with large margins for the convenience of those who wish to make notes.

Turkey Morocco
Sent by mail for 20 cts additional.

Also just received,
THE SUNDAY SERVICE,
ordered by the late General Conference.

Sheep $1 25
Roan $1 50
Roan Gilt $2 00
Turkey Morocco $3 00
S. S. Bells (single) $4 25 per doz.
" (Double) 6 50
Sent by mail for 20 cts additional.

July 13 R. J. HARP, Agt.

ALEX. BRITTON, RICH'D F. BRITTON,
A. BRITTON & CO.,
General Steamboat Agents,
COMMISSION & FORWARDING MERCHANTS,
No 7 Front street, New Orleans
July 5-6m

RICHARDSON & COLEMAN,
ATTORNEY AT LAW,
No. 3 Commercial Place,
New Orleans.

DR. C. J. BICKHAM,
OFFICE—COLLEGE BUILDING,
Corner Baronne & Common Streets, Residence—680 Magazine street, between Philip and First streets, New Orleans.
Office hours—From 11 o'clock, A. M. to 3, P. M. je29-ly

DR. J. M. GAGEE,
DENTAL SURGEON,
No. 107 Carondelet Street,
One door above Poydras, on the left hand side.
jan 26 ly

CHENOWETH, CASEY & CO.,
COMMISSION MERCHANTS,
For sale of Pork, Bacon, Beef, Flour, and Western Produce generally, 53 Gravier street, New Orleans.
sep 15 ly

WRIGHT, ALLEN & CO.,
Cotton Factors & Commission Merchants,
169 GRAVIER STREET, NEW ORLEANS.
aug 25 ly

WILLIAM FELLOWES, JUN.,
(Successor to Fellowes & Co.)
Cotton Factor and Commission Merchant,
186 COMMON STREET, NEW ORLEANS.
DAN P. LOGAN, Agent.
sep 15 ly

ORR, NATION & CO., LEWIS, NATION & CO.,
New York, St. Louis,
OBER, ATWATER & CO.,
Cotton Factors & Commission Merchants,
38 UNION STREET, NEW ORLEANS.
sep 15 ly

EDWARD NALLE, W. C. DAY,
NALLE, DAY & CO.,
Cotton Factors, Commission Merchants,
186 COMMON STREET, NEW ORLEANS.
oct 13 ly

S. H. ABY & JO.,
Cotton Factors, Commission Merchants,
186 GRAVIER STREET, NEW ORLEANS.
oct 13 6m

J. W. BURBRIDGE & CO.,
Cotton Factors & Commission Merchants,
No 190 GRAVIER STREET, NEW ORLEANS.
sep 16m

GUSTAVE VOM HOFE,
Manufacturer of Upright Pianos,
807 MAGAZINE ST., NEW ORLEANS.
Pianos sold at moderate prices, with five years guarantee. These pianos have just been awarded a Medal at the recent Louisiana State Fair, for superior richness of tone and great durability.
deef 6m

[Established in 1828.]
EVANS' FASHIONABLE RETAIL
Hat Emporium,
No 62 CAMP STREET,
Next door to the Picayune Office, New Orleans.
A complete assortment of the Latest Styles by every steamer, at Moderate Prices. aug 15 ly

PHILIP WERLEIN,
82.....Baronne Street.....82
Successor of the well known music house of PH. P. WERLEIN and P. P. WERLEIN & HALEY.
Dealer in

PIANO FORTES, MELODEONS,
GUITARS, VIOLINS,
And other musical instruments. Also, Music and Instruction Books, Music Paper, Note Paper, in fact everything belonging to music trade.

The repairing and tuning of Pianos will be attended to, arrangements having been made with that well known Piano Maker, M. BURCHARDT, who will take charge of that department—charges will be reasonable and satisfactory. Parties wishing can have their Pianos stored, sold on commission, boxed, or shipped to order. Findings for repairing Pianos, such as Wire, Felt, Cloth, etc., constantly for sale. Piano Stools, Covers of elegant patterns, etc., on hand. Any information on musical matters cheerfully given. Teachers recommended. Music neatly bound. P. S.—P. P. WERLEIN will be found at times at the above place, and will aid in making selections. He recommends his son PHILIP WERLEIN to his former friends and customers, and solicits their patronage for him. oct 20 6m

BURCKETT, WHITAKER & CO.,
COTTON FACTORS,
Commission Merchants,
No. 110 Camp street, next door to Christian Advocate office, New Orleans.
je 29-6m

JOHN W. MADDEN,
LATE FIRM OF
PAUL J. CHRISTIAN & CO.,
GENERAL MERCHANDISE STATIONER,
Printer, Ruler and Blank Book Manufacturer, and Lithographer,
No 73 Camp street, New Orleans.
Blank Books made to any pattern desired and at reasonable rates.
jul 13-3m

W. W. CHAPMAN,
Commission, Receiving and Forwarding MERCHANT, MONROE, LA.
REFERENCES: Messrs. Nalle, Day, & Co., Spinks & Sandig, Colles & Mayo, Mr. R. L. Walker, New Orleans, La.
July 20

MCUTOHON &

CHRISTIAN ADVOCATE

ORGAN OF THE M. E. CHURCH SOUTH FOR THE MOBILE, MONTGOMERY, MISSISSIPPI AND LOUISIANA CONFERENCES

NEW ORLEANS, SATURDAY, AUGUST 17, 1867.

$3.00 A YEAR IN ADVANCE
OFFICE—112 CAMP STREET

NEW ORLEANS
CHRISTIAN ADVOCATE.

Official Organ of the Montgomery, Mobile, Mississippi, and Louisiana Conferences of the M. E. Church South.

Office: 112 Camp Street.

TERMS OF SUBSCRIPTION:

THREE DOLLARS A YEAR,

invariably in Advance.

REV. J. C. KEENER,

112 Camp Street, New Orleans.

AGENTS:

Members of the Patronizing Conferences.

For the Boston Recorder.

MY LOST HOME.

Once a house and home had I,

A dear and cherished home;

Over me God's smiling sky,

And before my raptured eye

Flora's wealth of bloom—

'Twas a happy home!

Groups of friends had I to cheer

Me in that happy home;

Rustling kind and children dear,

All the day and all the year,

Made sweet music to my ear—

Dulness ne'er could come

To that cheerful home.

But a shipwrecked fortune tore

From me house and home;

Sill the trees their fruitage bore,

The flowers blossomed as of yore,

Though for me, ah! nevermore—

I had lost my home.

My dear, my happy home.

Yesternoon I chanced to see

That fair, that sunny home;

Years had passed, but yet to me

House and garden, shrub and tree,

Ne'er more precious seemed to be—

It was hard to come

From that cherished home.

Harder still the thought to bear—

From my arms must roam

Husband, son, and daughter fair;

Each dear brow o'ercast with care;

And their joyous smiles grow rare,

Pining all for home—

Their loved, their happy home.

Dear ones! shall we ever meet

'Beneath the heaven's blue dome?

For household pleasures greet

My fellowship so sweet,

And welcome rest to wandering feet?

Shall we have a home

Once more—a happy home?

Lord, thou knowest, only thou!

To thine arms we come;

Thine are thy covenant vow:

Help us all thy feet to bow,

And with faith's uplifted brow,

See on high a home,

A happy, heavenly home!

The N. O. Christian Advocate.

Health of Belize, British Honduras.

BELIZE, June 3, 1867.

We, the undersigned—Medical Practitioners resident in Belize,

British Honduras, hereby certify the authenticity of the following facts:

1st. That no epidemic disease an infectious or contagious nature has evidenced itself in 1860.

2d. That within the memory of the oldest inhabitants, epidemic

cholera has only visited the Colony on two occasions, viz: in 1836 and 1854; small pox once, 1856;

and that yellow fever was not known here until 1860.

3d. That these diseases have ever been known to originate matter to introduce from a foreign port any disease of an infectious or contagious character.

From a perfect knowledge of the foregoing facts, and the acknowledge salubrity of the climate and immunity from epidemics, and from our own experience in the treatment and prevention of disease in this Colony, we are of opinion that any restriction placed on the intercourse between

Belize and the port of New Orleans, on the ground of danger to the public health, is unnecessary.

In the event of the outbreak of an epidemic of an infectious or contagious disease, we pledge ourselves to furnish to the proper authorities of the city of New Orleans information concerning its nature and extent.

C. T. HOWARD, Public Med. Officer.

N. A. HOWARD, M. D.

D. W. FOSTER, M. D.

F. E. GANN, M. T. C. T. & F. L. A.

I, A. C. Prindle, acting Vice

Commercial Agent of the United States of North America, hereby certify that the persons making the declaration hereto annexed, are the persons they represent themselves to be, that they are credible persons, and that the statements made in the said declaration are true.

Witness my hand and seal of office at Belize, this 7th day of June, 1867.

A. C. PRINDLE,

Acting Vice Com. Agent.

L. S.

For the N. O. Christian Advocate.

HIGH CHURCH EPISCOPOCY

Against all the Churches.

NO. VI.

Mr. Editor: I have said there was no history, either good, bad, or doubtful, which purported to show a connected chain of ordina-tions. I am aware this particular question has been treated differ-ently by other writers who have overlooked the important point I will here explain.

Those who have read on this subject are aware that the advocates of the succession doctrine publish in proof, lists of bishops about 120 in number, beginning with St. John and coming down through the See of Lyons, in ancient Gaul, and then either in Rome or Canterbury, until it transfers to the United States.

And the way this branch of the subject has been met by other non-prelatical writers, so far as I have seen, has been to deny the historic credibility of the list.

It has been unfortunate for their readers that these writers did not discover the true character of these boasted "lists of bishops."

In debating this general subject, about 12 years ago, with Messrs.

Yerger, Smedes, and Lord, the editors of the Church Herald, a high church paper then published in Vicksburg, I proposed to the editors to give up the question and retire from the contest if they would produce a list of names in

It is one of the most remarkable pious frauds I know of; and perhaps very few high churchmen themselves have discovered it.

Nor will the mystery abate a whit

when you see Powell, Bangs, Henkle, etc., fully acknowledging the historic aspect of the "Succession" to be sustained if the list could be shown to be historically credible.

But of course I am to acknowledge this historic credibility, good or bad.

The simple truth is, these lists do not relate to the question in issue at all, but to a totally different question. They purport to show, not a succession of ordina-tions, but a mere succession of incumbency in office. They purport to show, a succession of office holding, but tell us nothing whatever about ordinations, the thing we are arguing about. If the lists are historically true, then the men whose names are set down in them held the office of bishop when and where it is stated. That might all be, but the question in hand relates to a very different thing, viz:

a connected list of men who ordained each other successively and connectedly. The examination before us makes no enquiry about mere office-holding, but about a totally different thing. And yet when we enquire for historic statements as to successive actual or-dnations, we are "boastfully furnished a list of names purporting to show that such and such men held office successively.

Washington, Adams, and Jefferson, may have held the office of President successively, and Jeff-

Davis might stand in the list; but this does not show how any of them got into office, whether legally or illegally, or how or by whom they were respectively inaugurated. And so, suppose it to be true, as the lists tell us, that

Lambert was the 14th bishop in the See of Canterbury, in A. D.

763, and that he was succeeded by Wulfred, and he by Theogild, &c.

Now if these things are true, as the so-called history says, then we are rightly informed as to who occupied the See of Canterbury in 763 to 830. But what information does that give us about the ordination of these bishops in a connected chain? Just as much as if we had been informed of their complexion and stature respectively.

I feel well enough acquainted with this subject to state, that there is not in print in the English language, a list of names claiming or purporting to be history, which represents a connected chain of ordinations. It is not for a moment pretended by any one that these bishops, paraded in the lists, were successively the ordain-ers of each other. That would be impossible, because, in most instances, the old bishop was dead before the successor was ordained at all. This is the character, fairly given, of these lists of bishops so frequently put forth to prove a thing to which they do not relate.

And, indeed, the history of these cumbency in office, that there was somewhere a successive chain of ordinations. And so we will let that be looked at. R. ABBEY.

For the N. O. Christian Advocate.

JOHN WESLEY:

NO. I.

Although John Wesley's name has been historic more than a hundred years, and although several lives of him have been written by friends and foes, and though these several lives have been read by multitudes, it is not to be supposed that even all the readers of the ADVOCATE have read these biographies. We, therefore, conclude that it is unnecessary to apologize to them for obtruding upon their notice some facts and reflections in relation to this remarkable man.

Although a warm admirer of Wesley as a man, and eminent minister of Christ, we do not claim for him infallibility. No man uninspired, ever gets to be more than man, or fails to do something to illustrate that to err is human. While then we may ad-miire the public and private lives of the great and good, and dwell with grateful satisfaction upon all that is useful and beautiful in their characters, we are never, in taking account of them, to forget that they were but men, and had more or less of the frailties that attach to our finite and fallen natures.

While, then, we find more to ad-miire in John Wesley than in most public men, who have figured long and largely upon the historic page,

we do not regard him as perfect, or adopt as our own all his conclusions. Having promised thus much,

we proceed to present in chronological order the principal facts in his history.

John Wesley was born at Epworth, England, June, 1703. His father was a minister of the established church of England, and has the reputation of being a man of piety and learning. Wesley's mother was a remarkable woman, and is another illustration of the oft noted fact that most great men

NEWS FROM THE CHURCHES.

From the N. O. Christian Advocate.

WETUMPKA DISTRICT MEETING.

The Conference meeting for the Wetumpka District, was held at Wetumpka, beginning on the 18th, and ending 21st July.

Bishop Andrew was with us, and presided over the meeting. That source of disposition recently ascribed to him in a Northern journal, was not observed by us who were in daily intercourse with him. The Bishop humorously remarked that he had read the charge, but was not conscious of having deserved it. However, that it had led him to examine himself, and to pray against such tendencies. His trust in Almighty goodness, and confidence in the future prosperity of our Zion, cheered our hearts and strengthened them for greater endurance and sacrifice in the cause of Christ.

The Bishop preached a meeting sermon on Sabbath. Our congregation was large, as the members of the Presbyterian and Baptist churches, with their pastors were present. We had a delightful communion season.

The Love feast in the afternoon constituted one of the features of the meeting. Several of our converts lately added to the church were present to enjoy its comforting and strengthening influence. Bro. Madison, regarded our District Conference meeting as quite a success. The attendance of ministers and laymen was good, and they conducted the business of the church in the spirit of earnestness and love.

The following resolution passed: Resolved, Unanimously by the Wetumpka District Meeting, that we recognize and acknowledge with gratitude, the very charitable and liberal contributions for the suffering people of our district and country, in the severe trial through which we have recently passed, made by our brethren in California, Kentucky, Missouri, New York, Baltimore, Philadelphia, and other places.

The following were elected delegates to the next session of the Montgomery Conference.

| | |
|---------------------|--------------------|
| Delegates. | Alternates |
| Rev. W. G. GARRITT | Rev. H. H. STERN |
| Rev. J. M. SIMMONS | Rev. J. M. STANLEY |
| Rev. T. H. WILLIAMS | Rev. J. M. STANLEY |
| Rev. S. LAUGHTER | Rev. J. M. STANLEY |

SABBATH SCHOOLS.

1st. Resolved, That it is the duty of our preachers to avail themselves of every opportunity, to impart religious instruction to all the children within their reach; and especially, to instruct them in those families under their pastoral charge, and to have stated occasions for preaching to the children, and for explaining to them the way of salvation, and their duty to God and to their parents.

2nd. Resolved, That it is the duty of each pastor to do all in his power to establish Sabbath schools under the control of our own denomination, and to use our own Sabbath school books. Nevertheless, we would encourage the organization of Union Sabbath Schools, and the use of the Union Sabbath School books, whenever the former is impracticable.

REPORT ON MISSIONS.

After considering the importance of the work, the Report adds: "There is a large debt hanging over our Foreign Board, which must be paid; and, we have Missionaries in our Foreign and Domestic Fields, whom we are solemnly bound to sustain. The fact, that our resources are so greatly crippled does not lessen our obligation, but calls upon us to make increased exertions to sustain and make efficient this most important part of our work. If we needed any additional stimulus to exertion beyond the commands and promises of God, and the Macedonian cry of the poor and perishing in our own and pagan lands, for help. We have it supplied by the Herculean efforts made by the Northern M. E. Church, to absorb and destroy us as a Church. Thousand of dollars have been sent into our territory, to hire missionaries, to obtain churches, by fair or foul means; and to buy off our members when other means fail.

Six or eight missionaries, hired by agents of this church, are now at work in this District, with a zeal worthy of a better cause.

In view of these and other considerations, that might be mentioned, your Committee recommend the following resolutions.

1. Resolved, That our preachers and people be earnestly exhorted to renew their efforts, and even to make sacrifices to promote the missionary cause.

2. Resolved, That we recommend to the preachers of the District, to carry out the 7th and 8th Articles of the Constitution of our Conference Missionary Board, whenever practicable.

CHURCH PROPERTY.

1. Resolved, That it shall be the duty of the Stewards of the several circuits and stations within this District, to appoint committees to examine into the condition of the existing parsonages within the District, and see that they are comfortable homes, and further, that it is the sense of this Conference, that the parsonages thus provided, should be occupied by the ministers sent to the work where they are located, subject however, to the fourth article of the Discipline, page 240. The Committee after expressing their regret that so much of our church property had failed to be legally secured, offered the following resolutions.

2nd. Resolved, that the Trustees of each church, shall at the earliest practicable period see that sound deeds to the several churches are properly secured to the M. E. C. South.

3rd. Resolved, That we assert in unmistakable terms, our right to all the property of the M. E. Church, South, and our determination to maintain that right as sacred and inviolable.

4th. Resolved, That the trustees of our churches be urged to see that they are never applied to any other than to strictly religious uses.

SPIRITUAL CONDITION OF THE CHURCH. The investigation of this subject has revealed to the committee the existence of certain canons which operate in many localities against the spiritual growth of the church.

First, a want of Sabbath preaching at most of the churches, and a more intimate and constant intercourse between the preacher and his people.

Second, a species of infidelity and distrust consequent upon the war and its results.

Third, the unusual attention given to labor and business has so much engrossed the mind as to cause many to decline in religion.

Fourth, the meagre support of ministers, in some instances has compelled them to engage in secular pursuits, and prevented a prayer the attention to pastoral duties.

We recommend therefore:

1st. A consolidation of churches, when practicable, and the reduction of the circuits, so as to secure for the churches, more generally Sabbath preaching and pastoral supervision.

2nd. The increase of the number of prayer-meetings, (as the Discipline provides,) the more general reading of the Bible, and attendance upon the means of grace.

3rd. The adoption of some plan to call into more active exercise the local ministry, and render them more efficient toward promoting the godliness of the church.

MINISTERIAL SUPPORT.

Resolved, That we recommend to the stewards of the several circuits and stations of the District, to appoint at the last meeting of the year, an Executive Committee, among their number, whose duty it shall be to make all necessary arrangements, to receive and provide for the ministers when they arrive on their work; to make an estimate of the expenses of the year, and to communicate the same to the other stewards. Said Board shall act until the first Quarterly Meeting, at which time a report of their action shall be read, and the name of said executive committee shall be furnished the Presiding Elder, that the minister when he shall have learned his appointment may know to whom to apply.

Resolved, that we further recommend to the Stewards, whenever practicable as a part of their financial plan, to encourage the membership to set apart a small portion of land to be cultivated in some remunerative crop, the proceeds of which shall be dedicated to the support of the ministry, and they further adopt the plan of receiving contribution in provision or other materials to be appropriated and accounted for as they may determine.

Resolved, that we regard the Stewards as the only financial officers of the church, and that upon them devolves the great duty of raising means for ministerial support, and that we urge upon them an examination of the Discipline, as containing the law of our church, in relation to them and their duties, and that when necessary they have class stewards, or collectors appointed in each society to assist them.

EDUCATION.

Resolved, That the welfare of the church demands that a more intensely religious and denominational character be impressed upon her institutions of learning.

Resolved, That more diligence should be practiced in teaching and circulating our literature, both in the form of books and journals.

G. D. OLIVER.

UNION SPRINGS.

Five Poplars, Bullock, Co., Ala., July 28th. 1867.

Mr. Editor:—The district meeting for Union Springs District was held at Pine Level, last week. No Bishop. Attendance large. Interest great from first to last. The word preached in power. Opening sermon by Rev. W. M. Motley on the constitution of the Christian Church—philosophical, scriptural, forcible, appropriate, satisfactory. Plea for an educated ministry, timely. Rev. P. F. Pilley—one of our old patriachs—from an adjoining district—was with us. His sermon on Saturday morning was one of those that are retained in the memory, as beautiful pearls and "gems of purest ray, serene" are held in the "deep unfathomable caves" of the ocean. "In those days shall the mountain of the Lord's house be established in the top of the mountains and over the hills, &c." was the text. Its effect may be imagined when I tell you that Rev. Mr. McKee, a Presbyterian Minister, who was in the pulpit with him, came near letting his few words of exhortation in conclusion, enliven in a shout, from the inspiration of the sermon. Father Pilley is on the superannuated list of the Montgomery Conference—has given his life to the church—is over seventy years of age—his family now living twenty-five miles from the Montgomery and Mobile Rail Road, in Conecuh County. He is struggling with poverty, whilst he should be reposing in the bosom of a grateful church. Shame! shame! shame! upon the Methodist people to allow it in his case and in others. Father P. makes no complaint whatever, and I had to pursue him and extort from him the facts which now prompt an appeal in his behalf. I know how his sensitive soul will shrink back when he reads what I now write, but he must pardon me. I want his old friends, and many others who may wish to do a favor for one most deserving, to enclose to me at Union Springs, such a contribution as they may be willing, freely, cheerfully to bestow on a strictly old servant of the church of Jesus, who has lived only for God and the church. It is a debt. Blessings upon his name when he is dead will not attest our gratitude so well as will substantial, material aid now.

Among matters of interest which such synopsis will contain, I would name the recommendation of a Bishop for every two Conferences, unanimously passed. You may write me down in favor of one for each, if you please; and such modification of Conferences as will suit. A change in the mode of Presiding Elder supervision of districts is also suggested, as follows: Appoint the P. Elder to a station or circuit on the district, and transfer to the district meetings much that is now assigned to the Quarterly Conferences. Have two district meetings a year, at one of which the Bishops can preside. Should the services of the Presiding Elder be required at any time during the year at any point, as in the case of an important trial, let him be called to that point. This, it seems to me, commends itself to the common sense of any one; and I hope the change will be made at the next General Conference. If it be needful at certain points to retain somewhat the same supervising arrangement, as now obtains, make supplementary provision for it, and meet exceptional cases by specific appliances, rather than construct a whole system upon such exceptions. I merely state the case—do not argue it. I may, at no distant day do the latter. All is peaceful and pleasant in the district. The reports were fully up to the work—that on Finance touching the very centre. High ground on temperance. Laicly full of zeal and kindly bold and outspoken. It was a great time. Baptist Church used on Sabbath for preaching. Crowd immense.

JOSEPH B. COTTELL.

Columbus Circuit, Alabama.

Pickens Co., Ala., Aug. 7, 1867.

DEAR BROTHER:—The Lord has begun to revive his work once more on Columbus circuit. Without making any appointment for a protracted meeting, properly so called, but intending to protract if all things were right, we commenced our third quarterly meeting at Yorkville, on Friday before the second sabbath in July, and on Sunday night, we saw unmistakable signs of the spirit's willingness and power to save. The church, too, which for a long time has been like Ezekiel's "dry bones," showed symptoms of coming vitality. We protracted from day to day for eleven days. All the members who could attend were wonderfully blessed. The altar was crowded with mourners, and several happily converted. Twelve were received into the church. Many of the Baptists attended the meeting and were greatly blessed I trust. Two of their ministers preached three sermons for us, and another labored with us in the altar. Really it seemed like a sort of union meeting of all Christians in that community. And why should not all Christians everywhere, lay down the denominational cudgel, and take up the weapons of our common warfare and make one combined and united effort against the world, the flesh and the devil? Does not the condition of both church and country demand it? Yours in Christ,

G. HAWKINS

WILKINSON CT., MISS. CONF., AUG 1, '67

Mr. Editor: Knowing that you like to hear from the churches, I write you, not—I am sorry to say—to inform you of a glorious revival among us, but to say, that we still live, and are trying to strengthen the things that remain. We have not as yet made a direct effort for a general revival, but have been striving to get ready. We think the indications at present are encouraging. The most interesting sign among us at present is a revived solicitude, for the children and youth around us. As an effect of the late war, almost all the Sabbath Schools on this Circuit were broken up, and their libraries carried off. It has been difficult for the people to believe that they still have duties to perform, and objects to accomplish of vast importance, by the instrumentality of old and long tried means, such as the Sabbath school. They, however, begin to feel, that something must be done. At several points on the circuit, efforts are being made to establish schools on a permanent basis. At Bethel, a central appointment of my charge, Bro. Norworthy, a superannuated preacher of our Conference, has succeeded in establishing a prosperous Sabbath School and Bible class, in a neighborhood heretofore unnecessarily divided by denominational prejudices, (Christians,) may now be seen in peace and harmony, striving together to instruct the children in their duties, to God and each other. It was our privilege a few days ago, to attend an exhibition, by this school. When we got there at an early hour, we found the platform erected, and covered with a decent carpet, and ornamented with evergreens and flowers, in a very tasteful manner. Contiguous to the church, we noticed a long rustic table. Already, two hours before the appointed hour, several of the children were on the ground, with bright expectant faces, nor was it long, before parents and children came pouring in, attended in most instances by some old trusty family servant, in charge of the good things for the feast; reminding us of other and happier days. The exercises were introduced by an appropriate hymn and prayer, which were followed by an address from Rev. S. Swaney, who, urged upon the audience, the importance of pre-occupying the youthful mind, by pure sentiments and correct principles. This address, was followed by hearty singing and appropriate speeches, well spoken by the children of the school, many of whom were quite small. It was pleasant to parents and friends to hear these children in their first efforts before the public, speak of Jesus, of holiness, and Heaven. Oh! that the evening of their days may be as full of hope and promise as its morning. After the exercises by the school, Rev. T. W. Brown, addressed the audience, setting forth the importance of a moral and religious training. This speech being ended, it was supposed that the time for dinner had come, and but for a drenching shower of rain, would perhaps have been served up. Fortunately, however, it was discovered by the audience that Rev. J. F. Muse, (a brother always ready for good work,) was present, who, having been called upon by the congregation, entertained us pleasantly and profitably. A liberal contribution was made by the audience to replenish the library. Of the dinner provided for the occasion by the good ladies of the neighborhood, we have only to say, that there was enough for all, of the very best the country affords. We think, the teachers and children must now feel, that ministers, parents, and friends, all feel a deep interest in them, and are ready and willing to do what they can for their encouragement in the good work in which they are engaged. J. L. T.

Jacksonville District Meeting.

Mr. Editor:—The District meeting for the Jacksonville District Montgomery Conference, was held at Columbiana, Ala. on the 19th and 20th. July, Bishop Wightman presiding.

The session was harmonious, instructive, and, we think, decidedly beneficial. The reports of the various committees were elaborated with care and showed a thoughtful consideration and zeal for the things of God that gave us great hope for the future of our church.

From the committee on Ministerial Support we find the financial interests of the church though languishing somewhat, are far from ruinous, and it is thought most of the ministers on this District will get a full salary and all support—especially as God has blessed us with a prospect of a plentiful harvest.

The Sunday-school cause is flourishing; perhaps never before has so much interest been manifested in this direction. Looking to this as the nursery of the church we are full of hope for the future. In many parts of the District both young and old join in the Bible class. Many are found there who have not attended church for years.

The committee on the state of the church report a decided improvement since the year opened. Radicalism seems to have spent its force, and now the emissaries of the M. E. Church who some time ago were boasting openly of their intention to disintegrate and absorb, find cold comfort. A general revival of religion is looked throughout the bounds of the district.

Already showers have fallen, and there, and these we regard as a prelude to richer and greater manifestations of divine power. Before this year is out we expect to see Methodism planted on a basis than it has ever occupied in this country.

Our preachers are all at work and doing well, following the wake of a presiding elder nobly leads the van. Not by home from every appointment, making rounds that are round, Preaching from church to church and laboring with might and to build up the church in all its parts.

I fear I have already trodden too much upon your space, but I must say in conclusion, that we regard district meetings as a great improvement in our economy, no one left the meeting at Columbiana without being satisfied in their practical working they do much to bind the official members of the church more closely together, and in many ways advance the interests of the cause.

C. A. KING, Secretary.

TALLADEGA DISTRICT MEETING.

LAFAYETTE, ALA., Aug. 1st. 1867.

Mr. Editor: The District Meeting for the Talladega District Montgomery Conference, met at place, on the 26th of July, with fair attendance of the members.

Several of the works in the district were not represented, enough, to ascertain the state of the church in the bounds of the district.

The different departments of the church were duly considered; an increased effort strongly recommended.

Sunday-schools, so important the success of the church, was subject of deep interest to the meeting. It is truly gratifying to see that this potent arm of the church is gaining upon the minds of hearts of all who feel for the church and country. That Sabbath schools are being established in districts heretofore, posed to them. The great obstacle is the want of, and inability on friends in many communities, procure books.

The meeting earnestly recommends all our itinerant preachers return to the Wesleyan plan of educational colportage; and carry of denominational literature into every family. They also urge a general circulation of our periodicals.

The broken down condition of the country, and the want of facilities are serious obstacles in the way of a more general circulation of our Advocate, but these hope will be removed by economy and a more liberal policy on the part of the government.

In reference to the colored population, the meeting recommended more liberal policy as the only salvation for that unfortunate race. To crown the whole, there was manifest desire for a deeper work of God's Spirit in the entire church. The pulpit and other exercises are still going on with a fair prospect of a gracious revival.

JOS. T. CURRY, P. M.

Brandon Circuit.

At Richland Academy, Brandon Circuit, Miss. Conference, the people are blessed with a revival of religion. The "meeting" is closed, the work of God, it is believed, on and will go on. Statistics of the results, thus far, twenty conversions, an accession of eleven members to the M. E. Church South, and two to the Presbyterian church. Several will join the Baptists. A man more than seventy years old professed religion.

JNO. A. ELLIS

Brandon, Miss., Aug. 8, '67.

EXPLORATION IN PALESTINE. The University of Oxford has made appropriation of the sum of $20,000 for the purpose of equipping an expedition for scientific investigation in Palestine. Cambridge University will probably contribute an equal amount.

THE DYING MOTHER.

BY JULIA WESTWOOD.

Come, children dear, and list to me,
This last, last time on earth:
For soon the new-made grave will close O'er her who gave you birth.

Now, Mary, get my Bible worn,
And read just one time more,
Of some sweet promise, that hath oft,
Borne up my heart of yore.

And, darling, fold my weary hands,
When Angels come to bear me up,
On white wings to the skies.
Plant violets, and mignonette,
Above the quiet spot,
Where well I know will flourish too,
The sweet Forget-me-not.

And you, my Lily, pure and fair,
Keep back those sobbing tears,
We'll meet again, and side by side,
We'll spend our endless years.

Poor Fiddle! he's my latest born;
My youngest, sweetest boy,
Sweet daughter, shine him in your hearts,
Your Mother's pride and joy.

Oh, do not let him wander forth,
From out the sacred fold
Of home affections, with its wealth
Of hopes and fears untold.

And when he falls would truant play,
To glided anarcs be given.
Oh, tell him tenderly and oft,
Of Mother, God, and Heaven.

And then, there's Winnie, winsome thing,
You must be very kind
To this, my young mimosa plant,
So gifted—heart and mind.

Let love and fancy lead her,
My laurel'd child of song;
She'll follow me ere long.

And then, there's Ernest—picture true
Of him I loved and lost.
Your Father—who last reaping time,
Joined Heaven's while robed host.

For me, his May-day bride,
Where golden streets, and pearly gates,
Till all opened wide.

To let me in; and then I'll stand,
With that pure-hearted throng,
To wait for you, my children sweet.
You'll come—and then the song
Of Moses and the Lamb will sing,
And wonder and adore;
With God, and Christ, and Angels walk,
Forever—ever more.

For the N. O. Christian Advocate.

East Alabama College, At Auburn.

Mr. Editor: Allow me through your columns to report to the Montgomery Conference, and the many Methodist families who are or ought to be interested, the results of the discharge of the duty assigned me, in connection with Rev. Jno. Mattheews, of Montgomery, and Rev. B. Cottrell, of Union Springs, Visiting Committee to the College, whose name heads this article.

The "East Alabama College" went into operation in 1858, under the presidency of the late lamented Dr. Wm. Sannett, D. D. Its success was very great from the beginning. At the commencement of the war, its halls were filled with students, and all the appliances of education were in complete and powerful operation.

Just after the war, President Sannett, had notified his noble corps of professors, and was about to call in around him the throng of able youths who loved his goodness and admired his greatness; when heaven claimed him, and he repaired to his "mausoleum in the Father's house." This came a grievous calamity, and unfortunate delay to the college. One year ago, the Board of Trustees re-organized the College, under the Presidency of the Hon. Rev. James F. Dowdell, with three other of the former Professors in the Institution—viz: Prof. Darby, in Natural Science, Prof. Dimcklin, in Languages, Prof. Glenn, in Mathematics.

This year, the College has had its proportionate share of the meagre public patronage. At the recent meeting of the Board of Trustees, it was resolved to continue the College with the same Faculty, and the Fall Session is announced to begin in the 4th of next September.

Of our recent attendance upon the examination of classes, and commencement exercises, we could say more than you would allow in your columns. Suffice it to say, that, in all candor, it would be highly complimentary to the Faculty, who, under many embarrassments, have nobly and industriously struggled on in their great work.

On Tuesday night the prizes were presented to the Freshman and Sophomore declaimers, by Rev. Jas. M. Wright, in a most beautiful and instructive speech. On this occasion, the young gentlemen of the College chose to present a gold-headed cane to the President, which ceremony was touching and impressive.

On Wednesday, commencement day, two young men, one a son of the President, and the other, a son of the Rev. E. J. Hamill, of the Montgomery Conference, were graduated with the usual impressive ceremony. These two young men are both talented, both pious; and one of them expects to enter the ministry. Thus it should be. The Literary Address, by Rev. Geo. W. F. Price, President of Tuskegee Female College, was the best we ever heard on a similar occasion.

The past year in the College, has been in some respects, quite remarkable. The writer, having been during the last session, thrown into daily and intimate association with the students, gives it as his opinion, that a nobler and more moral company of young men was never collected together. President Dowdell, informs us, that no case of serious discipline has been necessary during the year. A majority of the students are members of the church. They, assisted by a few young men of the town, have kept up a prayer-meeting of their own, regularly through the year, and nine of their company have professed an impression that they must preach the gospel. This is well. Parents need have little fear to trust their children in the company of such young men. If your sons have any desire for the company of the true, and noble, and pious; they can find it here.

Of the Faculty, as they stand at present organized, the public may desire to be informed. President Dowdell, is a graduate of Randolph Macon College, and came out at a time, when it was sending forth such men as Lomax, Samford, Clopton, Koger, Bishop McTycire, and others. Before the war, he represented the District, in which he still resides, in the United States Congress, during three successive terms, and then declined further election, to go into the office of minister of the gospel, and Prof. of Belles Lettres in the College of which he is now President. During the war, he successfully led a regiment in the service of the country. After the death of Dr. Sannett, as we have before mentioned, he was elected to the position which he now occupies. In appreciation of his high services, and attainment, the honorary degree of L. L. D., has recently been conferred upon him by his Alma Mater.

Prof. John Darby, the veteran chemist and botanist, fills the chair of Natural Sciences. He has been well known in this department of education for thirty-five years, and for the last two years his name has been a household word.

Of Prof. Glenn in the chair of Mathematics, and Prof. Dimcklin in the chair of Languages, we might say many true and complimentary things. They are thoroughly furnished for their work, are laborious and successful teachers, stand high in the estimation of the students, and may be fully relied upon in their departments to give a thorough training to any young man whose mind is capable, and his heart set within him to obtain an education.

By recent action of the Board of Trustees, a Department for Commercial Education was instituted, and a Department of Agricultural Chemistry. These are specialties, and will soon be organized, so that a young man, whose time or pecuniary resources are limited, and who wishes to prepare himself immediately for business, can find ample facility for the purpose, either without, or in connection with the College course. Take special notice of this, and if further information is desired, apply to Prof. Darby or the President.

The location of the College, at Auburn, is a very fortunate one. Probably no town in the South is healthier, or has a more moral and refined population. We notice that students are daily received into families on the campus, and obtain all the refining effects of home.

In conclusion, allow us to say to parents and guardians, do not suppose that educational facilities are better, because they are far from home. The time has been when young men went to college for the name. Now, they must look for something more substantial. The nearer home we can obtain the advantages we desire, the better for us in every respect.

Most truly and Respectfully,

JESSE WOOD.

Ch'm. Visiting Com., Mont. Conf.

For the N. O. Christian Advocate.

MANSFIELD FEMALE COLLEGE.

REPORT OF THE VISITING COMMITTEE.

This institution has to-day closed the labors of another collegiate year. The examination and commencement exercises continued one week.

As the representatives of the Louisiana Conference to which the property of this College belongs, we felt it our duty to look into the condition and management of the institution, in all its departments.

The book of the Secretary of the Board of Managers shows that one year ago the college with its appurtenances was leased to Rev. Charles B. Stuart for the term of three years. He gives in consideration therefor the sum of $500.00 per annum to be applied by him in repairing and improving the premises, also the tuition, in the regular collegiate department, of the daughters of any of the members of the Louisiana Conference. Of this class four pupils were present during the term just closed.

The sum of $983.93 has been expended on the premises this year. This is $453.83 more than the yearly rent. This excess, however, is diminished by the sum of $110.68 rent due for the previous year. Thus, the amount of next year's rent expended this year is $373.15, leaving only $126.85 to meet the wants of next year. The buildings are in good repair. The outside of the main building, has been much improved in appearance by recent painting. Such furniture as was necessary for comfort and convenience has been supplied.

The boarding department under the supervision of Mrs. John Stuart, has been conducted excellently well. The table has been abundantly furnished. This we know from the uniform representations of the boarders.

The inmates of the school have been blessed with remarkably good health. The school matriculated 121 students. The examination was thorough and gave evidence of honest and efficient teaching, and of patient and successful study.

On Sunday, 23rd inst., the commencement sermon was preached by Rev. R. S. Trippett, of Shreveport, from the text: "Search the Scriptures."

On the evenings of Monday and Tuesday musical entertainments were given. There can be no doubt but every facility is here furnished for a thorough acquaintance with music.

The annual address was delivered by Hon. J. B. Elam, of De Soto, and the address to the graduating class by Rev. J. Sterling Lane, President of Rivers and Paine College, of Pleasant Hill, La. These addresses were both earnest appeals to the people as well as to the pupils of the school and the members of the graduating class, urging them to adjust themselves cheerfully to the condition and wants of society and of the times; presenting before them alluring incitements to lives of goodness and of usefulness.

There were five graduates. Their graduation speeches were well composed. Some of them contained passages of touching tenderness and beauty; others were marked with clearness of perception and strength of argument.

We close this report by assuring the members of the Louisiana Conference that they have an institution here over which they may well legitimate themselves and each other, one which is well worthy of their kindest sympathy and most tender care. And they may with perfect safety use their influence to fill it with the daughters of their friends.

The Fall session will commence on Wednesday the 25th day of September next. And the district meeting for Shreveport district will be held at Mansfield on September 26th, 27th, and 28th. So that ministers and other members may come to the said district meeting and at the same time bring their daughters to the college.

B. F. ALEXANDER,
Chairman Visiting Committee.
Mansfield, La., June, 20th 1867.

THE SURREATT TRIAL.

Argument of Mr. Merrick for the Defence.

We publish the following concluding paragraphs of the able argument of Mr. Merrick in defence of John H. Surratt:

Upon the reassembling of the Court, Mr. Merrick resumed his remarks, and said he thought he had shown that the testimony in regard to Surratt's presence here was not to be relied upon, and that from its infamous character it soiled the whole case for the prosecution. He thought he had also demonstrated that it was a physical impossibility for Surratt to have got here. It will be remembered, also, that none of his friends saw him here, and he (Mr. Merrick) thought the alibi had been proved beyond a possibility of a doubt, for his presence had been proven in Elmira by as respectable witnesses as were brought upon the stand. In reference to the belief in a witness, a juror believes a man or does not believe him, according to the instincts of nature. Mr. Stewart fixes Surratt in Elmira; the jury heard Carroll's testimony, and that witness has not been contradicted. A witness was called to contradict Carroll, but instead of contradicting he confirms him. Mr. Atkinson and Mr. Cass testify in the manner of unmistakable truth to Surratt's presence in Elmira. Mr. Cass positively identifies Surratt as being in Elmira on the 15th. He said he positively recognized him, not by his face only, but by his voice, action, deportment and manner. Three witnesses for the defence do not swear to features, but they recognize him from action, conversation and manner. As to Dr. Bissell, throw his testimony out if you choose, and throw him to the other side, where he can find congenial witness, and Surratt's presence in Elmira is still proven. Another circumstance is worthy of consideration. All these Elmira witnesses for the defence identify the peculiar coat worn by Surratt, and we show that the coat was made in Montreal, and we find him wearing the coat in Elmira, and on his return to Elmira the prosecution shows him to be there in that identical coat. No witness for the prosecution sees him in the coat, except Montgomery and Drohan. Having then shown that Surratt was not there, that Surratt had no conversation with Booth from April 7, 1865, to the present time, it is a circumstance to show that he was not in the conspiracy to kill, and he did not leave Montreal on Booth's mandate. McMillan says that Surratt told him that Booth surrendered him because the plan was changed. What plan? Is it shown what plan was changed? There was to be change of plan, but is it shown what plan was changed? McMillan's testimony must be taken with great allowance, for he sees the reward glittering in the distance, and he acknowledges that he is entitled to the reward if any reward is to be given. It must be remembered, also, in McMillan's testimony, that he falsified about the receipt given to Mr. Boucher. In considering McMillan's testimony, that of Cameron must be taken with it. Mr. Merrick read Cameron's testimony to show that McMillan was contradicted. There are certain circumstances that may justify the jury in believing there was a plan to abduct. But it must be remembered that the President was not killed in a scheme to abduct, and the killing showed a new conspiracy with which the parties to the conspiracy to abduct had nothing to do. But the prosecution says that Cameron is not to be believed, and they bring witnesses to discredit him; but they say he is not to be believed because he has rebel sympathies, and this question has been gone into to prove a character for veracity. He (Mr. Merrick) was not a secessionist and never was, but he feared the end of the rebellion, because he saw a spirit in the distance that actuated the dominant party and that would tear down the principles of the Constitution, and he was not mistaken, for that party is now endeavoring to tear down the President in order that they might get at the Constitution. He did not defend the high treason of the South, but there were as honorable men South as there were North. Now that peace has come, and he saw treason in peace, blotting out nine States; he sorrowed more for his country than he did during all the dark days of the war. He did not despair that eventually all would come right, for the bad could not triumph. But that peace may come early let us abandon the spirit of recrimination, and abandon the opinion that a Southern man cannot tell the truth. Such recrimination and recrimination is neither patriotic, or just, or Christian.

But let us see if there was any conspiracy to be abandoned. They first found a conspiracy in April, 1864, but three men standing upon the street corner, and then Mrs. Hudspeth finds some letters, which is again tortured into an evidence of conspiracy to murder by pistol, dagger or poison, and much is made of the fact that Herold was then an apothecary's clerk, when it is shown that he never put up but one prescription.

There is no evidence then that Surratt ever knew Booth. Booth had at that time never been at Mrs. Surratt's house. But they say Surratt furnished the arms and put them away at T. B. and at Surrattsville. Now what does all that amount to? Here were a number of young men who earnestly sympathized with the South; they may have helped people across the river, and the arms may have been there for their protection. There may have been a plan even to abduct, and if it had been attempted, the men engaged in it would have been, no doubt, executed. But it might have been an act of war. It has passed into history that there were Confederate prisoners North and Federal prisoners South, who were starving, and that the North was to blame for a non-exchange of prisoners, and there might have been a wild scheme to abduct Mr. Lincoln—not to kill him, but to force an exchange. He (Mr. Merrick) did not blame Lincoln for the non-exchange of prisoner, and he could pass as high an encomium upon him as Carrington. But much is made, also, of the fact that Surratt owned horses, and this it is argued is evidence of a conspiracy. But when was the conspiracy to kill formed? Booth's diary settles that thing definitely and conclusively, and shows that the plan was formed on that very day Richmond had fallen and the Confederacy was passing away. Booth, with an inflamed mind, saw what he had loved passing away, and he then alone conceived the idea of murder; as the diary plainly shows; and there is no evidence that the conspiracy was formed an hour before the time specified in the diary. The gentleman cannot get rid of the testimony in the diary, and you must take the formation of the conspiracy as from Booth, who was the only man who could give any information on the subject. Booth says he wrote a letter for the Intelligencer. Where is that letter? The defence wanted to get its declaration in, but the Court ruled it out, as he (Mr. Merrick) thought, wrongfully. For what motive could Booth have had to tell a lie at that time? The diary must be taken as evidence, and it makes a case too plain to resist. But they still claim a verdict! Who claims a verdict in this case? He (Mr. M.) saw two parts in this case: one was the Government of the United States, represented by the District Attorney; the Attorney General represents the United States, and why is not the Assistant Attorney General here?

Mr. Pierrepont said if an answer was wanted he would say yes.

Mr. Bradley asked if Mr. Pierrepont represented the Attorney General?

Mr. Pierrepont said he did.

Mr. Merrick said he thought it different, but why was it necessary to employ additional counsel, and what was behind all this?

Mr. Merrick here referred to some remarks made by Mr. Pierrepont early in the trial, in which he said the trial would set at rest reports about certain individuals, and it was promised that records would be produced. Where are these records? They were brought here once and were withdrawn. Why was this? Did they find at the end of the record a recommendation to mercy for Mrs. Surratt, which the President never saw? Would that record have shown that access was denied the President. Can the scene of that day ever be forgotten?—Daughter and philanthropist went to the Executive mansion to ask a respite for Mrs. Surratt, and access was denied. Mr. Merrick depicted the visit of Anna Surratt to the President, whom she was denied access; and he asked, who stood in the way? Does the conscience of the Secretary of War, or the head of the Bureau of Military Justice, now check them? Or is it true that one who protested against that interview now sleeps in the waters of the Hudson, and that another blew his brains out in Kansas? Was there not something behind this case? It is not known that in the Lower House of Congress public accusations were brought against the Secretary of War and Mr. Bingham and others? What has the Bureau of Military Justice to do with this case? And yet Judge Holt takes a deep interest in this case. The Bureau of Military Justice is a part of the Executive Department, and yet he has been manipulating the witnesses in this case. Why all this? Judge Holt has certainly lost his discretion in this pursuit.

In compliance Mr. Merrick contended that the Bureau of Military Justice knew of the falsification of much of this evidence, and withheld it from this court. Mr. Carrington, too, has torn the very cement of the grave and brought Mrs. Surratt here for trial. It is not enough to try the living? or, will the prosecution act the gnome and tear the corpse from the grave and hang it also? Mrs. Surratt is here and her presence has been felt. It is present always with Judge Holt, and he cannot bid the spirit down, and when they come to stand before the bar of God, Mrs. Surratt will then appear against Judge Holt. Mr. Carrington had said the members of the Military Commission were denounced as murderers. Not so! He (Mr. Merrick) did not denounce the Commission, although that court was declared illegal, but he did denounce the men who stood behind and who suppressed material facts, and would not let the diary be known. They prove the tooth-pick and the spur, but not the diary; and now they bring the diary to commit another murder; and now will the prosecution try the dead as well as the living? A priest was put upon the stand, and he said: I gave Mrs. Surratt the consolation of religion. He was not permitted to say what Mrs. Surratt said. Tittering to the scaffold between two priests, with the world behind her and eternity before her, and her lord of guilt laid at the feet of her Saviour, why was not her declaration admitted? Did they fear she would lie? No! but hard of heart, reckless of guilt, and indifferent of justice, they would not let her voice be heard. But still it falls upon their ears, that voice of the woman in a nameless grave, whose very body has been refused to a pleading daughter. But the District Attorney says that Surratt fled, and light is an evidence of guilt; and it is said he deserted his mother. He did not know his mother's extremity until after she was hung, or about that time. Flight in Surratt's case was no confession, for under the circumstances, Mr. Merrick argued, any man would have fled, as power had snatched the place of the courts of justice.

In this trial, Mr. Merrick said some allusion had been made to the Catholic Church in connection with the trial, and he proceeded to defend that church from the accusations that had been brought against her. That church, he contended, taught obedience to authority, and the good faith of that church was evinced when the Pope and Cardinal Antonelli gave up Surratt at the demand of this government. The Catholic Church is on the side of mercy. It protects the fleeing criminal when he is believed to be innocent, but it gives him up when a presumption of guilt is raised. The District Attorney asked the jury to vindicate the loyalty of this district by a verdict of guilty. He (Mr. Merrick) asked them to be loyal, but loyal to the Constitution and to their own consciences. There had been blood enough shed in this country, and it was now time that the flow had ceased. No man had a greater horror of the crime that resulted in the murder of Abraham Lincoln than himself. Already four had been hung and others are suffering. Three years ago there was in this city a happy household. There sat a mother, and a sister just budding into womanhood, and beside them a young man just reaching manhood. He would have the jury remember the changes that have come over that scene. The bright fire is extinguished; the mother sleeps in a nameless grave; the daughter, burdened and broken-hearted, drags out a wretched life, and the son is here before you on trial for his life. May Almighty God so guide your judgment and enlighten your convictions that the remembrance of the day and of your verdict may hereafter be forever be a sweet and pleasant recollection. I thank you gentlemen for your kind attention.

Ross Winans, of Baltimore, now over seventy years of age, purchased in 1861 a farm of about 700 acres, along the banks of the Patuxent river, and about six miles from Baltimore. His land cost him $50,000; he added buildings at a cost of 20,000; his fencing cost him $3000, and he manned at an outlay of $67,000, making the total cost of his estate $120,000. During the year ending on the 1st of May, last his sales of milk amounted to $37,630 71; of cows and calves in the same period he sold $11,500 worth, and had fifteen or twenty more animals on hand than at the commencement of the year. He however, purchased $9098 worth of cows and heifers during the year. At the close of the year he had on hand 220 tons of hay, and a product of hay for the year was estimated at 1800 tons—a great average per acre. His stock was sold to the small grocers in Baltimore at thirty cents a gallon.

PUBLISHING COMMITTEES

FOR MOBILE CONFERENCE:

Rev. J. Hamilton, D.D.
Rev. A. H. Mitchell, D.D.
Rev. Theo. W. Dorman, D.D.

FOR MONTGOMERY CONFERENCE:

Rev. M. S. Andrews,
Rev. William A. Shagard,
Rev. J. B. Cottrell.

FOR MISSISSIPPI CONFERENCE:

Rev. W. H. Watkins, D.D.,
Rev. H. H. Montgomery,
Rev. William P. Barton.

FOR LOUISIANA CONFERENCE:

Rev. J. C. Keener, D.D.,
Rev. J. B. Walker, D.D.,
Rev. Linus Parker.

New Orleans:

SATURDAY, AUGUST 17, 1867.

How to send money.—We are frequently receiving enquiries upon this point. We have scarcely lost anything by the mails, and consider them safe. The risk at any rate will be ours.

We are still asked shall we forward money by mail? Answer, YES. The Agent will notice, as above, that the risk is not his.

To subscribers.—Any person wishing to subscribe for this paper can do so, by paying the Methodist preacher in the circuit, and forwarding to us his receipt for three dollars, with the address of the subscriber upon it, stating Post office, State, Circuit, and Conference. The receipt ought to be taken in duplicate.

Rev. John N. Hemill.

We copy the following notice of this excellent minister from the Texas Advocate. Brother Hemill was a member of the Louisiana Conference for several years, and transferred to the East Texas Conference, in December, 1851.

There is nothing truer, than that the Trinity Conference has lost one of its most valuable members; and the Methodist Church in Texas, one of its ablest, sonnetest and most efficient ministers. I am satisfied that the full worth of this minister has never been fully appreciated in Texas, though he stood high. My acquaintance with Brother Hemill commenced in 1840, at which time his connection with the Mississippi Conference (of which I was then a member,) commenced. With him, side by side, and shoulder to shoulder, I labored many toilsome years. No one knew his worth better than myself. He was sound in doctrine, and as to a correct understanding of the whole Methodist machinery, he was second to none; and he was in the fullest sense an itinerant Methodist preacher. He never attempted to travel with the "reins tied to a stump."

If all of our Methodist itinerant preachers possessed the same self-sacrificing spirit that he did, and as willing to go any where, there would be no danger that our itinerant system would ever run down. His constant example before the church, and the world was a practical comment upon the power and excellency of the gospel which he preached. He died away from home, on Saturday, the 1st day of June. His death was sudden and unexpected—was sick but a few days. He lost the proper exercise of his mind about 24 hours before his death, and before that his case was not thought to be dangerous, consequently he said nothing about dying.

Rev. Thomas Berthoff.

Dr. Schon, in a communication to the Baltimore Episcopal Methodist, announces the death of this faithful missionary.

We have received by letter from Rev. John Harrell, Superintendent of Indian Missions, the sad intelligence of the death of Rev. Thomas Berthoff, of the Indian Mission Conference. He was for more than thirty years a faithful missionary. At the time of his death he was acting as superintendent of the Asbury Manual Labor School in the Creek nation. He was a good preacher, and a most worthy and excellent man. He rests from his labors and his works follow him.

There are 3,200 miles of railroad in operation in British India.

FORGETFULNESS.

Religious forgetfulness, almost as much as faith, exhibits the intimate connection of the mental and moral in human nature, and demonstrates the weakness of mere intellect to compass spiritual ends. If it is with the heart that man believeth unto righteousness, it is equally true that the heart has much to do with the memory in its relations to the practical duties of religion. Forgetfulness in reference to these subjects is a very common and sometimes fatal infirmity. The facility of forgetting is wonderful, and can be accounted for only upon the supposition, that there is an underlying moral paralysis. "Thou hast forgotten God that formed thee," is charged against the wicked; and also, that "God is not in all his thoughts."

Habitual forgetfulness of God is a leading feature, though every object in nature is designed to remind us of his presence, power and goodness. "Without God in the world," because oblivious of His claims upon us. Fearfully and wonderfully made ourselves, and placed amidst the grandeur and glories of a universe with which the most exquisite senses bring us in continual contact, the Maker is not present to the mind, nor does the greatness of his beauty and goodness, in the varied forms of nature, awaken any corresponding emotions of gratitude and praise.

The lessons of Scripture are forgotten as easily as the voices of nature. Convictions of sin, the dangers of impenitence, the brevity of life, and the impending judgment are not long retained in the mind. The love of God in redemption, the voice of divine expostulation, and the condemnation of a rejected Gospel pass from memory as idle tales. With all the earnest solemnities of eternity before them, sinners forget God, they banish death from their thoughts, and peril everything by their neglect of this great salvation. "The fool hath said in his heart there is no God." Religious forgetfulness is temporary atheism: and there is probably very little of any other sort in the world. To the soul that loses sight of God and eternity, there is practically no God; none that is recognised, worshipped or loved.

It is the heart that says there is no God. The unbiased intellect could never utter the sentiment, and the unpurged conscience, trained under the truths of revelation, would effectually protest. The fool says it in his heart, because he wishes it to be so, and because the carnal mind is enmity against God. Hence, the unfaithfulness of memory when it has to do with spiritual things. We forget because we do not like to remember. The love and pursuit of worldly objects come in to assist in the result. There is neither time nor taste for serious religious thought; and the absorbing affairs of life, the pressing engagements, and seductive pleasures, drive out and efface all sober convictions.

This infirmity of memory may be traced in the experience and conduct of believers. Conversion exhibits a remarkable quickening of the faculty of remembering; but it is, notwithstanding, one of the prominent imperfections of the religious character. "Prone to wander," "prone to leave the God I love," is the heartfelt confession. Not the atheistical oblivion of the wicked, but a tendency to neglect and forget. In the hour of conversion God is felt to be present. "Thou God seest me," is an abiding conviction, and we endure as "seeing Him that is invisible." Self-recollection is active and complete. The powers of the mind, the passions and appetites are kept well in hand. A watch is set before the door of the lips. The duties of the new life are performed under the emotions of a fresh and powerful inspiration. But after a while there is a gradual and growing neglect of some of the duties of religion.

On examination we find that God has not been thought of for an hour, or that he has been out of our thoughts for a whole day. On referring to some plan of business, it will occur that neither while revolving it, nor while engaged in its transaction, did God cross the field of our mental vision. The Bible is not so frequently consulted, and Sabbath morning comes to remind us, that for a whole week, the dust has been gathering upon its lids. Thus of secret prayer. Easy to be remembered once as the means which led to our spiritual birth, and because, then the heart thirsted for this communion. As easily then would you have forgotten to eat your breakfast, as to have forgotten the morning devotions. You would have gone forth feeling unrefreshed, and hungering, for the daily manna. But sometimes the believer is arrested with the sudden and hidden reflection, did I pray in secret this morning? or the certainty flashes upon him, that it was altogether neglected.

The Psalmist exclaims, "If I forget thee, O Jerusalem!" and many have protested their love and devotion to the church, who have afterwards reached a painful degree of indifference. They have no spirit for,

"I love thy kingdom Lord,
The house of thine abode,
The church our blissful Redeemer bought
With his own precious blood."

With no fixed purpose of forsaking the assembling of ourselves together, and with no intention of going away from the ordinances of God, we are constantly forgetting these most binding engagements. In the material outward business of the church there is this laxness of memory. Where there is no purpose to evade the claim upon time, labor and money, there is a singular want of consideration. The fact becomes strange almost to mysteriousness when we think of the circumstances which are ever present to remind us of our duty in the premises.

Forgetfulness then as a religious phenomenon forces itself upon our attention, and calls for a distinct notice, both as it exhibits itself in the unregenerate soul, and as it stands amongst the infirmities and declensions of the religious life. We shall not fail to call up in this connection the forgetfulness of the disciples whilst they were yet with the Master on earth—the facility with which the impression of the miracle of the loaves was lost, and how this dullness, clung to them till after the resurrection. The spirit was promised, and that he should bring all things to their remembrance. No doubt it is to help this, amongst other infirmities, that he is given.

To meet this trait of our fallen nature, the precepts, promises, and ordinances of revelation are wisely adapted. The presence of symbols and types and monuments serve to remind—to help men to remember. There is reiteration of truth, "line upon line, precept upon precept; here a little and there a little." The Lord's Supper is commemorative. "In remembrance of me," and "ye do show forth the Lord's death till he come." The forgetful hearer is contrasted with the doer. The "pure mind" is stirred up "by way of remembrance," and the aged Apostle is solicitous that believers "may have these things always in remembrance."

This is one of the important uses of the means of grace, prayer, reading the Bible, and attendance upon the ministry. If no other benefit were in them, this alone would justify and commend their use. The pulpit is brought out in one of its chief functions. Not to deal in novelties, nor to emasculate its strength by far fetched variety, but to warn, and to remind people of what they already know. The vital doctrines of salvation must be stated and restated; the danger of sinners must be portrayed over and over again, and the daily duties of practical life and religion must be persistently insisted upon. The test of a sermon is not always, that you have heard something you did not know before, but that some forgotten truth, some neglected duty has been recalled, and has been freshly and pungently sent home to the conscience.

NEWS ABOUT HOME.

Some people were surprised to see the statement in last week's paper that there were seventy-nine deaths from yellow fever for the previous week. We wrote nine, and so it was. Generally we let typographical errors alone, as they are equal to italics and exclamations in arresting the readers' attention: but in this instance a correction is necessary. For the week ending Saturday, August 10, there were 174 deaths, showing an increase of 35 over last week—of these, 14 were of cholera and 14 of yellow fever. During Sunday and Monday there were 7 deaths of yellow fever. On Tuesday, the 13th, there were 67 deaths, of which 5 were of yellow fever, and 1 of cholera. It will be seen that there is considerable increase in the mortality, and that the deaths from yellow fever this week will not be less than 40, or rather more than four times the number of the week ending August 10th.

The Texas Advocate speaks of the prevalence of the fever in Galveston, and of some of the employees of the office being down with it. The disease has abated at Indianola, but has broken out at other points—very badly at Corpus Christi, among other places. Some doubt existed last week about the nature of the disease prevailing in New Iberia, La. It proves to be the yellow fever of a malignant type, said to have been introduced from New Orleans. This is a country village of a few hundred inhabitants, in the most beautiful and salubrious section of the Attakapas. As many as five deaths a day are reported and a hundred cases under treatment. Nurses, supplies, and physicians, have been sent from this city.

Military politics have excited some interest this week. Stanton has been suspended, but General Sheridan has not been removed. It makes but little difference, as we might fare worse, and the past is not likely to be undone by any one who may succeed him. The newly appointed Council have passed a resolution turning out the School Board. This action awaits the Mayor's approval, and after that, the removal will scarcely be effected, without orders from headquarters. This action is supposed to look to the mixing up of whites and blacks in the same school rooms and classes; and also to a discriminating election of teachers. We infer there is to be a general weeding out. Every thing that has money in it, or patronage or power is to be republicanized.

Such a cry of worms has never been heard since the Cotton plant has flourished. The papers are full of these reports, and it is not all smoke. We certainly know of several neighborhoods where the fields are stripped and are as brown and dead as after a November frost. There are some planters who will hardly make a hat-full to the acre. We notice accounts of the worm in some parts of Alabama and Mississippi; whilst no section of Louisiana has escaped. The crop is destroyed in some parts of Texas, and in other parts of that State the worm has not yet appeared. The average crop must be greatly reduced. The cotton is late for the season and the worm is early. In some localities planters are discharging the laborers. Having no crop to gather, they are unable to pay or feed them.

Tourette.—A poor little girl in the Fourth ward, New York, as she was dying, said: "I am glad I am going to die, because now my brothers and sisters will have enough to eat."

What a revelation of privations and suffering are revealed in this sad saying of the child.

It is stated that by combining ammonia with gun-cotton its liability to spontaneous combustion is removed without injuring its explosive qualities.

Removal of Stanton.

We publish below the correspondence and orders in this important transaction.

WASHINGTON, August 12. — The following is a copy in full, of the correspondence of to-day, between the President, Mr. Stanton, and Gen. Grant:

EXECUTIVE MANSION, WASHINGTON, D. C., August 12, 1867.

Sir—By virtue of the power and authority vested in me, as President, by the Constitution and laws of the United States, you are hereby suspended from office as Secretary of War, and will cease to exercise any and all functions pertaining to the same. You will at once transfer to General Ulysses S. Grant, who has this day been authorized and empowered to act as Secretary of War ad interim, all records, books, papers and other public property now in your custody and charge.

Very respectfully yours,

ANDREW JOHNSON.

To the Hon. E. M. Stanton, Washington, D. C.

WAR DEPARTMENT,

WASHINGTON CITY, Aug. 12, '67.

Sir—Your note of this date has been received, informing me that by virtue of the power and authority vested in you, as President, by the Constitution and laws of the United States, I am suspended from office as Secretary of War, and will cease to exercise any and all functions pertaining to the same, and also directing me at once to transfer to Gen. Ulysses S. Grant, who has this day been authorized and empowered to act as Secretary of War ad interim, all records, books, papers, and other public property now in my custody and charge. Under a sense of public duty, I am compelled to deny your right under the Constitution and laws of the United States, without the advice and consent of the Senate, and without legal cause, to suspend me from office as Secretary of War, or the exercise of any or all functions pertaining to the same, or without such advice and consent to compel me to transfer to any person the records, books, papers, and other public property in my custody, as Secretary of War. But inasmuch as the General commanding the armies of the United States has been appointed Secretary of War ad interim, and has notified me that he has accepted the appointment, I have no alternative but to submit, under protest, to superior force.

Very respectfully yours,

EDWIN M. STANTON,

Secretary of War.

To the President.

EXECUTIVE MANSION, WASHINGTON, D. C., August 12, 1867.

Sir—The Hon. Edwin M. Stanton having been this day suspended as Secretary of War, you are hereby authorized and empowered to act as Secretary of War ad interim, and will at once enter upon the discharge of the duties of that office.

The Secretary of War has been instructed to transfer to you all records, books, papers and other public property now in his custody and charge.

Very respectfully yours,

ANDREW JOHNSON.

To Gen. Ulysses S. Grant, Washington, D. C.

The first communication from the Executive department to General Grant, as Secretary of War ad interim, was issued to-day at 2 o'clock, and referred to Louisiana matters. The order, it is said on good authority, is in harmony with the views of the Cabinet.

Revenue receipts to-day, $1,062,000.

No further changes in the Cabinet are probable.

It is confidently stated that Holt will be suspended in a day or two from his functions as chief of the Bureau of Military Justice.

Rousseau had an interview with the Russian Minister to-day, and has received his commission and instructions as Sale Commissioner to receive the territory.

In confirmation of previous dispatches regarding the War Department, it may be stated that the details of the Commission requiring action on the report of the Secretary of War, were transacted by Gen. Grant. The Commission leaves on the 21st inst. for California, whence they will proceed to their destination in a man-of-war. After concluding the labors of the Commission Gen. Rousseau will return to Portland, Oregon, the headquarters of his department, which includes the new territory.

It would seem from the indications that the President will now push his views through. It is impossible to-night to predict the next step. The excitement in political circles is intense.

The reports regarding the President's resignation are groundless. Rousseau has arrived and will have an interview with the Russian minister to-day.

The meeting of the bar to consider the Fisher-Bradley difficulty was largely attended. A committee appointed to investigate and report on the matter, and the meeting

WASHINGTON, Aug. 13.—The President, to-day, through Gen. Grant, issued an order to Major General Sickles, instructing him that order could properly be enforced in conflict with the United States courts. This action of the Executive was based on military interference with the process of the courts. North Carolina over which Chase not long ago presided. principle asserted by the President is applicable to United States in all other States.

There was a full attendance at the Cabinet meeting to-day, including Gen. Grant as Secretary of War.

Baltimore Camp Meeting.

This large and important meeting commenced on Friday, the 2d inst. near Reisterstown, about eight miles from the city, under the superintendence of the Rev. S. Reister, Presiding Elder of the Baltimore District, and Rev. J. P. Etchings, preacher in charge of the Circuit. On Sunday the congregation said to have been the largest ever witnessed in Baltimore county, and the deepest interest was observed throughout the day. The Rev. J. Keener, of New Orleans, and Rev. J. Poisal preached to immense audiences at the regular appointments, morning and afternoon; and the Rev. Dr. Sargent, of the Virginia Conference, preached in the evening. The preparatory services at A. M., were conducted by the Rev. J. E. Carson. So great was the concourse that it was found necessary to appoint an additional preacher for those who were not able to find accommodations within the circle of the tents. The Rev. Mr. Hinton preached on the occasion, with great power and pathos. The moral effect of this meeting in the interest of Southern Methodism is a genuine simple Christianity, is incalculable. A number of converts had taken place up to the time that we go to press, and the meeting was improving in interest every step of its progress. preaching throughout has been truly evangelical—all abstract questions have been eschewed.—Baltimore E. Methodist.

IRISH WESLEYAN CONFERENCE

"Amiens," the correspondent of the Nashville Christian Advocate writes as follows of this Conference and its affairs. The Irish Wesleyan Conference has just closed its sittings under the presidency of the Rev. W. Arthur, the third Irishman who has been President of the Irish Conference. It was one of unusual interest and attraction. A large number of clerical visitors were introduced and cordially welcomed by the assembly. They were nearly all from Canada and the United States. Probationers retired from the annual work—one from ill-health and the other has emigrated to the United States. The name of the gentleman who has emigrated is Frazer; he is possessed of superior abilities, and must rise to eminence if he joins the ministry of the Methodist Episcopal Church of America. Many young men of promise have offered themselves as probationers, one of whom is a son of the late Robert Wallace. The letter of the Irish Advisory Committee of New York, signed John Elliott, Chairman, and John McKellop, Secretary, was read to the Conference, and the Conference was pleased to receive it graciously and reply to it courteously. In reference to that committee, albeit the Conference's view of their letter, we have nothing to say that we have not already stated. We see no reason to change our opinion of it. Documents of condolence from three Methodist Conferences respecting the death of Mr. Wallace, were presented to the Conference by Dr. Scott, and were graceful tributes of respect, to the memory and worth of the departed. The Rev. Robert Crook, LL.D., of Dublin, was appointed "Pastor Master" of the College in Belfast, and Mr. Arthur has been requested to become its Principal. The English Conference accedes to the request, no better selection could have been made. Dr. Crook is an excellent classical scholar, and Mr. Arthur is eminently qualified to teach theology and govern a collegiate institution.

The representatives to the English Conference are Revs. Dr. Scott, John Dwyer, and Oliver McCutcheon. The honor has been conferred upon Messrs. Dwyer and McCutcheon for the first time, but not for the first time. Mr. Dwyer is an author, and McCutcheon will be one.

July 30-67

T. LOUIS MUTUAL LIFE IN-SURANCE COMPANY.

A. JANUARY, President.
E. H. LUCAS, Vice President.
J. R. PURVIS, Agent.

UNIVERSITY.
CHAPMAN HILL, TEXAS.
Board of Trustees takes pleasure in announcing to the people of Texas and of Louisiana, the organization of South University, under the name of the following faculty:

A. M. Frost, and Prof. of Greek and Latin Languages.
A. M. Frost, and Prof. of Mathematics.
A. M. Frost, and Prof. of Biblical Literature.
A. M. Frost, and Prof. of Natural Science.
A. M. Frost, and Prof. of Propaganda Department.
A. M. Frost, and Prof. of Propaganda Department.
A. M. Frost, and Prof. of Propaganda Department.

Session of Collegiate year begins on Monday, September 1, and December 1, 1867.
The second Session opens Jan. 1, 1868.
Close last Wednesday in June.

TERMS
First term of four months.
Preparatory.....$20 00
Primary.....10 00
Secondary.....10 00
Total.....$40 00
Board can be obtained in advance at $15 per month. Tuition will be returned in cases of protraction, and in other cases, as determined by the Board.

WORTH FEMALE COLLEGE,
BROOKHAVEN, MISS.
This college will open on Wednesday, September 1, 1867.

It is a full corps of teachers; the instruction is thorough; the discipline firm and the building is large and well arranged; the location healthy; the location healthy; the location healthy.

Expenses in the Collegiate Department, tuition, books and incidentals, will not exceed $125.00 for term of year.

Undermost furnish her towels, one of each, and a sheet.

WORTH FEMALE COLLEGE,
BROOKHAVEN, MISS.
This college will open on Wednesday, September 1, 1867.

It is a full corps of teachers; the instruction is thorough; the discipline firm and the building is large and well arranged; the location healthy; the location healthy; the location healthy.

Expenses in the Collegiate Department, tuition, books and incidentals, will not exceed $125.00 for term of year.

Undermost furnish her towels, one of each, and a sheet.

WORTH FEMALE COLLEGE,
BROOKHAVEN, MISS.
This college will open on Wednesday, September 1, 1867.

It is a full corps of teachers; the instruction is thorough; the discipline firm and the building is large and well arranged; the location healthy; the location healthy; the location healthy.

Expenses in the Collegiate Department, tuition, books and incidentals, will not exceed $125.00 for term of year.

Undermost furnish her towels, one of each, and a sheet.

WORTH FEMALE COLLEGE,
BROOKHAVEN, MISS.
This college will open on Wednesday, September 1, 1867.

It is a full corps of teachers; the instruction is thorough; the discipline firm and the building is large and well arranged; the location healthy; the location healthy; the location healthy.

Expenses in the Collegiate Department, tuition, books and incidentals, will not exceed $125.00 for term of year.

Undermost furnish her towels, one of each, and a sheet.

WORTH FEMALE COLLEGE,
BROOKHAVEN, MISS.
This college will open on Wednesday, September 1, 1867.

It is a full corps of teachers; the instruction is thorough; the discipline firm and the building is large and well arranged; the location healthy; the location healthy; the location healthy.

Expenses in the Collegiate Department, tuition, books and incidentals, will not exceed $125.00 for term of year.

Undermost furnish her towels, one of each, and a sheet.

WORTH FEMALE COLLEGE,
BROOKHAVEN, MISS.
This college will open on Wednesday, September 1, 1867.

It is a full corps of teachers; the instruction is thorough; the discipline firm and the building is large and well arranged; the location healthy; the location healthy; the location healthy.

Expenses in the Collegiate Department, tuition, books and incidentals, will not exceed $125.00 for term of year.

COAL! COAL! COAL!!!
WOOD! WOOD! WOOD!!!
Yard on Josephine st. bet. Prytania & Coliseum

MR. GEO. O. BEATTY
Would inform his friends and the public generally that he is now prepared to fill orders for COAL and WOOD, and hopes, by giving his personal attention, to secure and merit their patronage.
Best ASH WOOD delivered at $10.
Best OAK.....$9.
COAL $1.
Orders left at Yard, or Price Current office, 129 Gravier street, or Peter Williams, corner Jackson and Rousseau streets, will meet with prompt attention.
nov 1 1866

RACE, FOSTER & E. T. MERRICK,
Attorneys at Law,
CORNER OF CAMP STREET and COMMERCIAL PLACE,
sept 15 ly New Orleans.

SUNDAY SCHOOL VISITOR.
112 CAMP STREET, NEW ORLEANS.
Our readers will be delighted to learn that this beautiful Sunday School Paper is to be resumed the first of January. It will be published by the S. M. Publishing House, Nashville, Tennessee, and simultaneously at 112 Camp st., in this city. Those desiring the NEW ORLEANS edition should forward immediately to Rev. R. J. HAMP, AGT., Box 814, New Orleans.

SUBSCRIPTION PRICE FOR ONE YEAR.
For Single Copies.....each 50c
For any number less than 5.....50c
For any number over 5, and less than 25, to one address.....40c
For any number over 25.....30c
Will ship by Boat, Express or Mail as directed.
Cash in Advance.

EVERY SATURDAY:
A Journal of Choice Reading, Selected From Foreign Current Literature.
This popular Weekly reproduces promptly for American readers the best and most readable portions of European periodicals. These comprise Serial Tales, Short Stories, Essays, Biographical and Descriptive, Poems, Sketches of Travel and Adventure, Literary Intelligence, and popular papers on Science, Translations from the admirable French Periodicals are a prominent feature.

Among the Periodicals from which selections are frequently made are: Once a Week, Chamberlain's Journal, All the Year Round, The Spectator, The Reader, The Athenaeum, The Examiner, The London, Saturday, and Fortnightly Review, Fraser's, Blackwood's, Macmillan's, the Victoria, Argosy, New Monthly, and London Society Magazine; Revue des Deux Mondes, L'Evénement, Le Soleil.

Among the authors represented in EVERY SATURDAY are many of the wisest and wittiest writers of Europe, as Henry Kingsley, Anthony Trollope, Matthew Arnold, Charles Kingsley, Edmund Yates, Frances Power Cobbe, Christina Rossetti, Author of "John Halifax," George Sand, Edmond About, Alexandre Dumas, M. G. de Launay, J. Ruffin, Alexandre Smith, A. C. Swinburne, Robert Buchanan, Jean Ingelow, and Miss Thackeray.

EVERY SATURDAY is intended for Town and Country, for the Fireside, the Seaside, the Railway, and the Steamboat. The Publishers wish to commend it to all classes of cultivated and intelligent readers for the freshness and variety of its contents.

EVERY SATURDAY contains weekly 40 double column large octavo pages.
Subscription, $5.00 in advance, $4.00 a year to subscribers for any other periodical published by TICKNOR and FIELDS. Monthly Parts, 50 cents a number. Yearly subscription, same as for Weekly Part.

Feb 9 TICKNOR and FIELDS,
Publishers, Boston.

BRITISH PERIODICALS.
THE LONDON QUARTERLY REVIEW (Con.)
THE EDINBURGH REVIEW (Whig).
THE WESTMINSTER REVIEW (Radical).
THE NORTH BRITISH REVIEW (Free Church)
AND
BLACKWOOD'S EDINBURGH MAGAZINE (Tory).

These foreign periodicals are regularly published by us in the same style as heretofore. Those who know them and who have long subscribed to them, need no reminder; those who the civil war of the last few years has deprived of their once welcome supply of the best periodical literature, will be glad to have them re-introduced to their reach; and those who have never yet had met with them, will assuredly be well pleased to receive accredited reports of the progress of European science and literature.

TERMS FOR 1867.
For any one of the Reviews.....$4 per annum
For any two of the Reviews.....7
For any three of the Reviews.....10
For all four of the Reviews.....12
For Blackwood's Magazine.....4
For Blackwood and one Review.....7
For Blackwood and any two of the Reviews.....10
For Blackwood and all four Reviews.....13
For Blackwood and the 4 Reviews.....15

Clubs.
A discount of twenty per cent. will be allowed to clubs of four or more persons. Thus, four copies of Blackwood, or of one Review, will be sent to one address for $12.00. Four copies of the four Reviews and Blackwood, for $48.00, and so on.

Postage.
When sent by mail, the postage to any part of the United States will be but Twenty-four Cents a year for "Blackwood," and but Eight Cents a year for each of the Reviews.

PREMIUMS TO NEW SUBSCRIBERS.
New Subscribers to any two of the above periodicals for 1867 will be entitled to receive, gratis, any one of the Four Reviews for 1866. New Subscribers to all five of the Periodicals for 1867 will receive, gratis, Blackwood or any two of the "Four Reviews" for 1866.

These premiums will be allowed on all new subscriptions received before April 1, 1867. Subscribers may also obtain back numbers at the following reduced rates, viz: The North British from January, 1863, to December, 1866, inclusive; the Edinburgh and the Westminster from April, 1864 to December, 1866, inclusive; and the London Quarterly for the years 1865 and 1866, at the rate of $1.50 a year for each or any Review; also Blackwood for 1866, for $2.50.

Neither premiums to Subscribers, nor discount to Clubs, nor reduced prices for back numbers, can be allowed, unless the money is remitted direct to the Publishers.

No premiums can be given to Clubs.
The Leonard Scott Publishing Co.,
38 Walker street, N. Y.

The L. S. P. CO. also publish the FARMER'S GUIDE,
by HENRY STEPHENS, of Edinburgh, and the late J. P. NORRIS, of Yale College. 2 vols., Royal Octavo, 1860 pages, and numerous Engravings.
Price, $7 for the two volumes—by Mail, post paid, $8.

FOLGER & CO.,
Dealers in
Hardware, Iron, & Ship Chandlery,
67 & 69 MAGAZINE STREET, NEW ORLEANS.
(Opposite the St. James Hotel)

Nails and Castings; Loop, Sheet and Bar Iron, Shovel and Spade; Sheet Copper and Zinc; Plow, Ax and Hoe; Lead Pipe and Sheet Lead; India Rubber Belling; Hoss and Packing; Circular, Mill and Cross Cut Saws.
aug 15 ly

FOLGER & CO.,
Dealers in
Hardware, Iron, & Ship Chandlery,
67 & 69 MAGAZINE STREET, NEW ORLEANS.
(Opposite the St. James Hotel)

Nails and Castings; Loop, Sheet and Bar Iron, Shovel and Spade; Sheet Copper and Zinc; Plow, Ax and Hoe; Lead Pipe and Sheet Lead; India Rubber Belling; Hoss and Packing; Circular, Mill and Cross Cut Saws.
aug 15 ly

FOLGER & CO.,
Dealers in
Hardware, Iron, & Ship Chandlery,
67 & 69 MAGAZINE STREET, NEW ORLEANS.
(Opposite the St. James Hotel)

Nails and Castings; Loop, Sheet and Bar Iron, Shovel and Spade; Sheet Copper and Zinc; Plow, Ax and Hoe; Lead Pipe and Sheet Lead; India Rubber Belling; Hoss and Packing; Circular, Mill and Cross Cut Saws.
aug 15 ly

FOLGER & CO.,
Dealers in
Hardware, Iron, & Ship Chandlery,
67 & 69 MAGAZINE STREET, NEW ORLEANS.
(Opposite the St. James Hotel)

HOMOPATHIC PHARMACY.
RICHARD ANGELL,
166 1/2 street, bet. Camp and St. Charles PURE AND FINE MEDICINES.
Cases, Books, Cerates, &c.
Chill Drops, the best curative known for Ague, Bilious Fever, &c.; Bardot's Worm Drops, and other approved Remedies for domestic practice

DR. JOHN G. ANGELL,
(Graduate of the Philadelphia Dental College.)
Has established himself at No 100 Carondelet street, near Poydras, where he will perform all Dental Operations in a skillful and satisfactory manner. Teeth inserted upon Gold or Vulcanite base. Being familiar with all Anesthetics, he will extract teeth without pain, by the use of such as best suits the case. Particular attention given to the medical and surgical treatment of diseases of the mouth and teeth.
oc 27 ly

COAL OIL AND LAMPS.
HILL & VEAZIE,
Having removed from No 31 Chartres street to No 74 Camp street, have received large additions to their former stock, making their assortment of Coal Oil Lamps, and all the articles needful to use with them, very extensive; together with COAL OIL CHANDELIERS from two to six lights, suitable for Lighting Churches, large Halls, Parlors, etc.; and every variety of Lamps, from the small Hand to the large Stove. FISHER'S PATENT COOKING LAMPS for coal oil and gas, very useful and economical; also EDIE'S COOKING STOVES, assorted sizes, heated by coal oil; with many other useful and convenient articles.
Always on hand the best Kerosene and Coal Oil manufactured.
Call and examine.
HILL & VEAZIE,
No 74 Camp street,
nly Between Natchez street and Times Office

ST JAMES HOTEL,
MAGAZINE STREET.
Between Gravier and Natchez Streets,
NEW ORLEANS, LA.
CHAS. E. SNEDES,.....Manager.

This establishment is now open for the reception of guests.
It is newly furnished from the Kitchen to the roof. Spring Beds, Hair Mattresses, Linen Sheet, etc. The Furniture and Table Ware all new, of the latest style and most costly material. The Table is furnished with every luxury to suit the taste of the most fastidious, and the comforts and pleasures of a home, as far as possible, guaranteed to its Guests.
The House itself may be said to be entirely new, and fresh. The undersigned will spare neither labor nor expense to merit a continuance of the liberal support with which he has thus far been honored.
CHAS. E. SNEDES.
13 ly

CARPET WAREHOUSE,
17 Chartres Street,
Lately received Carpeting of all kinds and qualities; Floor Oil Cloth of all qualities, which we cut to suit rooms; Curtains Materials, Lace Sand, Edmond About, Alexandre Dumas, M. G. de Launay, J. Ruffin, Alexandre Smith, A. C. Swinburne, Robert Buchanan, Jean Ingelow, and Miss Thackeray.

EVERY SATURDAY is intended for Town and Country, for the Fireside, the Seaside, the Railway, and the Steamboat. The Publishers wish to commend it to all classes of cultivated and intelligent readers for the freshness and variety of its contents.

EVERY SATURDAY contains weekly 40 double column large octavo pages.
Subscription, $5.00 in advance, $4.00 a year to subscribers for any other periodical published by TICKNOR and FIELDS. Monthly Parts, 50 cents a number. Yearly subscription, same as for Weekly Part.

Feb 9 TICKNOR and FIELDS,
Publishers, Boston.

BRITISH PERIODICALS.
THE LONDON QUARTERLY REVIEW (Con.)
THE EDINBURGH REVIEW (Whig).
THE WESTMINSTER REVIEW (Radical).
THE NORTH BRITISH REVIEW (Free Church)
AND
BLACKWOOD'S EDINBURGH MAGAZINE (Tory).

These foreign periodicals are regularly published by us in the same style as heretofore. Those who know them and who have long subscribed to them, need no reminder; those who the civil war of the last few years has deprived of their once welcome supply of the best periodical literature, will be glad to have them re-introduced to their reach; and those who have never yet had met with them, will assuredly be well pleased to receive accredited reports of the progress of European science and literature.

TERMS FOR 1867.
For any one of the Reviews.....$4 per annum
For any two of the Reviews.....7
For any three of the Reviews.....10
For all four of the Reviews.....12
For Blackwood's Magazine.....4
For Blackwood and one Review.....7
For Blackwood and any two of the Reviews.....10
For Blackwood and all four Reviews.....13
For Blackwood and the 4 Reviews.....15

Clubs.
A discount of twenty per cent. will be allowed to clubs of four or more persons. Thus, four copies of Blackwood, or of one Review, will be sent to one address for $12.00. Four copies of the four Reviews and Blackwood, for $48.00, and so on.

Postage.
When sent by mail, the postage to any part of the United States will be but Twenty-four Cents a year for "Blackwood," and but Eight Cents a year for each of the Reviews.

PREMIUMS TO NEW SUBSCRIBERS.
New Subscribers to any two of the above periodicals for 1867 will be entitled to receive, gratis, any one of the Four Reviews for 1866. New Subscribers to all five of the Periodicals for 1867 will receive, gratis, Blackwood or any two of the "Four Reviews" for 1866.

These premiums will be allowed on all new subscriptions received before April 1, 1867. Subscribers may also obtain back numbers at the following reduced rates, viz: The North British from January, 1863, to December, 1866, inclusive; the Edinburgh and the Westminster from April, 1864 to December, 1866, inclusive; and the London Quarterly for the years 1865 and 1866, at the rate of $1.50 a year for each or any Review; also Blackwood for 1866, for $2.50.

Neither premiums to Subscribers, nor discount to Clubs, nor reduced prices for back numbers, can be allowed, unless the money is remitted direct to the Publishers.

No premiums can be given to Clubs.
The Leonard Scott Publishing Co.,
38 Walker street, N. Y.

The L. S. P. CO. also publish the FARMER'S GUIDE,
by HENRY STEPHENS, of Edinburgh, and the late J. P. NORRIS, of Yale College. 2 vols., Royal Octavo, 1860 pages, and numerous Engravings.
Price, $7 for the two volumes—by Mail, post paid, $8.

FOLGER & CO.,
Dealers in
Hardware, Iron, & Ship Chandlery,
67 & 69 MAGAZINE STREET, NEW ORLEANS.
(Opposite the St. James Hotel)

Nails and Castings; Loop, Sheet and Bar Iron, Shovel and Spade; Sheet Copper and Zinc; Plow, Ax and Hoe; Lead Pipe and Sheet Lead; India Rubber Belling; Hoss and Packing; Circular, Mill and Cross Cut Saws.
aug 15 ly

FOLGER & CO.,
Dealers in
Hardware, Iron, & Ship Chandlery,
67 & 69 MAGAZINE STREET, NEW ORLEANS.
(Opposite the St. James Hotel)

Nails and Castings; Loop, Sheet and Bar Iron, Shovel and Spade; Sheet Copper and Zinc; Plow, Ax and Hoe; Lead Pipe and Sheet Lead; India Rubber Belling; Hoss and Packing; Circular, Mill and Cross Cut Saws.
aug 15 ly

FOLGER & CO.,
Dealers in
Hardware, Iron, & Ship Chandlery,
67 & 69 MAGAZINE STREET, NEW ORLEANS.
(Opposite the St. James Hotel)

Nails and Castings; Loop, Sheet and Bar Iron, Shovel and Spade; Sheet Copper and Zinc; Plow, Ax and Hoe; Lead Pipe and Sheet Lead; India Rubber Belling; Hoss and Packing; Circular, Mill and Cross Cut Saws.
aug 15 ly

FOLGER & CO.,
Dealers in
Hardware, Iron, & Ship Chandlery,
67 & 69 MAGAZINE STREET, NEW ORLEANS.
(Opposite the St. James Hotel)

Nails and Castings; Loop, Sheet and Bar Iron, Shovel and Spade; Sheet Copper and Zinc; Plow, Ax and Hoe; Lead Pipe and Sheet Lead; India Rubber Belling; Hoss and Packing; Circular, Mill and Cross Cut Saws.
aug 15 ly

FOLGER & CO.,
Dealers in
Hardware, Iron, & Ship Chandlery,
67 & 69 MAGAZINE STREET, NEW ORLEANS.
(Opposite the St. James Hotel)

E. GIQUEL,
Wholesale and Retail Dealer in FOREIGN, FANCY AND STAPLE
DRY GOODS.

Also, a large and varied supply of HOUSEKEEPING and PLANTATION GOODS,
Constantly on hand, at 180 Canal Street,
sept 1 ly NEW ORLEANS.

S. ANDERSON, PHOTOGRAPHER
And PHOTOGRAPHIC STOCK DEALER,
61 Camp street, New Orleans.
Cartes de Visite,
Halogtypes, Ambrotypes,
Pictures on Porcelain,
And every description of Pictures known to the Art.
All kinds of Photographic Materials at the lowest price for cash.
sept 1 ly

J. A. BRASELMAN & CO.,
Wholesale and Retail Dealers in
FOREIGN & DOMESTIC DRY GOODS
Possess great facilities for buying goods cheap which enables them to sell below market prices.
Special attention given to orders.
Nos. 586 and 588 Magazine Street,
Corner of St. Andrew Street,
oct 6 ly NEW ORLEANS.

NEW CARPETS.
L. ELKIN,
Carondelet Street.
Has just received from England, per steam ship Luxor, a large assortment of superior
WILTON, BRUSSELS, TAPESTRY & INGRAIN
CARPETS
WINDOW SHADES,
CORNICES,
OIL CLOTHS,
And a complete assortment of Curtain Material such as Brocades, Satin de Laines, all-Wool Damasks, etc., with corresponding Trimmings.
oct 13 ly

HORTER, PETERSON & FENNER
(Sign of the Black Horse).
MANUFACTURERS OF SADDLES, HARNESS, AND TRUNKS
Importers of Saddlery & Coach Hardware
7 MAGAZINE STREET, NEW ORLEANS.
oct 2 ly

NEW BOOKS.
BRANCH
Southern Methodist Publishing House
113 CAMP STREET,
NEW ORLEANS.

"INTRODUCTION OF PROTESTANTISM INTO MISSISSIPPI AND THE SOUTH WEST;" by J. G. Jones $1 25
AN APPEAL TO ALL CHRISTIANS, ESPECIALLY TO MEMBERS OF THE M. E. CHURCH, AGAINST THE PRACTICE OF SOCIAL DANCING; by Rev J. G. Jones 30c
THE BISHOP'S COUNCIL, WITH REMINISCENCES OF AN ANNUAL CONFERENCE; by an Ex President of the Conference 10c
PHILOSOPHY OF CHURCH HISTORY FROM THE TIMES OF CHRIST TILL THE PRESENT; by J. Ditzler $2 00
SUNDAY SCHOOL COLLECTING CARDS, with Instructions for using, in PACKS of 100, at $1 00 per pack. By mail $1 25
NEW ENGLISH GRAMMAR by John L. Spencer, Late Principal of the "Floridian Academy" Greensburg, La. Msslin $1 00
mch 23

"ALBERT NYANZA; Or, the Great Basin of the Nile." Baker $3 00
Superior Muslim, Gleanings $3 00
ST. ELMO; from Miss Augusta Evans $1 50
BILL ARP $1 50
PHOTOGRAPHIC FAMILY BIBLE: Quarto; Roman, Gilt, Acrotypha, Extensive Concordance, Psalmine, Rhymed, Family Register, with an ALBUM FOR FAMILY PHOTOGRAPHS. 10 00
KITTO'S BIBLICAL CYCLOPEDIA; Greatly enlarged, beautifully illustrated, 31 large Vols., Cloth. 25 00
Full assortment of Southern Methodist Hymns, Sunday School and Miscellaneous Books.
Catalogues sent to all who request it.
Address: R. J. HARP, Agent,
112 Camp street, New Orleans.
feb 2

TURNER & COHEN,
Photograph and Fine Art Gallery,
No. 57 CAMP STREET.

Trusting that the liberal patronage of our friends and the public will continue, we have engaged the services of M. E. M. HOWELL, an operator who cannot be surpassed for skillful and artistic ability. Our artist, Mr. REICHMAN, is second to none in the country.
These gentlemen, with many others for our business, have lately arrived from New York, and we are now prepared to make pictures from the smallest miniature on your watch dial to full life size portraits.
The public are invited to call and make a critical examination for themselves of the many specimens we have of well known citizens of this city.
oct 13 ly

W. C. SHEPARD, A. T. ABBOTT, ROBT C. HUTCHINSON
SHEPARD, ABBOTT & CO.,
No. 35 Camp street, New Orleans,
Nearly opposite Pienyune Office.

CROCKERY AND GLASS WARE,
PLATED WARE,
House Furnishing Goods,
AND KITCHEN WARE.

We beg leave to inform our friends and the public in general, that we have on hand a large and well selected stock of the above goods, and are constantly receiving them directly from the manufacturers in France, England, and the United States; and we flatter ourselves that we can sell our goods as low as any house in the city. For variety in the house-furnishing line, our stock is unequalled in the South.
Call in and see for yourself before purchasing elsewhere.
SHEPARD, ABBOTT & CO.,
55 Camp street, New Orleans.
sept 2 ly

J. W. BLACKMAN'S COMMERCIAL COLLEGE,
230 Canal Street, Entrance on Carondelet Street, Open day and evening the entire year. Permanent circulation embracing all the Territories and all the States except three of the North-Eastern. Engaged by this gentleman every exertion to make the Magazine more attractive and more useful. The services of some of the most talented writers of the country have been secured; and no article will be published, which has not real substantial merit. Engravings and Illustrations will be introduced.
The Magazine aims to preserve a record of the heroism and endurance, the wit and humor of the Southern soldiery.
PUBLISHED IN CHARLOTTE, N. C.
By Hill, Irwin & Co.,
Terms: Three dollars a year in advance. One dollar and a half for six months. Specimen copies twenty-five cents each. Subscriptions can be dated back, if desired.

J. W. BLACKMAN'S COMMERCIAL COLLEGE,
230 Canal Street, Entrance on Carondelet Street, Open day and evening the entire year. Permanent circulation embracing all the Territories and all the States except three of the North-Eastern. Engaged by this gentleman every exertion to make the Magazine more attractive and more useful. The services of some of the most talented writers of the country have been secured; and no article will be published, which has not real substantial merit. Engravings and Illustrations will be introduced.
The Magazine aims to preserve a record of the heroism and endurance, the wit and humor of the Southern soldiery.
PUBLISHED IN CHARLOTTE, N. C.
By Hill, Irwin & Co.,
Terms: Three dollars a year in advance. One dollar and a half for six months. Specimen copies twenty-five cents each. Subscriptions can be dated back, if desired.

J. W. BLACKMAN'S COMMERCIAL COLLEGE,
230 Canal Street, Entrance on Carondelet Street, Open day and evening the entire year. Permanent circulation embracing all the Territories and all the States except three of the North-Eastern. Engaged by this gentleman every exertion to make the Magazine more attractive and more useful. The services of some of the most talented writers of the country have been secured; and no article will be published, which has not real substantial merit. Engravings and Illustrations will be introduced.
The Magazine aims to preserve a record of the heroism and endurance, the wit and humor of the Southern soldiery.
PUBLISHED IN CHARLOTTE, N. C.
By Hill, Irwin & Co.,
Terms: Three dollars a year in advance. One dollar and a half for six months. Specimen copies twenty-five cents each. Subscriptions can be dated back, if desired.

J. W. BLACKMAN'S COMMERCIAL COLLEGE,
230 Canal Street, Entrance on Carondelet Street, Open day and evening the entire year. Permanent circulation embracing all the Territories and all the States except three of the North-Eastern. Engaged by this gentleman every exertion to make the Magazine more attractive and more useful. The services of some of the most talented writers of the country have been secured; and no article will be published, which has not real substantial merit. Engravings and Illustrations will be introduced.
The Magazine aims to preserve a record of the heroism and endurance, the wit and humor of the Southern soldiery.
PUBLISHED IN CHARLOTTE, N. C.
By Hill, Irwin & Co.,
Terms: Three dollars a year in advance. One dollar and a half for six months. Specimen copies twenty-five cents each. Subscriptions can be dated back, if desired.

J. W. BLACKMAN'S COMMERCIAL COLLEGE,
230 Canal Street, Entrance on Carondelet Street, Open day and evening the entire year. Permanent circulation embracing all the Territories and all the States except three of the North-Eastern. Engaged by this gentleman every exertion to make the Magazine more attractive and more useful. The services of some of the most talented writers of the country have been secured; and no article will be published, which has not real substantial merit. Engravings and Illustrations will be introduced.
The Magazine aims to preserve a record of the heroism and endurance, the wit and humor of the Southern soldiery.
PUBLISHED IN CHARLOTTE, N. C.
By Hill, Irwin & Co.,
Terms: Three dollars a year in advance. One dollar and a half for six months. Specimen copies twenty-five cents each. Subscriptions can be dated back, if desired.

J. W. BLACKMAN'S COMMERCIAL COLLEGE,
230 Canal Street, Entrance on Carondelet Street, Open day and evening the entire year. Permanent circulation embracing all the Territories and all the States except three of the North-Eastern. Engaged by this gentleman every exertion to make the Magazine more attractive and more useful. The services of some of the most talented writers of the country have been secured; and no article will be published, which has not real substantial merit. Engravings and Illustrations will be introduced.
The Magazine aims to preserve a record of the heroism and endurance, the wit and humor of the Southern soldiery.
PUBLISHED IN CHARLOTTE, N. C.
By Hill, Irwin & Co.,
Terms: Three dollars a year in advance. One dollar and a half for six months. Specimen copies twenty-five cents each. Subscriptions can be dated back, if desired.

J. W. BLACKMAN'S COMMERCIAL COLLEGE,
230 Canal Street, Entrance on Carondelet Street, Open day and evening the entire year. Permanent circulation embracing all the Territories and all the States except three of the North-Eastern. Engaged by this gentleman every exertion to make the Magazine more attractive and more useful. The services of some of the most talented writers of the country have been secured; and no article will be published, which has not real substantial merit. Engravings and Illustrations will be introduced.
The Magazine aims to preserve a record of the heroism and endurance, the wit and humor of the Southern soldiery.
PUBLISHED IN CHARLOTTE, N. C.
By Hill, Irwin & Co.,
Terms: Three dollars a year in advance. One dollar and a half for six months. Specimen copies twenty-five cents each. Subscriptions can be dated back, if desired.

J. W. BLACKMAN'S COMMERCIAL COLLEGE,
230 Canal Street, Entrance on Carondelet Street, Open day and evening the entire year. Permanent circulation embracing all the Territories and all the States except three of the North-Eastern. Engaged by this gentleman every exertion to make the Magazine more attractive and more useful. The services of some of the most talented writers of the country have been secured; and no article will be published, which has not real substantial merit. Engravings and Illustrations will be introduced.
The Magazine aims to preserve a record of the heroism and endurance, the wit and humor of the Southern soldiery.
PUBLISHED IN CHARLOTTE, N. C.
By Hill, Irwin & Co.,
Terms: Three dollars a year in advance. One dollar and a half for six months. Specimen copies twenty-five cents each. Subscriptions can be dated back, if desired.

J. W. BLACKMAN'S COMMERCIAL COLLEGE,
230 Canal Street, Entrance on Carondelet Street, Open day and evening the entire year. Permanent circulation embracing all the Territories and all the States except three of the North-Eastern. Engaged by this gentleman every exertion to make the Magazine more attractive and more useful. The services of some of the most talented writers of the country have been secured; and no article will be published, which has not

CHRISTIAN ADVOCATE

ORGAN OF THE M. E. CHURCH SOUTH FOR THE MOBILE, MONTGOMERY, MISSISSIPPI AND LOUISIANA CONFERENCES.

VOLUME XIII.—NUMBER 30.
WHOLE NUMBER 339.

NEW ORLEANS, SATURDAY, AUGUST 24, 1867.

($3.00 A YEAR IN ADVANCE)
OFFICE—112 CAMP STREET

NEW ORLEANS CHRISTIAN ADVOCATE.

Official Organ of the Montgomery, Mobile, Mississippi, and Louisiana Conferences of the M. E. Church South.

Office: 112 Camp Street.

TERMS OF SUBSCRIPTION:

THREE DOLLARS A YEAR,

Invariably in Advance.

Address: REV. J. C. KEENER,

112 Camp Street, New Orleans.

AGENTS:

By the Members of the Following Conferences.

ONE BY ONE.

BY ADELAIDE A. PROCTOR.

One by one the stars are flowing.

One by one the moments fall;

Some are coming, some are going;

Do not strive to grasp them all.

One by one thy duties wait thee.

Let thy whole strength go to each;

No future dreams elate thee.

Learn thou first what these can teach.

One by one (bright gifts from Heaven)

Joys are sent thee here below;

Take them readily when given.

Ready, too, to let them go.

One by one thy griefs shall meet thee:

Do not fear an armed band;

One will fade as others greet thee;

Shadows passing through the land.

Do not look at life's long sorrow;

See how small each moment's pain;

God will help thee for to-morrow.

So each day begin again.

Every hour that flees so slowly

Has its task to do or bear;

Luminous the crown, and holy.

When each gem is set with care.

Do not linger with regretting,

Or for passing hours despond;

Nor, the daily toil forgetting,

Look too eagerly beyond.

Hours are golden links, God's token,

Reaching Heaven; but one by one

Take them, lest the chain be broken

By thy pilgrimage be done.

BY N. O. CHRISTIAN ADVOCATE.

THE CHURCH EPISCOPACY

Against all the Churches.

NO. VII.

EDITOR: The doctrine of apostolic succession naturally divides itself into two parts—first, necessity of ordinations in an unbroken line in order to the existence of a ministry and a church;

second, the chain of connected and ordaining ministers must be seen and known in actual history of the church.

Neither point has already been discussed.

It is useful that we be reminded of this actual knowledge of the broken succession is, on all points, held to be vital; because about this unquestionable knowledge, seen in history, by a minister he cannot possibly know whether he is a minister or not.

He would be like a judge, or any other officer, who did not know whether he had been invested with the authority or not. It is necessary in the discharge of all official functions, in Church or in State, by ministers regularly ordained, because that was the law of the church, and we must presume the law was complied with.

It was argued thus: Suppose we had no record left us of the election and inauguration of Mr. Jefferson to the presidency, for instance, yet since we know that he was actually president through a term of office, and knowing that the law required an election and inauguration so and so, we are obliged to presume that he was regularly placed in office. The election and inauguration were required in order to the discharge of the duties of the office. He did discharge the duties, and therefore we must presume the prerequisites were complied with.

None can fail to see both the character and the force of this argument. I wish to present it in a favorable aspect.

And I acknowledge the validity as well as the force of it in all cases where it can be applied. It was always the law of the church, so far as mere ordinations were concerned, that ordained ministers only must ordain. And if this law had always been complied with—if there had been no irregularity in the church, then of course there would have been an unbroken chain of ordinations in all the ministry throughout the church. The presumption will hold good where, and only where, there has been and could be no irregularity, no revolution, no strife and contention for the office. It will hold good in regard to Mr. Jefferson and Judge Marshall. This is the law always, in all countries. In England the next of kin receives the crown; but did he always receive it? Where is even the civil State, in the brief period of one or two hundred years, where all offices descended with undeviating regularity?

In applying the above principles to the case in hand, let us see how it will work. In the great and constantly changing varieties of more than 800 years, from about the 6th to the 15th centuries, the church presented very little regularity. During long ages—the Dark Ages—we have very little history at all. We have occasionally only a historic glance, and that shows frequent strifes, simony, war and intrigue.

We know what the law was, but what of that, since we know it was habitually and recklessly violated in the discount of ordinations, age after age, in this country and in that. The principal, therefore, contended for above, is very good where it will apply; but its inapplicability to the case in hand is so gross and apparent that it is preposterous, and needs only to be alluded to.

R. ANNEY.

For the N. O. Christian Advocate.

JOHN WESLEY.

NO. II.

Although Wesley was so much devoted to plans of personal spiritual improvement and extended usefulness while at the University, we are not for a moment to suppose that it at all interfered with the successful prosecution of his scientific and classical studies. Of the ancient languages, Wesley was master of Hebrew, Greek, and Latin. To these he added a familiar knowledge of German, French, Spanish, and Italian. He was a good mathematician, and a skillful logician. He was well read in ancient history, poetry, and criticism. As a divine, he was ripe in practical and controversial theology.

Wesley early felt it his duty to preach the gospel, and was ordained a deacon in the Church of England in his 22d year, and immediately thereafter began to preach as his father's assistant at Epworth. He was ordained an elder, or presbyter, in his 25th year. He returned to the University and remained some seven or eight years in the capacity of tutor and lecturer, still, however, prosecuting his literary and theological studies.

About 1735, (in Wesley's thirty-second year), the colony of Georgia, in North America, was settled under the auspices of Gen. Oglethorpe. Chaplain missionaries were wanted, and John and Charles Wesley were requested to accept the appointment. Although they had every inducement to remain in the University of Oxford, or to accept honorable and lucrative livings in the Church establishment, they resolved in the spirit of self-sacrifice which characterized their whole lives, to go to that (then) wild and savage shore, with the ultimate intention of preaching Christ to the Indians.

It was during this voyage that Wesley began to keep a diary, a habit in which he persevered for the remainder of his life, more than fifty years. This diary constitutes two stout volumes. It embraces a great variety of matters—personal labors, adventures on land and sea, notices of remarkable scenery and places, noted men, reviews of books, of which he was a constant and discriminating reader.

The Wesleys were not adapted for missionaries in a new and wild country; their habits were too methodical and student-like; their notions too high and stringent for the irregularity and abandon of frontier life. Those wild and enterprising spirits would not submit to the restraints which the Wesleys wished to impose upon them. They, therefore, remained only about eighteen months in Georgia, and then returned to England, "shaking the dust from their feet," as John Wesley expressed it.

During twenty years Wesley had been trying to save himself by his own righteousness—by the righteousness of the law, and not submitting himself to God's righteousness. He had searched the Scriptures, fasted and prayed, visited the sick, given largely in alms to relieve the poor, preached even unto strange lands, but had never (as he avers) believed with a heart into righteousness. He and his brother had never fully comprehended the doctrine of the Apostles and Reformers, that we are "saved by grace through faith," and not by works of righteousness which we have wrought. They had never realized peace with God, but were in a state of painful uncertainty and bondage of spirit. They had no comfortable assurance of acceptance with God, and heirship with Christ to the Heavenly inheritance. On the voyage from England to Georgia, a terrible storm arose, appalling the stoutest hearts with fear, but the Moravians (a sect of German Christians) were calm and cheerfully trustful. They understood the great doctrine of justification by faith; they had inward assurance of acceptance with God, and were calm and undismayed. Their happy state of mind profoundly impressed the Wesleys, and awakened an unquenchable desire to realize the same blessedness.

Immediately after their return to England the Wesleys sought the Moravians and made the acquaintance of the Rev. Peter Boehler, an eminent minister of the Moravian Church, who explained to them the more perfect way of the Lord as set forth in the great doctrine of justification by faith. From this time Wesley sought with more intelligence, earnestness and hope to know God in the pardon of sin—to know him as an adopted child and not as a servant, which had hitherto been his spiritual condition. The 25th of May, 1738, Wesley dates as the day that he obtained in his own experience an assurance of acceptance with God through faith in Christ. This event occurred in London at a meeting of pious persons, while (as Wesley writes) some one was reading Luther's preface to the epistle to the Galatians, that he felt his heart strangely warmed—that he did love God, that Christ died for him, and that through Christ God was reconciled. He felt that "The things unknown to feeble sense,

Unseen by reason's glimmering ray,
With strong commanding evidence
Their heavenly origin display."

That

"Faith lends its realizing light,
The clouds disperse, the shadows fly,
The invisible appears in sight,
And God is seen by mortal eye."

His soul, disburdened of its load, swelled unutterably full of glory and of God.

No sooner had Wesley obtained this great blessing, than he began to proclaim the possibility of its attainment by all: which great and gracious work he unceasingly continued throughout all England, Scotland, Wales, and Ireland, for more than fifty years, to tens and hundreds of thousands.

Soon after this eventful period in his spiritual history, Wesley visited Germany to converse more fully with the Moravians on the subject of justification by faith. The Moravians had two establishments in Germany—one at Herrnhut, the other at Marjanhoon. At each Wesley remained some two weeks. It was from the Moravians that Wesley got the idea of reviving the ancient feast of love, which had long been obsolete.

W.

A Few Questions about Educating Preachers.

Ought not a man, looking to a profession by which he expects to make money, to bear the expenses of his education? It is an investment which pays.

Ought a man desirous of preparing himself for greatest usefulness in the ministry to be left unhelped in the struggle or required to go in debt for the means of education? By this vocation (not profession) he does not expect to make money. The most lukewarm would be shocked at the proposition of making money.

Is not an educated minister, other things being equal, more influential and more useful than an uneducated minister?

If you aid in the education of one, will you not get back an equivalent in the increased pleasure and benefit of his ministerial service to you and yours?

Will not all the good this servant of God does, by reason of increased power through his education, be due largely to your instrumentality?

Is not the good which the preacher and pastor does, of a large, and wide, and enduring kind? Truth promulgated, sin prevented, souls saved. In eternity the fruit is seen as well as in time.

Would you like to have a partnership and shares in this good work? Do not all our Colleges offer their valuable tuition free to students who are preparing for the ministry? They do.

What is lacking, then, to enable a young man to take a full or partial course? His broad and clothing.

How much might this be for a year? Two or three hundred dollars would cover all.

Are there any worthy young men among us of good mind and morals, well recommended by those who know them, desirous but unable to improve themselves by education, in order to fulfil that ministry to which they feel called? Several.

Who will pledge the amount necessary to send one of these young men to a Methodist College, in order more fully to equip him for the Methodist ministry? Perhaps you can stand the charges of two for one year; or of one for two years.

Can you do as much good with the same money in any other way? Think of it. The idea will bear enlargement and dwelling on.

Send your name to the Editor of the Christian Advocate, and you will be put in communication with the instrument by which, under God's blessing, you may promote the salvation of souls, and live and be doing good when you are dead.

—Nashville Christian Advocate.

The Christian Intelligencer thinks that Methodism in the great cities has lost its evangelizing zeal. It says: "Statistics show that in our large American cities, Methodism, notwithstanding its compact organization, its concentrated life and its grand ambition, is at the most only holding on. Its aggregate membership in New-York to-day is less than it was ten years ago, and in proportion as it has increased the splendor of its sanctuaries, it has ceased, in a measure to be what it once was, the church that preached the Gospel to the poor." This statement is only partially true. In Baltimore, Philadelphia, Brooklyn, and Boston, Methodism has steadily advanced. In New-York City, we have failed to grow as we ought from the neglect of home missions. Although we enjoy the honor of having led the way in the reformation of the Five Points, we have elsewhere in the city been content to attempt but little. A comprehensive plan of operations is now organized, and is from time to time properly enforced with men and means, it will before long make a new showing for our Church in New-York.—New York Methodist.

CHRISTIAN MIRACLES.—"Miracles," says Fuller, "are the swaddling clothes of the infant churches;" and, we may add, not the garments of the full-grown. They were as the proclamation that the king was mounting his throne; who, however is not proclaimed every day, only at his accession. When he sits acknowledged on his throne the proclamation ceases. They were as the bright clouds which gather round and announce the sun at his first appearing; his mid-day splendor, though as full and fuller indeed of light and heat, knows not those bright heralds and harbingers of his rising. Or they may be likened to the frame-work on which the arch is rounded, which frame-work is taken down as soon as that is completed.—Archbishop Trench.

COMMISSARY DEPARTMENT OF THE WORLD.—Bishop Kingsley closes a letter to the North-Western thus:

The London Quarterly Review makes the following showing, for meat, poultry, bread, and beer for one year, in London: seventy-two miles of oxen, ten abreast; one hundred and twenty miles of sheep, do.; seven miles of calves; do.; nine miles of pig—"little pigs"—do.; fifty acres of poultry, close together; twenty miles of hares and rabbits, one hundred abreast; a pyramid of loaves of bread, six hundred feet square and three the height of St. Paul's; one thousand columns of hogsheds of beer, each one mile high.

London contains about the four hundredth part of the population of the earth. The above figures multiplied by 400 give us some idea of the commissary department of our globe.

TWO SIDES OF A STORY.—A French journal gives an amusing illustration of the familiar truth that "accounts differ." By careful study of the Cretan dispatches it has been ascertained that the total loss of the Turks during the present insurrection has been one million five hundred thousand men; of the insurgents, forty men. A similar computation, founded upon the Turkish dispatches, gives a Cretan loss of three million men at the lowest figure, against a Turkish loss of five. One does not often have to split a wider difference than that.

The greatest man is he who chooses the right with invisible resolution; who resists the sorest temptations from within and without, who bears the heaviest burdens cheerfully; who is the earnest in storms, and whose reliance on truth, on virtue, on God, is the most, unflinching.

He that sips of many arts drinks of none.

FACULTY OF DOLBEAR COMMERCIAL COLLEGE.—As a matter of interest to our readers, with whom the name of Dolbear Commercial College has become a household word, we give the names of the present faculty, many of whom it will be seen are distinguished in their special departments:

Prof. F. A. Monroe lectures on commercial law, is a grandson of the distinguished Judge Monroe, of Kentucky, of the U. S. Courts. He is a member of the New Orleans bar; served and crippled for life in the First Louisiana Cavalry. A gentleman of much talent.

George B. Brackett, professor of mathematics, a nephew of the distinguished Rev. Dr. Hawkes, formerly of this city. Prof. Brackett served in the Confederate Artillery under Capt. Beauregard, in the Georgia, and Tennessee campaigns, and is a gentleman of much talent as a mathematician and experienced teacher of twenty-five years standing in the South.

Rev. Geo. W. Stickney, professor of English, a native of Alabama, served as Chaplain during the war in Confederate service—graduate of Columbia College.

Prof. J. B. Griffith, of the book-keeping was a professor in the college before the war, and has had much experience in teaching and in actual business accounts.

Prof. J. W. Stearns is a graduate of the college of last year, and has had much experience in teaching and accounts.

Prof. B. B. Euston, for penmanship, is a native of the British West Indies, and a gentleman of much experience and unsurpassed in his skill and execution.

Prof. J. V. Serureau, for French, from Paris, a gentleman of polished address and great skill in teaching.

Prof. M. Marino, for Spanish and Latin, a native of Cuba, a fine classical scholar and practical teacher.

Rev. A. F. Hoppe, for German or Greek, from Germany, a fine scholar and teacher.

Rufus L. Dolbear, Vice President, and lecturer on book-keeping, exchanges, etc., was born and educated in this city, and is a graduate of this college, went out under Capt. O. Dreux with the first company of volunteers from this city, was detailed by Lieut. Gen. Kirby Smith to correct and keep the books of the Medical Purveyor's Department in Trans-Mississippi after the battle of Mansfield, etc. He has also had entire charge of the books and business of a large commission and wholesale grocery business, etc.

Rufus Dolbear, the President and Founder of the College, is known to the whole South as an original advocate of practical education, and as a writer for the press on all kindred subjects. His predictions with regard to the war, made and published ten years ago, have been fully and sadly verified.

Professors for the Agricultural and Mechanical Departments will soon be elected, also a Professor of Political Economy and Moral Philosophy.

EPISCOPAL VISITATION.

The following is the plan of Episcopal Visitation for 1867-8:

First District.—BISHOP DOUGLASS.
Virginia Conference, at Barboursville, W. Va., Oct. 2d.
North Carolina Conference, at Petersburg, Nov. 13th.
South Carolina Conference, at Wilmington, Nov. 27th.
North Carolina Conference, at Morganton, N. C., Dec. 11th.
Baltimore Conference, at Baltimore, March 5, 1868.

Second District.—BISHOP PIERCE.
Kentucky Conference, at Lexington, Sept. 18th.
Louisville Conference, at Franklin, Oct. 2nd.
North Carolina Conference, at Atlanta, Nov. 13th.
South Carolina Conf., at Savannah, Nov. 27th.
Florida Conf., at Monticello, Fla., Dec. 12th.

Third District.—BISHOP WHITMAN.
Holston Conf., at Cleveland, Tenn., Oct. 23d.
Montgomery Conf., at Opelika, Ala., Dec. 4th.
Mobile Conference, at Marion, Ala., Dec. 11th.

Fourth District.—BISHOP M'LELLAN.
Trinity Conference, at Sulphur Springs, Texas, Oct. 9th.
East Texas Conference, at Rusk, Oct. 23d.
North-West Texas Conf., at Waco, Nov. 6th.
West Texas Conf., at Victoria, Nov. 27th.
Texas Conf., at Houston, Dec. 11th.

Fifth District.—BISHOP MARVIN.
Missouri Conf., at Mason City, Sept. 4th.
St. Louis Conf., at Kansas City, Sept. 18th.
Indian Mission Conf., at Fort Gibson, Oct. 3d.
Arkansas Conf., at Dover, Oct. 30th.
Little Rock Conf., at Des Moines, Nov. 27th.

Sixth District.—BISHOP PAINE.
Tennessee Conf., at Clarksville, Oct. 23d.
Memphis Conf., at Paducah, Nov. 13th.
Mississippi Conf., at Natchez, Nov. 27th.
Louisiana Conf., at New Orleans, Dec. 11th.

Seventh District.—BISHOP KAYANAWH.
Columbia Conf., at Dallas, Oregon, Aug. 28th.
Pacific Conf., at San Jose, Cal., Sept. 15th.

Note.—Bishops Andrew and Early take no regular work, but are expected to do such work as they may be able.

WHEAT CROP OF 1867.—It is estimated that the crop of Wheat just gathered in the United States will amount to 240,000,000 bushels—about 60,000,000 more than that of 1866.

NEWS FROM THE CHURCHES.

Yazoo Dist. Meeting.—Miss. Conference.

Met at Sweetwater church, Holmes Co., Miss., Aug 1st, 2nd, and 3rd, '67.

Reports of pastors were read, which indicated, considering the condition of the country, a healthy state of the church within the bounds of the District. Various items in these reports were appropriately referred to the respective committees.

The committee on revivals urged the necessity of united, immediate and earnest effort in this matter.

The report of the committee on religious interests of the colored people, urged the appointment, by the several Quarterly Conferences, of a building committee for the purpose of aiding the colored people in the building of churches, and also in securing titles to the same.

The report likewise advocated the appointment by the annual conference of missionaries, wise, godly men, who shall devote themselves to establishing circuits and building churches upon a permanent basis among them.

The report of the committee on Sunday schools was presented and adopted. The report did not speak encouragingly of this matter. Some schools were reported in a flourishing condition, but in many places there are no Sunday schools at all. A lack of suitable religious literature for the young was complained of, the books at the Publishing House and Depositories, not exactly coming up to the standard demand.

The report on Missions urged especially the payment of that part of the old missionary debt apportioned to Yazoo District, and requested that the Presiding Elder divide the amount to be raised among the several churches thereof.

The report on church property and parsonages suggested that to obtain an efficient Board of Trustees for church property, vacancies occurring among the trustees be filled from the number of stewards. Also, that immediate action be taken to secure parsonages, as the present is the most suitable time to do so, on account of the cheapness of lands.

The report on church publications recommended the Sunday School Visitor and New Orleans Christian Advocate to the patronage of the Church. Pending the adoption of this report, several brethren spoke with special favor of the editorials of the New Orleans Christian Advocate, of their high literary and religious tone.

The report from the committee on Church, Camp, and Class meetings, suggested to the stewards of Yazoo District, a system of District Camp-meetings. The report was adopted, and the matter commended to the consideration of the stewards.

LAY REPRESENTATIVES.

The District Stewards, elected the following delegates to the Annual Conference, Stephen Johnson, local preacher, with Samuel Gillespie alternate, J. C. Melton, B. H. McGee, alternate, W. L. King, Burwell Scott, alternate, S. W. Weems, D. G. Pepper, alternate.

Resolved, That we request the Mississippi Annual Conference to memorialize the next General Conference, to so change the law of the Discipline, in the matter of trustees of church property, that the stewards shall compose the board of trustees.

Resolved, That we earnestly recommend to the stewards of the several circuits and stations in this District to endeavor to collect in the beginning of the Conference year, one half of the salary of their preachers.

It was resolved that a District Meeting for Yazoo District be held in the year 1868, at such a time and place as the Presiding Elder and District stewards may select.

Ordered, that the proceedings of this meeting be published in the N. O. Christian Advocate.

J. M. PUGH, P. E.

E. H. MOUNGER, Secy.

CHURCH PUBLICATIONS.

Your Committee on church publications would respectfully report, the church has already published a great many valuable religious, theological, and miscellaneous books, now on sale at our Publishing House, in Nashville, and on the shelves of the Libraries of our preachers and people. They are valuable embodiments of the great principles and doctrines of our holy religion. They contain the masterly defense of the faith once delivered to the saints, which has hushed into silence the gainsayers of the past. These have done a great work, and doing and will long continue to do a great work in their sphere. But ours is a living age. Energy, interest of life, intellectual and spiritual is in an abnormal condition. We must rise to the demand of the exciting times. How shall we do it? Vigilance on the part of our preachers is wanted. Let them in a kindly spirit see to the class of books and periodicals, by which the mind of their flocks are fed. Serious, thoughtful minds will read good books and sound doctrinal tracts, with interest and profit. Let their pastors furnish their charges by borrowing from one for the benefit of another, in these straightened times, or by ordering and selling, or by any other available means.

But the attractive form of church literature which is sought with avidity by all classes of readers, is the periodical, especially the weekly newspapers. The "Sunday School Visitor," published by our Book Agent, at Nashville, has a charm for our juvenile readers that makes it a most welcome "visitor" in every family.

It not only feeds the mind and heart with the milk of the word, but in a high sense educates—the young of our charges, by calling their gifts into healthy exercise in such contributions as interest and edify. The weekly paper catches every eye. The religious newspaper is an unspeakable blessing in every family. Its cheapness, its freshness, its adaptiveness to all the wants of all classes, gives it an importance and value which cannot be overstated. Of this important kind of literature, we are greatly blessed in our own paper, the New Orleans Christian Advocate. Its size, its paper, its typography, are a favorable introduction. Nor are we ever disappointed by its contents, fresh, rich in variety and quality, it feeds the mind and heart with good things.

Men of ability and learning pronounce it the best paper on the continent. Competent judges of other denominations pronounce it a most valuable and interesting paper. Our thinking and reading part of our people are charmed, instructed and edified by its weekly contents, and yet it is not circulated among us as it deserves to be. Why? Do the preachers do their duty? Do they show it to the people? Do they point out its rich contents. Do they realize themselves its superiority to all its competitors, and give it a hearty recommendation, or do they damn by faint praise: in view of its intrinsic worth, of its valuable aid to the pastor, and of our relation to your committee, we recommend the adoption of the following resolution.

Resolved, We will use our best efforts to increase the circulation of our periodical literature, especially the Sunday School Visitor and N. O. C. ADVOCATE.

Respectfully submitted,

W. P. BARTON,
E. H. MOUNGER,
J. G. HAMILTON.

Revival in Montevallo Circuit.

MONTVALLO, Ala., Aug. 13.

Mr. Editor: The Lord has sent the early and the latter rains and the crops are good in this section, and if our garners are not full, affording all manner of store, there is at least a sufficiency for the people another year.

At the same time God has sent showers of grace, and many of the old members of the church have been made to rejoice; the luke-warm have been stirred up, backsliders have been reclaimed, and sinners who have for years resisted all influences brought to bear for their salvation, have been awakened and happily converted. We are baying in this country one of the most powerful revivals I have ever known; in fact the old members of the church say they have not known such a time since 1825.

Our third Quarterly meeting was held at Ebenezer, 25th July, and continued seven days. Presiding Elder L. M. Wilson was with us during the time. We were also assisted by the local preachers of this work, and others from the Harpersville Circuit. Friday it was thought best to move to Camp Branch, five miles off, which we did, and continued nine days. There were sixty conversions. Forty six whites and three colored joined the church. This revival has reached some of the best families in the country; in fact whole families have been brought in. I have a series of protracted meetings appointed, and trust the good work will go on.

C. L. DOBBS.

Union Springs District Meeting.

Mr. Editor:—The Union Springs district meeting, Montgomery Conference, convened at Pine Level, Montgomery County, Ala., July 18th, 1867, and was presided over by Rev. Jos. B. Cottrell. The opening sermon was preached by Rev. W. M. Motley, of Union Springs. Committees were raised on the following subjects, viz: The state of the church, church extension, Sunday schools, missions, parsonages, finance, education, the Bible cause, and religious literature, on which reports were made.

The delegates elected to the annual Conference are Col. R. H. Powell, of Union Springs, F. A. Boswell, Esq. of Union Circuit, D. A. Rutledge, Esq. of Millville Circuit, and Rev. O. Fleming of Brundidge Circuit. Reserves, Col. H. Peebles, of Union Springs, W. Capers Menefee, of Orion, Lucas Roberts, of Greenville, and Rev. W. C. Rylander, of Ramer circuit. The meeting was one of unusual interest, both in regard to the business transacted and the religious interest of the occasion.

There were seventy-three members in all in attendance, (13 pastors 15 local preachers and 45 laymen), the citizens of Pine Level entertained the meeting with a generous and liberal hospitality.

Aug. 5th, 1867. J. M. S.

Alexandria, Aug. 9th, 1867.

Mr. Editor:—I have just closed a meeting of five days, at Liberty Chapel, Alexandria Circuit, which resulted in ten accessions to the church, and many happily converted to God, the church greatly strengthened, and built up. Brothers Wynn, Bolt, Bellamy, and Collier, worked faithfully. May the Lord bless their labors elsewhere as here.

There will be a camp meeting held at Liberty Chapel, 27 miles from Alexandria, on the Claiborne road, commencing Oct. 15th. The preachers and people generally are invited to attend. H. C. WHITE.

From the Saturday Review.

DONKEY POWER.

The steam engine is the most valuable discovery of modern times, and has taken its place on a sort of religious pedestal amongst us, as the great English idol. Everybody, from Mr. Lowe downwards, has taken his turn at chanting its praises, and pointing out the benefits that it confers upon mankind. Since its introduction our standard of pace seems completely altered. It is not only that we travel quicker, or make more elastic shirts in an hour than we used to do; but the whole business of the world, moral, social, and intellectual, is proportionately quickened. Mr. Kinglake's Pasha, whose leading notion about the English was that they were a wonderful people, and that all was done by steam, fell into a natural and pardonable, though erroneous, view of things. Steam power is, to a certain extent, the measure of all human motion, in the field of thought as well as in the field of action. The truth is so very obvious that we are in great danger of forgetting that there is another power, quite as valuable and useful as steam, by means of which most of the business of the world is transacted. It is not merely steam power that pulls us all along. Donkey power does the largest portion of the work, and if there is any room for a second English idol on the same pedestal as the steam-engine, the second idol ought to be that useful animal who devotes himself to the monotonous labor of drawing the social cart when nobody is watching him. His presence acts, in every possible department of life, as a happy and important check on the rival motive power of steam. Instead of being unequally yoked together, steam power and donkey power for most purposes make a team of rare merit and real value, and tend to correct each other's failings. When the more excitable of the pair is forging unduly ahead, the sober reluctance of the other to stir a single inch faster than he can help, readjusts the balance of motive energy, and keeps the social body to that steady, wise, deliberate step which constitutes the true glory of a free and independent country. If Mr. Kinglake's Eastern Pasha had known more of England he would not have summed us up in the terse sentence, "Whizz, whizz. All by steam!" The truer formula would have been less one-sided. "Whizz! Whizz! Trot! Trot! Half by steam and half by donkeys."

Any one who reflects for a moment on the vast proportion of the business of life which is necessarily made up of a sort of humdrum dry routine will not feel disposed to quarrel with donkey power, or to think very lightly of its uses. The fate of Phaeton is a type of what would happen on a large scale if all our carts were carriages, and all our donkeys were converted suddenly into horses of the sun.

It is absolutely essential to the welfare of the community that it should be able to employ largely in its service men and women who are contented to live and die in "obscurity," and to maintain throughout their course an unambitious humble pace. The misfortune would be incalculable if every banker's clerk were seized with the noble desire of arriving at the dignity of a Cabinet Minister, or if every village curate dreamt at night of future lawn. One of the most distressing and useless spectacles that can ever be witnessed is the sight of a man whose natural powers are more limited than his ambition, and who can neither go by steam, nor content himself with going like the donkey that he is. Happily the spectacle is an exceptional one. Though no rational being is devoid of the instinctive wish to rise a little above the level on which he starts, as a rule a little rise is all that we desire, as it is certainly all that we deserve. The consequence is that the work is done well and evenly. Most people acquiesce in the view of the Catechism that there is a particular sphere for which they are born and to which they may be said to have been called, and cheerfully adopt in practice the view with which it is desirable that they should be impressed. The world's private soldiers are content never to become officers, and the ensigns and lieutenants are aware that they will not live to command an army or even a brigade. Everybody thus falls early in life into a settled groove, and spins quietly down it at the minimum rate required of him by his superiors, well knowing that to spin faster would disarrange the machine and do no earthly benefit to himself. Perhaps one of the best instances of that happy humdrum work to which we owe a great deal, and about which we hear very little, is the laborious industry of the clever and often learned man who compile catalogues of the documents stored up in our public offices. Reading and indexing old records and charters, none of which perhaps are of any positive interest to the readers; is an employment to which numbers of people give up their existence. Those who are so employed must be accurate, painstaking, and methodical. The occupation is one that brings little fame or emolument with it, and it takes the whole lives of many men to produce a catalogue which the student tosses by carelessly after consulting it, without thinking once of all the pains that have gone to make it. If the demon of restless ambition got loose among them, it is difficult to believe that they could be satisfied with building up slowly, and brick by brick, some monument of dull erudition, which when it is finished will never bear their names, or bring them the least posthumous renown. In some ways Providence is very kind to the bookworm and the compiler. It gives him after a while a fictitious excitement and interest in his own labors. Men become intoxicated with the dust of old libraries and musty manuscripts, just as the opium-eater is carried by the fumes of his narcotic into a special and unreal world of his own, into which no one else can enter. Even if they observe that the world half despises them for all the benefits they do it, they are content to think that it is the world, and not themselves, which is the victim of hallucination.

Happily for mankind, energy, however spent, seems well spent in the eyes of the spender, and many an antiquary feels that his whole existence would be crowded and complete if he could manage to discover where Caesar landed on the coast of Britain, or where Hannibal crossed the Alps. In literature, in commerce, and in study the same law obtains. The mass of our contemporaries, without knowing it, are all wearing out their powers contentedly and usefully, very much as the children of Egypt, in Mr. Poynter's famous picture in this year's Academy, may be seen toiling away under the weight of an enormous Sphinx that is being carried to its pedestal. An ancient historian relates the effect produced upon an Oriental king by a little circumstance that happened when the last massive stone of a temple was hoisted into its place. One of the obscure drawers, who had painfully spent his strength under the burden, at the end heaved his life out in a great sigh. Any one who chooses to look round him in the world will see the same kind of sight everywhere. Thousands seem to live and die in the harness of uneventful routine. The intellectual edifices which our children are destined to enjoy will have been raised for the most part, not by steam, but by donkey power.

Nowhere is this more evident than in the story of those amongst us who devote themselves consistently to what is called "doing good." A life of professional philanthropy has, for those who embrace it, a variety of little pleasures. There is a certain amount of fussiness and restlessness about it which cheers and animates the philanthropic donkey while he plods along his weary way. It would be a grave injustice to assert that philanthropists of the best sort are as inferior to other people in mental qualities as they are often superior to them in singleness of aim and self-devotion. Many noble natures have dignified, and many noble names been inscribed upon, the dull roll of professional philanthropists.

But there is, on the other hand, a considerable portion of the work of philanthropy which is generally done, and which can indeed only be done well, by donkey power. The results attained seem in general to be so enormously out of proportion to the labor given, that a man of great genius or intellectual activity would be soon discouraged. The duty of sitting day by day in a sick-room, for example, is one of the most hopeless and painful duties to which any rational being ever can devote himself. There are some excellent men and women who do little else for years. The task of visiting the poor, especially in country places, is another task which is as distasteful, and as apparently devoid of any positive fruit.

Yet there are those who have dedicated themselves to the mission, dreary as it is, and who go on performing it from day to day with praiseworthy zeal, and with a freshness of spirit which to others who play a more stirring part in the world appears almost miraculous. The parson or the doctor who, in the wilds of a provincial neighborhood, slaves at this sort of occupation sacrifices something for it. He falls in the rear of the intellectual movement of his time. He has not leisure to follow the latest discoveries of science. He knows nothing of the new ideas which have been carrying his professional colleagues a hundred miles ahead of him during the hours that he has been standing still over the bedside of the poor. He never perhaps advances a step beyond the theology, or the nostrums of his fathers. Gradually, as far as his mental powers are concerned, he sinks into the unenviable condition of a fruit or a vegetable. If he is a parson, a serious grow every Sunday longer and more deadly dull. Educated people can scarcely listen to him with tolerable patience. If he ever emerges from his obscurity on to the public stage, he is very likely to commit some intellectual folly, to denounce some book that he has never read and could not understand, to protest against the horribles of some High Church Bishop or some Broad-Church philosopher of whose tenets he is profoundly incapable to judge, or to sign some memorial which is got up by the Philistines of a country district. His long devotion to practical matters has made him the equal in all intellectual matters of his own church-wardens, or of the ladies of his village clothing club. And if, instead of being a parson, he is a doctor, his lot would only differ in essential points. He would still be dragging and bleeding away in the most approved fashion of the ancients. Newer lights would not have penetrated to his consulting room; and he would be as far behind his London contemporaries as if he were a Galen, or an Hippocrates with gold-headed cane. The good and serious work which such men do in their day is the direct result of donkey power. Had they gone by steam, their fortunes would be very different. The parson might have been either the hope or terror of his Church; he would perhaps have risen to the eminence of a party champion, or of a leader of theological thought. He might have lived to throw some light on the difficulties of his age,—have covered some new manuscript, have destroyed some old-fashioned illusion. The doctor might, in manner, have invented either a disease or a new operation, and either capacity have contributed to the march of science and the manifold welfare of mankind. They have done instead has been ably and worthily done; but work, however honest, could have been done by donkeys.

There is no branch of human affairs in which donkey power is not to be seen performing the humble mission. Politics and literature are as much indebted to philanthropy and religion. Perhaps may be taken as one of the happiest instances of the success of the combination of the donkey and the steam engine. Great changes in the social arena are never so prosperously achieved as when they are the result of a satisfactory compromise between the two. So far from finding the banishment between them ought to thank heaven upon knees that both exist, and are recently destined to exist together all time. If the world were governed as Plato and M. Comte wished, by philosophers, change never would be stable, and even where revolution of thought would lead to a reaction. As it is, great changes are accomplished by regular law, the results of which are far more satisfactory. Some twenty or thirty years before the final plunge is taken, steam power begins to shoot ahead with startling velocity. The philosophers who on the engine whistle, the enthusiasts who feed the furnace, and if steam had everything its own way, the machine would be the declivity at railroad pace. Once over, the less active portion of the community would be dissatisfied at the abrupt transition into which they had been so abruptly hurried. They would forever be endeavoring to retrace their steps, and to the force which dragged them forward. Instead of this undesirable collection of things, the twenty or thirty years are at present usefully employed in modulating the power of the philosophers to the donkey power of the engineers. Gradually and slowly donkey power brings up the train towards the edge of the formidable precipice. There is no excitement and no till just at the last moment there a little pull, and the community which was at the top finds itself at the bottom. Nobody is at all concerned, and the donkeys, after a moment of surprise, begin to pace peacefully again on the grass grows underneath. The reason so little harm has been done is entirely—though skeptics may fume to see it—to the fact that descent has been approached in sober pace. People have had to weigh the real advantages of all, and to provide against all possible dangers. And when it comes they accept it without resentment without any undue reluctance, without a burning sense of anything to those who have led them to it. It cannot be said that it is a great advantage to the body, and the credit of it ought to be given to those whose wisdom and even tardiness of progress advantage is partly due.

The benefits conferred by donkey power on the world of letters are not less conspicuous. Though persons are in the habit too often forgetting how much donkey power it takes to make the literature of a country or the journalism of a country worth anything. No first book would ever be written, or it had been preceded by a regular dull ones, out of which the great author has been able to gather materials for his purpose. Perhaps no modern work gives a more complete example of what literary genius is like than Gibbon's. But Gibbon is, after all, only a brilliant analysis of the obscure labors of men whose work in the world was over as soon as they furnished Gibbon with stuff to work on. The old cartwrights and masons whose very names only survive as far as our ordinary knowledge of them goes, in his witty notes, were his hewers of wood and drawers of water. Poetasters in every age lived, and fatigued the ears of the contemporaries, for the sole end of furnishing a future writer with a summate power with a stray line which to base an hypothesis or a hypothesis merely an illustration. The logicians of fearful dullness and fixity spent years in writing manuals, some one passage of which alone accidentally becomes of use for an epigram or a historical allusion. Donkey power has produced the block, though steam has fashioned it at last into its last form. Moreover else is ungrateful to donkey power, literary men have no business to be so, and their thanks are due to the voluminous and patient slaves of the lamp who have risen to the eminence of a party champion, or of a leader of theo-

THE POWER OF LIFE.

One year a day leaf-bud
Peeped from the old leaf's stalk,
And all through the noisy winter
Heard the wild winds talk.

And then them raving and boasting
How they swept dead things away;
But only kept growing, growing,
It could wait. It was stronger than they.

For the power of life was stirring
To life's strength within,
Flowing, ever silently growing,
Through all the storm and din.

Now, one fair spring morning,
The power of life will wake;
It will touch it, will softly kiss it,
Till its last slight fetters break.

The old leaf will fall, and the leaf sheath,
The young leaf spread and green,
And gaze on the sun in his beauty
Without a veil between.

For the Lord of Life is working,
And His strongest force is life;
Ever with death it wagers
Silent, victorious strife.

And truth is stronger than falsehood,
And needs but an open field;
That Love is stronger than hatred,
And Love will never yield.

God is Love, and He liveth;
And Life is His living breath;
And one breath of Life is stronger Than all the hosts of Death.

WM. C. THOMAS, Esq.

BIOGRAPHICAL.

The death of Wm. C. Thomas, is an event which will affect the hearts of thousands of the best people in the Southern States. He lived the companions of his youth, and the friends of his mature life, and even to the last moments of his declining age, he was companionable and kind, so attention to the young, and so thoroughly the Christian gentleman, in his relations in life, that it is scarcely too much to say, everybody was his friend. His light shone on everything and everybody about him, and that was indeed an invaluable heart that did not open in his presence and rejoice in the shine of his love. It would require volume to do justice to his memory, and if well and earnestly written by a capable pen, it would be of inestimable value to the church of Christ.

He was born in Edgefield District,
Nov. 14th, 1780, and died on the 24th day of June, 1867, at the age of his son-in-law, Wm. C.

Dowdell, in Auburn, Lee County,

Georgia. During his later years, having abandoned all active business on account of the increasing weight of age, and enjoyed, a common house with Mr. Dowdell and his youngest daughter Elizabeth, he had but removed to Auburn, with the constant watch-care and devotion of these children were entirely due to a parent so exercised by every virtue which can and dignify humanity. His supplied. He "died in his bed" and it was "made" by a hand gentle as the rosy breath of the angel. He died like old Jacob talking with God and prophesying to his children and people.

As he lived, "the friend of all," in sympathy with Christ and his friends. In life and in death, his whole character, and his manner blended the simplicity of innocent childhood with patriarchal gravity. His Christian friends naturally associated him with Patrarchs and Prophets, and Apostles, and he was his daily companions, and many years before he went to salute him in "the better land." His life was simple, earnest Christian life. There was no materialism in it. It was "living faith" that "worked by love, and purified the heart"

—realized "the substance of things hoped for." It was perhaps single-eyed and luminous as any man's faith since the days of Carnot, with whose character it is difficult, not to associate, that of my dear and venerable friend. Its main was ever full and flowed like a perpetual stream, fertilizing

the joy was often like the evesing of the transfiguration. He lived on "daily bread," and it was enough and instructive to see, how very stones were made bread to satisfy his hunger. Every rock in the wilderness drilled its water of life at the touch of his rod. The ravens fed him.

There is scarcely a page of his

New Testament that does not bear the marks of his thoughtful devotion. Scarcely a verse which at some time had not been to him, "a well in the desert." The Bible was, to him—a charged electrical battery.

He never touched it without eliciting the "live fire." His house was a house of prayer and of praise.— Mighty preaching did he, in many exhortations; Strangers beheld and wondered. Friends and kindred wept with joy. His refined hospitality shone like a halo around the light which ever burned upon the altar of family prayer. To be like him, as he was "like Christ," to live like him, to love and be patient like him—to walk, and work, and pray, and shout, and weep, and praise, and die like him, is the utmost that any one in the large circle of his family and friends can hope for.

His mortal remains repose in my family burying ground, at the graveyard in Auburn. I had rather have them there than those of a king, and that king my ancestor. O, God of my father, and my friend, that after mingling my dust with his, I may rise with him and be with him forever! But I anticipate.

The early education of Mr. Thomas, was defective. Before he was 12 years of age, he lost his father. He had been taught to "read and write, and cypher." Beyond this, he had not gone, when he was thrust out into the world to make his bread, inheriting from his father, only two small negroes, whose hire amounted, all told, to thirty-six dollars a year.

He had been accustomed to a plentiful, comfortable home, and the care of a loving mother, and deeply pious father. These memories were more precious and of more value to the friendless orphan boy, than lands and houses, silver and gold.

He wrought bravely at his trade of a carpenter, encountering the vicissitudes of fortune. He had a wealthy relative in Augusta, who, on one occasion, by kind offices and affectionate nursing, when he was thrown sick and helpless, on his care saved his life—but it did not probably occur to him, that the poor boy needed to be educated, and shielded from ills worse than death.

He passed to the associations of the billiard room, and the race track, with no settled home, no one to care for him, but the orphan's God—the God of his father, who brought him safely through these perils. Again he wrought at his trade.

At about twenty-one years of age, he married Miss Whitehead, and commenced planting. After her death, he married her sister. After having had been two years a seeker of religion, at twenty-eight years of age, he found the precious treasure. For three score years he watched, and prayed, and wrought, and put his Lord's money to using.

He sowed, and reaped, what he sowed. Religion was his fortune—his joy, his crown, his "exceeding great reward." It blessed him, in all things temporal and spiritual, and was a blessing to the life of every one with whom he was associated. The most distinguished preachers drank at his fountain, and were refreshed. His old faithful African slave, Robbin, drank too, and rejoiced in Christ. All were the beneficiaries of his estate—and it was a large estate. "Wisdom's costly merchandise."

"And gold is dross compared to her."

Our beloved "uncle Thomas" was a public spirited man, and a useful one to the country and church. He had educated himself in practical knowledge of men and things, and was wise in business. His maxims were science. His observations full of the significance of philosophical investigation.

He was an ardent patriot of the old school of Jeffersonian Republicanism, and a devoted friend of the Southern Confederacy. Its overthrow was a severe trial of his faith, but he found it in his heart, to leave his country in the hands of a faithful and merciful Creator. Standing in the shadow of the cross, he realized that not all the storms of earthly war can shake the foundations of "the city of God."

He was at one time a magistrate in Georgia. Afterwards a judge of the Inferior Court—for many years an excellent class-leader, and for many more an efficient steward of the church.

He was a very thorough Methodist, and delighted in the theological writings of the Wesleys and Dr.
Adam Clark.

His friendship for the preachers was earnest, confiding, generous and thoughtful.

Though singularly unsuspicious, he was not easily imposed upon, long at a time. Dwelling himself in the light, those who came near to him necessarily were exposed to observation.

Most of his children were with him in his last moments. He sailed so gradually into death that it was going to "sleep in Jesus."

For a short time before he expired he was unconscious. He was married four times during his long life; one of his wives was the daughter of Smith Cotton, Esq. His last marriage was to Miss Catherine Hubbard Dowdell, on the 3rd of October,

1828, with whom he lived happily for nearly thirty-five years, and until her death a few years ago. She was a remarkable woman of great good sense, deep piety, and generous, gentle affections—"a help meet" for him in every sense. All the preachers and the sick in the neighborhood, the poor and the wayfarer knew her, in the continual ministra-tions of love. Her praise is "in all the churches." He and "Aunt Catharine" have had a joyful reunion where "they neither marry, nor are given in marriage, but are as the angels of God in heaven."

He was a man of cautious observation, clear conception and sound judgment. He was a humble man —a modest one; and yet no man was more sensitive in the vindication of his conscious merit, or threw around virtue the defenses of a nob-ler dignity. His advice was always worth attention.

To his intimate acquaintances the following graphic picture of a note-worthy peculiarity already sufficiently alluded to, from the pen of his daughter, Mrs. Wm. C.

Dowdell, will be interesting. "It is wonderful how he has improved

every page of the New Testament.
I cannot read it without on every column seeing something that is particularly connected with his religious experience. The different scenes and incidents in the life of our Lord you know have furnished his fireside themes for the last twenty-five or thirty years. To day, this saying of the Master was found-ful of meaning; and a fountain of living water to his living soul:

Tomorrow some other of his apparently indifferent words became to him, equally luminous and life-giving. He was thus in almost constant communion with the loved Master. One of these spiritual revelations he seemed never to forget."

He learned much from the conversation of even inferior Christians. I once found him deploring his want of faith. Among other things he said speaking of a certain time when he had been happy in the Lord, I thought myself, at the time, to be very happy, but have since feared the fire was all

"sparks of my own kindling." I do not know but that it was the work of my own imagination. What do you think of it Cousin William? I replied, "I think, uncle Thomas, that there is a very simple way of settling that question. Do you remember any other occasion when you imagined yourself happy? Perhaps you can now repeat that operation? Try if you can! He pondered a moment.

He replied "I see it all." The adversary has been touching me. I was happy. No man can imagine himself to be so." Often until his death, he would dwell delighted upon that conversation and say

"Oh no! No imagination in the case! Jesus is precious to my soul!
Did not the two disciples on their way to Emmaus realize their "heart burn" with him, while he "talked" with them "by the way?"

Mrs. Dowdell adds. There was only one thing that I ever knew him to allow to distress his mind.
This was, when he felt himself, as he termed it to be "serving alone"— the Master for a time having withdrawn himself. He too found the Christian life a warfare. There were thorns in his path, doubts to harrass, trials of faith, temptations and heaviness. But he fought "a good fight" and has obtained the victory.

Wm. C. Thomas is not dead! Such men never die. They enter into "the rest prepared for the people of God." Even in this life the germs of their immortal joy spring visibly from their decaying mortality.

Their orbit circles out of our sight, beyond the horizon of time into the blissful amplitudes of eternal life!

Not dead! but "sleeping in Jesus!"
Radiant "crown of righteousness" is not for the dead! "Mark, the perfect man and behold the upright, for the end of that man is peace."

My Father's friend and my friend.
Farewell! "till that day!" "Let me die the death of the righteous, and let my last end be like his!"

I have not intended eulogy of the dear, good old apostolic man, who has ceased to move visibly among us. Those who knew him will approve what I have written. Those who understand our relations could not expect less. Those who know nothing of either, will perhaps tolerate a tribute to exemplary Christian worth, that looks as earnestly to the good of others, as to the fond desire of erecting a befitting memorial to a consecrated memory.

"Thus star by star declines,
Till all are passed away,
"As morning high and higher shines
To pure and perfect day,
"Nor sink those stars in empty night,
But hide themselves in heaven's own light."

Wm. F. SANFORD.
The Hills (near) Auburn, Lee, Co.
Ala., August 8th, 1867.

For the N. O. Christian Advocate.
A sad death, but a safe one.

The following just tribute to the memory of an excellent lady, is from the pen of Dr. Rice, Editor of the Presbyterian Index, of this city.

Much more might have been truthfully said of this estimable lady, but in this community where she was so well known, little was needed to emblazon her memory: her memorial is in the hearts of the many who knew her by her deeds of kindness and charity.

As stated below, Mrs. Carter had an humble and self-disparaging view of her religious attainments; and though she spent more time in prayer and reading the Bible than most Christians, such was her ideal of Christian character, that she always adjudged herself below it.

And though she had been for three years a member of our church on probation, she had never felt that she ought to come formally into full membership. Yet she exhibited the most indubitable evidence of a work of grace in her heart. But as Dr. R. States, that assurance she had so long and earnestly sought in life, came graciously to her support in death. "Do not weep for me, I am going to heaven." Such words of confidence she had never spoken before; but now, under the hand of death, the Lord gave her faith to use them!

"They that seek shall find," saith the Lord. J. HAMMON.
Mobile, Aug. 15th, 1867.

Death of Mrs. Dr. Jesse Carter.
Never have our feelings been more excited or our sympathies more profoundly stirred, than by the sad dispensation of Providence toward the family of our beloved brother and friend, Dr. Jesse Carter.

About two o'clock in the morning of August 10th, Mrs. Carter thought that she heard some thief or burglar in the house, she went a part of the way down the stairs, and listening she became more fully convinced that her apprehensions were well founded. She then went to the room adjoining her own, where her son Jesse was sleeping, he having occupied that room on account of an attack of sickness, in order that he might receive his mother's watchful care in case he should grow worse. She approached his bed in silence, lest the attention of the thief, whom she supposed to be in the house, should be attracted by the sound of her voice. Approaching the bed on which her son lay asleep she threw up the mosquito bar and seized him with both hands to awaken him. The family were convinced that several attempts had been made, previously, to break into the house, and the young man therefore slept with a small pistol under his pillow. Feeling his mother's hands upon him, and thus roused suddenly from a sound sleep, deepened by the action of opium which had been prescribed for him by his physician, he suddenly drew the pistol and fired, calling at the same time his mother, that there was robbers in the house. He continued to cry out robbers, robbers, until the screams of his sister, who had a better understanding of the fatal mistake, and the calm assurance of his mother that it was she who had been shot, roused him to a sense of the dread calamity which had befallen them.

The little pistol ball, which hardly seemed sufficient to have inflicted any serious injury, had penetrated

the neck, and running to the right, had severed the carotid artery, so that she died from bleeding in about ten minutes. She alone was calm and self-possessed, and it was she herself who gave to the afflicted family a full explanation of the whole occurrence. She related every circumstance as calmly and clearly as she could have done if speaking of another. We will not draw the veil from that most touching and tender scene. It is enough to say that she seemed to take in,

at a glance, the whole case, in all its relations. She assured her son in the tenderest manner that she had nothing to forgive. That she understood perfectly the nature of the accident. With characteristic self-forgetfulness she spent her last moments in the kindest efforts to comfort her poor boy, and to shield him from blame. She said just the things which when recalled to mind would tend to deepen the tenderness while they would mitigate the bitterness of his grief.

With almost her latest breath she made her sister understand that she had roused him by taking hold of him without speaking, or endeavoring to awaken him by her voice.

She passed away so peacefully and calmly that her friends thought that she had only fainted; but when the physicians, who had been hastily summoned, arrived, they found that her pure, unselfish spirit had fled.

We now turn from these and seek, to recall pleasing memories of our friend. Having had the most favorable opportunities of knowing her well, as a favored inmate of her house, we can truly say, that she was the most unselfish person, whom we have ever known.

Of her religious life we could say much, but a word must suffice. Although often doubtful of her own spiritual state, she exhibited many of the most attractive graces of the Christian character. She sincerely sought the Lord, with strong faith in the truth of his word, and none who knew her could doubt that the most beautiful and lovely traits of her character were the fruits of grace in the heart. When the last trying hour came so suddenly, she calmly and confidently spoke of going to heaven, as to a happy home where she was sure of a joyful welcome.

Religious Intelligence.

REVIVALS IN ARKANSAS.—We make the following extract from the Arkansas Christian Advocate of the 5th inst.

Please say to the friends of Zion that we have just closed an interesting meeting at Shoal Creek, on the Roseville circuit which lasted eight days resulting in 41 conversions, and twenty-nine accessions to the M. E. Church South.

The members of the church were also greatly revived, and a number of penitents were left at the altar, some of them deeply affected.

While the Lord continues to bless us and revive his work among us, we will continue to publish the interesting news, to the lovers of Zion, through the Advocate. I commenced a meeting at Russell's S. H.

Friday the 26th, which closed last night. It was indeed a time of great preciousness. The Lord was with us in convicting, converting and sanctifying power. There were a goodly number of conversions and seventeen joined the church.

We had a glorious time on Bayou Metre Circuit at Cypress valley.
We had 11 accessions and several conversions as bright as I ever saw.

The church was greatly revived.

REVIVAL IN BENTONVILLE ARKANSAS.
The Rev. S. H. Buchanan reports in the Banner of Peace, an interesting revival in the Cumberland churches in Bentonville, and at Pea Ridge, in the month of June. A meeting of eleven days at the former place, resulted in twenty-four professions of religion, and twenty-two accessions to the church, and at the latter place there were twelve additions.

is where we are glad, both in temporal as well as in spiritual matters. While He sends a Spirit in refreshing showers upon the Church and people, He is also blessing us with refreshing showers of rain, which are making the earth yield an abundant increase.—Cen-tersville Express.

A NEW TRANSLATION.—According to the Halifax Witness, the Rev.
Donald Morrison, missionary of the Presbyterian Church of Nova Scotia, has recently rendered the Gospel of St. Mark into the Vernacular of the Island, and the people have received it with unfeigned satisfaction. Other portions will now be prepared, and it is hoped that in a few years there may be a translation of the entire New Testament.

The portion published was printed at Sydney.

LUTHERAN.—JUBILEE YEAR.—On the 31st of October, it will be 350 years since Luther nailed his Theses to the door of the Castle church at Wittenburg. The Joint Synod of Ohio has determined to celebrate this 7th Jubilee by calling upon all the members of their churches to make thank-offerings unto the Lord for the Reformation and its invaluable blessings. These donations are to be devoted to the endowment of Capital University and the Theological Seminary at Columbus.

FRIENDS.—At the recent annual meetings of the Society of Friends, held in London, it was reported that there were 6474 males and

PUBLISHING COMMITTEES.

FOR MOBILE CONFERENCE:

Rev. J. Hamilton, D.D.,
Rev. A. H. Mitchell, D.D.,
Rev. Theo. W. Dorman, D.D.

FOR MONTGOMERY CONFERENCE:

Rev. M. S. Andrews,
Rev. William A. Shepard,
Rev. J. E. Cottrell.

FOR MISSISSIPPI CONFERENCE:

Rev. W. H. Watkins, D.D.,
Rev. H. H. Montgomery,
Rev. William P. Barton.

FOR LOUISIANA CONFERENCE:

Rev. J. C. Keener, D.D.,
Rev. J. E. Walker, D.D.,
Rev. Linus Parker.

New Orleans:

SATURDAY, AUGUST 24, 1867.

HOW TO SEND MONEY.—We are frequently receiving enquiries upon this point. We have scarcely lost anything by the mails, and consider them safe. The risk at any rate will be ours.

WE ARE STILL ASKED shall we forward money by mail? Answer, YES. The Agent will notice, as above, that the risk is not his.

TO SUBSCRIBERS.—Any person wishing to subscribe for this paper can do so, by paying the Methodist preacher in the circuit, and forwarding to us his receipt for three dollars, with the address of the subscriber upon it, stating Post office, State, Circuit, and Conference. The receipt ought to be taken in duplicate.

HEALTH OF THE CITY.—For the week ending Sunday, 18th, there were 26 deaths from yellow fever. Since that date the deaths from this disease have averaged from 10 to 12 per day.

New Advertisements.

SOMERVILLE FEMALE INSTITUTE. Dr. R. H. Rivers is at the head of this School—a fact which sufficiently commends and endorses the institution. The situation is in one of the most delightful and salubrious parts of Tennessee. Those to whom the school is accessible need look no farther, for the best of facilities for the education of their daughters. Few men are as well fitted by scholastic attainments, and long experience as Dr. Rivers for the education of young ladies.

PABHAM & BLUNT.—The advertisement of this firm is renewed in this week's issue. These gentlemen are worthy of all confidence and patronage. The least that we can say for them is, that we wish we had a hundred bales of the staple to consign to them. They would be well sold and faithfully accounted for.

DOLBEAR COMMERCIAL COLLEGE. Our readers are referred to the advertisement of this institution. It is of long standing and known throughout the South. It has, indeed, a national reputation, and its graduates are found in all the circles of business and commerce. A diploma from the Dolbear Commercial College is one of the best testimonials of competency for business, and will go far to ensure its possessor a respectable and lucrative situation. We are disposed to think that no education is complete, without a thorough knowledge of accounts and business. We know of no institution which affords greater facilities for acquiring a thorough business education.

PORT GIBSON COLLEGIATE ACADEMY.—We call attention to the advertisement of this institution. President Wright is known to be an excellent and successful teacher of youth. He has had long experience. We have often heard parents speak in commendation of the Port Gibson Academy.

THE CONFERENCE COLLECTION.

The original object of this collection was to make up the deficiencies in the claims of the effective preachers, and to meet the disciplinary allowance of the superannuated preachers, and of the widows and orphans of preachers who have died in the regular itinerant work. In most of the Conferences, we believe, the deficiencies of effective preachers are thrown out, and the money raised is divided amongst the widows, orphans, and superannuates. With these discrimination is allowed, and the Board of Finance of each Annual Conference is to distribute the moneys collected "according to their best judgment of their several necessities."

In our present Discipline we have the word salary in place of old term allowance. "Quarterage," and "quarterage claim," have no longer existence or significance in the financial economy of our Church. There is, therefore, no amount fixed by the law of the Church, and the only principle by which the funds are to be applied is exhibited in question 19 of the regular Minute business. "What amounts are necessary?" and in section VI, on the support of the ministry, where "their several necessities" determine the distribution. So meagre are the collections for this fund that our Boards of Finance are compelled to give the words "necessary" and "necessities" their most rigid construction, and are then rarely able to pay more than a small per cent. of what, under this severe discrimination, they have allowed.

None but the very necessitous are generally allowed anything, and they do not usually get one-half of the amount they are known to require. And this statement applies under the old standard of claims, when the superannuate and his wife were never allowed more than $150 each; widows $150, and orphans a mere pittance according to age. These sums are likely still to determine the maximum of "their necessities," when it is evident that they fall far short of anything like the barest support.

We have not the statistics at hand to enable us to determine how many claimants there are, but within the limits of our circulation there are a good many. We make an appeal for them, because we know their poverty and dependence, and because they cannot speak for themselves. They are looking to the Church which justly owes them a support, and they ought not to be disappointed. We have often felt shame as well as grief at the Conference, when the names of these worn-out veterans have been called, and when the list of widows and orphans is passing through the annual sifting. Infirm old age, desolate widowhood, helpless orphanage, and nothing in the treasury to send cheerfulness and comfort to their sorrowful hearts and impoverished homes. This class is probably more in need of help now, than in other years. They partake deeply of the troubles of the times, and their dependence is more absolute, their claims more imperative than ever.

If one collection must give way to another, let this have the preference. We believe no other object needs to suffer by urging this, but if it be so, let the Conference fund be secured. It is a matter of most pressing urgency, and we have confidence in the justice as well as the generosity of the Methodist people. At any rate the preachers can do their duty, present these claims, and take up collections in every church to meet them. Our worn-out elders in the ministry have a right to ask this effort at our hands, and our brethren who have fallen in the work, have left their wives and children to our care. No trust can be more sacred, no obligation more binding.

May they not look to us in vain. No congregation or individual is worthy of our communion who will not respond to an appeal on this subject, nor ought the character of any pastor to pass without censure, who has neglected to press this matter upon the attention of his people.

HOMEWARD.

There has been quite a revival of Camp Meetings in Maryland as well as farther North. The months of August and September will be taken up by the Southern Methodists, of Maryland, in attending these long established and well-tried means of church enlargement. A protracted meeting is a neighborhood affair, but camp-meetings bring several counties together. They are as great an institution for keeping a congregation constantly under fire as was the Jewish feast of Tabernacles. The original style of camping has been modified, throughout the North and Middle States, by introducing canvases instead of board tents, and by allowing visitors to entertain themselves. Huge boarding tents are provided for transient persons; and combination tents of individuals, belonging to several circuits and stations, making up the encampment, leave nothing for the ordinary tenter to do but take care of his own family, and go to the stand at the sound of the horn. The moral power of this sort of meeting is much less than with us. Where there are no boarding tents, but every tent holder for the time becomes a host, and with the zeal of a politician goes out and compels everybody on the ground to come in and partake of "the fat and the sweet," three times a day, "strangers" sit down gladly, and are put in immediate sympathy with the meeting, first of all, through the Christian grace of hospitality. This costs a little more than the take-care-of-yourself plan, but the yield is many fold greater. Where every man feels himself a guest, he is put upon his best behavior, "rules" are superfluous, and the word of Him who gives "bread to the eater" has "free course," and accomplishes its proper work. The people have lost none of their ancient interest in camp-meetings, judging by those we have attended of late. At the Southern Methodist Baltimore Camp there were about two acres of people present at the Sabbath preaching, and but for rain on Friday and Saturday the attendance would have been even greater. About the time this camp was fairly under way, we were unfortunately obliged to bid it adieu. We should have greatly enjoyed attending upon the ministrations of the preachers present. They are a noble body of godly men.

Leaving those behind as dear to us as our own blood, some of whom it is scarcely probable we shall ever again see, we face toward home, via the west. Soon night closes in on us, while the train presses with unrelenting speed around the dizzy curves and rocky sides of the Cumberland mountains. Far up, amid the solitary shadows and mist covered heights of the Alleghenies, the moon rode as rapidly as we, and flashed upon the streams, which at the hour of midnight were stealthily making their way from the cheerless haunts of the fir to the smiling slopes of the Atlantic, or to the rich valleys of the Gulf. The morning broke upon us as we were about leaving the mountains; a few spurs remained, and near their tops we saw thin clouds moving slowly up their sides, lingering among the branches of the hemlock, like spirits called away, but unwilling to go.

The sublimer the scenery the more matter-of-fact the people that are about. The last greatest effort of poetry having vainly appealed to their nature, they are given up to the iron seam and the coal shaft. It is a mercy, we judge, if a man must live in a mine, that he have the least possible romance in his composition. The world must have coal and iron, and therefore, men that delight in mere bread and meat; who seek it not in golden grain, and autumnal harvest fields, but are willing to find it in the lower parts of the earth, where fire is turned up in stones. These miners make a scanty living, and if the consumer could only see how the producer lives, he would more cheerfully pay the price of their products. When a man foregoes the light of the blessed sun during any considerable part of his life, he ought to be well paid for it.

The locomotive beats with equal steps through large towns and small ones; it disdains the pursuer; it says, "aha, aha," amid the echoes of the hills, and the villagers of the plain; it moves without weariness, and stops without resting; it does not groan as the camel, nor is it uncertain as the elephant; its vast elemental power and speed are subservient to the touch of a single hand; and if a Roman Consul could have seen it, he would have declared it to have been a more terrible arm for the conquest of the world, than the Numidian cavalry of Hannibal. After traveling for days and nights upon a road of iron, at something like the speed of a planet, the reader must allow us to breathe, and indulge in our admiration for the motive power. By this fire-breathing, iron-limbed creature, whose wheels move as if they stood still, we found ourselves transported from Baltimore to St. Louis.

Here we have enterprise and dust in abundance. St. Louis looks at New York, as a fighting boy would look at Morrissey. She feels stirring all through her a determination to be second to none. When the Pacific Rail Road is completed, she will be the centre of great lines of commerce, by water or by rail, whether you start at Pekin or at London. The city abounds in factories of various kinds. It is the great mart for the fertile regions drained by the Missouri and Mississippi tributaries; laws of motion are in her favor, which no amount of capital, or human ingenuity can successfully compete with. These natural advantages will tell immensely, when railroad enterprises shall have equalized their benefits throughout the whole country; they may be held in abeyance for a while, but must alternately assert their superior force. But a few years ago, this city was laid out, now it looks to be larger than New Orleans. We were glad to find that this spirit of going ahead was not monopolized by the "world," the church here has a grand share of zeal for the house of the Lord. The preachers are working, thinking men, ready to sow in the morning, and in the evening; grey-headed men not willing to gather up their feet until a great deal more work is done. The book house of Bro. Pinkard resounds with the clasp and click of the printing press; Dr. McAnally does not spare himself, not ever will, until the Northern Methodist Missionary Agents in the Missouri will become honestly the ministers of peace. The stationed preachers are doing good work, and extending their borders. A fine church is now in the course of erection. I learn that there are laymen here who feel that they have made enough, and are now doing business purely on the Lord's account. For how many years have such men been waited for, longed for! Why not work for God? Why should hundreds of thousands be heaped together to curse with superfluity, or luxury, or covetousness, those for whom God wills only good, and whose present and spiritual welfare is consulted in the command to bring our tithes into His storehouse. We never knew a rich man who gave one-tenth of all his gains to God. No wonder that the riches of those who profess to be his people, "make to themselves wings and fly away as an eagle towards heaven." When a number of men, or even a few men, shall be found, who will farm, or buy and sell, who will toil day and night, keep a fair share of their profits for themselves, and give the rest to education, to missions, and to the poor; then Christianity will vindicate her claims; and then "Wisdom shall be justified of her children."

EPIDEMIC AT NEW IBERIA.—Rev. A. E. Goodwyn writes us as follows, under date of Aug. 17.

We are in the midst of a yellow fever epidemic. There are perhaps a hundred cases in town and suburbs, yet we have but one or two deaths a day. At first the deaths averaged from 4 to 7 a day. We have had about 35 deaths in twelve days.

LATEST NEWS.

We have space for only the most important sections of the Order relating to the election.

HEADQUARTERS FIFTH MILITARY DISTRICT, New Orleans, Aug. 17 1867.
(Special Orders No. 119.)

1. In compliance with section 2, of the act of Congress, published in General Orders No. 33, War Department, Adjutant General's office, current series, notice is hereby given that an election will be held in the State of Louisiana on the 27th and 28th days of September next, to determine whether a Convention shall be held, and for delegates thereto, "for the purpose of establishing a constitution and civil government for the State loyal to the Union."

2. The Convention will be composed of ninety-eight members, that being the number of the most numerous branch of the State Legislature in the year 1860. The total number of registered voters in the State is 127,639, which, being divided by the number of delegates, gives 1302 as the number of voters entitled to one delegate.

3. Commencing fourteen days before the election, Boards of Registers will, after having given reasonable public notice of the time and place thereof, revise for a period of five days the registration lists, and upon being satisfied that any person not entitled thereto has been registered, will strike the name of such person from the list, and such persons shall not be allowed to vote. The Boards will, also, during the same period, add to the registry the names of all persons who at that time possess the qualifications required by law, who have not been already registered. No person shall be entitled to be registered or to vote by reason of any executive pardon or amnesty for any act or thing which, without such pardon or amnesty, would disqualify him for registration or voting.

4. The election will be by ballot, and will be conducted in the manner and according to the rules governing ordinary elections of a similar character. Each ballot bearing the name of the delegate voted for, will have written or printed upon it the words: "For a Convention" or, "Against a Convention." Two days will be given for voting.

WASHINGTON, Aug. 20.—The following order is published.

HEADQUARTERS OF THE ARMY, Adjutant General's Office, Washington, Aug. 19, 1867.
(General Orders No. 75.)

1. The following orders have been received from the President:

EXECUTIVE MANSION, Washington, Aug. 19, '67.
Major Gen. George H. Thomas is hereby assigned to the command of the Fifth Military District, created by the act of Congress, passed on 2d day of March, 1867. Major Gen. P. H. Sheridan is hereby assigned to the Department of the Missouri. The Secretary of War ad interim will give the necessary instructions to carry this order into effect.

ANDREW JOHNSON.
2. In pursuance of the foregoing order of the President of the United States, Major Gen. G. H. Thomas will, on receipt of this order, turn over his present command to the officer next in rank to himself, and proceed to New Orleans, La., to relieve Major Gen. P. H. Sheridan of the command of the Fifth Military District.

3. Major Gen. P. H. Sheridan on being relieved from the command of the Fifth Military District by Major Gen. G. H. Thomas, will proceed to Fort Leavenworth, Kansas, and will relieve Major Gen. W. S. Hancock in the command of the Department of the Missouri.

4. Major Gen. W. S. Hancock, on being relieved from the command of the Department of the Missouri by Major Gen. P. H. Sheridan, will proceed to Louisville, Ky., and assume command of the Department of the Cumberland.

5. Major Gen. G. H. Thomas will continue to execute all orders he may find in force in the Fifth Military District at the time of his assuming command of it, unless authorized by the General of the army to annul, alter or modify them.

6. Major Gen. Sheridan, before relieving Major Gen. Hancock, will report in person at these headquarters. By order of Gen. Grant:

E. D. TOWNSEND, A. A. G.

WASHINGTON NEWS.

WASHINGTON, Aug. 21.—The Postmaster General has ordered the mail route between Vicksburg and Mobile (?) reopened for competition the contractor having forfeited the route is 376 miles, twice as in good boats.

Signor Marcella Cerruti, the Italian Minister, has arrived. Half a dozen volunteer officers ranging from captain to colonel were mustered out to-day; also chaplains.

Internal revenue receipts $223,000.

Gen. Howard has had no notice of his reported removal. Secretary of War ad interim Howard during a recent illness that he had heard nothing of the President visits the Ball Schutzenfest to-morrow.

Official returns of the Convention show Helm's majority the Radical candidate to be 54, and over the Third Party candidate 74,000. Majority over both. The business portion of Newburg, N. Y., has been destroyed fire.

Gen. Sickles's refusal to obey a Executive order restraining from interfering with process of the Supreme Court was discussed in Cabinet yesterday. The reason for stating that he was superseded unless he obeys.

LOUISVILLE, Aug. 21.—Major Geo. H. Thomas, with his staff, this afternoon for New Orleans assume command of the Fifth Military District, vice Sheridan, relieved.

WASHINGTON, Aug. 17.—P. writes Grant two solid columns. The published letter of O. H. furnishes the text. The following paragraph occurs:

"It is, however, my duty to that in my judgment the course of affairs in the Southern States should reconstruction be satisfactorily accomplished, in a less or modified degree, of now exists in Tennessee, some measures are adopted to the country of the turbulent disloyal leaders of the reaction. Whilst these persons remain in the country to exert a baleful influence they undoubtedly possess, there can be no peace."

AUGUST, Ga., Aug. 17.—The graph and Messenger of the Georgia conservative editors of the Third Military District to the Macon on the 23d inst. for the purpose of taking some action in accordance to Gen. Pope's order, intelligence of Atlanta, and the Sentinel of Augusta, the proposed meeting.

HAVERSTON, Aug. 20.—A. W. of Harrison county, is appointed sheriff in place of J. R. P. absconded.

All distinctions on account of race or previous condition of railroads or other chartered lines which are common carriers forbidden by military order.

The yellow fever is in the Thirty-four internments on the among whom are A. W. Ogle, Mrs. Capt. W. S. Albert, of York.

THE CEREMONY OF "TAKING SION."—From the New York of the 14th, we copy the following.

We learn from our San Francisco exchanges that possession is taken of the new Territory of Alaska with considerable. The sailing ship-of-war is to be recaptured and put to be used as guardship in harbor. The steamer Commander Edward Simpson, Resaca, Commander Joseph Ford, from Panama, with the cola and Saginaw, now at San Francisco, will form a fleet under command of Admiral Thatcher, will proceed to Sitka to be at the formal taking possession of the late Russian America. The steam cutter Lincoln, a port, left recently with a coast party, who also will present on the event referred above. The latter will be during the remainder of the in surveying portions of the of Alaska, returning with the commencement of winter.

European Intelligence.
LONDON, Aug. 21.—Parliament prorogued. The Queen's speech was read by a commission. It says there are no longer signs of war in Europe. A reasonable conspiracy in Ireland failed. The revolt was almost without bloodshed. The valor of the troops, vigilance, police, and loyalty of the people, and the law was vindicated. The sacrifice of human life refers to a satisfactory position with the United States. It congratulates Parliament and the try upon the passage of the bill and other beneficial measures.

PARIS, Aug. 21.—The press of this city, declares a conference of Emperors at Vienna is long peace to be. Another gathering of the sort is expected here. It is Victoria and Francis Joseph meet Napoleon in October.

UNIVERSITY.
CHAPPELL HILL, TEXAS.
Board of Trustees take pleasure in announcing to the people of Texas and Louisiana, the organization of the University, under the following faculty.

Prof. A. M. Pratt, and Prof. of Greek and Latin Languages.
Prof. M. D. Pratt, of Mathematics.
Prof. M. D. Pratt, of Biblical Literature and Moral Science.
Prof. M. D. Pratt, of Natural Science and Mineralogy.
Prof. M. D. Pratt, of the Department of Agriculture.
Prof. M. D. Pratt, of the Department of Commerce.
Prof. M. D. Pratt, of the Department of Law.
Prof. M. D. Pratt, of the Department of Medicine.
Prof. M. D. Pratt, of the Department of Surgery.
Prof. M. D. Pratt, of the Department of Anatomy.
Prof. M. D. Pratt, of the Department of Physiology.
Prof. M. D. Pratt, of the Department of Zoology.
Prof. M. D. Pratt, of the Department of Botany.
Prof. M. D. Pratt, of the Department of Geology.
Prof. M. D. Pratt, of the Department of Astronomy.
Prof. M. D. Pratt, of the Department of Meteorology.
Prof. M. D. Pratt, of the Department of History.
Prof. M. D. Pratt, of the Department of Political Science.
Prof. M. D. Pratt, of the Department of Social Science.
Prof. M. D. Pratt, of the Department of Economics.
Prof. M. D. Pratt, of the Department of Statistics.
Prof. M. D. Pratt, of the Department of Jurisprudence.
Prof. M. D. Pratt, of the Department of Philosophy.
Prof. M. D. Pratt, of the Department of Theology.
Prof. M. D. Pratt, of the Department of Sacred Literature.
Prof. M. D. Pratt, of the Department of Church History.
Prof. M. D. Pratt, of the Department of Church Polity.
Prof. M. D. Pratt, of the Department of Church Administration.
Prof. M. D. Pratt, of the Department of Church Music.
Prof. M. D. Pratt, of the Department of Church Art.
Prof. M. D. Pratt, of the Department of Church Architecture.
Prof. M. D. Pratt, of the Department of Church Ornamentation.
Prof. M. D. Pratt, of the Department of Church Furniture.
Prof. M. D. Pratt, of the Department of Church Vestments.
Prof. M. D. Pratt, of the Department of Church Emblems.
Prof. M. D. Pratt, of the Department of Church Symbols.
Prof. M. D. Pratt, of the Department of Church Rituals.
Prof. M. D. Pratt, of the Department of Church Ceremonies.
Prof. M. D. Pratt, of the Department of Church Festivals.
Prof. M. D. Pratt, of the Department of Church Seasons.
Prof. M. D. Pratt, of the Department of Church Days.
Prof. M. D. Pratt, of the Department of Church Hours.
Prof. M. D. Pratt, of the Department of Church Seasons.
Prof. M. D. Pratt, of the Department of Church Days.
Prof. M. D. Pratt, of the Department of Church Hours.

COAL! COAL! COAL!!!
WOOD! WOOD! WOOD!!!
Yard on Josephine street, bet. Pryor and Coliseum
MR. GEO. O. BEATTY
Would inform his friends and the public generally that he is now prepared to fill orders for COAL and WOOD, and hopes, by giving his personal attention, to secure and merit their patronage.
Best ASH WOOD delivered at $10.
COAL OAK " " 9.
COAL $1.
Orders left at Yard, or Price Current office, 129 Gravier street; or Peter Williams, corner Jackson and Iberville streets, will meet with prompt attention.
Nov 1 1866

RACE, FOSTER & E. T. MERRICK,
Attorneys at Law,
CORNER OF CAMP STREET AND COMMERCIAL PLACE,
New Orleans.
sep15 1y

SUNDAY SCHOOL VISITOR.
112 CAMP STREET, NEW ORLEANS.
Our readers will be delighted to learn that this beautiful Sunday School Paper is to be resumed the first of January. It will be published by the S. M. Publishing House Nashville, Tennessee, and simultaneously at 112 Camp st., in this city. Those desiring the NEW ORLEANS EDITION should forward immediately to Rev. R. J. HARR, Agent, Lock Box 814, New Orleans.
SUBSCRIPTION PRICE FOR ONE YEAR.
For Single Copies.....each 50c
For any number less than 5.....50c
For any number over 5, and less than 25, to one address.....40c
For any number over 25.....30c
Will ship by Boat, Express or Mail as directed.
Cash in Advance.

EVERY SATURDAY:
A Journal of Choice Reading, Selected From Foreign Current Literature.
This popular Weekly reproduces promptly for American readers the latest and most readable portions of European periodicals. These comprise Serial Tales, Short Stories, Essays, Biographical and Descriptive, Poems, Sketches of Travel and Adventure, Literary Intelligence, and popular papers on Science, Translations from the admirable French Periodicals are a prominent feature.
Among the Periodicals from which selections are frequently made are: Once a Week, Chambers Journal, All the Year Round, The Spectator, The Reader, The Athenaeum, The Examiner, The London Saturday, and Fortnightly Review; Fraser's, Blackwoods, Macmillan's, the Victoria, and many Monthly, and London Society Magazines, Revue des Deux Mondes, L'Evénement, Le Soleil.
Among the authors represented in EVERY SATURDAY are many of the wisest and most distinguished writers of Europe, as Henry Kingsley, Anthony Trollope, Matthew Arnold, Charles Kingsley, Edmund Yates, Frances Power Cobbe, Christina G. Rossetti, Author of "John Halifax," George Sand, Edmund About, Alexandre Dumas, Miss Oliphant, J. Ruffin, Alexander Smith, A. C. Swinburne, Robert Buchanan, Jean Ingelow, and many of its contents.
EVERY SATURDAY is intended for Town and Country, for the President, the Seaside, the Railway, and the Steamboat. The Publishers will continue to send it to all classes of cultivated and intelligent readers by the freshness and variety of its contents.
EVERY SATURDAY contains weekly 40 double-column large octavo pages.
TERMS.—Single Number, 10 cents; Yearly Subscription, $5.00 in advance; $4.00 a year to subscribers for any other periodical published by Ticknor and Fields. Monthly Parts, 50 cents a number. Yearly subscription, same as for Weekly Part.
TICKNOR AND FIELDS,
Publishers, Boston.
Feb 9

W. H. WATKINS, President.
HIGH A COLD, OR A SORE THROAT
Immediate attention, and should be allowed to continue,
the Lungs, a Permanent Throat Disease, or Consumption
result.
THE LONDON QUARTERLY REVIEW (Cont.)
THE EDINBURGH REVIEW (Whig)
THE WESTMINSTER REVIEW (Radical)
THE NORTH BRITISH REVIEW (Free Church)
AND
BLACKWOOD'S EDINBURGH MAGAZINE (Tory)
These foreign periodicals are regularly published by us in the same style as before. Those who know them and who have long subscribed to them, need no reminder; those who the civil war of the last few years has deprived of their once welcome supply of the best periodical literature, will be glad to have them again within their reach; and those who may never yet have met with them, will assuredly be well pleased to receive accredited reports of the progress of European science and literature.
TERMS FOR 1867.
For any two of the Reviews.....$4 per annum
For any three of the Reviews.....10
For all four of the Reviews.....12
For Blackwoods's Magazine.....4
For Blackwood and one Review.....7
For Blackwood and any two of the Reviews.....10
For Blackwood and 3 of the Reviews 13
For Blackwood and the 4 Reviews 15
A discount of twenty per cent. will be allowed to clubs of four or more persons. Thus, four copies of Blackwood, or of one Review, will be sent to one address for $12.80. Four copies of the four Reviews and Blackwood, for $48.00, and so on.
When sent by mail, the postage to any part of the United States will be but Twenty-four Cents a year for "Blackwood," and but Eight Cents a year for each of the Reviews.
PREMIUMS TO NEW SUBSCRIBERS.
New Subscribers to any two of the above periodicals for 1867 will be entitled to receive, gratis, any one of the Four Reviews for 1866. New Subscribers to all five of the Periodicals for 1867 will receive, gratis, Blackwood or any two of the "Four Reviews" for 1866.
These premiums will be allowed on all new subscriptions received before April 1, 1867.
Subscribers may also obtain back numbers at the following reduced rates, viz.:
The North British from January, 1863, to December, 1866, inclusive; the Edinburgh and the Westminster from April, 1864 to December, 1866, inclusive; and the London Quarterly for the years 1865 and 1866, at the rate of $1.50 a year for each of any Review; also Blackwood for 1866, for $2.50.
Neither premiums to Subscribers, nor discount to Clubs, nor reduced prices for back numbers, can be allowed, unless the money is remitted direct to the Publishers.
No premiums can be given to Clubs.
The Leonard Scott Publishing Co.,
35 Walker street, N. Y.

GOOD SAMARITAN COOKING STOVE.
Patented serious objection to Stove Ovens entirely overcome in the
GOOD SAMARITAN,
Application of a New Principle of heating, known by the name of the Samaritan, by the use of the Ventilation of the Stove, so that a large supply of fuel is never used, as the Oven can be heated by the heat of the different operations of Cooking, and with a saving of fuel of
at Thirty per Cent. as Compared with any other Stove.
The most perfect Baking Stove now in use. For the Tin Kitchen or Roaster, generally known as the "Dutch Oven," is most admirably adapted for use. That meats roasted in it are always perfect in every way, and that the Stove Ovens, we believe in, and we therefore do not deem it necessary to dwell upon these advantages, which are a most complete arrangement for the front hearth, thus enabling the cook to successfully carry on without interruption the other work, and thus avoiding the objection made to those Stoves which require the cook to be continually present. One trial of this apparatus for the front hearth, as it works well, and we believe in it, is here described, and we are confident that a fair trial will satisfy them, that it is the most perfect Baking Stove ever invented.

THE LAND WE LOVE,
A Monthly Magazine Containing Eighty Pages.
DEVOTED TO
Literature, Agriculture, and General Intelligence, and containing reports of Battles, Incidents and Anecdotes of the War, never before published.
BY GEN. D. H. HILL,
LATE OF THE SOUTHERN ARMY.
This is the cheapest Magazine in the South, and it has reached an issue of 12,000 copies, monthly, in the first year of its existence. Its circulation embraces all the Territories and all the States except three of the North-Eastern. The services of such of the most talented writers of the country have been secured; and no article will be published, which has not real substantial merit. Engravings and illustrations will be introduced.
The Magazine aims to preserve a record of the heroism and endurance, the wit and humor of the Southern soldier.
PUBLISHED IN CHARLOTTE, N. C.,
By Hill, Irwin & Co.,
TERMS: Three dollars a year in advance. One dollar and a half for six months. Specimen copies twenty cents each. Subscriptions can be dated back, if desired.

THE SOUTHERN CULTIVATOR,
A Monthly Magazine of 40 pages; a Practical and Scientific newspaper, for the Farm, the Garden, and the Family Circle.
PRICE $2.00 PER ANNUM.
Published by
WM. N. WHITE,
Athens, Georgia.
Jy 13

W. H. HENNING & CO.,
Grocers and Commission Merchants,
85 and 97, CAMP STREET, NEW ORLEANS.
Offers to Families, Planters and Traders a full stock of Fancy and Staple Goods,
Also, a large lot of Coffee, Sugar, Molasses, Tobacco, Pork, Beef, Bacon, Salt, suitable for Plantation supplies,—all of which will be offered at the Most reasonable Rates.
Country orders will receive the most careful and prompt attention.
W. H. HENNING & CO.,
255 6m 85 and 97, Camp street, New Orleans

W. BLACKMAN'S COMMERCIAL COLLEGE, 136 Canal street, and 2 Charondelet street. Entrance on Charondelet. Open day and evening the entire year. Permanent teachers, practical teachers in all the various branches. The instruction is private to each student. Overgrown men and crippled soldiers taken for half price. Young men from the country can board with the principal, or in respectable families. English or French. For circulars, stating terms, etc., address
J. W. BLACKMAN, Principal.
H-ly

FOR RENT.
Lake shore Residence — at Ocean Springs directly fronting the beach: five rooms: wide galleries front and rear, forty-seven feet long; some heavy furniture in the house. Apply to the office of New Orleans Christian Advocate.

W. BLACKMAN'S COMMERCIAL COLLEGE, 136 Canal street, and 2 Charondelet street. Entrance on Charondelet. Open day and evening the entire year. Permanent teachers, practical teachers in all the various branches. The instruction is private to each student. Overgrown men and crippled soldiers taken for half price. Young men from the country can board with the principal, or in respectable families. English or French. For circulars, stating terms, etc., address
J. W. BLACKMAN, Principal.
H-ly

W. BLACKMAN'S COMMERCIAL COLLEGE, 136 Canal street, and 2 Charondelet street. Entrance on Charondelet. Open day and evening the entire year. Permanent teachers, practical teachers in all the various branches. The instruction is private to each student. Overgrown men and crippled soldiers taken for half price. Young men from the country can board with the principal, or in respectable families. English or French. For circulars, stating terms, etc., address
J. W. BLACKMAN, Principal.
H-ly

W. BLACKMAN'S COMMERCIAL COLLEGE, 136 Canal street, and 2 Charondelet street. Entrance on Charondelet. Open day and evening the entire year. Permanent teachers, practical teachers in all the various branches. The instruction is private to each student. Overgrown men and crippled soldiers taken for half price. Young men from the country can board with the principal, or in respectable families. English or French. For circulars, stating terms, etc., address
J. W. BLACKMAN, Principal.
H-ly

W. BLACKMAN'S COMMERCIAL COLLEGE, 136 Canal street, and 2 Charondelet street. Entrance on Charondelet. Open day and evening the entire year. Permanent teachers, practical teachers in all the various branches. The instruction is private to each student. Overgrown men and crippled soldiers taken for half price. Young men from the country can board with the principal, or in respectable families. English or French. For circulars, stating terms, etc., address
J. W. BLACKMAN, Principal.
H-ly

W. BLACKMAN'S COMMERCIAL COLLEGE, 136 Canal street, and 2 Charondelet street. Entrance on Charondelet. Open day and evening the entire year. Permanent teachers, practical teachers in all the various branches. The instruction is private to each student. Overgrown men and crippled soldiers taken for half price. Young men from the country can board with the principal, or in respectable families. English or French. For circulars, stating terms, etc., address
J. W. BLACKMAN, Principal.
H-ly

W. BLACKMAN'S COMMERCIAL COLLEGE, 136 Canal street, and 2 Charondelet street. Entrance on Charondelet. Open day and evening the entire year. Permanent teachers, practical teachers in all the various branches. The instruction is private to each student. Overgrown men and crippled soldiers taken for half price. Young men from the country can board with the principal, or in respectable families. English or French. For circulars, stating terms, etc., address
J. W. BLACKMAN, Principal.
H-ly

W. BLACKMAN'S COMMERCIAL COLLEGE, 136 Canal street, and 2 Charondelet street. Entrance on Charondelet. Open day and evening the entire year. Permanent teachers, practical teachers in all the various branches. The instruction is private to each student. Overgrown men and crippled soldiers taken for half price. Young men from the country can board with the principal, or in respectable families. English or French. For circulars, stating terms, etc., address
J. W. BLACKMAN, Principal.
H-ly

W. BLACKMAN'S COMMERCIAL COLLEGE, 136 Canal street, and 2 Charondelet street. Entrance on Charondelet. Open day and evening the entire year. Permanent teachers, practical teachers in all the various branches. The instruction is private to each student. Overgrown men and crippled soldiers taken for half price. Young men from the country can board with the principal, or in respectable families. English or French. For circulars, stating terms, etc., address
J. W. BLACKMAN, Principal.
H-ly

W. BLACKMAN'S COMMERCIAL COLLEGE, 136 Canal street, and 2 Charondelet street. Entrance on Charondelet. Open day and evening the entire year. Permanent teachers, practical teachers in all the various branches. The instruction is private to each student. Overgrown men and crippled soldiers taken for half price. Young men from the country can board with the principal, or in respectable families. English or French. For circulars, stating terms, etc., address
J. W. BLACKMAN, Principal.
H-ly

W. BLACKMAN'S COMMERCIAL COLLEGE, 136 Canal street, and 2 Charondelet street. Entrance on Charondelet. Open day and evening the entire year. Permanent teachers, practical teachers in all the various branches. The instruction is private to each student. Overgrown men and crippled soldiers taken for half price. Young men from the country can board with the principal, or in respectable families. English or French. For circulars, stating terms, etc., address
J. W. BLACKMAN, Principal.
H-ly

W. BLACKMAN'S COMMERCIAL COLLEGE, 136 Canal street, and 2 Charondelet street. Entrance on Charondelet. Open day and evening the entire year. Permanent teachers, practical teachers in all the various branches. The instruction is private to each student. Overgrown men and crippled soldiers taken for half price. Young men from the country can board with the principal, or in respectable families. English or French. For circulars, stating terms, etc., address
J. W. BLACKMAN, Principal.
H-ly

W. BLACKMAN'S COMMERCIAL COLLEGE, 136 Canal street, and 2 Charondelet street. Entrance on Charondelet. Open day and evening the entire year. Permanent teachers, practical teachers in all the various branches. The instruction is private to each student. Overgrown men and crippled soldiers taken for half price. Young men from the country can board with the principal, or in respectable families. English or French. For circulars, stating terms, etc., address
J. W. BLACKMAN, Principal.
H-ly

W. BLACKMAN'S COMMERCIAL COLLEGE, 136 Canal street, and 2 Charondelet street. Entrance on Charondelet. Open day and evening the entire year. Permanent teachers, practical teachers in all the various branches. The instruction is private to each student. Overgrown men and crippled soldiers taken for half price. Young men from the country can board with the principal, or in respectable families. English or French. For circulars, stating terms, etc., address
J. W. BLACKMAN, Principal.
H-ly

W. BLACKMAN'S COMMERCIAL COLLEGE, 136 Canal street, and 2 Charondelet street. Entrance on Charondelet. Open day and evening the entire year. Permanent teachers, practical teachers in all the various branches. The instruction is private to each student. Overgrown men and crippled soldiers taken for half price. Young men from the country can board with the principal, or in respectable families. English or French. For circulars, stating terms, etc., address
J. W. BLACKMAN, Principal.
H-ly

W. BLACKMAN'S COMMERCIAL COLLEGE, 136 Canal street, and 2 Charondelet street. Entrance on Charondelet. Open day and evening the entire year. Permanent teachers, practical teachers in all the various branches. The instruction is private to each student. Overgrown men and crippled soldiers taken for half price. Young men from the country can board with the principal, or in respectable families. English or French. For circulars, stating terms, etc., address
J. W. BLACKMAN, Principal.
H-ly

W. BLACKMAN'S COMMERCIAL COLLEGE, 136 Canal street, and 2 Charondelet street. Entrance on Charondelet. Open day and evening the entire year. Permanent teachers, practical teachers in all the various branches. The instruction is private to each student. Overgrown men and crippled soldiers taken for half price. Young men from the country can board with the principal, or in respectable families. English or French. For circulars, stating terms, etc., address
J. W. BLACKMAN, Principal.
H-ly

COAL! COAL! COAL!!!
WOOD! WOOD! WOOD!!!
Yard on Josephine street, bet. Pryor and Coliseum
MR. GEO. O. BEATTY
Would inform his friends and the public generally that he is now prepared to fill orders for COAL and WOOD, and hopes, by giving his personal attention, to secure and merit their patronage.
Best ASH WOOD delivered at $10.
COAL OAK " " 9.
COAL $1.
Orders left at Yard, or Price Current office, 129 Gravier street; or Peter Williams, corner Jackson and Iberville streets, will meet with prompt attention.
Nov 1 1866

RACE, FOSTER & E. T. MERRICK,
Attorneys at Law,
CORNER OF CAMP STREET AND COMMERCIAL PLACE,
New Orleans.
sep15 1y

SUNDAY SCHOOL VISITOR.
112 CAMP STREET, NEW ORLEANS.
Our readers will be delighted to learn that this beautiful Sunday School Paper is to be resumed the first of January. It will be published by the S. M. Publishing House Nashville, Tennessee, and simultaneously at 112 Camp st., in this city. Those desiring the NEW ORLEANS EDITION should forward immediately to Rev. R. J. HARR, Agent, Lock Box 814, New Orleans.
SUBSCRIPTION PRICE FOR ONE YEAR.
For Single Copies.....each 50c
For any number less than 5.....50c
For any number over 5, and less than 25, to one address.....40c
For any number over 25.....30c
Will ship by Boat, Express or Mail as directed.
Cash in Advance.

EVERY SATURDAY:
A Journal of Choice Reading, Selected From Foreign Current Literature.
This popular Weekly reproduces promptly for American readers the latest and most readable portions of European periodicals. These comprise Serial Tales, Short Stories, Essays, Biographical and Descriptive, Poems, Sketches of Travel and Adventure, Literary Intelligence, and popular papers on Science, Translations from the admirable French Periodicals are a prominent feature.
Among the Periodicals from which selections are frequently made are: Once a Week, Chambers Journal, All the Year Round, The Spectator, The Reader, The Athenaeum, The Examiner, The London Saturday, and Fortnightly Review; Fraser's, Blackwoods, Macmillan's, the Victoria, and many Monthly, and London Society Magazines, Revue des Deux Mondes, L'Evénement, Le Soleil.
Among the authors represented in EVERY SATURDAY are many of the wisest and most distinguished writers of Europe, as Henry Kingsley, Anthony Trollope, Matthew Arnold, Charles Kingsley, Edmund Yates, Frances Power Cobbe, Christina G. Rossetti, Author of "John Halifax," George Sand, Edmund About, Alexandre Dumas, Miss Oliphant, J. Ruffin, Alexander Smith, A. C. Swinburne, Robert Buchanan, Jean Ingelow, and many of its contents.
EVERY SATURDAY is intended for Town and Country, for the President, the Seaside, the Railway, and the Steamboat. The Publishers will continue to send it to all classes of cultivated and intelligent readers by the freshness and variety of its contents.
EVERY SATURDAY contains weekly 40 double-column large octavo pages.
TERMS.—Single Number, 10 cents; Yearly Subscription, $5.00 in advance; $4.00 a year to subscribers for any other periodical published by Ticknor and Fields. Monthly Parts, 50 cents a number. Yearly subscription, same as for Weekly Part.
TICKNOR AND FIELDS,
Publishers, Boston.
Feb 9

W. H. WATKINS, President.
HIGH A COLD, OR A SORE THROAT
Immediate attention, and should be allowed to continue,
the Lungs, a Permanent Throat Disease, or Consumption
result.
THE LONDON QUARTERLY REVIEW (Cont.)
THE EDINBURGH REVIEW (Whig)
THE WESTMINSTER REVIEW (Radical)
THE NORTH BRITISH REVIEW (Free Church)
AND
BLACKWOOD'S EDINBURGH MAGAZINE (Tory)
These foreign periodicals are regularly published by us in the same style as before. Those who know them and who have long subscribed to them, need no reminder; those who the civil war of the last few years has deprived of their once welcome supply of the best periodical literature, will be glad to have them again within their reach; and those who may never yet have met with them, will assuredly be well pleased to receive accredited reports of the progress of European science and literature.
TERMS FOR 1867.
For any two of the Reviews.....$4 per annum
For any three of the Reviews.....10
For all four of the Reviews.....12
For Blackwoods's Magazine.....4
For Blackwood and one Review.....7
For Blackwood and any two of the Reviews.....10
For Blackwood and 3 of the Reviews 13
For Blackwood and the 4 Reviews 15
A discount of twenty per cent. will be allowed to clubs of four or more persons. Thus, four copies of Blackwood, or of one Review, will be sent to one address for $12.80. Four copies of the four Reviews and Blackwood, for $48.00, and so on.
When sent by mail, the postage to any part of the United States will be but Twenty-four Cents a year for "Blackwood," and but Eight Cents a year for each of the Reviews.
PREMIUMS TO NEW SUBSCRIBERS.
New Subscribers to any two of the above periodicals for 1867 will be entitled to receive, gratis, any one of the Four Reviews for 1866. New Subscribers to all five of the Periodicals for 1867 will receive, gratis, Blackwood or any two of the "Four Reviews" for 1866.
These premiums will be allowed on all new subscriptions received before April 1, 1867.
Subscribers may also obtain back numbers at the following reduced rates, viz.:
The North British from January, 1863, to December, 1866, inclusive; the Edinburgh and the Westminster from April, 1864 to December, 1866, inclusive; and the London Quarterly for the years 1865 and 1866, at the rate of $1.50 a year for each of any Review; also Blackwood for 1866, for $2.50.
Neither premiums to Subscribers, nor discount to Clubs, nor reduced prices for back numbers, can be allowed, unless the money is remitted direct to the Publishers.
No premiums can be given to Clubs.
The Leonard Scott Publishing Co.,
35 Walker street, N. Y.

GOOD SAMARITAN COOKING STOVE.
Patented serious objection to Stove Ovens entirely overcome in the
GOOD SAMARITAN,
Application of a New Principle of heating, known by the name of the Samaritan, by the use of the Ventilation of the Stove, so that a large supply of fuel is never used, as the Oven can be heated by the heat of the different operations of Cooking, and with a saving of fuel of
at Thirty per Cent. as Compared with any other Stove.
The most perfect Baking Stove now in use. For the Tin Kitchen or Roaster, generally known as the "Dutch Oven," is most admirably adapted for use. That meats roasted in it are always perfect in every way, and that the Stove Ovens, we believe in, and we therefore do not deem it necessary to dwell upon these advantages, which are a most complete arrangement for the front hearth, thus enabling the cook to successfully carry on without interruption the other work, and thus avoiding the objection made to those Stoves which require the cook to be continually present. One trial of this apparatus for the front hearth, as it works well, and we believe in it, is here described, and we are confident that a fair trial will satisfy them, that it is the most perfect Baking Stove ever invented.

THE LAND WE LOVE,
A Monthly Magazine Containing Eighty Pages.
DEVOTED TO
Literature, Agriculture, and General Intelligence, and containing reports of Battles, Incidents and Anecdotes of the War, never before published.
BY GEN. D. H. HILL,
LATE OF THE SOUTHERN ARMY.
This is the cheapest Magazine in the South, and it has reached an issue of 12,000 copies, monthly, in the first year of its existence. Its circulation embraces all the Territories and all the States except three of the North-Eastern. The services of such of the most talented writers of the country have been secured; and no article will be published, which has not real substantial merit. Engravings and illustrations will be introduced.
The Magazine aims to preserve a record of the heroism and endurance, the wit and humor of the Southern soldier.
PUBLISHED IN CHARLOTTE, N. C.,
By Hill, Irwin & Co.,
TERMS: Three dollars a year in advance. One dollar and a half for six months. Specimen copies twenty cents each. Subscriptions can be dated back, if desired.

THE SOUTHERN CULTIVATOR,
A Monthly Magazine of 40 pages; a Practical and Scientific newspaper, for the Farm, the Garden, and the Family Circle.
PRICE $2.00 PER ANNUM.
Published by
WM. N. WHITE,
Athens, Georgia.
Jy 13

W. H. HENNING & CO.,
Grocers and Commission Merchants,
85 and 97, CAMP STREET, NEW ORLEANS.
Offers to Families, Planters and Traders a full stock of Fancy and Staple Goods,
Also, a large lot of Coffee, Sugar, Molasses, Tobacco, Pork, Beef, Bacon, Salt, suitable for Plantation supplies,—all of which will be offered at the Most reasonable Rates.
Country orders will receive the most careful and prompt attention.
W. H. HENNING & CO.,
255 6m 85 and 97, Camp street, New Orleans

W. BLACKMAN'S COMMERCIAL COLLEGE, 136 Canal street, and 2 Charondelet street. Entrance on Charondelet. Open day and evening the entire year. Permanent teachers, practical teachers in all the various branches. The instruction is private to each student. Overgrown men and crippled soldiers taken for half price. Young men from the country can board with the principal, or in respectable families. English or French. For circulars, stating terms, etc., address
J. W. BLACKMAN, Principal.
H-ly

FOR RENT.
Lake shore Residence — at Ocean Springs directly fronting the beach: five rooms: wide galleries front and rear, forty-seven feet long; some heavy furniture in the house. Apply to the office of New Orleans Christian Advocate.

W. BLACKMAN'S COMMERCIAL COLLEGE, 136 Canal street, and 2 Charondelet street. Entrance on Charondelet. Open day and evening the entire year. Permanent teachers, practical teachers in all the various branches. The instruction is private to each student. Overgrown men and crippled soldiers taken for half price. Young men from the country can board with the principal, or in respectable families. English or French. For circulars, stating terms, etc., address
J. W. BLACKMAN, Principal.
H-ly

W. BLACKMAN'S COMMERCIAL COLLEGE, 136 Canal street, and 2 Charondelet street. Entrance on Charondelet. Open day and evening the entire year. Permanent teachers, practical teachers in all the various branches. The instruction is private to each student. Overgrown men and crippled soldiers taken for half price. Young men from the country can board with the principal, or in respectable families. English or French. For circulars, stating terms, etc., address
J. W. BLACKMAN, Principal.
H-ly

W. BLACKMAN'S COMMERCIAL COLLEGE, 136 Canal street, and 2 Charondelet street. Entrance on Charondelet. Open day and evening the entire year. Permanent teachers, practical teachers in all the various branches. The instruction is private to each student. Overgrown men and crippled soldiers taken for half price. Young men from the country can board with the principal, or in respectable families. English or French. For circulars, stating terms, etc., address
J. W. BLACKMAN, Principal.
H-ly

W. BLACKMAN'S COMMERCIAL COLLEGE, 136 Canal street, and 2 Charondelet street. Entrance on Charondelet. Open day and evening the entire year. Permanent teachers, practical teachers in all the various branches. The instruction is private to each student. Overgrown men and crippled soldiers taken for half price. Young men from the country can board with the principal, or in respectable families. English or French. For circulars, stating terms, etc., address
J. W. BLACKMAN, Principal.
H-ly

W. BLACKMAN'S COMMERCIAL COLLEGE, 136 Canal street, and 2 Charondelet street. Entrance on Charondelet. Open day and evening the entire year. Permanent teachers, practical teachers in all the various branches. The instruction is private to each student. Overgrown men and crippled soldiers taken for half price. Young men from the country can board with the principal, or in respectable families. English or French. For circulars, stating terms, etc., address
J. W. BLACKMAN, Principal.
H-ly

W. BLACKMAN'S COMMERCIAL COLLEGE, 136 Canal street, and 2 Charondelet street. Entrance on Charondelet. Open day and evening the entire year. Permanent teachers, practical teachers in all the various branches. The instruction is private to each student. Overgrown men and crippled soldiers taken for half price. Young men from the country can board with the principal, or in respectable families. English or French. For circulars, stating terms, etc., address
J. W. BLACKMAN, Principal.
H-ly

W. BLACKMAN'S COMMERCIAL COLLEGE, 136 Canal street, and 2 Charondelet street. Entrance on Charondelet. Open day and evening the entire year. Permanent teachers, practical teachers in all the various branches. The instruction is private to each student. Overgrown men and crippled soldiers taken for half price. Young men from the country can board with the principal, or in respectable families. English or French. For circulars, stating terms, etc., address
J. W. BLACKMAN, Principal.
H-ly

W. BLACKMAN'S COMMERCIAL COLLEGE, 136 Canal street, and 2 Charondelet street. Entrance on Charondelet. Open day and evening the entire year. Permanent teachers, practical teachers in all the various branches. The instruction is private to each student. Overgrown men and crippled soldiers taken for half price. Young men from the country can board with the principal, or in respectable families. English or French. For circulars, stating terms, etc., address
J. W. BLACKMAN, Principal.
H-ly

W. BLACKMAN'S COMMERCIAL COLLEGE, 136 Canal street, and 2 Charondelet street. Entrance on Charondelet. Open day and evening the entire year. Permanent teachers, practical teachers in all the various branches. The instruction is private to each student. Overgrown men and crippled soldiers taken for half price. Young men from the country can board with the principal, or in respectable families. English or French. For circulars, stating terms, etc., address
J. W. BLACKMAN, Principal.
H-ly

W. BLACKMAN'S COMMERCIAL COLLEGE, 136 Canal street, and 2 Charondelet street. Entrance on Charondelet. Open day and evening the entire year. Permanent teachers, practical teachers in all the various branches. The instruction is private to each student. Overgrown men and crippled soldiers taken for half price. Young men from the country can board with the principal, or in respectable families. English or French. For circulars, stating terms, etc., address
J. W. BLACKMAN, Principal.
H-ly

W. BLACKMAN'S COMMERCIAL COLLEGE, 136 Canal street, and 2 Charondelet street. Entrance on Charondelet. Open day and evening the entire year. Permanent teachers, practical teachers in all the various branches. The instruction is private to each student. Overgrown men and crippled soldiers taken for half price. Young men from the country can board with the principal, or in respectable families. English or French. For circulars, stating terms, etc., address
J. W. BLACKMAN, Principal.
H-ly

W. BLACKMAN'S COMMERCIAL COLLEGE, 136 Canal street, and 2 Charondelet street. Entrance on Charondelet. Open day and evening the entire year. Permanent teachers, practical teachers in all the various branches. The instruction is private to each student. Overgrown men and crippled soldiers taken for half price. Young men from the country can board with the principal, or in respectable families. English or French. For circulars, stating terms, etc., address
J. W. BLACKMAN, Principal.
H-ly

W. BLACKMAN'S COMMERCIAL COLLEGE, 136 Canal street, and 2 Charondelet street. Entrance on Charondelet. Open day and evening the entire year. Permanent teachers, practical teachers in all the various branches. The instruction is private to each student. Overgrown men and crippled soldiers taken for half price. Young men from the country can board with the principal, or in respectable families. English or French. For circulars, stating terms, etc., address
J. W. BLACKMAN, Principal.
H-ly

W. BLACKMAN'S COMMERCIAL COLLEGE, 136 Canal street, and 2 Charondelet street. Entrance on Charondelet. Open day and evening the entire year. Permanent teachers, practical teachers in all the various branches. The instruction is private to each student. Overgrown men and crippled soldiers taken for half price. Young men from the country can board with the principal, or in respectable families. English or French. For circulars, stating terms, etc., address
J. W. BLACKMAN, Principal.
H-ly

W. BLACKMAN'S COMMERCIAL COLLEGE, 136 Canal street, and 2 Charondelet street. Entrance on Charondelet. Open day and evening the entire year. Permanent teachers, practical teachers in all the various branches. The instruction is private to each student. Overgrown men and crippled soldiers taken for half price. Young men from the country can board with the principal, or in respectable families. English or French. For circulars, stating terms, etc., address
J. W. BLACKMAN, Principal.
H-ly

W. BLACKMAN'S COMMERCIAL COLLEGE, 136 Canal street, and 2 Charondelet street. Entrance on Charondelet. Open day and evening the entire year. Permanent teachers, practical teachers in all the various branches. The instruction is private to each student. Overgrown men and crippled soldiers taken for half price. Young men from the country can board with the principal, or in respectable families. English or French. For circulars, stating terms, etc., address
J. W. BLACKMAN, Principal.
H-ly

W. BLACKMAN'S COMMERCIAL COLLEGE, 136 Canal street, and 2 Charondelet street. Entrance on Charondelet. Open day and evening the entire year. Permanent teachers, practical teachers in all the various branches. The instruction is private to each student. Overgrown men and crippled soldiers taken for half price. Young men from the country can board with the principal, or in respectable families. English or French. For circulars, stating terms, etc., address
J. W. BLACKMAN, Principal.
H-ly

W. BLACKMAN'S COMMERCIAL COLLEGE, 136 Canal street, and 2 Charondelet street. Entrance on Charondelet. Open day and evening the entire year. Permanent teachers, practical teachers in all the various branches. The instruction is private to each student. Overgrown men and crippled soldiers taken for

CHRISTIAN ADVOCATE

ORGAN OF THE M. E. CHURCH SOUTH FOR THE MOBILE, MONTGOMERY, MISSISSIPPI AND LOUISIANA CONFERENCES.

NEW ORLEANS, SATURDAY, AUGUST 31, 1867.

$3.00 A YEAR IN ADVANCE
OFFICE—112 CAMP STREET

Official Organ of the Montgomery, Mobile, Mississippi, and Louisiana Conferences of the M. E. Church South.

Office: 112 Camp Street.

TERMS OF SUBSCRIPTION:

THREE DOLLARS A YEAR

Varied in Advance.

Address: REV. J. C. KLEENER,

112 Camp Street, New Orleans.

AGENTS: New Orleans.

Agents of the Publishing Conference.

THE WICKET GATE.

And the fast falling shadows

Wearied and worn, and late,

A kind, smiling pilgrim,

With the wicket gate.

Where the arrows have stood before me

I stand alone to-night,

And in the deepening darkness

Pray for one gleam of light.

From the foul sloughs and marshes

I've gathered many a slain;

Two hard old voices calling

From far across the plain.

How in my wretched weakness,

Partial and sad I wait;

And every refuge fails me,

Here at the wicket gate.

And will the portals open

For me, who roamed so long,

Wayward, and vile, and burdened

With this great weight of wrong?

Hark! a glad voice of welcome

Bids my wild fears abate;

Look, for a band of mercy

Opens the wicket gate.

On to the palace Beautiful,

And the bright room called Peace;

Down to the silent river,

Where thou shalt find release;

Up to the radiant city,

Where shining ones await;

On, for the way of glory

Lies through the wicket gate.

The N. O. Christian Advocate.

JOHN WESLEY.

NO. III.

On Wesley's return to England found Mr. Whitfield preaching evangelism. Whitfield was the to introduce out-door or field teaching. He wished to preach the colliers of Kingswood near

Col. Those colliers were a uneducated, almost savage class none cared for—

there was no church where they lived or would go, so Whitfield gathered them together under the son the grass and preached to him. He sent for Wesley and asked him to preach in the fields these poor sheep in the wilderness; but Wesley had been bred to very high and rigid notions of church and ministerial property and consented with extreme reluctance; but when he saw that could be accomplished, that honored the preaching with his presence, he yielded his prejuices. We may remark, in passing that this was a principle that governed him through all his pastorship; whenever he was asked that any particular measure should result in good, he acced it, and fearlessly pursued it, despite of all his previous prejudices, and of all the scorn and persecution it might call down upon him.

and glowed with the mighty truths and glorious hopes of the Gospel, their lips were set on fire and their tongues flamed with heavenly eloquence.

Under these new and eloquent presentations of the truths of revelation, the deepest sensibilities of the most solemn fears, and the most glorious aspirations were excited in the minds of the multitude. This description of preaching, and its extraordinary effects, were positively alarming and disagreeable to the worldly-minded clergy; so much so that soon in London and throughout the kingdom, nearly all the pulpits were closed against these regularly ordained ministers of the Establishment. God makes the ways of man to praise Him—out of evil

gored, he was, in after years, received as a conqueror, and hailed as a benefactor. The streets would be crowded and the windows thronged with eager thousands who sought to catch a glimpse of the wonderful man, that they might tell in after times, as one of the great events of their lives, that they had once seen John Wesley.

THE MOON.

Not among the countless phenomena that we see around us, and the myriad wonders of the distant sky, is there one that bears witness to creative design more forcibly than the airless moon; and in the naked form of our satellite appears, I think, the most obvious objection to what is called the Nebular Hypothesis, at least as it is held in a spirit of unbelief. A tendency among gases to interm-ingle is a well-known natural law;

and if, without intelligent interference, a vapory chaos became concentrated into a world of orbs,

it has never been shown how certain elements which are abundant in the principal bodies of a system, could be absent in the only secondary which we are enabled closely to examine. The polar snows of Mars, the changeable nature of the markings on his disk, and other unmistakable signs, show him to possess seas, and clouds, like the earth; and the spectroscope has detected aqueous vapor in the remoter planets.

How is it, then, that the moon also, in the gathering of its mass, did not include the constituents of air and water? Many varieties of constitution appear, indeed, in the spectrum analysis of the stars.

For instance, the element hydrogen, which we know, on the eminent authority of Mr. Huggins, to be widely diffused through nature, is not recognized in some of them,

such as Belchipsa and Beta Pegasii;

and if we grant that all matter originally existed in a gaseous state, it may be maintained generally, that any difference in the composition of the bodies of the universe points to an interference and a fiat opposed to any natural law that can be surmised by the nebular cosmogonists. However, the differences between distant sun are not, of course, so striking as those that are exhibited by bodies closely allied to each other.

like the earth and the moon. It may be worthy of remark, also,

that the exception to a common arrangement in our system should be found in a satellite—a fact that seems to indicate (as we may say with all reverence) a special object in creative plan, enabling the moon, devoid of ocean or atmosphere, to give us precisely and unalterably the degree of light that is most beneficial conjointly with the circumstances of size,

mass, and distance, which are connected with essential qualities other than light-giving; and we may regard the nature of the lunar surface as contributing to the same effect.

In this surface, as we may fairly speculate, are only the crystalline rocks, as fresh as they were left by the producing fires. No moisture to break them up in the well

ing frost—no rain, no storm, no air, to waste them away by chemical or mechanical forces. In the brighter parts are, probably, the glistening planes of the feldspar, the glassy sheets of the mica, the fretted lustre of the quartz, and the varied glitter of countless minerals unworn and undimmed, and uncovered by aqueous strata or vegetation. Many a metal in un-oxidized brilliancy may there be doing a service that we little consider. So, also, in wide formations, may the stones the rarest and most precious on earth; and jewels, such as based the structure revealed at Patmos, and far removed from the cupidity of man, may be shining for his real benefit in the distant satellite. But the moon is not all thus bright. There are large shadowy areas, whose extent serves, no doubt, to attenuate her light to a designed amount. The rock products of fire are often of a sombre aspect; and the dusky tracts which constitute the flat portions of the lunar surface, are, it may be, vast overflows of trap.

Those wide districts are by no means of uniform shading as they appear to the naked eye. The telescope proves them of different tints, in which red, blue, and green predominate; and the colors that were at one time ascribed to vegetation, are more likely, due to the various rocks. Greenstones and porphyries of many hues, and other minerals, may assist in dimly variegating the broad level; and the black columns of the basalt, with a development compared to which the wonders of Antrim or

Staffa would dwindle into specks, may rise above the plain undistinguishable by any optic power that we possess.

To prove indisputably the volcanic nature of the moon's surface, nothing appeared to be wanting since the invention of the telescope but the sight of an actual eruption; and, though there are few other instances on record of appearances significant of such an occurrence, yet none seem to have been near so striking or so well observed as the recent obscuration of a crater situated in the dark plain known as the Mare Se- rentalis. An event of this kind makes the friends of science doubly rejoice that the moon has no cloud-bearing envelope. If she had, our acquaintance with her surface would be slight indeed;

and we should in a great degree be debarred from some of the most interesting branches of astronomical inquiry. It is generally considered that in the case of the primary planets, with the exception of Mars, we see only the light reflected from their clouds; and it seems certain that if the clouds in a lunar atmosphere did not completely shut out the disk from our view, they would at least prevent any close examination, such as could lead to a discovery like the observation of the crater above referred to.

This crater, called Linne, after the great Swedish naturalist of that name, which has been classically corrupted into Linneus, was first observed by Riccioli in 1653;

and since that time its features have been recorded by various other observers. It is described as a deep cavity some 5½ miles in diameter, and an easy object for the telescope. Even at the time of full moon, when the shadows that give prominence to lunar details are lost in the general illumination, Linne was not difficult to detect; and it was, therefore,

with no little surprise that the distinguished observer Schmidt, of the Athens observatory, perceived, in October last, only an appearance like a white luminous cloud in place of the deep, shadowy crater.

It is on the line of sunrise or set on the moon

NEWS FROM THE CHURCHES.

DeKalb, Miss., Aug 15th, 1867.

Mr. Editor:—The third quarterly meeting for this circuit was held at Union Church, lasted ten days, 43 added to the church, 3 by letter, the others according to our form of discipline. Twenty-four adults knelt at the Altar at one time, and were baptized. The ministers, and members blessed and "built up." Presiding Elder at his post, preaching, praying, exhorting, and visiting; overlooking all the interests of the church in the quarterly Conference.

Some of us up here are not willing to do away with that officer, and dispense with his council, and labours to form a union with the M. P. church. Lay delegation has been incorporated in our economy. I do hope there will be no more changes, or concessions for the sake of a union with them; you recollect Mr. Editor, sometime last year, at a Conference held by that sister denomination when it was proposed to elect delegates to the convention that met last May in Montgomery, the President, if I am not mistaken, objected, first, upon the ground of such a course being unconstitutional, second, of the inexpediency of such a course; and proclaimed, if the members of the M. E. Church desired to unite with them the doors of their church was open. They the (M. P. Church) would receive them, and shelter them from the power of the Papal Bull, I may not have given the language, but have given the substance.

In the language of T. L. Boswell, in the Nashville Advocate, some of us never intend to join the M. P. Church. We are going to have a great time on this circuit this year.

JAMES M. GANN.

Opelika, Ala., Aug 20th, 1867.

Mr. Editor:—Feeling a deep interest in the welfare and prosperity of Zion, and thinking that others may feel the same solicitude, I have concluded to give your readers a brief account of a glorious revival which we have had at this place. In many respects, it was the most remarkable revival I ever saw. Its influence was silent, but powerful upon the church and community, so much so, that all the stores and whiskey-shops—except one—in town, would close during the morning-prayer-meeting. The above exception was a Roman Catholic, and of course, we were not surprised at his refusal. Last sabbath week, at the close of the 11 o'clock sermon, I administered the ordinance of baptism to twenty-six subjects and received forty-three persons into full membership. A sinner remarked to me that it was the most imposing and impressive scene he ever witnessed. At the close of the meeting, almost the entire membership was greatly revived, about one hundred were happily converted, and sixty-eight persons joined the church. To the Father, Son and Holy Ghost, be all the praise.

J. W. GLENN.

Greenville, Miss., Aug 20th, 1867.

Mr. Editor:—As the Bishops appointed in their Pastoral Address published first April, we observed Friday Aug 16, as a day of fasting and prayer, and had service every night during the week. As the meeting seemed to be doing good, we continued it two nights this week, without any apparent decline in the interest which was manifested by the congregation attending. Had we had ministerial help the meeting might have continued longer, with good results. As it is, we feel greatly encouraged. The membership has been aroused and revived—two have joined the church—and there were eight penitents at the altar, who seem to be earnestly seeking religion. In addition to these, we have reason to hope that others are the subjects of deep conviction. Our class meeting is spiritual—a female prayer meeting is being organized in addition to our Wednesday night prayer-meeting—there is a call for organizing a Bible Class; and the church is now in the spirit of prayer and of work. On the whole I feel like the church has gained ground by the meeting very decidedly; and trust that it is the beginning of a good revival. We pray and believe that the spirit who has convicted sinners, will deepen the convictions until they result in genuine conversions.

Your friend and brother,

W. W. DRAKE.

Talladega, Ala., Aug 22d, 1867.

Mr. Editor:—Since my last communication, I have to report, that a meeting at Plantersville of fourteen days continuance, resulted in the conversion of ten persons. These together with a number of reclamation, i. e. persons whom the war had scattered; and who had been living out of the church—also three members with whom I commenced, compose a church of thirty members, of the very best material of the community. This will be welcome news to the preachers who travelled the circuit these late years: showing that their labor has not been in vain in the Lord.

One day's travel from this place took me to Fayetteville, where our labors were blessed—during a meeting of thirteen days, with the conversion of seventeen souls and signal building up, and renewing the church.

The people at Fayetteville are much indebted to our efficient and laborious Presiding Elder, Rev. Jos. T. Curry, who although he had just risen from a severe attack of fever—employed what he intended as rest time, to recuperate for the labors of the fall, on his hard and extensive district in faithful and successful service in pulpit and altar.

At Plantersville I had the cooperation of Rev. H. Clay Stone supernumery on the circuit. His sermons were very highly appreciated.

In looking over my commonplace book, I find since the 1st day of July, I preached 41 sermons. The greatest inconvenience I feel, is from the oppressive heat.

No money yet. Nor do we expect much until the cotton gets to market. This accounts for your paper having no more subscribers here.

It is proper to add, that Rev. Wm. Wilson, and Rev. Jamison, afforded me great help, a part of the time, at Fayetteville.

Our fast day was appropriately and profitably observed; and the prayer-week of unusual interest.

I thank God that I realize sensibly that "Even down to old age all my people shall prove,

My sovereign, eternal, unchangeable, love," etc.

Already am I within the confines of that period in which the promise is, that

"He shall flourish like the Palm-tree, that he shall be like a tree planted by the rivers of water, that bringeth forth his fruit in his season; his leaf also shall not wither, and whatsoever he doeth, shall prosper."

Yours forever and ever,

DANIEL DUNCAN.

P. S. Let every preacher of the old Alabama Conference, who has one dollar to spare respond to Bro. Cottrell's call; and send to Bro. Pilley.

From the Sunday Magazine.

COURTEOUSNESS.

"Be ye courteous" is a duty which Paul—himself a fine example of it—enjoins on Christians. He who began his defence before Agrippa in this graceful fashion—"I thank myself happy, King Agrippa, because I shall answer for myself this day before thee touching all the things whereof I am accused of the Jews; especially because I know of thee to be expert in all customs and questions which are among the Jews: wherefore I beseech thee to hear me patiently"—was no rude, coarse, vulgar man. His was courtesy to a superior; but a still finer ornament of manners, and of religion also, is courtesy to inferiors. And what a fine example of that is Boaz! It is with no cold looks, nor distant air, nor rough speech, nor haughty bearing, making his hearers painfully sensible of their inferiority—that they are servants and he their master—Boaz enters the harvest field. "The master!" spoken by one who has espied him approaching—words that strike with dread the noisy urchins of a school—neither turns their mirth into silence, nor makes them start to reluctant labors.

Benevolence beams forth in his looks; and as the children who have attended their mothers to the field, wou of old by his gifts and ready smile, run to meet him, he approaches with kindness on his lips. These are not sealed in cold silence, or opened but to find fault with his servants, and address them roughly.

"The Lord be with you," is his salutation. They, dropping work, face round, sickles in hand, health in their ruddy cheeks, and the sweat of honest labour on their brows, to welcome their master; and his inferiors in rank, but his equals in pious courtesy, to reply, "The Lord bless thee!" More beautiful than the morning, with its dew sparkling like diamonds on the grass, and its golden beams tipping the surrounding hills of Bethlehem, these morning salutations between master and servants! Loving him, they esteemed his interests their own.

These beautiful expressions, as might be inferred from the words of the 129th Psalm: Let them be as the grass upon the house-tops, which withereth afore it groweth up; where with the mower filleteth not his hand, nor he that bindeth sheaves his bosom; neither do they which go by say, The blessing of the Lord be upon you: ye bless you in the name of the Lord," may possibly have grown into a custom. Be it so. It was a very good custom. It had its root in the kindly relations that subsisted in these happy days between masters and servants; and the lack of which in ours breeds the jealousies that ever and anon break out in the unhappy strikes that entail such pecuniary losses on the employers, and such bitter sufferings on the families of the employed. Whatever may have been the case with others, Boaz's courtesy was more than a form of speech; that French politeness, so often like the French polish which imparts to mean timber the lustre of fine-grained woods. His conduct corresponded with his speech. Observe the eye of compassion he cast on Ruth; his kindness to the lonely stranger; the delicacy with which he sought to save her feelings while he relieved her poverty; the respect he showed to her misfortunes and her generous attachment to Naomi. He paid as much honour to the virtues and feelings of this poor gleaner as if she had been the finest lady in the land. Behold true court-courtesy!

This grace is a true set-off to piety. As such it should be assiduously cultivated by all who desire to "adorn the doctrine of God our Saviour"—religion associated with a kind and courteous manner, being, to use Solomon's figure, like "apples of gold in pictures of silver."

Nor is there any reason, as the case of Boaz proves, why courteousness should be foreign to a country life; or rural scenes should breed rude manners. No doubt those who reside in towns, being brought in frequent contact with others, acquire a polish more readily than country people—even as the stones on the sea-beach become rounded and smooth by the tides that roll them against each other. Allowance is to be made for this, and other disadvantages which belong to country life. For candor requires us, in judging others, to take into account the drawbacks of their position; that every profession has its own peculiar temptations; and that censorious people will find it easier to condemn the faults of others, than they would were they in their circumstances, to avoid them. The cultivator, like the lord of the soil, seldom meets his superiors; and even his equals much less frequently than the citizen, who, on crowded, change and busy streets, comes in daily contact with many of talents, acquirements, and position as good as his own. Walking his farm as a little kingdom—as the captain of a man-of-war his quarter-deck—and surrounded only by servants and inferiors, the circumstances of a farmer are not the most conducive to the acquisition of very courteous manners. Yet what he, as well as all other masters, may and should be seen in Boaz. A farmer, he was in the old, true sense of the word, every inch a gentleman; pious, yet of polished manners; wealthy, yet gracious to the poor, and esteeming virtue above rank or riches; with dependents, yet treating the humblest of them with respectful courtesy; one in whom were beautifully blended the politeness of a court and the simple virtues of a country life.

A good practical lesson may be learned from the way in which this man bore himself toward his inferiors. It is by no means uncommon to hear servants, our peasantry, and the common people blamed for their rude and vulgar manners. But they who censure what I do not altogether deny, far less commend, would do well to remember that there were more servants courteous as those of Boaz, were there more masters like him. Why are the lower classes not respectful to the superior? May it not be, and is it not true to a large extent, that the latter are not respectful to them.

Like beggars like, they say; and of that, so far as courteousness is concerned, France and other countries of the Continent, furnish remarkable illustrations. One of their pleasant features is the respectful manner which the upper classes show the humbler, with which a master addresses his own servant. The result is that the lower catch the manners of the upper classes, and are not rude, because they are not rudely treated. Men are like mirrors; they reflect the features of those that look at them.

We, Britons, plume ourselves on our superiority to our neighbours in morals and religion. But why should not religion in begetting kind and courteous manners do as much, and more for us than nature or fashion does for them? What rude and unmanly language have I heard addressed to servants! How little do many scruple to wound the feelings of their inferiors!—a vulgar and cowardly, as well as an unchristian thing. They cannot return the blow; and it is like striking a man when he is down. Courtesy lies in a due regard to the feelings of others, and is a Christian duty. Paul enforced it by his precepts, and illustrated it by his example. The whole tone and tenor of the Bible teaches us to be gentle; to be courteous as well as kind; to esteem men of low degree; to be kindly affectioned one toward another; and so to bear ourselves to our inferiors as to make them forget, rather than remember, their inferiority. The followers of Jesus are to be humble, not haughty—"clothed with humility," says the Apostle; a robe, next to the righteousness which, covering all our sins, was woven on Calvary and dyed white in the blood of Christ, the fairest man can wear.

THOMAS GUTHRIE.

THE NATIONAL DEBT.

SPEECH OF GEORGE FRANCIS TRAIN.

Mr. Train, who was received with applause, commenced by reading the following resolution:

"Resolved, As our national debt was contracted by inflation, by inflation it should be paid."

Mr. Chapman, of St. Louis—What do you mean by that proposition?

Mr. Train—We mean "up with greenbacks and down with specie payment." [Laughter and applause.]

All those in favor of greenbacks, say aye. [Loud cries of aye.]

If the people prefer greenbacks without interest, why force them to take bonds and notes with interest? [That's so.]

The statistics show that out of thirty-six millions of people only half a million pay an income tax on a thousand dollars. Hence it is fair to suppose that that number will cover the bondholders. The question arises, is there sufficient virtue and generosity in the other thirty-five millions and a half to vote to tax themselves to pay these five hundred thousand bondholders? [Cries of yes.]

The demagogue will make much of this point. [Laughter.]

And you must meet him squarely, or he will have the argument.

The New York Herald closed one of its last leaders on the national banks by saying: "Since Horace Greely, by bailing Mr. Davis, admits that there is no such crime as treason, our national debt is a national swindle." [A voice—"The Herald is no guide to public opinion."]

You are mistaken. Bennett always looks ahead. His hot shot into the national banks are riddling those pet President-making institutions. He is first to see a change in the public mind, and thirty years' experience has made him a prophet, as well as a fortune. [Applause.]

Many years ago he told me that a panic was a good thing for a city or a nation. Chicago was built out of inflation. The panic came, bankruptcy followed, but the substantial stores, the magnificent residences, the splendid city and two hundred thousand people remained there. [Loud applause.]

Give us greenbacks, we say, and build cities, plant corn, open coal mines, control railways, launch ships, grow cotton, establish factories, open gold and silver mines, erect rolling mills, start the sugar-cane, the sorghum and the tobacco once more. Turn Niagara Falls into a Manchester. [Loud applause.]

Vote ten millions bonds if we finish the Pacific Railroad before 1870. [Cheers.]

Vote subsidies for steamboat lines to Europe; dig a canal from Lake Michigan to the Mississippi [applause] and remove the capital of America from that corrupt and god-forsaken sink of iniquity, Washington, to Columbus, Nebraska, ninety-six miles west of Omaha, the geographical centre of our four-million-square-mile nation. [Loud cheers.]

Carry my resolution, and there is sunshine in the sky. [Applause.]

Vote McCulloch's English plan of paying Englishmen one dollar for what they pay forty cents for, and disaster wrecks our financial ship. Greenbacks will start us ahead again at forty miles an hour. Specie payment will produce a regular smash up. Frederick the Great built up Prussia on paper, and England's power was based on greenback currency. [That is true.] Pitt saved England by greenbacks. McCulloch would ruin America with specie payments.

Rev. Mr. Paine, Brooklyn. Do you advocate repudiation?

Mr. Train.—Repudiation! God forbid. If any man talks repudiation, "shoot him on the spot." [Laughter and applause.] Let me repeat the resolution.

"As the national debt was contracted by inflation, by inflation it should be paid." [Applause.]

How strange you should mix up greenbacks with repudiation. [Laughter.] You might as well call a Copperhead a Democrat. [Laughter.]

Bluecher and Wellington represented distinct nations, yet they closely resemble each other in wax figures. [Laughter.] Take care that the demagogue does not seduce you by his slippery-elm tongue. He will argue that it is cheap to save the Union and preserve our nationality even at the price of $2,700,000,000 according to McCulloch, but $12,000,000,000 according to the demagogue. [Oh!]

Rev. Mr. Faulkner, Bridgeport, Ct.—Where do you get your $12,000,000,000?

Mr. Train.—From the debt visible and the debt invisible. [Laughter.]

This is only for the principal. To pay it off in thirty years, as McCulloch proposes, we must raise—from the poor more than the rich—$10,000,000,000 more in taxes. [A voice: Why the poor?] Because the poor are the many. Labor always bears the burden. Bondholders legislated to have no taxes on their bonds. Hence the rich man can send his children to school where the poor man pays the schoolmarm. [Dissent and laughter.]

Ben Wade was right at Lawrence. He said the poor man must be better paid for his labor. Seymour, of the New York Times, reported fairly; but it was Raymond who gave the start on the agrarian interpretation. [A voice: "Did you hear the speech?"] Yes, sir. I introduced Mr. Wade to his Kansas audience, and endorse all he said. Wade is no agrarian. He is a bold-plucky humanitarian, and not afraid of man or Democrat. [Laughter.]

He believes as I do, that the laboring man should divide his day into eight hours for labor, eight hours for recreation and improvement, and eight hours for sleep, if he requires so much. [Applause.] Wade is more of a statesman than a politician. [Applause.]

Mr. Paine asked if I proposed repudiation. By no means; but the demagogue will tell you that repudiation has been the policy of the Government from the first. [Oh! dissent.]

You don't agree to that. Let me prove it. The Government commenced the war by making contracts in gold. Then they repudiated gold and gave legal tenders. Then they repudiated legal tenders and gave certificates of indebtedness. Then they repudiated certificates of indebtedness and gave contractors seven-thirties. All your ingenuity is required here to meet the demagogues. [Laughter.]

For he will assure you that even now the endorsement on your greenback agreeing to exchange for a five-twenty is repudiated. [How so?] Take a hundred dollars in greenbacks to McCulloch and see if you can get a hundred-dollar five-twenty bond. He will repudiate at once. You must pay the seventy or eighty dollars premium for it, for repudiation is the order of the day. [Some hisses, and dissent.]

"What else have they repudiated?"

Mr. Train.—What else? Why Congress has repudiated the Constitution, [laughter.] repudiated the Executive, and repudiated the idea first started, that the States were in the Union. They then repudiated the Supreme Court, repudiated the Constitutional Amendment, and now they intend repudiating the military reconstruction bill, [oh! dissent.] and in voting the bounty bill commenced repudiating the national debt. You see repudiation is fashionable. [Laughter.] Hence nothing can save us but greenbacks. [Applause.]

For insolvency is the strongest point in the American character. [Laughter.]

Prof. Evans, Hamilton College, Buffalo—What do you estimate the wastage of the war, and do you not think that tends toward repudiation?

Mr. Train.—Most certainly. In my Pilot Knob speech I put down the figures in loss of life, labor, shipping, and property, estimating at $10,000 each for white men, and $1000 for black, about $30,000,000, the accumulated industry and labor of a century. As so much has already been thrown into the boiling cauldron of revolution, the demagogue will argue that our national debt had better go in with the rest. Once the North held the club of Hercules. The South rebelled. The West joined the North to save the Union. Right and numbers conquered. Now the West holds the club of Hercules, but not the bonds. A Western demagogue might say: Once upon a time South built up an oligarchy upon black slavery. The Alliance decreed that it should not be. A hundred thousand slaveholders owned four millions of blacks. Presto, Providence and Jefferson Davis liberated them. [Laughter.] I did not mention Mr. Lincoln. The demigod of the new-demagogue never existed. [Oh.] He tried to save the Union by saving slaves. His Emancipation Proclamation was an accident. [No.] Having taken care of the South, says the Western demagogue, look to the North. A hundred thousand bondholders hold thirty millions of whites in bondage. Will not Providence break the chains as well as the blacks?

Work! Work! Work! There are millions of negroes to feed, and the cost is hitched on with the bonds, era claim, And the sum of New England's great!

[Hisses.]

You ought not to hiss. You know I am only giving you the speech of a Demagogue. The country will full of them by and by, and show you beforehand the plausibility of their argument, all loyal people, like this audience of distinguished clergymen, can be prepared and fortify themselves against disloyal practices. [Laughter and applause.] The Demagogue arouse the people into fury by appeals.

Tug! Tug! Sweat! Still harder each day than before. It will go to keep niggers and bondholders up. And the wail away from your soul!

Work! Work! Work! From dawn to the dusk of day. For your hopes are crushed with a weight. That toil of your life won't pay!

[Dissent.]

I agree with you who hiss, doctrine should be put down by the strong arm of military power. [Applause.]

When a man talks repudiation, shoot him on the spot. For Greeley has done a Christian in liberating Davis. [Laughter.]

The demagogue always catches up some popular idea. He will appeal to his audience in Union Square on the question of substitutes, when the rich man showed his loyalty by paying a thousand dollars to have another man shot. Again he resorts to rhyme:

You gave your son to the war! The rich man loaned his gold! And the rich man's son is happy to-day, And you are under the mould!

[Sensation.]

You did not think, poor man— You can scarce believe when you're told, That the sum which the rich man loaned to the war Was the price for which you were sold.

[Sensation and dissent.]

In this way your real demagogue will set the poor man to thinking, and as it is a free country he will be allowed to vote as his reason and pocket dictate. He will think of his wife, his children and his future, and then the orator of the people will pile on the agony:

Your son was as good as his! And as dear, perhaps, to you! But yours died for his! and your daughter for his most wretched and sew!

[Sensation.]

Nay do not pause to think, Or sigh for your children or wife, For your moments are mortgaged in hopes to toll

The rest of your weary life!

[Sensation and some dissent.]

The orator, having aroused their passions, will say: "All you have done of paying off the debt by greenbacks, say aye. Of course it is carried by acclamation. What can Congress, who own no bonds, do against 600,000 negro votes, 1,000,000 Southern white votes, and 3,000,000 of Northern and Western men who hold no bonds, but have after greenbacks, in order to make their property more valuable?"

The Louisville Courier says: "Within the last six months, one hundred and twenty persons have been added to the Shelby street Church in this city, under the pastoral care of Rev. J. W. Cunningham. Revivals have occurred with greater or less good results also, at Walnut Street, Chesnut Street, Church Street, and Portland Street, Churches. At the Broadway Church on the corner of Broadway and Floyds Streets, services are being held nightly by Rev. Dr. Linn. The attendance is good, and the religious interest is encouraging. Several persons have been added to the Church."

MINISTERIAL VACATION.—We learn from the Pittsburgh Christian Advocate that—"At the close of the late session of the Maine Conference, a resolution was introduced and adopted, recommending a vacation of each year—say of four weeks, as important to the continued health and vigor of the preachers, at such times as will not interfere with the general work, the matter to be referred to the Quarterly Conference by the Presiding Elders."

The new postal treaty with Great Britain provides for the transmission of letters not exceeding half ounce in weight for twelve cents instead of twenty-four, as now charged.

it not medemage a a time archy be the Alim not be.
slavehold of black d Jeffe Lincoln.
newspap
He tried ing slave ation in the West North. Pa olden ba in bond break the cks?

from Good Words.

SUMMER.

BY ALFRED MORRIS.

Dancing along the lands,
The summer has come, her robe spread out in her hands;
To see her the morrow comes, and the evening is loth to go.
The stars crowd thick in the sky to watch her in sleep below.

To prepare for her coming, the sun with a burning torch, and today all his work is done—
The fields with their flowers are dressed, the grasses are long and soft;
The birds have their song in the bushes, the bees their drone in the croft.

You meet her in earliest dawn, Greeting most fragrant breath by the side of the blossoming thorn; Lying along the streams, or posing in valleys still,
Painting with tender tints the bare brown rocks on the hill.

Oh! in the noontide heat
She turns to the antique woods where the dew lies fresh at her feet;
There the green lights flash through the leaves on couches of rounded moss,
And the sway of a wind-swing bough throws shadow and sunshine across.

Then at the end of the day,
At the edge of the sea when the waves plish
cool in the bay;
A pathway of gold is traced from the Palar of Sunset's door
Over the heaving tide to the smooth wet sand on the shore.

Quickly wherever she goes Warmer wait to the wind and a richer ad to the rose;
She waves a bluer surge, in the orchard a whiter bloom,
Brightening light for the sky and greener grass for the tomb.

Ever in full-flush'd health, Undimmed she flings forth from her broad bosom'd wealth—
For the sons of men; whilst Heaven, with vaults serene,
Gives up its curtains of cloud and smiles on the smiling scene.

Oh, for the Summer heart!
Pure and tranquil and glad, for ever bearing its part Whirling wild-world, whose groanings shall some day cease,
A King shall rule over all in a Kingdom of Love and Peace.

THE N. O. Christian Advocate.

BRITISH HONDURAS.

BY REV. W. CHAMBERLAIN.

Having spent about five weeks in land, almost all the time on the from one part to another, we our impressions of the country things as they appeared to us.

ITS LANDS.

lands on the eastern or sea-generally sandy near the On these lands the cocoanut is found in abundance, although not equal to the ger soils, yet they raise fine anas, plantains, pines, yams, ava, oranges, lemons, mangoes, nearly every other fruit. On land as above, we saw the fruit orchard; it was that of George Tillet, twenty miles Belize, planted in a very soil. His trees were very and full of fruit, of which he has some fine samples. He also that the sandy land is good for; very fine thrifty trees in his garden full of berries, only three years old.

best lands, however, are the ridges, these are found near the sea, as at Punda and Seven Hills, when come immediately to it. We had of the best description on to Grande, only 8 miles from and on Golden Stream, at ve miles; on Deep river, at miles; and at these points not subject to overflow. The are good below these points, sometimes they overflow for a ours at a time: there are also bodies of the finest Cahoon which we saw on New River, Creek, Western Lagoon, Creek, Mexico Creek and
and in the neighborhood er's, lands of Mr. Tillet, and Honduras Co.

Indian church, on the New Lagoon, Messrs. Ward and son have a sugar plantation, hundred and fifteen acres, in of different ages; two years, months, eight months and months; and they are now lay-more. These canes are very and show for themselves, that can be, as is said, three tons made per acre. This place a passing notice, we enter called the Lagoon from the
As the view bursts upon us, three miles below Indian it is beautiful. The Lagoon is a fine sheet of water, from one to two miles wide, and sixteen in length; the water deep and clear is crystal. The left bank is bordered by a pine forest, the land on that side only about three or four feet above high water;—but on the right or Western side, the lands attain fully fifty feet in four hundred yards back; and as one remarked, reminded him of Baton Rouge. The soil here is deep black, for a depth of twenty inches, and then it is mixed with mud; which is found cropping out frequently.

This place derives its name from an old ruin which we examined, it is situated about one hundred yards from the edge of the water; its walls are forty inches thick, made of large stones cemented together with lime and mortar; it is on the outside, forty feet long, by twenty five wide; it has two apartments, the front one about eighteen feet square; the rear one eighteen by twenty; it is divided by a wall forty inches thick, and in this wall is an arched doorway about seven feet high, and from the holes above at the spring of the arch on each side, for the hinges to fit into; it evidently once had a pair of massive folding doors; the interior was much filled with rubbish, fallen from the walls, which on the rear end were still about fifteen feet high; on the west side was the main entrance, but whether arched or not we could not tell, as the wall on this side was not as high, as the doorway had been; at the north west corner stand two stone, fourteen by twenty inches square, deep in the ground, and projecting above it about five feet; this undoubtedly was the gateway to the yard. Nearly on the north was a mound about ten feet high, on the top of which was growing a tree in appearance something like our beech, four feet in diameter, with huge spurs thrown out on each side to support it. We could not find out that there was any tradition about this church, except that it is called "Indian Church." The whole of the western portion, say two-thirds of the colony, are said to consist principally of the finest Cahoon lands.

The lands on the Hondo, Blue Creek,
the upper forks of the Belize River,
Siboon, Deep, Golden, Middle, Rio Grande, Moho and Terech all have the same reputation.

In fact there will be found in Honduras as great a proportion of good lands as in any other country.
Mixed along with these good lands, are lands covered with pine, called pine ridges; these vary in their quality from good tillable land, to white sandy barrens.

On all the lands below the Belize;
so far as we could learn, good sweet living water can be found. The water of the Northern district is not good for drinking except on the river ridges.

Nearly all the streams, that have the name of rivers, are navigable for some distance from the sea.
The Hondo, fifty miles, New river eighty miles, the Belize forty-five miles, the others below Belize generally not over fifteen to twenty-five miles, measured by the sinuosities, and carrying you inland from half to two-thirds their distances. Belize river is a very beautiful stream up as high as the Little Falls.

The Rio Grande and Deep river are also entitled to the same designation, and in ascending the Golden stream all our party were exceedingly pleased with the to us singular appearance; as it were moving along the water under the almost continuous arch of the beautiful evergreen Cahoon leaves, the fringe like Bamboo, and the endless variety, to us unknown of tropical trees.

There are but few mountains in the northern part of Honduras.
But we saw evidences here, that at some period earth's internal fires had broken through the restraints above, and in their fury, had scattered all around fragments of rock of every size, leaving the cavities for their lowest mouths, and in time forming beautiful lakes of pure and sweet water.

The middle and Southern portion is more elevated, the mountains approach the coast not far below Belize, and above and below Manwatti River within a few miles; in this vicinity are found many caves, the rivers sometimes making their way under the hills and mountains. In some of these caves are found the rivers which are lost at the foot of the mountains, the streams sometimes are for several hundred yards open to your view. At Southern Storm Creek the mountains are eleven miles distant; at Deep River fully twenty miles; between the Rio Grande and Middle River they approach very near the coast.

The first ranges are mere hills leaving deep rich valleys between, and as you go westward they rise higher, to the altitude of five thousand feet. These high mountains are as yet but little explored. Those near the coast are invariably, of the richest quality of earth, covered with Cahoon, Mahogany, Santa Maria, Sappadillo, Cedar, Betan, Cotton Wood &c, &c.

TO BE CONTINUED.

WASHINGTON NEWS.

Correspondence between the President and General Grant.

EXECUTIVE MANSION,
Washington, D. C., Aug. 17, '67.
Dear Sir—Before you issue instructions to carry into effect the inclosed order I would be pleased to hear any suggestions you may deem necessary respecting the assignments to which the order refers.

Yours truly,
ANDREW JOHNSON.

Gen. U. S. Grant, Secretary of War, ad interim

EXECUTIVE MANSION,
Washington, D. C., Aug. 17, '67.
Maj. Gen. G. H. Thomas is hereby assigned to the command of the Fifth Military District, created by the act of Congress passed on the 2d day of March, 1867.

Maj. Gen. P. H. Sheridan is hereby assigned to the command of the Department of the Missouri.

Major Gen. Winfield S. Hancock is hereby assigned to the command of the Department of Cumberland.

The secretary of war ad interim will give the necessary instructions to carry this order into effect.

ANDREW JOHNSON.

HEADQUARTERS, ARMIES OF THE UNITED STATES,
Washington, D. C., Aug. 17, 1867.

His Excellency Andrew Johnson, President of the United States:

Sir—I am in receipt of your order of this date, directing the assignment of Gen. G. H. Thomas to the Fifth Military District, Gen. Sheridan to the Department of the Missouri, and Gen. Hancock to the department of the Cumberland. Also your note of this date inclosing these instructions, saying, "before you issue instructions to carry into effect the inclosed order, I would be pleased to hear any suggestions you may deem necessary respecting the assignment to which the order refers."

I am pleased to avail myself of this invitation to urge, earnestly urge, in the name of the patriotic people who have sacrificed hundreds of thousands of loyal lives and thousands of millions of treasure to preserve the integrity and union of this country, that this order be not insisted upon. It is unmistakably the expressed wish of the country that Gen. Sheridan should not be removed from his present command.
This is a republic, where the will of the people is the law of the land.
I beg that their voice may be heard.
General Sheridan has performed his civil duties faithfully and intelligently. His removal will only be regarded as an effort to defeat the laws of Congress. It will be interpreted by the unreconstructed element in the South—those who did all they could to break up this government by arms, and now wish to be the only element consulted as to the method of restoring order—as a triumph. It will embolden them to renewed opposition to the will of the loyal masses, believing that they have the executive with them.

The services of Gen. Thomas in batting for the Union entitle him to some consideration. He has repeatedly entered his protest against being assigned to either of the five military districts, and especially to being assigned to relieve Gen. Sheridan.

Gen. Hancock ought not to be removed from where he is. His department is a complicated one, which will take a new commander some time to become acquainted with. These are military reasons, pecuniary reasons, and, above all, patriotic reasons—why this order should not be insisted on.

I beg to refer to a letter marked "private," which I wrote to the President when first consulted on the subject of the change in the war department. It bears upon the subject of this removal, and I had hoped would have prevented it.

I have the honor to be, with great respect, your obedient servant,
U. S. GRANT, General U. S. A., Secretary of War, ad interim.

EXECUTIVE MANSION,
Washington, D. C., Aug. 19, '67.

General—I have received your communication of the 17th inst., and thank you for the promptness with which you have submitted your views respecting the assignments directed in my order of that date. When I stated in my unofficial communication of the 17th that I would be pleased to hear any suggestions you might deem necessary upon the subject, it was not my intention to ask from you a formal report, but rather to make a verbal statement of any reasons affecting the public interests, which in your opinion, would render the order inexpedient. Inasmuch, however, as you have embodied your suggestions in a written communication, it is proper that I should make some reply. You earnestly urge that the order be not insisted on, remarking that it is unmistakably the expressed wish of the country, that Gen.
Sheridan should not be removed from his present command.

While I am cognizant of the efforts that have been made to retain General Sheridan in Command of the Fifth Military District, I am not aware that the question has ever been submitted to the people themselves for determination. It certainly would be unjust to the army to assume that in the opinion of the nation, he alone is capable of commanding the States of Louisiana and Texas, and that were he, for any cause, removed, no other general in the military service of the United States would be competent to fill his place. General Thomas, whom I have designated as his successor, is well known to the country, having won high and honorable distinction in the field. He has since, in the execution of the responsible duties of a department command, exhibited great ability, sound discretion and sterling patriotism. He has not failed, under the most trying circumstances, to enforce the laws, to preserve order, to encourage the restoration of civil authority and to promote as far as possible a spirit of reconciliation.

His administration of the department of the Cumberland will certainly compare most favorably with that of General Sheridan in the fifth military district. There affairs appear to be in a disturbed condition, and a bitter feeling of antagonism seems to have resulted from General Sheridan's management.
He has rendered himself exceedingly obnoxious by the manner in which he has exercised even the powers conferred by Congress and still more so, by a resort to authority not granted by law, nor necessary to his faithful and efficient execution.
His rule, has, in fact, been one of absolute tyranny, without reference to the principles of our government, or the nature of our free institutions.

The state of affairs which has resulted from the course he has pursued, has seriously interfered with a harmonious, satisfactory and speedy execution of the acts of Congress, and is alone sufficient to justify a change. His removal, therefore, cannot be regarded as an effort to defeat the laws of Congress, for the object is to facilitate their execution through an officer who has never failed to obey the statutes of the land, and to exact within his jurisdiction a like obedience from others. It cannot be interpreted by the unreconstructed element in the South, those who did all they could to break up this government by arms; and now wish to be the only element consulted as to the method of restoring order as a triumph, for as intelligent men they must know that the mere change of military commanders cannot alter the law, and that General Thomas will be as much bound by its requirements as General Sheridan. It cannot embolden them to renewed opposition to the will of the loyal masses, believing that they have the executive with them, for they are perfectly familiar with the antecedents of the President, and know that he has not obstructed the faithful execution of any act of Congress.

No one, as you are aware, has a higher appreciation than myself of the services of Gen. Thomas, and no one would be less inclined to assign him to a command not entirely to his wishes. Knowing him as well as I do, I cannot think that he will hesitate for a moment to obey any order having in view a complete and speedy restoration of the Union, in the preservation of which he has rendered such important and valuable services.

General Hancock, known to the whole country as a gallant, able and patriotic soldier, will, I have no doubt, sustain his high reputation in any position to which he may be assigned. If, as you observe, the department which he will have, is a complicated one, I feel confident, that under the guidance and instretion of Gen. Sherman, Gen. Sheridan will soon become familiar with its necessities, and will avail himself of the opportunity afforded by these troubles, for the display of his energy, enterprise and daring, thorthly pertaining to officers in command of military departments.

Maj. Gen. P. H. Sheridan will at once turn over his present command to the officer next in rank to himself and proceeding without delay to relieve Maj. Gen. Hancock of the command of the department of the Missouri.

Maj. Gen. George H. Thomas will
until further orders, remain in command of the department of the Cumberland. Very respectfully yours
ANDREW JOHNSON.

Gen. U. S. Grant, Secretary of War ad interim

EXECUTIVE MANSION,
Washington, D. C., Aug. 26, 1867.

Sir—In consequence of the unfavorable condition of the health of Major General George H. Thomas,
as reported to you in Surgeon Masson's dispatch of the 21st inst., my order dated August 17th, 1867, is hereby modified so as to assign
Major General Winfield S. Hancock
to the command of the Fifth Military District created by the act of Congress, passed March 2d, 1866, and of the military department comprising the States of Louisiana and Texas. On being relieved by Major
General P. H. Sheridan, Major Gen.
Hancock will proceed directly to New Orleans, La., and assuming the command to which he is hereby assigned, will, when necessary to a necessities, and will avail himself

of the opportunity afforded by these troubles, for the display of his energy, enterprise and daring, thor-
thly pertaining to officers in command of military departments.

In assuming that it is the expresed wish of the people that General Sheridan should not be removed from his present command, you remark that "this is a republic where the will of the people is the law of the land," and beg "that their voice may be heard." This is indeed a republic, based, however, upon a written Constitution. That Constitution is the combined and expressed will of the people, and their voice is law when reflected in the manner which that instrument prescribes.
While one of its provisions makes the President commander in chief of the army and navy, another requires that he shall take care that the laws be faithfully executed.

Believing that a change in the command of the fifth military district is absolutely necessary for a faithful execution of the laws, I have issued the order which is the subject of this correspondence, and in thus exercising a power that inheres in the executive under the Constitution as commander in chief of the military and naval forces, I am discharging a duty required of me by the will of the nation as formally declared in the supreme law of the land.

By his oath the executive is bound, to the best of his ability, to preserve, protect and defend the Constitution; and although in times of great excitement it may be lost to public view, it is his duty, without regard to the consequences to himself, to hold sacred, and to enforce any and all of its provisions.
Any other course would lead to the destruction of the republic, for the Constitution once abolished, there would be no Congress for the exercise of legislative powers; no executive to see that the laws are faithfully executed; no judiciary to afford to the citizen protection for life, limb and property. Usurpation would inevitably follow, and a despotism be fixed upon the people in violation of their combined and expressed will.

In conclusion, I fail to perceive any military, pecuniary, or patriotic reasons why this order should not be carried into effect. You will remember that, in the first instance, I did not consider Gen. Sheridan the most suitable for the command of the fifth military district. Time has strengthened my convictions upon this point, and has led me to the conclusion that patriotic considerations demand that he should be superceded by an officer who, while he will faithfully execute the law, will, at the same time, give more general satisfaction to the whole people, white and black, North and South.

I am, general, very respectfully yours,
ANDREW JOHNSON.

Gen. U. S. Grant, Secretary of War ad interim.

WASHINGTON, Aug. 27th.—The breach between the President and Grant is widening. Grant is on defiant grounds in opposition to executive assignments. He protests with some indignation against Hancock's removal from the department of Missouri. Grant has not yet promulgated instructions carrying the President's orders into effect.

EXECUTIVE MANSION,
Washington, D. C., Aug. 26, 1867.

Brevet Maj. Gen. Edward R. S.
Canby is hereby assigned to the command of the Second Military District, created by an act of Congress of March 2, 1867, and of the Department of the South, embracing the States of North and South Carolina.

He will, as soon as practicable, relieve Major General Daniel E.
Sickles, and on assuming the command to which he is hereby assigned will, when necessary to a faithful execution of the laws, exercise any and all powers conferred by acts of Congress upon district commanders and any and all authority pertaining to officers in command of military departments. Maj. Gen. Dan'l E.
Sickles is hereby relieved from the command of the second military district. The secretary of war ad interim will give the necessary instructions to carry this order into effect.

ANDREW JOHNSON.

EXECUTIVE MANSION,
Washington, D. C., Aug. 26, 1867.

Sir—In consequence of the unfavorable condition of the health of Major General George H. Thomas,
as reported to you in Surgeon Mas-
son's dispatch of the 21st inst., my order dated August 17th, 1867, is hereby modified so as to assign
Major General Winfield S. Hancock
to the command of the Fifth Military District created by the act of Congress, passed March 2d, 1866, and of the military department comprising the States of Louisiana and Texas. On being relieved by Major
General P. H. Sheridan, Major Gen.
Hancock will proceed directly to
New Orleans, La., and assuming the command to which he is hereby assigned, will, when necessary to a necessities, and will avail himself

of the opportunity afforded by these troubles, for the display of his energy, enterprise and daring, thor-
thly pertaining to officers in command of military departments.

Maj. Gen. P. H. Sheridan will at once turn over his present command
to the officer next in rank to himself
and proceeding without delay to relieve Maj. Gen. Hancock of the command of the department of the Missouri.

Maj. Gen. George H. Thomas will
until further orders, remain in command of the department of the Cumberland. Very respectfully yours
ANDREW JOHNSON.

Gen. U. S. Grant, Secretary of War ad interim

Today's Tribune hugs Grant. The Herald drops him, saying: "The political position assumed by Gen.
Grant shows our great soldier in a new light. It is his first development of political mistake. The reply of the President has completely overturned him, outflanked him. Grant does not understand the crisis. He clings the Sheridan and forgets principles."

It is believed that the difference between the President and Grant is irreconcilable.

It is stated that Grant, in a letter to the President, declined directing the order telegraphed to-night to be executed, couching his refusal in strong terms, virtually denying the President's right to interfere in any of the five military districts, and asserting that the entire control rests with the general in chief, and therefore he is not at liberty to, and will not, vest it in another. The letter has not been made public, but the above statement is reliable.

WASHINGTON, August 29.—The Radicals now admit that the President has the law on his side in the controversy with Gen. Grant about the removals of and instructions to Gen. Sheridan and Gen. Sickles.

Such appears to be the conclusion of General Grant himself, for he has just promulgated General Order No.
81 in the precise language of the President, August 26, and adds thereto three sections in the following language:

Second—In compliance with the foregoing instructions of the President of the United States, Major General P. H. Sheridan will, on receipt of this order, turn over his present command to Brevet Major General Charles Griffin, the officer next in rank to himself, and proceed without delay to Fort Leavenworth, Mo., and will relieve Major General Hancock in command of the Department of Missouri.

Third—On being relieved by Maj.
Gen. Sheridan, Major Gen. Hancock will proceed without delay to New Orleans, Louisiana, and assume command of the Fifth Military District and of the Department composed of the States of Louisiana and Texas.

Fourth—Major Gen. George H.
Thomas will continue in command of the department of the Cumberland.

By command of Gen. Grant.

E. D. TOWNSEND,

Assistant Adjutant General.
The Radicals are also in consternation at the discovery that under the reconstruction act Gen.
Grant has only supervisory control over the removals from office by the District Commanders, and that Gen.
Hancock has exclusive jurisdiction and control over matters of registration, elections, etc.

MEMOR.—A lady was complimenting a clergyman on the fact that she could always recollect and reiterate more of the matter of his sermon than of any other minister she was in the habit of hearing. She could not account for this, but she thought the fact worthy of observation. The reverend gentleman remarked that he could explain the cause. "I happened," he said, "to make a particular point of classifying my topics—it is a hobby of mine to do so and therefore I never compose a sermon without first settling the relationship and order of my arguments and illustrations. Suppose, madam, that your servant was starting for town, and you were obliged hastily to instruct her about a few domestic purchases, not having time to write down the items; and suppose you said, "Be sure to bring some tea, and also some soup, and coffee too," by the by; and some powder blue; and don't forget a few light cakes, and a little starch, and some sugar; and I think of it soda"
—you would not be surprised if her memory failed with regard to one or two articles. But if your commission ran thus: "Now, Mary, tomorrow we are going to have some friends to tea, therefore bring a supply of tea and coffee, and sugar and light cakes, and then the next day, you know, is washing day, so that we shall want soap and starch, and soda; and powder blue; it is most likely she would retain your order as easily as you retain my sermons."—Satin's Irish Diamonds.

The valuable deposits of tin have been discovered in Missouri.

PUBLISHING COMMITTEE:

FOR MOBILE CONFERENCE:

Rev. J. Hamilton, D.D.
Rev. A. H. Mitchell, D.D.
Rev. Thos. W. Dorman, D.D.

FOR MONTGOMERY CONFERENCE:

Rev. M. S. Andrews,
Rev. William A. Shapard,
Rev. J. B. Cottrell.

FOR MISSISSIPPI CONFERENCE:

Rev. W. H. Watkins, D.D.
Rev. H. H. Montgomery,
Rev. William P. Barton.

New Orleans:

---TUESDAY, AUGUST 31, 1867.

To SUBSCRIBERS.—Any person wishing to subscribe for this paper can do so, by paying the Methodist preacher in the circuit, and forwarding to us his receipt for three dollars, with the address of the subscriber upon it, stating Post office, State, Circuit, and Conference. The receipt ought to be taken in duplicate.

Bishop McTear.—By a private note from the Bishop, we learn that he will probably pass through New Orleans on or about the 20th of September, on his way to attend the Texas Conference. He will proceed to the Trinity Conference via Red River, and attend the Shreveport District Meeting, which will be held at Mansfield, Sept. 26th-29th. Bishop McTear certainly counts on being at the District Meeting at Mansfield. If there are any brethren in that section waiting for ordination, this visit of the Bishop will afford them a convenient opportunity of being ordained.

New Orleans Daily Mortuary Report.

Dr. Dirmeyer, Secretary of the Board of Health, furnishes the following daily report of deaths in the city, beginning with Aug. 12th, at 6 A. M.:

| Date | Yellow Fever | Cholera | Other Diseases | Total |
|---------|--------------|---------|----------------|-------|
| Aug. 12 | 3 | 0 | 26 | 29 |
| " 13 | 5 | 1 | 27 | 33 |
| " 14 | 5 | 1 | 31 | 37 |
| " 15 | 2 | 1 | 22 | 25 |
| " 16 | 1 | 1 | 33 | 35 |
| " 17 | 5 | 2 | 20 | 27 |
| " 18 | 6 | 2 | 31 | 39 |
| " 19 | 12 | 0 | 22 | 34 |
| " 20 | 11 | 2 | 19 | 32 |
| " 21 | 10 | 0 | 17 | 27 |
| " 22 | 4 | 0 | 23 | 27 |
| " 23 | 7 | 1 | 19 | 27 |
| " 24 | 19 | 1 | 25 | 45 |
| " 25 | 14 | 1 | 17 | 32 |
| " 26 | 15 | 1 | 22 | 38 |
| " 27 | 14 | 0 | 17 | 31 |
| " 28 | 15 | 0 | 17 | 32 |
| " 29 | 20 | 0 | 27 | 47 |

THE FEVER AT NEW IBERIA.—The CRESCENT is again indebted to Mr. Tupper, President of the Attakapas Mail Transportation Company, for information from New Iberia. The following telegram was yesterday received from Mr. Schmidt, of the Howard Association. The virulence of the epidemic seems to be abating. It must, by this time, have attacked nearly every unacclimated person in New Iberia.

NEW IBERIA, Aug. 26.
To T. Tupper, Esq.:

Two new cases yesterday, and six to-day. Two deaths since Saturday evening. Will leave for New Orleans to-morrow. E. F. SCHMIDT, President Howard Association.

THE FEVER AT GALVESTON.—On the 21st there were nineteen burials from yellow fever at Galveston; on the 22d, sixteen. The prevailing opinion was that the worst point had been passed, and the number of new cases will diminish steadily under the influence of the cool Southern sea breeze which is now constantly blowing. But the papers warn the population against any relaxation of precaution on account of an apparent abatement of the epidemic. Fourteen patients were admitted at the Charity Hospital in Galveston on the 21st, but no deaths were announced that day. In fact, the telegraphic correspondent of the Houston Telegraph could learn of no new cases on the 23d.

The total deaths by yellow fever for the week ending August 15th were 147. Total for the season up to that time, 251.

FEVER AT CORPUS CHRISTI.—The following is a letter to correspondents of the HOWARD ASSOCIATION:

To Dale & Ashworth, Thos. Poole, W. W. Woodman, F. E. Hughes and others, Indianapolis.
Gentlemen.—Your kind notes have been received. We are grateful for your expressions of sympathy, and the material aid you send.

The cloud of death still hangs over our devoted city. Many of our best citizens have fallen. Two resident physicians, two resident druggists, eight merchants, five undertakers, our acting mayor, six reasons, are among the victims. Many families have been broken up. These facts will give you some idea of our present condition and suffering. All that the friends of humanity can do will be required to relieve the needy and prevent further suffering. Any funds sent to Gen. E. J. Davis Wm. Headen, R. Schurbert, or myself, will be thankfully received and faithfully applied.

J. P. SHERMAN,
President Howard Association.

THE SOUTH.

The summing up of the whole, so far as the observation of an ordinary traveler can reckon, is about this: the great majority of the people at the North are heartily with the Radicals. The M. E. Church is only radical and that continually. It presents an undivided front against the South; thinks conscientiously that Davis, Toombs, Mason and Slidell (if he can be caught) and a few others, ought to be hung for righteousness sake. That all the schools, and all the pulpits, and all the negroes ought to be handed over bodily to the control and possession of some godly, patriotic, denomination, whose record is without a blot; say like that of the M. E. Church. This church is no mean part of the government, because it is a large, united, thoroughly organized body, intense in its espousal and advocacy of any political policy, for it has embraced, and been persuaded of the things of Caesar as belonging to the things of God. That a church should not be political, that is patriotic, is regarded as the folly of minds weak or disloyal; a doctrine well enough in the mouth of a defeated man or church, but unworthy of those who have stood up to the government, whose prayers have been answered, and who now by an eye of faith see 'all the land below.'

"A land of corn, and wine, and oil," which they feel fully able to possess.

It's missionary zeal has received a new element, and teachers and missionaries now issue forth to the conquest of the South, with as much spirit as the Knights of the 12th century, went against the Turks and Mahometans. The missionaries generally get back home during the dog-days, to recruit and keep up the crusade by their blood-stirring narratives of fierce encounters with disarmed rebels, and "poor white trash," of indignities suffered from their unnatural brethren of the M. E. C. S., of multiplied thousands of church members, mostly black, gathered in; of whole churches in East Tennessee turned over from the power of Satan to the Kingdom of Light, of deserts in Georgia blooming, and of entire districts in South Carolina born in a day; this and much more, concluding usually with "Greenland's icy mountains" and a collection! The Missionary Secretary and members of the Missionary Board and Bishops, listen to all this with ingenious, grateful demeanor, though they must know that of all these sheaves probably not one has been reaped by their harvest men, but have merely been transferred by them from somebody else's barn to their own, with the protection of an attending company of soldiers. Of all these negroes or whites that are being gathered in, the probability is that there has not been a thousand added to the M. E. C. from the world. They have simply been persuaded over, in some instances bought over, and some driven over from folds in which by the Providence of God they had long time been folded and fed, into new enclosures guarded by shepherds holding swords. To sit in the office, or on the platform, or in the congregation, and by actions, looks and spirit ignore this real state of things while the agent is speaking, or off at work, is the highest achievement of ecclesiastical hypocrisy. It is doubtless very convenient to believe nothing in this connection but that which they wish to believe, but let them be certain of this one thing, that there is nothing hid that shall not be known.

The conquest of the Confederacy was not more certainly the objective point of the Northern Generals during the war, than the conquest and overthrow of the Southern Methodist church is now the aim of these God-fearing Bishops, Secretaries, missionaries, and agents of the M. E. Church. We simply state this as the general animus, there are doubtless some individual exceptions, but not many. The whole enterprise addresses the war-rage as well as the religious zeal that may still live in the veins of brethren.

It is a popular stirring theme, easy to set forth, places the speaker in immediate and powerful sympathy with his audience, and is a great advance upon the wearisome, statistical and dry spiritual resolutions of the old missionary platform, when the collection had to be reached like the digging of a well; whereas, this, like the wand of Moses, brings water at a mere touch from the hardest of rocks. It fills the treasury so easily, there must be some essence of true virtue in it; and so long as the rhino flows, they can well afford to neglect the few colored people of the North, and save those ninety and nine sheep in the wilderness of the South.

Politically, the situation gets no better for the South, nor will until the bones are picked. The Republican party have all the power, and all the government, and all the resources of the North, and one would suppose could afford to be composed and generous towards the South, because so impenetrably fortified in its numbers and victories. But it is, on the contrary, very sensitive easily disturbed; it acts as if fearing the least opposition, and starts up with threatening motions at the sound of the merest rumor, and for the time seems incapable of looking to anything beyond the line of its own immediate safety, or of heartily considering and legislating for the recovery and health of the whole country. The opposition of the President to the Republican policy has effected nothing but to intensify it. He has sustained his own views by no consistent well defined action. His patronage alone could have rescued the States of New York and Pennsylvania, for it amounted to many thousand votes; but he has expected politicians to work for him without reward, to help without being helped, a thing unreasonable and quite contrary to all the maxims of the olden times, and certainly not in accord with those of these days. He expects by virtue of a general abstract admiration for the Constitution, that all the people will at last come right,—vox populi, vox dei—a simplicity worthy of the days of Cincinnatus, when politics were a straightforward business like ploughing. He often says that he is from the people, and of the people and, as things now look, we fear that he will go back to the people before they come all right. He seems to lack decision; he does, and undoes, and half does: the quality which every one supposed him to have in excess, he has in a very slight degree—so much for the popular estimate of a public man. If "one can chase a thousand" by any natural talent, he may succeed; otherwise he will go down in December, under the unchecked power in the Legislative Department, of the Government. The policy of restoration, which the President advocated and adopted, we believe to have been safe for the North, beneficial to the South, and truly consistent with the avowed theory of the Constitution, by the prominent statesmen of the Eastern and Western States; during the whole history of the Government. Had it been continued, we should now have nearly recovered from the terrible events of the past war, the negro would have had all the freedom and prosperity he now has, and the passions engendered by the contention of brothers would have assuaged under the healing influences of peace. How much Mr. Johnson could have done that he has not done, it is difficult to say. It may be that from the first, he has been sitting on a wild horse without being able to touch the reins with his hand, or the stirrups with his feet. He may have waited, hoping that time would greatly allay the general irritation, and that reason and law would of themselves usurp their proper sway, for who can tell what may be in the future? He could not know, nor could any one untried, how long the mania of war continues to boil in the blood after the trumpet has announced that the victory is gained and the battle ended.

In the main the North seems to have lost nothing by the war. Trade is brisker, men who never expected to have more than a competence, have become wealthy by a single movement, in one night fortune has covered their scanty booths with a luxuriant broad-leaved vine, and if the rest of the world were on the verge of destruction, they are cool and happy. Bonds are plenty, they pay no tax, and in fact they bind nobody but those misfortunates who are yet to be born. Persons killed during the war were mainly foreigners who had been too short a time in the country to have any kin; so that even in that point of view, which is certainly the most distressing; they are not wholly without comfort. The receipts from the South the year after war, and during last year have kept up the commercial prosperity of the war period; all the proceeds of the cotton crops of these two years have swelled the general current of success. The tariff has been carried up as far as protection could lift it, and, indeed, as high as an iron-maker from Pennsylvania could reach while standing on the shoulders of a cotton manufacturer from Massachusetts. So that whatever disasters have ensued upon war to the country generally, there are thousands in the North who have derived from it, wealth and prosperity, and nothing else. What commercial revolutions may await this unnatural and inflated condition of the East, the West, and the North, we shall doubtless live long enough to see, but for the present, prosperity prevents the entire Northern people, both of the State and the Church, from realizing or sympathizing with us in our social, commercial, and political disasters.

NEGRO DIRECTORS.

The Picayune of Wednesday states that eight of the new Public School Board are colored. But we learn from good authority that there are ten colored, and that of the six directors in the 2d District, but one is white. To us this is a sufficient evidence that General Sheridan, affiliates with the extreme wing of the Radical Party. The philanthropist might find a sufficient refutation of the popular notion of American slavery, and of "Uncle Tom's Cabin" in that, in the judgment of a highly educated Northern man free from all bias for the institution, eight negroes could be found, who had just been reared in the atmosphere and shade of slavery, sufficiently educated and refined to be put in the management of the Public schools of the city of New Orleans.

With all our disposition to accord to slavery its capacity for elevating African tribes by bringing them to civilized countries, and keeping them in contact with intelligent and Christian races of people, we are not prepared to admit any such advancement in the negro of the South as is, by this action, claimed for him. In the cities of Philadelphia or Boston, we doubt if the public could afford eight colored persons to direct their public schools. Something more than a sense of fitness has influenced this undue elevation of the negro over the white man. The intention of humiliating leading politicians and citizens of the South has been avowed by those controlling the government. But this Africanizing the public schools does not reach that class of persons, for they, for the most part, patronize private schools. It is the poor white man who is to be mainly affected by a policy which seeks to throw his children in immediate social connection with the children of the negro.

It remains to be seen whether the heat of party strife, or the violent passions roused by war, are stronger and deeper than the instincts which the Almighty has implanted in the white race, to protect its blood from flowing in darker channels and its form and countenance from debasing change. God having made white men and black men, has doubtless fixed a law in each to maintain that distinctness, as he has fixed laws in divine plants. The attempt to ignore and override the virtuous and wholesome prejudices of race and color, must eventually and powerfully react against all who are parties to it. The sympathy for the slave, passes away with slavery. To take that slave and place him above his former master, not because he is capable, but as a symbol of triumph, must reflect only upon those who indulge in such ingenuous sentiments. The poor negro may eventually be the most unfortunate one of the three. But in the future, when all these martial passions shall have passed away from the hearts of the people North and the people South, their posterity will look at the whole world now does, in amazement upon white men who could so far forget what is due to themselves as to subject the children of their own blood kin to the control and guidance of the black race. We are with the hearty honest sentiment of all the common people North and South, that is, we are for the white man and for those who are for him: We claim to be a true financial of the black man, and are for the black man, when the black man is in his proper place, otherwise we are against him. He is ignorant, incapable of self-control, and is used, just as a wilderness of monkeys might be, by the party in power. He knows this, that he is in traces, and in the main he has behaved so far discreetly.

But the most serious result of this black Directorship remains to be considered. It will send many of the children of the poor white man into the streets. Where a man may travel a day without meeting a negro, as in New England, this measure would be a nullity; but here where you may meet a thousand blacks every day without traveling, it is a huge calamity. Vast numbers of these children will attend the Catholic public schools, and so far as the interest of that Church is concerned it will prove a god send. The Protestants of the North can digest no policy which will advance the interests of the Catholic Church throughout the Southern States a hundred fold.

Necessity is now laid upon our own Church to provide promptly and amply for the education of the large number of her children who have been virtually thrust away from the Schools which the white man is taxed largely to support.

REVIVAL NEWS.—Our readers will be greatly cheered by reading "News from the Churches."

New Advertisements.

Notice.—The commencement of the Session of Port Gibson College Academy is postponed to September 16.

The charge for Board and English Tuition has been reduced to $70 per quarter. aug 31 3

DR. JOHN G. ANGELL, practical and surgical Dentist, is back again, after an absence of two months, at his office, 109 Carondelet street.

JOHN C. BULL & Co., General Commission and Forwarding Merchants, No. 64 North Commercial street, St. Louis, Missouri.

We can heartily recommend this House to our friends throughout the South. Mr. B. we knew as a business man, true, and punctual, 25 years ago. He has been a friend of the Southern people in word and deed; of late aiding their destitute by generous contributions. Mr. B. has associated with him his two sons, who were in the Confederate service.

We take the liberty of requesting the House to act as our agents with all who may wish to subscribe for this paper, or to advertise in it.

BLACKMAN'S COMMERCIAL COLLEGE, corner of Carondelet and Canal.

Mr. Blackman is personally experienced and a successful teacher in all that he proposes to teach, that is, penmanship, book-keeping, mathematics, languages, &c., all that is necessary to an accomplished commercial education. Mr. B. has been in this city and devoting himself exclusively to this business for years. He is aided by a corps of competent teachers. Sons of preachers, and crippled soldiers taught at half price.

BLACKWOOD FOR AUGUST, Containing Brownlow's Part VIII, The Era of George III, Life and Letters of Goy. Winthrop, The Eastern of Two Oculophobists, Lott, imilian, The Chiffonier, The it is. LEONARD SEOTT & Co. Fulton street, New York.

Good News FOR THE COTTON FENS.—Capt. Gross, of the just down from Bayou Sara, our river reporter that the all the way down are much at the appearance of the which they say is a great of the cotton worm. A Webster's dictionary gives of ichneumon as meaning "a of hymenopterous insects, (the bee, wasp, &c.) whose parasitic in other insects. distinguished by having the men attached to the hinder the thorax, just between of the hind legs, and often pedicel. These animals are destroyers of caterpillars, and other insects, as the (proper) is of the eggs and of the erocodile. Called also mon-thy."

The advent of this welcome is hailed with hearty pleasure the planters, who look to it as a saviour from the caterpillars; they are already increasing the titimutes of the crop wherever ichneumon has made its appearance. —Crescent.

A NEW TRADE.

Scientific research and investigation are constantly new substances to those recognized as possessing a title value. Within a few new textile has been a but a more recent discovery has practical results not only diate, but having an bearing upon various species of sponge (not the sponge of commerce, but a sponge heretofore considered less), which grows in quantities among the coral of the Bahama Islands and the coasts of Mexico and has been found to be exactly large variety of mechanical uses, and is destined to enter into domestic consumption in very shallow water, and requires no skill or labor production.

Although the peculiar of this vegetable growth is known until within a recent vessels are leaving New Boston regularly to obtain and the substance, as prepar machinery at the factory in Birmingham, Ct., is in demand for its supply. As a substitute curled hair, and feathers were becoming too expensive except the opulent class seems complete. Henceforth poor man can throw away of straw, and at a moderate provided himself with a rest as soft and luxurious as more favored with woolly goods. The newly discovered grows in a scraggly form the corals of the seashore gathered by the natives of the islands, and delivered dry at a price per pound, payable in chandise at the various deposit. A schooner belonging the New York Elastic Sponge facturing Company left this week on her fourth trip; and belonging to the American Sponge Company, of Boston, the same time,—the latter paying a royalty to the Each vessel brings from 80,000 to 100,000 lbs., compressed into by machinery. To render the stance merchantable, the first cess is to put it into what manufacturers call a "stiff" where it is cut, washed, and from calcareous matter and impurities. It is afterward through a series of rubber saturated with glycerine preserves its natural and is then seasoned in baled. A single inch will to twelve times its compressed Thus prepared, the sponge is from all forms of insect packs, is not liable to decay, much softer and more elastic other materials which it is fitted to displace—at least to an extent. One pound is equal equivalent to one and or two of either feathers or and its cost is comparatively For carriage upholstery, church-cushions, mattresses, sponge is already in extensive and is highly commended.

As a new commodity, employment for skill and starting new processes in mry, and especially as "afford all classes additional means of fort without a corresponding upon pecuniary resources, recovery thus announced no little commercial importance. N. Y. Journal of Commerce.

Mrs. Elmina Randolph, of New Orleans. Mrs. Elmina Randolph, (born Spahn) died at Minneapolis, in the State of Minnesota, on the 14th of Aug., 1867. Sister Randolph was born in the valley of Blue Ridge, N. C., Sept. 15, 1815, and spent the earlier part of her life in that section. She was educated in her childhood, and lived a consistent member of the Methodist Church, until her death. She resided in this city for the last twenty years, and has left amongst the memory of an unblemished and useful Christian life. Sustaining to her, the relation of pastor for many years, we can attest the noble and consistent piety which marked her history. She was eminently domestic in her tastes, and her home was made a place of attractiveness and contentment to her husband and children. Home was her sphere, and her happiness; her virtues and graces shone. She was given to hospitality, and to good and charitable deeds. We never knew greater kindness, or greater unselfishness. The law of kindness was on her lips, and her hands were open to help the needy. She was distinguished for her piety of spirit, and for a meekness that never gave way under temptation. Her husband says she knew no fault in her; her friends and members of the Felicity street church, with whom she was associated for twenty years, will bear the same. She was an invalid the last two years, and finally a victim to pulmonary consumption. On the first of June, she left Minnesota, in company with her husband, hoping the change might afford at least temporary relief. She did not live to return. A long suffering, she endured with patience, and died tranquilly and peacefully. Her last words were, "The Lord has cared for me all the days of my life, will not forsake me now in my dying hour." A pious lady, who was with her in the closing days, "All who witnessed her sufferings and death were strengthened in their faith. There was no expression of joy, but a confidence that robbed death of its greatest horror to those who were by her side. She never wavered for a moment, and her faith unwavering to the last." So she died and died this exemplary African woman. Her children are up to mourn for her and to call blessed her friends lament her death, the church is bereaved. A beautiful life, a calm and triumphant death. She died in the land her works do follow her.

Rev. Zachariah Thompson.

Malachi Dubose writes Arkansas Post, under date of 31, 1867, "Rev. Zachariah Thompson, for many years a member of the Louisiana Conference, at De Witt, in this county, died, about three months ago, and was engaged in teaching, and was highly respected as a good and useful local preacher. He leaves a wife and several children."

Brother Thompson, as the writer of the above states, was for many years a member of the Louisiana Conference. He was, we believe, native of this State, and was admitted on trial in the Louisiana Conference at its first session in 1847. He was elected ordained Deacon and Elder in regular course, and was President of Lake Providence District in 1855. At the close of the year he located, and remained an efficient and useful local preacher until his death.

Since his location, now nearly five years ago, we have seldom seen him, but we remember him, as in the Conference, as a man of sweet spirit, full of kindness and brotherly love, and devoted to his work. We remember well a recent session of the Conference at which he reluctantly and announced his location. We assembled to receive our appointments, and he sat weeping overcome at the foot of the altar. Whilst his relations to the Conference continued his was a blameless record, and since then his character has been without reproach.

Mrs. Sallie Lott Thomas.

NEW ORLEANS, August 28.

BRO. KEENER: I send you for publication an obituary notice of Mrs. Thomas. She was a cousin of my wife's—born in Madison county, Mississippi. Her death was certainly a most glorious and triumphant one. In a letter from my wife's mother, who was with her in her last moments on earth, she said—

"Aunt, do you not wish to send a message to cousin William? I will soon be with him." Her mother came near her in tears and grief, when she said, "Mother, dear, you ought not to weep and mourn for me, but rather rejoice at the goodness of God, who, for Jesus' sake, permits me at this moment to pass through the dark valley and shadow of death and fear no evil." Her death was happy. Truly, for her "to live was Christ, but to die was gain." Her parents and loved ones should rejoice and not mourn. May we live the life of the righteous, and may our last end be like hers.

Your friend, W. R. STUART.

Mrs. SALLIE LOTT THOMAS died at the residence of her father, Hon. W. B. Lott, in this county, on the morning of the 6th instant.

It is difficult to imagine circumstances that would make death entirely welcome to one's friends and relatives. Come as it will it is still repulsive and we shrink from it, and feel that an aching void is made that never can be filled. In the case of the death of this amiable lady, however, many circumstances met, calculated to reconcile her loved ones to her early demise. Almost incessantly, since her growth up to womanhood, has she been a sufferer from ill health, and at times her sufferings were extreme. She herself has been heard often to say that it were better to die than to live in such pain as she was subject to. Then death, which ended her sufferings, and translated her to that happy clime, where "Sickness and sorrow, pain and death, are felt and feared no more," was certainly welcome. But the manner in which she met her fate, more particularly enabled her friends to feel the truth of the Apostle's assertion: "Oh death, where is thy sting? Oh grave, where is thy victory?" Rarely is there exhibited such a complete triumph of Christianity over death, as was in her case. When informed that she could not last much longer, she replied, "Glory be to God, my house is set in order." She expressed herself as being perfectly happy and resigned, and that she was going where she would have no more pain. She asked to be moved on the gallery, that she might look upon the beautiful and happy world once more, and said that her expressions of joy and happiness were not enthusiasm, that never had her mind been more calm and collected. She often said that Jesus was with her, and that all was joy and perfect peace.

Mrs. Thomas was born and reared in this county; received most of her education from Mrs. Griffin, a private instructress, to whom she was tenderly attached, and to whom she was much indebted for her graceful deportment and cultivated mind. In February, 1862, she was married to Mr. Guston W. Thomas. The highly favored young couple, entered upon life with promises of happiness and success that fall to the lot of but few. Alas, that bodily affliction should have so seriously interfered with that happiness, and that untimely death should so soon have blasted it forever. She attached herself to the Methodist Church, soon after her marriage, and remained a consistent member till her death.

May her early death, her christian life, and more than all, her triumphant exit from earth, be blessed of heaven to the eternal gain of her bereaved friends.

C. G. ANDREWS.

REV. WILLIAM HOLMAN, of the Methodist Church, so long, extensively and favorably known in this city, says the Louisville Courier, died last Thursday, the 1st inst., at the residence of his brother, at Centerville, Ind., aged seventy-seven years. He was seriously ill for several weeks at his home in this city, and then recovered sufficiently to go to his brother's, hopeful for still greater improvement by the change, but he continued to decline till death occurred.

Father Holman joined the Kentucky Conference in this city fifty-one years ago, and for more than thirty years has been residing here. No minister of any denomination in this city has been so frequently, at the bedside of the sick and the dying as he, none so frequently visited the poor and the lowly in the time of need and distress as he, and he deservedly occupies a high place in the esteem and affection of both the rich and the poor, who knew him well. But his work is finished, his pilgrimage is ended, and he rests in peace.—Memphis Christ Adv.

The schoolboy who is only studious and quiet when the teacher's eye is upon him, who will get the answers of his problems by the "key," or from another boy's slate, instead of working them out himself; who will break rules whenever he can do so without being punished, is laying a bad foundation on which to build his character.

MARRIED.

Married, Aug. 22d, By the Rev. L. M. Wilson, Rev. FRANK BRANDON, of the Montgomery Conference, to Miss. CARRIE WOODWARD, of Jacksonville Alabama.

OBITUARIES.

REV. THOS. M. LYNCH.

At the third Quarterly Meeting Conference for Socopaty Circuit, Montgomery Conference—held 29th June, 1867, the following resolutions reported by a Committee of the Conference, were unanimously adopted.

WHEREAS, An all wise Providence has seen fit to remove by death from our midst, our much loved brother Lynch; whereas, though a member of the Montgomery Conference, yet he was long and endearingly associated with the Socopaty Circuit and Quarterly Conference, while supernumerary, and contributed much to the increase of godliness among us, and to the spread of scriptural holiness throughout the bounds of the Circuit, both by his able and lucid exposition of the Scriptures, and his pious example; and whereas, he has left a large and interesting family, resident with us to mourn and feel his loss—

Resolved, Therefore, that while of his labors we have the highest appreciation, and for his name cherish the most grateful remembrance; yet, we bow with humble resignation to the will of Him who doeth all things well, knowing that the judge of all the earth will do right.

Resolved, That his bereaved companion, his fatherless children, and afflicted mother, have the sympathies and prayers of this Conference.

Resolved, That a copy of these resolutions be sent to his family, and also, that a copy be sent to the New Orleans Christian Advocate for publication.

Wm. A. EDWARDS, } Com
W. GARRETT, }
Thos. C. BRADY, }

Died, in Clark County, Ala., on the 21st of July, 1867, at the residence of her son, Daniel McLeod, Mrs. NANCY McLEOD, daughter of Malcom and Christian Cat, born, and relict of the late Neal McLeod, in the 76th year of her age. Sister McLeod was born in the State of North Carolina, Jan. 11th, 1791, was married in 1812, and moved to Alabama with her husband, in 1820. Coming into life soon after the revolutionary war, and living to the advanced age of 76 years, 6 months and 10 days, this mother in Israel saw many changes, both in Church and State. Having been brought up and educated by pious Presbyterian parents, she never knew the time, when she was not a member of the church. On locating in Alabama, there being no Presbyterian church convenient, she united with the Methodist, of which she remained a consistent member until her death. A husband and six children went before her to their reward in heaven, while one son, three daughters, and about one hundred grand and great grand children are left to mourn her loss. Sister M. had large experience in spiritual things, and beautifully adorned the doctrine of Christ, which comforted and sustained her through life and in death. The sickness of which she died, was of a few months duration, during which time, she suffered greatly, but endured it all with patience and Christian fortitude. As she approached the grave, her prospects seemed to brighten for heaven, and she expressed herself frequently as being ready and willing to depart, and be with Christ. Having strong faith in the Saviour during life, she left an abundant evidence behind, that she has gone to her Father's house, where faith is turned to sight, and prayer to praise.

A.

SPECIAL NOTICES.

DISTRICT MEETING.

A District Meeting for the Mobile District will be held in Franklin, Southern Methodist Church, in the city of Mobile, beginning on Friday, before the second Sunday in October, at 9 A. M., at which, all the traveling and local preachers, and all the official members of the church in the bounds of the District, are earnestly requested to attend. Ample accommodations will be provided by calling on Doctors Hamilton and Neely. Bishop Wightman will be in attendance.

THOMAS W. DORRAN, P. E.

Tuscaloosa District—Mobile Conference.

The District Conference for the Tuscaloosa District, will be held at Flat Woods, on Havana Circuit, commencing Thursday, 26th of September prox.

The Conference will be composed of all the traveling preachers and official members of the stations, circuits, and missions of the District.

The Introductory Sermon will be preached by Rev. J. C. Willis, of the Southern University, Thursday 11 o'clock A. M.

Bishop Wightman will preside.

J. L. CORREX, P. E.

Shreveport Dist.—Louisiana Conference.

FOURTH ROUND OF QUARTERLY MEETINGS.

| | |
|---------------------------------|-------------------|
| Maury, at Fort Jesson, | Aug 31 and Sept 1 |
| Anacoco, at Holly Grove, | " 7 8 |
| Pleasant Hill, at Beulah, | " 14 15 |
| Mansfield, at Mansfield, | " 28 29 |
| Caddo, at Greewood, | Oct 5 6 |
| N. Rossier, at Walker's Chapel, | 12 13 |
| Shreveport, | " 19 20 |
| Isle Bower, | " 26 27 |
| Springville, at Springville, | Nov 2 3 |

District Meeting to be held at Mansfield, September 26, 27, 28.

B. F. ALEXANDER, P. E.

Tuscaloosa District—Mobile Conference.

FOURTH ROUND OF QUARTERLY MEETINGS.

| | |
|---------------------------|------------------|
| Havana, | Sept 28 29 |
| New Bern and Oak Grove, | Oct 5 6 |
| Marion, | " 12 13 |
| Brush Creek, | " 19 20 |
| Scottsville and Carthage, | " 26 27 |
| Tuscaloosa, | Nov 2 3 |
| Entaw, | " 9 10 |
| Portland, | " 16 17 |
| Greensboro, | Nov 30 and Dec 1 |

J. L. COTTON, P. E.

OPELOUSAS DISTRICT.

The District Meeting appointed for 13th and 14th September, at New Iberia, is postponed for the present. Due notice will be given of the time, when it is proper to hold said meeting.

A. E. GOODWIN, P. E.

New Orleans Dist.—Louisiana Conference.

THIRD ROUND OF QUARTERLY MEETINGS.

| | |
|-----------------------------------|--------|
| Carondelet Street, | Aug 25 |
| Felicity Street, | Sept 1 |
| Morcan Street, | 8 |
| Jefferson City, | 15 |
| N. O. Cir. Quat. Can. Adv. | 16 |
| State office, at 5 P. M., | 16 |
| German Church, at Sarapara st., | 22 |
| German Quarterly Conference | 23 |
| Dryad street, | 23 |
| Baton Rouge, | 28, 29 |
| Thibodaux circuit, at Houma Oct 6 | 13 |
| Bayou Gros Teat at Plaquemine | 13 |

J. C. KEENER, P. E.

Natchez District Convention.

Will be held in Woodville, Miss., from Thursday, 26th, (10 o'clock A. M.) to Sunday the 29th of September next.

We deem it unnecessary to republish subjects to be reported upon by pastors, stewards, S. S. superintendents, presidents and teachers of our colleges and schools, but would refer them to a publication in N. O. C. ADVOCATE, June 8th, 1867. After deliberation, the published place for addresses has been abandoned. There will be preaching at the usual hours, Saturday, P. M., and Sabbath day. We trust every official member on the District will be present the first day of the meeting, so as to serve on various committees, which will be needed. Respectfully,

JAS. A. GODFREY.

Vicksburg Dist.—Mississippi Conference.

FOURTH ROUND OF QUARTERLY MEETINGS.

| | |
|----------------------------|-----------|
| North Warren, at Oak Ridge | Sept 1, 2 |
| Port Gibson, | 8, 9 |
| Fayette, at Bethel | 15, 16 |
| Burtonton, at Pisgah | 22, 23 |
| Cayuga, at Utica | 29, 30 |
| Warren, at Bethel | Oct 6, 7 |
| Rocky Springs | 13, 14 |
| Vicksburg | 20, 21 |

Pastors will be ready with full reports of statistics. Written reports of the condition of church property, Sabbath schools, etc., will be expected.

G. H. CLINTON, P. E.

Summerfield District Meeting.

A District Meeting for the Summerfield District will be held at Uniontown, commencing Thursday, the 12th Sept. The official members of the church within the bounds of the District, are all members of the District Meeting Conference, and are earnestly requested and expected to attend. Arrangements will be made to carry the members over the railroads at half price.

A. H. MITCHELL, P. E.

Lake Providence Dist.—La. Conference.

THIRD ROUND OF QUARTERLY MEETINGS.

| | |
|-------------------------------------|-------------|
| Delhi & Floyd Ct., at Midway, | July 29, 28 |
| Carroll, at Curtis's, | Aug 3, 4 |
| Oakley, at Beauf Prairie | 10, 11 |
| Ion, Little Creek Chapel | 24, 25 |
| Texas and Sicily, Sicily Island | Sept 7, 8 |
| Waterproof & St. Joseph, Waterproof | 14, 15 |

Also a District Meeting for Lake Providence District, to be held at Oakley Camp ground, to commence on the 27th Sept., at which all the traveling and local preachers, exhortors, district stewards, Sunday-school superintendents and class leaders, are respectfully requested to attend, and as many of the members of the church as possible.

W. G. MCGOUGH, P. E.

Homer District—Louisiana Conference.

FOURTH ROUND OF QUARTERLY MEETINGS.

| | |
|----------------------------|-----------|
| Vernon Ct. at Vernon | Sept 7, 8 |
| Haynesville at Collingdale | 21, 22 |
| Farmerville at Alabama | 28, 29 |
| Homer at Forest Grove | Oct 5, 6 |
| Lake Bluff at Ringgold | 12, 13 |
| Sparta at Sparta | 19, 20 |
| Mt. Lebanon at Arcadia | 26, 27 |
| Lewisville | Nov 2, 3 |
| South Porter | 9, 10 |
| Mimlon | 16, 17 |

District Meeting at Forest Grove, seven miles east of Homer, commencing Friday, fourth of October. All traveling and local preachers, also all of the official members of the District are requested to attend.

JNO. A. MILLER, P. E.

Brookhaven Dist.—Miss Conference.

FOURTH ROUND OF QUARTERLY MEETINGS.

| | |
|----------------------------------|------------|
| Hazlehurst, | Sept 1, |
| Chrystal Springs, at Bethesda | 7, 8 |
| Scotland col'd cir., at Gallitia | 14, 15 |
| Meadville, at Beach Grove | 21, 22 |
| Dist Meeting Hazlehurst | 27, 28, 29 |
| Holmesville, at Holmesville | Oct 5, 6 |
| Bayou Pierre, at Rehoboth | 12, 13 |
| Pearl River, at Sertains | 19, 20 |
| Bayou Olitto, | 26, 27 |
| Wesson, at Beauregard | Nov 2, 3 |
| Brookhaven, | 9, 10 |
| Scotland, at Gallitia | 16, 17 |

The District Meeting will be held at Hazlehurst, Sept. 27, 28, 29.

G. W. MILLSAPS, P. E.

NEW ADVERTISEMENTS.

EAST ALABAMA MALE COLLEGE.

AT AUBURN, ALA.

The Fall term of this Institution will open on the FIRST WEDNESDAY IN SEPTEMBER next, and close on the 20th December. Besides the regular course of studies for graduation, large facilities are afforded for instruction in the Commercial and Agricultural branches. Separate schools for these branches, in connection with the College, were authorized at the last annual meeting of the Board of Trustees. A student not wishing to take either the regular or partial literary course in the College, may confine himself to either of these Departments, and in a short time become qualified for business.

The Preparatory Department, with competent teachers, will be under the special supervision of the Faculty.

Tuition—Full Term in College, $30 00
Contingent Fee, 5 00
Total, $35 00
School—Full Term in Preparatory, $15 00
Contingent Fee, 2 00
Total, $17 00
Board in Private Families from $15 to $20 per month.
C. R. HARRIS, Secy of Board.

ADAMS & BLUNT.

COTTON FACTORS,
Forwarding and Commission Merchants
and Purchasing Agents,
No. 75 Carondelet street, New Orleans.
aug 21 ly

SOMERVILLE FEMALE INSTITUTE.

The undersigned will reopen this old and well established school on MONDAY, SEPTEMBER 2, 1867.

EXPENSES.

Tuition per Session of Twenty Weeks, $30 00
Music, 25 00
Use of lastement, 25 00
Languages, each, 7 50
Incidental Fee, 10 00
Board, including everything except Bed Covering and Towels, per Month, 20 00
Board, exclusive of Lights and Washing, 16 00
aug 21

PORT GIBSON COLLEGIATE ACADEMY.

A College for Young Ladies with a Preparatory and a Primary School.

BOARD OF INSTRUCTION AND GOVERNMENT.

A. J. Wright, A. M., President
Mrs. A. A. Wright, Principal
Mr. C. Scott Ricketts
Miss Ann M. Ross
Miss G. A. Murphy, Instructress in Vocal and Instrumental music.

OTHER INSTRUCTORS WILL BE ANNOUNCED.

This Institution was founded about 1830, and incorporated in 1834, and has a bright record of usefulness. It has been under the present direction four years. The course of study is a full one, and, upon its satisfactory completion, a diploma will be awarded.

The young pupils have the same instructors, and receive the same attention as their seniors. Exercises are continued throughout the course in Penmanship, Elocution, Orthography, the science of English Grammar, the Art of Composition, and Arithmetic.

The buildings are spacious, retired, well shaded, and well designed for Academic use. PORT GIBSON is noted for its beauty, salubrity, order and good society. Transportation from Grand Gulf will be by railroad in a few days.

SESSION COMMENCES SEPT. 16.

Boards are under special charge of the Lady Principal. Board and English Tuition, $70 00 per quarter. For circulars and particulars apply to J. G. Humphreys, President Board of Trustees, Port Gibson, Miss.

EMORY & HENRY COLLEGE.

WASHINGTON CO., VA.

Our Fall session begins on the 15th of August next. Changes for session of five months, payable in currency and in advance, are as follows:

Tuition in collegiate course, $30 00
Fuel, room rent and contingent fee, 10 00
Total, $40 00
Board in Preparatory Department is $5 00

Board can be had in private families at the College, for $15 per month, if paid or satisfactorily arranged, monthly in advance. Those seeking collegiate advantages are invited to investigate ours. For additional information, Address, E. E. WILLY, Pres't, Emory P. O., Va.

PAUL J. CHRISTIAN.

GENERAL.

MERCANTILE AND STEAMBOAT STATIONER.

BLANK BOOK MANUFACTURER.

JOB PRINTER.

NO. 38 CAMP ST.

All orders in my line promptly filled. July 13-67

DOLBEAR COMMERCIAL COLLEGE.

(Open constantly, Day and Evening.)

Corner Camp and Common Streets, NEW ORLEANS.

Founded in 1832—Chartered by the Legislature of Louisiana, with Commercial, Agricultural, Mechanical and Literary Departments.

This College has, by its own merits and thorough, practical plan of education, outlived all the liberally endowed State or Political Colleges of this and the South-Western States. It is the oldest Commercial College in the United States.

Every student who gives proper attention to the instruction is qualified before graduating to keep any sort of books, it matters not what the business may be, and to the correspondence of any house. Students can attend the Commercial course, or the Literary or Agricultural (Course), or to Penmanship, Arithmetic or Book-keeping, or the English, French, Spanish, German, Latin or Greek Languages, Telegraphy, Photography, Penmanship, Book-keeping, or the higher Mathematics, etc., separately.

We have ample arrangements for one thousand students during the current year.

N. B.—Merchants, Planters, Lawyers, Steamboatmen, Builders, etc., can here learn to open, keep, and close their books correctly in a few days.

Benefits of Attending this College

1st. The student saves much time and money as there are special Professors and Apartments for each branch and all things are taught and practiced as in business.

2d. Penmanship is taught as a Science, (and not by imitation) hence all can easily learn. We have one of the most distinguished penmen living, as Professor.

3d. Our Graduates are sought by business men and may be found as Principals, Book-keepers and Clerks, in a large portion of the Banks and Business Houses of this city and over the South. They receive $1000, $2000, or $3000 per annum. This education is the best fortune parents can give their sons.

4th. The DIPLOMA of this College is a passport over the Commercial world.

5th. Young Gentlemen who have entirely neglected their studies, can here be qualified for business in a short time.

6th. This College will qualify young gentlemen to open similar Institutions in all Southern Cities, Mexico, Brazil, etc., if they come well recommended to us.

7th. Crippled soldiers and sons of clergymen will receive a liberal deduction made.

N. B.—Those who write for Book-keepers or Teachers should give full particulars. Those who send young students should put their money in the hands of their merchant or the President. The South must now educate practically or be forever the tooling vessel of the North.

Circulars and Catalogues sent to all who desire them.

Board—Students can board with the Professors and other good families at $30 to $35 per month.

Health—For seven years New Orleans has been as healthy as New York or Philadelphia.

COLLEGE OFFICE, ROOM NO. 8.

Terms—Payable in Advance.

Penmanship—Lessons not limited, $25 00

Book-keeping—double and single entry—a perfect course, 50 00

Arithmetic—including all commercial calculations, 50 00

Lectures on Commercial Law, 20 00

(The above constitutes the Commercial Course.)

Stationery for Penmanship, 10 00

Diploma, for Master of Accounts, 10 00

English, French, Spanish, German, Latin, Greek—full Course, not limited, 100 00

A Life Ticket in all the Departments, 500 00

For any Language; for Drawing, per month, each, 20 00

Higher Mathematics—price depends on the extent of Course.

English Grammar, 50 00

N. B.—A student having paid for a Course in any branch as above, is entitled to a Life Ticket in that Department. He can attend such branches as he may desire. There are monthly graduating classes. Students can begin at any time.

Faculty—RUFUS DOLBEAR, President, Lecturer on Business Customs, Book-keeping, etc.

RUFUS L. DOLBEAR, Vice President, Lecturer on Commercial Business, Banking, Exchanges, Book-keeping, and duties of Employers.

Agricultural Department, Mechanical Department, Principal. The Lectures on Agricultural Chemistry—also on Political Economy and on Mechanics, etc., will begin in October next. Commercial Department, F. A. Moore, Edict, Lecturer on Commercial Law, etc.

Mathematical Department—GEORGE B. BRACKETT, Professor and Lecturer on Commercial Calculations and High Mathematics.

Book-keeping Department—B. GRIFFITH, and J. W. STEARNS, Professors and Lecturers on Book-keeping, etc.

English Department—REV. GEORGE W. STICKNEY, Professor and Lecturer on English literature, etc.

French Department—J. V. SERRUREAU, Professor.

Department for Penmanship—B. EUSTON, Professor and Lecturer on Business and Ornamental Penmanship.

Spanish Department—MANUEL MARINO, Professor.

</

THE CHILD'S CORNER.

From the Children's Hour.
OUR MOTHER.

Our mother's lost her youthfulness;
Her locks are turning grey;
And wrinkles take the place of smiles;
She's fading every day.
We gaze at her in sorrow now,
For though we've never been told,
We can but feel the sad truth,
Our mother's growing old.

Our mother's lost her youthfulness;
Her smiles are just as kind;
Her tones to us are soft as erst;
Where should we dearest find?
But, as we note the trembling tongue,
And mark the stooping form;
A sad voice whispers to our hearts,
Ye cannot keep her long.

From the Children's Hour.

CRUMBS TO THE BIRDS.

A bird appears a thoughtless thing,
He's ever living on the wing,
And keeps up such a carolling,
That little else to do but sing,
A man would guess had he.

No doubt he has his little cares,
And very hard he often fares,
The which so patiently he bears,
That, listening to those cheerful airs,
Who knows but what he may be

In want of his next meal of seeds?
I think for that his sweet song pleads;
If so, his pretty art succeeds,
I'll scatter here, among the weeds,
All the small crumbs I see.

From the Children's Hour.

The Tailor Bird.

What do the birds want with a tailor?—they don't wear clothes," said Addie Bea.

Her brother Josie was turning over the leaves of a book, and had just exclaimed,

"O dear! Here's a tailor bird."

Josie laughed a merry laugh at his sister's remark.

"Let me see," said Addie, and she leaned over her brother's shoulder to get a peep at the wonderful bird.

"He doesn't look much like a tailor. I don't see his shears and goose, nor his needle and thimble."

"He's a tailor, for all that," answered Josie, "and knows how to sew leaves together." He's at work now."

"What is he doing?"

"Making a nest."

"Oh that's it," said Addie, a new interest coming into her face. "How curious. Tell me all about it, won't you, Josie? Does he use a needle and thread?"

"He uses thread."

"Where does he get it?"

"Out in the fields. There are a great many plants from which you may strip long, tough fibres, or threads; and the tailor bird knows where to find them. When it wants to make a nest it selects a large leaf hanging to the end of a slender twig, and pierces a row of holes along each edge, using its bill just as a shoemaker uses his awl."

"Why not call it a shoemaker, then? Tailors don't work with awls," said Addie.

"It was the fancy of the man who first named it to call it a tailor bird, I suppose," replied Josie; "and I rather think it's the best name, even if it does use an awl; for the bird doesn't make shoes."

"Nor clothes either," returned Addie, laughing. "But no matter. Go on telling me how it works."

"Well, after it has pierced holes all along both edges of the leaf, it makes a great many of these holes, more than it has any use for, sometimes, this feathered tailor of the woods takes the thread it has stripped from a plant and begins passing it through these holes, drawing the edges of the leaf together, and working away until it has made a sack. Sometimes a single leaf is not large enough for the bird, and then it will take two leaves hanging side by side and sew them together; or cut a leaf from another twig and fasten it to the one at first taken."

"Indeed, but it's a smart little fellow," said Addie.

"As smart as it looks," replied Josie.

"And what does it do next?"

"It gathers soft, white down from the fields, and lines this nest which it has made with such singular skill. Here its eggs are laid and its young ones hatched."

"Are there any tailor birds in this country?" asked Addie.

"I never heard of any," replied her brother. "This bird lives in India, away off on the other side of the globe."

"I believe all the curious birds and animals are to be found in far-off countries," said Addie.

"So the people of India might say when told about our mocking bird, that can imitate the song of every other bird; or of the raft spider of England, or of the oven bird of South America."

"I didn't think of it in that way," returned Addie. "Things seem more curious when we first hear of them than they do afterwards."

"Just so. And no matter how wonderful a thing is, the sight of it does not surprise us if we've always known about it."

A learned philosopher being in his study, a little girl came in for some fire. The doctor said, "But you have nothing to take it in," and as he was going to get something, the girl taking some cold ashes in one hand, put the live coals on with the other. The astonished sage threw down his books, saying, "With all my learning, I have never thought of that expedient."

FARM AND GARDEN.

BONE-MANURE.—The English and Scotch farmers have for many years regarded bones as one of the first, if not the very first manure in point of importance. They use them in a great variety of forms, and in the growing of some of their crops, (turnips especially) consider them indispensable. Some idea of the great extent to which they are used, may be gleaned from the following facts: Almost every seaport of any consequence on the eastern coast of Great Britain, has one or more mills for the crushing of bones into a condition to be used for manure. The town of Hull stands foremost in the list, having, it is said, not fewer than from thirty to forty vessels in the docks at one time freighted with bones. In 1835 the quantity imported into Hull alone, was twenty-five thousand seven hundred tons. In 1837 the value of the bones imported into England was £254,600, equal to a million and a quarter of dollars. Since that time the importation have been doubled.

Some farmers allow six years as the period during which bones will act favorably on pasture lands; on grass lands, successively mown, four years; and the same length of time on arable land. Others again give them still longer periods, but all agree as a permanent fertilizer they commend themselves to the earnest attention of every farmer whose supply of farm-yard manure is not equal to the requirements of his land.

The principal element in the manurial action of bones is the phosphate of lime. This salt is scarce in soils, sparingly dispersed, and speedily exhausted; and yet it is indispensable to the vigorous growth of nearly all cultivated plants, and forms the principal stimulant to the vitality and power of several. Dr. Thompson asserts it to be a constant ingredient in plants, and a very conspicuous ingredient in the inorganic or ash part of not a few of the most valuable. According to the most eminent chemists, 30.3 per cent. of phosphate of lime is found in the ashes of the grain oats, 44.05 in wheat, 32.5 in barley, 6.2 in the ashes of the straw of wheat, etc. These larger proportions show how indispensable the phosphate of lime is to the health and growth of nearly all our most useful plants, and, consequently, how pervading an influence is exerted upon them by bone manure. It is asserted that turnips, potatoes and white clover are so powerfully affected by the presence of phosphate of lime in the soil, as to be mainly dependent upon it for their luxury and vigor.

Another of the values of bone manure, especially when applied in a crushed condition, is their extraordinary capacity for absorbing and retaining moisture. "It is frequently observed that when a vigorous plant upon a boned field is pulled up, it will bring up small pieces of bones with its roots; and when minutely examined, it will be seen to have grasped the little pieces and pervaded their cavities with its radical fibers, while these cavities will be seen to be clammy, or even copious with the liquid nourishment on which the spongyoles were feeding. The very contact with the radical fibers of young turnips obtain with bone manure, and which they cannot, with any of the ordinary methods of application of farm-yard dung, has been assigned by some farmers, as the reason of the paramount power over the turnip crop."

Eggs by Weight.—A dozen of eggs is a little more definite quantity than a dozen of potatoes, but still a very indefinite quantity. A dozen of eggs from little, scrawny, ill-kept chickens, sell for the same price as from large, well-kept fowls, while the difference between them is great as the disparity between the hens that laid them. Purchasers in the market take their chances for big and little, and each gets a fair average. But it is not so with producers, and here is where the injustice occurs. The man who raises choice fowls and keeps them in good condition, sells large, rich eggs, for the same price per dozen that is paid for others one-third smaller. This operates as a discouragement to raising good hens, and as a premium on poor ones.

A writer in the Canada Farmer insists that eggs should be sold by the pound, as well as meat and butter, and gives the difference in the average weight of a dozen of eggs from different breeds of fowls, as follows:

Common fowls..... 1 lb. 12 oz.
Spanish..... 1 1/2 12 1/2
Game..... 1 1/2 12 1/2
Gray Dorking and Bantam..... 1 1/2 12 1/2
Gray Dorking and Cuckoo..... 1 1/2 12 1/2

These are the difference in the average weight from different breeds. Should we compare the poorest specimens of the poorest breeds, with the best specimens of the best, we would find a difference of fully one-half, and yet all are sold at the same price. We buy and sell nothing at so loose an adjustment of quantity to price as eggs, except when we buy wood by the load. Even apples and peaches, when sold by number, have the price adjusted to the size. But big or little, an egg is an egg.—Wisconsin Farmer.

INTERESTING DISCOVERY IN HORTICULTURE.—There is no telling where horticultural ingenuity will stop, says Galignani. "A gardener of Gand, France, has, after many trials, succeeded in giving any kind of fruit the flavor he pleases, while it is still on the tree. Let us take an apple, for instance. He pricks it rather deeply in four or five places with a large needle, and then lets it dip for a while in a bowl containing a liquid possessing the taste he wishes to communicate. After a few seconds this liquid will have penetrated into the pulp; and, this operation being repeated two or three times, at intervals of eight or ten days, the apple is left to ripen on the tree, and will subsequently be found to have acquired the taste either of strawberry, raspberry, clove, etc., according to the liquid employed." We have long had an idea that by sinking a hole with an auger in the trunk of an apple-tree to the pith, while it is bearing its fruit, and filling the hole with chloroform or bromoform, either of which has a delicious fruity odor, or by some other means should these fail, the flavor of the whole crop of apples might be greatly improved.

BOAZ, THE FARMER.

Farming, rather than gardening in the ordinary sense of the word, is man's oldest occupation: in point of time, at least, claiming priority of all others. It may not be esteemed the most dignified one, nor may those engaged in it be generally found either the most enlightened or refined of men; still, instituted by Divine authority, and pursued by man in his primeval innocence, with the ordinances of marriage and the Sabbath-day, it is a vestige of Eden. Thus, though rustic and boorish, terms of reproach, be borrowed from country life, and the author of Ecclesiasticus held those engaged in its pursuits so cheap as to say, "Seek not counsel of him whose talk is of bullocks," the business of a farmer, as regards both its age and origin, is invested with a dignity that belongs to no other profession.

"The sacred plow
Employed the kings and fathers of mankind
In ancient times."

Besides, it is probable, not certain, that it is the one employment in which man had God for his teacher. The heathens themselves represent the gods as having taught him how to cultivate corn; and in this, as in many of their other legends, they have preserved a valuable fragment of ancient truth. While some trades are of very recent origin, photography for example, and while many have advanced to their present stage of perfection by slow steps, as spinning, from the simple distaff, still generally used in Brittany and occasionally in our remotest Highlands, to the complicated machines that whirl amid the dust and din of crowded factories, it is a remarkable fact that the cereal grasses, wheat, barley, and other grains which the farmer now cultivates, were cultivated four thousand years ago. Forming new fabrics; discovering new metals; learning how, as in ships, to make-iron swim—the sun, as in photographs, to paint portraits—the lightning, as in telegraphs, to carry messages—and fire and water, as in locomotives, to whirl us along the ground with the speed of an eagle's wing—man has, to use the words of Scripture, even in our own time, "found out many inventions." Yet he has not added one to the number of our cereals during the last four thousand years.

He appears in fact to have started on his career with a knowledge of these: a knowledge he could have obtained from none but God. He it was who taught him the arts of agriculture—what plants to cultivate, and how to cultivate them. There is that indeed in the nature of wheat, barley, and the other cereals, which goes almost to demonstrate that God specially created them for man's use, and originally committed them to his care. These plants are unique in two respects—first, unlike others, the fruits or roots of which we use for food, they are found wild nowhere on the face of the whole earth; and secondly, unlike others also, they cannot prolong their existence independent of man, without his care and culture.

For example, let a field which has been sown with wheat, barley, or oats, be abandoned to the course of nature—and what happens? The following year a scanty crop, springing from the grain it shed, may rise in thin stalks on the uncultivated soil; but in a few summers more, every vestige of it has vanished: "nor left a wrack behind."

A more than curious, this is an important fact. It proves that those grains which form his main subsistence cannot maintain themselves without the hand and help of man; and proving that, it proves this also, that man started on his career a tiller of the ground—no such being as infidels in their hatred of the Bible represent him to have been—a naked savage, ignorant alike of arts and letters, little raised in intelligence above the wild animals in whose dens he sought a home, and of whose prey he sought a share. This fact in Natural History corroborates the testimony of Scripture; and shows us, in fields where every stalk stands up a living witness for the truth of the Bible, the revelations of God's word visibly written on the face of Nature. Waving with golden corn, and sounding with the songs of reapers, these fields carry the thoughtful mind back to the days when God first set man to till the ground; and suggestive of Eden, they prompt the wish that with its primeval employments more of its primeval innocence were found among our rural population.

The scene before me, as I write these words, suggests another view of the occupation in which Boaz, spent his days. Beyond the estuary of the Dee, over whose broad sands, flecked with the sails of shipping craft and fishing-boats, has rolled, lies, a few miles off, the winding shore of Wales—the land rising gently from the beach in corn and pasture fields to heights over which a picturesque range of mountains heaves itself up against the evening sky. Along that low shore lie scattered towns and villages, whose tall chimneys, dwarfing tower and steeple, pour out their smoke to pollute the air, and cast a murky veil on the smiling face of nature. These bespeak the trade they pursue who, leaving the husbandman to his cheerful labors on the green surface of the earth, penetrate its bowels to rob them of their hidden treasures—the mine of its coals, and the mountains of their metals. But these—valuable as they are, many hands as they employ, and much as they contribute to the influence and wealth of our country—are undergoing a process of exhaustion. Some think we shall reach their limit; and are already bewailing the prospect when, with fires quenched in ruined furnaces, and spindles rusting in silent mills, and ships rotting in unfrequented harbors, Britain shall bid a long farewell to all her greatness. But when mines are empty, and furnaces stand quenched and cold, and deep silence reigns in the caverns where the axe of the pitman sounded, the husbandman shall still plough the soil. His, the first man's, shall probably be the last man's employment. Continued throughout those millennial years when, with swords turned into ploughshares and spears into pruning hooks, "the whole earth is at rest, and is quiet," the arch angel's trumpet shall scare the peasant at the plough, or summon him from the harvest field. Fit emblem of the blessings of saving grace, the bounties of the soil are exhaustless. Husbandry will thus prove, as it is the oldest, the most permanent of all employments; and, since it produces the nation's food, and is according to many the true source of its wealth, there is none with which the public welfare is so extensively and intimately bound up.

The occupation which Boaz followed rises still higher in importance when we look at the multitudinous employments. Great as we are in commerce and manufactures—clothing nations with our fabrics, covering every sea with ships, and carrying the produce of our arts to every shore—the cultivation of the soil employs a larger number of hands than any other trade. And thus, if "the greatest happiness of the greatest number" be a sound and noble adage, the temporal, moral, and spiritual interests of our agricultural population should bulk very large in the eyes of Christian patriots. Now these interests turn to a great extent on the manner in which those who follow Boaz's occupation discharge their duties; and it is therefore a matter of thankfulness that in him the Book which instructs both kings and beggars, peers and peasants, how to live, sets before us a model farmer. Happy our country were all its farmers like him, and all their servants like his!—making rural innocence a reality; not merely a poet's dream, or the graceful ornament of a speech. Let us study this pattern.

THOMAS GUTHRIE.

The banana, it is said, furnishes more food to the acre than any crop capable of growth in a tropical climate.

COLLEGIATE INSTITUTE, AT BATON ROUGE.

TENTH SESSION.

The exercises of the school will be resumed on Wednesday, October 24, 1867.

The best facilities are afforded for the acquisition of a first-rate education.

Particular care is bestowed on the moral and social culture of the pupils.

There is but one session in the year and every student who enters the school is expected to continue to the close of the session in July, and will be held liable for the bills in all cases, unless protracted illness shall compel his removal.

Every pupil is required to furnish his own bedding, towels, wash basin, mosquito-bar and all marked distinctly with his own name—also a basket for dirty clothes.

It is urgently requested that Students be prompt in their attendance. A few days absence at the beginning is often a serious disadvantage during the entire session.

Term: Board and Tuition per session, $360. Pensions: $250 in advance—balance 1st March.

Tuition of Day-Scholars, per session, $75 00 payable—one half in advance—balance 1st March.

Modern languages will be taught when the wants of the School demand it, at an extra charge as low as it can be made.

No expense is required to secure as Teachers, gentlemen of the highest character and ability.

W. H. N. MAGRUDER, Jr.
Baton Rouge, La., June 1867. aug 3-6m

A TREATISE ON DEAFNESS AND CATARRH.

Their causes and means of immediate relief and speedy cure sent free for 10 cents.
By Dr. H. H. SWELLWELL.
aug 24-1m Williamstown, Kings Co., N. Y.

KICKERBUCKER LINE INCORPORATED.

Mutual Plan.....Assets $2,450,000
General Agent for the State of Mississippi,
H. S. FULKERSON.....Jackson, Miss.

NOTE: Ministers of the Gospel in the State of Mississippi, upon giving satisfactory reference, will be appointed agents of this Company, upon applying in person, or by letter, to the General Agent at JACKSON, Miss., or when more convenient to H. C. FANSON, Manager, 50 and 52 Camp street, New Orleans, by whom the necessary blanks will be sent to them. aug 3-6m

THE "ARROW" TIE.

For sale at the lowest prices, by
H. T. BARTLETT & R. W. RAYNE.
General Agents, No. 44 Canaleet street.

The above popular fastening is the best now in use for holding Cotton. They are approved by the Insurance Companies of this city, and are used at the Cotton Presses in New Orleans, Memphis, Mobile, Galveston, Savannah, and by Planters every where with success and approbation.

N. B.—Said ARROW TIE are on sale by dealers in New Orleans, and every where throughout the Cotton growing States, at the lowest prices. j-27 6m

PRIVATE BOARDING.

Belize, British Honduras.
The undersigned respectfully solicits from the public a share of their patronage.
j-15-3m R. S. WEIR.

MRS. DYER'S BOARDING HOUSE.

This is situated on Camp street, the first door above St. Patrick's Cathedral, No. 174.
References: Rev. Dr. Keener, Dr. Walker, Linus Parker, R. J. Harp. j-8 6m

HENDERSON A. MORSE,

ATTORNEY AT LAW,
—and—
Commissioner of Deeds.

For the States of South Carolina, Mississippi, Kentucky, Tennessee, Georgia, Alabama, Pennsylvania, Maryland, Texas, Florida, Arkansas. No. 23 Commercial Place, Third Floor.
April 20 1y New Orleans.

THE HOLY TRUTH.

It is an unfailing remedy in all cases of Neuralgia, Rheumatism, often effecting a perfect cure in less than twenty-four hours, from the use of no more than two or three pills.

No other form of Neuralgia or Nervous Disease has failed to yield to this wonderful remedial agent.

Even the severest cases of Chronic Neuralgia and general nervous derangements, of many years standing, affecting the entire system, its use for a few days, or a few weeks at the utmost, always affords the most astonishing relief, and very rarely fails to produce a complete and permanent cure.

It contains no drugs or other materials in the slightest degree injurious, even to the most delicate system, and can always be used with perfect safety.

It has long been in constant use by many of our most eminent physicians, who give it their unqualified and unimpeachable approval.

Sent by mail on receipt of price, and postage.
One package, $1 00 Postage 6 cts
Six packages, $5 00 " 27
Twelve packages, 9 00 " 43

It is sold by all wholesale and retail dealers in drugs and medicines throughout the United States, and by

Turner & Co., Sole Proprietors,
129 Tremont street, Boston, Mass.

NORTH, BRUSH & M. SON,

Wholesale Dealers in
Fancy Goods,
STATIONERY, PERFUMERY, CUTLERY,
HOSIERY,
Furnishing Goods, etc.,
36 MAGAZINE STREET,
Opposite the St. James Hotel, New Orleans, La.
aug 25 1y

Belize, British Honduras.

Putnam & Cary.
GENERAL COMMISSION
RECEIVING AND FORWARDING MERCHANTS.

—and—
Custom House Brokers.
Belize, British Honduras. j-15-3m

J. H. MASSEY & CO.,

WHOLESALE DEALERS IN
DRY GOODS AND CLOTHING
100 Common Street, opposite City Hotel,
New Orleans, La.
aug 2-47

Belize, British Honduras.
Putnam & Cary.
GENERAL COMMISSION
RECEIVING AND FORWARDING MERCHANTS.

—and—
Custom House Brokers.
Belize, British Honduras. j-15-3m

DOLBEAR-COMMERCIAL COLLEGE.

On the corner of Camp and Common.
In the spacious and elegant Story Building.
It was founded in 1832, and is chartered by the State. Its terms, students, may be found in the old homes of this city and over the State. Ladies or gentlemen can attend COMMERCIAL COLLEGE, or Bookkeeping, Mathematics, English, French, Spanish, etc. A business education enables one to earn $1000, $2000, or $3000 annually. A DIPLOMA from this College is a passport in all Commercial communities. Clergymen or their sons and crippled and lame are invited to call. Catalogues sent to all who desire them.
nov 17 1y

BELL'S BELL FOUNDRY.

Established in 1837.
VANDUZEN & CO.,
COFFIN & CO. and Successors to G. COFFIN & CO.
102 & 104 East Second Street,
Cincinnati, Ohio.

Manufacturers of BELLS for Churches, Colleges, etc. Made of Genuine Bell Metal, and mounted on our improved Rotary Yoke. All Bells warranted to prove satisfactory, subject to be returned. Illustrated Catalogue and Price List sent upon application.

Knight & Co.,
Dealers in PLANTATION, MILL, & WOOD-WORK
MACHINERY,
And Agricultural Implements.

Keep constantly on hand a large assortment of articles peculiar to our business, and our agents in the North and East, can fill promptly, at a small advance above manufacturers' prices, all orders for articles in one line not usually kept in this market.

The great change in our labor system requires a corresponding change in the implements used, and we have prepared ourselves to the latest improved

LABOR-SAVING MACHINES,
both for Agricultural and Mechanical purposes, at prices that will warrant their purchase. We have J. E. DEES & CO'S Sugar Kettles, Screws, Gutty, etc., and will contract any kind of work done at their establishments, their prices.

172 GRAY STREET, NEW ORLEANS.
n 17 1y

AUSTIN & GOODWIN,

Wholesale Dealers and Manufacturers
TINWARE,
COOKING AND HEATING STOVES.

Of all kinds, sole Agents for the Good Stove Cooking Stove.
25 Peters, formerly Front Street,
Corner Customhouse
NEW ORLEANS.

SOUTH-WESTERN BIBLE SOCIETY.

Where is it located? Its Depository and Bible-House is at its own building, 54 1/2 Camp street, New Orleans.

When was it established? 1820.
Who is its General Agent to whom no dependence on its business should be addressed? Rev. W. H. Baylies.

Where is the Society's field of labor? Louisiana, and all of Mississippi, south of 33rd parallel of North latitude.

What is the object of the Society? To propagate and supply (gratuitously where needed) the Word of the Holy Scriptures.

What are the resources and whence the title of the Society? From the annual contributions of its members. Collections of Churches within its field, collections at public meetings and universities. Appropriations of the various churches and of the State, and of the generous individuals, testamentary bequests, the annual donation in Books of the American Bible Society.

What is the Society's method of work? Cultivating its own local work in the city of New Orleans; then through Auxiliary Societies established or to be established by every Parish and County in the field, and employment by them of such means as will accomplish the object of the Society.

What are the terms of membership? The payment of $50 at one time constitutes a life member.

The payment of $150 at one time, constitutes a life Director.

The payment of $1000 at one time, constitutes a life Patron.

The taking up of a collection by a church constitutes the Pastor an honorary member.

Having this briefly stated the main objects of the Society's work, income and expenditure, the Board of Directors for the current year, respectfully ask the aid of all members of the Society, and of all persons of religious or moral sympathies, to strengthen the hands of the Society, by donations, or reviving Auxiliaries, by donations and urging donations, by exploring and reporting the destitution of the Scriptures, by procuring or renewing memberships of all churches, and by establishing connections with the Society as the Lord has prospered them according to that Scripture which says "Lay out for yourselves treasures upon earth where moth and rust doth corrupt and where thieves do not break through and steal."

To ministers and professors of Christianity of every Orthodox Protestant Church, the Board of Directors, representing its body such within our bounds, appeals with confidence to aid the Society, by a prompt and generous contribution, and a cheerful membership of the Society to the blessing of Almighty God, for except the Lord build the house, they vainly build it, except the Lord keep the city, the watchman waketh but in vain.

Our last thought is the hearty wish of the Board of Directors, that the Society, by its untiring efforts, may be able to say, "The Word of the Lord is increasing, and the Kingdom of God is being established."

God's Word: Free: Free: Free. 25 1/2 1y

COPARTNERSHIP.

The undersigned, for many years in the house of J. Marks & Co., but this day formed a Copartnership with Mr. J. H. Massey, 100 Common Street, for the purpose of conducting Wholesale Dry Goods Business, under the name and firm of

J. H. MASSEY & CO.,
and respectfully solicits the patronage of old friends.

D. V. BENJAMIN.
New Orleans, January 1, 1867.

J. H. MASSEY & CO.,

WHOLESALE DEALERS IN
DRY GOODS AND CLOTHING
100 Common Street, opposite City Hotel,
New Orleans, La.
aug 2-47

Belize, British Honduras.

Putnam & Cary.
GENERAL COMMISSION
RECEIVING AND FORWARDING MERCHANTS.

—and—
Custom House Brokers.
Belize, British Honduras. j-15-3m

COAL!! COAL!! COAL!!

WOOD!! WOOD!! WOOD!!

Yard on Josephine st. bet. Prytanee & Coliseum

MR. GEO. O. BEATTY

Would inform his friends and the public generally that he is now prepared to fill orders for COAL and WOOD, and hopes, by giving his personal attention, to secure and merit their patronage.

Best ASH WOOD delivered at $10.00

Best OAK COAL $9.00

Orders left at Yard, or Price Current office, 129 Gravier street; or Peter Williams, corner Jackson and Rousseau streets, will meet with prompt attention.

GEO. W. RACE, W. H. FOSTER, & T. MERRICK, L. C. Chief Justice La.

RACE, FOSTER & E. T. MERRICK, Attorneys at Law.

CORNER OF CAMP STREET & COMMERCIAL PLACE, sep15 ly New Orleans.

SUNDAY SCHOOL VISITOR.

112 CAMP STREET, NEW ORLEANS.

Our readers will be delighted to learn that this beautiful Sunday School Paper is to be resumed the first of January. It will be published by the S. M. Publishing House, Nashville, Tennessee, and simultaneously at 112 Camp st. in this city. Those desiring the NEW ORLEANS EDITION should forward immediately to Rev. R. J. HARR, Agt., Lock Box 814, New Orleans.

SUBSCRIPTION PRICE FOR ONE YEAR.

For Single Copies.....each 50c

For any number less than 5.....50c

For any number over 5, and less than 25, to one address.....40c

For any number over 25.....30c

Will ship by Boat, Express or Mail as directed.

Cash in Advance.

EVERY SATURDAY:

A Journal of Choice Reading, Selected From Foreign Current Literature.

This popular Weekly reproduces promptly for American readers the best and most readable portions of European periodicals. These comprise Serial Tales, Short Stories, Essays, Biographical and Descriptive, Poems, Sketches of Travel and Adventure, Literary Intelligence, and popular papers on Science. Translations from the admirable French Periodicals are a prominent feature.

Among the Periodicals from which selections are frequently made are Océan, Week, Chambers's Journal, All the Year Round, The Spectator, The Reader, The Athenaeum, The Examiner, The London, Saturday and Morning Review, Fraser's, Blackwoods, Macmillan's, the Victoria, Argosy, New Monthly, and London Society Magazine; Revue des Deux Mondes, L'Evénement, Le Soleil.

Among the authors represented in Every Saturday are many of the wisest and most distinguished writers of Europe, as Henry Kingsley, Anthony Trollope, Matthew Arnold, Charles Kingsley, Edmund Spenser, Frances Power Cobbe, Christina G. Rossetti, Alfred Russel Wallace, George Sand, Edmond About, Alexandre Dumas, Meropoli, J. Ruffin, Alexandre Smith, A. C. Swinburne, Robert Buchanan, Jean Iagelow, and Miss Thackeray.

Every Saturday is intended for Town and Country, for the President, the Senate, the Railway, and the Steamboat. The Publishers will aim to commend it to all classes of cultivated and intelligent readers by the freshness and variety of its contents.

Every Saturday contains weekly a double column large octavo pages.

TERMS.—Single Number, 10 cents; Yearly Subscription, $5.00 in advance; $4.00 a year to subscribers for any other periodical published by Ticknor and Fields. Monthly Parts, 50 cents a number. Yearly subscription, same as for Weekly Part.

TICKNOR AND FIELDS, Publishers, Boston.

BRITISH PERIODICALS.

THE LONDON QUARTERLY REVIEW (Cont.) THE EDINBURGH REVIEW (Cont.) THE WESTMINSTER REVIEW (Cont.) THE NORTH BRITISH REVIEW (Free Church) AND BLACKWOODS EDINBURGH MAGAZINE (Cont.)

These foreign periodicals are regularly published by us in the same style as heretofore. Those who know them and who have long subscribed to them, need no reminder; those who have not, will find them well worth the price. They are the best of their kind, and will be glad to have them again within their reach, and those who may never yet have met with them, will assuredly be well pleased to receive accredited reports of the progress of European science and literature.

TERMS FOR 1867.

For any one of the Reviews.....$4 per annum

For any two of the Reviews.....7 " "

For any three of the Reviews.....12 " "

For all four of the Reviews.....18 " "

For Blackwood's Magazine.....4 " "

For Blackwood and one Review.....7 " "

For Blackwood and any two of the Reviews.....10 " "

For Blackwood and all three Reviews.....13 " "

For Blackwood and the 4 Reviews.....18 " "

Clubs.

A discount of twenty per cent. will be allowed to clubs of four or more persons. Thus, four copies of Blackwood, or of one Review, will be sent to one address for $12.00. Four copies of the four Reviews and Blackwood, for $18.00, and so on.

Postage.

When sent by mail, the postage on any part of the United States will be but Twenty-four Cents a year for Blackwood, and but Eight Cents a year for each of the Reviews.

PREMIUMS TO NEW SUBSCRIBERS.

New Subscribers to any two of the above periodicals for 1867 will be entitled to receive, gratis, any one of the Four Reviews for 1866. Now Subscribers to all five of the Periodicals for 1867 will receive, gratis, Blackwood or any two of the "Four Reviews" for 1866.

These premiums will be allowed on all new subscriptions received before April 1, 1867.

Subscribers may also obtain back numbers at the following reduced rates, viz: The North British from January, 1863, to the Westminster from April, 1861 to December, 1866, inclusive; the Edinburgh and the Westminster from April, 1861 to December, 1866, inclusive; and the London Quarterly for the years 1865 and 1866, at the rate of $1.50 a year for each of any Review; also Blackwood for 1866, for $2.50.

Neither premiums to Subscribers, nor discounts to Clubs, nor reduced prices for back numbers, can be allowed, unless the money is remitted direct to the Publishers.

No premiums can be given to Clubs.

The Leonard Scott Publishing Co., 33 Walker street, N. Y.

The L. S. PUB. CO. also publish the FARMER'S GUIDE,

by Henry Stephens, of Edinburgh, and the late T. J. SIMON, of Yale College, 2 vols., Royal Octavo, 1860 pages, and numerous Engravings.

Price $7 for the two volumes—by Mail, post paid, $8.

By Henry Stephens, of Edinburgh, and the late T. J. SIMON, of Yale College, 2 vols., Royal Octavo, 1860 pages, and numerous Engravings.

Price $7 for the two volumes—by Mail, post paid, $8.

By Henry Stephens, of Edinburgh, and the late T. J. SIMON, of Yale College, 2 vols., Royal Octavo, 1860 pages, and numerous Engravings.

Price $7 for the two volumes—by Mail, post paid, $8.

By Henry Stephens, of Edinburgh, and the late T. J. SIMON, of Yale College, 2 vols., Royal Octavo, 1860 pages, and numerous Engravings.

Price $7 for the two volumes—by Mail, post paid, $8.

By Henry Stephens, of Edinburgh, and the late T. J. SIMON, of Yale College, 2 vols., Royal Octavo, 1860 pages, and numerous Engravings.

Price $7 for the two volumes—by Mail, post paid, $8.

By Henry Stephens, of Edinburgh, and the late T. J. SIMON, of Yale College, 2 vols., Royal Octavo, 1860 pages, and numerous Engravings.

Price $7 for the two volumes—by Mail, post paid, $8.

By Henry Stephens, of Edinburgh, and the late T. J. SIMON, of Yale College, 2 vols., Royal Octavo, 1860 pages, and numerous Engravings.

Price $7 for the two volumes—by Mail, post paid, $8.

By Henry Stephens, of Edinburgh, and the late T. J. SIMON, of Yale College, 2 vols., Royal Octavo, 1860 pages, and numerous Engravings.

Price $7 for the two volumes—by Mail, post paid, $8.

By Henry Stephens, of Edinburgh, and the late T. J. SIMON, of Yale College, 2 vols., Royal Octavo, 1860 pages, and numerous Engravings.

Price $7 for the two volumes—by Mail, post paid, $8.

By Henry Stephens, of Edinburgh, and the late T. J. SIMON, of Yale College, 2 vols., Royal Octavo, 1860 pages, and numerous Engravings.

Price $7 for the two volumes—by Mail, post paid, $8.

By Henry Stephens, of Edinburgh, and the late T. J. SIMON, of Yale College, 2 vols., Royal Octavo, 1860 pages, and numerous Engravings.

Price $7 for the two volumes—by Mail, post paid, $8.

By Henry Stephens, of Edinburgh, and the late T. J. SIMON, of Yale College, 2 vols., Royal Octavo, 1860 pages, and numerous Engravings.

Price $7 for the two volumes—by Mail, post paid, $8.

By Henry Stephens, of Edinburgh, and the late T. J. SIMON, of Yale College, 2 vols., Royal Octavo, 1860 pages, and numerous Engravings.

Price $7 for the two volumes—by Mail, post paid, $8.

By Henry Stephens, of Edinburgh, and the late T. J. SIMON, of Yale College, 2 vols., Royal Octavo, 1860 pages, and numerous Engravings.

Price $7 for the two volumes—by Mail, post paid, $8.

By Henry Stephens, of Edinburgh, and the late T. J. SIMON, of Yale College, 2 vols., Royal Octavo, 1860 pages, and numerous Engravings.

Price $7 for the two volumes—by Mail, post paid, $8.

By Henry Stephens, of Edinburgh, and the late T. J. SIMON, of Yale College, 2 vols., Royal Octavo, 1860 pages, and numerous Engravings.

Price $7 for the two volumes—by Mail, post paid, $8.

By Henry Stephens, of Edinburgh, and the late T. J. SIMON, of Yale College, 2 vols., Royal Octavo, 1860 pages, and numerous Engravings.

Price $7 for the two volumes—by Mail, post paid, $8.

By Henry Stephens, of Edinburgh, and the late T. J. SIMON, of Yale College, 2 vols., Royal Octavo, 1860 pages, and numerous Engravings.

Price $7 for the two volumes—by Mail, post paid, $8.

By Henry Stephens, of Edinburgh, and the late T. J. SIMON, of Yale College, 2 vols., Royal Octavo, 1860 pages, and numerous Engravings.

Price $7 for the two volumes—by Mail, post paid, $8.

By Henry Stephens, of Edinburgh, and the late T. J. SIMON, of Yale College, 2 vols., Royal Octavo, 1860 pages, and numerous Engravings.

Price $7 for the two volumes—by Mail, post paid, $8.

By Henry Stephens, of Edinburgh, and the late T. J. SIMON, of Yale College, 2 vols., Royal Octavo, 1860 pages, and numerous Engravings.

Price $7 for the two volumes—by Mail, post paid, $8.

By Henry Stephens, of Edinburgh, and the late T. J. SIMON, of Yale College, 2 vols., Royal Octavo, 1860 pages, and numerous Engravings.

Price $7 for the two volumes—by Mail, post paid, $8.

By Henry Stephens, of Edinburgh, and the late T. J. SIMON, of Yale College, 2 vols., Royal Octavo, 1860 pages, and numerous Engravings.

Price $7 for the two volumes—by Mail, post paid, $8.

By Henry Stephens, of Edinburgh, and the late T. J. SIMON, of Yale College, 2 vols., Royal Octavo, 1860 pages, and numerous Engravings.

Price $7 for the two volumes—by Mail, post paid, $8.

By Henry Stephens, of Edinburgh, and the late T. J. SIMON, of Yale College, 2 vols., Royal Octavo, 1860 pages, and numerous Engravings.

Price $7 for the two volumes—by Mail, post paid, $8.

By Henry Stephens, of Edinburgh, and the late T. J. SIMON, of Yale College, 2 vols., Royal Octavo, 1860 pages, and numerous Engravings.

Price $7 for the two volumes—by Mail, post paid, $8.

By Henry Stephens, of Edinburgh, and the late T. J. SIMON, of Yale College, 2 vols., Royal Octavo, 1860 pages, and numerous Engravings.

Price $7 for the two volumes—by Mail, post paid, $8.

By Henry Stephens, of Edinburgh, and the late T. J. SIMON, of Yale College, 2 vols., Royal Octavo, 1860 pages, and numerous Engravings.

Price $7 for the two volumes—by Mail, post paid, $8.

By Henry Stephens, of Edinburgh, and the late T. J. SIMON, of Yale College, 2 vols., Royal Octavo, 1860 pages, and numerous Engravings.

Price $7 for the two volumes—by Mail, post paid, $8.

By Henry Stephens, of Edinburgh, and the late T. J. SIMON, of Yale College, 2 vols., Royal Octavo, 1860 pages, and numerous Engravings.

Price $7 for the two volumes—by Mail, post paid, $8.

By Henry Stephens, of Edinburgh, and the late T. J. SIMON, of Yale College, 2 vols., Royal Octavo, 1860 pages, and numerous Engravings.

Price $7 for the two volumes—by Mail, post paid, $8.

By Henry Stephens, of Edinburgh, and the late T. J. SIMON, of Yale College, 2 vols., Royal Octavo, 1860 pages, and numerous Engravings.

Price $7 for the two volumes—by Mail, post paid, $8.

By Henry Stephens, of Edinburgh, and the late T. J. SIMON, of Yale College, 2 vols., Royal Octavo, 1860 pages, and numerous Engravings.

Price $7 for the two volumes—by Mail, post paid, $8.

By Henry Stephens, of Edinburgh, and the late T. J. SIMON, of Yale College, 2 vols., Royal Octavo, 1860 pages, and numerous Engravings.

Price $7 for the two volumes—by Mail, post paid, $8.

By Henry Stephens, of Edinburgh, and the late T. J. SIMON, of Yale College, 2 vols., Royal Octavo, 1860 pages, and numerous Engravings.

Price $7 for the two volumes—by Mail, post paid, $8.

By Henry Stephens, of Edinburgh, and the late T. J. SIMON, of Yale College, 2 vols., Royal Octavo, 1860 pages, and numerous Engravings.

Price $7 for the two volumes—by Mail, post paid, $8.

By Henry Stephens, of Edinburgh, and the late T. J. SIMON, of Yale College, 2 vols., Royal Octavo, 1860 pages, and numerous Engravings.

Price $7 for the two volumes—by Mail, post paid, $8.

By Henry Stephens, of Edinburgh, and the late T. J. SIMON, of Yale College, 2 vols., Royal Octavo, 1860 pages, and numerous Engravings.

Price $7 for the two volumes—by Mail, post paid, $8.

By Henry Stephens, of Edinburgh, and the late T. J. SIMON, of Yale College, 2 vols., Royal Octavo, 1860 pages, and numerous Engravings.

Price $7 for the two volumes—by Mail, post paid, $8.

By Henry Stephens, of Edinburgh, and the late T. J. SIMON, of Yale College, 2 vols., Royal Octavo, 1860 pages, and numerous Engravings.

Price $7 for the two volumes—by Mail, post paid, $8.

By Henry Stephens, of Edinburgh, and the late T. J. SIMON, of Yale College, 2 vols., Royal Octavo, 1860 pages, and numerous Engravings.

Price $7 for the two volumes—by Mail, post paid, $8.

By Henry Stephens, of Edinburgh, and the late T. J. SIMON, of Yale College, 2 vols., Royal Octavo, 1860 pages, and numerous Engravings.

Price $7 for the two volumes—by Mail, post paid, $8.

By Henry Stephens, of Edinburgh, and the late T. J. SIMON, of Yale College, 2 vols., Royal Octavo, 1860 pages, and numerous Engravings.

Price $7 for the two volumes—by Mail, post paid, $8.

By Henry Stephens, of Edinburgh, and the late T. J. SIMON, of Yale College, 2 vols., Royal Octavo, 1860 pages, and numerous Engravings.

Price $7 for the two volumes—by Mail, post paid, $8.

By Henry Stephens, of Edinburgh, and the late T. J. SIMON, of Yale College, 2 vols., Royal Octavo, 1860 pages, and numerous Engravings.

Price $7 for the two volumes—by Mail, post paid, $8.

By Henry Stephens, of Edinburgh, and the late T. J. SIMON, of Yale College, 2 vols., Royal Octavo, 1860 pages, and numerous Engravings.

Price $7 for the two volumes—by Mail, post paid, $8.

By Henry Stephens, of Edinburgh, and the late T. J. SIMON, of Yale College, 2 vols., Royal Octavo, 1860 pages, and numerous Engravings.

Price $7 for the two volumes—by Mail, post paid, $8.

By Henry Stephens, of Edinburgh, and the late T. J. SIMON, of Yale College, 2 vols., Royal Octavo, 1860 pages, and numerous Engravings.

Price $7 for the two volumes—by Mail, post paid, $8.

By Henry Stephens, of Edinburgh, and the late T. J. SIMON, of Yale College, 2 vols., Royal Octavo, 1860 pages, and numerous Engravings.

Price $7 for the two volumes—by Mail, post paid, $8.

By Henry Stephens, of Edinburgh, and the late T. J. SIMON, of Yale College, 2 vols., Royal Octavo, 1860 pages, and numerous Engravings.

Price $7 for the two volumes—by Mail, post paid, $8.

By Henry Stephens, of Edinburgh, and the late T. J. SIMON, of Yale College, 2 vols., Royal Octavo, 1860 pages, and numerous Engravings.

Price $7 for the two volumes—by Mail, post paid, $8.

By Henry Stephens, of Edinburgh, and the late T. J. SIMON, of Yale College, 2 vols., Royal Octavo, 1860 pages, and numerous Engravings.

Price $7 for the two volumes—by Mail, post paid, $8.

By Henry Stephens, of Edinburgh, and the late T. J. SIMON, of Yale College, 2 vols., Royal Octavo, 1860 pages, and numerous Engravings.

Price $7 for the two volumes—by Mail, post paid, $8.

By Henry Stephens, of Edinburgh, and the late T. J. SIMON, of Yale College, 2 vols., Royal Octavo, 1860 pages, and numerous Engravings.

Price $7 for the two volumes—by Mail, post paid, $8.

By Henry Stephens, of Edinburgh, and the late T. J. SIMON, of Yale College, 2 vols., Royal Octavo, 1860 pages, and numerous Engravings.

Price $7 for the two volumes—by Mail, post paid, $8.

By Henry Stephens, of Edinburgh, and the late T. J. SIMON, of Yale College, 2 vols., Royal Octavo, 1860 pages, and numerous Engravings.

Price $7 for the two volumes—by Mail, post paid, $8.

By Henry Stephens, of Edinburgh, and the late T. J. SIMON, of Yale College, 2 vols., Royal Octavo, 1860 pages, and numerous Engravings.

Price $7 for the two volumes—by Mail, post paid, $8.

By Henry Stephens, of Edinburgh, and the late T. J. SIMON, of Yale College, 2 vols., Royal Octavo, 1860 pages, and numerous Engravings.

Price $7 for the two volumes—by Mail, post paid, $8.

By Henry Stephens, of Edinburgh, and the late T. J. SIMON, of Yale College, 2 vols., Royal Octavo, 1860 pages, and numerous Engravings.

Price $7 for the two volumes—by Mail, post paid, $8.

By Henry Stephens, of Edinburgh, and the late T. J. SIMON, of Yale College, 2 vols., Royal Octavo, 1860 pages, and numerous Engravings.

Price $7 for the two volumes—by Mail, post paid, $8.

By Henry Stephens, of Edinburgh, and the late T. J. SIMON, of Yale College, 2 vols., Royal Octavo, 1860 pages, and numerous Engravings.

Price $7 for the two volumes—by Mail, post paid, $8.

By Henry Stephens, of Edinburgh, and the late T. J. SIMON, of Yale College, 2 vols., Royal Octavo, 1860 pages, and numerous Engravings.

Price $7 for the two volumes—by Mail, post paid, $8.

By Henry Stephens, of Edinburgh, and the late T. J. SIMON, of Yale College, 2 vols., Royal Octavo, 1860 pages, and numerous Engravings.

Price $7 for the two volumes—by Mail, post paid, $8.

By Henry Stephens, of Edinburgh, and the late T. J. SIMON, of Yale College, 2 vols., Royal Octavo, 1860 pages, and numerous Engravings.

Price $7 for the two volumes—by Mail, post paid, $8.

By Henry Stephens, of Edinburgh, and the late T. J. SIMON, of Yale College, 2 vols., Royal Octavo, 1860 pages, and numerous Engravings.

Price $7 for the two volumes—by Mail, post paid, $8.

By Henry Stephens, of Edinburgh, and the late T. J. SIMON, of Yale College, 2 vols., Royal Octavo, 1860 pages, and numerous Engravings.

Price $7 for the two volumes—by Mail, post paid, $8.

By Henry Stephens, of Edinburgh, and the late T. J. SIMON, of Yale College, 2 vols., Royal Octavo, 1860 pages, and numerous Engravings.

Price $7 for the two volumes—by Mail, post paid, $8.

By Henry Stephens, of Edinburgh, and the late T. J. SIMON, of Yale College, 2 vols., Royal Octavo, 1860 pages, and numerous Engravings.

Price $7 for the two volumes—by Mail, post paid, $8.

By Henry Stephens, of Edinburgh, and the late T. J. SIMON, of Yale College, 2 vols., Royal Octavo, 1860 pages, and numerous Engravings.

Price $7 for the two volumes—by Mail, post paid, $8.

By Henry Stephens, of Edinburgh, and the late T. J. SIMON, of Yale College, 2 vols., Royal Octavo, 1860 pages, and numerous Engravings.

Price $7 for the two volumes—by Mail, post paid, $8.

By Henry Stephens, of Edinburgh, and the late T. J. SIMON, of Yale College, 2 vols., Royal Octavo, 1860 pages, and numerous Engravings.

Price $7 for the two volumes—by Mail,

NEW ORLEANS MARKETS.

From the N. O. Price Current.

The Commercial Year is drawing to a close, and the general market continues in the same inanimate condition we have had occasion to notice for several weeks past. Foreign Exchange has been extremely quiet, but with increased buoyancy in rates, while Domestic has ruled steady at previous quotations.

We have no improvement to notice in Freight. If any thing increased dullness has characterized the market, but without any decline in rates.

The weather has been rather cool for the season, with chilly North winds, by no means favorable to health. Another half week has elapsed and the yellow fever is not yet epidemic. If it were to cease now, no one would think of speaking of it as such. A week or two more will no doubt establish its character. In the meantime all physicians agree in describing it as unusually mild and manageable. The accounts from the interior are still conflicting and leave it doubtful to what extent the ravages of the worms have diminished the cotton crop.

COTTON.—We noticed in our last report that the market closed with increased firmness. There has been no material change since. On Saturday, with a light supply and the limits of buyers' orders being 3/8 to 1/2 lb below the pretensions of factors, there was hardly any movement, and the sales were confined to 250 bales, at about previous rates. On Monday the low views of buyers were confirmed by the accounts from Liverpool, but factors showed no disposition to give way, and although there was a tendency to greater weakness, yet the sales, which embraced 350 bales, indicated no quotable change. Yesterday the market was at a stand-still, the sales being of too inconsiderable a character to require particularizing.

This makes an aggregate for the past three days of 650 bales, taken mostly for the North.

The receipts proper since Friday evening comprise 519 bales, against 645 during the corresponding period last week, showing an increase of 126 bales.

The receipts at this port, since the 1st of September, (exclusive of the arrivals from Mobile, Florida and Texas,) are 712,611 bales, against 716,007 bales the same date last year, and the decrease in the receipts at all the ports, up to the latest dates, as compared with last year, is 216,605 bales. In the exports from the United States to foreign countries, as compared with the same dates last year, there is a decrease of 34,952 bales to Great Britain, of 20,083 to France, and an increase of 65,209 bales to other foreign ports.

We quote as follows:

| | Light. | Heavy. |
|---------------|----------|--------|
| Ordinary | 21 to 23 | |
| Good Ordinary | 24 to 26 | |
| Low Middling | 26 to 28 | |
| Middling | 28 to 30 | |

TOBACCO.—Since our last issue the market has exhibited even less animation. There has been a fair export demand, but under the combined influences of restricted supplies and enhanced views on the part of holders, the latter prompted by continued unfavorable accounts from the crop, buyers have found it impossible to execute their limited orders, and consequently have been compelled to retire from the market. In the absence of sales we repeat previous quotations as follows:

| | Light. | Heavy. |
|---------------|------------|------------|
| Low Leaf | 4 to 4 1/2 | 4 1/2 to 5 |
| Good do | 5 to 5 1/2 | 5 1/2 to 6 |
| Common Leaf | 6 to 7 | 7 to 8 |
| Medium | 8 to 10 | 10 to 12 |
| Full | 11 to 13 | 13 to 15 |
| Prime | 14 to 16 | 16 to 18 |
| Choice Select | 18 to 20 | 20 to 22 |

CATTLE MARKET.
JEFFERSON CITY, Wednesday evening, August 27, 1867.
Western Beef, choice per lb net. 10 to 12
Western Beef, 2d quality, per lb net. 8 to 10
Texas Cattle Choice per head. 30 to 40
Texas Cattle 2d quality, per head. 25 to 30
Texas Cattle 3d quality, per head. 20 to 25
Hogs, per lb gross. 9 to 10
Sheep, 1st quality per head. 10 to 12
Sheep, 2d " " " " 8 to 10
Sheep, 3d " " " " 6 to 8
Milch Cows, choice per head. 80 to 100
Milch Cows, per head. 60 to 80
Texas Cows, with Calves. 8 to 10
Yearlings, per head. 7 to 8
Calves per head. 3 to 4

HORSE AND MULE MARKET.
Saddle and light harness Horses. $200 to $400
Heavy draft Horses. 175 to 300
Common do. 75 to 150
Mules, 1st quality, broke. 200 to 250
Do 2d do. 140 to 180
Do 3d do. 100 to 150
Mexican Mules. 40 to 90

Monetary.
Every department of the money market proper continues to exhibit the dullness reported for several weeks past. The banks, however, have but little difficulty in placing all their available funds, either in short business paper or loans on satisfactory collateral. In the open market we hear of occasional negotiations of mortgage paper at 10 to 12 per cent, per annum, lenders exacting as security productive city property and signatures which can be relied on for prompt payment. For less desirable paper 15 per cent is exacted.

City Treasury notes are now quoted at 12 to 14 for the large ones, and 3 to 4 for the small.

N. O. WHOLESALE PRICES.

Carefully collected and revised weekly.

(Made up from Actual Sales as they Transpire)

| ARTICLES. | FROM. | TO. |
|--------------------------------|--------|--------|
| Agricultural Implements. | | |
| Cotton and Sugar Hoses. | 4 75 | 22 00 |
| Yeast, Flour and Syrupers. | 5 50 | 10 50 |
| Cotton Scrapers. | 7 00 | 7 50 |
| Calumet. | 7 00 | 7 50 |
| Shavers. | 10 00 | 18 00 |
| Spades. | 11 00 | 20 00 |
| Axes. | 15 00 | 18 00 |
| Bagging, 1/2 yard. | | |
| East India. | 25 | 28 |
| Rule Rope, Kentucky, 7 lb. | 10 | 10 1/2 |
| Brass, 1/100 lbs. | 1 10 | 1 20 |
| Crackers. | 10 00 | 11 00 |
| Bricks, 1/2 lb. | 20 00 | 25 |
| English, Fire. | 45 00 | |
| Candles, 1/2 lb. | | |
| Sperm, N Bedford. | 42 | 43 |
| Tallow. | 20 | 21 |
| Adamantine. | 16 | 21 |
| Sugar. | 17 1/2 | 25 |
| Chocolate, No 1 per lb. | 35 | 38 |
| Sweet and Spiced. | 35 | 38 |
| Cider, Western 1/2 lb. | none | here |
| Northern. | none | here |
| Corn, Canned 1/2 ton. | 11 | 13 00 |
| Antirrhoe. | 11 | 13 00 |
| Western, 2 1/2 ton. | 25 | 28 |
| Coffee, Rio, 1/2 lb. | 35 | 38 |
| Havana. | 35 | 38 |
| Java. | 35 | 38 |
| St. Domingo. | 26 | |
| Cotton Seed. | | |
| Brass, 1/2 ton. | 9 00 | 14 00 |
| Hulled, 1/2 ton. | 35 | 40 |
| Copper, Braziers 1/2 lb. | 35 | 40 |
| Sheathing. | 35 | 40 |
| Copper Bolts. | 35 | 40 |
| Yellow Metal. | 35 | 40 |
| Cordage, Manila, 1/2 lb. | 25 | 28 |
| Turkey, American. | 25 | 28 |
| Russia. | 30 | |
| Corn Meal, 1/2 bbl. | 5 00 | 5 25 |
| Dyes, 1/2 lb. | | |
| Logwood, Campy. | 5 | 6 |
| St. Domingo. | 5 | 6 |
| Fusile, Campy. | 5 | 6 |
| Indigo, 1/2 lb. | 1 00 | 1 50 |
| Madder. | 18 | 20 |
| Eggs, 1/2 doz. Western. | 14 | 16 |
| Feathers, 1/2 lb. | 90 | 1 00 |
| Fish, Cod, 1/2 box. | 1 95 | 2 10 |
| Herring. | 75 | |
| Mackerel. | 20 00 | |
| No. 2. | 16 50 | |
| No. 3. | 16 50 | |
| Flaxseed, 1/2 lb. | 4 | |
| Flour, 1/2 bbl. | | |
| Superfine. | 8 00 | 9 25 |
| Extra. | 9 50 | 14 00 |
| Fine. | 10 | |
| Fruit, Prunes, 1/2 lb. | 18 | 20 |
| Figs, Drum. | 23 | |
| Dried Apples. | 4 | 6 |
| Currents, Zante. | 17 | 19 |
| Almonds, soft shell. | 34 | |
| Raisins, M R, 1/2 box. | 45 | |
| Layer. | 4 35 | |
| Len's Sicily 1/2 box. | 11 50 | |
| Malaga, 1/2 box. | | |
| Oranges, 1/2 1000. | | |
| Sicily 1/2 box. | 7 00 | |
| Glass, 1/2 box of 60 feet. | | |
| French, 8 x 12. | 3 50 | 4 25 |
| 10 x 12. | 4 00 | 4 50 |
| 12 x 18. | 6 00 | |
| Grain, 1/2 bushel. | | |
| Malt, Eastern. | 1 00 | 1 80 |
| Canada. | 1 00 | 2 00 |
| Oats. | 70 | |
| Corn, shelled 1/2 bushel. | 1 25 | |
| Beans, 1/2 bbl. | 14 00 | 16 00 |
| Hops, 1/2 lb. | 65 | 70 |
| Gunpowder, 1/2 keg. | 7 50 | 8 50 |
| Gunny Bags, 1/2 bag. | 20 00 | 22 00 |
| Hay, Western, 1/2 ton. | 29 00 | 30 00 |
| Northern. | none | here |
| Louisiana. | none | here |
| Hides, 1/2 lb. | | |
| Dry salted Mexican. | 17 | 19 |
| Wet salted, fully slaughtered. | 11 | 10 1/2 |
| Kip skins. | 11 | 11 1/2 |
| Dry country. | 15 | 15 1/2 |
| Pelts, 1/2 piece. | 10 | 15 |
| Iron, Pig 1/2 ton. | 45 00 | |
| Country, Bar 1/2 lb. | 64 | 74 |
| English, 1/2 lb. | 53 | 6 |
| Hoop, 1/2 lb. | 8 | 11 |
| Sheet. | 8 | 11 |
| Bolter. | 8 | 11 |
| Nail Rods. | 12 | 14 |
| Iron Cotton Ties. | 9 | 11 |
| Castings, American. | 74 | 8 |
| Line, Western 1/2 bbl. | 1 50 | 2 00 |
| Shell Lime. | 1 50 | 2 00 |
| Rockland, do. | 2 10 | |
| Cement. | 2 75 | 3 25 |
| Molasses, 1/2 gallon. | | |
| Louisiana. | 60 | 65 |
| Mexico. | 48 | 55 |
| Refinery, Reboiled. | | |
| Moss, 1/2 lb. | 34 | |
| Gray, Country. | 34 | |
| Black do. | 43 | 54 |
| Select, water rotted. | 43 | 54 |
| Ants, 1/2 lb. | 6 | 7 |
| Wrought, German. | 15 | 20 |
| English. | 18 | 20 |
| Naval Stores, 1/2 bbl. | | |
| Tar. | 4 00 | |
| Pitch. | 3 50 | 4 00 |
| Rosin A No. 1. | 3 75 | 4 00 |
| No. 2. | 3 50 | 4 00 |
| No. 3. | 3 25 | |
| Spirits Turp 1/2 gallon. | 47 | 48 |
| Varnish, bright. | 2 10 | 3 50 |
| Oils, 1/2 lb. | 1 10 | 1 15 |
| Coal Oil. | 45 | 48 |
| Cotton Seed, Crude. | 60 | 65 |
| Refined. | 85 | |
| Tanners' 1/2 gallon. | 1 25 | 1 50 |
| Oil Cake, Linseed 1/2 ton. | 37 50 | |
| Cotton Seed. | none | here |
| Meat. | | |
| Provisions, 1/2 bbl. | | |
| Beef, Mess, Northern. | 23 00 | 24 00 |
| Western. | 23 00 | 24 00 |
| North half bbl. | 14 00 | |
| Dried, 1/2 lb. | 16 | |
| Pork, Mess. | 10 00 | 11 00 |
| Prime Mess. | 25 00 | 26 25 |
| Hug, round, 1/2 lb. | none | here |
| Bacon, Ham, 1/2 lb. | none | here |
| Do, canvassed. | 18 | 23 |
| Shoulders. | 18 | |
| Green Shoulders. | 14 | 12 |
| Lard, Prime, in tierces. | 14 1/2 | 12 |
| In kegs. | 14 1/2 | 12 |
| Fat, in tierces. | 23 | 32 |
| Butter, Western. | 23 | 32 |
| Eastern. | 18 | 22 |
| Cheese, American. | 12 | 18 |
| Potatoes, 1/2 bbl. | 2 25 | 7 00 |
| Onions. | 6 00 | 6 50 |
| Green Apples. | 10 | 11 1/2 |
| Rice, 1/2 lb. Louisiana. | 10 | 11 1/2 |
| India. | 9 1/2 | 10 1/2 |
| Carolina. | 10 | 11 1/2 |
| Saltpeetre, refined, 1/2 lb. | 14 | 14 1/2 |
| Crude. | 13 | 15 |
| Sack. | | |
| Superfine, fine, warehouse. | 2 20 | 2 25 |
| Coarse, cargo. | 2 10 | 2 15 |
| from warehouse. | 2 10 | 2 15 |
| Turkey Island, 1/2 bbl. | 2 20 | 2 30 |
| Sugar, 1/2 lb. Western. | 8 | 10 |
| Northern. | 10 | 12 |
| Castle. | 8 | 10 |
| Sugar, Louisiana, 1/2 lb. | 14 | 16 |
| In the city. | 15 | 18 |
| Havana, White. | 15 | 18 1/2 |
| Yellow. | 13 | 14 1/2 |
| Brown. | 12 | 12 1/2 |
| Balers & Cutters. | 19 | 21 |
| Choice and Selections. | 17 | 19 |
| File Leaf. | 13 | 14 1/2 |
| Medium Leaf. | 8 | 11 1/2 |
| Full Leaf. | 8 | 11 1/2 |
| Common Leaf. | 11 | 13 1/2 |
| Good Refused. | 5 | 8 1/2 |
| Common Refused. | 4 | 5 |
| Turkey Cotton, 1/2 lb. | 60 | 80 |
| Wool, Washed, 1/2 lb. | 15 | 30 |
| Unwashed. | 10 | 30 |
| Louisiana, Native. | 15 | 30 |
| Texas, 1/2 lb. | 24 | |

ADVOCATE CALENDAR, 1867.

| MONTHS. | SUNDAY. | MONDAY. | TUESDAY. | WEDNESDAY. | THURSDAY. | FRIDAY. | SATURDAY. |
|---------|---------|---------|----------|------------|-----------|---------|-----------|
| JAN. | 1 | 2 | 3 | 4 | 5 | 6 | 7 |
| FEB. | 8 | 9 | 10 | 11 | 12 | 13 | 14 |
| MAR. | 15 | 16 | 17 | 18 | 19 | 20 | 21 |
| APR. | 22 | 23 | 24 | 25 | 26 | 27 | 28 |
| MAY. | 29 | 30 | 31 | 1 | 2 | 3 | 4 |
| JUN. | 5 | 6 | 7 | 8 | 9 | 10 | 11 |
| JULY. | 12 | 13 | 14 | 15 | 16 | 17 | 18 |
| AUG. | 19 | 20 | 21 | 22 | 23 | 24 | 25 |
| SEP. | 26 | 27 | 28 | 29 | 30 | 1 | 2 |
| OCT. | 3 | 4 | 5 | 6 | 7 | 8 | 9 |
| NOV. | 10 | 11 | 12 | 13 | 14 | 15 | 16 |
| DEC. | 17 | 18 | 19 | 20 | 21 | 22 | 23 |
| JAN. | 24 | 25 | 26 | 27 | 28 | 29 | 30 |
| FEB. | 1 | 2 | 3 | 4 | 5 | 6 | 7 |
| MAR. | 8 | 9 | 10 | 11 | 12 | 13 | 14 |
| APR. | 15 | 16 | 17 | 18 | 19 | 20 | 21 |
| MAY. | 22 | 23 | 24 | 25 | 26 | 27 | 28 |
| JUN. | 29 | 30 | 31 | 1 | 2 | 3 | 4 |
| JULY. | 5 | 6 | 7 | 8 | 9 | 10 | 11 |
| AUG. | 12 | 13 | 14 | 15 | 16 | 17 | 18 |
| SEP. | 19 | 20 | 21 | 22 | 23 | 24 | 25 |
| OCT. | 26 | 27 | 28 | 29 | 30 | 1 | 2 |
| NOV. | 3 | 4 | 5 | 6 | 7 | 8 | 9 |
| DEC. | 10 | 11 | 12 | 13 | 14 | 15 | 16 |
| JAN. | 17 | 18 | 19 | 20 | 21 | 22 | 23 |
| FEB. | 24 | 25 | 26 | 27 | 28 | 29 | 30 |
| MAR. | 1 | 2 | 3 | 4 | 5 | 6 | 7 |
| APR. | 8 | 9 | 10 | 11 | 12 | 13 | 14 |
| MAY. | 15 | 16 | 17 | 18 | 19 | 20 | 21 |
| JUN. | 22 | 23 | 24 | 25 | 26 | 27 | 28 |
| JULY. | 29 | 30 | 31 | 1 | 2 | 3 | 4 |
| AUG. | 5 | 6 | 7 | 8 | 9 | 10 | 11 |
| SEP. | 12 | 13 | 14 | 15 | 16 | 17 | 18 |
| OCT. | 19 | 20 | 21 | 22 | 23 | 24 | 25 |
| NOV. | 26 | 27 | 28 | 29 | 30 | 1 | 2 |
| DEC. | 3 | 4 | 5 | 6 | 7 | 8 | 9 |
| JAN. | 10 | 11 | 12 | 13 | 14 | 15 | 16 |
| FEB. | 17 | 18 | 19 | 20 | 21 | 22 | 23 |
| MAR. | 24 | 25 | 26 | 27 | 28 | 29 | 30 |
| APR. | 1 | 2 | 3 | 4 | 5 | 6 | 7 |
| MAY. | 8 | 9 | 10 | 11 | 12 | 13 | 14 |
| JUN. | 15 | 16 | 17 | 18 | 19 | 20 | 21 |
| JULY. | 22 | 23 | 24 | 25 | 26 | 27 | 28 |
| AUG. | 29 | 30 | 31 | 1 | 2 | 3 | 4 |
| SEP. | 5 | 6 | 7 | 8 | 9 | 10 | 11 |
| OCT. | 12 | 13 | 14 | 15 | 16 | 17 | 18 |
| NOV. | 19 | 20 | 21 | 22 | 23 | 24 | 25 |
| DEC. | 26 | 27 | 28 | 29 | 30 | 1 | 2 |
| JAN. | 3 | 4 | 5 | 6 | 7 | 8 | 9 |
| FEB. | 10 | 11 | 12 | 13 | 14 | 15 | 16 |
| MAR. | 17 | 18 | 19 | 20 | 21 | 22 | 23 |
| APR. | 24 | 25 | 26 | 27 | 28 | 29 | 30 |
| MAY. | 1 | 2 | 3 | 4 | 5 | 6 | 7 |
| JUN. | 8 | 9 | 10 | 11 | 12 | 13 | 14 |
| JULY. | 15 | 16 | 17 | 18 | 19 | 20 | 21 |
| AUG. | 22 | 23 | 24 | 25 | 26 | 27 | 28 |
| SEP. | 29 | 30 | 31 | 1 | 2 | 3 | 4 |
| OCT. | 5 | 6 | 7 | 8 | 9 | 10 | 11 |
| NOV. | 12 | 13 | 14 | 15 | 16 | 17 | 18 |
| DEC. | 19 | 20 | 21 | 22 | 23 | 24 | 25 |
| JAN. | 26 | 27 | 28 | 29 | 30 | 1 | 2 |
| FEB. | 3 | 4 | 5 | 6 | 7 | 8 | 9 |
| MAR. | 10 | 11 | 12 | 13 | 14 | 15 | 16 |
| APR. | 17 | 18 | 19 | 20 | 21 | 22 | 23 |
| MAY. | 24 | 25 | 26 | 27 | 28 | 29 | 30 |
| JUN. | 1 | 2 | 3 | 4 | 5 | 6 | 7 |
| JULY. | 8 | 9 | 10 | 11 | 12 | 13 | 14 |
| AUG. | 15 | 16 | 17 | 18 | 19 | 20 | 21 |
| SEP. | 22 | 23 | 24 | 25 | 26 | 27 | 28 |
| OCT. | 29 | 30 | 31 | 1 | 2 | 3 | 4 |
| NOV. | 5 | 6 | 7 | 8 | 9 | 10 | |

CHRISTIAN ADVOCATE

ORGAN OF THE M. E. CHURCH SOUTH FOR THE MOBILE, MONTGOMERY, MISSISSIPPI AND LOUISIANA CONFERENCES.

VOLUME XII.—NUMBER 33.
WHOLE NUMBER 643.

NEW ORLEANS, SATURDAY, SEPT. 7, 1867.

($3.00 A YEAR IN ADVANCE)
OFFICE—114 CAMP STREET.

Summer Evening Twilight.
BY GEORGE COOPER.
There are molding flames in the West;
There's a whistle or two from the fen;
There's a chirp, here and there, from a nest,
And the tremulous cry
Of a cricket near by;
Then a slumberous silence again.
And the lady's querulous song Grows bolder in deepening shade;
And the tree-frog, of some hidden wrong,
Murmurs pleadingly down in the glade.
There are bats on their short wheeling flight,
And the money leaves dusky grow.
And the midges and sweetness of night,
When the fire-flies gleam
And they verily seem
To be stars in a fall of golden snow!

JOHN WESLEY.
NO. IV.

It is probable John Wesley preached more sermons than any other preacher. Whitfield, it is estimated, preached 18,000 sermons in four years; but Wesley, in a ministry of fifty-three years, preached 40,000 sermons. His invariable custom was to preach each day, and on extra occasions three, and sometimes five sermons in one day. Wesley's sermons were most judiciously selected and most judiciously delivered. His sermons on such occasions were necessarily hasty and crude, and did not exhibit the learning and abilities great in him. Many to imitate his flight, and unearthy fluttering made. All that was wise and worthy let emulate, but all that was hasty and excessive let us avoid.

These accounts of Wesley's labors may seem almost incredible, but we must remember that the climate of England is not at all arid, that portion of it in which Wesley for the most part labored, having a mean temperature of 49 to 52 degrees. The whole island is famed and blessed with breezes from the England proper is situated between 49 and 55 degrees north latitude. This is a tolerably high latitude, but the proximity of the Stream softens and moderates the temperature, so that its atmosphere is favorable to robustness of constitution and great mental and physical labor. In great section it must not be forgotten that Wesley possessed admirably powers of condensation, so he rarely preached more than one, and sometimes only fifteen sermons. It must be recollected, that it was one of Wesley's sermons, and one that he tried to enforce on all the preachers in connection with him, "not to preach long nor too loud." Although Wesley often preached to vast congregations, his voice was naturally so fine, his command of it so perfect, and his manner so calm and self-possessed, that he preached without exhaustion.

In his 43rd year Wesley married a respectable widow, a lady of independent fortune. Immediately after his marriage he transferred to his wife all the legal claim which the act of marriage had conferred on him, and refused to have control over her estate. It was also stipulated that he was to travel one mile, or preach one sermon less in the year before the marriage. This marriage was one of the most judicious steps of Wesley's whole life. Although a wise and an amiable married man, no one could have been more poorly fitted, or more unqualified for the duties of domestic life. His marriage, as it has been anticipated with domestic stipulations, was most happy. His wife tried in vain to domesticate him, by circumventing the area of his vast, varied and perpetual labors. Wesley may be said to have lived on the road, in the pulpit, or in the study. Such a man, with such habits and far extending labors, had no business with a wife. When Mrs. Wesley found she could not change, could not confine her husband to domestic life, she became angry and outraged, and sought by various means to ruin his reputation; for example by reading garbled extracts of his letters to others; by writing fictitious letters and signing his name to them; and by raising slanderous reports. To all these malicious attacks Wesley paid not the slightest attention, although often urged to do so by his relatives and friends. He kept the even tenor of his way, and by the silent, but potent, argument of a good life convinced the world of his innocence. Wesley and his wife lived (it cannot be said, together) in this unhappy way for twenty years; though it is to be presumed it did not cost him any great unhappiness, as he was much from home, and too much engrossed with his vast and varied public cares to give much attention to the complaints and upbraidings of his wife. At the end of twenty years she left his house in utter despair of reducing him to domestic life. In noticing this event in his diary, he simply says, with a Caesar-like laconism, "I did not forsake her—I did not, dismiss her—I will not recall her."

Wesley's domestic infelicity is a remarkable example of the wisdom of that Providence that educates good out of evil circumstances. Had Wesley been happily married—had home been to him, what it ought to be to all, the sweetest, dearest, most desired spot on all the earth—he certainly would have been strongly tempted, even if he had not yielded, to linger about it. But home had no attractions for him, so he had no temptation to withhold himself for a day from his glorious toils. Had Wesley's home been a happy one, thousands possibly would never have heard the message of life from him; but domestic circumstances as he was, he went forth from house to house—from day to day and from year to year, preaching everywhere, and to all, the gospel of the grace of God. However unfortunate, then, Wesley's marriage may have been for his own happiness, Providence overruled it for the "furtherance of the gospel," and the salvation of many souls.

Wesley had a little income from some rented property, which was paid to him quarterly, and which he spent and gave away as fast as he received it. When Wesley was fifty years old he had never had so much as five hundred dollars at one time. In his fiftieth year it was thought he would soon die of consumption, and fearing something would be written about him which he could not approve, he wrote his own epitaph in these words, "Here lies the body of John Wesley, a brand plucked from the burning, who when his debts are paid will not leave behind him fifty pounds in the world." His motto in regard to financial affairs, and which he practically carried out, was—"make all you can, save all you can, and give all you can." In the course of sixty years, from his property and numerous publications, he made and gave away more than a hundred and fifty thousand dollars, and to his eternal honor, he died poor at last, having given all away. He never indulged in the least ostentation or luxury. He was always scrupulously neat, but plain in his attire. Once the revenue officer sent to inquire of him why he had not given in an account of his taxable plate; naturally enough thinking that one who was at the head of so large a connection, and who made so considerable a figure in the world, must certainly have considerable of so common a luxury; but Wesley informed him that he had none, unless four small teaspoons—two in London and two in Bristol—could be dignified with the appellation of plate, and that he should not buy any more while so many around him wanted bread.

W.
For the N. O. Christian Advocate.
BRITISH HONDURAS.
BY REV. W. CHAMBERLIN.

TIMBER.
The variety is very great, but the lands are not so heavily timbered as our bottom lands; the large trees are not so plenty, and there is but little timber suitable for rails; some of them, however, split well, such as the cedar and Santa Maria. There is plenty of timber that would do admirably for fences, if sawed into boards and posts—the cotton wood, cedar, Santa Maria, mahogany, and the pine. Most of the fences we saw were made of long poles, called pine-cuts. They are about three inches in diameter, straight, and from ten to twenty feet long. A picket fence is sometimes made from the outer part of the cabbage, or royal palm, which is very hard and lasting. But the best fence that can be made is a hedge of the line of the orange. The best plan is to first build a pole fence, and just inside plant lines, cut in quarters, putting them a little below the surface and covering them with loose earth; and by the time your pole fence decays, say three years, you will have a well grown and secure hedge. There are many parts of Honduras where rock is easily obtained in sufficient quantity to build the stone fences so much used in New England. I conceive that a stone fence 30 inches high, with a line hedge close along inside of it, would be the very best that could be made in any country, and I doubt not that the Cherokee rose would do well. Then, there is the Pyramanthus, an excellent hedge-plant. Any of these placed just inside of a ditch two feet wide and two feet deep, would keep out any stock. There is plenty of good stone for all purposes, and lime can be made abundantly in many parts of the Colony.

CLEARING LANDS.

From the best information we could get about clearing land, it costs to cut down all the timber and cahoon, and get it ready to burn off, from $4 to $4½ per acre; the burning and fencing will cost perhaps half as much more.

Wages per month, for good hands, about nine dollars and rations. The ration is four pounds of mess pork and seven pounds of flour per week; plantains are substituted often for the flour, or a part flour and part plantains. The day's work is ten hours, which gives plenty of time to cook and rest.

There are two kinds of laborers, the Caribs and the Creoles—the Caribs are far the best. The following extract from Squier's Central America, p. 234, is certainly true in all respects we think from our observation.

"The Caribs are a peaceable, friendly, ingenious, and industrious people. They are noted for their fondness for dress. They cannot be called a handsome race, but are hardy and athletic. The difference in their color is remarkable, some being coal black, and others nearly as yellow as sand. They are scrupulously clean and neat in their persons, and have great aptitude for acquiring languages, most of them being able to speak Carib, Spanish, and English; and some Creole-French and Mosquito. Industry and forethought are peculiar traits in Carib women, consequently they are soon surrounded with necessities and comforts. The men can hew and plant, hunt and fish, erect a comfortable house, build a good boat, make the sails, &c. Some are capital tailors, others good carpenters, and altogether there cannot be a more useful body of men."

The Caribs on southern Storm Creek, and at one or two other points on the coast of Honduras, are descendants of the natives of St. Vincent, carried by the British government to Ruatan in 1796.

SUGAR CANE.

Honduras is undoubtedly the very best portion of the world for the production of Sugar. The canes grow rapidly, are large, tall, very rich in saccharine matter, and but little labor is required in raising it. When once the land has been cleared and planted in cane, a great deal is accomplished; one or two weeding, and the cane so shades the ground that but little is required until it is ripe enough to cut and grind. The yield is said to be three tons per acre. The juice is so rich that it takes much less boiling than Louisiana cane-juice, and with care will produce a very superior quality of sugar.

COFFEE.

Most of the lands are suitable and will produce coffee. Not only on the rich cahoon lands, but on the lighter sandy soils, we saw fine luxuriant trees, well filled with the fruit. The berries come out immediately from the limbs, close together, and when full grown are about the size of cherries. As they ripen they turn red, and each berry contains what constitutes two grains of the coffee of commerce. This will form a profitable staple crop of this country.

RICE.

Does well here, and will also be one of the staples.

TOBACCO.

Of an excellent quality can be raised, said to be second to no other grown in any country, and will be found a source of great profit.

COTTON.

There is some Cotton raised, generally of the sea island variety; but it is an experiment yet to be tried, whether it will prove profitable or not.

FRUITS.

Of the Fruits it is not necessary to speak, as all know it is a fruit country. Large quantities will, in the future, be exported, such as bananas, plantains, pine apples, mangoes, limes, lemons, oranges, &c. Mr. Mathe is to give the Sherman a cargo from one of his places on her September return trip.

Strange as it may seem, when we know that it is 13 degrees south of New Orleans, the climate is milder than at the latter place. We were the whole of the month of July and ten days of August in the country, and have never suffered so little from heat at the same season of the year. The thermometer during that time invariably at 6 a. m., was 80 degrees, at noon 87, and at 6 p. m. 80, except when there was a shower during the night, then the thermometer would stand at 76 at 6 a. m. It is astonishing how equable we found it. The almost constant sea breeze reduces the temperature of the body so that you feel cooler than if the thermometer stood ten degrees lower without a breeze.

Such a thing as a "cold" or "catching cold" is not heard of. There is no doubt of its being a healthy climate, far more so than Louisiana or Mississippi. For persons of a consumptive tendency, from what I have heard of actual cases, it is certainly the country for invalids of that description to resort to.

One thing we all remarked was the almost total absence of the house-fly, especially in Belize. There are sometimes a few mosquitoes there and some sand flies, but we slept without a bar all the time we were in the city, though we had one at command. Of course there are plenty of mosquitoes, sand flies, and bottle flies in some parts, which are very troublesome and annoying, but along the coast, after the country is cleared up, the sea breeze will generally drive them away.

PASTURAGE.

As good as can be found anywhere, we saw in many places. About 25 miles up the Belize river, Burns has some 700 acres fine pasturage, grass green and luxuriant, and the cattle, horses, and sheep were as fat and thrifty as if on the pastures of Kentucky. At Boston, also, 3 miles from the river, we saw a fine pasture of nearly 300 acres, the cattle and horses in good order and fat. There is no doubt that the lands here can be brought into pasturage as quickly as in any other country. The Pine lands are naturally excellent pastures, and afford plenty of nourishment for all grazing purposes.

There were, as passengers on the Gen. Sherman, which left New Orleans on the 29th of June, 24 men, heads of families; and many of them represented, and wanted lands for several families each. Of this number 19 either remained, bought land, or were determined to return to Honduras as soon as they could. The other five were not so well pleased and will not probably return. Of those who bought lands were Messrs. Cassity & Henderson, of Red river, Mr. Bringham, of Alexandria, Mr. Hebert, of Bayou de Glaze, Mr. Lacy, of Opelousas, Mr. Bledsoe, of Natchez, and myself. Eight remained, and the others to the number of nineteen, intend to return there to settle. Others who went over before us, say they are pleased with the country.

TO BE CONCLUDED.

From the St. Louis Christian Advocate.

"NOTES OF A RAMBLER."

Under this heading Dr. Kavanaugh, of Soule College, Texas, is contributing a series of highly interesting articles, giving items of observation while a Superintendent of Missions in the North West. We extract:

The vast fields of wild rice, spoken of in my last number, mature in August and September, when the waters freeze up, and the rice is kept in a dry and perfect state through the winter and spring, and until the wild geese and ducks arrive from the South, when they find more delicious food prepared for them than they can consume. Fields that they have not sown, and vast stores of grain that they have reaped nor gathered into barns, all ready and awaiting their arrival; and to make it a more complete feast of delight, it is scattered around the margins of those pearly lakes in which they take their chief delight.

Here is the long talked of "Wild Goose Country." They gather here in great numbers early in the spring; make their arrangements for spending a pleasant summer in lonely retreats from the habitations of man; raise their young without molestation, and in the early fall they commence their tour South, at first by slow and gentle movements, before the young brood have been fairly fledged for the long journey. The young geese, when they first appear on the large rivers, are very fat, and when roasted before a camp fire, with the proper seasonings, are about as good eating as any poor traveling missionary could ask for.

The duck tribe is far more numerous, both in kinds and numbers than any other of the feathered hosts that frequent these Elysian fields. They are killed in great numbers by the Indians, simply for their feathers, as the traders offer moderate price for them. Wild pigeons congregate in the same region where most is deficient in the countries south, and feed upon the rice and berries of this extensive region. All other game is very scarce, as the wild animals of the country are very closely hunted out by the Indians; and as for producing country, it grows more and more barren every year. There are but few other and beaver in the country. The marten, lynx, silver gray fox, muskrat, and small wolf, are the principal animals now found in this section, from which the fur trade is kept up. Further off to the west, over the great prairies, the buffalo, elk, and moose are found, with the common red deer. On two of my trips I met with elk on the Mississippi, and with the moose and black bear on the St. Louis river, but notwithstanding a great effort to get a shot at them, they all escaped, except an elk which stood far out in shallow water on a sand bar in the Mississippi, on a very bright, sunny day. I was descending the river in a canoe, with two other canoes of traders, in one of which old Mr. Akin was sitting. As soon as the elk was seen, Mr. Akin ordered his two canoes to fall back and let mine go forward to take the first fire; but in case I missed, three other guns were to fire at once. When the canoes were put in proper order, all hands laid flat in the canoes and let them float down the current until I chose to fire. The elk stood perfectly still, fighting off the mosquitoes, until we approached within fifty yards without attracting its attention. I did not wish to get nearer, and with a very deliberate aim, I fired away, and made a clear miss! The three other guns fired, and all missed. The elk stood for several seconds gazing at us without moving, and then raised its head, with enormous horns, and leisurely loped off to the shore in majestic beauty. Old man Akin was in a rage! Four good marksmen, all within fifty yards, and every one miss an enormously large elk, standing broadside, as still as a post! It was too bad! He was the more astonished because he had just seen me rise in my canoe and shoot a badger on shore, one hundred and fifty yards off, and shot him through the head. What could be the matter? Were we all bewitched? He came up by my side and demanded to know what all this meant? I remarked that "the sun was shining very bright from the westward, producing a mirage—an optical illusion—which carried the image of the objects on the water a foot or two higher than they really were; that we had all aimed at that refracted image, and had every one shot a foot or more too high."

"That may all be so, but I never saw as poor shooting in my life! Why, my son John (a half blood, who had just fired one of the guns,) never made as poor a shot before!"

The deer were very numerous that day along the river to get out of the way of the mosquitoes, and I determined to redeem my character as a hunter; so I went ahead and found a deer standing on a point on shore, and shot it. This let me off with old man Akin, especially as he had sent ashore and picked up the badger I shot, so we had a good feast in camp at night, and all was right again. Of the badger I did not partake.

Having organized the mission at Sandy Lake, and left it in charge of Spates and Johnson, I proceeded with Copway to Pon Du Lac, (head of the lake), on Lake Superior.

NEURALGIA. — A correspondent writes to us that having derived great benefit from a simple remedy for neuralgia, he thinks it ought to be made public. He says he has suffered for over twenty years from attacks of severe neuralgia in the legs, sometimes causing lameness. Medical treatment, change of air and other remedies being without effect, he tried a change of clothing, and wore very heavy, warm, red net woolen drawers, and this relieved him. Our correspondent stated his opinion to be, that a large amount of the neuralgia cases now so common might be relieved by extremely warm woolen clothing, and says that even the heaviest and most expensive silk will not answer. — Philadelphia Ledger.

For the N. O. Christian Advocate.

SERIOUS BUT TRUE.

MR. EDITOR: There are but few duties more painful to perform than that of disclosing to the public our own liabilities and disabilities. But when necessity is upon us what else can we do?

Owing to the misfortunes attending our church enterprise at Milton, I take this as the "dernier resort" to appeal for help to save the Methodist church house in Milton, from being sold to pay its indebtedness.

In February last, I made an appeal, (by letter) to several of the brethren of the Montgomery Conference, stating to them the condition of affairs in Milton, and urging them for immediate help, promising them that if we could succeed in raising the money in Milton, we would refund it at the next annual Conference. But this appeal did not bring us a dollar of help. Then I undertook to raise money by a personal appeal to the citizens of Milton, and adjacent community—and after several days of wearied exertion and urgent appeal, succeeded in raising only one hundred and nine dollars, to meet a debt of five hundred dollars, leaving a balance of three hundred and ninety-one dollars.

A short time since, I was informed by one of the Trustees of the church, that if the money was not raised, the church house would be sold twelve months hence, to liquidate the debt. Then will have passed from our hands a strong hold upon this country and people, perhaps never to be regained.

Should this appeal meet the eye, touch the heart, and open the purse of any of the friends of Southern Methodism, in this section, they will confer a substantial benefit upon our struggling, but we fear, sinking cause in Milton, by sending the cash addressed to me, by "registered letter," at Milton, Fla., or by sending the cash by some of the brethren to our next Annual Conference, to be held at Opelika, Ala., Dec. 4th.

ANGUS DOWLING.

Milton, Fla., Aug. 26, 1867.

For the N. O. Christian Advocate.

Where is the Bible Agent?— "Where Art Thou?"

MR. EDITOR: Can you or any of your correspondents tell what has become of, or what is the address of, Rev. Simon P. Richardson, who we understood was appointed Bible agent for this part of the country? We have been asked time again on this subject, but have been unable to give an answer. We have examined the different church papers, for months, for a communication from the "Agent, giving information as to where, and how, and when, Bibles could be procured, but can find none. Certainly, a matter of as much importance as this, ought to be kept very prominently before the public, as souls are famishing for the word of life.

Yours,

W. Westville, Ala., Aug. 21, 1867.

For the N. O. Christian Advocate.

Clinton Female Seminary.

MR. EDITOR: In obedience to the order of Conference, we have, in part at least, attended the closing exercises of Clinton Female Seminary. This Seminary is located in Clinton, La., and conducted by Mrs. Wall and Mrs. DuBar, and is one of the oldest schools in this region, having been in successful operation for twenty-two years. Clinton is one of the most beautiful inland towns in the State, with a highly intelligent community, and good educational facilities. The examination in this school took place on the 24th and 25th of July. The most of the pupils in the primary classes stood a good examination, some of them evincing extraordinary progress in their studies for their age. The young ladies in the higher classes acquitted themselves well. Their examination satisfied all present, we believe, that they had energetically and industriously applied themselves, and that the teachers had been at their posts, and done their work well. The last day of the examination was devoted to the graduating class. There were three regular graduates. This part of the examination was highly gratifying, and elicited the universal applause of the audience and examining committee. The examining committee was composed of gentlemen well qualified for the work, and we here introduce the substance of their report. "The prompt and intelligent answers of the young ladies to the searching questions put to them in the Elements of Criticism, the Evidences of Christianity, and Mental Philosophy, and the clear and lucid manner in which they demonstrated propositions in Geometry, elicited the unqualified commendation of the Committee. Such a result could only follow severe application upon the part of the young ladies, and unwearied devotion upon the part of the accomplished principals of the school. The committee cheerfully recommend to the Board of Trustees, that diplomas be conferred upon Miss Nannie Smith, Miss Melvina Davis, and Miss Lizzie Ellis.

JAMES S. TAYLOR,
A. P. PAYNE,
T. B. LYONS,
E. J. PULLIN,
J. M. KENNEDY.

The exercises closed in the Masonic Hall, on the night of the 26th, in the presence of a large and intelligent audience, with a brilliant concert, every part of which was performed well. At the close of this, diplomas were conferred upon the three regular graduates above mentioned, and the degree of Mistress of Instrumental Music and English Literature, conferred upon Miss Mattie Wall. To this class there was read an eloquent and touching address, by Mrs. Mary Wall, one of the principals of the Seminary. This school is commended to the public, as one in which young ladies may obtain a solid as well as ornamental education.

WM. B. HINKS,
JAMES L. FORSYTH.
Jackson, La., Aug. 19, 1867.

From Good Words.

SUMMER HOLIDAYS.

* * * * * Since the beginning of the sixteenth century, I suppose there was never a time when the intellect of Europe was agitated by so many fierce and conflicting influences as at the present moment, and there has certainly never been a time since then when men of active intelligence were so likely to be swept away by currents of speculation, without knowing either their original source or their direction and ultimate issue. Our popular literature is penetrated through and through with the principles of hostile philosophies and creeds. Mill and Hamilton, Comte and Hegel, the gross materialism of the enfants perdus of Positivism, and a vague, dreamy spiritualism—you come across them all, under the strangest disguises and in most unexpected places.

A keen clever man, without much time for systematic thought, is struck with an article in the columns of a newspaper or the pages of a review; he thinks over it at odd moments, talks about it at a friend's dinner-table, and gradually makes it his own. He does not inquire on what ultimate theory of the universe the speculations which have fascinated him must rest, or with what parts of that system of truth they are altogether irreconcilable. He is charmed by the beauty or ingenuity or grandeur of the new ideas, or they seem to solve difficulties which have troubled him, or to afford useful and available aids to an upright and noble life; and therefore, without inquiring where they came from, and what kind of a "character" they bear, and whether they have disreputable and vicious connections, he receives them at once. They have a pleasant look, a gracious manner, a musical voice, a dignified bearing, and he never dreams of suspecting them. But, once securely lodged, they soon gather their friends and confederates about them; the whole clan gradually assembles. The man finds that somehow—he does not know how—his whole way of looking at the world has been changed, or else he is living in a new universe. The "everlasting hills" themselves, with whose majestic outlines he was so familiar, have melted away, and the old constellations have vanished from the sky. The change may be for the better; perhaps he has parted only with delusions, and has risen into the region of realities; but such vast revolutions ought not to be the work of accident and chance.

Would it not be well for those who are conscious that they are intellectually alive, and that they are powerfully influenced by the speculations and controversies by which they are surrounded, to try and find out, during their summer holidays, to what quarter of the troubled ocean of human thought they are drifting? They resolutely believe, as yet, in the eternal and infinite difference between right and wrong: are they insensibly yielding to a philosophy in which that difference virtually disappears? They think that nothing could persuade them to abandon their faith in moral responsibility, and to contradict the clear testimony of consciousness to the freedom of the will; are they sure that the silent but inevitable development of theories by which they have been greatly charmed, will not necessitate the denial of both? Is their faith in a personal God quite safe? If the ideas which have come to us from books, from conversation, from sermons, from solitary meditation, are all true, they will be the better for being thoroughly organized, and considered in their mutual relations, their original grounds, and their final results. If they are false, if they are destructive of truths and laws to which our own consciousness and the history of the human race bear irresistible witness, the sooner they are expelled from the mind, the safer for ourselves and for all with whom we have anything to do.

The highest end of all to which protracted leisure can be applied remains to be illustrated. For a month, for six weeks, we cease to be merchants, or lawyers, manufacturers or tradesmen, preachers or physicians, and become men. We cast off the occupations and cares which limit and restrain the free action of our nature through the greater part of the year, and may, if we please, rise beyond the control of "things seen and temporal," and live for a time in untroubled and uninterrupted fellowship with "things unseen and eternal." Our summer holiday, or part of it, may be a kind of "spiritual retreat."

There are many people, no doubt, who only become more restless when they are obliged to be still. They cannot escape from their counting-houses, their banks, their conflicts with trades, unions, their legal troubles, except by violent physical exertion or the strongest stimulant which they can get, from travel in strange countries and sight-seeing in strange cities. Unless they are climbing mountains, or gliding over glaciers, or stirred by the pleasant excitements which come from listening to a foreign tongue and watching the unfamiliar manners of a foreign people, they might as well be at home. Every man must judge for himself, and find out how he can best get his brain quiet, and run the whole current of his thoughts out of its accustomed channel. But even those persons who would not be able to shake themselves free from their common cares, if they spent all their holiday in a quiet country inn, among the elms and oaks, and corn-fields of their own country, or in a lone farm-house among the silent hills, might be able to devote a few days or a week to tranquil religious thought when they have fairly got away from the steam and the stir and the tumult which followed them till they were five-hundred miles away from home.

It is to be feared that some Christian men return to their ordinary life with less devoutness and spiritual intensity than when they left it. While they were away, public worship was not regularly attended, private prayer was offered hurriedly, and Holy Scripture was read carelessly, or not at all. Their temper is better, and they are more kindly and generous, from the brief interruption of common duties; but their vision of God is none the clearer. They have not escaped from the entanglements which, even in their devotest moments, keep them among the lowest ranks of the hierarchy of worshippers around the eternal throne.

And yet, when they are hurried and pressed by the incessant claims of their profession or trade, they often sigh for days of solitary thought and unbroken communion with Christ. They sometimes think that if they could only contemplate more steadily and continuously the august and majestic realities of the invisible world, they might be able to live a nobler and more saintly life. They feel that "the mighty hopes which make us men" must be firmly grasped by sustained and undistracted thought, if they are to have power to subdue the inferior but vehement excitements by which day after day they are swept helplessly along. But they have no time or strength or stillness for lofty meditation. They wish they had. They envy the people who have more quietness and leisure, and, conscious of the difficulty of mastering the world while engaged in its conflicts and surrounded with its tumult, half suspect that ideal saintliness is possible only in monastic seclusion.

Why do not such men spend a few of the bright, calm hours of their yearly rest in that prolonged spiritual meditation, and in those acts of more intense devotion, in which they cannot engage at other times? Their feet are free to wander now along the remoter and less familiar paths of religious thought. The noise of the distant world of care and toil is hushed, and they listen to the voice of God. They have time for the steadfast contemplation of the burning splendors of the divine nature, and may catch the fervor and inspiration of cherubim and seraphim, who have nearest access to the infinite glory. They may invite by patient expectation, and by the penitent and humble confession of weakness, the baptism of the Holy Spirit and of fire. They may anticipate the final judgment. They may see afar off, the palaces of heaven, and the nations of the saved walking in white raiment and crowned with immortal honor and blessedness. They may find that even here, there is "fulness of joy" in the presence of God, and that the light of his countenance can surround the devout soul with celestial glory.

No Christian man need find it difficult to make this lofty use of his summer leisure. It is not the faculty for creating striking and original lines of thought that is necessary. We may all "wait upon God," and it is by waiting on Him, not by elaborating grand and splendid conceptions of Him, that we "renew" our "strength." If spiritual impulse and power were derived from the reflex action on the heart, of our own intellectual activity directed to the regions of divine truth, the measure of our religious earnestness would be determined by the vigor and brilliancy of our intellectual faculties, and persons unexercised in abstract thought would be placed at a grievous disadvantage. But the simplest truths, when they lead us direct to God, answer all the practical purposes of the most profound thoughts of theologians. A single parable of our Lord's, a well-known promise of mercy and strength, any one of the divine attributes considered in its most obvious aspects and revelations, is enough to open our whole nature to the tides of divine life and joy. The cry of the heart after God will surely be answered; and, allowing for the rare and abnormal conditions of the spiritual nature, the Christian man who longs to live and move and have his being in God, has only to separate himself for a time from the agitations and pursuits of his secular life, and he will find himself surrounded with the innumerable company of angels, and in the very presence of the Highest.

Would not the pleasures as well as the lasting profit of a summer holiday be almost infinitely augmented, if part of it at least were set apart and consecrated to this tranquil yet intense contemplation of God, and of the heaven where God dwells? There are some men, I am told, who, when they come home after a month's absence, seem to have forgotten everything about it except the bills they have paid, the dinners they have eaten, the wines they have drunk, and, if they have been abroad, the strange customs of the countries they have visited. There are others whose memory is enriched for all coming years. They can recall the stateliness and majesty of ancient cathedrals, the splendor of imperial palaces, the look of streets and houses which have become famous in the history of Europe, the awful grandeur and chaotic waste of mountains they have climbed, the dazzling glory of wonderful sunsets, the changing lights which have made river or lake look like a dream of fairy-land. Happier still are those who in addition to such memories as these, can recall how in mountain solitudes it seemed as if the heavens opened and they talked to God face to face; or how when alone by the sea-shore, mists and clouds which had surrounded them for years suddenly broke and melted away, and the divine goodness or the divine justice stood visibly revealed. Pleasant glens and lonely paths among the hills will henceforth have everlasting associations, and will be vividly recalled when the solid earth has melted with fervent heat; for when eternity comes we shall remember most distinctly and most gratefully, not the places where we accumulated our wealth, or won our transient social triumphs, but those where we came to the resolve to live a holier life; and received strength to do it.

Used wisely and earnestly, every successive summer holiday might leave us with larger and nobler thoughts of God, with a loftier ideal of character, with every devout affection more fervent, and every right purpose invigorated and confirmed. If to secure such results as these it is necessary to keep within the four seas instead of rushing hurriedly over Germany, Switzerland, and France, if it is necessary for those who are taking their holiday in England to leave some famous places in the neighborhood unseen, and some customary excursions unaccomplished, will not the sacrifice receive abounding compensation? R. W. DALE.

HIGH CHURCH VESTMENTS.

The use or disuse of colored vestments is often treated by both sides as if it was the turning question between a true and a false Church; the signs to one party of the only Catholic worship, to the other of 'the workshops of Satan.' We venture to say that, with the exception of one aspect, on which we will dwell presently, there is not in the whole course of ecclesiastical usage a ceremonial practice more absolutely void of all theological significance. Look at the origin of these vestments. Both their supporters and their opponents regard them as sacerdotal garments, symbolical of what we know not what mysterious meanings. Even Milton spoke of them as borrowed from the Flamen's vestry and Aaron's wardrobe. What is the actual case? They have not the slightest tincture of Flamen or priest in their whole descent. They are the dresses of the Syrian peasant or the Roman gentleman, retained by the clergy, when they had been left off by the rest of society; just as the bishops long preserved the last relics of the flowing wigs of the time of Charles II, as the Blue-coat boys recall the common dress of children under Edward VI, as Quakers maintain the sober costume of the Commonwealth, as a clergyman's baude, which have been regarded as symbolical of the Cloven Tongues, of the two Testaments, of the two Tables of the Law, are but the remains of the turn-down collars of the time of James I. Their very names bear witness to the fact that there was originally no outward distinction whatever between clergy and laity. They thus strike, if they have any historical significance at all, at the root of the vast hierarchical system of which they are now made the badges and ornaments. The 'alb' is but the white shirt or tunic, still kept up in the white dress of the Pope, which used to be worn by every peasant next his skin, and in southern countries was often his only garment. A variety of it, introduced by the Emperors Commodus and Heliogabalus, with long sleeves, was, from the country whence they brought it, called the Dalmatica. The 'pall' is the pallium, the woolen cloak, generally the mark of philosophers, wrapped round the shirt like a plaid or shawl. The overcoat, in the days of the Roman Empire as in ours, was constantly changing its fashion and its name; and the slang designations by which it was known have been perpetuated in the ecclesiastical vocabulary and are now used with bated breath, as if speaking of things too sacred to be mentioned. One such overcoat was the cape or cope, also called pluviale, the 'waterproof.' Another was the chasuble, or casula, 'the little house,' as the Roman laborer called the smock frock in which he shut himself up when out at work in bad weather. Another was the caramita, or caraca, or casaca, 'the cassock,' brought by the Emperor who derived his own surname from it, when he introduced it from France. The 'surplice' is the barbarous garment, the 'over-fur,' (superpellicium), only used in the North, where it was drawn over the skins of beasts in which our German and Celtic ancestors were clothed. It was the common garb—the 'white coat' (cotta candida)—worn by the regular clergy not only in church, but in ordinary life. In the oldest Roman mosaic, that in the church of Sta. Pudenziana, of the fourth century, the Apostles are represented in the common classical costume of the age. No thought had entered the mind of the Church, even at that time, of investing even the most sacred personages with any other than ordinary dresses.

In like manner, when we pass from the first origin of these vestments to their retention by the Reformers of the English Church, although they had lost this primitive character, they were still merely kept up for decency or for comeliness. These reasons alone are advanced as the grounds for the use of the surplice, and the 'decent cope' in cathedrals is to be confined to the 'principal minister' of the chapter at the Communion. If it was extended further by custom, it was merely for the sake of additional splendor. So the Dean and Prebendaries of Westminster Abbey have at the coronations always worn copes, not to symbolize any particular office or part of the service, but to be in harmony with the general magnificence of the procession. So Archbishop Williams dressed up in copes, not merely the officiating ministers, but all the 'quiro men,' lay as well as clerical, in order to increase the pomp of the reception of the French ambassadors.

The bishops immediately before the Reformation wore copes not only in their episcopal ministrations, but in Parliament. The episcopal 'rocket' is simply 'a little coat' (rocket) worn by the bishops at that time on all occasions, except when they went out hunting (primus manibus); and the satin 'chiton' the loose gown or scarf, 'the cymar' worn by ladies, or by sons of quality in riding.

If, by some unlucky chance, fashion of these red and green vestments should spread, there would be an obstacle, in principle, to their adoption by the most latitudinarian, the most Puritan of our divines. Nay, even in the High Church itself, we have seen how such badges change their meaning. The surplice, for which even ten years ago, clergymen were willing to endanger the peace of their parishes, is now by the representatives of the very same church denounced as 'a white frock-rag of Protestantism.' Now a change of feeling confined to upholders of ritualism. After the well known disturbance at St. George's in the East, an old man, was observed straining eyes to see what color was worn by the new clergyman, who emerged from the vestry last on his appearance in the preaching-gown, she burst into tears, and exclaimed, 'Thank it is black!' Had the same old creature lived to our days, might have been disposed, at the sight of the common surplice, to exclaim, 'Thank God, it is black!'

Therefore we repeat that legislation on these affairs ofinery, however necessary it may last become in order to clear up ambiguity of a law left by the erroneous framers in designed obscurity, will touch but a very small part of the matter. These garments, true, have been made symbols of doctrines and practices with which they have no connexion; but doctrines and the practices which main even if the garments are moved, just as the doctrines and practices might perish even if garments were retained.—Edinburgh Review.

WESTMINSTER GREAT CLOCK.—Impossible to overrate the value of a reliable knowledge of time in all great centers of industry; and yet, although times daily through London to parts of the country, from the people of London have (with exception) few clocks on which can implicitly rely. The clock in the Palace at Westminster, for although so costly a production, it turns out, as respects accuracy, to be perhaps the finest of the kind in the world. Telegraph communication with Greenwich for the purpose of enabling clock to report automatically every day to the Astronomical Observatory; the Greenwich record, fore, demonstrates the goodness of the machine. It is not allowed to deviate more than two seconds true time and we are told in the Astronomer-royal's report, "the rate of the clock may be ascertained to be much less than one second per week." While consider what is the duration of second of time, and that a huge machine is able to perform a week within that limit, we well marvel at the result, as it does the advance made in chronology. The clock, trying the various trains of work, is 15 1/2 feet long, and 1 1/2 inches wide; the pendulum, makes one vibration in two seconds, weighs between six and seven hundred weight; the dial, of there are four, and which are illuminated at night, are each in diameter, and it is a day for a man to wind the clock up, going and striking parts.—Chronicle.

SUBSTITUTE FOR RAILROAD.—The foreign paper says that the increasing dearth of crosses has led to a plan, now being tried, which the necessity of their use is avoided. The rails employ nine inches high (instead of the little narrow on the top, and three-fourths of an inch broad) the bottom than the ordinary twenty-four feet long and one hundred zoll-pounds each in weight. They are buried five inches in the ground, which is covered with a layer of earth, so that only the rail remains above ground. The rails are connected with the usual way, and the two ends of the tracks are fastened together by iron braces. It is claimed that construction is as safe as the use of cross-ties. Whether it is economical time alone will show.

The cathedral lately destroyed at Frankfurt was the most beautiful church edifice in Germany, of count of its historical associations. The German Emperors have been crowned in it for ages.

GOLD FISH.—The Hudson River has become so full of "gold fish" that fishermen take them by the load.

O. Christian Advocate.

REV. FIELDING BELL.

BIOGRAPHICAL.

BELL.—I am the bearer of the Louisiana Conference and will answer to his name. Dr. Fielding Bell died in on Wednesday evening, the at about 6 o'clock in the month year of his age, and of his ministry. Accord- your custom, you will doubt- to embalm his memory in- memoir, to be filed with Conference records, for the use committee. I submit the fol- dates and observations with

Dr. Bell was born June 19th, first year of this century, in County, Virginia. The first year of his age were spent under the direction of and in the association of his brothers and sisters. He was moved by an overpower- ing love, unknown to the family, without notice, and Baltimore. Assuming at age the entire control of it is a wonder that he was not swept away by a peculiarly strong current of an unsophisticated boy- ingness necessarily en- in a large strange city. Inspired by some noble and as if armed by some power against the conse- of a rash act, he at once himself to work, and chose employment the stone-cutting

In his application he de- a taste for the ornamental of the trade and made that a ally. He worked on the Washington Monument in Wash- ington City, and there, by his skill economy, earned and saved money to enter and complete course of studies in St. Mary's Maryland. He then accept- agency for a publishing and in the meantime applied to the study of medicine. In moved to and formally en- the practice of medicine Mo. In 1834 he married, and three daughters sur- their loss. In 1839, Floydsburg, Ky. Having the Methodist Episcopal several years previous, he for and received license to and lucrative profession regular work of the minis- Kentucky Conference—in regard of the precarious awarded to a traveling To meet his current expen- at several intervals been to fall back upon the pro- teaching; this he could do auspices of the Confer- 1860, he transferred to the conference and settled in Natchez, where he has and a sister buried.

Louisiana Conference he with a new mission colored people in Concordia Here he labored from year until hostilities between the and south culminated in the organization of the planta- and only after the colored abandoned their homes, did to necessity and sought in engagements, to eke out a for his family. As soon as he closed, he turned to his fa- employment teaching, and re- from the Conference the ap- to Waterproof and St Though receiving but scanty and the promise of improve- weak indeed he continued with hope until the floods away. During the highest of the waters he visited and with his family, but evi- nautical, for his desire to be work was consuming. En- by increasing age and a se- attack of swamp fever through he had barely passed a year, he returned as soon as left bare the floor of his room, which was also his bed- and his church. Here he lived until prostrated by an- attack of that dreadful fever, making ascertaining his condi- his family. It was then that the painful truth, so long con- cealed, leaked out; the aged ser- vant of God, a martyr of Christ, al- though pining for the presence of his family, had neither means to come himself nor to send for one of them. At the age of 67 years, hav- ing labored 27 years in the ministry, he was literally empty handed, and came within a few hours of dying unattended by one of those who lay so near to his aged and troubled heart. As it was, his daughter Minnie reached there in time to re- call the light to his eyes and hope to his heart. He came home with her to die in a few minutes after he reached here, without recognizing any one. On his venerable face lay a map of trouble; every feature, though in the repose of death, revealed the anxieties that broke him down. Ut- terly forgetful of himself, his heart yearned only for his wife and chil- dren, and because he saw want en- croaching every moment, in despite of his exertions, he sank exhausted of hope and of energy, exclaiming, "God will provide." Oh, can it be that this last hope he breathed will fail also? The church here took charge of his precious remains, he was borne to the church and in the presence of a deeply sympathizing congregation the funeral services were read. Brother Burgess a Cum- berland Presbyterian minister offer- ing prayer, the pastor of the church and Dr. Stratton of the Presby- terian Church, addressed the congre- gation, paying suitable tributes to the memory of Bro. Bell. The re- marks of Dr. Stratton were pecu- liarly affecting, honorable alike to him- self and to the dead. All was done in this way that could be done by the church and community to soothe the feelings of the bereaved and to give christian interment to the re- mains of our dear brother.

Pardon me for having written so much. I have repressed my feelings and limited my notes to those events which serve to connect his history after an ordinary pattern; but you can see at a glance that the char- acter of Dr. Bell was made up of extraordinary qualities, and if some one better acquainted with him than I am, does not make a proper sketch of his life, character and ser- vices, a labor of love, I shall re- serve to myself the privilege of do- ing so at some future time.

Yours in profoundest sympathy,
W. E. M. LINFIELD.
Natchez, Miss., Aug. 29th, 1867

THE MODEL WOMAN.

The analysis of human character is both a difficult and delicate task. When perfection is the standard, and the object is to exhibit such traits as may present to our lady readers a faultless model for their admiration and imitation, the diffi- culty is not diminished, and the delicacy is really enhanced. I yield to no man in my high appreciation of female character, and yet I enter with diffidence upon my self-imposed task.

Strength of character is the first great attribute of the model woman. By this, I do not mean that woman is to unsex herself, that she is mad- ly to leave the sphere for which God designed her, and to seek em- ployment and distinction in the walks designed alone for man. I wish never to see our Southern women claiming the right to vote, at- tending "Women's Rights Con- ventions" lecturing in public halls, seeking political distinction, and, with masculine energy, meeting man in public debate, either in the forum or on the hustings. I hope that, with all the Yankee notions imported to the "new South," this at least may be left to freeze or flourish in its own native home, beneath its bleak New England sky. Nor do I mean stubbornness—the peculiar disposition which distinguishes the mule. A mule is a very useful animal, but is not exactly my ideal of a perfect woman. A stubborn woman, who, when she sets her head to any thing will listen to no counsel, but goes forward blindly, right or wrong, is far from being the impersonation of all loveliness.

A woman of strong character retreats as gracefully, when neces- sary, as she advances vigorously in the cause of right. She possesses unyielding firmness, earnest de- cision, unflinching fidelity, invincible perseverance in the path of duty, heroic self-denial, unwavering at- tachment to the cause of right, truth, and virtue, and irresistible power to meet and overcome difficulties, to resist temptation, and to rise above the fascinations of pleasure and the allurements of vice. Strength of character implies power to act when action is necessary, and power to say no when solicited to neglect duty or to violate principle. It is equally removed from fickleness on the one hand, and from stubborn- ness on the other. It is as remote from recklessness as it is free from timidity. It is beautifully illustra- ted in the conduct and language of Ruth to Naomi: "And Ruth said, Entreat me not to leave thee, or to return from following after thee, for whither thou goest I will go, and where thou lodgest I will lodge: thy people shall be my people, and thy God my God. Where thou diest will I die, and there will I be buried." Language more beautiful and appropriate could not have been interred to express a fixed determi- nation to go forward in the path of duty.

Grandly, sublimely did this virtue shine in the character of our South- ern women during the dark night of the revolution. It enabled them to bear solitude, to endure priva- tions, to give up luxuries, to surren- der wealth, and to yield their noble sons, their heroic husbands, their brave brothers, and venerable sires to the fierce storm of war. And now that defeat has come, and the noble banner is furled for ever; now that poverty and reproach, despot- ism and ruin, have followed the carnage of battle and the desola- tions of war; now that the strong arm of military power rules the South; and every real man speaks with bated breath, while he almost envies the thousands of brave dead that sleep in unmarked graves; now that we must leave to history to do justice to our cause, and to rescue from the infamy of treason the names of our dead patriots and our living heroes; now that all is lost except honor; how needful is strength of character to bear the terrible memories of the past, the accumulated horrors of the present, and the gloomy anticipations of the future!

Another attribute of the model woman is prudence. She governs her temper and rules her tongue. She takes no delight in gossiping, and never separates very friends. She kindles no destructive fires in the neighborhood, and spies no "street yarns." She does not whis- per in willing ears the faults of others, and she neither reveals secrets nor promotes quarrels. Her mission is not to disturb the peace of society, nor destroy the harmony of families, and when she goes abroad it is not to scatter fire- brands, arrows, and death. Pru- dence dwelleth upon her tongue, and seasoneth her speech. The heart of her husband doth safely trust in her, and her father hath no need to put a guard upon her lips. By prudent counsel, she stays the progress of strife, and allays the storm which folly has raised.

The young look to her for advice, and the aged take sweet counsel with her. The tongue of slander is silent in her presence, and the lips of falsehood are closed. By wise words and irreproachable conduct, she attracts the admiration of the wise and good, and puts to shame such as would seek to injure her good name.

The model woman is industrious. She eateth not the bread of idleness. A lazy woman is intolerable to man and a disgrace to her own sex. Her slatternly dress, her hair unkempt, her house in confusion, and her children in rags, all tell a tale of mingled sadness and disgust. But the industrious woman, with an eye quick to discover what is want- ed, and a hand active and ready to do whatever it findeth to do, is ever constant in attention to duty, looks well to the ways of her household, and meets with cheerfulness and energy the responsibilities and labors of life. Jesus says: "My Father worketh hitherto, and I work." Labor is the great law of the moral world. Faith works, love labors, hope purifies, justice toils, and mercy moves on angel wings to bring blessings to man. Industry wards off disease, imparts the hue of health, is the best beautifier of form and countenance, gives courage to the heart, vivacity to the dwelling, and thought to the family. Often the industry of the wife and mother is not appreciated until the vacant seat, the no longer busy needle, and, above all, the wails of orphan children, tell of the sad, sad loss!

In these times of sadness and gloom, when the country is so im- poverished, when haggard want is retching upon thousands of poor, misplanning sufferers, when hundreds of noble countenances are pined by famine, and many, once in affluence, have been turned out to poverty and die of starvation, it well becomes our matrons and maidens to ply themselves with unlagging energy to the tasks of life.

Dr. K. H. RIVERS.

The French Geographical Society are about sending another exploring expedition to the Arctic regions for making scientific observations.

Washington Correspondence of the Boston Post.

A TALK WITH PRESIDENT JOHN- SON.

WHY HE SUPERSEDED STANTON AND HIS REASONS FOR REMOVING SHERIDAN.

In a pleasant conversation of some length with President Johnson, I remarked that he was charged with having removed Mr. Stanton in order to obstruct the execution of the Reconstruction acts of Congress.

He asked what Mr. Stanton had to do with the execution or non-ex- ecution of the acts? These acts cen- tered the power in the hands of Gen. Grant, and he had placed Grant over the War Department. He could not understand how the change could be construed in a purpose to defeat the proper execution of the recon- struction laws. The President further remarked that at one time General Grant strongly intimated that unless Mr. Stanton was removed he should be compelled to leave here, as he could be of no possible use in view of Mr. Stanton's over- bearing and dictatorial conduct. The President advised him to have a talk with the Secretary of War, and perhaps they would understand each other better. He agreed, how- ever, with the General, that Mr. Stanton ought to be removed, and he then inquired of Gen. Grant if he would take charge of the Department in the event of a change. The latter promptly expressed his entire wil- lingness to do so.

I then told him that the same charge was made against him for removing Gen. Sheridan, and that many supposed his purpose was to prevent a due execution of the law.

This he thought was quite as ab- surd as the other, as the law was the same whether Thomas or Sheri- dan was in command. What differ- ence could it make who executed the law? Could any one question the ability or the patriotism of Gen. Thomas?

I then asked why Gen. Sheridan was removed.

Mr. Johnson said there were two good causes, but only one had been considered; the first one was rather of a personal character, and had been overlooked. The telegram of the 23d of June, which was so dis- respectful to the Executive, had been claimed by Gen. Grant to be a pri- vate telegram to himself, and that no official notice of its existence had ever yet reached the President. But the second ground for the removal of Gen. Sheridan was the exercise of powers he did not possess, and the exercise of his legitimate powers in an arbitrary and offensive manner.

I asked if he would be kind en- ough to designate what acts he in- chined under the latter clause.

He said the removal of Governor Wells was entirely dualled for and unjustifiable. Governor Wells had placed at Gen. Sheridan's disposal the whole civil machinery of the State to aid him in the execution of the reconstruction acts. Nor had the latter ever indicated or pointed out a single act or word of the Gov- ernor which was calculated to em- barrass him in the proper execution of his duty. On the other hand, Gen. Sheridan had endeavored to execute the law as a partisan, and had adopted radicalism as the only true test of loyalty. His sole purpose seemed to be to secure negro su- premacy and degrade the whites, and for such conduct I deemed it my duty to relieve him from that com- mand.

I inquired if he did not think Gov- ernor Throckmorton had attempted to thwart the General in a proper execution of the law.

He answered emphatically, "No, sir; the records prove the reverse. The Governor of Texas also placed the whole civil machinery of his State at the disposal of the military power, and aided it in every way possible, except in the manufacture of a Radical minority of voters and in securing negro supremacy. This was Gov. Throckmorton's sinning, and for which he was arbitrarily re- moved by Gen. Sheridan."

I said to the President that his views as to the proper execution of the reconstruction acts were not clearly understood by the people, and that I would like to hear them.

He answered that he could answer them in a few words. He desired a fair registration of all qualified vot- ers, without regard to race or color. He did not wish to give any advan- tage to the white men, but much less was he disposed to make them the slaves of the negroes. Where the negroes had the majority, as in South Carolina, he wished them to exercise the power; where the white vote was in the majority, as in Texas, he desired that white ma- jority to control. He wanted only the law to be fairly executed, with equal chances to all. This was being denied them by Gen. Sheridan, and his manner and mode of acting was fast familiarizing the people with the tyranny of despotic gov- ernment.

I remarked that the public would not be able to understand why he struck down despotism in one depart- ment, and yet suffered it to continue in another.

He replied that other changes would be likely to follow very soon.

A proper investigation was now being made into the conduct of one or two other commanders who, it was charged, were playing the au- tocrat. The President expressed the greatest apprehension as to the future of our government, yet said he still relied on the good sense and patriotism of the people. In his speech in the United States Senate, in December, 1860, Mr. Johnson said he had denounced the party who would "break up the Government in order to preserve slavery; and he had also denounced those who would destroy the Government in order to abolish slavery. He was equally opposed to both extremes now, and his only wish was for a speedy re- turn of fraternal relations among the States.

ANNUAL REVIEW.

In compliance with annual custom, we submit to our readers the following review of the various markets of New Orleans, for the year which expires to-day.—Commercial Bulletin.

The cause for determining the 31st of August as the close of the commercial year, that it is about the middle of the interven- ing period between the completion of the receipts of our leading staple for the old year and the commencement of those of the new, is more than usually apparent at the present time. Our stock of Cotton is re- duced to a very low point, the receipts of old crop are extremely light, and the new may be regarded as having just made its appearance. During this interval between the two seasons, it is not unprofitable for us to glance back over the year that has just closed, mark the course of our trade—in a word, review the markets. We shall do so as briefly as possible. But before proceeding to the details of the leading articles which constitute our trade, a few reflections, suggested by the occasion, may not be irrelevant.

Our commerce must still be regarded as in a transition state. Slowly recovering from the effects of the war, trade has not yet returned to its old channels. Our re- cuperation, nevertheless, goes on steadily, though slowly. The increase of business from year to year affords abundant reason to hope for a continuous amelioration for years to come. We are not so sanguine as to hope that Cotton will ever again have the regal power it formerly possessed. Four and a half million crops have vanish- ed, perhaps never to reappear. But it should not be overlooked that it is as un- likely that prices should return to their old level. Hence the values realized from our actual yield may continue to exceed those of the large crops picked under the old regime. Independently of the staple, however, we have the prospect of a great increase in our trade from the surplus pro- ducts of the West, when its fertile prairies shall be cultivated by double their present population, and their exuberant harvests find a market or an outlet at this port. The populous Atlantic cities may increase, as they have increased, more rapidly than our own, but our progress must, neverthe- less, be sufficiently rapid to satisfy the aspirations of any reasonable mind.

This feeling of confidence in the future prevails among most of our business men. Even those who are despondent with regard to politics, regard the welfare of New Orleans as only a question of time, and expect that the period will eventually ar- rive when whatever is unsettled will be settled; when the relations of capital and labor will be equitably determined; when, seeking its level, capital will flow into New Orleans as the great Southern financial center; and when Agriculture, Manu- factures and Commerce will unite in augmen- ting our population and wealth. Were it not for this, rents might well be regarded as absurdly extravagant, and valuations of real estate as fictitious.

In comparing our receipts with last year's, we find a substantial increase in Sugar, Molasses, Rice, Corn, Cornmeal, Hay, Pork, Bacon, Lard, Bulk Meat, and some minor articles. Our exports have also been enlarged, but not to the same extent. The bulk of the supply of nearly every article of subsistence for man or beast has been required for home consumption. The country was, in fact, quite bare of many articles, and most planters had neglected the raising of corn, to devote their entire available force to what was supposed to be the more profitable culture of Cotton. They have now discovered their error in this particular, and whatever may be the yield of the staple, there are few of them who do not anticipate sufficient crops of Corn and Oats to make them independent of Western grown grain.

The increase of our trade—the recovery of that which had been diverted from us by the interior lines of railway commu- cation between the Northwest and the Northeast—the lessening of freights and port charges with this view—above all the cheapening and improvement of river trans- portation, have for years occupied the attention of the city press; but at no former period has more attention been devoted to the subject. The Cham- ber of Commerce, the Merchants' Ex- change, the new Commercial and Industrial Club, have all made it a prominent topic in their action and discussions, and the press has preceded them in commenting upon it. In at least one particular our former aspirations in this direction have been realized in the establishment of a large transportation line from St. Louis, which we have reason to believe has proved remunerative to its enterprising projectors. Perhaps before the lapse of another year we shall witness grain by these boats trans- ported in bulk, and transferred by elevators to sea-going vessels, thus reducing the charge of forwarding through this port to its minimum point. Many other topics relating to the improvement of our trade have attracted public attention, not, we hope, without practical results. Such, for example, as the removal of the obstructions at the passes, which have long been a serious injury to our commerce, was brought prominently before the River Con- vention at St. Louis, by delegates from our Merchants' Exchange, that it collected the earnest support of that body, whose influ- ence in Congress can hardly fail to accom- plish its purpose.

COTTON.—The following table gives the receipts at this port and the total crop for the past ten years:

| Year. | Receipts at N. O. | Total Crop. |
|----------|-------------------|---------------|
| 1857-58. | 1,678,616 | 3,113,962 |
| 1858-59. | 1,774,293 | 3,851,401 |
| 1859-60. | 2,255,448 | 4,675,870 |
| 1860-61. | 1,849,312 | 3,699,525 |
| 1861-62. | 33,880 | No record. |
| 1862-63. | 22,078 | |
| 1863-64. | 131,044 | |
| 1864-65. | 271,015 | |
| 1865-66. | 787,386 | Est'd 500,000 |
| 1866-67. | 780,496 | 1,600,000 |

The following table shows the prices of good ordinary and low middling at the commencement of each month, during the commercial year.

| 1866. | Good Ord. | Low Mid. |
|--------|------------------|------------------|
| Sept. | 29 to 31 | 33 to 34 |
| Oct. | 36 to 37 | 39 to 40 |
| Nov. | 33 1/2 to 34 1/2 | 35 1/2 to 36 1/2 |
| Dec. | 29 to 30 | 31 to 32 |
| Jan. | 29 1/2 to 30 1/2 | 31 to 32 1/2 |
| Feb. | 29 to 30 | 30 to 31 |
| March. | 27 1/2 to 28 1/2 | 29 to 30 |
| April. | 27 to 28 | 28 to 29 |
| May. | 23 to 24 | 26 to 27 |
| June. | 22 to 23 1/2 | 24 to 25 |
| July. | 20 1/2 to 21 | 22 1/2 to 23 1/2 |
| Aug. | 23 to 24 | 25 1/2 to 26 1/2 |
| Sept. | 22 to 23 | 24 to 25 |

SUGAR.—Prices have ruled during the year at from 9 to 14 1/2 c. for fair to fully fair.

The nominal quotation at the commen- cement of the year was 14 1/2 to 15 c., but the market was nearly bare, and nothing was done of any moment until the appear- ance of the new crop. The first receipts were on October 27, from the parish of St. John the Baptist, which was ten days ear- lier than in 1865. In November the receipts became more liberal, and the market fairly opened at 13 to 13 1/2 c. for fair to fully fair, but as supplies increased, soon declined to 9 1/2 c. for fair, and 10 1/2 c. for fully fair. In December prices stiffened, recovering about 1/2 c. of the previous de- cline, after which there was no material change up to the close of the month, when fair was quoted at 9 to 9 1/2 c., and fully fair at 10 1/2 to 10 3/4 c. The movement in January was the most active of the year. The receipts were liberal, but under a brim- demand for the West, prices advanced during the first fortnight 1/2 to 3/4 c., and subsequently, under the expectation of a material falling off in the supplies, 2 to 2 1/2 c.; fair commanding 12 1/2 to 13 c., and fully fair 13 1/2 c. The bulk of the crop was now in. Prices advanced 1/2 to 3/4 c., but soon receded to their previous position. The business season may be regarded as having expired in February. A moderate jobbing business was done in March, April and May, most of the time at previous rates, but at rather easier prices towards the close, fair to fully fair ruling at 12 1/2 to 13. During the past three months the business has been confined to retail trans- actions.

The Annual Statement of Mr. Cham- pier gives the following as the crops for the thirteen years ending 1861-2. We add the only accessible statistics since:

| 1849-50. | 1850-1. | 1851-2. | 1852-3. | 1853-4. | 1854-5. | 1855-6. | 1856-7. | 1857-8. | 1858-9. | 1859-60. | 1860-1. | 1861-2. | 1862-3. | 1863-4. | 1864-5. | 1865-6. | 1866-7. |
|----------|---------|---------|---------|---------|---------|---------|---------|---------|---------|----------|---------|---------|---------|---------|---------|---------|---------|
| 247,923 | 211,303 | 236,540 | 321,937 | 449,329 | 346,626 | 231,497 | 73,976 | 279,697 | 362,296 | 321,840 | 223,753 | 459,410 | 87,227 | 75,401 | 9,806 | 17,895 | 39,000 |

STOCK.—The receipts of stock from Sept. 1st 1866, to Aug. 31st 1867, were: Western Beesves.....2,933 Texas.....64,326 Hogs.....21,973 Sheep.....50,785 Milch Cows.....1,639 Calves and Yearlings.....39,275

RECEIPTS FROM THE INTERIOR IN THE YEAR ENDING ON THE 31st AUGUST.

ARTICLES. 1866-67. 1865-66. 1864-65.

| | | | |
|---------------------------|---------|---------|---------|
| Apples.....bbls. | 86334 | 69332 | 67426 |
| Bacon, salt cks., &c. | 35688 | 18243 | 45012 |
| Bacon—bbls. & bcs. | 5231 | 2289 | 5082 |
| Bacon Hams—bbls. | 25263 | 14307 | 37316 |
| Bacon in bulk—bbls. | 37900 | 17740 | 39600 |
| Bacon—pieces..... | 6847 | 3542 | 21427 |
| Beef—cans..... | 25103 | 49240 | 124238 |
| Beef.....bbls. | 3285 | 6312 | 8389 |
| Butter.....kegs—32720 | 16990 | 38345 | |
| Butter.....bbls. | 373 | 610 | 1500 |
| Butter.....sacks. | 27163 | 19474 | 27437 |
| Beef.....bbls. & tes. | 3398 | 6288 | 44268 |
| Beef, dried.....bbls. | 3750 | 4300 | 93728 |
| Cattle.....bales. | 780490 | 787860 | 2255448 |
| Cotton Seed, sacks—177332 | 94172 | | |
| Corn in ears.....bbls. | 230 | 27299 | 36002 |
| Corn, shelled, sacks. | 270925 | 209176 | 172959 |
| Cheese.....boxes. | 63067 | 55273 | 110465 |
| Candles.....bbls. | 71737 | 64210 | 110465 |
| Coal, western, bbls. | 3123510 | 1239515 | 2900000 |
| Flax Seed, bbls. | 15566 | 148 | 70 |
| Flaxseed.....bbls. | 54 | 10 | 11327 |
| Flour.....bbls. | 322125 | 99333 | 974540 |
| Feathers.....bags | 405 | 141 | 925 |
| Glassware.....boxes—14435 | 5240 | 68879 | |
| Hemp.....bales—1220 | 856 | 4882 | |
| Hops.....bbls. | 106975 | 7490 | 163368 |
| Iron.....bales | 41546 | 129131 | 152639 |
| Iron, Pig.....tons. | 3060 | 1963 | 643 |
| Leather.....bundles—7036 | 6229 | 6115 | |
| Lard.....tes & bbls—32377 | 21272 | 63740 | |
| Lard.....kegs—3738 | 27012 | 90659 | |
| Lime, western, bbls. | 26997 | 20325 | 33143 |
| Lead.....bbls. | 504 | 370 | 8095 |
| Lead bar.....kegs. | 2514 | 183 | 1653 |
| Molasses.....bbls. | 57474 | 27403 | 31340 |
| Oats.....bbls. & sacks | 576537 | 621432 | 638559 |
| Onions.....bbls. | 26630 | 35315 | 24048 |
| Oil, Lard.....bbls. | 348 | 1283 | 333 |
| Potatoes.....bbls. | 221742 | 255718 | 27658 |
| Pork.....tes & bbls. | 150119 | 75647 | 216223 |
| Pork.....hides. | 11038 | 716 | 874 |
| Pork in bulk.....bbls. | 918330 | 271140 | 280380 |
| Packing Yarns..... | 126 | 465 | 5748 |
| Rice.....sacks. | 24011 | 20575 | |
| Rosin.....bbls. | 6403 | 18711 | |
| Skim, Deer.....pcks. | 114 | 98 | 1542 |
| Shot.....kegs. | 1993 | 2286 | 4012 |
| Sugar.....bbls. | 38214 | 17885 | 193185 |
| Sugar.....bbls. | 757 | 919 | 48 |
| Soap.....boxes—26089 | 5121 | 12327 | |
| Staples.....M. | 3115 | 1598 | 7000 |
| Staves.....M. | 2750 | 2510 | 10478 |
| Tallow.....bbls. | 338 | 418 | 1855 |
| Tallow, leaf, hides. | 2107 | 1512 | 6085 |
| Tolacoe, chew-bks. | 30330 | 38111 | 14842 |
| Twine.....bundles. | 2401 | 1541 | 2500 |
| Wheat.....sacks. | 565 | 630 | 15116 |
| Wool.....bags | 2919 | 3063 | |

Official Organ of the Montgomery, Mobile, Mississippi, and Louisiana Conferences of the M. E. Church South.
Office: 112 Camp Street.

TERMS OF SUBSCRIPTION:
THREE DOLLARS A YEAR.
Invariably in Advance.
Address: REV. J. C. KEENER,
112 Camp Street, New Orleans.

AGENTS:
At the Members of the Patronizing Conferences

PUBLISHING COMMITTEES.

FOR MOBILE CONFERENCE:
Rev. J. Hamilton, D.D.,
Rev. A. H. Mitchell, D.D.,
Rev. Thos. W. Dorman, D.D.

FOR MONTGOMERY CONFERENCE:
Rev. H. S. Andrews,
Rev. William A. Shepard,
Rev. J. B. Cottrell.

FOR MISSISSIPPI CONFERENCE:
Rev. W. H. Watkins, D.D.,
Rev. H. H. Montgomery,
Rev. William F. Barton.

FOR LOUISIANA CONFERENCE:
Rev. J. C. Keener, D.D.,
Rev. J. B. Walker, D.D.,
Rev. Linus Parker.

New Orleans:
SATURDAY, SEPT. 7, 1867.

To SUBSCRIBERS.—Any person wishing to subscribe for this paper can do so, by paying the Methodist preacher in the circuit, and forwarding to us his receipt for three dollars, with the address of the subscriber upon it, stating Post office, State, Circuit, and Conference. The receipt ought to be taken in duplicate.

CENTENARY COLLEGE, JACKSON, LA.
On the FIRST MONDAY IN OCTOBER, the Fall term of this Institution commences. The number of its graduates, filling important trusts and places in every parish of our State, is sufficient alone to commend it to all who wish their sons to be educated for honorable distinction; and careful citizenship in Louisiana. A young man while availing himself of the advantages of attending upon the instructions of its able Faculty, will have also the opportunity of making the acquaintance of the sons of many influential citizens of the State. To one who expects to make Louisiana his home, this is an important consideration. We have had occasion to observe in more than one instance, that public men were greatly indebted for success to the fact of having been taught in schools at home, in association with those who came afterward to be the substantial men of their native State; and on the other hand, we have seen those who had been sent away from home, and educated at Harvard, Yale, or elsewhere, fail as public men for want of these home surroundings, sympathies, and acquaintances. The cost of tuition and boarding are as reasonable at Jackson, as in any part of the South-west. The Faculty is composed of gentlemen well known, and favorably, as educators; and the President, the Rev. Dr. Watkins, is a worthy successor of the able and accomplished gentlemen, who, as Presidents, have from the beginning of its history given character to this College.

"THE ADVANCE," is the title of a religious newspaper, just published in Chicago—No. 25 Lombard block, price $2 50 per annum. This is a Western "Independent" representing the same sort of people and interests in the West, that were represented by that paper in the East. It is to be the spokesman of the "Churches of the Interior," who inherit and prize the faith and polity of the Pilgrim Fathers. "It represents," in the language of the Editor, "the onward spirit of true religion, and the peculiar genius of Christianity in its Protestant and Puritan development." In a word, to carry Plymouth Rock principles Westward, and to plant "free churches of an ecclesiastical democracy" Southward, is the work which this Journal marks out for itself. It is well for our Southern people to read what the North really designs toward the South, as set forth in their intense Radical Puritan organs; and they cannot find, possibly, a more decidedly pronounced medium than the "Advance."

The tax paid by the city of New Orleans to the State of Louisiana, for the year ending Sept. 30, 1867, amounts to $901,017 25.

COLORED DIRECTORS.

The action of the City Council which placed ten negroes in the Board of Public School Directors has met with a temporary check. The ordinance, it seems, though declared "carried," lacked one vote of the requisite two-thirds majority of the Aldermen, and was not signed by the presiding officer. Upon this and other grounds the present Board of Directors applied to one of the City Judges for a writ of quo warranto. This was granted and served upon the mixed Board. The whole was speedily referred to Gen. Sheridan, but he refused to assume the responsibility of extricating his bungling Aldermen from their own irregular legislation. Possibly the General has taken a second look at the situation, and was willing to afford all concerned an opportunity of reflecting upon the full significance of an act which places thousands of white school children under the control and guidance of black men. In the 2d District, of the six Directors but one is white. That any such madness as this will find apology even among the most decided of the Republican party in the North we do not believe. The great mass of the people there—the working people—both native, German, and Irish, do not sympathize with the negro to the exclusion of the white man, and they are far, very far, from having their children forced into association, or close contact with those of the black man. Common sense, and the deepest instincts of our nature suggest that it is for the good of both races that the lines of social separateness be kept as distinct as Nature has drawn them. No one but a weak friend, or a very decided enemy of the black man, could counsel any other policy. So long as the colored man affects only that position in society which he is able to fill, he will be cheerfully recognized as worthy of all respect; he will be treated justly, generously, and with the consideration due to his sphere: but when he allows himself to be used as a cat's paw by designing men, he may pull the chesnuts out of the fire, but will most assuredly be burned. No true friend of the negro can desire to see him put in authority over white men. He is, and must continue to be, the laboring man of the South, because he is not fitted either by talents, education, or enterprise, for any thing higher. To be placed where the public opinion of the world cannot sympathize with him, but rather revolts at the sight of him, can contribute only to his confusion and final complete overthrow. He may well ask to be delivered from men who seek his services while they compass his ruin.

No one can, or does, object to the organization of Public Schools for the children of colored people. This is not only right, but necessary for the good of the whole community both white and black. And we believe if the colored people were let alone, they would have good sense enough to see that separate schools are better for them than any other, and that nothing can come of forcing them upon the white schools, but a great deal of bad blood, of which they alone will be the ultimate victims.

It is evident that this attempt to Africanize the whole country by Africanizing the South politically and socially, already attracts the attention of the masses throughout the States of the North. They begin to ask, "whereunto will this thing grow"? Whatever may be the sins of the South, or the desire to punish her, they have no mind to inflict humiliation upon themselves by giving to the negro the control of the Senate of the United States; which, in effect, will be done if the ten Southern States are registered for the negro, and another State carved out of Texas, and Missouri, Kentucky, Tennessee and Maryland all, upon the plea of giving them a republican government, be put on the Brown-low status. They are willing in regard to the colored man, to go as far as Gov. Helm, of Kentucky, but no farther. He says:

"We should treat them humanely and kindly, and strive to better their condition and make them useful citizens. They must understand, however, that the white man will rule Kentucky. We are not yet sunk so low as to be governed by the negro."

They begin to see that with negroes at the wheel, there is every prospect of an irretrievable disaster: In the language of the editor of the Round Table:

"It is as well that we should be borne on swiftly to the struggle that is to save us from the abyss—that American men should be driven from the polls to make room for slaves by birth or slaves by nature; that every unseemly thing should be exalted, and every provision of nature distorted; that the utter intolerableness of it all should appear beyond possibility of concealment; so that, seeing the foulness of this bastard democracy, we may extricate ourselves from its current, and save ourselves and our country from the wreck."

THE YELLOW FEVER.

By the Mortuary Report it will be seen that this scourge is on the increase. We advise our friends not to come to the city—too many unacclimated persons are here already. The weather continues wet, and the alternation of hot suns and cool nights develop the disease. Believing that yellow fever is always communicated by person or thing, that it moves in the direction of travel and not against it, we caution all strangers against unnecessary exposure; do not attend funerals; do not go out in the heat of the day, or stand about in the night air; do not sleep in a draught of air, or with insufficient bed clothing; eat temperately, and avoid all dissipation and late hours. Do not take any "preventatives," or quack medicines; do not call in anybody when by going a step farther, you can have an experienced physician. Do not procure any but the best nurse—to save a little money. Remember that yellow fever is a critical disease from its incipency until some time after its cure, critical every moment; therefore it is foolish to be governed by one's own notions of it, from reading, and from comparison with former attacks of fever, when the knowledge of those who know it is barely sufficient to watch and to control its symptoms. Do not occupy a room in a warehouse where no fire can be kindled, or ordinary appliances can be had for the comfort and successful treatment of a patient. Thousands of young men have lost their lives in this city, by sleeping alone up stairs in store-houses, or where there were no conveniences for good nursing, and a prompt and early application of remedies. Above all, go to Church, read the Word of God, fulfil your vows to Him, repent heartily of your sins, pray for faith in the Saviour, and do not put off sending for the minister until your disease almost precludes the messenger, or mercy from your bedside.

Dr. Dirmeyer, Secretary of the Board of Health, furnishes the following daily report of deaths in the city, beginning with Aug. 12th, at 6 A. M.:

| Date | Yellow Fever. | Cholera. | Other Diseases. | Total. |
|-------------|---------------|----------|-----------------|--------|
| Aug. 12.... | 5 | 0 | 26 | 31 |
| " 13.... | 2 | 1 | 27 | 30 |
| " 14.... | 5 | 1 | 31 | 37 |
| " 15.... | 1 | 1 | 22 | 24 |
| " 16.... | 1 | 1 | 33 | 35 |
| " 17.... | 6 | 2 | 31 | 39 |
| " 18.... | 12 | 0 | 22 | 34 |
| " 19.... | 11 | 2 | 19 | 32 |
| " 20.... | 10 | 0 | 13 | 23 |
| " 21.... | 7 | 0 | 23 | 30 |
| " 22.... | 19 | 1 | 19 | 39 |
| " 23.... | 14 | 1 | 17 | 32 |
| " 24.... | 15 | 1 | 22 | 38 |
| " 25.... | 16 | 0 | 22 | 38 |
| " 26.... | 20 | 0 | 17 | 37 |
| " 27.... | 26 | 0 | 25 | 51 |
| " 28.... | 26 | 1 | 19 | 46 |
| " 29.... | 17 | 0 | 18 | 35 |
| " 30.... | 26 | 1 | 22 | 49 |
| Sept. 1.... | 25 | 0 | 18 | 43 |
| " 2.... | 30 | 0 | 28 | 58 |
| " 3.... | 26 | 0 | 18 | 44 |
| " 4.... | 44 | 0 | 22 | 66 |

THE JACKSON METHODIST, We congratulate the "Jackson Methodist" on the accession to its editorial corps of the Rev. A. B. Fly, formerly of the Louisiana Conference. Brother Fly has won much reputation in the fields of Theological controversy. He steps boldly upon the arena, and announces his course and cause in the future columns of the "Methodist."

"The Methodist will advocate mainly that system of doctrines embodied in the articles of religion of the Methodist Episcopal Church, South, but will not hesitate to dissent, when, in our opinion, the cause of truth demands it. We are not tied to any creed, or form, any farther than creeds and forms are sustained by the 'Book.' If our views should differ in some respects from the views of our brethren, we shall, in the spirit of Christian candor, give the reasons that have led to our conclusions, and will not be offended by a fair and impartial criticism of our views. With the motto inscribed, The Bible alone is the religion of the Methodist, we hopefully throw our banner to the breeze."

PROCLAMATION

BY THE PRESIDENT OF THE UNITED STATES.

Whereas, By the Constitution of the United States, the executive power is vested in a President of the United States of America, who is bound by solemn oath faithfully to execute the office of President to the best of his ability, to preserve, protect and defend the Constitution of the United States, and is by the same instrument made commander-in-chief of the army and navy of the United States, and is required to take care that the laws be faithfully executed; and

Whereas, By the same Constitution it is provided that said Constitution and the laws of the United States, which shall be made in pursuance thereof, shall be the supreme law of the land, and judges in every State shall be bound thereby; and

Whereas, In and by the same Constitution the judicial power of the United States is vested in one supreme court, and in such inferior courts as Congress may from time to time ordain and establish, and the aforesaid judicial power is declared to extend to all cases in law and equity, arising under the Constitution, the laws of the United States and the treaties which shall be made under their authority; and

Whereas, All officers, civil and military, are bound by oath that they will support and defend the Constitution against all enemies, foreign and domestic, and will bear true faith and allegiance to the same; and

Whereas, All officers of the army and navy of the United States, in accepting their commissions under the laws of Congress and the rules and articles of war, incur an obligation to observe, obey and follow such directions as they shall, from time to time, receive from the President, or the general or other superior officer set over them according to the rules and discipline of war; and

Whereas, It is provided by law that whenever, by reason of unlawful obstructions, combinations or assemblages of persons, or rebellion against the authority of the government of the United States, it shall become impracticable, in the judgment of the President of the United States, to enforce, by the ordinary course of judicial proceedings, the laws of the United States within any State or territory, the executive in that case is authorized and required, to secure their faithful execution, by the employment of the land and naval forces; and

Whereas, Impediments and obstructions, serious in their character, have been recently interposed in the States of North Carolina and South Carolina, hindering and preventing, for a time, a proper enforcement there, of the laws of the United States, and of the judgments and decrees of a lawful court thereof in disregard of the command of the President of the United States; and

Whereas, Reasonable and well founded apprehensions exist, that such ill advised and unlawful proceedings may be again attempted there or elsewhere,

Now, therefore, I, Andrew Johnson, President of the United States, do hereby warn all persons against obstructing or hindering in any way whatever, the faithful execution of the Constitution and the laws, and I so solemnly enjoin and command all officers of the government, civil and military, to render due submission and obedience to said laws, and to the judgments and decrees of the courts of the United States, and to give all the aid in their power necessary to the prompt enforcement and execution of said laws, decrees, judgments and processes. And I do hereby enjoin upon the officers of the army and navy to assist and sustain the courts, and other civil authorities of the United States in a faithful administration of the laws thereof, and the judgments, decrees, mandates, and processes of the courts of the United States, and I call upon all good and well-disposed citizens of the United States to remember that upon the said Constitution and laws, and upon the judgments, decrees and processes of the courts, made in accordance with the same, depend the protection of the lives, liberty, property and happiness of the people, and I exhort them, every where, to testify their devotion to their country, their pride in its prosperity and greatness, and their determination to uphold its free institutions, by a hearty co-operation, in the efforts of the government to sustain the authority of the law, to maintain the supremacy of the federal constitution and to preserve unimpaired the integrity of the National Union.

In testimony whereof I have caused the seal of the United States to be affixed to these presents and sign the same with my hand.

Done at the city of Washington the third day of September, in the year one thousand eight hundred and sixty-seven.

ANDREW JOHNSON.
By the President:
WILLIAM H. SEWARD, Sec'y of State.

The present critical condition of the Government can be understood by reading the above proclamation and the following extracts from the Tribune and the N. York Times. It seems as if the issue were about to take place between the President on the one side, and Gen. Grant on the other as the representative of the Radicals.

The New York Tribune says: "The President must stand and fight. We have been advancing and retreating long enough. Too many white flags have been exchanged. The President means war. War be it, then, and God speed the right!"

The Times says of the President: "He stands revealed an enemy not less of Congress and its laws than of the country and its peace. Wantonly, treacherously, with no conceivable hope of success, impelled only by reckless malignity and an insane ambition, he has reopened the quarrel in a shape which renders his fate and the duty of the governing party perfectly clear. As between the executive and the people represented by Congress, there will now be neither the giving nor the taking of quarter. Mr. Johnson has unsheathed the sword of a disturber and a usurper, and there can be no further parley with him."

That this estimate of the case is not exaggerated is proved by the antagonism that exists between the claims of the President and the duties and responsibilities of the general. Admitting that the former yet possesses the power of removing the district commanders, it is plain that there his authority ends. Over all else the general in chief is supreme. Being clothed by the law with the power of revising, revoking or confirming the doings of the district commanders, he holds in his hands the means of counteracting much of the mischief to be apprehended from the President's removals. It is possible for him to impose an absolute check upon those whom Mr. Johnson may send to execute his, and by the firmness and vigilance of control to make them instruments of carrying out the law."

WASHINGTON NEWS.

WASHINGTON, September. — The grand encampment of the National Union Johnson Men meets to-night. The call is by advertisement.

A four-column letter from Sickles to Grant will be published to-morrow. It is dated August 17th. Sickles communicates to Grant the Wilmington difficulty, saying,

I caused the commanding officer to be informed that on the receipt of the report he has been ordered to make in relation to the pending cases, he will receive further instructions, and that meanwhile he will not permit the order or decree of any court to be enforced in violation of existing military orders.

To this Grant replies, "Your dispatch of this date received, follow the course of action as indicated by you as right, and consider my dispatch of 13th as entirely withdrawn."

The document gives no hint of the purport of Grant's dispatch of the 13th.

A report is current that a sharp colloquy took place yesterday between Grant and the President, but is groundless.

SAN FRANCISCO, Sept. 4. — The election is progressing quietly. The Democratic vote will be larger than for some years. At 3 o'clock Haight was ahead in the city.

Philips, Republican, is probably beaten in the First District. The Republicans consider the other Congressmen safe.

VIENNA, Sept. 5. — It is reported that Baron Beust will sell the Austrian church property and pay the accumulated national debt.

MADRID, Sept. 5. — The Government has ordered the return of the Spanish fleet from the Pacific.

YELLOW FEVER TREATMENT.

We publish the following communication from Mr. Nettle with pure, and add, to our certain knowledge, he has been as successful stated, in the treatment of yellow fever.

NEW ORLEANS, Aug. 28, '67.

Mr. Editor: I have several times intended to give you in as much space as possible, the never failing method which for twenty years I have used with unfailing success in yellow fever. If you think give it a corner of your paper, throw it by, just as to you may be it best. Though rather late in season, it might reach some of the country places soon enough to be a blessing to many. I sent it to Jackson, in '53. A gentleman came me a year after, at Bethel, meeting, and asked me if I sent prescription to the Jackson people, and said, that of 61 cases treated accordingly 59 got well, the two were too far gone before he attended to. I cannot now remember the number that I have treated in way with unvaried success, and find it yields very readily this year. I have no doubt but that those who never seen yellow fever, and who without fear act strictly in accordance with this, they could not fail and yet scores are dying daily.

The first symptoms are pain in the head—back—Sick at the stomach, generally—preceded with slight chill.

Give a hot mustard, foot-bath a tub or water bucket, sit on a draw a blanket closely over whole body, rub the legs and with the same water, drink Elder-bloom tea, while in the bath main in the bath until a free perspiration takes place, (perhaps or 30 minutes,) cover closely with two blankets. Take the table-spoonfuls of castor oil, sufficient for three or four operations. A thick folded ice-cloth to be on the forehead. Having two of these cloths, place one in a tub with a lump of ice on it, (with water) and exchange them every five minutes during the early of the fever. This faithfully applied, prevents a disordered stomach or delirium. They can eat just drink ice lemonade with cream tar and tamarinds, in it. Give foot-bath in a water bucket every two or three hours, fifteen minutes each time. Heat three or quarts of the first bath water, a tumbler of vinegar, a handful salt. The patient will lay on back in bed, draw up his feet, place them in the bucket, draw the blankets over all. Particular attention should be had to the especially, when the perspiration seems to dry, or a rush of blood to the head. This draws the blood from the head, and relieves stomach from sickness and nausea. A cup of hot Elder-bloom, six, and eight hours after the Should there be any difficulty making water, give a wine of three or four times a day of the made of the inner bark of the tree. In good weather let there one window open in the room, close it on any change. If on second or third day, there be a nausea, or burning sensation to stomach apply a poultice of flour with thirty or forty drops of um, repeat every three or four hours until relieved, take four spoonfuls of corn meal beef tea on the fourth day, (or whatever), fifth day change diet and bed, and get up for a short if it be good weather. Any that has never seen yellow fever before, if they will faithfully this out in every particular, certain of success; let this be ment be continued until the be brought down to sixty-sixty.

CHANGE OF TIME OF GEORGIA CONFERENCES.—Many of the preachers have urged me to change the time the Conferences. The reasons controlling. You will please announce the following:

North Georgia, November 27.

Florida, December 6.

South Georgia, December 11.

Aug. 23, 1867. G. F. P.

MARRIED.

August 31st, at the Carondelet street Methodist Church, in this city, by Rev. Robert J. Harp, Rev. LEWIS A. REED, of the Louisiana Conference, to Mrs. ROXANA MADDOX, of New Orleans.

OBITUARIES.

ELISA HEADEN, wife of Matthew Headen, died of yellow fever, in Corpus Christi, Texas, Aug 13, 1867.

Her son writing to his father, who had been to New York, says: "Mother stated calmly that she 'trusted fully in Jesus,' that she felt comfortable and happy, and was prepared to die. She quoted Rock of Ages, and asked me to read the 14th chapter of St. John. She left the message for you. When I asked her, 'can I tell you your trust in Jesus?' 'Yes,' she replied, and after a while added, 'and I do.'"

Died, Aug. 15th, 15 minutes to three o'clock P. M., at Blanton, near Greenville, Miss. Dr. SAMUEL THEOBALD, in his seventy-seventh year. He was born in Georgetown, Ky., Dec. 22d, 1790. During the war of 1812-15, he served valiantly as a soldier on the staff of Colonel Richard M. Johnson, of Kentucky.

Soon after his return from the army, he married the daughter of Elisha Warfield, of Lexington, Ky., who left him three children, all of whom are now dead.

June 27th, 1841, he was married at Frankfort, Ky., to Mrs. Harriet B. Blanton, of Greenville, Miss. Before the last marriage he had not embraced religion. He had been raised under Baptist influence, but had not connected himself with the church, trusting that a life of external morality would save him. His last wife being a member of the Methodist Church, he was influenced by her to join the same church, which he did just one year after their marriage; at the same time professing a full faith in Christ for the remission of his sins. From this time, he was always an active member of the church, serving it as class-leader, steward, or in any capacity that duty called him to do. His walk private, and public, always illustrated his profession, and a very large number in acquaintances in several of the Southern States, will bear witness that for twenty-five years of various conflict, his Christian character was without reproach.

Two children of his first marriage, who lived to be grown, a son and a daughter, followed him into the church, and preceded him to heaven. His son's death was one of unusually bright triumph. During several years past, while the infirmities and helplessness of age pressed upon him, he displayed the virtue of Christian patience in an eminent degree, frequently calling forth the remark that he never murmured at anything.

A gradual decline of strength, has for some time, been preparing his friends to expect his death; but it came sooner than was expected. Without having appeared to be worse than usual, about one o'clock, his breathing became suddenly quicker and harder; and after two hours of apparent unconsciousness and no suffering, he passed away. His faith in Christ was always strong, and did not waver at the last. We look to his life—his life of faith for assurance that he is saved.

His friends will mourn for his death; but we know that he was a sheaf, ready for garner, and this will blunt the poignancy of grief.

W. W. DRAKE.
Aug. 18, 1867, Greenville, Miss.

Died, at Houston, Texas, on the 9th of August, of cholera, my oldest sister, Mrs. JULIA BARTELLA SLEDGE, wife of Dr. J. M. Sledge, aged about 44 years.—Our parents were Methodists before their marriage, and their home the home of the ministers, so that we were reared in the church, and from our earliest memory were surrounded by influences favorable to piety and salvation. In her sixteenth year, my sister professed faith in Christ, and became a communicant of our church, in which she lived; in Tennessee, Kentucky, Arkansas, and Texas. Her husband writes me, she died "happy, and perfectly resigned."

She was my schoolmate and the companion of my childish plays and joys. She was a gentle and pleasant sister, her cheerful and hopeful smile shines upon the pages of memory, and will forever. She was devoted to books, and read much. She possessed fine colloquial power, and was most agreeable company. She had many sorrows, all her children preceded her to heaven, whether she has gone to join them, and our sainted parents.

The good wife, the pleasant sister, and earnest Christian, has gone to reap and realize in heaven the fruit of her hopes.

JOSEPH B. WALKER.
Christian Advocates will please copy.

SPECIAL NOTICES.

NOTICE.—The commencement of the Session of Port Gibson COLLEGIATE ACADEMY is postponed to September 16. The charge for Board and English Tuition has been reduced to $70 per quarter.

CAMP MEETING.

NOTICE IS HEREBY GIVEN, that a CAMP MEETING will be held near Whitworth, Hoskins & Co's Steam Saw Mill, at Pin Oak Flag Station, on the Jackson and New Orleans Railroad, two miles North of Brookhaven, commencing on Thursday before the fifth Sabbath in September.

Everybody is invited to attend, and to bring their own provisions, and erect their own tents. All ministers of the Gospel attending, will be provided for during their stay—others will make their arrangements beforehand for their own accommodation.

Wood, water, and lot for horses, convenient and free.

Applications for permission to build and keep boarding tents will be made to the Committee of Arrangements.

Families and others from New Orleans, Jackson, and intermediate towns on the Railroad, and from neighborhoods contiguous to the Camping Ground, would do well to write or send agents beforehand, that arrangements may be made for their accommodation.

The trains will stop at the Ground for the accommodation of persons attending. Lumber for building purposes convenient.

Colored people will be greeted to as usual.

For further information, apply to L. R. REDDING, Chairman of Committee of Arrangements, or any of the undersigned:

Wm. G. MALSAPE, P. Elder, Brookhaven District;
B. JONES, Pastor, Wesson and Beauregard;
A. B. NICHOLSON, Pastor, Bayou Pierre Circuit;

H. J. HARRIS, Pastor, Hazlehurst Circuit;

THOS. NIXON, " Crystal Springs "

PETER E. GREENE, Pastor, Bogue Chitto Circuit;

GEO. F. THOMPSON, Pastor, pro tem, Jackson;

L. R. REDDING, Pastor, Brookhaven;

COMMITTEE OF ARRANGEMENTS.

L. R. REDDING, T. G. DICKER, M. J. WHITWORTH, JAS. A. HOSKINS.

Jackson Methodist, New Orleans Advocate, Crystal Springs News and Copiahian, please copy four times.

Ample preparations will be made to accommodate all editors who may honor them with their presence.

Mobile District—Mobile Conference.

FOURTH ROUND OF QUARTERLY MEETINGS.

E. Shore & Fish River, at Donnelly's Sept 13

Citronelle, at Citronelle 21 22

Whistler, at Whistler 28 29

Pascagoula and Bay shore, Salem Camp Ground 19 20

Ocean Springs, at Red Hill 26 27

St Stephens & State Line, Pine Grove Nov 2 3

Waynesboro, at Waynesboro 9 10

Mobile, at St. Paul's 17

" St. Francis street 21

" Franklin street Dec 1

The preachers in charge are requested, to be prepared with a duplicate copy of the statistics of their charge, to be furnished the Presiding Elder, according to requirements of the Discipline.—See ch 2, sec 4, par 9 page 67.

THOS. W. DORMAN, P. E.

DISTRICT MEETING.

A District Meeting for the Mobile District will be held in Franklin, Southern Methodist Church, in the city of Mobile, beginning on Friday, before the second Sunday in October, at 9 A. M., at which, all the traveling and local preachers, and all the official members of the church in the bounds of the District, are earnestly requested to attend. Ample accommodations will be provided by calling on Doctors Hamilton Neely. Bishop Wightman will be in attendance.

THOMAS W. DORMAN, P. E.

Homer District—Louisiana Conference.

FOURTH ROUND OF QUARTERLY MEETINGS.

Vernon Ct., at Vernon Sept 7 8

Haynesville at Collyette 21 22

Farmerville at Alabama 28 29

Homer at Forest Grove Oct 5 6

Lake Bisteneau at Ringold 12 13

Sparta at Sparta 19 20

Mt. Lebanon at Arcadia 26 27

Leviville Nov 2 3

South Bossier 9 10

Minden 16 17

District Meeting at Forest Grove, seven miles east of Homer, commencing Friday, fourth of October. All traveling and local preachers, also all of the official members of the District are requested to attend.

JNO. A. MILLER, P. E.

Brookhaven Dist—Miss Conference.

FOURTH ROUND OF QUARTERLY MEETINGS.

Hazlehurst, Sept 1 2

Chrystal Springs, at Bethesda 7 8

Scotland col'd cir., at Gallatia 14 15

Meadville, at Beach Grove 21 22

Dist Meeting Hazlehurst 27 28, 29

Holmesville, at Holmesville Oct 5 6

Bayou Pierre, at Roboboth 12 13

Pearl River, at Sertains 19 20

Bayou Chitto, 26, 27

Wesson, at Beauregard Nov 2 3

Brookhaven, 9, 10

Scotland, at Gallatia 16, 17

The District Meeting will be held at Hazlehurst, Sept. 27, 28, 29.

G. W. MILLSAPE, P. E.

Tuscaloosa District—Mobile Conference.

The District Conference for the Tuscaloosa District, will be held at Flat Woods, on Havana Circuit, commencing Thursday, 26th of September prox.

The Conference will be composed of all the traveling preachers and official members of the stations, circuits, and missions of the District.

The Introductory Sermon will be preached by Rev. J. C. Wills, of the Southern University, Thursday 11 o'clock A. M.

Bishop Wightman will preside.

J. L. COTTEN, P. E.

Shreveport Dist—Louisiana Conference.

FOURTH ROUND OF QUARTERLY MEETINGS.

Many, at Fort Jessup, Aug 31 and Sept 1

Annecoo, at Holly Grove, " 7 8

Pleasant Hill, at Benlah, " 14 15

Mansfield, at Mansfield, " 28 29

Caddo, at Greenwood, Oct 5 6

N. Rossier, at Walker's Chapel, 12 13

Shreveport, " 19 20

Belle Bower, " 26 27

Spring'le, at Spring'le Nov 2 3

District Meeting to be held at Mansfield, September 26, 27, 28.

B. F. ALEXANDER, P. E.

Tuscaloosa District—Mobile Conference.

FOURTH ROUND OF QUARTERLY MEETINGS.

Javanna Sept 28 29

New Berne and Oak Grove Oct 6 7

Marion " 12 13

Brish Creek " 19 20

Scottsville and Carthage 26 27

Tuscaloosa Nov 2 3

Eutaw " 9 10

Forkland " 16 17

Greensboro Nov 30 and Dec 1

J. L. COTTEN, P. E.

OPELOUSAS DISTRICT.

The District Meeting, appointed for 13th and 14th September, at New Iberia, is postponed for the present. Due notice will be given of the time, when it is proper to hold said meeting.

A. E. GOODWYN, P. E.

New Orleans Dist—Louisiana Conference.

THIRD ROUND OF QUARTERLY MEETINGS.

Carondelet Street, Aug 25,

Felicity Street, Sept 1,

Moreau Street, 8,

Jefferson City, 15,

N. O. Cir., Quar. Coun. Advocate office, at 5 P. M., 16,

Ger'n Church's, at Sarapuru st. 22,

German Quarterly Conference Dryades street, 23,

Baton Rouge, 28, 29

Thibodaux circuit, at Houma Oct 6,

Bayou Gros Tete at Plaquemine - 13

J. U. KEENER, P. E.

Natchez District Convention.

Will be held in Woodville, Miss., from Thursday, 26th, (10 o'clock A. M.) to Sunday the 29th of September next.

We deem it unnecessary to republish subjects to be reported upon by pastors, stewards, S. S. superintendents, presidents and teachers of our colleges and schools, but would refer them to a publication in N. O. C. ADVOCATE, June 8th, 1867. After deliberation, the published plan for addresses has been abandoned. There will be preaching at the usual hours, Saturday, P. M., and Sabbath day. We trust every official member on the District will be present the first day of the meeting, so as to serve on various committees, which will be needed. Respectfully,

JAS. A. GODFREY.

Vicksburg Dist—Mississippi Conference.

FOURTH ROUND OF QUARTERLY MEETINGS.

North Warren, at Oak Ridge Sept 1, 2

Port Gibson 8 9

Payette, at Bethel 15 16

Barkton, at Bethel 22 23

Cayuga, at Ulica 29 30

Raymond Oct. 6 7

Warren, at Bethel 13 14

Rocky Springs 20 21

Vicksburg 27 28

Pastors will be ready with full reports of Statistics. Written reports of the condition of church property, Sabbath schools, etc., will be expected.

G. H. CLINTON, P. E.

Summerfield District Meeting.

A District Meeting for the Summerfield District will be held at Uniontown, commencing Thursday, the 12th Sept. The official members of the church within the bounds of the district, are all members of the District Meeting Conference, and are earnestly requested and expected to attend. Arrangements will be made to carry the members over the railroads at half price.

A. H. MITCHELL, P. E.

Lake Providence Dist—La. Conference.

THIRD ROUND OF QUARTERLY MEETINGS.

Delhi & Floyd Ct., at Midway, July 29, 28

Carroll, at Cartiss's, Aug 3, 4

Oakley, at Bonif Prahle 10 11

Ion, Little Creek Chapel, 24 25

Tensas and Sicily, Sicily Island Sept 7, 8

Waterproof & St. Joseph, Waterproof 14 15

Also a District Meeting for Lake Providence District, to be held at Oakley Camp ground, to commence on the 27th Sept., at which all the traveling and local preachers, exhortors, district stewards, Sunday-school superintendents and class leaders, are respectfully requested to attend, and as many of the members of the church as possible.

WM. G. MCGAUGHY, P. E.

NEW ADVERTISEMENTS.

THOMAS MURRAY.

BUILDER.

Corner Rampart and Erato Streets, NEW ORLEANS.

Orders left at Box 119, Mechanic's Exchange, will be attended to. sept 7-11

$10 A DAY MADE BY ANY

one with my Patent Stencil Tools. I prepare samples free. Beware of imitations. My circulars will explain.

Address A. J. FULLMAN, Springfield, Vt. sept 7-11

SHARON FEMALE COLLEGE.

The fifth session of this school will begin Sept 30, 1867, under the Presidency of Rev W. L. HUNNELL, A. M., who will be assisted by an able corps of teachers. The course of study is large and comprehensive—equal to that of any similar institution in the Union. The location is pleasant and healthy. The moral and religious advantages are fine. Tuition, for five months, in the English branches, from $15 to $25. Music on Piano $25; use of Instrument, $5. Board, fuel, and bedding, $18 per month. Lights and washing, extra. When young ladies furnish sheets, towels, and blankets, board will be less. Incidental fee, $2 50; Languages $5 to $7 50, each.

For further particulars, address the President, or Rev H. H. Montgomery.

Pres't. Board Trustees. Sharon, Miss. sent 6-3m

EAST ALABAMA MALE COLLEGE.

AT AUBURN, ALA.

The Fall term of this Institution will open on the FIRST WEDNESDAY IN SEPTEMBER next, and close on the 20th December. Besides the regular course of studies for graduation, large facilities are afforded for instruction in the Commercial and Agricultural branches. Separate schools for these branches, in connection with the College, were authorized at the last annual meeting of the Board of Trustees. A student not wishing to take either the regular or a special literary course in the College, may confine himself to either of these Departments, and in a short time become qualified for business.

The Preparatory Department, with competent teachers, will be under the special supervision of the Faculty.

Tuition—Fall Term in College, $20 00

Contingent Fee, " " 10 00

Tuition—Fall Term in Preparatory School, $15 to $20 00

Contingent Fee, " " 2 00

Board in Private Families from $15 to $20 per month. CHARGE FOR BOARD.

JOHN G. PARHAM, BEVERLY BLUNT, OF New Orleans. OF Hinds Co., Miss.

PARHAM & BLUNT.

COTTON FACTORS, Forwarding and Commission Merchants, and Purchasing Agents.

No. 75 Carondelet street, New Orleans. aug 31-ly

SOMERVILLE FEMALE INSTITUTE.

The undersigned will reopen this old and well established school on MONDAY, SEPTEMBER 2, 1867.

EXPENSES.

Tuition per Session of Twenty Weeks, $50 00

Music, 25 00

Use of Instrument, 7 50

Languages, each, 10 00

Incidental Fee, 2 50

Board, including everything except Bed Covering and Towels, per Month, 20 00

Board, exclusive of Lights and Washing, 18 00

aug 24 R. H. RIVERS.

PORT GIBSON COLLEGIATE ACADEMY.

A College for Young Ladies with a Preparatory and a Primary School.

BOARD OF INSTRUCTION AND GOVERNMENT.

A. J. Wright, A. M., President

Mrs. A. A. Wright, Principal

Miss C. Scott, Nickels

Miss Anna M. Hove

Miss C. A. Murphy, Instructors in Vocal and Instrumental music.

OTHER INSTRUCTORS WILL BE ANNOUNCED.

This Institution was founded about 1850, and incorporated in 1854, and has a bright record of usefulness. It has been under the present direction four years. The course of study is a full one, and upon its satisfactory completion, a diploma will be awarded.

The younger pupils have the same instructors, and receive the same attention as their seniors. Exercises are continued throughout the course, in Penmanship, Elocution, Orthography, the science of English Grammar, the Art of Composition, and Arithmetic.

The buildings are spacious, retired, well shaded, and well designed for Academic uses. PORT GIBSON is noted for its beauty, salubrity, order and good society. Transportation from Grand Gulf will be by railroad in a few days.

SESSION COMMENCES SEPT. 16. CHARGE FOR BOARD.

Boarders are under special charge of the Lady Principal. Board and English Tuition, $70 00 per quarter. For circulars and particulars apply to

A. J. WRIGHT, J. C. Humphreys, President Board of Trustees, Port Gibson, Miss. aug 24

EMORY & HENRY COLLEGE.

WASHINGTON, CO., VA.

Our Fall session begins on the 15th of August next. Charges for session of five months, payable in currency and in advance, are as follows

WITHOUT THE CHILDREN.

The Meadow Lark's Nest.

A WEEK.—The division of time into weeks of seven days was quite general among the ancient nations, and was one of the earliest divisions known. The people of India, the Assyrians, the Egyptians, the Hebrews, the Phœnicians, the Arabs, and many other nations, had this seven-day division. The Chinese, as well as all the Mongolian races, had a five-day division. The ancient Mexicans, also, had the five-day division. The Greeks divided their month into decades, or periods of ten days. The Egyptians divided the month into decades, after they commenced to reckon time by the sun instead of the moon. The Ro-

FARM AND GARDEN.

From the American Agriculturist.
Cultivating Orchards

leaves every year? We have no doubt of it. The apple crop may be made as sure as the root crops. We once plowed up beneath an old apple tree that had an inveterate habit of bearing only every other year, and planted with potatoes, manuring liberally. We had a full crop of apples the second year, and shall always think the manure and the cultivation made the change. Horticulturists who make a specialty of apples, and manure every year, succeed in getting crops every season, with very rare exceptions.—David Lyman, Esq., of Middlefield, Conn., stated, at a recent meeting of the State Board of Agriculture, that he cultivated his orchards, and got crops every year. They were not always full crops, but were enough to pay for the trouble. Judging from the appearance of his orchards, which we visited a few years since in the apple season, we think that a very modest statement. We have rarely seen so fine a show of apples, even at the county fairs, as could have been gathered from his trees. The secret of his success is cultivation and manure, and a reasonable watch against the encroachments of insects. The plowing late in the fall as well as in the spring, he thinks a great safeguard against their depredations. Multitudes of the chrysalides are unearthed and destroyed. If this was attended to, and the windfalls picked up and fed to the pigs, we think there would be little damage from the attacks of insects. The apple is so fine a fruit, and so easily kept, it is so much both food and luxury, that no pains should be spared to keep our orchards in the best condition. We are tired of seeing a

From Hardwicke's Science Gossip
THE ROSE.

allowed to stand quiet all night.—
The attar is always made early in the season when the nights are cool.
In the morning a little film of attar has risen to the surface of the rosewater. This is skimmed off with a feather, and placed in a bottle.—
When obtained only three or four days it is of a pale greenish hue, but in a few weeks' time it subsides into a pale yellow color. It requires the produce of 1,000 rose-trees to obtain a tolah, or 180 grains of attar. The attar obtained in the Indian bazaars is always adulterated, and not even the richest native will give the price for pure attar which

From the N. O. Crescent.

The Cotton Worm

Twelve days ago I saw worms and webs enough in about four acres of cotton, to have produced, in the next generation, a sufficient number to eat fifty acres. Yesterday it would have required a very close hunt to find a worm or chrysalis on the same place or near it. I have caused a strict watch to be kept for the fly. Very few have been seen. The extermination seems to have been pretty complete. I do not consider any fields in danger from worms originating there. In the field of a near neighbor, where no effort was made to destroy them, enough worms are now on hand,

COLLEGIATE INSTITUTE AT
BATON ROUGE.

TERMS: Board and Tuition per session. $500.
PAYMENTS. — $200 in advance--balance 1st

THE "ARROW TIE."
AND PAINTED IRON BANDS,
For sale at the same place.

prices. je 22-67-6m

A TREATISE ON DEAFNESS
AND CATARRH.
Their causes and means of immediate relief
and speedy cure sent free for 10 cents.

References: Rev. [Dr. Keener, Dr. Walker,
Linus Parker, R. J. Harp.

One package, $1 00 Postage 6 cts
Six packages, 5 00 " 27

Wholesale Dealers in
Fancy Goods

Publishing Goods, etc.,
35 MAGAZINE STREET,

DOLBEAR COMMERCIAL COLLEGE
On the corner of Camp and Common streets
(In the Spacious and Elegant Story Building)
Is constantly in session under able Professors.
It was founded in 1832, and is chartered by State. Its former students may be found Principals or Book-keepers in nearly every of the old homes of this city and over the Western States. A large number of gentlemen can attend the COMMERCIAL COLLEGE; or Book-keeping Teamanship, Mathematics, English, French Spanish, separately. A business education, the enables one to earn $1000, $2000, or $3,000 a month, is the best fortune parents can give their sons. A DIPLOMA from this College is required in all Commerce and Communities. Large and Gentlemen are invited to call.
ample arrangements for KNOX students. We have sent year. Liberal arrangements made for Clergymen or their sons and crippled students.
Catalogues sent to all who desire them.
nov 17 1v RUFUS DOLBEAR,

BELLS! BELLS!! BELLS!!!
BUCKEYE BELL FOUNDRY
 Established in 1837.
VANDUZEN & TIFT,
 Of the late Firm and Successors to G. W.
COFFIN & CO.,
 103 & 104 East Second Street,
 Cincinnati, Ohio.
 Manufacturers of BELLS for Churches, Academies, Plantations etc.
 Made of Genuine Bell Metal, and mounted with our improved Rotary Yoke.
 All Bells warranted to prove satisfactory, or subject to be returned.
 Illustrated Catalogue and Price List sent upon application.

K NIGHT & CO.,
Dealers in PLANTATION, MILL, & WOOD-WORKING
MACHINERY,
And Agricultural Implements.
Keep constantly on hand a large assortment of articles peculiar to our business, and through our agents in the North and East, can fill promptly, and at a small advance above manufacturer's prices, all orders for articles in our line not usually kept in this market.
We have also a large stock of our labor system recently patented, and which has been found to be the most successful and economical in the implements used, and we have prepared ourselves to offer the latest improved
LABOR-SAVING MACHINES,
both for Agricultural and Mechanical purposes, at prices that will warrant their purchase.
At LEEDS & CO'S Sugar Kettles, Nerve Saws, Air Guns, &c; and will contract for any kind of work done at their establishment, at their prices.

172 GRAVIER STREET, NEW ORLEANS
n17 ly

AUSTIN & GOODWYN, Wholesale Dealers and Manufacturers of
TINWARE,
COOKING AND HEATING STOVES

25 Peters, formerly Front Lever,
Corner Customhouse

oct2017 . NEW ORLEANS.

SOUTH - WESTERN BIBLE SOCIETY

Where is it located? Its Depository and Bible-House is at its own building, No. 147 Camp street, New Orleans.

When was it established? 1850.

Who is its President?

Who is its General Agent to whom correspondence on its business should be addressed? Rev W H Bayliss.

Where is the Society's field of labor? All Louisiana, and all of Mississippi, south of the 33rd parallel of North latitude.

What is the object of the Society? To explain and supply (gratis) where needed) the distribution of the Holy Scriptures.

What are the resources and means of the

What are the resources and whence the income of the Society? From the annual contributions of its members. Collections of Churches within its field, collections at public meetings and anniversaries. Appropriations of the surplus funds of its auxiliaries, the donations of

What is the Society's method of work? By cultivating its own local work in the city and district of New Orleans, through its own

The payment of $30 at one time constitutes a life member.

The payment of $150 at one time, constitutes a life Director.

The payment of $1000 at one time, constitutes a life Patron.

The payment of $3 annually, constitutes a member.

Having thus briefly stated the main features of the Society's work, income and expenditure, the Board of Directors for the current year confidently ask the aid of all lovers of the Faith, whether professors of religion or not:

strengthen the lauds of the S. W. B. S. by founding or reviving Auxiliaries, by donating and urging donations, by exploring, and repairing the destitution of the Scriptures, by commencing or renewing memberships of all grades and by establishing connections with the Society as the Lord has prospered them according to that Scripture which says "Lay not up for yourselves treasures upon earth where moth and rust doth corrupt and where thieves break through and steal, but lay up for yourselves treasures in heaven, where neither moth nor rust doth corrupt, and where thieves do not break through and steal." To ministers and professing Christians of every Orthodox Protestant Church.

the Board of Directors, representing in its body all such within our bounds, appeals with confidence to aid them by judicious effort, a prompt performance of duty and a prayerful commendation of the Society to the blessing of Almighty God for exempt the Lord build the Jerusalem before

For except the Lord build the house, they labour in vain that build it, except the Lord keep the city, the watchman waketh but in vain.
Our last thought is the heart-ery of the Church Reformation. No withholding of the Word: no tampering with the text: no man's note or comment: God's Word: Christ's Word: the Holy Spirit's Word: Free: Free: Free. a25 ly.

COPARTNERSHIP.
The undersigned, for many years in the house of J. Murks & Co., has this day formed a Copartnership with Mr. J. H. Minsay, 100 Common street, for the purpose of conducting a Wholesale Dry Goods Business, under the able and firm of

J. H. MASSEY & CO., and respectfully solicits the patronage of his old friends.
D. V. BENJAMIN.
New Orleans, January 1, 1867.

H. MASSEY & CO.,

WHOLESALE DEALERS IN
DRY GOODS AND CLOTHING,
 100 Common Street, opposite City Hotel.

mur 2-67 .

HENDERSON A. MORSE,

ATTORNEY at LAW,
—and—
Commissioner of Deeds.

For the States of South Carolina, Mississippi, Kentucky, Tennessee, Georgia, Alabama, Pennsylvania, Missouri, Maryland, Texas, Florida,

MANFIELD FEMALE COLLEGE.
The Fall Session of this Institution for the year 1867, will open on Wednesday, the 25th of September, with a full corps of experienced teachers, and ample facilities for instruction and comfort. The Institution is owned and controlled by the Louisiana Conference, and is the enjoyment of a large patronage.

TERMS:
For a session of four and a half months, payable in advance, one half at the opening, and the remainder on the 1st day of December.
Board, including Washing, Fuel, in room or its equivalent, $15 00
Text-books and Incidentals, in currency 25 00
Wash, with soap instrument, 37 50
Contingent branches at usual prices.
The daughters of traveling ministers of the Louisiana Conference are charged no regular tuition.

Young ladies desiring to board in the Institution will each bring a pair of blankets, a pair of sheets, a pair of pillow slips, and a coverlet, and must furnish towels and lights. For Catalogues, containing full particulars, address
CHARLES B. STUART, President,
Mansfield, La.

SOUTHERN UNIVERSITY.
The Board of Trustees take pleasure in announcing to the people of Texas and of Louisiana, the organization of Southern University, under the patronage of the following faculty.
J. H. HARRIS, A. M., President, and Prof. of Greek and Latin Languages.
J. C. MOORE, A. M., Prof. of Mathematics.
J. F. KAYSON, M. D., Prof. of Biblical Literature and Natural Science.
J. H. HARRIS, A. M., Prof. of Natural Science.
J. H. HARRIS, A. M., Principal Proprietary Department, and Librarian.

The first Session of Collegiate year begins on Monday in September, and ends December 1867. The second Session opens Jan. 1868; closes last Wednesday in June.

TERMS
Tuition, $20 00
Preparatory, $20 00
Board, 16 00
Primary, 13 00
Long term on six months, 20 00
Elementary, $24 00
Primary, 20 00
Board, 16 00
Extra $2 00 per month

The individuals Board can be obtained in advance on terms of $15 00 per month. Tuition upon entrance in Special, proportionate part of which will be returned in cases of professional success, and in no other. Address: J. H. HARRIS, President, Mansfield, Texas, July 13-17

WHITWORTH FEMALE COLLEGE,
BROOKHAVEN, MISS.
128 miles from New Orleans, on N. O. & G. N. R. R. Road.
The next session will open on Wednesday, the 11th of September, 1867.

There is a full corps of teachers; the instruction will be thorough; the discipline firm and strict.
The building is large and well arranged; the play ground ample; the location healthy.

The Institution is under control of the M. E. Church, South.
The entire expenses in the Collegiate Department for tuition, books and incidentals (not including music and the ornamental) need not exceed $25 00 for term of six weeks.

Each boarder must furnish her towels, one blanket and sheets.
For further information, address
REV. J. F. JOHNSON,
President Whitworth Female College.

TENTHARY COLLEGE,
Jackson, Louisiana.
Established by the State of Louisiana in 1845, and transferred to the Methodist Episcopal Church South in 1845. It is now under the patronage of the Mississippi and Louisiana Conferences.

The College exercises were necessarily suspended during the war; but were regularly resumed after reorganization, on the first day in October, 1865. The approaching session will open on the first Monday of October next.

Tuition, $75 per annum, payable semi-annually in advance.
Boarding can be obtained at from $20 to $25 per month.

The Buildings, Libraries, Apparatus, Laboratory and Society Halls, the location in point of health, ease of access and good society, and the past history of the College is the pledge of its future prosperity.

Board and Faculty promise the public that the thorough education of the young committed to their care, in both Preparatory and Collegiate Departments.

Old students, alumni, and friends of the Institution, are requested to give publicity to the reorganization and opening of the College as stated above.

W. H. WATKINS, President.
THE GOOD SAMARITAN COOKING STOVE.

The great and serious objection to Stoves Ovens has been entirely overcome in the GOOD SAMARITAN.

The adoption of a New Principle of heating and Ventilating the Oven, as by means of the Draft, formed by the Ventilation of the Oven, the temperature of the fire is so much increased, that a large supply of fuel is never necessary, as the Oven can be thoroughly heated, and the different operations of Cooking performed with a saving of fuel of at least thirty per cent. as compared with any other Stove.

At the same time rendering it the most perfect and safe Kitchen Stove now in use. For heating, the Kitchen or Roaster, generally used as the Dutch Oven, is most admirably adapted to the Good Samaritan, as its height and breadth is such that a large and capacious oven can be used. That meats roasted in an oven are always preferable in every way to those baked in the Stove Oven, we believe you will say, and we therefore do not deem it necessary to dwell upon these advantages, which are peculiar to this Stove.

The most complete arrangement for heating the front hearth, thus enabling the cook to be successfully carried on without interference with the other work, and thus avoiding the objection made to those Stoves which have no other convenience for broiling than the top. One trial of this apparatus for the purpose of the operator, as it works well, and the food retains all its flavor and tenderness, as we do, The Good Samaritan is highly recommended to all. A fair trial trial is all that is necessary to any practical mind, to satisfy them that it is in every way the best.

The only one of the undersigned.
In addition to the above, we also have a large complete assortment of Cooking Stoves, including all of the leading Stoves of the day, and will offer in any other house in this city.

ADAMS & GOSWYN,
Corner Customhouse street,
Opposite the Customhouse.

COAL! COAL!! COAL!!!
WOOD! WOOD!! WOOD!!!
Yard on Josephine st. bet. Prytania & Coliseum

MR. GEO. O. BEATTY
Would inform his friends and the public generally that he is now prepared to fill orders for COAL and WOOD, and hopes, by giving his personal attention, to secure and merit their patronage.
Best ASH WOOD delivered at $10.
COAL $1.
Orders left at Yard, or Price Current office, 120 Gravier street; or Peter Williams, corner Jackson and Rousseau streets, will meet with prompt attention.
nov 1 1866

RACE, FOSTER & E. T. MERRICK,
Attorneys at Law,
CORNER OF CAMP STREET & COMMERCIAL PLACE,
sept 15 ly New Orleans.

SUNDAY SCHOOL VISITOR.
112 CAMP STREET, NEW ORLEANS.

Our readers will be delighted to learn that this beautiful Sunday School Paper is to be resumed the first of January. It will be published by the S. M. Publishing House, Nashville, Tennessee, and simultaneously at 112 Camp st., in this city.—Those desiring the NEW ORLEANS EDITION should forward immediately to Rev. R. H. J. HARR, Agt., Look Box 814, New Orleans.

SUBSCRIPTION PRICE FOR ONE YEAR.
For Single Copies, each 50c
For any number less than 5, 50c
For any number over 5, and less than 25, to one address, 40c
For any number over 25, 30c
Will ship by Boat, Express or Mail as directed.

EVERY SATURDAY:
A Journal of Choice Reading, Selected From Foreign Current Literature.

This popular Weekly reproduces promptly for American readers the best and most readable portions of European periodicals. These embrace Serial Tales, Short Stories, Essays, Biographical and Descriptive, Poems, Sketches of Travel and Adventure, Literary Criticisms, and popular papers on Science. Translations from the admirable French Periodicals are a prominent feature.

Among the Periodicals from which selections are frequently made are: Once a Week, Chambers' Journal, All the Year Round, The Spectator, The Reader, The Athenaeum, The Examiner, The London Saturday, and Fortnightly Review; Fraser's, Blackwoods, Macmillan's, The Victoria, Argosy, New Monthly, and London Society Magazine, Revue des Deux Mondes, L'Evénement, Le Soleil.

Among the authors represented in EVERY SATURDAY are many of the wisest and wisest writers of Europe, as Henry Kingsley, Anthony Trollope, Matthew Arnold, Charles Kingsley, Edmund Lant, Frances Power Chapin, Christina G. Rossetti, Author of "John Halifax," George Sand, Edmund About, Alexandre Dumas, Mrs. Oliphant, J. Ruffell, Alexandre Smith, A. C. Swinburne, Robert Buchanan, Jean Ingelow, and Miss Thackeray.

EVERY SATURDAY is intended for Town and Country, for the Private, the Seaside, the Railway, and the Steamboat. The Publishers will aim to commend it to all classes of cultivated and intelligent readers by the freshness and variety of its contents.

EVERY SATURDAY contains weekly 40 double-column large octavo pages.
TERMS:—Single Number, 10 cents; Yearly Subscription, $5 00 in advance; $4 00 a year to subscribers for any other periodical published by Ticknor, and English. Monthly Parts, 50 cents a number. Yearly subscription, same as for Weekly Part.

TICKNOR AND FIELDS,
Publishers, Boston.
Feb. 9

BRITISH PERIODICALS.
THE LONDON QUARTERLY REVIEW (Oxon.)
THE EDINBURGH REVIEW (Wing.)
THE WESTMINSTER REVIEW (Radical.)
THE NORTH BRITISH REVIEW (Free Church)
AND
BLACKWOOD'S EDINBURGH MAGAZINE (Tory.)

These foreign periodicals are regularly published by us in the same style as heretofore. Those who know them and who have long subscribed to them, need no reminder; those whom the civil war of the last few years has deprived of their once welcome supply of the best periodical literature will be glad to have them again within their reach; and those who may never yet have met with them, will assuredly be well pleased to receive accredited reports of the progress of European science and literature.

TERMS FOR 1867.
For any one of the Reviews, $4 per annum
For any two of the Reviews, 7 "
For any three of the Reviews, 10 "
For all four of the Reviews, 12 "
For Blackwood's Magazine, 4 "
For Blackwood and one Review, 7 "
For Blackwood and any two of the Reviews, 10 "
For Blackwood and 3 of the Reviews, 13 "
For Blackwood and the 4 Reviews, 15 "

A discount of twenty per cent. will be allowed to clubs of four or more persons. Thus, four copies of Blackwood, or of one Review, will be sent to one address for $12 80. Four copies of the four Reviews and Blackwood, for $48 00, and so on.

When sent by mail, the Postage to any part of the United States will be but Twenty-four Cents a year for "Blackwood," and Eight Cents a year for each of the Reviews.

PREMIUMS TO NEW SUBSCRIBERS.
New Subscribers to any two of the above periodicals for 1867 will be entitled to receive, gratis, any one of the Four Reviews for 1866. New Subscribers to all five of the Periodicals for 1867 may receive, gratis, Blackwood or any two of the "Four Reviews" for 1866.

These premiums will be allowed on all new subscriptions received before April 1, 1867. "Subscribers may also obtain book numbers at the following reduced rates, viz:—
The North British from January, 1863, to December, 1866, inclusive; the Edinburgh and the Westminster from April, 1864 to December, 1866, inclusive, and the London Quarterly for the years 1865 and 1866, at the rate of $15 00 a year for each or any Review; also Blackwood for 1866, for $14 00.

Neither premiums to Subscribers, nor discount to Clubs, nor reduced prices for book numbers, can be allowed, unless the money is remitted direct to the Publishers.

The Leonard Scott Publishing Co.,
38 Walker street, N. Y.

The L. S. PUB. CO. also publish the FARMER'S GUIDE, by HENRY STEPHENS, of Edinburgh, and the Royal Oak, 1860 pages, and numerous Engravings.
Price $7 for the two volumes—by Mail, post paid, $8.

FOLGER & CO.,
Dealers in
Hardware, Iron, & Ship Chandlery,
31 & 33 MAGAZINE STREET, NEW ORLEANS.
(Opposite the St. James Hotel)

Nails and Castings; Hoop, Sheet and Bar Iron, Shovels and Spades; Sheet Copper and Zinc; Plow, Axes and Hoes; Lead Pipe and Sheet Lead; India Rubber Belting; Hoses and Packing; Circular Saw, and Cross Cut Saws.

TERMS:
4 1/2 Bottles, $2 00
6 " " 2 50
8 " " 3 00
12 " " 5 00
Sold to Druggists by the dozen Bottles or more at 33 1/2 per cent discount off retail price.
All orders will meet with prompt attention.
sept 22 ly THOS. K. PRICE.

F. FOLGER, L. FOLGER, W. H. THOMAS
FOLGER & CO.,
Dealers in
Hardware, Iron, & Ship Chandlery,
31 & 33 MAGAZINE STREET, NEW ORLEANS.
(Opposite the St. James Hotel)

Nails and Castings; Hoop, Sheet and Bar Iron, Shovels and Spades; Sheet Copper and Zinc; Plow, Axes and Hoes; Lead Pipe and Sheet Lead; India Rubber Belting; Hoses and Packing; Circular Saw, and Cross Cut Saws.

TERMS:
4 1/2 Bottles, $2 00
6 " " 2 50
8 " " 3 00
12 " " 5 00
Sold to Druggists by the dozen Bottles or more at 33 1/2 per cent discount off retail price.
All orders will meet with prompt attention.
sept 22 ly THOS. K. PRICE.

HOMOEOPATHIC PHARMACY.
RICHARD ANGELL,
156 1/2 Main street, bet. Camp and St. Charles
PURE AND FRESH MEDICINES,
Cases, Bibles, Candles, &c.
Chill Drops, the best known for Ague, Bilious Fever, &c.; Bartlett's Worm Drops, and other approved Remedies for domestic practice.

DR. JOHN G. ANGELL,
(Graduate of the Philadelphia Dental College.)
Has established himself at No 109 Carondelet street, near Pryor, where he will perform all Dental Operations in a skillful and satisfactory manner. Teeth inserted upon Gold or Vulcanite base. Being familiar with all Anesthetics, he will extract teeth without pain, by the use of such as best adapted to the case. Particular attention given to the medical and surgical treatment of diseases of the mouth and teeth.
oct 27 ly

COAL OIL AND LAMPS.
HILL & VBAZIE,
Having removed from No 31 Chartres street to No 74 Camp street, have received large additions to their former stock, making their assortment of Coal Oil Lamps, and all articles needful to use with them, very extensive; together with COAL OIL CHANDELIERS from two to six lights, suitable for lighting Churches, large Halls, Parlors, etc.; and every variety of Lamps from the small style and satisfactory manner. FISH'S PATENT COOKING LAMP for coal oil and gas, very useful and economical; EDDIE'S COOKING STOVES, assorted sizes, heated by coal oil; with many other useful and convenient articles.
Always on hand the best Kerosene and Coal Oil manufactured.
Call and examine.
HILL & VBAZIE,
No 74 Camp street,
Between Natchez street and Times Office

ST JAMES HOTEL,
MAGAZINE STREET,
Between Gravier and Natchez Streets,
NEW ORLEANS, LA.
CHAS. E. SMEDES,.....Manager.

This establishment is now open for the reception of guests.
It is newly furnished from the Kitchen to the roof. Spring Beds, Hair Mattresses, Linen Sheetings, etc. The Furniture and Table Ware of the latest style, and most costly material. The Table is furnished with every luxury the Market affords. The Bars with Liquor equal to any used in private families, and the comforts and pleasures of a home, as far as possible, guaranteed to its guests.

The House, itself, may be said to be entirely new and fresh. The undersigned will spare neither labor or expense to merit a continuance of the liberal support with which he has thus far been honored.
CHAS. E. SMEDES.

CARPET WAREHOUSE,
17 Chartres Street,
Lately received Carpeting of all kinds and qualities; Floor Oil Cloth of all qualities, which we cut to suit rooms; Curtain Materials, Lace Curtains, Cornices and Bands in great variety; Window Shades, Hair Cloth, Cramm Cloths, Table and Parlor Covers, China and Cocoa Matings of all widths.
oct 13 ly A. BROUSSEAU & CO.

H. P. BUCKLEY,
WATCHMAKER;
No. 8.....Camp Street.....No. 8
Dealer in fine WATCHES,
JEWELRY and SILVERWARE,
SPECTACLES OF ALL KINDS.
—Also—
GUNS AND PISTOLS.

Every sort of Gun and Pistol Repairing attended to, by
J. E. BAILEY,
Feb. 9 ly Formerly of Chartres Street.

PRET, SIMMS, & CO.,
Importers and Wholesale Dealers in
DRY GOODS.
Nos. 23 & 25 MAGAZINE STREET, NEW ORLEANS
R. PRET—J. WILLIAMSON
P. SIMMS—J. BOWLING
aug 26 ly

A NEW THING UNDER THE SUN
PRICE'S
Patent Texas Tonic.
PURELY VEGETABLE.

It is a certain antidote against Constipation of the Bowels, Torpor of the Liver, Palpitation of the Heart, Determination of Blood to the Brain, Indigestion, Pain in the Head and Vertigo; also a remedy for
CHILLS AND FEVERS.
For particulars, see accompanying Envelope with each bottle.
For sale at 59 Camp street, New Orleans.
THOS. K. PRICE, Vendor.

Read the following opinions of some of our old and well known citizens of
PRICE'S PATENT TEXAS TONIC,
Or, Vegetable Medicine.

T. K. PRICE, Esq., Vendor of "Price's Patent Texas Tonic," or Vegetable Medicine:
DEAR SIR—After a fair and deliberate use and experiment of your Vegetable Medicine, known as PRICE'S PATENT TEXAS TONIC, we give it as our decided opinion, that it is the best recipe that we have ever known, for Indigestion, Torpor of the Liver, Constipation of the Bowels and Dyspepsia. We consider your Vegetables Medicine worthy of all commendation, and therefore feel no hesitation in recommending it to all our friends, as well as the public at large, and that in doing so we are contributing to all the afflicted. Many of us have been suffering from these evils from ten to fifteen years, and have been greatly benefited.

Wishing you great success in introducing this valuable medicine.
We remain yours truly,
J. J. MULLIN, Pastor St. Patrick's Church.
J. H. CALDWELL, of Gas Works, City N. O.
SAM'L. HUNTER, of Home Insurance Office
T. GREENFIELD, of House of Fellows & Co.
LEWIS ELKIN, Merchant, New Orleans.
GEO. W. H. NICKSON, Ship Agent.
JACOB HARKER, Bank of Commerce.
New Orleans, June, 1863.

TERMS:
4 1/2 Bottles, $2 00
6 " " 2 50
8 " " 3 00
12 " " 5 00
Sold to Druggists by the dozen Bottles or more at 33 1/2 per cent discount off retail price.
All orders will meet with prompt attention.
sept 22 ly THOS. K. PRICE.

F. FOLGER, L. FOLGER, W. H. THOMAS
FOLGER & CO.,
Dealers in
Hardware, Iron, & Ship Chandlery,
31 & 33 MAGAZINE STREET, NEW ORLEANS.
(Opposite the St. James Hotel)

Nails and Castings; Hoop, Sheet and Bar Iron, Shovels and Spades; Sheet Copper and Zinc; Plow, Axes and Hoes; Lead Pipe and Sheet Lead; India Rubber Belting; Hoses and Packing; Circular Saw, and Cross Cut Saws.

TERMS:
4 1/2 Bottles, $2 00
6 " " 2 50
8 " " 3 00
12 " " 5 00
Sold to Druggists by the dozen Bottles or more at 33 1/2 per cent discount off retail price.
All orders will meet with prompt attention.
sept 22 ly THOS. K. PRICE.

F. FOLGER, L. FOLGER, W. H. THOMAS
FOLGER & CO.,
Dealers in
Hardware, Iron, & Ship Chandlery,
31 & 33 MAGAZINE STREET, NEW ORLEANS.
(Opposite the St. James Hotel)

Nails and Castings; Hoop, Sheet and Bar Iron, Shovels and Spades; Sheet Copper and Zinc; Plow, Axes and Hoes; Lead Pipe and Sheet Lead; India Rubber Belting; Hoses and Packing; Circular Saw, and Cross Cut Saws.

TERMS:
4 1/2 Bottles, $2 00
6 " " 2 50
8 " " 3 00
12 " " 5 00
Sold to Druggists by the dozen Bottles or more at 33 1/2 per cent discount off retail price.
All orders will meet with prompt attention.
sept 22 ly THOS. K. PRICE.

F. FOLGER, L. FOLGER, W. H. THOMAS
FOLGER & CO.,
Dealers in
Hardware, Iron, & Ship Chandlery,
31 & 33 MAGAZINE STREET, NEW ORLEANS.
(Opposite the St. James Hotel)

Nails and Castings; Hoop, Sheet and Bar Iron, Shovels and Spades; Sheet Copper and Zinc; Plow, Axes and Hoes; Lead Pipe and Sheet Lead; India Rubber Belting; Hoses and Packing; Circular Saw, and Cross Cut Saws.

TERMS:
4 1/2 Bottles, $2 00
6 " " 2 50
8 " " 3 00
12 " " 5 00
Sold to Druggists by the dozen Bottles or more at 33 1/2 per cent discount off retail price.
All orders will meet with prompt attention.
sept 22 ly THOS. K. PRICE.

F. FOLGER, L. FOLGER, W. H. THOMAS
FOLGER & CO.,
Dealers in
Hardware, Iron, & Ship Chandlery,
31 & 33 MAGAZINE STREET, NEW ORLEANS.
(Opposite the St. James Hotel)

Nails and Castings; Hoop, Sheet and Bar Iron, Shovels and Spades; Sheet Copper and Zinc; Plow, Axes and Hoes; Lead Pipe and Sheet Lead; India Rubber Belting; Hoses and Packing; Circular Saw, and Cross Cut Saws.

TERMS:
4 1/2 Bottles, $2 00
6 " " 2 50
8 " " 3 00
12 " " 5 00
Sold to Druggists by the dozen Bottles or more at 33 1/2 per cent discount off retail price.
All orders will meet with prompt attention.
sept 22 ly THOS. K. PRICE.

F. FOLGER, L. FOLGER, W. H. THOMAS
FOLGER & CO.,
Dealers in
Hardware, Iron, & Ship Chandlery,
31 & 33 MAGAZINE STREET, NEW ORLEANS.
(Opposite the St. James Hotel)

E. GIQUEL,
Wholesale and Retail Dealer in FOREIGN, FANCY AND STAPLE
DRY GOODS.
Also, a large and varied supply of HOUSEKEEPING and PLANTATION GOODS,
Constantly on hand, at 130 Canal Street,
sept 1 ly NEW ORLEANS.

S. ANDERSON, PHOTOGRAPHER
And PHOTOGRAPHIC STOCK DEALER,
61 Camp street, New Orleans.
Cartes de Visite,
Halotypes, Ambrotypes,
Pictures on Porcelain,
And every description of Pictures known to the Art.
The lowest prices for cash.
sept 1 ly

J. A. BRASELMAN & CO.,
Wholesale and Retail Dealers in
FOREIGN & DOMESTIC DRY GOODS
Possess great facilities for buying goods cheap which enables them to sell below market prices.
Special attention given to orders.
Nos. 586 and 588 Magazine Street,
Corner of St. Andrew Street,
oct 6 ly NEW ORLEANS.

NEW CARPETS.
L. ELKIN,
Carondelet Street
Has just received from England, per steamer ship Laxor, a large assortment of superior
WILTON, BRUSSELS, TAPESTRY & INGRAIN
CARPETS REGS, WINDOW SHADES,
CORNICES,
OIL CLOTHS,
And a complete assortment of Curtain Material such as Brocatelles, Satin de Laines, all-Wool Damasks, etc., with corresponding Trimmings.
oct 13 ly

HORTER, PETERSON & FINNER
(Sign of the Black Horse.)
MANUFACTURERS OF SADDLERY, HARNESS, AND TRUNKS.
Importers of Saddlery & Coach Hardware
11 MAGAZINE STREET, NEW ORLEANS.
oct 1 ly

NEW BOOKS.
BRANCH
Southern Methodist Publishing House
112 CAMP STREET,
NEW ORLEANS.

"INTRODUCTION OF PROTESTANTISM INTO MISSISSIPPI AND THE SOUTH-WEST," by J. G. Jones $1 25
AN APPEAL TO ALL CHRISTIANS, ESPECIALLY TO MEMBERS OF THE M. E. CHURCH, AGAINST THE PRACTICE OF SOCIAL DANCING; by Rev. J. G. Jones 50c
THE BISHOP'S COUNCIL, WITH REMINISCENCES OF AN ANNUAL CONFERENCE; by an Ex. Presiding Elder $1 50
PHILOSOPHY OF CHURCH HISTORY FROM THE TIMES OF CHRIST TILL THE PRESENT; by L. Ditzler $2 00
SUNDAY SCHOOL COLLECTING CARDS, with instructions for using, in PACKS of 100, at $1 00 per pack. By mail $1 25
NEW-ENGLISH GRAMMAR by John L. Spencer, Late Principal of the "Floridian Academy," Greensboro, La. Muslin $1 00
"ALBERT NYANZA; Or, the Great Boats of the Nile. Baker $5 00
Superior Muslin, Gilt. 6 50
ST. ELMO; from Miss Augusta Evans. 2 00
BILL ARD. PHOTOGRAPHIC FAMILY BIBLES; Extensive Concordance, Penmanship, Family Register, with an ALBUM FOR FAMILY PHOTOGRAPHS. 10 00
KITTO'S BIBLICAL CYCLOPEDIA; Greatly enlarged, beautifully illustrated; 3 Large Vols. 25 00
Full assortment of Southern Methodist Hymns, Sunday School and Miscellaneous Books.
Catalogues sent to all who request it.
Address: R. J. HARR, Agent,
112 Camp street, New Orleans.
feb 2

TURNER & COHEN,
Photograph and Fine Art Gallery,
No. 57 CAMP STREET.

Trusting that the liberal patronage of our friends and the public will continue, we have engaged the services of Mr. E. M. HOWELL, an operator who cannot be surpassed for skillful and artistic ability. Our artist, Mr. REICHMAN, is second to none in the country.
These gentlemen, with many others for our business, have lately arrived from New York, and we are now prepared to make pictures from the smallest miniature on your watch dial to full-size portraits.
The public are invited to call and make a critical examination for themselves of the many specimens we have of well known citizens of this city.
oct 1 ly

W. C. SHEPARD, A. L. ABBOTT, H. B. HUTCHINSON
SHEPARD, ABBOTT & CO.,
No. 55 Camp street, New Orleans,
Nearly opposite Plessymme Office.

CROCKERY AND GLASS WARE,
PLATED WARE.
House Furnishing Goods,
& KITCHEN WARE.

We beg leave to inform our friends and the public in general, that we have on hand a large and well selected stock of the above goods, and are constantly receiving them directly from the manufacturers in France, England, and the United States; and we flatter ourselves that we can sell our goods as low as any house in the city.
For variety in the house-furnishing line, our stock is unequalled in the South.
Call in and see for yourself before purchasing elsewhere.
SHEPARD, ABBOTT & CO.,
55 Camp street, New Orleans.
sep 22 ly

JAMES SYME,
Wholesale Druggist,
139 CANAL STREET, (Touro Buildings.)
NEW ORLEANS.

Importer and Dealer in Fine
DRUGS, MEDICINES, CHEMICALS, DRUGGISTS' Sundries, Fancy Goods and Perfumery.
Surgical Instruments, French, English, and American, of every variety
Also—
Medicine Chests and Medical Saddle-bags.
aug 15 ly

J. W. BLACKMAN'S COMMER
CIAL COLLEGE, 136 Canal street, and 2 Carondelet street. Entrance on Carondelet. Open day and evening the entire year. Perpetual ship, Book-keeping, Mathematics and Languages, practically taught by experienced professors. The instruction is private to each student. Clergymen's sons and crippled soldiers taken for half price. Young men from the country can board with the principal, or in respectable families, English or French. For circulars, stating terms, etc., address R. J. W. BLACKMAN, Principal.

FOR RENT.
Lake shore Residence—at Ocean Springs directly fronting the beach: five rooms; wide galleries front and rear, forty-seven feet long; some heavy furniture in the house. Apply to the office of New Orleans Christian Advocate.

C. H. MCKNIGHT & CO.,
GROCERS.
—AND—
GENERAL COMMISSION MERCHANTS.
$9.....Magazine Street.....8
Keep constantly on hand, a large and varied assortment of GROCERIES, PRODUCE, ETC.
Particular attention will be paid to the filling OF PLANTATION AND FAMILY ORDERS.
Our friends would do well to call and examine our GOODS and cheap PRICES, before going elsewhere.
Feb 16 66

CHAS. H. CHURCHILL,
HARDWARE AND GUNS.
DIRECT IMPORTERS,
We have in stock, and are constantly receiving some choice patterns of English and American Table and Pocket Cutlery, to which we invite the attention particularly of country House, and Vices and Bellows, Scales, manufactured by the Novelty Iron Works; Files, English and American.
COTTON and WOOL CARDS, NOVA SCOTIA SPINNING STONES, PLOWS.
Hall & Speer's Peacock Plows, Nos. 1, 2 and 3; Hall & Speer's Cast Valley Plows, Nos. 1 & 2; KING CAR (wood mould board) Plows.
GUNS: NAILS, HOLLOW WARE, TIN WARE, AXES, OF Patterns and brands. All the above is offered for sale at the lowest market quotations.
Orders may be sent by Express, or by Mail, to TAYLOR & CHURCHILL, 41 Magazine Street, New Orleans, or to the same address, by the present senior member of the firm, in 1862.

W. H. HENNING & CO.,
Grocers and Commission Merchants,
95 and 97, CAMP STREET, NEW ORLEANS.

Offers to Families, Planters and Traders a full stock of Fancy and

NEW ORLEANS MARKETS.

From the N. O. Price Current.

We have no improvement to notice in the general movement of the market since our last. Operations in nearly every branch of trade have been confined to the limited volume usual at this season of the year, and prices of the leading articles of our trade show but few variations.

Foreign Exchange has been in limited supply, but owing to an easier Gold market, rates have hardly been maintained. Domestic is steady, with a moderate business at previous rates.

We have no material change to notice in Freights. There is very little offering—mostly a limited amount of Cotton and Flour for Boston and New York. Rates are without any notable variation.

The weather has been seasonable, with about the usual mid summer temperature during the day, relieved by heavy showers on Monday and yesterday. The nights have been cool, with chilly Northeast winds, which have been always regarded as unfavorable to health. In our issue of last Wednesday we mentioned that another week had elapsed without the yellow fever becoming epidemic, but we regret to note now that it has since assumed that character, and that there has been a considerable increase in the mortality as well as in the number of cases under treatment. The faculty report the disease as of a mild type, and not often fatal, excepting where patients are neglected or imprudent. The accounts from the interior, with regard to the crops, are still conflicting. On the whole, however, they are more encouraging.

The River has fallen 1 foot since our last report, and is now 11 feet 6 inches below high water mark.

COTTON.—Although there has been a very limited supply offering, yet the advantage has been on the side of buyers, without, however, any notable decline. On Saturday, in the anticipation of a further decline, buyers stood aloof, and the business was confined to 100 bales, taken to complete pending orders, at about previous rates. On Monday there was rather more movement, but, as the enquiry was mostly on the part of buyers, who offered 1-2c to 1c less than the asking rates of factors, the sales were again on a moderate scale, not exceeding 475 bales, while the prices paid indicated increased weakness and irregularity. Tuesday, owing to the causes which had previously restricted operations, but especially to the wide difference between the views of buyers and sellers, only 100 bales changed hands, while prices ruled still more in favor of buyers.

This makes an aggregate for the past three days of 675 bales, taken mostly for the North.

The receipts proper since Friday evening comprise 365 bales, against 519 during the corresponding period last week, showing an decrease of 154 bales.

We quote as follows:

| | |
|---------------|----------|
| Low | to |
| Ordinary | 19 to 21 |
| Good Ordinary | 22 to 23 |
| Low Middling | 24 to 25 |
| Middling | 27 to 28 |

TOBACCO.—There has been but little change in this market since our last review. The stock is light but the assortment is good, and with still further accounts of a discouraging tenor concerning the prospects of the growing crop, holders are much firmer in their rates. We now quote as follows:

| | |
|------------------|----------|
| Light | Heavy |
| Superior refused | 34 to 44 |
| Common refused | 44 to 54 |
| Prime | 54 to 64 |
| Prime and choice | 64 to 74 |
| Common Leaf | 74 to 84 |
| Medium | 84 to 94 |
| Good | 11 to 12 |
| Prime | 13 to 14 |
| Choice Select | 15 to 16 |

Cattle Market.

| | |
|-----------------------------------|----|
| Western Beef, choice per lb. | to |
| Western Beef, 2d quality, per lb. | to |
| Prime Cattle Choice per head | to |
| Prime Cattle 2d qual, per head | to |
| Prime Cattle 3d qual, per head | to |
| Sheep, 1st quality per head | to |
| Sheep, 2d | to |
| Sheep, 3d | to |
| Sheep, 4th | to |
| Sheep, 5th | to |
| Sheep, 6th | to |
| Sheep, 7th | to |
| Sheep, 8th | to |
| Sheep, 9th | to |
| Sheep, 10th | to |
| Sheep, 11th | to |
| Sheep, 12th | to |
| Sheep, 13th | to |
| Sheep, 14th | to |
| Sheep, 15th | to |
| Sheep, 16th | to |
| Sheep, 17th | to |
| Sheep, 18th | to |
| Sheep, 19th | to |
| Sheep, 20th | to |

HORSE AND MULE MARKET.

| | |
|---------------------------------|----------------|
| Medium and light harness Horses | $200 to $400 |
| Heavy draft Horses | 175 to 300 |
| Common do | 75 to 180 |
| Mules, 1st quality, broke | 200 to 220 |
| Do 2d do | 140 to 160 |
| Do 1st do unbroke | 150 to 180 |
| Do 2d do do | 75 to 120 |
| Mexican Mules | 40 to 90 |

Monetary.

The money market proper continues to exhibit the dullness reported for several weeks past. The banks, however, have but little difficulty in placing all their available funds, either in short business paper or loans on satisfactory collaterals. Mortgage paper is occasionally negotiated at 10 to 12 and 15 per cent, per annum the lenders generally requiring as security productive city property and signatures which can be relied on for prompt payment.

N. O. WHOLESALE PRICES.

CAREFULLY CORRECTED AND REVISED WEEKLY.

(Made up from Actual Sales as they Transpire)

| ARTICLES | FROM | TO |
|-----------------------------------|--------|--------|
| Agricultural Implements. | | |
| Cotton and Sugar Plows | 4 75 | 22 00 |
| Yost's Plows and Scrapers | 9 50 | 10 50 |
| Cotton Scrapers | 7 00 | 7 50 |
| Sweeps | 7 00 | 7 50 |
| Churns | 10 00 | 13 00 |
| Shovels | 10 00 | 18 00 |
| Spades | 11 00 | 20 00 |
| Axes | 15 00 | 18 00 |
| Bagging, per yard: | | |
| Kentucky | 26 | 28 |
| India | 26 | 28 |
| Bat's Rope, Kentucky, per lb. | 10 | 10 1/2 |
| Brass, per 100 lbs. | 1 10 | 1 20 |
| Bread, per 100 lbs. | 10 00 | 10 60 |
| Crackers | 11 00 | 11 60 |
| Bricks, Lake, per M. | 20 00 | 25 |
| English Fire | 55 00 | 65 00 |
| Candles, per lb. | | |
| Sperm, N Bedford | 42 | 43 |
| Tallow | 20 | 20 |
| Adamantine | 16 | 21 |
| Star | 18 1/2 | 25 |
| Chocolate, No 1 per lb | 50 | 62 |
| Sweet and Spiced | 35 | 67 |
| Cider, Western per bbl | none | here |
| Northern | none | here |
| Coal, Cannel per ton | | |
| Anthracite per ton | 11 | 13 00 |
| Western, per barrel | 55 | 60 |
| Coffee, Rio, per lb. | 23 | 26 1/2 |
| Havana | 35 | 38 |
| Java | 30 | 35 |
| St. Domingo | 26 | |
| Cotton Seed: | | |
| Long, per ton | 9 00 | 14 00 |
| Thilled, per bushel | 38 | 40 |
| Copper, Braziers, per lb. | 38 | 40 |
| Sheathing | 38 | 40 |
| Copper Boils | 38 | 40 |
| Yellow Metal | 30 | 32 |
| Cardage, Manila, per lb. | 23 | 24 |
| Thread, American | 21 | 21 |
| Lucas | 30 | 35 |
| Corn Meal, per bbl | 5 00 | 5 25 |
| Dyes, per lb. | | |
| Logwood, Campy | 5 | 5 |
| St. Domingo | 3 | 6 |
| Fast, Tampico | 5 | 5 |
| Indigo, per lb. | 1 00 | 1 60 |
| Madder | 18 | 20 |
| Eggs, per doz. Western | 90 | 100 |
| Feathers, per lb. | 90 | 100 |
| Fish, Cod, per box | 1 35 | 2 10 |
| Herrings | 75 | 75 |
| Mackerel, No 1, per bbl | 21 00 | 20 00 |
| No 2 | 16 50 | 16 50 |
| Flaxseed, per bbl | | |
| Superfine | 8 50 | 12 50 |
| Extra | 9 00 | 12 50 |
| Phosphate | 4 | 4 |
| Fruit, Prunes, per lb. | | |
| Figs, Drum | 18 | 20 |
| Currants, Zante | 17 | 19 |
| Almonds, soft shell | 34 | 34 |
| Raisins, M B, per box | 4 15 | 4 15 |
| Lem's Sicily, per box | 4 50 | 4 50 |
| Malaga, per box | 11 50 | 11 50 |
| Oranges, La, per 1000 | 7 00 | 7 00 |
| Sicily, per box | 7 00 | 7 00 |
| Glass, per box of 50 feet: | | |
| French, 8 x 10 | 3 50 | 4 25 |
| 10 x 12 | 4 00 | 4 50 |
| 12 x 18 | 6 00 | 6 00 |
| Grain, per bushel: | | |
| Malt, Western | 1 00 | 1 80 |
| Canada | 1 90 | 2 00 |
| Shell Lime | 4 | 4 |
| Corn, shelled, per bushel | 1 25 | 1 25 |
| Beans, per bbl | 14 00 | 16 00 |
| Hops, per lb. | 65 | 70 |
| Gunpowder, per keg | 7 50 | 8 50 |
| Gunny Bags, per bag | 22 1/2 | 22 1/2 |
| Hemp, Western, per ton | 27 00 | 28 00 |
| Northern | none | here |
| Louisiana | none | here |
| Hides, per lb. | | |
| Dry salted Mexican | 17 | 19 |
| Wet salted, city slaughter | 10 | 10 1/2 |
| Slip Skins | 11 | 11 1/2 |
| Dry Cattle | 16 | 17 1/2 |
| Pelts, per piece | 10 | 11 1/2 |
| Iron, Pig, per ton | | |
| Country, Bar, per lb. | 45 00 | 45 00 |
| English, per lb. | 5 1/2 | 5 1/2 |
| Hoop, per lb. | 8 | 11 |
| Sheet | 8 | 11 |
| Boiler | 8 | 11 |
| Nail Rods | 12 | 14 |
| Iron Cotton Ties | 9 | 11 |
| Castings, American | 7 1/2 | 8 |
| Lime, Western per bbl | | |
| Shell Lime | 1 50 | 2 00 |
| Rockland, &c. | 1 50 | 2 00 |
| Cement | 2 50 | 2 85 |
| Molasses, per gallon: | | |
| Louisiana | 50 | 60 |
| Mexico | 50 | 60 |
| Refinery, Reboiled | 52 1/2 | 52 1/2 |
| Moss, per lb. | | |
| Gray, Country | 3 1/2 | 3 1/2 |
| Black do. | 4 1/2 | 4 1/2 |
| Select, water rotted | 6 | 7 |
| Nails, Am. 4 & 8d, per lb. | 6 1/2 | 6 1/2 |
| Wrought, English | 15 | 20 |
| Naval Stores, per bbl: | | |
| Tar | 4 00 | 50 |
| Pitch | 3 50 | 4 00 |
| Rosin A No. 1 | 3 75 | 4 00 |
| No. 2 | 3 50 | 3 50 |
| Spirits Turp, per gallon | 3 00 | 50 |
| Varnish, bright | 2 00 | 3 50 |
| Oil, Lard per gallon | 1 10 | 1 15 |
| Coal Oil | 58 | 60 |
| In cases | 64 | 66 |
| Cotton seed, Crude | 54 | 60 |
| Refined | 1 05 | 1 05 |
| Tanners' per gallon | 1 25 | 1 50 |
| Oil Cake, Linseed per ton | 37 50 | 37 50 |
| Cotton Seed | none | here |
| Produce, per bbl: | | |
| Beef, Mess, Northern | 23 00 | 24 00 |
| Western | 23 00 | 24 00 |
| North half bbl. | 17 50 | 17 50 |
| Dried, per lb. | 16 | 16 |
| Tongues per doz. | 10 00 | 11 00 |
| Pork, Mess | 26 25 | 26 50 |
| Prime Mess | 26 25 | 26 50 |
| Hog, round, per lb. | none | here |
| Bacon, Hums, per lb. | 18 | 23 1/2 |
| Do, canvassed | 18 | 23 1/2 |
| Sides | 18 | 18 |
| Shoulders | 14 | 14 |
| Green Shoulders | 14 | 14 |
| Lard, Prime, in tierces | 14 | 14 |
| Do, in kegs | 14 | 14 |
| Fat, in tierces | 14 | 14 |
| Butter, Northern | 23 | 34 1/2 |
| Do, Western | 18 | 22 |
| Cheese, American | 8 | 18 |
| Potatoes, per bbl | 2 00 | 4 75 |
| Onions | 6 00 | 6 50 |
| Green Apples | 2 50 | 5 00 |
| Rice, per lb. Louisiana | 9 1/2 | 10 1/2 |
| Carolina | 10 | 10 1/2 |
| Crude | 13 | 15 |
| Salt, per sack: | | |
| Liverpool, fine, warehouse | 2 30 | 2 40 |
| Do, coarse, cargo | 2 25 | 2 45 |
| Do, 2d do | 2 10 | 2 10 |
| Do, 1st do | 2 20 | 2 30 |
| Do, 2d do | 2 20 | 2 30 |
| Turkey Island, per bushel | 80 | 80 |
| Soap, 3/4 lb. Western | 8 | 10 |
| Northern | 10 | 12 |
| Southern | 8 | 10 |
| Castile | 14 | 16 |
| Sugar, Louisiana, per lb: | | |
| In the city | 15 | 18 |
| Havana, White | 15 | 16 1/2 |
| Yellow | 13 | 14 1/2 |
| Do, Brown | 12 | 13 1/2 |
| Tobacco, in hds, per lb. | 12 | 12 1/2 |
| Balers & Cutters | 19 | 21 |
| Chairs and Selections | 16 | 20 |
| Flax Leaf | 13 1/2 | 17 1/2 |
| Medium Leaf | 8 | 11 |
| Fair Leaf | 11 | 13 1/2 |
| Common Leaf | 6 1/2 | 9 |
| God Refused | 4 | 4 |
| Common Refused | 4 | 4 |
| Trunks, Cotton, per lb. | 60 | 80 |
| Hulling | 19 | 27 |
| Wool, Washed, per lb. | 27 | 30 |
| Burly | 10 | 12 |
| Louisiana, Native | 10 | 12 |
| Texas, per lb. Merino | 24 | 24 |

ADVOCATE CALENDAR, 1867.

| MONTHS | SUNDAY | MONDAY | TUESDAY | WEDNESDAY | THURSDAY | FRIDAY | SATURDAY |
|--------|--------|--------|---------|-----------|----------|--------|----------|
| JAN. | 1 | 2 | 3 | 4 | 5 | 6 | 7 |
| FEB. | 1 | 2 | 3 | 4 | 5 | 6 | 7 |
| MAR. | 1 | 2 | 3 | 4 | 5 | 6 | 7 |
| APR. | 1 | 2 | 3 | 4 | 5 | 6 | 7 |
| MAY | 1 | 2 | 3 | 4 | 5 | 6 | 7 |
| JUNE | 1 | 2 | 3 | 4 | 5 | 6 | 7 |
| JULY | 1 | 2 | 3 | 4 | 5 | 6 | 7 |
| AUG. | 1 | 2 | 3 | 4 | 5 | 6 | 7 |
| SEPT. | 1 | 2 | 3 | 4 | 5 | 6 | 7 |
| OCT. | 1 | 2 | 3 | 4 | 5 | 6 | 7 |
| NOV. | 1 | 2 | 3 | 4 | 5 | 6 | 7 |
| DEC. | 1 | 2 | 3 | 4 | 5 | 6 | 7 |

RANDOLPH MACON COLLEGE, VA.

The next session of this Institution commences on the 19th September, 1867. As evidence of her success as an educator of young men, she points to her graduates all over the South. No location surpasses this in point of health. The town of Boynton and surrounding country has but one physician, and he is but half employed. In addition to the schools of Moral Philosophy, Ancient Languages, Mathematics, Natural Philosophy and Modern Languages, we have also a school of Commercial Science, in which are taught the branches of a business education. Young men attend at schools they wish, and get a showing for whatever they accomplish. It is our intention hereafter, to fill up our vacations with a special session, so that young men can review any studies they wish, but more particularly to teach English grammar, Commercial Arithmetic, Book-keeping, Penmanship, and Commercial Law. Thus, our students can take the Literary and Scientific course during the session, and get a practical instruction in business during the vacations. The Special Session in vacation covers the heated term in the South when business is over, and young men already engaged in business can come here to perfect their knowledge of Commercial Science, and return to the South in time to resume business.

Expenses for ten months, including meals, use of furniture, (averaged,) fuel, lights, wash, bag, matriculation and contingent fee, tuition in three schools, so as to occupy the student's whole time—$300, one-half payable at the commencement of each term.

A daily line of hacks, Sundays excepted, runs from Roanoke station (Richmond & Danville Railroad) to Boynton. Send for circulars.

Randolph, Macon College, Boynton, Mecklenburg Co., Va., July 20, '67.

THOS. C. JOHNSON, President.

SOUTHERN UNIVERSITY, GREENSBORO, ALA.

FACULTY.

Bishop W. M. Wightman, D. D., LL. D.

Rev. E. Wadsworth, A. M., D. D.

O. A. M.

Rev. J. C. Willis, A. M.

Rev. T. Lupton, A. M.

The next session of this institution will begin on the first Wednesday in October next. Instruction will be given in the Schools of Ancient and Modern Languages, Moral Philosophy, Mathematics, Chemistry, Natural Philosophy, and Biblical Literature.

The Preparatory School will be under the direct supervision of the Faculty.

The Session is divided into two terms.

Tuition in University per term.....$40 00

Incidental fee.....5 00

Tuition in Preparatory school per term $30 to $35

Contingent fee.....$2 50

Board, exclusive of washing and lights, $20 to $25 per month. All dues invariably in advance.

July 27th O. F. CASEY, Sec. Faculty.

WOODVILLE FEMALE SEMINARY.

WOODVILLE, MISSISSIPPI.

Will begin its THIRD ANNUAL SESSION on Wednesday, September 25th, 1867, and close it on the First Wednesday in July, 1868.

CHARGES PER HALF SESSION.

BOARD.....$150

TUITION IN PRIMARY GRADE.....30

" MIDDLE GRADE.....40

" COLLEGIATE GRADE.....50

MUSIC with use of Piano.....45

ORNAIENTALS AT FAIR PRICES.

For particulars send for Circular to W. T. J. SULLIVAN, Principal.

July 20

THE BRANCH OF THE SOUTH-ERN METHODIST PUBLISHING HOUSE, at 112 Camp Street, is ready to fill orders for the latest revised edition of the Discipline, with the paragraphs relating to Lay Representation.

24 mo. mulla 60c.

Sent by mail for 20 cents additional.

Prices for other qualities of binding, not changed.

Also a duodecimo Edition of the Discipline with large margins for the convenience of those who wish to make notes.

Roan $1 50

" Gilt 2 00

Turkey Morocco 3 00

Sent by mail for 20 cents additional.

Also just received,

THE SUNDAY SERVICE,

ordered by the late General Conference.

Sheet $1 25

Rope 1 50

Roman Gilt 2 00

Turkey Morocco 3 00

S. S. Bells (single) $4 25 per doz.

" (Double) 6 50

Sent by mail for 20 cents additional.

July 13 R. J. HARR, Agt.

J. N. O. BULL & CO.

GENERAL COMMISSION AND FORWARDING MERCHANTS.

No. 64 North Commercial Street.

SAINT LOUIS, MO.

Dealers in Bagging, Rope, Cotton, &c. Plan- ang 24 ly

Dealers in Bagging, Rope, Cotton, &c. Plan- ang 24 ly

Dealers in Bagging, Rope, Cotton, &c. Plan- ang 24 ly

Dealers in Bagging, Rope, Cotton, &c. Plan- ang 24 ly

Dealers in Bagging, Rope, Cotton, &c. Plan- ang 24 ly

Dealers in Bagging, Rope, Cotton, &c. Plan- ang 24 ly

Dealers in Bagging, Rope, Cotton, &c. Plan- ang 24 ly

Dealers in Bagging, Rope, Cotton, &c. Plan- ang 24 ly

Dealers in Bagging, Rope, Cotton, &c. Plan- ang 24 ly

Dealers in Bagging, Rope, Cotton, &c. Plan- ang 24 ly

CHRISTIAN ADVOCATE

ORGAN OF THE M. E. CHURCH SOUTH FOR THE MOBILE, MONTGOMERY, MISSISSIPPI AND LOUISIANA CONFERENCES.

NEW ORLEANS, SATURDAY, SEPT. 14, 1867.

$3.00 A YEAR IN ADVANCE
OFFICE—112 CAMP STREET

SUNSET.

When the Summer night come down,
With silent step o'er hill and lea;
The sunset clouds were all aflame,
And all aflame the rosy sea!

When the Summer night come down,
With silent step o'er hill and lea;
The sunset clouds were all aflame,
And all aflame the rosy sea!

When the Summer night come down,
With silent step o'er hill and lea;
The sunset clouds were all aflame,
And all aflame the rosy sea!

When the Summer night come down,
With silent step o'er hill and lea;
The sunset clouds were all aflame,
And all aflame the rosy sea!

When the Summer night come down,
With silent step o'er hill and lea;
The sunset clouds were all aflame,
And all aflame the rosy sea!

When the Summer night come down,
With silent step o'er hill and lea;
The sunset clouds were all aflame,
And all aflame the rosy sea!

When the Summer night come down,
With silent step o'er hill and lea;
The sunset clouds were all aflame,
And all aflame the rosy sea!

When the Summer night come down,
With silent step o'er hill and lea;
The sunset clouds were all aflame,
And all aflame the rosy sea!

When the Summer night come down,
With silent step o'er hill and lea;
The sunset clouds were all aflame,
And all aflame the rosy sea!

When the Summer night come down,
With silent step o'er hill and lea;
The sunset clouds were all aflame,
And all aflame the rosy sea!

When the Summer night come down,
With silent step o'er hill and lea;
The sunset clouds were all aflame,
And all aflame the rosy sea!

When the Summer night come down,
With silent step o'er hill and lea;
The sunset clouds were all aflame,
And all aflame the rosy sea!

When the Summer night come down,
With silent step o'er hill and lea;
The sunset clouds were all aflame,
And all aflame the rosy sea!

When the Summer night come down,
With silent step o'er hill and lea;
The sunset clouds were all aflame,
And all aflame the rosy sea!

When the Summer night come down,
With silent step o'er hill and lea;
The sunset clouds were all aflame,
And all aflame the rosy sea!

When the Summer night come down,
With silent step o'er hill and lea;
The sunset clouds were all aflame,
And all aflame the rosy sea!

with which to buy books. To accommodate this large class, he wrote as laconically as possible, sacrificing literary pride, and the ornaments of composition, to brevity, plainness, and cheapness.

Wesley was not fond of controversy in private or public discussion, and always avoided it whenever truth and duty would allow him to do so with honor. He seemed far more anxious to raise up a highly moral and spiritual people, who should be zealous of good works, than a people learned in all the nice discriminations of orthodoxy, and skilled in technicalities of theological controversy. He was eminently a utilitarian. Usefulness with him was the great aim to which he made all other considerations subservient.

A more industrious and methodical worker never lived. He said of himself, "I am never in a hurry, but always busy." He lived as regular as the laws of nature, and moved in his orbit of public and private duties with the steadiness of a planet. He ascertained by a series of experiments with an alarm clock the precise amount of sleep necessary for his health and labors, which he found to be seven hours. The great naturalist, Alexander von Humboldt, found that he could get along on four hours sleep. This is a point in the laws of health which each man must determine for himself. For more than fifty years Wesley retired precisely at nine o'clock, p. m., and rose at four a. m. He says that for half a century he does not remember having laid in bed five minutes awake. Truly he was a most successful sleeper—few men ever achieved so much in that direction. No business, however important, no company, however agreeable or interesting, could induce him to violate his habit of retiring at nine and rising at four. Wherever he went arrangements were always made to accommodate his habits. He was out of bed, and in some way usefully employed seventeen hours out of the twenty-four. When not traveling, he always secured to himself ten hours of privacy, which he employed with pen or books. His labors were immense and varied. He maintained a widely extended correspondence with all sorts of people, and on a vast variety of subjects. In his correspondence he acquired the happy art of talking on paper, which may be regarded as the perfection of letter writing.

In social life Wesley was the delight of every circle he visited. His vast and richly varied stores of knowledge—the large fund of anecdote and stirring incident which his extensive travels and large intercourse with all phases of society had furnished him, and the grace with which he narrated these pleasant things, made him one of the most delightful and desirable of companions. It would be natural to suppose that his many cares, anxieties and responsibilities would have thrown a shade of seriousness, if not of depression, over his spirits; this was not the case; he was never low-spirited, but always buoyant with hope. Several circumstances conspired to this happy result—his remarkable health—his constant and, to him, delightful employment—above all, perhaps, his abiding confidence in the perfect wisdom and goodness of that Providence to whom he submitted and committed his labors, his life, and his immortal hopes.

Wesley was one of the greatest of travelers. For fifty years he averaged 4,500 miles per annum, most of it on horseback. This, considering he lived before the age of steam, was a great work—250,000 miles; enough to belt the globe ten times. On the smooth roads of England, whether on horseback or on wheels, he learned to read with nearly as much facility as in his study. I have seen a picture representing his mode of traveling, when on wheels, over the smooth roads. He had a desk before him, on which he laid his books and papers, and as he rode along, noted down with his pencil what he particularly wished to remember.

For the N. O. Christian Advocate.
BRITISH HONDURAS.
BY REV. W. CHAMBERLIN.

The lands are mostly in the hands of private owners, having been granted by the crown. The British Honduras Company have two and a half millions of acres, Young, Toledo & Co. have a million acres. There are tracts of ten to twenty thousand acres frequently in private hands. All these lands are about to be thrown upon the market. The Government has yet some lands to dispose of to settlers. On Blue Creek, the eastern branch of the Hondo, the Government has about sixty-two thousand acres, which she offers to actual settlers in lots of three hundred and twenty acres, free, reserving the other half of the section.

GOVERNMENT.
The government of Honduras is composed of a Lieut. Governor—at present, J. Gardner Austin—a Colonial Secretary, appointed by the Crown, and an Assembly of twenty-one—three of whom are appointed by the Lieut. Governor, and eighteen elected by the citizens. The Episcopal Church here is a portion of the diocese of Jamaica. Other churches have their share of worshippers; and full freedom of opinion seems to exist without strife.

LAND TITLES.
The question has often been asked, "from whom comes the title to the lands?" The lands, many of them, were grants made by the Crown; at first only for the purpose of cutting valuable timber. During the time Judge Temple resided in Belize and presided over the courts, there seems to have been some doubt; but after his return to England he drew up an Act having reference to these grants. This act was styled "The lands title bill," and called upon all who had received grants from the Crown, to present their titles to the Court, which should judge whether they had grants of land, or only grants to cut wood. Those which were found to be good and valid grants for land were admitted to record, and thereby confirmed; the others rejected. This law was passed by the Assembly and approved by the Crown, and thereby became the law of the land. Therefore any one purchasing land, can, by applying to the records of the Court at Belize, ascertain whether the title to any land he may wish to purchase is good or not. Deeds are not given by the seller, only receipts for the payment of the purchase money; and the title is transferred on the records to the name of the purchaser. The Recorder's Certificate, showing all the different transfers, from the grant down, is given the purchaser in place of a deed.

In giving the names of those who purchased lands, I did not mention the name of Mr. W. A. Love, of Noxabee county, Mississippi, who purchased 12,000 acres on the N. W. fork of Monkey river; and I have since been told that Ex-Gov. Pierce and Mr. Hatch have now about eighty families nearly ready to start to occupy lands between the Molo and Rio Grande. These lands I saw, and can say there are none better anywhere. It is my opinion that at least ten thousand persons will find homes in British Honduras during the coming year. And why not? It is easier of access than Brazil, or any other country to which emigrants are now looking; it has the same language, laws, religion, and a climate superior to our own. Industry can accomplish more in support of man than where one-third of the year is cut off by frosts.

I have studied the matter well, and have made up my mind to try it. I have secured for my friends about 27,000 acres of good lands, which can be had at a low price and upon reasonable terms. Those who cannot suit themselves better elsewhere in the Colony, I invite to come and see me at South Stand Creek. We have there three and three-eighths of a mile fronting on a beautiful sea coast as can be found, with a deeper harbor than Belize, good anchorage, and a noted watering place for shipping. It is fifty miles from the nearest point where goods and supplies are sold, and I confidently predict that in a few years it will be a place of note.

From the Southern Christian Advocate.
LETTER FROM CHINA.

Mr. Editor: The Advocate has been coming quite regularly since November last, only two numbers having miscarried.

It is certainly an excellent paper, ably edited and well executed, and coming, as it does, from a section of country with which, as also with many of its contributors, I have more or less acquaintance, its bi-monthly visits have hearty welcome, and afford us incalculable pleasure.

The "news from the churches" contained in the several numbers recently to hand, is encouraging and refreshing in the extreme. I rejoice to see you are enjoying, at least, the liberty of the blessed gospel, and that great revivals, with numerous conversions and accessions to the church, distinguish and reward your efforts.

What a contrast between this and our native land, between this people and our people. As Goshen and Israel to Egypt and the Egyptians, so is Christianity to this heathenism. Our hearts are filled with loathing and disgust, and every sense is offended by the iniquity of this degenerate race, which has gods innumerable yet without the true God, affects all piety yet is most impious, believes in all spirits yet is destitute of the one Spirit, and as if ignorant of all sin, righteousness and judgment, greedily and with impunity violates every law of nature and every precept of their ancient sages.

I fear it will be many a day yet before the word of the Lord shall have free course and be glorified among this people. However, that will be determined perhaps as much by the attitude and action of the churches at home, as by any disposition of the people to the contrary. We are not without encouragement in our labors, yet I think any great measure of success, that is, approximating anything like the apparent and expressed expectations of the church, is simply impossible, and would partake more of the character of a miracle than of legitimate labor to accomplish that result.

I would like for the church to examine her title to such expectations. What has she done to guarantee them? It strikes me, that the heart and soul of the church has never been fully interested and engaged in the prosecution and success of the China Mission. It has always been a work of doubtful issue and propriety on the part of many. Faith in any enterprise is important to its success, but in one like this doubly so, and where there is no faith, there will be no prayer, no effort, and no blessing. Purge the church of unbelief, roll upon her the burden of the great commission, and let her assume an attitude of earnest supplication and activity for the success of her cause among the heathen, and then, and not till then, will she be prepared to realize her expectations.

Notwithstanding I am identified with the China Mission and expect to live and die in its prosecution, I would not undertake to give it preference in the minds of the church over the domestic missions which are as needy and deserving, and should be its first concern. I could not subscribe to that ostentatious charity which would seek abroad that which lieth at its own door, yet I do feel anxious and zealous for the success of the work which the church has begun here, and would have her evince her faith in its ultimate triumph by suitable efforts to sustain and enlarge it.

There are only two families of us here now and they are debarred the privilege of entire devotion to the mission work on account of its embarrassment and debt. Bro. L. has the interpretership to the Municipal Council in the English settlement and is only able to preach on the Sabbath, while I have charge of the Imperial Government School, which occupies my time from nine to twelve o'clock each day, except Sabbath. However, my engagement with the school does not affect my regular labors to any great extent, and even if it did, I have hopes that the ultimate effect of my connection therewith will more than repay the cause of the Mission for the interruption which it at present causes. I serve regular appointments in the city chapel as usual, and every other Sabbath preach in the chapel outside the city and visit the out-stations located some sixteen and twenty miles from Shanghai.

We have two day schools in successful operation under Christian teachers, whom we have determined to instruct with a view to becoming evangelists. Had we sufficient means, we might engage several others of our young men in a similar manner. I hope the church will enlarge its subscriptions to the cause of Foreign Missions, with a view to enabling the Board to make suitable appropriations for the proper maintenance of this efficient adjunct of our work.

The native church is in a prosperous and healthy state, and there has been unusual interest manifested recently on the part of outsiders. Last quarter I baptized the infant daughter of our native assistant Wong, at Nan Tsiang, and also admitted an adult on probation.

On the 13th of this month, Sabbath before last, in Shanghai, I admitted four adults to a probationary relation, and last Sabbath another. We have now on probation ten persons, whom we hope soon, from present indications, to have the pleasure of receiving into church-fellowship. There are still others who are favorably impressed, but who hesitate to enter a relation which severs them from all that is dear in "old custom" and exposes them to every evil and threat which parents and friends can conceive or denounce.

The Chinese believe that vox populi is vox dei; and so powerful is the influence of popular opinion, that nearly all those who do not at all believe in idolatry or its rites, most generally have to submit—especially in matters pertaining to ancestral worship—and follow for the sake of peace the prescribed customs. It is by no means an easy transition for a Chinaman to become a Christian. There is no country perhaps, where there is so much to be given up and so much to be dreaded from such a step. Last December I baptized a young man about 27 years old, who has had unusual trial of his faith and sincerity. His uncle was a man of property, and as he was childless, or at least had no son, he had intimated his intention to adopt this young man and make him heir of his property, his object being to provide in him and through his descendants some one to minister the ancestral rites. On hearing that the young man had determined to join the church, he at once repealed his intention and ejected him from the heirship. In his own family, he was frequently subjected to taunts and jeers, and called the despoiler of his parents and ancestors, and told there was no place in heaven for such a wretch; and on the occasion of the annual worship in behalf of his mother, who died several years since, they thought they would overcome his purpose and prevail on him to abandon the church, but all in vain. And further: the family had some property in the city, the annual rent of which was divided between them, this young man sharing a part. This they refused him and finally made him an outcast and an unwelcome guest even in his own house. I saw him frequently during these trials, and can bear witness to the equanimity with which he bore all these things, and of the steadfastness of purpose with which he clung to the hopes and promises of the Gospel. God grant us many more of like precious faith. Amen. Yours truly,
YOUNG J. ALLEN.
Shanghai, May 23, 1867.

From the Vicksburg Times, August 18:
A Very Melancholy Affair.
On Tuesday evening last, a very gay party of young ladies and gentlemen, some from this city, the remainder residing in the vicinity of that place, were assembled at the residence of Mrs. A. L. Hebron, the respected widow of the late Col. John Hebron, near Bovina, in this county. The evening passed off most pleasantly, and the usual amusement of dancing as mingled with music, conversation, and the promenade beneath a moon of dazzling splendor.

Within the brief space of time that has elapsed since those glad young spirits parted Wednesday morning, seven have uttered their last "good night," and have passed beyond the river of death; twelve others are still ill, and some of them, we regret to say, are quivering between life and death; tottering on the very brink of the grave. Among those who have already perished, we note the names of Miss Rebecca Hebron, Miss Ellen Tribble, Mr. James Billingslea, Wm. Tribble, Hal. Wilkins, Thorton Shreshly and Allen Anter. Those now ill are Miss Mollie Dowling, of this city, Miss Victoria Batchelor and Miss Viola Brabston, of the Bovina neighborhood, and Messrs. Joseph and Alex. Johnston, brothers, Granville, Hicks, Andrew and Henry Bolles, brothers; A. C. Brooks, Capt. J. M. Batchelor, Henry Brabston and William Hunter.

All the parties were similarly affected and each had, we learn, strong symptoms of cholera; but we understand that the medical gentlemen in attendance concur in the opinion that the guests at the party were poisoned, possibly by having some poisonous substance administered in some portion of the food. This opinion is strengthened by the report that such guests as did not participate in the lighter refreshments of the evening—cakes, ices and confections—have experienced no inconvenience. We trust the affair may be thoroughly investigated to the end, that if so horrible a crime as poisoning a large party of innocent young ladies and gentlemen has been committed, the guilty perpetrators of the atrocity may be brought to condign punishment.

In addition to the names of those we have mentioned, we learn that five servants have died from the same cause, and with the same general symptoms, and it is a suspicious fact that each of those servants accompanied some of the guests in the capacity of personal attendants. So far as we learn, none of the servants employed in the house of Mrs. Hebron, the esteemed lady hostess, have suffered in any way. As a matter of course there are many rumors in regard to this mysterious and melancholy affliction, but at present we forbear to mention them.

NOT AMENABLE TO CIVIL AUTHORITY.
Mr. Shepherd, son of Col. Shepherd, who was killed by Capt. Morris Schaff, filed an affidavit before Coroner Delchamps, charging Schaff with the murder of his father. The Coroner referred the matter to Gen. Shepherd, who decided that under existing orders, officers and soldiers of the United States army are not amenable to civil process.—Mobile Times, 11th.

From the Sunday Magazine.

DRAWN UNTO DEATH.

Several miles above Niagara, the majestic river begins to flow quicker, without any marked change, in the first instance, on its appearance. As the stream approaches nearer the precipice it roars and leaps and foams, proclaiming in a voice of thunder to all concerned the coming crisis; but the flow becomes rapid before the Rapids, in tortuous tumult, declare its velocity. While the surface of the water is still smooth and blue, it begins to draw. Woe to the boat's crew that are caught unawares by that silent power! The stream grasps and holds its victims like the gravitation of the spheres.

When a solitary man in a tiny skiff is surprised by this terrible destroyer, oars and sail are of no avail. In spite of frantic efforts, and frantic cries, he is "drawn unto death and ready to be slain." Suppose in such a case one were at hand with the means of deliverance at command, in the form of a steamer accustomed safely to cross or ascend the current—suppose, one were at hand, with power to save, and yet declined to use it. He who should in such a case mind his own business, and permit his brother to perish, would be counted a monster among his kind. The wide world would ring with execration of his cruelty.

David the King gives clear judgment against the rapacious magnate who crushed right under might, and entertained his own guest on his poor neighbor's only lamb. We have many Davids: would that we had a Nathan, with the prophetic power and the prophet-courage, to transfix the whole crowd of transgressors with the old ethereal spear, "Thou art the man."

What were the most effective destroyers of men in the kingdom and time of Solomon, I know not; but in our day and our land the chief enemy of the people is their own intemperance. The vast volume of strong drink is the deceitful Niagara that "draws" the multitude towards death. The fact is obvious and indisputable. I would fain arrest the reader's attention on it for a few moments in the light of God's law: "Thou shalt love thy neighbor as thyself."

In many forms this plague-spot spreads. Perhaps the aspect of it that most deeply wounds an intelligent Christian patriot is the wretchedness which it entails on thousands of little children whose parents should, and but for strong drink, could, maintain them in comfort. With our laws as they now stand, we are well-nigh helpless in presence of the master evil which is sapping the foundations of society before our eyes. The children are naked and hungry; they are not trained at school, but left to the chance influences of the street. They suffer for their parents' sin; and we suffer eventually through the idleness and crimes of adults whose childhood has been irrevocably marred. Yet we are afraid to interfere. If we should simply adopt these children and supply all their wants, we might thereby be setting a premium upon vice. Society as yet has not manifested the wisdom to discover or the courage to apply an effective remedy for this consumption of the commonwealth.

Looking now to the wretched inebriates themselves, we find features in their case fitted to cause dismay, if not absolute despair. The appetite grows slowly, secretly; but ere the patient is well aware of his danger, he is reduced to a state of slavery. He cannot, or, if you prefer another form of expression, he will not, resist. Be it physical or mental, something made up of both, the result is the same—the victim is sucked down towards the gulf like a boat on the Rapids of Niagara. These victims are "drawn unto death" all around us, not in tens or hundreds, but in thousands and tens of thousands.

The condition of these diseased inebriates was given on my heart as with a pen of iron, long ago, by one of the earliest experiences of my ministry. A rumor reached me regarding a gentleman of middle age, that he was suspected of a tendency to indulge in drink. He was a man of liberal education, vigorous intellect, ample means, and abundant charity. He was my friend and benefactor. I was afraid to speak to him on the subject, but I was more afraid to be silent. I feared man much; but in that case at least I feared God more. I went to his house; obtained an interview with him alone; proceeded to wind round and round the bush with many fables to get the subject gently introduced. At last, observing my drift, he said, "I see what you are aiming at; but your tenderness is quite unnecessary; you may speak plainly. I am a drunkard. I shall live a drunkard, and die a drunkard." In the course of our subsequent conversation, he said, "If there are degrees of depth in the place of retribution, the worst will be mine, for I know the right and do the wrong." I do not detail the horrid progress; but in the end he kept his word—he died a drunkard—died of drunkenness. I have known many, in all classes of society, similarly grasped and similarly drawn unto death. The cases are so numerous that, like many drops of water, they constitute a great overflowing steam, that courses over the land and down the generations—a river of death.

In presence of this destroyer, what should be the attitude of a Christian philanthropist? Am I my brother's keeper in the arrangements of our common Father, and do I keep my brother, in point of fact, as God commands me?

Various attitudes are assumed by various persons and classes in regard to the ravages of intemperance.

First of all, some busy themselves in pushing their neighbors into the stream, or at least cheer them on when they enter it of their own accord. In the passage in Proverbs xxiv, which has suggested this paper, there is no reproof addressed to this class of transgressors: "If thou forbear to deliver them that are drawn unto death, and those that are ready to be slain; if thou sayest, Behold, we knew it not; doth not he that pondereth the heart consider it? and he that keepeth thy soul, doth not he know it? and shall not he render to every man according to his work?" The silence of the Scripture regarding their crime is a much more severe condemnation. Like the omission of parricide from the calendar of crimes to which punishments were attached in a celebrated system of jurisprudence, the deed which is not condemned is condemned the most. It is assumed as a thing unspeakable, inconceivable: the prescription of punishment begins with the one that lies beneath it, on the assumption that the higher degree of guilt being so enormous, it may be expected that in a well-regulated commonwealth, a specimen of it will never emerge. In this verse of Scripture at least, those who should in malice or levity hold the cup to the lip of the drunkard, and press it upon his appetite, are not reprov'd and condemned. Leaving these, if any such there should be, without even a warning, it sounds an alarm in the ears of another class, less hardened and less positive in their wickedness.

It is addressed not to the Gaius of the human family, who shed their brother's blood; but to those who are what Cain falsely represented himself to be, indifferent to the fate of a brother, when by other influences he is drawn unto death. The sin here reprov'd is not the sin of taking another's life away, but the cognate sin of not doing your utmost to save another's life when you see it in danger. It is in this respect precisely parallel to the normal fact in the moral teaching of the Lord Jesus, that a man is condemned at God's judgment seat not merely for the positive evil that he may commit, but for even neglecting to employ the talents and opportunities which he enjoys.

What a multitude are these negative offenders! how deep is their guilt, how disastrous its consequences! The question, then, is not—Did you push the drunkard over the precipice into the pit in which he lies? The question is—Did you "forbear to deliver" them that are drawn unto death? It is this question that needs to be brought home to the consciences of Christians. For my own part I have long lived under the conviction that the disciples of Christ in our land, and in our day, sinfully and shamefully neglect their duty in this respect. Men are too cool on the subject. It is wrong to be calm and cool when our brother is perishing. There should be keenness, there should be passion here. We should do well to be angry in such a cause. If every one who hopes in Christ were adequately aroused, and wisely employed in this work, we might soon see a great change in the condition of society. There is as much of soundness yet in the body as might suffice to heal all the unsound parts, if we were awake and astir. It is the dead indifference that ruins us. It is precisely this indifference that the Word of the Lord condemns. The men of Solomon's day were not accused of directly compassing the death of their neighbors; the complaint which the Creator and Judge brings against them is that they sat still and allowed their neighbors to be slain. "If thou sayest, Behold, we knew it not; doth not he that pondereth the heart consider it? and he that keepeth thy soul, doth not he know it? And shall not he render to every man according to his works?"

As to methods, there is room for variety of opinion and diversity of action. I would not demand uniformity in the crusade against the infidel. If I could see a levy in mass of the Christian community, I could bear a very large measure of freedom in the action of the several corps. The main thing needed is a determination in every true man's heart, to do something, each in his place and according to his abilities—something corresponding in effort and energy to the power of the adversary, and the damage he is doing to our country and our King.

Very frequently a strong dash of the ludicrous is thrown into the look and gait and action, of a drunken man. This feature is important. It insensibly leads to lightness in the contemplation of the whole affair. When one is induced to laugh at any fact, he is not likely to take it seriously to heart. It seems as if the Author of Evil had obtained power to throw an air of levity over the scene, that he may not be disturbed in his deeds of murder. We should not be caught in this snare; we should not be thrown off our guard by this device. Granted that on the surface the scene is often laughable, it is certain that beneath it is written all over, Lamentation and woe. Check the mirth if it is suddenly excited; let the mirth be drowned under an instant flood of tears. Let deep compassion for a fallen brother, and strong indignation against his destroyer, and reverence for the creature and the law of God, combine to drive off all levity, as wind drives smoke away. The attitude of the ancient prophet, who wept day and night for the slain of his people, becomes us better than mirth or indifference, in view of the ravages of intemperance.

If a foreign enemy should invade our shores, you might, without risk of mistake, undertake to tell the subject under discussion in every group of two or three that might be seen laying their heads together at a distance in the street. Every man as he met his neighbor would eagerly get or give the latest intelligence of the advance or retreat of the loathed or dreaded enemy. Why should not each man keenly question his fellow for news regarding the greatest destroyer of the population. Why should not every heart burn with desire to repel his advance? Why should not every hand wield some weapon against the common foe? This kind goeth not out by an idle wish, or a fudging fault with the methods of other men. A passionate determination to exterminate the plague must pervade the sound portion of the population. The fiery cross must be carried round ere the tide of this invasion be turned back.

A few years ago a sloop laden with coals was beached on the shore of the Solway, near Wigton, on the Scottish coast, in order that her cargo might be carted away during ebb tide. While the vessel lay high and dry on the sand, some men were sent in beneath her to effect some necessary repairs. While the work was going on, some person outside observed the hull heeling slowly over to one side, and gave the alarm to the workmen. All escaped but one. The ship in leaning over caught his limbs before he had time to creep out, and locked them fast between the hull and the sand. The man lived and spoke, and took counsel with his neighbors, but remained pinioned to the spot. All hands went to work. They tried first by lightening the ship of her cargo, but this method proved too slow; they tried by digging in the sand, but this method also failed; they tried by attaching hawsers to the ship's mast, and setting a great number of men to pull, but their united efforts failed to heel her over to the other side. The men were not able to liberate their comrade. In their abortive efforts a precious hour—the precious hour, for there was but one—had been lost, and now the tide of the Solway came rushing in like a race-horse. All that were free fled before it, and left their imprisoned companion to his fate. The sea soon slackened the grip of the ship's side, and set the captive free; but before it lifted off his burden it had quenched his life. The water drowned him, and then let him go. Deliverance came too late, and his lifeless body was washed up in the surf.

Calamities greater in extent frequently occur among our seamen, but I do not remember one that was so excruciating in its nature, and cut so keenly into the people's heart. The living man saw the tide approaching, but could not get out of its way; felt the water wetting his hair—felt it cold, covering his brow, and yet must needs lie still—lay still till it stifled him; and this with the whole town turned out on the beach, spectators. I suppose there was no dry eye in Wigton during that awful hour. I suppose there were few who slept deeply on the following night. It is right that man should be shaken in the depths of his being by witnessing a brother so miserably perishing.

We must not deceive ourselves. We see multitudes caught as fast between their own appetites and the fiery flood which these appetites feed on—caught and held till a tide, mightier than that of the Solway, comes up with its awful rescue. They cannot wrench themselves away. It is better in such a case to lose a limb, and save the life; but, alas! neither the man who perished in the waters of the Sol-way, nor the men who perish by drink, have strength, even though they had the will, to tear off the limb in order to save the life. Where physical disease and moral depravity clasp and close in upon each other, the soul is overlaid and quenched between. Although the prisoner were willing to part with the right arm, he cannot get it severed. It holds him till the tide rise, and he dies.

With an earnestness equal to that displayed by the neighbors at Wigton, and with a skill superior, we might save our brother. We could, if we would. By the power of love in all the earlier stages, and by the power of law, if the madness proceed to extremities, the community should arise in its might, and rescue the man from himself.

WILLIAM ARNOT.

From the Southern Review.

The North and the South.

The contest between the North and the South is, indeed, older than the Constitution. Two conflicts between them arose under the old Articles of Confederation. One related to the territory of Virginia, and the other to the navigation of the Mississippi. In the great and protracted quarrel of the two sections, the question of territory was, in fact, the apple of discord which disturbed their Union, which incessantly agitated the ocean-bound Republic from shore. No question, then, could possibly be more interesting to one, who may desire to trace that terrible quarrel to its sources, or comprehend the real nature of its causes. The two great contests above mentioned are, in a most especial manner, worthy of our consideration; because they exhibit the struggle for power between the North and the South in all its naked simplicity, unmixed with the question of slavery, which, by the great majority of writers on the 'American Conflict,' is absurdly considered as the sole cause of the wild distraction of the 'Model Republic.' The history of this pre-constitutional period throws, indeed, a marvellous light on all the periods, and struggles, and convulsions, which have followed it; and yet, strange to say, it seems to have been totally neglected by most of those who have ventured to grapple with the vast and complicated problem respecting the origin of the late war. If we would either begin at the beginning of the great quarrel in question, or clearly comprehend its principles and causes, we should examine the pre-constitutional period of the united Sections, and study the two great struggles by which they were then and there agitated.

The territory of Virginia, previous to the formation of the new Union, was sufficient to support a vast empire within its own limits. With such possessions, it would, perhaps, have been impossible to form a new Union with the other States; so great was their jealousy, even at that early period, of 'the mother of States and of Statesmen.' This difficulty was removed by an act on the part of Virginia, which is without a parallel in the history of America, if not in the history of the world. She not only conveyed to the United States all her territory north-west of the Ohio River, but, by the ordinance of 1787, she forever dedicated it to the non-slaveholding power of the North. Out of the territory thus ceded, the great States of Ohio, Indiana, Illinois, Michigan, Wisconsin, Minnesota, and Dacotah, have been carved, and admitted into the Union; by which the balance of power was permanently and heavily settled in favor of the North. These States, as every one knows, were lately engaged with the North, in a fierce and relentless war against Virginia. The North has never ceased to admire and eulogize, in magnificent terms, this great act of generous self-sacrifice, of voluntary dismemberment, for the sake of the Union, on the part of Virginia; and if the North had only imitated her example, either in deed or in spirit, the order, harmony, peace, and glory of the New World would still have been preserved. But it is more easy to admire than to imitate such deeds.

This territory had been ceded by Virginia to the United States as early as 1783. In 1784, a Committee of Congress reported a proposition to divide the territory thus ceded into ten States, and to admit each State into the Union as soon as its population should become equal to that of the least State already in the Confederation; a measure designed to augment the relative power of the North. The South voted with Virginia to cede her north-western territory to the Union; but she resisted the design to make as many as ten States out of that territory. Thus, in the very first struggle between the two sections, the North manifested her lust of empire, her hallowed desire of unchecked dominion; while the South aimed to preserve her independence in the Union. Thus presenting, in its pure unmixed form, the type of every succeeding contest for power between them.

Nor is this all. In ceding to the Union the territory north-west of the Ohio, and in dedicating it to the Northern power by forbidding the existence of slavery therein, the South insisted on two stipulations. First, that not more than five States should ever be made out of said territory; and, secondly, that all fugitive slaves, whether found in the territory or in States afterwards made out of it, should be surrendered to their owners. It was upon these two express stipulations, or terms of agreement, that the vast territory in question was ceded to the United States, by Virginia and the other Southern States. Both were inserted in the great compact or ordinance of 1787, and both were disregarded by the North.

Seven States, instead of five,—the largest number allowed by the ordinance of '87,—were carved out of the territory ceded by Virginia, and admitted into the Union. Congress, as we have already said, designed to make ten States out of that territory, or exactly twice as many as the maximum number prescribed by the solemn compact of cession. 'The United States,' says Rufus King, of Massachusetts, 'are now admitted to be proprietors of the country north-west of the Ohio. Congress, by one of their ordinances, have impolitically laid it out into ten States, and have made it a fundamental article of compact with those who may become settlers, that as soon as the number in any one State shall equal that of the smallest of the thirteen original States, it may claim admission into the Union. Delaware does not contain, it is computed, more than thirty-five thousand souls; and for obvious reasons will not increase much more for a considerable time. It is possible, then, that if this plan be persisted in by Congress, ten new votes may be added, (to the Northern scale), without a greater addition of inhabitants than are represented by the single vote of Pennsylvania.* Such was the sense of justice and equality in the boasted halcyon days of the great 'Model Republic!' Even if there had been no compact forbidding the formation of more than five States out of said territory, such haste in the erection of ten minimum States therefrom, with the design to admit them into the Union as soon as possible, evinced an inordinate and unblushing desire to destroy the equilibrium of power between the two sections, and place the supreme control of the whole country in the hands of the North. In vain was that provision inserted in the ordinance of 1787. In vain was precisely the same clause introduced into the compact of the Constitution in the same year. Both obligations were equally despised and trampled under foot by Northern States.

It has been alleged, that the laws in question were designed, not to defeat the obligation to surrender fugitives from service, but solely and exclusively to protect the free blacks of the North. But a pretext so flimsy, a gloss so transparent, a sham so hypocritical and hollow, deceived no one. The very persons who offered it, knew it to be utterly unfounded and false. It merely aggravated the wrong it was intended to veil from vulgar eyes. It is bad enough to be robbed of one's constitutional rights; but to justify the robbery on such grounds, is to add insult to injury, and to render the sense of injustice and wrong all the more keen and intolerable.

It has also been said, that the agreement respecting fugitive slaves was immoral, and, consequently, not binding in the forum of conscience. If so, then it should have been treated like all other immoral compacts; that is, it should have been regarded as utterly null and void, and set aside in toto. But it was far more agreeable to the peculiar genius of our Northern masters to hold the compact null and void in so far as it protected the South, and sacred in so far as it benefited the North. That part of the compact they repudiated, and this they enforced at the point of the bayonet. Nay, the very men who were foremost in denouncing and repudiating one side of the compact, were fiercest in the enforcement of the other side by fire and sword, by devastation and measureless ruin. Is it not true, then, that when the South entered into the compact of the Constitution, as well as into that other 'sacred compact' of 1787, she made 'an agreement with hell and a covenant with death?' It has certainly proved so to her.

Massachusetts, says John Quincy Adams, 'was a colony of conscience.' It has produced conscience of all sorts, sizes, and complexions. Some hard and rigid as cast iron; others soft and flexible as India rubber. But the most wonderful variety of all is, the class of consciences which are soft and rigid, or hard and flexible, by turns, or as occasion may require. One conscience of this description, for example, takes an oath to support the Constitution, and then, in the face of heaven and earth, denounces the Constitution as 'a compact at war with the law of nature written on the heart and consciences of freemen.* A second, rendered equally flexible by the love of office, swears to support the Constitution; and yet wages an incessant and furious war against its compromises as 'infamously corrupt bargains.† A third, in the same oath; but it does so 'with mental reservation.‡ Now, would it not be just as well to enter a compact with the Old Serpent at once, as with a colony of such consciences? Instead of being like good, honest consciences, erect as sunbeams, are they not as slippery as eels, or snakes, in a barrel of soft soap? Who can hold them? Of all the creeping and crawling things that ever proceeded from the great 'colony of conscience,' this vile progeny of the 'false worm,' seems to have been the most successful and the most highly honored. Nothing can impede their onward and their upward course. They just wriggle, and wriggle, and twist themselves through all the filthy avenues and disgusting alleys of party politics into highest places of honor and profit; and, once clothed with a little brief authority, they show themselves as malignant in the possession, as they had been grovelling and mean in the pursuit, of power.

*Mr. Seward. †Mr. Sumner. ‡Mr. Chase.

An Important Question.

ARE THE NEGROES OF THE SOUTH TO CONTROL THE LEGISLATION OF THE COUNTRY?

The great question—"are the negroes of the South to control the legislation of the country?" should determine the action of the whites of the North at the ensuing elections. In its connection with the other issue of the Radical disunionists, to extend suffrage to negroes of the North, by act of Congress, over-riding State legislation, the Radicals must go to the wall, if the canvass against them be tolerably conducted. The Southern States, as things are going, under the imperious rescripts of the military satraps, in fraud of the rights of whites to register under the law, Congress, will be a unit of negro ascendancy. So being, the representatives of said States, negro and whites, will very easily, in connection with the representatives of the Northern States of the New England stamp of politics, overbear in the councils of the nation the great States of New York, Pennsylvania, Ohio, Indiana, Illinois, Kentucky, Missouri, etc. Thus the present stamp reconstruction is of deepest interest to the latter. They should prefer white ascendancy in the South; but they are now powerless to effect the object. They can only act on the defensive, and seek by an overwhelming condemnation at the polls within their own borders to inaugurate a public expression in the North that shall overbear and destroy the mischievous effect, prospectively, that is menaced by united negro representation of the South in Congress and the electoral college.

This should be the idea that Democrats and Conservatives should tender to the negro party in the North. Speakers and pressmen should "cease not day nor night" in expatiating upon it, until the last bay is fought in the behalf of the people against congressional usurpation, military despotism, and negro ascendancy. In a word, are negroes acting as they do, in a solid body under the lead of white demagogues to rule this country, or the mass of the white population?—National Intelligencer.

AN O'ER TRUE TALE.—In a recent speech at St. Paul, Minnesota, Geo. H. Pendleton gave the following startling array of figures:

AMOUNT OF TAXES COLLECTED LAST YEAR.

| | |
|----------------------|---------------|
| In the United States | $580,000,000 |
| In Great Britain | 480,000,000 |
| In France | 370,000,000 |

THE TAX BASIS OF REAL AND PERSONAL PROPERTY.

| | |
|------------------|------------------|
| In the U. States | $16,000,000,000 |
| In Great Britain | 36,000,000,000 |
| In France | 40,000,000,000 |

England and France have no local taxes, while the United States, in addition to the above, have State, county, and municipal taxes amounting to nearly $250,000,000.

From a comparison of the above figures it will be seen that while French despotism collects 97 cents on every hundred dollars, and English aristocracy $1.33, our Radical "best government the world ever saw," collects $5.18! On each twenty dollars we unfortunately hold, Uncle Sam levies an annual tax of one dollar! This is indeed a great country—for taxes.

The New York Herald, in an editorial on the "development of the political struggle," says it goes "deeper than the skin," and demands that the "foundations of our Government rest upon educated brains."

*Madison papers, p. 1033.

A HYMN IN DISTRESS.

BY JAMES AYIN BARTLEY.

My God, my God are great and strong,
The billows compass me,
The yast, unbounded tumult sweeps
On a tempestuous sea.

No rescue greets my straining eyes,
No faintly flickering star
Shines in these night-enveloped skies,
With cheerful beam afar.

Low roar the dork, remorseless deeps,
And louder thunders roll,
The vast, unbounded tumult sweeps
From trembling pole to pole.

My God! I sink, even now I die,
Depleted and powerless worm,
Unless thou leave the upper sky,
And still the dreadful storm.

O Jesus, God, my God, to save,
Nor let me perish now,
And on thy face my heart shall grave
In lasting, grateful vow!

District Meeting of M. E. Church.

The Union Springs District Meeting

at Montgomery Conference, convened at Pine Level, Montgomery county, Ala., July 18, 1867. There were no Bishops present the meeting was presided over by Rev. J. B.

Cottrell, P. E., J. W. Shores was

secretary and N. B. Horne moderator.

Including the Presiding Elder

there were thirteen pastors present, thirty local preachers and forty-five members; in all seventy-three members.

Reports were presented from all pastoral charges except one, giving statistics and showing the state of the Church and Sunday Schools.

Committees were raised on the following subjects, viz: The state of the Church, Church Extensions,

Sunday Schools, Missions, Parson-ages, Finance, Education, the Bible

Cause and Religious Literature.

The following resolution, offered by Col. R. H. Powell, was referred to the Committee on Church Extension, to wit:

Resolved, That the Committee on Church Extension be instructed to consider, and embody in their report the question of such modification of the labors of the Presiding Elders, as will secure to the Church the benefits of their supervision, and yet exempt them from the useless and exhaustive travel which the present plan imposes upon them.

The following Report embodies the most important action of this meeting:

ON CHURCH EXTENSION.

The committee, through J. W.

Shores, expressed themselves as being convinced that it is the imperative duty of the Church to so extend its labors and operations as to occupy all the territory within the bounds of the District, and thus place the Gospel within the reach of all the people; that to effectually establish and build up the Church at every point, and in every community, preaching on the Sabbath is necessary. That it is the interest of the Church that the circuits be reduced to not more than four appointments whenever it is at all practicable, because the people can thereby have pastoral attention and oversight, which is, evidently, a felt necessity; and where two churches, or even one, in the country, having a considerable membership, and a large congregation wish to become a station, their request be granted,

as well as that of the town or village; if they be able to support a pastor, and it will not too seriously interfere with other Churches to be thus set off. That the reduction of the size of circuits is important, if it be necessary to employ local preachers to serve some of the charges, or to make appropriations from the missionary fund to help maintain them, until they become self-sustaining.

That the request to make Greenville a station, to form a new circuit of parts of Brundidge, Elba and Alt circuits, and a new circuit of part of Union circuit, be considered by the Quarterly Conference of these charges, and their action submitted to the Bishop at the next session of our annual conference.

In regard to the resolution referred to them relative to the modification of the work of the Presiding

Elders, the committee, in view of the extent of the territory, recommend the Bishop, at the next session of our annual conference, to divide this district into two. They and represent them in the Bishop's council in making the appointments.

Thus the territory of districts might be diminished, the exhaustive travel and much expense dispensed with,
and all the ends of the Presiding Elder's office at the same time be met. And by transferring the licensing of men to preach from the quarterly to the district conference, the interest of the latter would be increased, and the entrance of men into the work of ministry much better guarded than it is now.

The committee recommend the employment of a missionary to travel through the District, to organize churches in the destitute sections;

to act as colporteur in the distribution of books, and in establishing Sabbath Schools. The P. E. to engage a local preacher, if a member of the conference cannot be spared.

Assessments for the Conference and Bishops' fund, in Union Springs

District, made by the Committee on Finance.

| | Conf. Collec. | Bishops' |
|-------------------------|---------------|----------|
| Union Springs | $100 00 | 40 00 |
| Union Circuit | 100 00 | 30 00 |
| Ramer | 50 00 | 15 00 |
| Rockey Mount | 50 00 | 15 00 |
| Troy and Orion | 50 00 | 15 00 |
| South Butler | 25 00 | 10 00 |
| Elba | 25 00 | 10 00 |
| Greenville, Ft. Deposit | 100 00 | 30 00 |
| Greenville Circuit | 25 00 | 10 00 |
| Brundidge | 75 00 | 20 00 |
| Millville | 25 00 | 10 00 |
| Mt. Ida | 25 00 | 10 00 |

Two Methodist Churches.

The following is a short clear statement of the true attitude of the two branches of the Methodist Church North, and South toward each other, from the Morristown,

Pa., Gazette. We commend its perusal to all who wish to refresh their memories, or verify their positions:

The Methodist Episcopal Church in the United States, was divided in 1844 by the consent of the General Conference, which was the law making power of the Church, and under a written contract or plan of separation, carefully prepared and passed by an almost unanimous vote of that body.

The division had nothing of the nature of secession in it, but was simply organizing the Church under two general conferences, instead of one, and dividing by a geographical line, designated and agreed upon in the plan. When that division took place by consent and arrangement of the law making power of the Church, as it certainly did, the Church South of that line was then, and is today the original Methodist Episcopal Church in the States South, and the Church North of that line, is the Methodist Episcopal Church in the States North, and in the very nature of the case, the Church North of that line, is as much a "sectional"

Church as that in the South.
After the division it was necessary that there should be some distinction in the name of the two Churches, and the Church South of the line, added the word South to the name to make that distinction, and to prevent confusion. It means the Methodist Episcopal Church, in the States South, and never was intended to mean anything else. Now that this is the original Methodist Church in these States, no man in his senses will deny, I presume—

All the working machinery of that Church that was put in motion in this southern country, in the early settlements continues unimpaired to this day—the records of Annual and Quarterly conferences dating back to the first meetings that were organized.

The Church north of the line of division, retained the name that the whole Church had before the division, but does the name make the northern division the "mother Church" or the "old Church," as some would try to make us believe?

I think not, for the very facts in the case show that it is not so. There would be just as much truth and reason in the Methodist Church in the North claiming to be the "mother Church," as that in the North, for we are the original Church here, just as they are there. One can no more be the "mother" of the other,

according to the facts in the case, than one twin sister can be the mother of the other.

South, has existed in Tennessee and every other Southern State, from the very earliest settlement of the country, and is of course, the original Methodist Church of these States; and how any man, on leaving this Church and joining the Northern division which has come and organized since the war can believe and feel that he is going back into the "old" or "mother Church" is a strange thing to me.

That the above is a correct view of the separation of the Church in 1844, and of the present relations of the two branches is proven by the plan of separation itself, and by the able and just decision of the Supreme Court of the United States, on the property question, in this case, as well as by the additional fact, that all of the northern Bishops as well as the southern, observed, and were governed in their appointments, for 20 years, by the plan of separation.

POLITICAL NEWS.
A General Amnesty.
PROCLAMATION BY THE PRESIDENT OF
THE UNITED STATES.

The following proclamation was issued by the President, on Saturday morning last:

Whereas, In the month of July,
A. D. 1861, the two houses of Congress, with extraordinary unanimity, solemnly declared that the war then existing was not waged on the part of the Government in any spirit of oppression, nor for any purpose of conquest or subjugation nor purpose of overthrowing or interfering with the rights or established institutions of the States, but to defend and maintain the supremacy of the Constitution and to preserve the Union with all the dignity, equality and rights of the several States unimpaired, and that as soon as these objects should be accomplished, the war ought to cease; and

Whereas, The President of the United States did, on the twenty-ninth day of May, A. D. 1865, issue a further proclamation with the same objects before mentioned, and to the end that the authority of the Government of the United States might be restored, and that peace and order and freedom might be established; and the President did,

by the last mentioned proclamation, proclaim and did declare that he thereby granted to all persons who had directly or indirectly participated in the then existing rebellion, except as therein excepted, amnesty and pardon, with restoration of all rights of property except as to slaves, and except in certain cases where legal proceedings had been instituted—but upon condition that such persons should take and subscribe an oath therein prescribed, which oath should be registered for permanent preservation; and

Whereas, In and by the said last mentioned proclamation of the 27th day of May, A. D. 1865, fourteen extensive classes of persons therein specially described, were altogether excepted and excluded from the benefits thereof; and

Whereas, The President of the United States did, on the 2d day of April, A. D. 1866, issue a proclamation declaring that the insurrection was at an end, and was thenceforth to be so regarded; and

Whereas, There now exists no organized armed resistance of misguided citizens or others to the authority of the United States in the States of Georgia, South Carolina,

Virginia, North Carolina, Tennessee,

Alabama, Louisiana, Arkansas, Mis-issippi, Florida and Texas, and the laws can be sustained and enforced therein by the proper civil authorities, State or Federal, and the people of said States are well and loyally disposed, and have conformed, or if permitted to do so, will conform, in their legislation, to the condition of affairs growing out of the amendment to the Constitution of the United States prohibiting slavery within the limits and jurisdiction of the United States; and

Whereas, There no longer exists any reasonable ground to apprehend within the States which were involved in the late rebellion, any renewal thereof, or any unlawful resistance by the people of said States to the Constitution and laws of the United States; and

Whereas, large standing armies,

military occupation, martial law,

military tribunals, and the suspension of the privilege of the writ of habeas corpus and the right of trial

by jury, are in time of peace dangerous to public liberty, incompatible with the individual rights of the citizen, contrary to the genius and spirit of our free institutions, and exhaustive of the national resources, and ought not, therefore, to be sustained or allowed, except in cases of actual necessity for repelling invasion, or suppressing insurrection or rebellion; and

Whereas, A retaliatory or vindictive policy, attended by unnecessary disqualification, pains, penalties, confiscation and disfranchisements, now as always, could only tend to hinder reconciliation among the people, and national restoration, while it must seriously embarrass and obstruct and repress popular energies, and national industry and enterprise; and

Whereas, For these reasons it is now deemed essential to the public welfare, and to the more perfect restitution of constitutional law and order, that the said last mentioned

Proclamation so as aforesaid issued, on the 29th day of May, A. D. 1865, should be modified, and that the full and beneficial pardon conceded thereby should be opened and further extended to a large number of the persons who by its aforesaid exceptions have been hitherto excluded from Executive clemency;

Now, therefore, he it known that

I, Andrew Johnson, President of the United States, do hereby proclaim and declare that the full pardon described in the said proclamation of the twenty-ninth day of May,

Anno Domini, 1865, shall henceforth be opened and extended to all persons who, directly or indirectly, participated in the late rebellion

Official Organ of the Montgomery, Mobile, Mississippi, and Louisiana Conferences of the M. E. Church South.

Office: 112 Camp Street.

TERMS OF SUBSCRIPTION:
THREE DOLLARS A YEAR.
Invariably in Advance.
Address: REV. J. C. KEENER,
112 Camp Street, New Orleans.

AGENTS:
All the Members of the Patronizing Conferences

PUBLISHING COMMITTEES.

FOR MOBILE CONFERENCE:

Rev. J. Hamilton, D.D.,
Rev. A. H. Mitchell, D.D.,
Rev. Theo. W. Dorman, D.D.

FOR MONTGOMERY CONFERENCE:

Rev. M. S. Andrews,
Rev. William A. Shepard,
Rev. J. B. Cottrell.

FOR MISSISSIPPI CONFERENCE:

Rev. W. H. Watkins, D.D.,
Rev. H. H. Montgomery,
Rev. William P. Barton.

FOR LOUISIANA CONFERENCE:

Rev. J. C. Keener, D.D.,
Rev. J. B. Walker, D.D.,
Rev. L. H. Parker.

New Orleans:

SATURDAY, SEPT. 14, 1867.

To SUBSCRIBERS.—Any person wishing to subscribe for this paper can do so, by paying the Methodist preacher in the circuit, and forwarding to us his receipt for three dollars, with the address of the subscriber upon it, stating Post office, State, Circuit, and Conference. The receipt ought to be taken in duplicate.

NEW BOOKS.

The WESTERN HARP, a Collection of Social and Revival Hymns: third Edition. St. Louis, P. M. Pinckard, 73 and 80 Pine street, 1867.

This is a book of holy songs after the style, and looking much like "Sacred Melodies": excellent for revival meetings. It has the common defect of all such, it has not in it "the old ship of Zion." Why not? What do publishers mean by professing to supply Methodist songs, and leave out the most popular and characteristic one of all. Price 75 cts. for sale by Rev. R. J. Harp, 112 Camp street, New Orleans.

The American Agriculturist, comes to us laden with its usual rich freight. It is certainly the best paper of the kind we have seen. It spares no expense, is full of interesting facts, and is afforded at the very low price of $1.50. Publishers; Orange, Judd, & Co., 41 Park Row, New York.

New Orleans Daily Mortuary Report.

Dr. Dirmeyer, Secretary of the Board of Health, furnishes the following daily report of deaths in the city, beginning with Aug. 12th, at 6 A. M.:

| Date | Yellow Fever | Cholera | Other Diseases | Total |
|---------|--------------|---------|----------------|-------|
| Aug. 12 | 2 | 0 | 26 | 28 |
| 13 | 5 | 1 | 27 | 33 |
| 14 | 5 | 1 | 31 | 37 |
| 15 | 2 | 1 | 23 | 25 |
| 16 | 1 | 1 | 22 | 24 |
| 17 | 5 | 2 | 20 | 27 |
| 18 | 6 | 3 | 31 | 40 |
| 19 | 12 | 0 | 22 | 34 |
| 20 | 11 | 2 | 19 | 32 |
| 21 | 10 | 0 | 13 | 23 |
| 22 | 4 | 0 | 23 | 27 |
| 23 | 1 | 1 | 19 | 21 |
| 24 | 19 | 1 | 29 | 49 |
| 25 | 14 | 1 | 17 | 32 |
| 26 | 15 | 1 | 22 | 38 |
| 27 | 14 | 0 | 22 | 36 |
| 28 | 15 | 0 | 17 | 32 |
| 29 | 20 | 0 | 27 | 47 |
| 30 | 26 | 0 | 25 | 51 |
| 31 | 22 | 1 | 19 | 42 |
| Sept. 1 | 17 | 0 | 18 | 35 |
| 2 | 30 | 1 | 22 | 53 |
| 3 | 25 | 0 | 29 | 54 |
| 4 | 26 | 0 | 16 | 42 |
| 5 | 44 | 0 | 22 | 66 |
| 6 | 30 | 0 | 24 | 54 |
| 7 | 43 | 0 | 23 | 66 |
| 8 | 49 | 0 | 17 | 66 |
| 9 | 51 | 1 | 26 | 78 |
| 10 | 42 | 0 | 18 | 60 |
| 11 | 67 | 1 | 18 | 86 |
| 12 | 61 | 1 | 27 | 89 |

THE FEVER IN THE ARMY AND NAVY. We are indebted to Gen. Hartuff for the following list of deaths occurring up to date, from yellow fever in the army and navy, so far as the incomplete record in the assistant adjutant general's office goes.

| Date | Died in Quarters | In Hospital | In Navy |
|-------------|------------------|-------------|---------|
| July | 1 | 3 | 0 |
| August | 3 | 27 | 0 |
| September 3 | 0 | 2 | 0 |
| " 4 | 0 | 2 | 0 |
| " 5 | 0 | 4 | 0 |
| " 6 | 0 | 2 | 0 |
| " 7 | 0 | 2 | 0 |
| " 8 | 0 | 2 | 1 |
| " 9 | 0 | 8 | 4 |
| " 10 | 0 | 1 | 0 |

CALVERTON, Sept. 11.—Rev. J. P. Perham, president of the Howard association, died at Corpus Christi on the 20th of August.

Dr. Samuel Adams, assistant surgeon U. S. A., died on the 9th inst. Also, Dr. Grant and son, of this city.

Total deaths from yellow fever on the 9th, 32. Ten cases from the revenue cutter Delaware were admitted to the city hospital today.

The fever has made its appearance at LaGrange, Brumham, and other interior towns.

At Lavaca there were several deaths during last week; but there are comparatively few new cases.

THE AMNESTY PROCLAMATION.

The Proclamation of the President declaring the Constitution to be the Law of the Land, and the Declaration of a General Amnesty are highly significant, if we can only find out what they mean. Who can tell us? Do either of them, or both of them, mean that the Constitution—and not the Military Bill, is the law henceforth to be observed in the South; or, are we to understand that the Military status of the South is to remain, and also the Constitution? These to our mind are the incompatibles: a reconstruction bill depriving States of Representation, disfranchising their citizens, removing their Governors and Judges, and placing every civilian's life in the hands of a Military Commander; and, on the other hand, an asserted and recognized Constitution which secures to these very States, and to every man in them, the rights which have been thus invaded. Are these Southern States under the Constitution; or, under Military Rule; are they still States, or Conquered Territories? If the proclamation means anything, it means restoration—from a condition in which the bayonet determines the law to that condition of things which existed before the War. We wait to see what it means.

As for Amnesty, we thought once that the word, or the thing, had been well defined, we complied with its solemn conditions, and were prepared to receive its benefits. But citizenship was not one of them; then over and above that Amnesty, there came an Appendix, a Surplus of Reconstruction and pardon, requiring additional oaths, deeper, more searching, and more thoroughly purging the rebel conscience. We have seen quiet, inoffensive, peace-seeking men who told us they had also taken this additional step, and with honest intent; but that so far from realizing any benefits in themselves therefrom, "they rather grew worse." They were too fast, because by waiting a little longer, they might at the same time have taken a third dose of clemency in the shape of a Supplementary, Extraordinary, Reconstruction oath, and suffered probably no additional nausea. Now, after all this straining and gulping, the Registrars set down these very persons as "doubtful," and then scratch them off as only fit to be disfranchised.

In this condition of affairs, there now comes forth the beneficent announcement of another full Amnesty, fresh and complete. What will it do for those whose names have been scratched off by the Military Judges of Election?—will it give any man a vote that has been arbitrarily debarred that right? That is the question. If the President means anything he means everything for the South: and we wait with solicitude to see with what sustained authority he formally announces to us a full pardon, and forgetfulness of the past. Hitherto, we confess, Mr. Johnson seems to have been engaged in a huge child's play, in his reconstruction policy. He has done everything with two motions, the one directly opposite to the other: his measures have sounded well, but signified nothing. Hesitancy is stamped upon the face of the documents themselves. The next thirty days will determine him to be a man of uncommon sagacity, strength of will, and activity, or demonstrate him to be the victim of an utter misconception of his own resources. There remains to him now no middle course, he is in positive, plain, open conflict with the Congress, a Congress which assumes to be the judge of the constitutionality of its own laws. As the Supreme Court has declared itself not the determiner of the powers of the other two Departments of the Government, the Executive is left to decide for himself the constitutional limits of his action. His views do not accord with those of the Legislative Department. Who, what shall decide between them? It is to be hoped that the people of the South will not be victims of this conflict.

THE SOUTHERN REVIEW.

The July number of this Quarterly, is the first which we have received as an exchange. It is published in Baltimore. Albert Taylor Bledsoe, and Wm. Brown, are editors and proprietors. It is "intended to supply the need of an organ for Southern men of letters, and of a high class of periodical literature for Southern readers." "We desire," say the Editors, "this Review to represent the South, not as a party, but as a people. Politics, however, in the highest sense of the word—as gathered from the teachings of history and philosophy, will not be excluded from its pages. The causes and consequences of the late war, and the various questions to which it has given rise, will from time to time be temperately discussed; not with the view of awakening acrimony or vindictive feeling, but of drawing profit from the experience of the past."

The subject of Education will form a prominent topic in the pages of THE SOUTHERN REVIEW. The Southern people are awake, to the fact that we can no longer trust the mental and moral training to teachers and books imported from abroad. It is our desire to bring before them what the most judicious of our own thinkers and scholars have thought in this matter, together with all the more interesting questions of the day, pertaining to literature, art, science, or philosophy, will, as occasion serves, be treated in our pages.

The present is the third number of Vol. II. Its contents are, Ireland and her Miseries—The Atlantic Cable—John Stuart Mill, and Dr. Leiber on Liberty—The Maid—Picaresco Romances—Xantippe and Socrates—Causes of Sectional Discontent—Davis and Lee—Book Notices. It is only necessary to peruse one number of this Review, to be satisfied that the South has at last found a tongue which can speak, and which will make itself heard, both in this country, and in Europe. No publication or periodical of the North, that we have access to, or of England, indicates any higher ideal of periodical literature. To those acquainted with Mr. Bledsoe in his "Theodicy," or his work on "Liberty," it is enough to say, that his peculiar power of reasoning, and of lucid statement runs through, and gives expression to this Quarterly. His logical grasp reminds us in its firmness, more of an iron instrument than of a mental process. No writer in the department of philosophy, moral, or mental, can surpass him in the application of an ascertained truth. His exposure of fallacy and inconsistency in an opponent is unrelenting and remorseless.

This Review is the power which, more than any other, will meet those writers that from every press in the North send forth, partial and false contributions to make the future History of the War of the States. The defence of the principles of Southern legislation, and action, can be more effectively secured and reach farther in a work of this kind than in the more ponderous and set form of a regular History. Southern statements will go out accompanied and strengthened by Southern thought and learning. It will not merely be the opinion and word of the Southern historian, but of the philosopher as well of the man of science, which will command the respect and belief of the world. For once the Lion is to be the Sculptor. These gentlemen at the North have for a long time had it their own way; what with their teeming dailies, their false histories, and their illustrated weeklies, they feel to have all the conscience and all the heroism that remains to fallen man. Let us wait awhile; it is barely possible that it can be shown to them that they have despaired too soon and too seriously of finding truth or virtue outside of themselves.

We give in this week's paper a specimen of this able work in the article "North and South" which we commend to our readers. We will gladly forward to this Review the name of any one who may wish to subscribe for it: price five dollars, in advance; office of publication, No. 6 St. Paul street, Baltimore: address Wm. Hand Browne.

THE TWO SAMARITANS.

One of the Methodist Clergymen of this city, was called last week to visit a young man who was dying with the yellow fever. He was lying in part of a tenement occupied by a man and his wife, who were praying over the sick youth with touching solicitude. They were evidently poor, living in a reduced way, up stairs. Upon leaving the sick bed the minister was detained for a moment on the gallery of the house by rain. There he learned from an Irish woman on the same landing that the youth was not a son of the two tenants but only a friend; that they had nursed him with wonderful care, and had parted with everything they had to purchase medicine and comforts for him. On the lower gallery an old man, a Norwegian, spoke of the upstairs tenants, that he had never seen greater kindness, that they had pawned everything they had for the sick man. Upon learning this, Mr. H. went back to the sick room and handed the lady five dollars, which she would receive only as a loan and because "they had not a dollar left," and as her husband had been sick and had "not earned one hundred dollars in many months." On his next visit the minister found the youth dead, and suggested that they had better give the city authorities notice, that the corpse might be buried. The man replied, with earnestness, that he could not bear the idea of letting his friend be buried in the Potter's field, that it was his dear friend who had been with him during all the Virginia Campaign, that though in time of war he could see his comrades buried any where, with scarcely a shovel full of earth to cover them, that now he could not bear the thought of his friend being "buried like a dog," and he added that if there was any possible way to borrow enough money to give him a decent burial that he and his wife would go out to service until the amount was paid back. The preacher made the arrangement for the youths' having a decent burial: still insisting that they will pay it back.

Thank God that there are two such people as this man and woman still living in the world!

REV. JESSE P. PERHAM.

The "Corpus Christi Advertiser" announces the death of this excellent and most useful minister. He was chairman of a Society for aiding the sick of Corpus Christi; died of yellow fever. The spread of this terrible scourge throughout that part of Texas is most heart-rending. We heard yesterday a letter read which detailed the death of four persons, mutual friends, all within few days of each other. Our earliest ministerial life is associated in memory with the preaching of Brother Perham. He filled several important appointments in the Alabama Conference and contributed much to the establishment and spread of Methodism in the Canebrake. He was a man of active mind, vigorous and sensible in everything he undertook; a most practical and successful preacher. The last time he was in the City he preached in Felicita Street, and was evidently a workman that "needed not to be ashamed." He has been a useful man everywhere. For seven years he has been local: he was a practical mechanic and labored for several years as such in Prattville. He aided largely, by public speeches, in interesting the people of Alabama in their Railroads. Late-ly he has been engaged in a stock farm in the neighborhood of Corpus Christi, still preaching heartily and frequently, at protracted meetings and delighting in the work of the Master. His power of illustration was of a high order, his elocution pleasing, the treatment of his subject forcible, original, and contemplated immediate effect. He ought probably to have remained in the itinerancy always: but was, may be, the best judge of the line indicated for him by the Spirit, as he lived, and died a highly useful man. His good every-day sense and cheerfulness made him an agreeable companion. We hope that some one will furnish us with a detailed statement of his latest hours.

PREMIUM OFFERED.

The General Conference of 1858 adopted the following Report of the Committee on Books and Periodicals:

The Committee on Books and Periodicals report that they have reconsidered the resolutions of C. D. Oliver and G. W. Carter, and recommend the adoption of the following resolution, viz:

Resolved, That the Book Editor be requested to prepare or cause to be prepared a Catechism or Compendium of the History, Polity, Doctrines, and Ordinances of the Methodist Episcopal Church, South, which shall be submitted to the Bishops for approval, and, when approved, it shall be published by the Book Agent, as soon as convenient. Respectfully,
J. B. McFERRIN, Chairman.
May 29 1858.

Circumstances prevented the publication of the work in question before the war, and the General Conference of 1866 adopted the Report on Sunday-schools in which occurs the following item:

3. That the General Conference sanctions the publication of a regular progressive series of catechisms, graduated to the several stages of the learners, from comparative infancy up to the highest classes in our Sabbath-school, setting forth, in compact form, the facts, history, and doctrines of the Scripture; and, in the more advanced numbers of the series, giving especial prominence to the distinctive doctrines of Wesleyan theology, according to our best and most authoritative standards, sustained by direct scriptural proofs, the series closing with a separate number, defining and explaining the leading features of the government, usages, and economy of the Methodist Episcopal Church, South; and the Conference hereby appoints Thomas O. Summers a committee to prepare such a series of catechisms, at the earliest practicable period, authorising the aforesaid committee to offer a premium of such a sum as may be agreed upon, to be paid out of the sales of Sunday-school books, for the best series or any one of the series, so as to secure the highest standard of attainable excellence in the series; which catechisms, thus prepared, after receiving the sanction and approval of our Bishops, shall be published and recommended to the careful study of our Sunday-school scholars, and the children of the Church generally.

We have published in several numbers, and also in a bound volume, eight "catechisms," graduated to the several stages of the learners," as called for in the report, and hope they will be introduced into all our Sunday-schools. We now offer a premium of two hundred dollars for the best MS. catechism "defining and explaining the leading features of the government, usages, and economy, of the Methodist Episcopal Church, South." The MS. will be put to press as soon as approved by the Bishops, and the premium will be paid over by the Agent out of the first profits secured by the sale of the work. This Catechism of the History, Government, and Usages of the Methodist Episcopal Church, South, we suggest, should be about the size of the Wesleyan Catechism, No. 2; or No. 3. We desire that all the MSS. be forwarded to us by the first of April, 1868. A. H. REDFORD,
THOS. O. SUMMERS.

REV. JAMES HAMILTON, D. D.—Our readers will be glad to learn that all the most violent symptoms connected with Dr. Hamilton's complaint (paralysis of the brain) have abated, although he still remains in a state of great weakness—He has left Eltham for Godalming, and it is to be hoped that from change of air and repose he will derive all that benefit which his many friends ardently desire. A meeting of the congregation of Regent square Church, summoned at the request of the Session, was held on Monday evening, the 16th of July, when it was unanimously resolved to take steps to secure the services of a colleague (subject to the approval of the Presbytery,) in the pastoral oversight of the congregation.

The telegraphic cable was completed to Havana on the 11th inst., and dispatches are now forwarded to all points of the island.

NEWS FROM THE ORIGIN.

BROOKHAVEN, Miss., Sept. 23.
Mr. Editor: It gives me pleasure to be able to communicate through your paper, the intelligence, that we have a pleasant revival of religion in Brookhaven. I have just of meeting, protracted twenty days and nights, resulting in accession of eighteen members to the church, and more than doubling the number of communicants. Many back-sliders were reclaimed, and the membership, but few exceptions, was blessed. Altogether, it was the most profitable meetings I witnessed. Methodism holds a head in Brookhaven, and the bright promise of glorious development in the future. Brethren Jones and A. B. Nicholson, came during the first two weeks. Bro. Andrews, of Canton, stars to their crowns of glory by their faithful and earnest ministrations in our midst. We give the glory.
L. R. REDDING, Pastor.

Mr. Editor: We had a revival few weeks ago, at Union Church, Jackson Circuit, Mobile Conference, an account of which, perhaps not fail to interest your numerous readers. The meeting commenced on Friday morning, and as the congregation was small, ministers invited did not which seemed to depress, (but discourage,) both pastor and people. At the close of the service, Bro. A. C. Ramsay, arrived, and by his assistance that of other brethren who Monday, we continued the until the following Wednesday. During these few days, the house of God was crowded with an attentive audience. The singing, (mostly done by visiting men,) was earnest, practical, pointed. The awakening influence of the spirit of God attended administration of the word, were convicted, mourners came and ten joined the church. It is a large, flourishing church, containing about one hundred members. In fact, most of the people in the community are Christians. Saturday and Sabbath, after close of the meeting, was the occasion of our third Quarterly conference. Bro. J. W. Ruck, Elder, was with us, and preached with great power and acceptance. After a stirring and impressive sermon, on Sunday, he administered the sacrament of the Lord's Supper to almost a hundred persons. It was an impressive scene. There were fathers and mothers in strong men, in the prime of the strength of manhood, men and young women, little boys and girls; all together, at the sacramental partaking of the emblems, suffering and death of the God. It has never been the of the writer to witness many sacramental occasions as the above described.

Aug 28, 67.

NATCHEZ, Aug. 27.

Mr. Editor: We have just a profitable meeting of two continuance, the church has been quickened and strengthened by the several old, and the acquisition of a number of new members.

Fifteen persons publicly affirmed the doctrine of forgiveness of heart. The meeting at was unusually solemn, and matter of course, deeply affected. We may resume in a few as a desire has been expressed to continue the services. The railroad convention met their business and adjourned meantime. Natchez proposed off in the line of progress interest is taken in the road. It is not unlikely that few years, Natchez will be the true Southern terminus of the shortest, shortest, and therefore expeditions route to New York.

News Items.

The letter of Robt. Ould, Confederate Commissioner of Exchange, addressed to Major General E. A. Hitchcock, United States Exchange Agent, which appeared in our telegraphic columns on Sunday, should at once and forever set at rest the absurdly extravagant stories, which for two years and more have been bruited about the world, of deliberate and barbarous cruelty to Union soldiers while prisoners in the hands of the rebels. This letter demonstrates in an undeniable manner that the Confederate authorities cannot be held responsible for the sufferings of Union soldiers—that while they knew how terrible were their trials, the leading officials lamented the fact, and strove to ameliorate the condition of the poor fellows by permitting their own government to assume the care of them. In January, 1864, it is here shown, that the Federal Government was solicited to send surgeons to administer to the wants, and "take charge of the health and comfort of the inmates of rebel prisons, with authority to distribute any and all contributions of money, clothing, food, and medicines; and with power to make official reports to Washington of their own acts, and upon all matters relating to the welfare of prisoners. Why was this generous offer not accepted? Why were the defenders of the Union permitted to linger in misery and want—to suffer unto death—when the door was thus flung wide open for relief to enter?—N. O. Times.

Philadelphia is said to be the greatest manufacturing city in the United States. Her operatives number 96,683, and their annual earnings amount to $135,969,767.

SPECIAL NOTICES.

Yazoo District—Mississippi Conference.

| FOURTH ROUND OF QUARTERLY MEETINGS. | |
|-------------------------------------|------------|
| Lexington, at Lexington | Sept 14 15 |
| Greenwood, at Greenwood | 21 22 |
| Carrollton, at Carrollton | 28 29 |
| Emory, at Emory | Oct 5 6 |
| Holmes, at Durham | 12 13 |
| Richland, at Richland | 19 20 |
| Black Hawk, at Black Hawk | 26 27 |
| Mount Olivet, at Dover | Nov 2 3 |
| Yazoo, at Midway | 9 10 |
| Yazoo City Station | 16 17 |

| APPOINTMENTS BY THE WAY. | |
|---|--|
| Sweetwater, Sept 18 at 11 o'clock A. M. | |
| Acona 18 at 7 " P. M. | |
| Black Hawk 19 at 7 " | |
| Carrollton 27 at 7 " | |
| Valden Oct 3 at 7 " | |
| Durham 11 at 7 " | |
| Benton Nov 1 at 7 " | |

At these appointments marked with a star, I will lecture on Temperance.

J. M. FEAR, P. E.

Lake Providence Dist.—La. Conference.

| FOURTH ROUND OF QUARTERLY MEETINGS. | |
|-------------------------------------|-----------|
| Carroll Circuit, at Oak Grove | Oct 12 13 |
| Delhi Ct., at Floyd | 19 20 |
| Ioa Circuit, Little Creek | 26 27 |
| Tensas and Sicily Island, at Tensas | |
| Chapel | Nov 9 10 |
| Waterproof & St. Joseph, Waterproof | 23 24 |

The District Meeting is postponed from the 27th September to the fourth day of October, at which time there will be a Camp Meeting, at Oakley Campground. Any of the preachers from Louisiana or Mississippi Conferences are cordially invited to attend.

Wm. G. McGAVIN, P. E.

DeKalb Circuit—Mobile Conference.

Mr. Editor: Please announce there will be a Camp Meeting, commencing on Friday before the fifth Sabbath in September, at Linwood Church, in the South-west part of Kemper county, 18 miles from Marion Station, M. & O. R. R. Bishop Wightman, and Ministers are all invited.

Jas. M. GANN, P. E.

Columbus District—Mobile Conference.

FOURTH ROUND OF QUARTERLY MEETINGS: There will be a District Meeting for Columbus District, Mobile Conference, at Union Chapel, Pickens County, Ala., 8 miles east of Pickensville, and 6 miles north of Bridgeville.

All the members of Quarterly Conferences in the District are members, and are earnestly invited to attend. There will be sermons delivered on subjects, Thursday, Friday, and Saturday, at 11 o'clock, by Rev. A. S. Andrews, T. P. Crymes, and W. C. Hearn.

Members will come prepared to deliberate and report upon the various subjects of interest, usual at such meetings:

| | |
|-----------------------------|------------|
| Pickensville and Carrollton | Sept 21 22 |
| Bridgeville | 28 29 |
| Columbus Station | Oct 5 6 |
| Columbus Circuit | 12 13 |
| Corksville | 19 20 |
| Brooksville | 26 27 |
| Trinity | Nov 9 10 |
| Crawfordville | 24 25 |
| Green | Dec 7 8 |

W. MURRAY, P. E.

Greenville Dist.—Mississippi Conference.

FOURTH ROUND OF QUARTERLY MEETINGS. On account of the great and protracted overflow of the past season, the second and third rounds on this District, were served irregularly—having to take them as I could. It being impossible to get members to attend, there can be no official District Meeting held, and the duties of that meeting will have to be performed by the Quarterly Conferences separately.

| | |
|---|----------|
| Greenville S. M. | Sept 7 8 |
| Princeton or Leota S. M. | 14 15 |
| Cloverhill S. M. | 21 22 |
| Union Chapel, D. C., S. M. | 28 29 |
| Upper Deer Creek, S. M. | Oct 5 6 |
| Boyd's store (Tallahatchie river) S. M. | 12 13 |
| Roebuck S. M. | 19 20 |
| Jadiah Meeting Q. M. | 26 27 |
| Lake Lee S. M. | Nov 2 3 |
| Greenville Q. M. | 9 10 |

The preachers in charge are requested to have all their reports, statistics, etc., as required by the Discipline, written and ready for their respective Quarterly Conferences, as this may not be supplied afterwards.

Jas. MACLENNAN, P. E.

NOTICE.—The commencement of the Session of PORT GIBSON COLLEGIATE ACADEMY is postponed to September 16. The charge for Board and English Education has been reduced to $70 per quarter.

aug. 31st

Tuscaloosa District—Mobile Conference.

The District Conference for the Tuscaloosa District, will be held at Flat Woods, on Havana Circuit, commencing Thursday, 26th of September prox.

The Conference will be composed of all the traveling preachers and official members of the stations, circuits, and missions of the District.

The Introductory Sermon will be preached by Rev. J. C. Wills, of the Southern University, Thursday 11 o'clock A. M.

Bishop Wightman will preside.

J. L. COTTEN, P. E.

Shreveport Dist.—Louisiana Conference.

| FOURTH ROUND OF QUARTERLY MEETINGS. | |
|--|---------|
| Many, at Fort Jessup, Aug. 31 and Sept 1 | |
| Anacoco, at Holy Grove, | 7 8 |
| Pleasant Hill, at Beulah, | 14 15 |
| Manfield, at Manfield, | 21 22 |
| Caddo, at Greenwood, | Oct 5 6 |
| N. Rossier, at Walker's Chapel, | 12 13 |
| Shreveport | 19 20 |
| Belle Bower | 26 27 |
| Springville, at Springville | Nov 2 3 |

DISTRICT MEETING to be held at Manfield, September 26, 27, 28.

B. F. ALEXANDER, P. E.

New Orleans Dist.—Louisiana Conference.

THIRD ROUND OF QUARTERLY MEETINGS.

| | |
|--|---------|
| Carondelet Street | Aug 25, |
| Felicity Street | Sept 1, |
| Moreau Street | 8, |
| Jefferson City | 15, |
| N. O. Cir., Quar. Con. Advocate office, at 5 P. M. | 16, |
| Ger's Church's, at Saraputa st. | 22, |
| German Quarterly Conference Dryad's street | 23, |
| Baton Rouge | 28, 29 |
| Thibodaux circuit, at Houma | Oct 6, |
| Bayou Gros Tete at Plaquemine | 13 |

J. U. KERNER, P. E.

Natchez District Convention.

Will be held in Woodville, Miss., from Thursday, 26th, (10 o'clock A. M.) to Sunday the 29th of September next. We deem it unnecessary to republish subjects to be reported upon by pastors, stewards, S. S. superintendents, presidents and teachers of our colleges and schools, but would refer them to a publication in N. O. C. ADVOCATE, June 8th, 1867. After deliberation, the published plan for addresses has been abandoned. There will be preaching at the usual hours, Saturday, P. M., and Sabbath day. We trust every official member on the District will be present the first day of the meeting, so as to serve on various committees, which will be needed. Respectfully,

Jas. A. GODFREY.

Vicksburg Dist.—Mississippi Conference.

FOURTH ROUND OF QUARTERLY MEETINGS.

| | |
|----------------------------|-----------|
| North Warren, at Oak Ridge | Sept 1, 2 |
| Port Gibson | 8, 9 |
| Fayette, at Bethel | 15, 16 |
| Burtonton, at Plagah | 22, 23 |
| Cayuga, at Union | 29, 30 |
| Raymond | Oct 6, 7 |
| Warren, at Bethel | 13, 14 |
| Rocky Springs | 20, 21 |
| Vicksburg | 27, 28 |

Pastors will be ready with full reports of Statistics. Written reports of the condition of church property, Sabbath schools, etc., will be expected.

G. H. CLINTON, P. E.

Summerfield District Meeting.

A District Meeting for the Summerfield District will be held at Uniontown, commencing Thursday, the 12th Sept. The official members of the church within the bounds of the district, are all members of the District Meeting Conference, and are earnestly requested and expected to attend. Arrangements will be made to carry the members over the railroads at half price.

A. H. MITCHELL, P. E.

CAMP MEETING.

NOTICE IS HEREBY GIVEN, that a CAMP MEETING will be held near Whitworth, Hoskins & Co's Steam Saw Mill, at Pin Oak Flag Station, on the Jackson and New Orleans Railroad, two miles North of Brookhaven, commencing on Thursday before the fifth Sabbath in September.

Everybody is invited to attend, and to bring their own provisions, and erect their own tents. All ministers of the Gospel attending, will be provided for during their stay—others will make their arrangements beforehand for their own accommodation. Wood, water, and lot for horses, convenient and free.

Applications for permission to build and keep boarding tents will be made to the Committee of Arrangements. Families and others from New Orleans, Jackson, and intermediate towns on the Railroad, and from neighborhoods contiguous to the Campground, would do well to write or send agents beforehand, that arrangements may be made for their accommodation.

The trains will stop at the Ground for the accommodation of persons attending. Lumber for building purposes convenient.

Colored people will be preached to as usual.

For further information, apply to L. R. REDDING, Chairman of Committee of Arrangements, or any of the undersigned: Wm. G. MILLSAPS, P. Elder, Brookhaven District;

B. JONES, Pastor, Wesson and Beauregard;

A. B. NICHOLSON, Pastor, Bayou Pierre Circuit;

H. J. HARRIS, Pastor, Hazlehurst Circuit;

THOS. NIXON, " Crystal Springs " Circuit;

PETER E. GREENE, Pastor, Bogue Chitto Circuit;

Geo. F. THOMPSON, Pastor, pro tem, Jackson;

L. R. REDDING, Pastor, Brookhaven;

COMMITTEE OF ARRANGEMENTS.

L. R. REDDING, T. G. DECKLE,

M. J. WHITWORTH, JAS. A. HOSKINS.

Jackson Methodist, New Orleans Advocate, Crystal Springs News and Cephan, please copy four times.

Ample preparations will be made to accommodate all editors who may honor them with their presence.

Mobile District—Mobile Conference.

FOURTH ROUND OF QUARTERLY MEETINGS.

| | |
|--------------------------------------|------------|
| E. Shore & Fish River, at Donnelly's | Sept 14 13 |
| Citronelle, at Citronelle | 21 22 |
| Whitler, at Whitler | 28 29 |
| Pascagoula and Bay shore, Salem Camp | |
| Ground | Oct 19 20 |
| Ocean Springs, at Red Hill | 26 27 |
| St Stephens & State Line, Pine Grove | Nov 2 3 |
| Waynesboro, at Waynesboro | 9 10 |
| Mobile, at St. Paul's | 17 |
| " St. Francis street | 24 |
| " Franklin street | Dec 1 |

The preachers in charge are requested to be prepared with a duplicate copy of the statistics of their charge, to be furnished the Presiding Elder, according to requirements of the Discipline—See ch. 2, sec. 6, par. 9 page 67.

THOS. W. DORMAN, P. E.

DISTRICT MEETING.

A District Meeting for the Mobile District will be held in Franklin Street Methodist Church, in the city of Mobile, beginning on Friday, before the second Sunday in October, at 9 A. M., at which all the traveling and local preachers, and all the official members of the church in the bounds of the District, are earnestly requested to attend. Ample accommodations will be provided by calling on Doctors Hamilton and Neely. Bishop Wightman will be in attendance.

THOMAS W. DORMAN, P. E.

Homer District—Louisiana Conference.

FOURTH ROUND OF QUARTERLY MEETINGS.

| | |
|--------------------------|-----------|
| Vernon Ct., at Vernon | Sept 7, 8 |
| Havenville at Oolypaete | 21, 22 |
| Farmerville at Alabama | 28, 29 |
| Homer at Forest Grove | Oct 5, 6 |
| Lake Bistecoa at Riagold | 12, 13 |
| Sparta at Sparta | 19, 20 |
| Mt. Lebanon at Arcadia | 26, 27 |
| Lewisville | Nov 2, 3 |
| South Bossier | 9, 10 |
| Madison | 16, 17 |

District Meeting at Forest Grove, seven miles east of Homer, commencing Friday, fourth of October. All traveling and local preachers, also all of the official members of the District are requested to attend.

JNO. A. MILLER, P. E.

Brookhaven Dist.—Miss Conference.

FOURTH ROUND OF QUARTERLY MEETINGS.

| | |
|----------------------------------|------------|
| Hazlehurst | Sept 1, |
| Chrystal Springs, at Bethesda | 7, 8 |
| Scotland col'd cir., at Gallatia | 14, 15 |
| Meadville, at Beach Grove | 21, 22 |
| Dist Meeting Hazlehurst | 27, 28, 29 |
| Holmesville, at Holmesville | Oct 5, 6 |
| Bayou Pierre, at Rehoboth | 12, 13 |
| Pearl River, at Sertains | 19, 20 |
| Bayou Chitto | 26, 27 |
| Wesson, at Beauregard | Nov 2, 3 |
| Brookhaven | 9, 10 |
| Scotland, at Gallatia | 16, 17 |

The District Meeting will be held at Hazlehurst, Sept. 27, 28, 29.

G. W. MILLSAPS, P. E.

Tuscaloosa District—Mobile Conference.

| FOURTH ROUND OF QUARTERLY MEETINGS. | |
|-------------------------------------|------------------|
| Havana | Sept 28 29 |
| New Bern and Oak Grove | Oct 5 6 |
| Merion | " 12 13 |
| Brush Creek | " 19 20 |
| Scottville and Carthage | " 26 27 |
| Tuscaloosa | Nov 2 3 |
| Butaw | " 9 10 |
| Torkland | " 16 17 |
| Greensboro | Nov 30 and Dec 1 |

J. L. COTTEN, P. E.

OPELOUSAS DISTRICT.

The District Meeting appointed for 13th and 14th September, at New Iberia, is postponed for the present. Due notice will be given of the time, when it is proper to hold said meeting.

A. E. GOODWIN, P. E.

NEW ADVERTISEMENTS.

THOMAS MURRAY,

BUILDER.

Corner Rampart and Erato Streets,

NEW ORLEANS.

Orders left at Box 119, Mechanic's Exchange, will be attended to.

$10 A DAY MADE BY ANY one with my Patent Stencil Tools. I prepare samples free. Beware of infringers. My address will explain.

Address A. J. FULLMAN, Springfield, Vt.

Sept 7-4

SHARON FEMALE COLLEGE.

The fiftieth session of this school will begin Sept. 30, 1867, under the Presidency of Rev W. L. Hannicut, A. M., who will be assisted by an able corps of teachers. The course of study is large and comprehensive—equal to that of any similar Institution in the Union. The location is pleasant and healthy. The moral and religious advantages are fine. Tuition, for five months, in the English branches, from $15 to $25. Music on Piano $2; use of Instrument, $5. Board, fuel, and bedding, $18 per month. Lights and washing, extra. When young ladies furnish sheets, towels, and blankets, board will be less. Incidentals, $2 50; Languages $5 to $7 50, each.

For further particulars, address the President, or Rev H. H. Montgomery.

Pres't. Board Trustees.

Sharon, Miss.

Sept 6-3m

EAST ALABAMA MALE COLLEGE.

AT AUBURN, ALA.

The Fall term of this Institution will open on the FIRST WEDNESDAY in SEPTEMBER next, and close on the 20th December. Besides the regular course of studies for graduation, large facilities are afforded for instruction in the Commercial and Agricultural branches. Separate schools for these branches, in connection with the College, were authorized at the last annual meeting of the Board of Trustees. A student not wishing to take either the regular or a partial literary course in the College, may continue himself for either of these Departments, and in a short time become qualified for business.

The Preparatory Department, with competent teachers, will under the special supervision of the Faculty.

Tuition—Fall Term in College.....$30 00

Contingent Fee.....5 00

Tuition—Fall Term in Preparatory.....10 00

School.....15 to $20 00

Contingent Fee.....2 00

Board in Private Families from $15 to $20 per month.

C. HAINFORD, Sec'y of Board;

aug 31-2m

JOHN G. PARHAM, OF NEW ORLEANS, BEVERLY BLUNT, OF HINDS CO., MISS.

PARHAM & BLUNT,

COTTON FACTORS,

Forwarding and Commission Merchants and Purchasing Agents.

No. 75 Carondelet street, New Orleans.

aug 24 1y

SOMERVILLE FEMALE INSTITUTE.

The undersigned will re-open this old and well established school on MONDAY, SEPTEMBER 2, 1867.

EXPENSES.

Tuition per Session of Twenty Weeks.....$30 00

Music.....25 00

Use of Instrument.....7 50

Languages, each.....10 00

Incidental Fee.....2 50

Board, including everything except Bed, Covering and Towels, per Month.....20 00

Board, exclusive of Lights and Washing 16 00

aug 24

R. H. RIVERS.

EMORY & HENRY COLLEGE,

WASHINGTON CO., VA.

Our Fall session begins on the 15th of August next. Charges for session of 15 months, payable in currency and in advance, are as follows:

Tuition in collegiate course.....$30 00

Fuel, room rent and contingent fee, 10 00

Tuition in Preparatory Department is $5 less.

Board can be had in private families at the College, for $13 per month, if paid or satisfactorily arranged, monthly in advance. Those seeking collegiate advantages are invited to investigate ours. For additional information,

Address, E. E. WILEY, Pres't.

Emory P. O., Va.

je 29

READVILLE SEMINARY.

Baton Rouge, La.,

Will open its next Session, Tuesday Oct. 1st, 1867. It is very desirable that the pupils be present at that time, and enter at once their regular classes. Parents will please notice this, and be as punctual as possible, in bringing their daughters.

aug 17-6w MRS. MARY W. READ, Principal.

BELIZE, BRITISH HONDURAS.

<

THE CHILD'S CORNER.

From the Little Corporal.

THE LOST ARROW.

ST. MARY A. T. HUMPHREY.

Up on the roof the carpenter
Walked with a steady tread;
Climbing away from the moss-grown eaves
The long deposit of blackened leaves,
From many a summer dead.

A gray-haired man was the carpenter;
He had fashioned the beams of oak,
And framed the joists and the rafters strong,
With many a catch of merry song
Thrown in to his chisel's stroke.

But a score of years had stormed and shone
On the homestead walls since then,
And we, who gathered his shining chips,
Or hung on the carpenter's kindly lips,
Have grown to be women and men.

Upon the roof he gathered the leaves,
And mumbled the robin's call;
But the mocking note on a sudden died—
A thrilling voice through the silence cried—
And we looked to see him fall.

We looked, but his feet were firmly set,
And we rushed our needless fears;
He held a wand with a barb of lead,
And, "Willie's arrow!" was all he said;
We heard through a rain of tears.

Down in the graveyard, over the hill,
We knew how the sunlight shone
On a marble slab with a name and date,
Where, summer and winter, early and late,
Our soldier was sleeping alone.

But out of the shadowy land of the past,
Came the wraith of a long-gone day;
And we saw a fearful face once more
Peep under its curls through the open door,
And we heard our mother say,

"Why grieve for the arrow, my darling, so much?
You can make another as good."
"O, it is not the arrow that makes me cry,
But the robin I killed with it never can fly,
And never can sing in the wood!"

He sat on the topmost branch of the elm,
With his red breast all bright in the sun;
O, mother, I thought that how hard I might try,
I never could bid him, so near to the sky,
Do you think that God minds what I've done?"

O brave heart and gentle! O soldier beloved!
God minds what thy young hands have done!
In the battle of Lookout, so near to the sky,
'Twas translation, not death, for your country to die!

Sleep sweetly, O brother and son!

For the N. O. Christian Advocate.

The following Preamble and Resolutions were read before the Franklin street Methodist Episcopal Sabbath School, in open school, on Sunday morning, September 1st, 1867; and on motion were unanimously adopted.

Whereas, it has pleased the Great Disposer of human events, in his wire and inscrutable Providence, to remove from among us by sudden death, Mrs. MARTHA O. BIGGOOD, so long and actively associated with this Sabbath School, first as a Pupil, and then as Teacher and Superintendent—therefore,

Resolved, by the Franklin street Sabbath School, that while we bow submissively to an inscrutable Providence, we mourn in the death of Mrs. Biggood, the loss of an estimable lady friend, and one of the most devoted friends and teachers of the School.

Resolved, that we tender the bereaved and stricken family an assurance of our sincere sympathy, and an interest in our prayers, that God may comfort them in their affliction and sanctify it to their good.

Resolved, that we tender the same sympathy and prayers to the family of the parents of the deceased.

Resolved, that a copy of these Resolutions be furnished to both of those families, and that they be recorded in the Secretary's book.

It was also resolved that a copy of these Resolutions be published in one of the city papers, and also in the New Orleans Christian Advocate.

THOMAS STRANG, Secy.

Mobile, Sept. 1st, 1867.

From the Little Corporal.

MITTIE'S "CHARM."

"Auntie, haven't you a few old buttons that you don't want?" said my little friend Mittie, one day, as I took up my work basket to rearrange its contents.

Mittie, my pet kitten, had appropriated it to herself for a play house, that morning, and sad confusion she had made with the spools and balls and tating.

"What will my little girl do with odd buttons?" said I. "If they are for dolly's new cloak, you want them all alike."

"O, but they're not for that. I want them for a charm."

"What kind of a charm? Such as the ladies wear on their watch chains?"

"O dear, no!" laughed Mittie. "Don't you know what charms are, auntie? Why, all the girls at school are making them. They string together all the pretty, odd buttons they can find, until they have enough to go round the neck; and then, whenever they feel cross and want to say angry words, they count over every one of the buttons before they speak, and by that time the naughty feelings have pretty much gone away."

Before Mittie's explanation was ended, the contents of the button bag were emptied into her dainty white apron.

"Oh! oh! oh!" cried the delighted child; and presently her eager fingers had picked out all the brightest and oddest of the odd collection.

"I guess the girls'll think I'm rich," she said, as she stowed the buttons away in her little pocket. "I've most as many as Susie Brown. She has lots of 'em, 'cause her papa keeps store; and sometimes she gives a few to other girls; but most of 'em, if they get a pretty button, are so choice of it, they'll hardly let anybody else set eyes on it."

"And how about the boys? Do they wear them, too? Or are they so good they have no need of them?"

Mittie clapped her hands and laughed. "Just think how a boy would look, with a string of red and yellow buttons round his neck!"

"Poor little boys! how can they help saying naughty words, if they can't wear 'charms'!"

Mittie looked puzzled. "There's Tom Jones," she said, thoughtfully; "I think he ought to wear one, for he says awful words, sometimes. I wonder if it wouldn't do just as well for him to count the buttons on his coat? He ought to do something."

"Come, Mittie," called her mother; and then Mittie's lips went up to mine and her little arms gave me a loving hug.

"Thank you, ever and ever so much, auntie! when my charm is done, I'll bring it for you to see."

Not many days after, there was a knock at my door, and in walked Mittie's cousin, Will, a bright little fellow, just Mittie's age.

"Auntie, haven't you some pretty buttons to give away?" he asked.

"What have the boys found out that they, too, need charms?" I asked.

"No, ma'am; the other boys don't wear 'em, but if Mittie has one, I want one too."

Will seemed to think his Cousin Mittie was very near perfection, and that whatever Mittie did, he must do likewise.

"Besides, auntie"—and Will hesitated and twirled the tassel of his cap.

"Besides what?" I said, encouragingly.

"Why, sometimes, auntie, I get mad as hops at some of the boys, and before I think I say something wicked; and I thought, perhaps, if I had a charm to count, I might be able to cure myself."

"I know a better 'charm' than a string of buttons," and as I stroked the brown hair from his forehead, I wondered if the dear Christ's hand had yet laid its blessing there.

"Do you, auntie? Tell me what it is," he said, eagerly.

"The 'charm' of Him who was once a boy like you; who knows how all little boys are tempted; how hard it is for them to be good; and who, in the schoolroom and on the playground, at all times and in all places, stands ready to help them if they will only seek His help."

A softened look came into Will's bright eyes, and his arm stole quickly round my neck.

"Yes, I know, auntie; but I can't always think to ask Him. May be the buttons will help me to remember."

And when he had kissed me, and gone away, I felt—wondering if there were not some old Christians in need of a "charm" to help them "remember."—Alta Grant.

HIGH HEELS.—There is danger in the absurd high heels worn by our fashionable women. They cause the weight of the body to be thrown forward on the toes, and wedge them still more tightly into the front of the shoe. Nature has made the heel broad, so as to afford a firm basis of support; but the present style demands a small heel, which gives but an insecure foundation, and throws a great strain on the ankle joint when the foot is placed on an irregular surface; while the free play of the joint is prevented by the boot being tightly laced around it. The effect of this constriction in causing the wasting of the leg, may be seen in those countrymen who wear tightly laced boots of this character.

In thy zeal against the sins of others, be mindful of thy own exceeding sinfulness; call to remembrance thy great offences, which, though they be unfeignedly repented of, give thee to understand what cause thou hast to be meek, humble and patient towards all men.

Remember, that as God approveth not alms of any other work, without charity, so neither charity itself without discretion.

FARM AND GARDEN.

From the American Agriculturist.

Raspberries and Black Caps.

The great trouble, with the cultivation of the common raspberries, even when they pass the winter safely by being protected or otherwise, is that the manner of growth is not understood. In private gardens we frequently see the raspberry bed a dense thicket, with new canes struggling with the old ones, and all in an uninviting and unfruitful condition. The majority of private growers do not seem to be aware that the stems of the raspberry are biennial, i. e., they grow one year and bear fruit the next, and then die. With some of the varieties called ever-bearing, the young growth flowers and fruits in the autumn of the same year. When a raspberry cane of the ordinary kind has fruited, it is no longer of any use, and should be cut out. The large cultivators usually leave the pruning out of the old canes until the time to cover them, but it is much better to remove them as soon as fruiting is over, to allow the new growth a plenty of room. Those who plant raspberries this spring, and wish the best results, should cut the old canes back to a few inches, leaving just enough to serve as a convenient handle in planting, and look to the new growth of this year to produce fruit the next. If the canes be left their full length at transplanting, a poor crop of fruit may be had the first season, at the risk of the future good of the plants. The plants are set four feet apart each way for the more moderate growers, and the taller kinds five or six feet apart. The varieties are numerous, and every year brings additions to the list. Along the Hudson River the Antwerp is the great market berry. In Southern New Jersey, the Philadelphia is the profitable market fruit, and at the West, the Purple Cape enjoys great popularity. Choice sorts for garden culture are: Brinckle's Orange, Franconia, Clark, (said to be hardy), Fastolf, and French.

The Black Caps, of which there are now many named varieties, are becoming very popular. Though not to be compared in flavor of fruit with the others, they have many good qualities. They are hardy, very productive, and throw up no suckers. They are propagated by rooting from the tops of the pendant branches. Of this class the Doolittle's Improved, is, perhaps, the best known, and doubtless many others, including native seedlings, are just as good.

SCIENTIFIC.

A New Cement and Building Material

In a communication to the French Academy of Sciences, M. Sorel describes a new cement, being a basic hydrated oxychloride of magnesium. It is obtained by slacking magnesia with a solution of chloride of magnesium in a more or less concentrated state. The denser the solution the harder it becomes on drying. This magnesium cement is the whitest and hardest of all those known to this day, and it can be molded like plaster, in which case the cast acquires the hardness of marble. It will take any color, and has been used by the inventor for mosaics, imitations of ivory, billiard balls, etc. The new cement possesses the agglutinative property in the highest degree, so that solid masses may be made with it at a very low cost by mixing it up on a large scale with substances of little value. One part of magnesia may be incorporated with upwards of twenty parts of sand, limestone, and other inert substances, so as to form hard blocks; while lime and other cements will hardly admit of the incorporation of two or three times their weight of extraneous matter.

By means of these artificial blocks, buildings may easily be carried on in places where materials for the purpose are scarce. All that is required is simply to convey a quantity of magnesia and chloride of magnesium to the spot, if their be none to be had there, and then to mix them up with sand, pebbles, or any other matter of the kind close at hand; blocks can be made of any shape, and imitating hewn stone. This magnesium cement may be obtained at a very low cost, especially if the magnesia be extracted from the mother ley of salt works, either by M. Balard's process, whereby magnesia and hydrochloric acid are obtained at the same time, or else by decomposing the ley, which always contains a large proportion of chloride of magnesium, by means of quick lime, which by double decomposition yields magnesia and chloride of lime containing a certain quantity of chloride of magnesium, and which, with the addition of various other cheap substances may be used for whitewashing.—Sci. Am.

There are over 20,000 acres of land in Alabama planted in sweet potatoes this year, which will produce 800,000 bushels.

From the Nashville Christian Advocate.

TIPLING.

We fear that not a few professing Christians are in the habit of tampering with ardent spirits, under the plea that a little will do them good—their stomachs need it—and the like. By indulgences of this sort they acquire a taste for liquor, which soon becomes a strong appetite that imperiously demands gratification. In this way, before they are aware of it, they become regular tippers, sots, drunkards. It is sometime before they get under the table or into the gutter—perhaps their social connections keep them from that degradation—but they are drunkards nevertheless. There are many respectable men, and Christians, too, who have switched off on that downward grade—their return to a course of sobriety is exceedingly doubtful. We warn our readers, especially our young friends, from these indulgences. If you need stimuli do not use those of the dissoluble sort, when any others can be substituted; and if you have contracted the habit for strong drink, die of colic or any things else rather than resort to so perilous a remedy. The habit of tipping is formed by repeatedly taking a little something for some real or imaginary disorder; and when the habit is formed it is next to impossible to break it. It is so in every thing, but especially so in this particular. There is a suggestive sonnet which shows the power of habit:

Habit at first is but a silken thread,
Fine as the light-winged gossamer that sways
In the warm sunbeams of a summer's day;
A shallow streamlet rippling o'er its bed;
A tiny sapling, ere its roots are spread;
A yet unbared thorn upon the spray;
A lion's whelp that hath not scented prey;
A little smiling child obedient led.
Beware! That thread may bind thee as a chain;
That streamlet gather to a fatal sea;
That sapling spread into a gnarled tree;
That thorn, grown hard, may wound and give thee pain;
That playful whelp his murderous fangs reveal;
That child, a giant, crush thee 'neath his heel.

THACKERAY ON DANCING PARTIES.—"The system of evening parties is a false and absurd one. Ladies may frequent them professionally with an eye to a husband, but a man is a fool who takes a wife out of such assemblies, having no other means of judging of the object of his choice. You are not the same person in your white cravat and satin slip as you are in your morning-dress. A man is not the same in his tight coat and feverish glazed pumps, and stiff white waistcoat, as he is in his green, double-breasted frock, his old black ditto, or his woollen jacket. And a man is doubly a fool who is in the habit of frequenting evening parties, unless he is forced thither in search of a lady to whom he is attached, or unless he is compelled to go by his wife. A man who loves dancing may be set down to be a fool; and the fashion is greatly going out with the increasing good sense of the age. Do not say that he who lives at home, or frequents clubs in lieu of balls is a brute, and has not a proper respect for the female sex; on the contrary, he may respect it most sincerely. He feels that a woman appears to most advantage not among those whom she cannot care about, but among those whom she loves. He thinks her beautiful when she is at home making tea for her old father. He believes her to be charming when she is singing a simple song at her piano, but not when she is screaming at an evening party. He thinks by far the most valuable part of her is her heart; and a kind simple heart, my dear, shines in conversation better than the best of wit. He admires her best in her intercourse with her family and her friends, and detests the miserable, twaddling slipshod that he is obliged to hear from and utter to her in the course of a ball; and avoids and despises such meetings."

GOOD TEMPER.—Wordsworth.

There's not a cheaper thing on earth,
Nor yet one half so dear;
'Tis worth more than distinguished birth,
Or thousands gained a year.
It lends the joy a new delight,
'Tis virtue's firmest shield,
And adds more beauty to the night
Than all the stars may yield.

A charm to banish grief away,
To snatch the brew from cure;
Turns tears to smiles, makes dulness joy,
Spreads gladness everywhere;
And yet 'tis cheap as summer dew
That gems the lily's breast;
A talisman for love's true
As ever man possessed.

What may this wondrous spirit be,
With power unheard before—
This charm, this bright divinity?
'Tis temper! nothing more!
Good temper! 'tis the choicest gift
That woman's hand can bring,
And can the poorest peasant find
To bless unknown to kings.

He that giveth to the poor, lendeth unto the Lord; there is more rhetoric in that one sentence than in a library of sermons.

PORT GIBSON COLLEGIATE ACADEMY.

A College for Young Ladies with a Preparatory and a Primary School.

BOARD OF INSTRUCTION AND GOVERNMENT.

A. J. Wright, A. M. President
Mrs. A. A. Wright, Principal
Mr. R. Scott Ricketts
Miss Anna M. Rosa
Miss C. A. Murphy, Instructress in Vocal and Instrumental music.

Other instructors will be announced.
This Institution was founded about 1830, and incorporated in 1834, and has a bright record of usefulness. It has been under the present direction four years. The course of study is a full one, and upon its satisfactory completion, a diploma will be awarded.

The younger pupils have the same instructors, and receive the same attention as their seniors. Exercises are continued throughout the course, in Penmanship, Elocution, Orthography, the science of English Grammar, the Art of Composition, and Arithmetic.

The buildings are spacious, retired, well situated, and well designed for Academic uses. PORT GIBSON is noted for its beauty, salubrity, order and good society. Transportation from Grand Gulf will be by railroad in a few days.

SESSION COMMENCES SEPT. 16.

Readers are under special charge of the Lady Principal. Board and English tuition, $70 00 per quarter. For circulars and particulars apply to
A. J. WRIGHT,
D. G. Humphreys, President Board of Trustees,
Port Gibson, Miss., Aug 24

COLLEGIATE INSTITUTE AT BATON ROUGE.

TENTH SESSION.
The exercises of the school will be resumed on Wednesday, October 24, 1867.
The best facilities are afforded for the acquisition of a first-rate education:
Patrician care is bestowed on the moral and social culture of the pupils.

There is but one session in the year and every student who enters the school is expected to continue to the close of the session in July, and will be held liable for the bills in all cases, unless protracted illness shall compel his removal.

Every pupil is required to furnish his own bedding, towels, wash-basin, mosquito-bar and all marked distinctly with his own name—also a satchel for dirty clothes.

It is urgently requested that Students be prompt in their attendance. A few days absence at the beginning is often a serious disadvantage during the entire session.

TERMS: Board and Tuition per session, $360.
PAYMENTS: $200 in advance—balance 1st March.
Tuition of Day-Scholars, per session, $75 00 payable—one half in advance—balance 1st March.

Modern languages will be taught when the wants of the School demand it, at an extra charge as low as it can be made.
No expense is spared to secure as Teachers, gentlemen of the highest character and ability.
W. H. N. MAGRUDER,
Baton Rouge, La., June 1867. Aug 3-4m

THE "ARROW" TIE.

AND PAINTED IRON BANDS.

For sale at the lowest prices, by
H. T. BARTLETT & R. W. RAYNE,
General Agents, No. 42 Carondelet street.

The above popular fastening is the best now in use for haling Cotton. They are approved by the Insurance Companies of this city, and are used at the Cotton Presses in New Orleans, Memphis, Mobile, Galveston, Savannah, and by Planters everywhere with success and approbation.

N. B.—Said ARROW TIES are on sale by dealers in New Orleans, and everywhere throughout all the Cotton growing States, at the lowest prices.
je 22-67-6m

A TREATISE ON DEAFNESS AND CATARRH.

Their causes and means of immediate relief and speedy cure sent free for 10 cents.
DR. T. H. STILWELL,
aug 24-1m Williamsburg, Kings Co. N. Y.

MRS. DYER'S BOARDING HOUSE.

This is situated on Camp street, the first door above St. Patrick's Cathedral, No. 174.
References: Rev. Dr. Keener, Dr. Walker, Ljouis Parker, R. J. Harp.
je 9 6m

It is an unfailing remedy in all cases of Neuralgia, Facialis, often effecting a perfect cure in less than twenty-four hours, from the use of no more than two or three pills.
No other form of Neuralgia or Nervous Disease has failed to yield to this wonderful remedial agent.

Even the severest cases of Chronic Neuralgia and general nervous derangement, of many years standing,—affecting the entire system, is cured in a few days, or a few weeks at the utmost, always affording the most astonishing relief, and very rarely fails to produce a complete and permanent cure.

It contains no drugs or other materials in the slightest degree injurious, even to the most delicate system, and can always be used with perfect safety.

It has long been in constant use by many of our most eminent physicians, who give it their unanimous and unqualified approval.
Sent by mail on receipt of price, and postage.

One package, $1 00 Postage 6 cts
Six packages, 5 00 " 27
Twelve packages, 9 00 " 43

It is sold by all wholesale and retail dealers in drugs and medicines throughout the United States, and by
Turner & Co., Sole Proprietors,
je 22 129 Tremont street, Boston, Mass.

NORTH, BRUSH & M. SON,

Wholesale Dealers in
Fancy Goods,
STATIONERY, PERFUMERY, CUTLERY
HOSTESSERY,
Furnishing Goods, etc.,
35 MAGAZINE STREET,
Opposite the St. James Hotel, New Orleans, La
aug 25 1y

BELL'S BELL'S BELL'S

Established in 1831.
VANDUZE & CO.
COFFIN & CO.
102 & 104 East Second
Cincinnati
Manufacturers of BELLS for Churches, Schools, Colleges, etc., and of all kinds of Brass and Iron Castings. Made of Genuine Bell Metal, and our improved Bell Metal. All Bells warranted to prove and subject to be returned. Illustrated Catalogue and Price upon application.

DOLBEAR COMMERCIAL

On the corner of Camp and (In the Spacious and Elegant
It is constantly in session under State. Its former students Principals or Book-keepers in a the old houses of this city and States: Ladies or gentlemen COMMERCIAL COURSE, or Penmanship, Mathematics, Ex-Specially prepared. A business enables one to earn $1000, $2000, annually, in the best home par-ment. A DIPLOMA from this part in all Commercial com-and Gentlemen are invited to sent year. Liberal arrange-Clergymen or their sons and Catalogues sent to all who desire
nov 17 1y

BUCKEYE BELL FOUNDRY

Established in 1831.
VANDUZE & CO.
COFFIN & CO.
102 & 104 East Second
Cincinnati
Manufacturers of BELLS for Churches, Schools, Colleges, etc., and of all kinds of Brass and Iron Castings. Made of Genuine Bell Metal, and our improved Bell Metal. All Bells warranted to prove and subject to be returned. Illustrated Catalogue and Price upon application.

KNIGHT & CO.

Dealers in PLANTATION, MILL, & WOOD
MACHINERY
And Agricultural Implements.
Keep constantly on hand a large
of articles peculiar to our business, our agents in the North and East, can-ly, and at a small advance above man-prices, all orders for articles in our ally kept in this market.
The great change in our labor mar-tates a corresponding change in the and we have prepared complete the labor improved.

LABOR-SAVING MACHINERY

both for Agricultural and Manu-at prices that will warrant their cases. Also, LEEDS & CO'S Sugar Sawing, Gum Gearing, &c; and will any kind of work done at their their prices.

172 GRAVIER STREET, NEW

AUSTIN & GOODWIN

Wholesale Dealers and TIN WARE
COOKING AND HEATING
Of all kinds, sole Agents for the Cooking Stove.

25 Peters, formerly

SOUTH-WESTERN BIBLE

Where is it located? Its Depository is in its own building, No.
street, New Orleans.
When was it established? 1850.
Who is its General Agent to respondence on its business should be Rev. W. H. Dayless.

What is the Society's field of operation? Louisiana, and all the 33rd parallel of North latitude.
What is the object of the Society and supply (gratuitously where possible) of the Holy Scriptures.

What are the resources and who composes the Society? From the ambitions of its members. Collec-es within its field, collections at pa-and universities. Appropriations plunder of individuals, testamentary the general donation in Books of Bible Society.

What is the Society's method of cultivating its own local work in district of New Orleans; then Societies established or to be of the Society, and County in the employment of the Society, and complete the object of the Society.

What are the terms of membership?
The payment of $50 at one time life member.
The payment of $150 at one time
a life Director.

The payment of $1000 at one time
a life Patron.
The payment of $3 annually, a member.

The taking up of a collection constitutes the honor an honorary member. Having thus briefly stated of the Society's work, income and of the Board of Directors for the idently ask the aid of all whether professors of religion strengthen the hands of the founding, or reviving, and urging donations, by exploiting the destitution of the Scripture, or renewing membership by establishing connections with ty as the Lord has prospered them that Scripture which says "Let not selves treasures upon earth where rust doth corrupt, and where thereth corrupt, and where thieves break through and steal." To mis-Christians of every Orthodox Prothe Board of Directors, representing such within our bounds, appeals to aid them by judicious effort.
a formance of duty and a prayerful of the Society, which says "Let not except the Lord build the house, valu that build it, except the Lord
the watchman waketh but in vain.

Our last thought is the hearty Reformation. No forbidding a hammering with the text: "respondent: God's Word: Christ's Spirit's Word: Free: Free: Free."

COPARTNERSHIP.

The undersigned, for many house of J. Marks & Co., has this Copartnership with Mr. J. H. Massey mon street, for the purpose of Wholesale Dry Goods Business, and
and firm of

J. H. MASSEY & CO.

and respectfully solicits the
old friends.
New Orleans, January 1, 1867.

J. H. MASSEY & CO.

WHOLESALE DEALERS
DRY GOODS AND CLOTH-100 Common Street, opposite
mar 2-67

HENDERSON A. MORSE

ATTORNEY AT LAW,
—and—
Commissioner of Deeds
For the States of South Carolina,
Kentucky, Tennessee, Georgia, Mississippi, Missouri, Arkansas,
Alabama, and Louisiana.
No. 22 Commercial
Third Floor.
New
april 20 1y

J. W. CARROLL. JOS. HOY

CARROLL, HOY & CO.,
COTTON

AND. GENERAL COMMISSION MERCHANTS
 No. 36 Perdido Street, New Orleans
 aug 18 17
S. H. KENNEDY & CO.,
 General Commission Merchants
COTTON FACTORS,
 57 Poydras street
 Cotton Office—192 Common street—of RICHARD J. NOGENT.

W. C. TOMPKINS. H. R. ALLEN & CO.
WM. C. TOMPKINS,
 WHOLESALE DRY GOODS
 No. 2 Magazine st., corner Canal, New Orleans
 A complete assortment of goods come hand for the country trade.

PAYNE, HUNTINGTON & CO.
Cotton Factors
 No. 34 Union Street, NEW ORLEANS
 J. U. PAYNE, G. W. HUNTINGTON
 W. H. DAMERON, H. M. PAYNE
 Je23-17.

G. M. STEINER, PHOS.
G. M. STEINER & CO.
GROCERS,
572 and 574 Magazine Street,
(opposite Magazine Market.)
Have always on hand, a large and fresh selection of Teas, Coffee, Sugar, Bacon, Canned Fruits, Fish, Pickles, Sausages, and serves;
—Also—
CHOICE GOSHEN BUTTER
Goods delivered free of charge.

D. A. BLACKSHER. MILLER C.
B. S. HARPER & CO.
 COTTON FACTORS
 AND
 GENERAL COMMISSION MERCHANTS
 13 ST. CHARLES STREET
 NEW ORLEANS, LA.
 B. S. HARPER. N. J. TRACY
B. S. HARPER & CO.
 Cotton and Tobacco Factors
 AND - GENERAL COMMISSION MERCHANTS
 No. 81 Carondelet street, New Orleans
 S. M. SWENSON.

PERKINS, SWENSON, & CO.,
GENERAL COMMISSION

NO. 48 CARONDELET, CORNER OF UNION AND
NEW ORLEANS

SWENSON, PERKINS & COMPANY
GENERAL COMMISSION MERCHANTS
26 Exchange Place, New York.
1879

PHOS. H. ALLEN, JAMES M. ALLEN
Memphis, Tenn. PERRY FOSTER,
T. H. & J. M. ALLEN,
(SUCCESSORS TO ROBSON & CO.)
Cotton Factors & Commission Merchants
162 COMMON STREET, NEW ORLEANS
1878

ALEX. P. STEWART, CHAR. S. STEWART
Of Lebanon, Tenn. Of New Orleans
STEWART & BROTHER,
Cotton and Tobacco Factors
General Commission, Receiving and
warding Merchants,
NO. 124 CARONDELET STREET, NEW ORLEANS
1877

CARHART, WHITFORD & COMPANY
Manufacturers and Dealers in CLOTHING,
AMERICAN EXPRESS BUILDING
Hudson street.

April 20-67 3 m
New York
E S KEEP.
KEEP & CAULFIELD, L. CAUL

| | |
|--|---|
| Western Produce,
 AND COMMISSION MERCHANTS
 Nos. 77 & 70 Poydras street, New Orleans
 Oct 13 | W. & A. O'NEILL |
| BENNY WARE,
 Of Texas. H. WARE & SON,
 Cotton and Wool Factors
 AND COMMISSION MERCHANTS
 No. 63 Carondelet street, New Orleans
 Oct 13 | W. & A. O'NEILL |
| ATKINSON & CO:
 New York. H. HEWITT, NORTON & CO.
 COTTON FACTORS. | JAMES HEWITT
 Liverpool |

And Commission Merchants
188 COMMON STREET, NEW ORLEANS
— —
Cash advances made on consignments
by HEWITT, SWISHER & Co., Galveston, Texas.
W. W. CHAPMAN.

Commission, Receiving and Forwarding
MERCHANT.
 MONROE
 REFERENCES: Messrs. Nalle, Day,
 Spyke & Handlige, Cowen & Mayo, &
 Walker, New Orleans, La.

D. H. HOLMES,
 Direct Importation of FANCY AND STAPLE DRY GOODS
 AT WHOLESALE AND RETAIL
 No. 155 Canal Street,

W A VIOLETT. R Y BLACK. S H
VIOLETT, BLACK & CO.,
COTTON FACTORS,
 And General Commission Mer
 156m 138 Gravier street, New Orle

CHRISTIAN ADVOCATE

ORGAN OF THE M. E. CHURCH SOUTH FOR THE MOBILE, MONTGOMERY, MISSISSIPPI AND LOUISIANA CONFERENCES.

VOLUME XIII.—NUMBER 34.
WHOLE NUMBER 643.

NEW ORLEANS, SATURDAY, SEPT. 21, 1867.

($3.00 A YEAR IN ADVANCE)
OFFICE—112 CAMP STREET

SOLDIERS OF THE CROSS.

They tell us of the Paladins, the knights of feudal times,
Whoathed their tempered sabres in the light
Of Asia's climes;
Who smote the Saracen, or cleft the turban
Of the Moslem;
Who, in their Maker's sight they wrought a pleasing work.

And standard was a cross of red, upon a Ground of white,
Which, in the glow of flame and snow these Warriors loved to fight;
And though their life-blood stained the plain,
They counted it no loss,
To die the martyr-death as "Soldiers of the Cross."

And champions of Christendom, they longed to Measure swords,
With Saladin, and all his Pay-sant hosts;
And when the trumpet of battle gave the signal
For the fray,
They rushed on a countless foe as "twere a single day."

And days of steel-clad chivalry, of belted men
And spurred,
Were numbered as a wreath of snow by austral Breathings stirred;
And when the last of men-at-arms, and yet so valiant, fell;
We purer fame who bear their names as
"Soldiers of the Cross."

And loins are girt with truthfulness, their Breasts are armed with right,
And the helm and faith's broad shield secure
Them in the fight;
And while with sandals of peace their feet
Are safely shod,
With iron clasps they ever grasp the Spirit
Word of God.

And they, too, have a banner proud to cheer
Them to the strife,
They charge beneath its glorious folds to serve
The Prince of Life;
And, borne upon a field of white, a cross of ruby Stains,
The white ground cries, "No righteous is" the Cross, "He once was slain!"

And when the "Immanuel" they never knew Defeat,
Upon the banners of sin their dauntless legions pour,
And sweep the thunderous ocean surf upon a Shelving shore.

And then, let knight and armor bright rest in Their dust and rust,
And men are marching in the armies of the Just;
That tattered chivalry we've nothing left
But dress,
And Hell go down before these "Soldiers Of the Cross."

X. O. Christian Advocate.
JOHN WESLEY.
NO. VI.

Wesley lived to bury nearly all his contemporaries and early adversaries, but he lived to see a numerous ministry and membership raised up to snatch the standard, and fell from hands palsied by sland and death, and vigorously and heroically bear it on. He lived over three hundred and thirteen years, and seventy-thousand members in England, and in America, one hundred and fifty-eight ministers and fiftythousand six hundred and one members.

His wonderful activity and remarkable health continued up to the last year of his life. Nine months before he died, he preached in London, the last sermon he ever preached, from this text—"Seek the Lord while he may be found, and call ye upon him while he is near." His last sickness was short, and as all who knew him and anticipated from his life of holiness and glorious. During his last illness he repeated many passages of Holy Writ, and sentiments from verses of holy song, expressive of his resignation, faith, and triumphant hope. A day or two before his death he exclaimed, with a heart overflowing with joy and gratitude—

"I praise my Maker while I've breath,
And when my voice is lost in death,
Prayer shall employ my nobler powers;
My days of praise shall not be past;
While life and thought and being last,
Or immortality endures."

And when he breathed his last he exclaimed—"The best of all, God with us." Thus in his eighty-fourth year, and in the sixty-fifth of his ministry, in a calm and unclouded sky, this great and good man went down in smiles, and left an unfading radiance to illuminate and mark his path to immortality.

We remarked in the first of this series of articles, that no doubt Wesley had his frailties, in common with all mankind, but candor compels us to say that he had as few as almost any of those illustrious names that shine on the best and brightest page of history. The very brightness of the sun gives a conspicuousness to its spots, which, if the sun were less resplendent, would be far less ob-servable. So of the eminent men who stand far above the level of common life—their traits, bright or dark, are placed in clearer light and stronger relief than those of the mass unknown to fame.

Wesley has not escaped the fate that has in all time befallen the eminently great or good. Such men, from the necessity of the case, must shock the narrow prejudices of many, and excite the envy of those smaller luminaries who are eclipsed by their superior brightness. Immaculate goodness and wisdom manifested in the flesh did not escape the epithets of slanderous and scurrilous tongues.

Wesley has been charged with enthusiasm and fanaticism. We demand the proof. He was one of the calmest of men. The great Robert Hall said the wonder about Wesley was—that he moved others all around him, and yet was ever calm and unmoved himself. He stood like a pilot at the wheel calm and unmoved amid all the war and commotion of contending elements. If it be enthusiasm to wish to enlighten the ignorant, to guide the wandering, and to save the perishing, then Wesley was enthusiastic. If to pray, to write, to preach, and give for fifty years to promote the praise of God and the good of men, especially such unhappy men as were despised, neglected, and scorned by others, he enthusiastic, may the Giver of all good inspire millions with more of it, until all the Lord's people are prophets.

Wesley has been charged with a love of power, and that his aim was to raise up an independent sect that should be called after his name. If it be meant by this charge to say that he loved power for the mere love of its exercise, we are bold to say that there is nothing in his history to sustain the allegation.

There cannot, indeed, be any dangerous exercise of power in a mere voluntary and moral association. No one can be seriously oppressed—they enter the association by their own election, and retire from it at pleasure. Wesley could inflict no pains or penalties.
Besides, and this should be conclusive—there is no instance on record of the exercise of arbitrary power, or power abused.

It does not appear that at the outset of his career, as an itinerant that Wesley had any idea of organizing a distinct branch of the Church. His object was to spread Scriptural holiness over the land.
Had the clergy of the Established Church co-operated with him, taking him by the hand, and opened their churches to him, there would have been a great revival in the Church of England, and through her, throughout all England. Wesley would have organized no distinct church. The clergy, however, with a very few honorable exceptions, did none of these things. They shut their doors and barred their communion tables against him and those brought to Christ by his ministry. They ridiculed him in the most scurrilous manner, encouraged mobs to insult and maltreat his person; wrote a busive articles and circulated them to defame his honorable name.

Such were the causes that compelled Wesley, either to abandon a career of usefulness that God was most eminently honoring, or else organize a distinct Church. This result has been lamented by writers in the Episcopal Church as a great calamity. With the light of history before me, I am not able to see it as a calamity. With all due deference to such writers, we think it an illustrious example of God's way of making the wrath of man to praise Him. It has been happy for the religious and immortal interests of millions, that the development of Christianity known as Methodism has received a distinct and organic existence. We are free to say, (and if at all honest, must think so, or we would not remain where by choice we have long been) that Methodism, in its ecclesiastical peculiarities, is a much more efficient organization, and adapted to a much more extended measure of good than the Protestant Episcopal Church in the United States, or the Episcopal Church as established by law in England.

CONCLUSION NEXT WEEK.

From the Southern Review.

THE NORTH AND SOUTH.

CONTINUED FROM LAST WEEK.

It is a great mistake to suppose, as some do, that this class or description of consciences, is a recent phenomenon in the history of American politics. It has, in fact, existed from the first landing of the Pilgrim Fathers at Plymouth Rock to the present day. It dealt with the Articles of Confederation made by and between four of the New England Colonies in 1643, precisely as it afterwards did with the ordinance of 1787 and the compact of the Constitution of the same year.
But never, perhaps, did it reveal its odious character more clearly, than in its serpentine policy respecting the navigation of the Mississippi and in the sectional storm raised by this policy in 1786-7. The nature of that contest is well stated by Mr.
Grayson. "I look upon this," said he, "as a contest for empire. . . .
The Southern States are deeply interested in this subject. If the Mississippi be shut up, emigration will be stopped entirely. There will be no new States formed on the Western waters. This government will be a government of seven States. The contest of the Mississippi involves this great natural contest, that is, whether one part of the continent shall govern the other. The Northern States have the majority, and will endeavor to retain it. This is therefore a contest, for dominion, for empire! This language was used in the Ratifying Convention of Virginia, in regard to the disposition of the North, as evinced by its past acts, to weaken and cripple the growth of the South, by ceding to Spain the exclusive right to navigate the Mississippi. By excluding the Southern and Western people from that navigation, their growth and the formation of Western States would have been impeded, and political power retained by the North.

The North, always fearing lest power should pass from its hands, determined to cede to Spain the navigation of the Mississippi.
Hence, before the new Union was formed, seven Northern States, deliberately and in solid phalanx, voted to exclude the citizens of the United States from the use of that great river; than which it is scarcely possible to conceive a more violent assault of one part of the Confederacy upon the rights and interests of another. It is no wonder that this should have produced, as it did, a most violent sectional controversy which shook the Union to its foundations, before the Constitution of the late United States was formed, or had even been conceived.
The six Southern States remained faithfully opposed to the seven Northern States in regard to the transfer of that great and indispensable right. Resolutions from the Southern States were addressed to their representatives in Congress:
instructing them to resist this scheme of sectional aggrandizement, which consisted in the design to cripple and impoverish its weaker rival. The House of Delegates, of Virginia, adopted the following resolutions on the 29th November, 1786:—

Resolved, That the common right of navigating the river Mississippi, and of communicating with other nations through that channel, ought to be considered as the bountiful gift of Nature to the United States, as proprietors of the territories watered by the said river and its eastern branches, and as moreover secured to them by the late Revolution.

Resolved, That the Confederacy, having been formed on the broad basis of equal right in every part thereof to the protection and guardianship of the whole, a sacrifice of the rights of any one part to the supposed or real interest of another part, would be a flagrant violation of justice, a direct contravention of the end for which the Federal Government was instituted, and an alarming innovation on the system of the Union.

Resolved, therefore, That the delegates representing this State in Congress, ought to be instructed, in the most decided terms, to oppose any attempt that may be made in Congress to barter or surrender to any nation whatever, the right of the United States to the free and common use of the river Mississippi; and to protest against the same as a dishonorable departure from that comprehensive and benevolent policy which constitutes the vital principle of the Confederacy; as provoking the just resentments and re-proaches of our Western brethren, whose essential rights and interests would be thereby sacrificed and sold; as destroying that confidence in the wisdom, justice and liberality of the Federal Councils, which is so necessary, at this crisis, to a proper enlargement of their authority; and, finally, as tending to undermine our repose, our prosperity, and the Union itself; and that the said delegates ought to be further instructed to urge the proper negotiations with Spain, for obtaining her concurrence in such regulations touching the mutual and common use of the said river, as may secure the permanent harmony and affection of the two nations."

Henry and Grayson were in the House of Delegates, when these spirited Resolutions were adopted, and, being familiar with the political transactions of the day, lost all confidence in the fairness and justice of a Northern majority in consequence of the manner in which it had dealt with the Mississippi question. In reference to this question, Mr. Madison writes from Congress to Jefferson at Paris, March 19th, 1781: "I have already made known to you the light in which the subject was taken up by Virginia. Mr.
Henry's disgust exceeds all measure, and I am not singular in ascrib-ing his refusal to attend the Convention [of 1787] to the policy of keeping himself free to combat or expose the result of it, according to the result of the Mississippi business, among other circumstances." Mr.
Henry not only refused to attend the Convention of 1787, to which he had been appointed a delegate, but, in the Ratifying Convention of Virginia, he became the most determined opponent of the proposed Constitution; because he deemed it little short of madness to confide the rights and interests of the South to a Northern majority, armed with the formidable powers of the new government. And was he not right? Did not his experience of the past justify his fears for the future?

But there is a still darker feature in this Mississippi business. As no Southern State would unite with the North to cede the exclusive navigation of the Mississippi to Spain, so, by the Articles of Confederation, they were deprived of the power to make the transfer.
Two-thirds of the States were necessary for that purpose. "But Northern Statesmen," as Barbours says,
"true to their national instincts, were nothing dismayed by constitutional obstacles. They sought to obtain that object by a fraudulent device unparalleled for its immorality in the history of American legislation. The plan was this: To obtain from Congress instructions to the Secretary of State, Mr. Jay, to negotiate a treaty with Spain, upon the basis that the claims of the Enlited States to the Mississippi should not be conceded, and then to have that part of the instructions which concerned the condition revoked, which they contended might be done by a simple vote of the majority in Congress; which was composed of Northern men? That is, they could not directly deprive the South, and the West of the use of the Mississippi by the vote of a majority, nor by less than two-thirds of the States;

but then they could do precisely the same thing indirectly by a bare majority of one State! They only had to authorize a treaty to be made declaring that the use of the Mississippi should not be ceded away, and then, by the vote of a bare majority, repeal that part of the instructions; and the Secretary might then barter away the very right which two-thirds of the States had expressly declared should not be conceded! Is not such a trick unsurpassed, even in the history of Yankee legislation?

Such a statement would indeed seem incredible, if it were not supported by the testimony of Mr.
Madison, and by the action of Congress itself. Mr. Madison, in writing from Congress to Mr. Jefferson at Paris, says "the Spanish project sleeps. A perusal of the attempt of seven States to make a new treaty, by repealing an essential condition of the old, satisfied me that Jay's caution (he does not say his conscience) would revolt at so irregular a proceeding. That is to say, the indirect attempt of seven States to make a treaty, under a Constitution which expressly declared that no treaty should be made by less than nine States! and that, too, by simply overruling the authority which it had required nine States to give!"

But the scheme, so cleverly contrived, says the author above quoted, "miscarried in its execution; for when the proposition was made in Congress to repeal that part of the Secretary's instruction which related to the Mississippi, and the Northern Members impudently contended that it lay within the power of a mere majority, it raised so great a tempest that the conspirators were frightened from their purpose. There is no doubt that, had they possessed the hardihood to have acted upon their plans, it would have produced a violent dissolution of the Union between the two sections. Mr. Madison ascribes the failure of this most extraordinary project to the same cause, or rather he supposed its failure would result from that cause. In the letter just quoted, he says: "A late accidental conversation with Gardoqui proved to me that the negotiation is arrested. It may appear strange that a member of Congress should be indebted to a foreign minister for such information; yet such is the footing on which the interference of party (i. e. of sectional strife) has put the matter, that it rests wholly with Jay how far he will communicate with Congress, as well as how far he will negotiate with Gardoqui. But it appears that the intended sacrifice of the Mississippi will not be made; the consequences of the intention and the attempt are likely to be very serious." No wonder that the mere intention and attempt, on the part of seven States, to perpetrate a violation of the Articles of Confederation by a trick so flagitious, so ontrageous, and so mean, should have been attended with very serious consequences. The execution of it would, no doubt, have instantly dissolved the Union between the two great sections, even then jarring and warring in their diverse courses, and in their struggle for power; the one to maintain its independence, and the other its ascendancy. How futile, then, the miserable attempt to bind them together forever by a new written compact and the official oaths of faithless demagogues!

Under his authority to negotiate a treaty with Spain, upon the basis that the claims of the United States should not be conceded, Mr.
Jay proceeded, as it appears, to concede these very claims. This point is settled by the proceedings of Congress, as disclosed in the letter of Mr. Madison to Jefferson, bearing date April 23, 1787, in which he says: "This Spanish negotiation is in a very ticklish situation. You have been already apprised of the votes of seven States last fall, for ceding the Mississippi for a term of years. From sundry circumstances it was inferred, that Jay was proceeding under the usurped authority. A late instruction to him to lay the state of the negotiation before Congress, has discovered that he has adjusted with Gardoqui an article for suspending the use of the Mississippi by the citizens of the United States."

The above letters of Mr. Madison had not been published when, in 1788, the Convention of Virginia met to ratify or to reject the new Constitution of the United States.
Otherwise they must have been lions in his path. As it was, his extreme desire to establish "a more perfect Union" between the States, and especially between the sections,

led him to put the best possible face on the ugly features of this Mississippi business, and to smooth down the angry passions it had so naturally excited in the Southern mind.
"The seven Northern States," said Mr. Henry in that Convention, "are determined to give up the Mississippi." Mr. Madison replied, that it was the design to cede it for only thirty-five years, at the expiration of which time Spain would, it was believed, willingly restore it to the United States. "Is it imagined," rejoined Henry, "that Spain will, after a peaceable possession of thirty-five years, give it up to you again?
Can credulity itself hope that the Spaniards, who wish to have it for that period, desire to clear the river for you? What is it they wish? To clear the river? For whom? America saw the time when she had the reputation of common sense at least!"

PASSING AWAY.

Beautiful and bright are the mornings which come to the young, and hours of gladness follow, and thus for successive years, until at length a day comes, the rising of whose sun was as bright as any that ever preceded it, and yet, before its close, an incident has occurred, almost unlooked for as a gleam of lightning in a cloudless sky. The unexpected erease has been for the first time noticed in the hitherto polished forehead so faultlessly smooth, and the unwelcome conviction flits across the mind that youth is "passing away." A while later, and the cords and veins begin to stand out on the back of the hand, and we instinctively draw it in, as if afraid our friend might also notice that we were "passing away."

Next, the hateful crow-foot disfigure the corners of the eyes; we walk around an obstacle rather than clear it at a bound; we let down the bars rather than scale the fence; we are not so hot for argument as we once were; we rather sit in silence than contend; we become less im-compromising in our opinions; our assertions are less dogmatic; our inveectives less sweeping; we become more considerate; more disposed to "make allowances" for the faults and foibles, and the crimes of others, as if growing more in unison with the sentiment:

"That mercy to another show That mercy show to me!"

and as if we felt that to the "judgment" we were "passing away." Then again a tooth or two has fallen out, and we instinctively take a seat at the window, when about to read the morning paper; we look more for facts less for opinions; men's characters are measured by their profession; we are more anxious to learn what men do than what they say; and we consider what is in the heart of greater importance than what is in the head. In all our judgments we are more deliberate as we become more sensible that there is less ability and less time to correct mistakes, for that we are
"passing away."

The streets are now less full, and so are the churches, of the "friends of our old days; of whom in the whirl of business we have regretful thoughts, and feel of some one more distinctly remembered, "O, how I would like to see him again," or, as to some other one, known to be living, we determine we will write a letter and talk of old times; and make a thousand inquiries about mutual classmates and friends; but in another hour business engagements crowd in, the letter is never written; and the next we hear—"he is dead." Then comes the feeling, with an overwhelming force, that we also are "passing away!" And so we are, dear reader, but let it our care, that while the physical man is letting go its hold on this mortal life, the spiritual shall grow stronger day by day, rising above the fogs and shackles of the mortal frame preparatory to being disengaged from it altogether; and at the instant of its complete disentanglement, the vision "the substance of things hoped for" so long breaks in upon the ravished sight, and we have "passed away"—to Heaven!—Hall's Journal of Health.

Methodism in France and Switzerland is on the increase. The increase includes five local preachers, 208 members, eight Sunday Schools, fifty-three teachers, 434 scholars, and about 600 hearers, the whole average of persons attending the ministry being 10,000. This encouraging progress is due to pastors which have broken out in most of the circuits. The sixteenth Conference of the Methodist Church in the two countries was recently held in Lausanne.

Montgomery District Meeting.

Mr. KERR.—This meeting was organized on Friday the 6th Sept., in Auburn. The introductory sermon, having been preached on Thursday night, by Rev. O. R. Blue.

Bishops Andrew and Wightman, presided alternately. The meeting was not so full as anticipated, in consequence of excessive rains. Every appointment in the District was represented. The usual committees were appointed. They met their responsibilities faithfully. The Presiding Elder and Pastors of the several stations and circuits, made full reports of their work, touching the general points, all of which were very encouraging. Congregations have increased in numbers, anxious to hear preaching—revivals at various points. The convictions were deep and striking—the membership greatly revived—many conversions, social meetings well attended, family religion on the increase, local ministry active—finances hopeful—a greatly increased interest in schools—the educational interests received the full attention of the meeting. The committee on education brought forward in several reports, the important interest of Tuskegee F. College and East A. College, showing clearly that they are entitled to the support and patronage of the church and country. Both are in session, under the management of able, efficient, and trustworthy faculties. The District meeting endorsed them fully by unanimous resolutions. A relief association, for the benefit of E. A. College was organized. A plan similar to Bishop Pierce's for Emory was adopted. Bro. D. Browder was elected President, G. C. Dillard Secretary, and M. Hurt Treasurer of the association.

The meeting resolved to raise the sum of $300 to be used, in the education of one young man, for the ministry. The beneficiary to be selected from the district, by a committee of Pastors.

The discussions on the various reports and resolutions, were in fine taste and spirit. Several entertaining and instructive addresses were delivered before the meeting. The exercises of Saturday night were highly interesting, the occasion being an anniversary celebration of Auburn S. School. Bishop's Andrew, Wightman, and Elder Scott of Ga. preached during the meeting. One local deacon was ordained on Sunday, by Bishop Wightman. Rev. Jas. F. Dowdell, Bros. David Clifton, B. F. Howard, and William Lowther were elected lay representatives to the Annual Conference. Bros. John Lerearengen and Dr. R. Howard, Alternates. The meeting was pleasant, and highly instructive. All acknowledged increased favorable impressions of District meetings. The hospitality and Christian kindness on the part of the citizens of Auburn, was highly appreciated by the members of the meeting—for all which a vote of thanks was unanimously adopted. I send you the resolution adopted, and report of the Committee on "the support of the ministry," for publication.

W. LOWTHER, Sec'y.

[We insert an extract from the report of the committee on the Support of the Ministry. The whole report covers some thirteen pages.]

Many fail to discharge this duty because they do not make it a matter of individual conscience. When the claim is presented, covetousness instinctively flies to some selfish standard whereby to settle the question. Hence we so often hear men inquiring what others, richer than themselves, are paying, with the design of falling below them. They never ask what those pay, who are poorer than themselves, lest they should be ashamed of their own figures. How many ask "what is my proportion?" That is, we must equalize the burden by dividing it equally between all the membership. We have $500 to raise from 100 members. That, say they, can be easily raised if each member will pay five dollars, and we are willing to stand our proportion. How few ever stand out in their proper responsible individuality, and ask, "what ought I to pay?" "How much do I owe the Lord?" If every man would take this duty to the bar of his individual conscience, and forgetting everybody else, settle it there, we should often see what Paul witnessed in the churches of Macedonia, but what few have ever seen in these days, "praying us with much entreaty that we would receive the gift."

Another prominent cause of failure in this duty is, the want of rule or system. Men give from impulse, or from the pressure of public opinion, or according to the urgency of the Stewards, but rarely from any fixed rule or uniform system. Hence the irregular, spasmodic condition of all our church finances. The business of paying money for all religious purposes deserves to be conducted on sound business principles, and other things being equal, the man of order and system not only secures as much success as others, but he enjoys far more quietness and satisfaction.

The great rule laid down by the Apostle Paul in 1 Cor. xvi-2, is of universal and perpetual obligation, not only as the dictate of a sound mind, but because it comes to us with the authority of an inspired truth. Hear it; "Upon the first day of the week, let every one of you lay by him in store, as God hath prospered him." Whatever difficulties may arise in the practical outworking of this direction, there can be no doubt of its obligation. Its spirit requires that we have a rule, that our contributions be rigidly proportional, "according as God hath prospered us," and that we make frequent settlements, no doubt with a view of laying aside from all risks of business, the Lord's per-centage of our gains.

He who rattles upon a system to regulate his giving, fights one great battle with selfishness, and but one. He who lives without system suffers from the conflict between conscience and covetousness over every demand that meets him.

But not unfrequently the burden of failure to meet the wants of the ministry lies at the door of those whose special duty it is, to see that those wants are met. I mean of course, the financial agents of the church and ministry, the stewards. If these are negligent of their duty, few churches will pay through other channels. If these are timid they will utterly fail to break through the indifference and selfishness, and covetousness that so thickly encrust many of the professed followers of a self-denying Saviour.

But far worse than these two faults combined is the curse of penuriousness in a steward. For whether right or wrong, many take the stewards as standards; and if penurious men, they not only come short in duty themselves, but they inevitably cause others to "withhold more than is meet."

If the principles herein set forth be correct, and if the causes assigned be the true grounds of failure, it remains that, the remedy for this acknowledged evil is:

That, the Church get light upon the duty itself, clear scriptural light; that measures be devised to remove the ignorance, and correct the improper views that so many hold; that we get the individual conscience enlisted; and then, that we pay by some rule that will at least approximate uniformity in its operation.

That, the stewards begin early in the year, and balance accounts at least quarterly; that they be examples of earnest perseverance in well-doing; that they be bold, as men acting under a divine warrant should be.

So shall we secure the blessing of Him who charged his people of old with robbery for withholding the tithes divinely ordained for the support of his priests, and who will curse the people that starve his ministers, by withholding from them that living which He has ordained.

The committee have been greatly encouraged by the reports from the several circuits and stations. We hope that light is dawning, that the people are being awakened to their duty in this regard, and, that all the pecuniary obligations of the church will be fully met.

In conclusion, the committee recommend the adoption of the accompanying resolution, as the presentation of a plan, which, so far as the observation and energies of the committee have extended, has been found the most efficient, and successful in providing for the support of the ministry, and expenses of the church.

Resolved, That this District Meeting recommend that, as early in the year as practicable, the Stewards of the respective stations and circuits, ascertain and assess the amount necessary to support the ministry and defray the other expenses of the church; that the next succeeding church meeting appoint a committee, who shall assess to each member his proportion of said amount according to his ability to pay, and that such assessment be handed to the Stewards to collect and disburse; and that, this amount be divided into, at least quarterly payments, and all collections and payments be made accordingly, so that, at the end of each quarter all the financial business of that quarter be closed.

DAVID CLOFTON, Chairman.
MOTLEY, FREEMAN, SNEAD, McKENZIE, Committee.

Resolved, That the report of Committee on Support of Ministry, be published in our Conference Organ, and be read in every church in the districts, by one of our Stewards.

ARCOLA District Meeting—Miss. Conference.

First District Meeting at Day's Church, St. Helena Parish, La. Arcola District, on the 24th August, 1867.

Meeting opened by reading of the Scriptures, singing, and prayer.

The reports from the different Circuits show a tolerable good state, no particular revivals, but in some places a growing interest in the cause of Christ.

The reports of Sunday-schools show considerable improvement, with increasing interest.

The reports of the finances of the district is backward, owing to the situation of the country and the fear of the destruction of the cotton crop, and the plan heretofore of paying at the close of the year. On motion the Stewards were advised to collect quarterly if possible, which is thought will work well.

The church literature is not circulated to any extent in the district on account of the defection in mail facilities, but with these improved there will be a large circulation.

The delegates to the Annual Conference at Natchez, Miss. Nov. 27th, 1867, are as follows:

| | | |
|---------------------|---------------|-------|
| E. L. Tarrar, L. P. | W. H. Hearty | Alt'n |
| E. D. Bennett | J. B. Goddard | |
| W. A. Tamer | E. W. Flowers | |
| John Powers | John Deaham | |

Minutes read and approved.

Adjourned.

JOS. NICHOLSON, President.

J. E. JACKERS, Secretary.

From the Southern Christian Advocate.

Comparative View of Methodism for Sixty Years.

BY DR. L. PIERCE.

There is no question of so much vital importance, to Wesleyan Methodism in America, as this one: Has Methodism, as a type of practical Christianity, fallen off in this type, or gained strength in the last sixty years? For on this ground alone, can Methodism, as a type of Christianity, be fairly tried. Well, I answer unequivocally, we have fallen off—fearfully fallen off. I prove this from the following facts:

In early times, I do not remember a single case of neglect of duty, in regard to Church relations. All felt bound to go right to work. And all did so. To take up daily their cross and follow Christ, was the motto of every man and woman, known to me, in all these pristine times of Methodism. Every body knew, that it was useless to try to smuggle into the Methodist Church, on any other foundation, than the General Rules. These were regarded then, as they really are, as the organic laws of Methodist fraternity. No one was conceived of as a Methodist, until he had freely and fully pitched his tent within these Wesleyan precincts. All were on hand always, when Church order and discipline required it.

Family worship was so universal, that I never knew a case where the head of a family ever presumed to live in the Church, and live without family prayer. Female heads of families generally kept up family prayer. Indeed, the General Rules then made the observance of family prayer a condition of membership, as they did every other prescribed duty of Christian life.

And then the preachers kept the Church pure. And members were all taught to feel, that the Church was the jewel of ministerial care. And then the numerical value of a member was not estimated at all. No one paid anything as an evidence of Methodism or of piety. So that all estimates of the value of a member were made upon the basis of moral character, and of co-operation in the duties, considered not merely as pertinent to a Methodist, but as absolutely indispensable to a Methodist. There might have been some pretenders to Methodism, in those days, who dissembled for some carnal purpose, but my belief is they were few and far between. The truth is, no man was suffered to remain in the Methodist Church, and trample on its General Rules of Christian communion and spiritual holiness. The Methodist Church was a sanctuary.

The question of any falling off in the practical piety of the Methodist Church is therefore reduced to the simple question of fact, whether a Church, when considered as a Church, can be considered as pious, when perhaps a majority of its members live in the habitual neglect of most of the duties of Church fraternity, and also of the duty of family worship, as when those relations and duties were conscientiously and universally discharged? If it cannot, then the question is answered against us. I affirm this to be the difference between Methodists now and Methodists in the first half of my ministry.

There is a great deal of piety, in the Church even now, for which, let us give thanks and sing. But I make a great difference between the fact of piety in a Church, and a pious Church. It is in this that the odds is so much against us. The time has been within my days when the Methodist Church was a pious Church, and was so accredited. It is not so accredited now. Still we have credit for many pious and noble Christian members.

Before passing away from this momentous question, I state the following proposition as a true one: If a Church does not accumulate in moral working power, as it accumulates in numbers, wealth and learning, the signs of decline are already in it and upon it. Such growth is like obesity in men. While it increases in bulk, it decreases in strength. When I entered on my itinerancy in 1805, our numerical strength was about one hundred thousand, and it is my belief, that this hundred thousand held more prayer meetings, prayed more public prayers for the spread of religion, than is being done now by over five hundred thousand private members in the Church, South. I also affirm, that in those days of simple working Methodists, I never—to the best of my recollection—heard a member of the Church, coaxing up excuses to keep from attending these here-and-there prayer meetings. In those days, it was constantly occurring, that religion broke into some unexpected house away off, and immediately our warm-souled people would establish a prayer meeting there, and draw in the neighbors from the regions beyond; and, forthwith, there was laid the foundation of another Church.

And this they did, not merely as the circuit rider might have hoped; but they did it, because they had first given their own selves unto the Lord, and unto us—that is to the ministers of the Church, by the will of God. These Christian men did this, because they were constrained by the love of Christ. They did it because of the sacred sympathy this religion gave them, in the Saviour's dying love for souls. They did it, as a free will offering. But now every Bishop and Elder in the Church cannot get the same method of Church extension re-inaugurated, either by appointment or by urgent entreaty. The reason is, because the religion capable to sustain such work, is not now in the Church. It is folly for you, my brethren, to hoodwink yourselves on this point. It is not among us, as once it was. To try to persuade yourselves up to that point, is a dangerous tampering, both with sight and conscience. Our true duty is to ascertain the cause of this regular influx of moral evil among us, and of this fearful drainage of our once spiritual communion with God. This done, and the proper preventive used, and Methodism will again become the great moral power in the world. Let it drift on, and it will become a religious marsh, enticing many to settle about it—as the marsh will abound with flowers—but its distillations will be a slow, religious poison.

The question now is, to what cause as original and principal shall we charge this falling off from primitive Methodist Christian consistency. There is in my opinion but one original inlet of evil into any Church that ever stood upon as broad a foundation of moral discipline as the Wesleyan Methodist Church did in its organization and so long as its organic rules were regarded by its members and enforced by its pastors. This original cause of decline in such a Church is the failure of discipline. It is in all cases true, that the law is not made for the righteous. Discipline in the Church would only be a thing of story if it were not for the disobedient. But when these arise, discipline is the only safeguard of the Church—and the sooner it is apprehended to, the better it will be for both parties—the Church and the offender. All the history of the Church will prove that in this case it is eminently true, that delay is dangerous. At least we may declare it so. Our history and the observation of our aged ministers prove this fact clearly, that preaching against worldly excesses is utterly unavailing. No good is ever done until the issue of membership is made upon the law of membership. And then, it is wonderful how few ever madly fly off.

I assume therefore, that whatever we have lost, in the way of moral and spiritual Church character and power, we have lost by failure in the exercise of discipline, at the right time and in the right way. No Church, organized upon such principles and godly policies as our Church was, can ever materially fail or run down except in one way, and that is by the neglect of its pastors to keep up its strong enclosure of moral discipline. It is grievous to me to make the charge, but I do make it. The preachers holding the pastoral office, even if they are blameless as to entrance of evil into the Church—which they hardly ever are, because the shakiness seen in their administration rather invites to loose living—are always blameable in the cases of its continuance, unless it is unknown to them. It is not worth while to plead—the case will not sustain a defence. The preacher in charge is the guilty agent in all these cases of neglected discipline. He need not say a word about his fears, and especially about his belief, that his Church will not stand up to him. He is the traitor himself. He either feels himself unable to conduct the case understandingly, which is the fact to a fearful extent, and leads to shuffling, or else the pastor himself is at heart opposed to disciplining the members for such small indulgences. It is even now said, that we have some of these illustrious tinkers on Methodist policy. If so, I sincerely hope they will be seized with a strong Brazilian appetite, and satiate it with a speedy realization.

But to the point. I say, there is not a Methodist Church in Georgia that will interfere with you in the exercise of discipline, against any disorderly walking member, if you proceed right against the case; and if there are any amongst us, who really feel distrustful of their own capacity to take care of the Church in its law, as well as in its gospel, I earnestly advise and entreat every one of them to get out if the way.

Little as we may think of it, it is an act of more awful daring to come into command on this precious Old Ship of Zion, without proper skill in her management, than it would be to attempt to steer a vessel, freighted with human passengers, round Cape Hatteras, with an acknowledged ignorance in nautical matters.

I will be fair in my dealing. I think it very certain, God calls many to entreat others to do their duty, who were never called to make them do their duty, by force of law. And I will now say, that we have done ourselves both harm and discredit for years past in trying to make preachers and pastors of men God only called to exhort. And so now are we injuring Christ's Church from year to year, by a hopeless effort to make every man a pastor, whom we have concluded God has called to preach—thus ignoring, as a practical question, the fact that while God seems to call all who are to be engaged in the perfecting of the saints, as in one common mass, yet are they called to the exercise of different functions. We have almost been guilty of the body, and of the blood of the Church, in our strange indifference to the pastoral office and duties. And we must look into this ministerial function, at our next Annual Conferences. And if I shall be true, either by confession or by proof, that we have on hand a lot of preachers, so utterly unpractical that they are afraid to undertake to put the Church back upon its primitive practical basis—in as far as a pure spiritual godliness is demanded—let them be retired, or used as mere helpers in the work. They may belong, in the order of God, to the work of evangelists, or even of teachers; but it is pastors we need now, and we must have them. And they must act at once, or our glorious old Church is swamped.

All fear of difficulty in enforcing discipline may be dismissed, as there is no one whose opposition will oppose you in the enforcement of discipline if you do it with head upon what you are doing. Don't go into the work, you know what you are doing. There is no need of any Church-meetings wisely given in the chapter on the members, will keep you on ground.

There was a time, when kept the preacher advised that walked disorderly and not be reproved, and the forthwith settled. The this prompt notice of offense been a source of great mischief our Church. Preachers have still with conviction that al disorder was here and festering into gangrene Church, but as no one complaint—these old faithful nels being all out of service made no effort to bring persons to account until these irregularities, which first were mere accidents, by this policy, a sort of evil in the Church, and it was ing hoped by the offenders these worldly pleasures were pretty much to the will of our bers. I say, this desiderata the Church, can be filled upon legitimate use of Church-meetings It is your place, my dear brethren, to demand a report standing of your Church men. And if there be any reports of der or of disobedience to the and orders of the Church, your committee of three to into the truth or falsehood report, and proceed accordingly and many of these frolicsome people will come to order, another case of it will ever Those that intend to do please will not join a Church discipline disallows these living and whose faithful enforce that discipline.

I tell you, my brethren, the pastors are the original cause the Church defection and Nothing but discipline ere of internal corruption began after that corruption began in from external worldly To expect to preach it out more than a subterfuge for negligence. Discipline is Church's reliance. And it is in our hands; and if the suffers for want of discipline are both the prime and the causes in the mischief. else can exercise discipline your field but yourself will not. You cut off this stream from the Church, own accord. No one ever you to do it. Neither can one make you do it. I tell as far as the Church is either suffering or dying for want of line, it is no indolent pastors are at the bottom of it. do our duty, in this important or we will scatter the sheep.

This has been my opinion time; but not having been myself for many years, I feel my brethren might judge me ly. But now again I am a I can—not only continue truly say—we pastors. I that if I leave my charge in der, it is not chargeable upon lyan Methodism as an element of it, neither upon discipline of the Church, ted to me for the present Methodism intact—but it is able upon me, as a negligent I tell you, the Church—Church—is ready for re looking for it, longing for the Church. All these irregular novators are not of the Church or were of it. Methodism owned them—never will own They are a class of foreigners must come in or get out line is our test oath. Bring to it at once. You are the trustee of Methodism as it is. You can preserve it, ruption if will. No one within your charge, while the key. You must do it, the blame and the shame of ing it. Woo be to the who hold the office and let rot among the flock, and official effort to dispel it interference.

The Protestants in Egypt ed largely by the faithful missionaries of the Unitarian Church, are severe persecution from the Patriarch, who avows his to crush Protestantism. had the Christians bastinadoed and excommunicated, read Protestant Books, attended schools, or have anything to them, and has burnt many books. It is to be hoped Viceroy of Egypt, who has fore granted many favors missionaries, but who, it is authorized these cruel present may, during his present Western Europe, learn a religious liberty and toleration

From the Saturday Review.

FOOLISH VIRGINS.

The heroines of the London season—the fillies, we mean, who have been entered for the great matrimonial stakes, and have been mentioned in the betting—have, by this time, exchanged the fast pleasures of the town for the rapid pastimes of the country. We do not, of course, concern ourselves with those poor simple girls who only repeat the lives and morals of old-fashioned English homes, and who are too respectable and too modest to be pointed at as the girls of the season. We speak of the fast sisterhood only. After three months of egregious dissipation they enter daily upon the next stage of their regular yearly alternations. Three months of headlong folly are succeeded by three months of deadly ennui. Action and reaction are always equal. The pains and weariness of moral exuberance arise in nice proportion to the passion of the debauch. It is a dismal hour when we look on the withered leaves of last night's garland. The lovely and unlovely beings who are now living depressed days far from Belgrave and the Row have, it is true, but joyless orgies to look back upon. Their pleasures gave, but a pinchbeck joviality after all, were but a thin lacker spread over mercenary cares and heart-aching jealousies—not the jealousies of passion, but the nipping vulgar vexation with which a shopkeeper trembles lest a customer should go to his rival over the way. Still there was excitement—the excitement of outdoing a rival in shamelessness of apparel, in reckless abandon of manner, in the unblinking tolerance of impudent speech, in all the other elements of ignoble casino-emulation. Above all, there was the tickling excitement of knowing that all this was in some sort clandestine; that, ostensibly, and on the surface, things looked as if they were all exhibiting human nature at its stateliest, most dignified and most refined pitch. The consciousness that the thin surface only conceals some of the worst elements of character in full force and activity must give a pleasantly stinging sensation to an acutely cynical woman. However, this is all over for a time. For a time the half-dressed young Maenads of the season will be found clothed and in their right minds. And what sort of a right mind is it? We know the kind of preparation which they have had for the business of the season, for—flirting, husband-hunting, waiting, dressing so as to escape the regulations of the police, and the rest. For this their training has been perfect. But wise men agree that education should comprehend training for all the parts of life equally—for pleasure not less than for business, for hours of relaxation as well as for hours of strain and pressure, for leisure just as much as for active occupation. Education is supposed to arm us at every point. Nobody in this world was ever perfectly educated. Everybody has at least one side on which he is weak, one quarter where temptations are either not irresistible, or else are not recognized as alluring to what is wrong. But we all know that training, though never perfect, can make the difference between a decently right and happy life and a bad, corrupt half-life, or no life. What does training do for the nimble-footed young beauties of the London ball-room? It makes them nimble-footed, we admit. And what else?

The root-idea of the training of girls of the uppermost class in this country is perhaps the most absolutely shameless that ever existed anywhere out of Circassia or Georgia. It puts clean out of sight the notion that women are rational beings as well as animals, or that they are destined to be the companions of men, who are, or ought to be, also something more than animals. It takes mind into account only as an occasionally useful accident of body. The mind ought to be developed a little, and in such a way as to make the body more piquant and attractive. Like the candle inside a Chinese lantern, it may serve to light up and show to advantage the pretty devices outside. But the outside is the important thing, and the inside only incidentally. Insipidity of mind is perhaps a trifle objectionable, because there are a few young men of property, who dislike insipidity, and who, therefore, might be lost from the toils in consequence. It is a crocheted and eccentricity in a man to want a wife with a bright mind, but since there are such persons, it is just as well to pay a slight attention to the mind in odd moments when one is not engaged upon the more urgent business of the body. You don't know what may happen, and it is possible that the most eligible part of a season may dislike the idea of taking a female idiot to wife. Still, it would be absurd to change the entire system of upbringing for our girls merely because here and there a man has a distaste for a fool.

The majority of men are incapable of gauging power of intellect and fineness of character. But the veriest blockhead and simpleton who ever lounged in a doorway or lipped in Pall Mall can tell a fine woman when he sees her, and is probably able to find pleasure and hope in the spectacle. It is these blockheads and simpletons who this set the mode. They fix the standard of fashionable female education. Education, or the astounding modern conception of it, means preparation of girls for the marriage market. If a girl does not get well married, it were better for her and for her mother also if she had never been born, or had been cast with a millstone round her neck into the sea. Whom she marries—whether a man old enough to be her father, whether a pattern of imbecility, whether a man of a notoriously debauched character—this matters not a jot. Only let him have money. This being the conception of marriage, and marriage being the aim of all sagacious upbringing, as most men unhappily are more sure to take on their animal than on their rational side, it is perfectly natural that you should strive to bring up a worthy family of attractive young animals. If the idea which, even at its best, would be so deplorably imperfect, were rationally carried out, still it would not be so absolutely pestilent and debasing as it is. Physical education, rightly practised, is a fine and indispensable process in right living. If the system had for its end the rearing of really robust and healthy creatures, it would mean something. On the contrary, however, anybody who makes a tour through fashionable rooms in the season may see that, in a vast quantity of cases, the heroines of the night are just as sorry off in bodily stamina as they are for intellectual ideas and interests.

Here we again encounter the fundamental blunder, that it is only the outside about which we need concern ourselves. Let a woman be well dressed (or judiciously undressed), have bright eyes, a whitish skin, rounded outlines, and that suffices. All this a wise English mother will certainly secure, just as a wise Chinese woman will take care to have tiny feet, plucked eyebrows, and black finger-nails. If you go into a nursery you will see the process already at work. The little girl, who would fain exercise her young limbs by manifold sprawlings and rushings hither and thither, and single combats with her brethren, is tricked out in ribbons and gay frocks, and bid sit still in solemn decorum. With every year of her growth this principle of attention to outside trickeries and fineries is more rigidly pursued. Less and less every year are the nerves and muscles, the restless activities of arms and legs, exercised and made to purvey new vigor to the life. The blood is allowed to grow stagnant. The life of the woman, even as a mere animal, becomes poor and morbid and artificial. By dint of much attention and many devices, the outside of the body is maintained comely in the eyes of people whose notions of comeliness are thoroughly artificial and sophisticated. But how can there be any health with high eating, little exercise, above all with the mind left absolutely vacant of all interests? The Belgravian mother does not even understand the miserable trade she has chosen. She is as poor a physical trainer as she is poor morally and intellectually.

The truth is that in a human being, even from the physical point of view, it is rather a dangerous thing to ignore the intellect and the emotions. Nature resents being ignored. If you do not cultivate her, she will assuredly avenge herself. If you do not get wheat out of your piece of ground, she will abundantly give you tares. And there can be no other rule expressly invented for the benefit of fashionable young women. Their moral nature, if nobody ever taught them to keep an eager eye upon it, is soon overgrown, either with flaunting poison plants, or at best with dull gray moss. The parent dreams that the daughter's mind is all swept and garnished. Lo, there are seven or any other number of devils that have entered in and taken possession, more or less permanent. The human creature who has never been taught to take an interest in what is right and wholesome will, in ninety-nine cases out of a hundred, take an interest in what is wrong and unwholesome. You cannot keep minds in a state of vacuum. A girl, like anybody else, will obey the bent of the character which has been given, either by the education of design or the more usual education of mere accidental experience. Everything depends, in the ordinary course of things, upon the general view of the aims and objects of life which you succeed, deliberately or by hazard, in creating. A girl is not taught that marriage has grave moral and rational purposes, itself being no more than a means. On the contrary, it is always figured in her eyes as an end, and as an end scarcely at all connected with a moral and rational companionship. It is, she fancies, the gate to some sort of paradise, whose mysterious joys are not to be analyzed. She forgets that there are no such swift-coming spontaneous paradises in this world, where the future can never be any more than the child of the present, indelibly stamped with every feature and line of its parent. This castle-building, however, is harmless. If it does not strengthen, still it does not absolutely impoverish or corrupt characters. Of some castle-building, one cannot say so much. Character is assuredly corrupted by avaricious dreams of marriage as a road to material opulence and luxury. There is, indeed, no end to the depraved broodings which may come to an empty and undirected mind. If the emotions and the intellect are not tended and trained, they will run to an evil and evil-propagating seed. Rooted and incurable frivolity is the best that can come of it; corruption is the worst.

People madly suppose that going to church, or giving an occasional blanket to a sick old woman, will suffice to implant a worthy conception of the aims of life. At this moment, some mothers are perhaps believing that the dull virtue of the country will in a few days redress the balance which had been too much discomposed by the rush and whirl of the town. As if one strong set of silly interests and emotions could be effaced at will by simple change of scene, without substitution of new interests and emotions. Excess of frivolous excitement is not repaired or undone by excess of mere blankness and nothingness. The earnestness of the virtue of the village girl is as noxious as the whirl of the mercenary and little virtues of the season. Teach young women from their childhood upwards that marriage is their single career, and it is inevitable that they should look upon every hour which is not spent in promoting this sublime end and aim as so much subtracted from life. Penetrated with unwholesome excitement in one part of their existence, they are penetrated with killing ennui in the next. If mothers would only add to their account of marriage as the end of a woman's existence—which may be right or it may not—a definition of marriage as an association with a reasonable and reflective being, they would speedily effect a revolution in the present miserable system. To the business of finding a husband a young lady would then add the not less important business of making herself a rational person, instead of a more or less tastefully decorated doll with a passion for a great deal of money. She might awaken to the fact, which would at first startle her very much no doubt, that there is a great portion of a universe outside her own circle and her own mind.

This simple discovery would of itself effect a revolution that might transform her from being an insipid idiot into a tolerably rational being. As it is, the universe to her is only a collection of rich bachelors in search of wives, and of odious rivals who are contending with her for one or more of these too wary prizes. All high social aims, like broad humanizing ways of surveying life, are unknown to her, or else appear in her eyes as the worship of Mumbo Jumbo appears in the eyes of a philosopher. She thinks of nothing except her private affairs. She is indifferent to politics, to literature, in a word, to anything that requires thought. She reads novels of a kind, because novels are all about love, and love had once something to do with marriage, her own peculiar and absorbing business. Beyond this her mind does not stir. Any more positively gross state one cannot imagine. There are women who are by accident more degraded physically. Mutatis mutandis, there are none more degraded, morally and intellectually, than those whose minds are constantly bent upon marriage at all costs, and with anybody, however decrepit, however silly, and however evil, who can make a settlement.

From the Southern Review.

THE PROUD HIDALGO—Pleasures of Romanos.

As I was thus wandering from door to door, and thinking that charity had flown to the skies, I met an esquire who was walking the streets in handsome attire, well combed, and his gait and carriage grave and imposing. I looked at him and he at me: "Boy," said he, "are you looking for a master?" Yes, señor, I replied. "Follow me, then," he said. "Heaven is bountiful to you in sending you to me." I followed him at once, giving thanks in my heart, for he seemed the very master I was in search of. It was in the morning when I met him, and he made me follow him through a great part of the city. We passed the places where they sell bread and other provisions, and I was every moment expecting that he would load me with some of them, as it was the time when people usually provide for the day's wants; but he passed all these things with a steady pace. In this way he kept on until the clock struck eleven, when he entered the principal church, with me behind him, and heard mass with great apparent devotion. When the service was over, he left the church and turned at a rapid pace down a lower street. I was delighted to see that he had no occasion to look for provisions, concluding that my new master was a man who laid in supplies by the quantity, that our dinner was all ready, and that he was now hastening to it with an appetite as sharp as my own. By this time the clock struck one, and we reached a house before which my master stopped, and, throwing the skirt of his cloak over his left shoulder, he drew a key from his sleeve and opened the door. The entrance was dark and gloomy, but within were a small court and tolerable rooms. We entered one of these, and he took off his cloak, and having satisfied himself that my hands were clean, we shook and folded it, he then laid it upon a bench, having first carefully blown off all the dust. Next, taking a seat upon the same bench, he questioned me very minutely as to whence I came, and what brought me to Toledo, which I answered more at length than was quite agreeable to me, as I thought it rather time for setting the table and putting on the dinner, than for going in to such particulars. When I had given him a full account of myself, he remained silent awhile, and my heart began to sink within me, for it was now about two o'clock, and he gave no sign of appetite. It struck me, besides, that I heard no sound of any living creature in the whole house, nor was there to be seen chair, dresser, shelf, table, nor chest—in a word, it was like a place bewitched. Presently he said to me, "Have you had anything to eat?" No, señor, I replied, for it was not yet eight o'clock when I met your worship. "Although it was early, I had already breakfasted," he said, "and when I have once eaten, I touch no more until night; so do without as well as you can, and by-and-by we will have supper." To this he added some truly philosophical reflections on the beauty of temperance and the brutishness of gluttony. "When I heard this," continues Lazaro, "I leaned myself against the door-post, and drew from my bosom some pieces of bread which I had remaining of what I had begged. When my master saw this, he said: 'Come here, boy; what are you eating?' I drew near him and showed the bread: he took one piece, the best and biggest of three that I had, and said: 'Pon my life, this seems to be good bread.' Is it good? I asked. 'Faith, it is,' said he. 'Where did you get it?' Was it made by clean hands?' That is more than I know, I answered. 'It is most savoury bread, indeed,' said he, and commenced to devour his piece as ravenously as I did the others.

Their sleeping accommodations were on a par with this sumptuous repast, and in the morning, as soon as it was light, we arose, and my master began to clean and dust hose and doublet, coat and cloak, and then dressed himself leisurely and much to his satisfaction. I gave him water for washing, he combed himself and put on his belt with his sword, saying: "If you only knew what a piece of stuff this is! I would not sell it for a mark of gold. Of all the blades Antonio ever made, none take such an edge as this." He then drew it from the scabbard, and trying the edge, said: "I will undertake to shear through a pack of wool with it." He next buckled his belt, hung a rosary of large beads to it, and went out, walking with an erect body and a stately pace, sometimes carrying the skirt of his cloak over his shoulder and sometimes under his arm, and placing his right hand upon his hip, so that any one who had not known him, would have supposed him a near kinsman of the Count of Arcos, or, at the very least, his chamberlain. Blessed be Heaven, I said to myself, that when it gives the disease, it also bestows the remedy! Who, seeing this master of mine, so well contented with himself, would not suppose that he supped well last night, slept in a good bed, and, early as it is, has had a plentiful breakfast already? Who would believe that this stately gentleman ate nothing all day yesterday but the crust of bread that his servant had carried in his bosom a day and a night? How many such are scattered about the world, who, for the sake of that wretched thing they call their honor, endure miseries that they would not suffer for the welfare of their souls!

Lazaro, left in charge of the empty house, is compelled by hunger to go out and beg some broken victuals. In the evening his master returns, stately and serene as ever, and reports that he has already dined. "I took my seat at the end of the bench," says Lazaro, "and taking out my scraps and crusts, began to eat, stealthily watching my unlucky master, who never took his eyes from my jacket-skirt which I was using for a plate. My Heaven have compassion on me as I had on him, for I knew what he was suffering, having often endured the like myself. I was in doubt whether I should ask him to join me, for as he had said that he had already dined, I was afraid he would not accept my invitation. My doubts were soon put to rest, for coming to my side, he said: 'I assure you, Lazaro, that I never saw a man eat with so much grace as you do, and no one can see you eat without getting an appetite, though he had none before.' Not a doubt of it, I thought, and added aloud: 'Señor, good bread make a good workman. This bread is of the finest quality, and this cow's heel so well cooked and seasoned, that no one can resist its flavor. 'Cow's heel is it?' said he. 'To my palate that is the greatest daintiness in the world, and no pleasant half so relishing.' Please you to try it then, said I, handing him one, with three or four of the whitest pieces of bread. He seated himself at my side, and began to eat with avidity, gnawing every bone closer than any hound. Presently he said: 'With good sauce, this is a matchless dish.' Of all sauces, I said to myself, you are eating it with the best. 'Upon my word,' he added, 'I relish it as much as if I had not eaten a mouthful to day.' I could safely take my oath of that, I thought.

In this way we spent eight or ten days, that sinner going every morning to parade the streets with the same grave and dignified carriage, leaving me, his poor jackal, to provide for him.

EPISCOPAL CHURCH ON DIVORCE.—At the recent Episcopal Diocesan Convention in Chicago, the following action was taken with reference to marriage and divorce:

Rev. Clinton Locke, of the committee on that part of the Bishop's address concerning marriage and divorce, submitted a report completely in accordance with the views set forth in the address of the Bishop, and recommending the adoption of the following resolution:

Resolved, That the deputies representing this diocese in the next General Convention be instructed to procure by general canon law, with suitable qualifications, a prohibition of the use of the marriage service of the Church in cases where either party contemplating marriage shall have been previously divorced by the civil law, on grounds other than that of adultery; and also procure a rule of duty to be followed by clergymen whose services are thus applied for in ascertaining the facts bearing upon such prohibition.

The report was concurred in and the resolution adopted:

Dr. Henry C. Shaw, in an article in the Boston Medical and Surgical Journal, on "Foreign Bodies in the Ear," says that in his experience he has taken from the ear beans, cotton, slate-pencils, peas, maggots, cockroaches, beads, glass, crockery, shells, paper, pins, ivory, teeth of combs, stones and seeds.

A GOVERNMENT CONTRIBUTION TO THE ROMANISTS.—A magnificent Roman Catholic Cathedral is going up on Fifth Avenue, New York. It is to cost 15,000 people, and will cost over a million of dollars. It is built on real estate leased by the city to the Romanists for ninety-nine years, at the rate of one dollar a year!!

Official Organ of the Montgomery, Mobile, Mississippi, and Louisiana Conferences of the M. E. Church South.

Office: 112 Camp Street.

TERMS OF SUBSCRIPTION:
THREE DOLLARS A YEAR.
Invariably in Advance.
Address: REV. J. C. KEENER,
112 Camp Street, New Orleans.

AGENTS:
All the Members of the Parenting Conference.

PUBLISHING COMMITTEES.

FOR MOBILE CONFERENCE:

Rev. J. Hamilton, D.D.,
Rev. A. H. Mitchell, D.D.,
Rev. Thos. W. Dorman, D.D.

FOR MONTGOMERY CONFERENCE:

Rev. M. S. Andrews,
Rev. William A. Shapard,
Rev. J. S. Cottrell.

FOR MISSISSIPPI CONFERENCE:

Rev. W. H. Watkins, D.D.,
Rev. H. H. Montgomery,
Rev. William P. Barton.

FOR LOUISIANA CONFERENCE:

Rev. J. C. Keener, D.D.,
Rev. J. B. Walker, D.D.,
Rev. Elias Parker.

New Orleans:

SATURDAY, SEPT. 21, 1867.

To SUBSCRIBERS.—Any person wishing to subscribe for this paper can do so, by paying the Methodist preacher in the circuit, and forwarding to us his receipt for three dollars, with the address of the subscriber upon it, stating Post office, State, Circuit, and Conference. The receipt ought to be taken in duplicate.

BISHOP McTYMIRE: The Bishop is expected here this week on his way to the East Texas Conference. His many friends wait to give him a hearty welcome. We hope that he will so arrange it as to spend a Sabbath with us. He has had the yellow fever.

SHARON FEMALE COLLEGE.—This Methodist College is entitled to the patronage of our people because, in addition to many other excellent points, it has been in constant and successful working order for many years. The severe test of time has been applied to it, and to-day the College shows at its fiftieth session as much vigor as at any previous part of its history. It is located in a fertile and healthy region of Mississippi—seven miles east of Canton. The Rev. W. L. C. Hunnicutt, A. M., presides over it, and is aided by a corps of able Professors. See advertisement for terms.

SARAH D. LENZ.

We are sorry to announce that the wife of Bro. Lenz, the Preacher appointed to the Sarapar Street German Church, died on yesterday of the yellow fever. She was sick one week. Bro. L. and his wife arrived here from Baltimore three weeks ago. This is one of many heart-rending incidents which mark the progress of the present Epidemic. A more extended notice of this excellent Christian lady will be given hereafter.

New Orleans Daily Mortuary Report.

Dr. Dirmeyer, Secretary of the Board of Health, furnishes the following daily report of deaths in the city, beginning with Aug. 12th, at 6 A. M.:

| Date | Yellow Fever. | Cholera. | Other Diseases. | Total. |
|---------|---------------|----------|-----------------|--------|
| Aug. 12 | 2 | 0 | 26 | 28 |
| 13 | 5 | 1 | 27 | 33 |
| 14 | 6 | 1 | 31 | 37 |
| 15 | 2 | 1 | 22 | 25 |
| 16 | 1 | 1 | 33 | 35 |
| 17 | 5 | 2 | 20 | 27 |
| 18 | 6 | 2 | 31 | 39 |
| 19 | 12 | 0 | 22 | 34 |
| 20 | 11 | 2 | 19 | 32 |
| 21 | 10 | 0 | 23 | 33 |
| 22 | 4 | 0 | 23 | 27 |
| 23 | 7 | 1 | 19 | 27 |
| 24 | 19 | 1 | 29 | 49 |
| 25 | 14 | 1 | 17 | 32 |
| 26 | 15 | 1 | 22 | 38 |
| 27 | 14 | 0 | 22 | 36 |
| 28 | 15 | 0 | 22 | 37 |
| 29 | 20 | 0 | 27 | 47 |
| 30 | 26 | 0 | 25 | 51 |
| 31 | 22 | 1 | 19 | 42 |
| Sept. 1 | 17 | 0 | 18 | 35 |
| 2 | 39 | 1 | 22 | 62 |
| 3 | 25 | 0 | 29 | 54 |
| 4 | 26 | 0 | 16 | 42 |
| 5 | 44 | 0 | 23 | 67 |
| 6 | 30 | 0 | 24 | 54 |
| 7 | 43 | 0 | 23 | 66 |
| 8 | 49 | 0 | 17 | 66 |
| 9 | 51 | 1 | 26 | 78 |
| 10 | 42 | 0 | 18 | 60 |
| 11 | 67 | 1 | 18 | 86 |
| 12 | 61 | 1 | 27 | 89 |
| 13 | 43 | 0 | 21 | 64 |
| 14 | 41 | 0 | 25 | 66 |
| 15 | 52 | 0 | 27 | 79 |
| 16 | 50 | 0 | 50 | 80 |
| 17 | 68 | 0 | 34 | 102 |
| 18 | 46 | 0 | 24 | 70 |
| 19 | 55 | 0 | 37 | 92 |

The lady who gave Mr. Spurgeon £20,000 to erect an orphanage has since ordered her plate to be sold for the same object; and Mr. Spurgeon asserts that the donor has thereby "set an example to all believers who have surplus and unsold gold and silver which ought to be put to a better use than lying wrapped up in a box."

YELLOW FEVER.

This dread disease is creeping over Southern Texas. In addition to Galveston, Houston, Lavaca, and Corpus Christi, it is fatal in Hempstead, Navasota, Milican, Bryan, Chappell Hill, Brenham, Lagrange, Huntsville and Alleyton. The Charitable Association of Houston is extending all the aid in their power to these towns. They require money, physicians and nurses to send them. Col. O'Connell, commander of the post at Houston, and family are all sick of the prevailing epidemic—all promise to recover.

Incidents of the most touching kind transpire daily in this city, and mark the track of the Destroyer. Youths who have been raised here, and children born here, are among its victims. In some instances, the parents and larger children of a family have died, while the younger ones have lived only to find shelter in an orphan asylum, or in the family of some kind stranger. Maybe in two short weeks a happy home has been made forever desolate. Only sons, the sole support of widowed mothers, have in one mysterious hour passed away, and carried with them into the grave every pleasure and hope of life. Holy men and women, whose influence and presence the world could ill afford to lose, have gone with their sweet light to the land that is afar off where the King sits, while we are left in tears and darkness. Our Sunday Schools have yielded their tribute to the swelling stream, but thank God, from its dark bosom, strong words in tones of peaceful triumph have been spoken by them—for out of their mouths He hath "ordained praise."

The changeable character of Yellow Fever is one of its most fearful characteristics; Each epidemic differing quite essentially from previous types of the same disease; therefore, requiring different treatment. This year congestion of the brain is in many cases its disposition, while in others, there is a decided typhoid tendency. Previous to 1853 to have been born here was a sufficient guarantee of escape. Not so now: consequently a very large number of children have been sick with it. Parents who have whole families yet unacclimated await with indescribable solicitude its approach.

One never becomes reconciled to a disease which can be avoided as certainly as we may avoid encountering a tiger or a lion. To be out of the infected region, or to go out of it, in time, is to escape it. This is not the case so much with cholera or with most other diseases; they may be contracted anywhere. To think that a friend might have gone away from death but did not, adds greatly to the grief of the bereaved. With many, alas! it was not possible to go away, their poverty became the shadow of death, and deprived them of all escape.

The boundless charity of New Orleans can only be known in a season of epidemic. In no place are the wants of the poor and sick so readily and freely met. Not with money merely, but with such nursing and watchful attention as no spot, we suppose, in the world can surpass. To justly appreciate the extent of this true kindness, one must pass through an ordeal like the present. May the Lord remember this kindness in that day! The visitation of ten days sickness will oftentimes strip a family of its last cent; by the funeral expenses in burying one or two of its members—the arrest of all income—a slow recovery—or may be the father himself is taken away. How many calls and blessed opportunities are here offered those who have any means to do good, to invest in a heavenly way hundreds, or, if they desire, thousands of dollars! Never does money seem more precious for what is its true value than among those who have escaped from the very jaws of death with life only. "Pure religion and undefiled before God and the Father is this, to visit the fatherless and widows in their affliction, and to keep himself unspotted from the world." James i. 27.

The Howard Association and kindred societies provide during sickness; but when that terminates they do not either bury, or relieve the sometimes severe result of abject want. Their offices are properly limited to the sick room. The wide field of human distress, cannot be wholly occupied by one organization, nor should be. Neither was it intended by the Father of Mercies that our care for the orphan should be farmed out, and be discharged by orphan asylums. We need the orphan and widow fully as much as they do us. We need them at our table, and in our homes, for they are the representatives of the Saviour. We need them to break down our selfishness, to arrest our fast growing covetousness, to keep open the avenues of the soul, to soften our hearts, to remind us of the possible future of our own hearths, to keep the fountains of our own tears from drying up; our children need them that they may not grow hard and ignorant of the strong claims of a common humanity, and a common salvation, and of their duty to Him who has said "in as much as ye have done it unto one of the least of these ye have done it unto me." One orphan sitting at our table will do more for us and ours in the sight of God, than the angel can that sits at the gate of Paradise.

MIXED SCHOOLS.

The Board of School Directors still lives. The Council first elected a new Board consisting in part of 10 negroes: that being irregular in legislative form failed. Next it reelected the city ordinance which appointed the Board: this will probably be found to be beyond their jurisdiction, as these schools are part of the State System of Public Schools which exists independently of the will of the Council. The question is now before the Court.

Every man who is opposed to the social Africanization of the South is interested in the decided stand of this Board against the fanatical politicians who, to please negroes and hold office, are ready to debase themselves and their children. We do not doubt that this firmness will prevent the destruction of the Public School System, at least until help can be had from the commanding General.

It has ascertained the condition of all the colored schools now opened in the city. An elaborate report from them and their teachers demonstrates that it is not the wish of the negroes themselves that their children should be taught in the same rooms with white children. The exception to this wish comes from the saffron-colored people, that is, "negroes who are not white."

Miss Clarkson, (white) teacher of a Bureau Colored School:

Thinks that it would be unwise to mix colored and white children in the same schools. In her opinion the colored people themselves do not desire it. Many of the parents of the children attending her school requested her when it was rumored that the public schools would be thrown open to all, to confine her school exclusively for colored children, saying that they did not wish their children to go to school with white children, and assuring her of a continuance of their patronage, and that they would endeavor to pay the tuition fee heretofore charged. Is of the opinion, formed from her intercourse with the parents of her pupils, that none of the colored people except those actively engaged in politics, and those so near white that they are unwilling to associate exclusively with colored persons and thereby acknowledge their race, desire their children to be mixed with whites in the same schools. Is also of the opinion that the said mixture would be to the disadvantage of both races.

Miss North, formerly an assistant teacher in Live Oak School, now teaching colored school on Craps street, advises separate schools for colored children. Says colored parents generally desire it.

Mr. J. H. Collins, Principal of a Bureau School has consulted generally on the subject, with parents of his pupils, and finds them rejoiced to learn that it is proposed to establish public schools for their children. They all desire separate schools. When it was announced among them that the public schools would, on re-opening, be thrown open to all, and the schools under the bureau consequently closed, a petition signed by upwards of three hundred parents, was presented to him requesting him to continue his school, and assuring him of a continuance of their patronage; and that they would try to pay him a salary than have their children go to mixed schools.

Mr. Collins, from his experience as a teacher of colored youth, and from his intercourse with their parents, does not think it advisable to mix white and colored children in the same school; and is confident that the colored people generally, outside of politicians and very light mulattoes, do not themselves desire it. Mr. Collins is a Northern man.

Mrs. Williams, (colored) teaches forty children under supervision of the Bureau. Mrs. W. thinks that white and colored children should not mix in the same school—has noticed "distinction made in her school even between the light-colored and black."

Mr. Francis Cote teaches 95 day pupils, and 20 night, (boys and girls). Mr. Cote says that when he started this school, it was mixed—there was no distinction on account of color—he had fifty pupils, about half being white and half black. He could not keep up this plan, the pupils were always fighting and cursing each other. He then kept them in separate rooms, and although they were not dismissed at the same time, yet they fought each other so he could not continue his school in this manner. He is of opinion that it is impossible to keep up a school if pupils are mixed. He thinks it is better to keep them separate. He would not teach both colors in the same school. The whites who attended his school were mostly children of Frenchmen, few Italians. He pays $50 rent. The premises are large enough to accommodate 150 pupils.

This testimony is but a part of the whole, but is quite sufficient to show who it is that wishes mixed schools.

No one can attribute the proposed policy of mixing black and white children together in Public Schools to an exuberant flow of benevolence in the present council, no more than the appointment of five or six colored men to be city aldermen of New Orleans, indicated statesmanship in General Sheridan. These acts must be classed with the election by the said Aldermen of the ten negroes to be city School Directors, and three negroes to be Assistant Recorders. They are all parts of the same Radical Policy, which, if unchecked will place the whole Government, North and South, in the hands of a large mass of stupid Southern negroes, and a small number of unprincipled white men. No matter how the elections go at the North, if they carry ten States, can that overcome the certain and unchangeable vote of the mass of Radical voters who will send from the South twenty Senators to the U. S. Senate?

Judge Therman, of Ohio, in a recent speech, states the truth, but does not seem to see that the North lies as much at the mercy of the negro vote as the South. He says: "What is this proposition of negro suffrage? It is nothing more or less than this, to subordinate ten States of this Union to the absolute control of the negro race, for, as far as I have seen, in every State in the South, under this registration device, there have been more negroes registered than white men. The white men are disfranchised, and the negroes are set to rule over them, and therefore, this is a proposition to surrender on-church of this Republic that is the work of the white man's hands and the white man's brain. This country that was discovered by white men, built up by white men, whose civilization is the work of white men, whose holy religion has been propagated by white men, that this white race shall all at once surrender its inheritance for less than a mass of potage, and put over it 700,000 of the most ignorant of the human race; isn't that simply a monstrous proposition; and this a race that never in recorded annals has maintained a civilized government? Civilized governments were found on this continent when it was first discovered; everywhere there have been civilized governments among men; but never in the world's history was there a civilized government of the negro race. I defy any man to point me out one. The only attempt that we have is at Hayti, for I don't speak of this little colony of Liberia, which is extremely small compared with the governments of the world. What has Hayti been? An island filled with anarchy and despotism; an island in which even the blacks and mulattoes cannot live peacefully together, and therefore the blacks have one end and the mulattoes the other. Look at Jamaica, look at Trinidad, look at any place where the experiment has been tried, and what has it been but a miserable failure? No advance in civilization, no increase in wealth; and shall we shut our eyes to all experience? But the white race, that always governed, is asked, all at once, to lay aside its manhood, lay down intellect, and that mission which God Almighty gave us, and surrender it to this negro race that never, anywhere, has proved capable of self-government. It is simply the most monstrous proposition that ever was made in the world, and when you couple that with the fact when they seek to put the white down, it not only becomes monstrous, but the most criminal proposition that ever a set of rulers made to any people."

BALTIMORE, Sept. 18.—Edwin Booth has made another application for the remains of his brother, pleading earnestly that his mother, being very aged, craves the dead body, that she may inter it, before she dies, near that of his distinguished father, who is buried near this city. The request was denied.

ATHENS OF EGEE HOMO AGAIN.—The London Spectator announces, "by authority," that the authorship of Egge Homo belongs to Mr. Seeley, Professor of Latin in the London University, and son of Mr. Seeley, the Low Church publisher of Fleet street, himself also an author of some celebrity.

Very truly, J. E. BRADLEY,
Bayou Mallet, St. Landry Parish, La., Sept. 5, 1867.

BRITISH HONDURAS.

We have received by last Steamer several letters from Belize, for publication, but as they are but a repetition of the articles recently published, we do not insert them. A private note from Dr. D. W. Foster, gives the following postal item:

"All over a three cent stamp put on a letter directed to Belize, is thrown away—better inclose a green back 25 cents, as the party receiving the letter has to pay 8 cents specie on it here, and then 8 cents more for the answer sent."

Sometimes letters are received covered over with U. S. P. stamps—but nothing to pay for answer.

My family are well, my own health has been excellent.

Rev. R. B. Duval writes under date of 7th September.

We are very pleasantly situated in Belize, in a rented house, at very small expense, enjoying the fish, fruits, and vegetables of this favored region, and waiting till a little steamboat shall be completed to take us up to our mountain home.

This is the cleanest city I ever saw, and by far the most pleasant in summer, owing to the refreshing breezes. There is more regard for the Sabbath than I ever saw. Nothing can be sold on Sunday, but medicine and milk, unless it is secretly done. Even the bakeries are strictly closed as well as the market-house. It must be remarkable for honesty also, for clothes are hung out in open lots all night, and houses are often left with only a string to fasten the outer door, and no one seems to fear a theft.

We hope soon to be at the site of the projected city of Richmond, and to be prepared to take up in the steamboat, such emigrants as may wish to go, and to have houses for them on their arrival.

NEWS FROM THE CHURCHES.

Little Rock Conference. A letter from A. R. Winfield, 4th instant, says: "We are in the midst of great revivals. The Lord is doing great things for us, whereof we are truly glad. * * * Crops are fine, health good, in Camden and the surrounding country—registration of whites will carry the State."

TUSKEGEE CIRCUIT: "Revival at 5 churches on Tuskegee Circuit, — Montgomery Conference—about 90 conversions so far, and the fire spreading—men of all ages brought in. Family prayer revived. Particulars hereafter. Bishop Wightman preached for us two days this week, and refreshed us much."

Yours, B. B. Ross.

DEAR ADVOCATE: Permit me to say a thing or two about the progress of Zion in these waste places, since our last Conference.

In spite of the great scarcity of funds, and the total destruction of the present cotton crop, with a portion of the corn, yet our people have done something and something very great, under all the circumstances.

Our first subscription for a church and school fell through: but another was started, and put through at a 240 rate.

Last week the building was raised; and competent workmen are pushing it on to completion. It is two stories high, and all frame. The lower story will be used for a church and a first class school. This room is 12 feet high, 24 broad by 36 long. The upper story will be set apart for a "Masonic Hall," having the same dimensions, except its height, which is 9 feet.

We have a professional teacher already on the ground, who is a member of our church: and who is well known, not only as a true Christian gentleman, but as a most thorough teacher, and who does nothing else but teach—"a man of one work."

We have also organized a church and Sabbath School. Our society numbers already twenty-five or thirty members, with good hope of further increase.

P. S. I should have said in its proper place, that the house is built upon a four acre lot, donated by Mr. John Blum, for that purpose; and that as soon as we can we will put up a church building.

Very truly, J. E. BRADLEY,
Bayou Mallet, St. Landry Parish, La., Sept. 5, 1867.

POLITICAL NEWS.

How THE REGISTRY IS PURGED.—The mandatory reconstruction act authorizes registrars to strike from the registry list whoever they think is not, under the law, entitled to the elective franchise. The disqualifications of the act are those of having filled certain public positions before the war, and, having been such positions, participating in the war. To what extent ostracism has been carried on under this authority will only be known, perhaps, hereafter. The following, however, convey an idea of the arbitrary manner in which the authority is exercised. Mr. Croley, to whom the act is addressed, served in the Confederate army and with distinguished gallantry, but never held a public office under the government of the United States or any State or municipal government until the struggle had closed, when he received appointment on the police force, was lately required by the chief police that those under him should exhibit their registration certificates. Are those entitled to certificates to be deprived of to afford an excuse for removing them?

"FOURTH DISTRICT REGISTRATION OFFICE, September the 16th, 1867."
"Mr. John Croley."
"Sir.—Your name having been entered in this office as a qualified voter, and having obtained a certificate as such, contrary to the law governing such cases, you are hereby required to return said certificate to this office in person on or before the 18th inst., or show just cause why the same shall not be canceled, in default of which your name will be struck from the list of voters."
Respectfully,
"JOHN L. DAVIS, Chairman Board of Registrars."

"By the death of Gen. Griffin Galveston, Brevet Major-General Joseph A. Mower comes in as commander of the Fifth District. On the 18th he issued the following order, against "Grand Army" meetings, and other gatherings of armed negroes.

Honors. Dist. of General Orders No. 11.]
It having come to the knowledge of the Brevet Major-General commanding, that in various parts of this State the assembling of armed men for political, or other purposes is of frequent occurrence, and the well disposed citizens are often subjected to annoyance from persons posted as sentinels or pickets, it is hereby ordered that such practices, and all other tending to disorder and violence must be at once discontinued. Commanders of posts, detachments, stations, within this command, arrest and retain until further orders, all armed men found posted as sentinels, pickets, or videttes, or tending to be on guard duty for purpose, or by any authority, duly authorized by law.

By order of Brevet Major-General JOSEPH A. MOWER, NATHANIEL BURMAN,
Second Lieut., 37th Inf., Act'g Asst. Adj.

The result of the Maine election is inspiring to the radical party. Forty-five State representatives have been elected against fifteen last year. After years of hesitation, this party finally abandoned old issues, goes before the country upon following points, which we summed up in the N. O. Times.

1. The fearful increasing provident taxation of the country which is threatening to sap the foundation of our prosperity, exhaust the vitality of the country.

2. The gross inequality of the present system that taxes the poor twenty millions a year, to keep a system of banking which is a monopoly for the benefit of capitalists.

3. The further inequality of greenbacks a legal tender among the people, and of them with the difference in value between greenbacks and gold, in order to pay certain favored creditors in that more valuable metal.

4. The impolicy and degradation of the white races of the country by the attempt to admit the African race to a political and social equality.

5. The dangerous usurpation of Congress in attempting to make sovereign States under the guidance of committees of that body with a view to the reorganization of the Government in conformity with Congressional plans.

6. The establishment of an absolute and audacious military despotism in time of profound peace over twelve millions of freemen.

7. The deliberate surrender of eight millions of enlightened freemen to the control and domination of four millions of negroes emerged from slavery.

The shrewd people of Ohio unwilling to be governed by in the State, but are quite to have negroes who live a life of government. The negroes from Louisiana and Mississippi will be much in the U. S. Senate and from Ohio and Indiana. The Radical State Executive at Columbus has issued a circular, in which negroes are given up as a direct issue, and the voter appointed by the party on the canvass, on the part of the matter of indifference, voted for or not, as the voter pleases, without a party standing.

The Enquirer says: "We have addressed a large meeting in Cleveland, September 18th, in his judgment, the Government had ever existed to-day as when it was struck at the life of the CONFERENCE OF THE M. E. CHURCH ALSO SPEAKS: "We have addressed a large meeting in Cleveland, September 18th, in his judgment, the Government had ever existed to-day as when it was struck at the life of the

CONFERENCE OF THE M. E. CHURCH ALSO SPEAKS: "We have addressed a large meeting in Cleveland, September 18th, in his judgment, the Government had ever existed to-day as when it was struck at the life of the

CONFERENCE OF THE M. E. CHURCH ALSO SPEAKS: "We have addressed a large meeting in Cleveland, September 18th, in his judgment, the Government had ever existed to-day as when it was struck at the life of the

CONFERENCE OF THE M. E. CHURCH ALSO SPEAKS: "We have addressed a large meeting in Cleveland, September 18th, in his judgment, the Government had ever existed to-day as when it was struck at the life of the

CONFERENCE OF THE M. E. CHURCH ALSO SPEAKS: "We have addressed a large meeting in Cleveland, September 18th, in his judgment, the Government had ever existed to-day as when it was struck at the life of the

CONFERENCE OF THE M. E. CHURCH ALSO SPEAKS: "We have addressed a large meeting in Cleveland, September 18th, in his judgment, the Government had ever existed to-day as when it was struck at the life of the

CONFERENCE OF THE M. E. CHURCH ALSO SPEAKS: "We have addressed a large meeting in Cleveland, September 18th, in his judgment, the Government had ever existed to-day as when it was struck at the life of the

CONFERENCE OF THE M. E. CHURCH ALSO SPEAKS: "We have addressed a large meeting in Cleveland, September 18th, in his judgment, the Government had ever existed to-day as when it was struck at the life of the

We are happy to announce that Col. George W. Carter, who has been prostrated for a long time with yellow fever, and who was at one time in a very precarious situation, is now recovering. We hope in a short time to see him out in the busy world, sound in health and prospering. —Houston Telegraph.

MARRIED.

On the 12th inst., at the residence of Mrs. A. A. Dirker, by Rev. Robt. J. Harp, Mr. John H. Holmes to Miss George Dirker, all of New Orleans.

At the residence of the bride's mother, on the evening of the 5th of September, by the Rev. W. B. Dennis, Mr. Greenbury to Miss Hattie Burnett, all of Concho county, Ala.

OBITUARIES.

CHRISTIAN AUGUSTUS FISCHER, was born March 31st, 1843, died of the prevailing epidemic, September 12th, 1867, in the city of New Orleans. In the very moment of emerging from gloom, when grasping temporal success, while life was in its mantling blush, he passed away, loved and mourned by all who knew him. He possessed a mind of more than ordinary vigor and applied himself with great energy in his chosen pursuit. By integrity and industry he secured not only the respect but the warm affection of his employer. He was ambitious, but ambitious for his mother. Next to the Saviour, she evidently was the great thought that mastered his being. For her, he spent his strength, strained his aching sight, and wearied the night watches with patient toil. When utterly prostrate and unable to utter full sentences, he would turn his sunken eyes which "told the love he could not speak" and say with trembling tenderness "dear mother."

In 1862, he volunteered in the army of the South, fought her battles, endured her hardships and submitted to her misfortunes without bringing upon her reproach, or suffering a blemish upon the Christian character with which he entered her service. As a comrade he was generous and sympathetic, ever willing to share his crust and blanket with his fellows. Like an angel of mercy, he hovered round the pallet of the sick, bathing the fevered brow or tempting the transient appetite with delicacies, his greater strength had gathered from afar. He was reared in the Sabbath School and early entered his Master's service. As a soldier of the cross, he kept his armor bright, and stood with sleepless vigilance his round of duty until God required the guard and dismissed the weary sentry to his rest. But one of his family survives him and she his widowed mother, lone and desolate. May God bless her afflicted hearth. —CHAS. F. EVANS.

REV. R. W. LAMBUTH.

Obituary resolutions of the Quarterly Conference of Clinton Circuit, Mississippi Conference, held at Liberty Church, Hinds County, Miss., the 17th August, 1867.

Resolved, That while we with reverence and humility submit to the will of an all-wise but mysterious Providence, we mourn in heaviness of heart and cheerful spirit this sad affliction by which this church has been deprived of its pastor.

Resolved, That Robt. W. Lambuth was a minister of fine abilities, a pastor of unceasing devotion and large usefulness, a man of the highest probity and a good exemplar in all the relations of life, and a Christian of the truest model.

Resolved, That we offer the feeble but earnest tribute of sincere condolence to the amiable widow, the innocent fatherless, the bereft brothers and sisters, while we point them to the abodes of eternal bliss where sweet association with the beloved departed may be renewed, never more to end, and remind them that:

Earth has no sorrow
That Heaven cannot heal.

R. ABBRY, Presiding Elder.
J. B. GREAVES, Secretary.

SPECIAL NOTICES.

NOTICE.

To the preachers of the Montgomery Conference. DEAR BRETHREN: Owing to the crowded condition of our houses, I am compelled to request you not to bring your wives to Conference.

J. W. GLENN.
Opelika, Sept 9, 1867.

Lake Providence Dist.—La. Conference

FOURTH ROUND OF QUARTERLY MEETINGS. Carroll Circuit, at Oak Grove Oct 12 13 Delhi Ct., at Floyd 19 20 Ion Circuit, Little Creek 26 27 Tensas and Sicily Island, at Tensas Chapel Nov 9 10 Waterproof & St. Joseph, Waterproof 23 24

The District Meeting is postponed from the 27th September to the fourth day of October, at which time there will be a Camp Meeting, at Oakley Camp-ground. Any of the preachers from Louisiana or Mississippi Conferences are cordially invited to attend.

Wm. G. McGahey, P. E.

Greenville Dist.—Mississippi Conference.

FOURTH ROUND OF QUARTERLY MEETINGS.

On account of the great and protracted overflow of the past season, the second and third rounds on this District, were served irregularly—having to take them as I could. It being impossible to get members to attend, there can be no official District Meeting held, and the duties of that meeting will have to be performed by the Quarterly Conferences separately.

Greenville S. M. Sept 7 8 Princeton or Leota S. M. 14 15 Cloverhill S. M. 21 22 Union Chapel, D. C., S. M. 28 29 Upper Deer Creek, S. M. Oct 5 6 Boyd's store (Tullashutchie river) S. M. 12 13 Roebuck S. M. 19 20 Indian Meeting Q. M. 26 27 Lake Lee S. M. Nov 2 3 Greenville Q. M. 9 10

The preachers in charge are requested to have all their reports, statistics, etc., as required by the Discipline, written and ready for their respective Quarterly Conferences, as this may not be supplied afterwards. JAS. MACLENNAN, P. E.

NOTICE.—The commencement of the Session of Port Gibson Collegiate Academy is postponed to September 16. The charge for Board and English Tuition has been reduced to $70 per quarter. aug 31 St

Tuscaloosa District—Mobile Conference.

The District Conference for the Tuscaloosa District, will be held at Flat Woods, on Havana Circuit, commencing Thursday, 26th of September prox.

The Conference will be composed of all the traveling preachers and official members of the stations, circuits, and missions of the District.

The Introductory Sermon will be preached by Rev. J. C. Wills, of the Southern University, Thursday 11 o'clock A. M. Bishop Wightman will preside.

J. L. COTTON, P. E.

Shreveport Dist.—Louisiana Conference.

FOURTH ROUND OF QUARTERLY MEETINGS.

Many, at Fort Jessup, Aug 31 and Sept 1 Amoco, at Holly Grove, " 7 8 Pleasant Hill, at Benah, " 14 15 Mansfield, at Mansfield, " 28 29 Caddo, at Greenwood, Oct 5 6 N. Rossier, at Walker's Chapel, 12 13 Shreveport " 19 20 Belle Bower " 26 27 Springville, at Springville Nov 2 3

DISTRICT MEETING to be held at Mansfield, September 26, 27, 28.

B. F. ALEXANDER, P. E.

New Orleans Dist.—Louisiana Conference

THIRD ROUND OF QUARTERLY MEETINGS.

Corondelet Street Aug 25, Felicity Street Sept 1, Moreau Street, " 8, Jefferson City, " 15, N. O. Cir., Quar. Con. Advocate office, at Can. Adv. 16, Ger'n Church, at Sarapuru st. 22, German Quarterly Conference Dryades street, " 23, Baton Rouge, " 28, 29

Natchez District Convention.

Will be held in Woodville, Miss., from Thursday, 26th, (10 o'clock A. M.) to Sunday the 29th of September next.

We deem it unnecessary to republish subjects to be reported upon by pastors, stewards, S. S. superintendents, presidents and teachers of our colleges and schools, but would refer them to a publication in N. O. C. ADVOCATE, June 8th, 1867. After deliberation, the published plan for addresses has been abandoned. There will be preaching at the usual hours, Saturday, P. M., and Sabbath day. We trust every official member on the District will be present the first day of the meeting, so as to serve on various committees, which will be needed. Respectfully, JAS. A. GODFREY.

Vicksburg Dist.—Mississippi Conference.

FOURTH ROUND OF QUARTERLY MEETINGS.

North Warren, at Oak Ridge Sept 1, 2 Port Gibson 8, 9 Fayette, at Bethel 13, 16 Burton, at Pisgah 22, 23 Cayuga, at Utica 29, 30 Raymond Oct 6, 7 Warren, at Bethel 13, 14 Rocky Springs 20, 21 Vicksburg 27, 28

Pastors will be ready with full reports of Statistics. Written reports of the condition of church property, Sabbath schools, etc., will be expected.

G. H. CLAYTON, P. E.

Summerfield District Meeting.

A District Meeting for the Summerfield District will be held at Uniontown, commencing Thursday, the 12th Sept. The official members of the church within the bounds of the district, are all members of the District Meeting Conference, and are earnestly requested and expected to attend. Arrangements will be made to carry the members over the railroad at half price. A. H. MICHENER, P. E.

CAMP MEETING.

NOTICE IS HEREBY GIVEN, that a CAMP MEETING will be held near Whitworth, Hoskins & Co's Steam Saw Mill, at Pin Oak Flag Station, on the Jackson and New Orleans Railroad, two miles North of Brookhaven, commencing on Thursday before the fifth Sabbath in September.

Everybody is invited to attend, and to bring their own provisions, and erect their own tents. All ministers of the Gospel attending, will be provided for during their stay—others will make their arrangements beforehand for their own accommodation. Wood, water, and lot for horses, convenient and free.

Applications for permission to build and keep boarding tents will be made to the Committee of Arrangements.

Families and others from New Orleans, Jackson, and intermediate towns on the Railroad, and from neighborhoods contiguous to the Camp-ground, would do well to write or send agents beforehand, that arrangements may be made for their accommodation. The trains will stop at the Ground for the accommodation of persons attending. Lumber for building purposes convenient.

Colored people will be preached to as usual.

For further information, apply to L. R. REDDING, Chairman, of Committee of Arrangements, or any of the undersigned: WM. G. MILLARS, P. Elder, Brookhaven District;

B. JONES, Pastor, Wesson and Beauregard; A. B. NICHOLSON, Pastor, Bayou Pierre Circuit;

H. J. HARRIS, Pastor, Huzlehurst Circuit;

THOS. NIXON, " Crystal Springs " PETER E. GREENE, Pastor, Bogue Chitto Circuit;

Geo. F. THOMPSON, Pastor, pro tem, Jackson;

L. B. REDDING, Pastor, Brookhaven; COMMITTEE OF ARRANGEMENTS. L. R. REDDING, T. G. DWELL, M. J. WHITWORTH, JAS. A. HOSKINS.

Jackson Methodist, New Orleans Advocate, Crystal Springs News and Copiah, please copy four times.

Ample preparations will be made to accommodate all editors who may honor them with their presence.

Mobile District—Mobile Conference.

FOURTH ROUND OF QUARTERLY MEETINGS.

E. Shore & Fish River, at Donnelly's Sept 14 15 Citronelle, at Citronelle 21 22 Whistler, at Whistler 28 29 Pascagoula and Bay shore, Salcm Camp Ground Oct 19 20 Ocean Springs, at Red Hill 26 27 St Stephens & State Line, Pine Grove Nov 2 3 Waynesboro, at Waynesboro 9 10 Mobile, at St. Paul's 17 18 " St. Francis street 24 25 " Franklin street Dec 1

The preachers in charge are requested to be prepared with a duplicate copy of the statistics of their charge, to be furnished the Presiding Elder, according to requirements of the Discipline—See ch 2, sec 6, par 9 page 67.

THOS. W. DORMAN, P. E.

DISTRICT MEETING.

A District Meeting for the Mobile District will be held in Franklin Street Methodist Church, in the city of Mobile, beginning on Friday, before the second Sunday in October, at 9 A. M., at which all the traveling and local preachers, and all the official members of the church in the bounds of the District, are earnestly requested to attend. Ample accommodations will be provided by calling on Doctors Hamilton Neely—Bishop Wightman will be in attendance.

THOMAS W. DORMAN, P. E.

Homer District—Louisiana Conference.

FOURTH ROUND OF QUARTERLY MEETINGS.

Vernon Ct., at Vernon Sept 7, 8 Haynesville at Collynette 21, 22 Farmerville at Alabama 28, 29 Homer at Forest Grove Oct 5, 6 Lake Bienville at Ringold 12, 13 Sparta at Sparta 19, 20 Mt. Lebanon at Arcadia 26, 27 Lewisville Nov 2, 3 South Bossier 9, 10 Minden 16, 17

District Meeting at Forest Grove, seven miles east of Homer, commencing Friday, fourth of October. All traveling and local preachers, also all of the official members of the District are requested to attend.

JNO. A. MILLER, P. E.

Brookhaven Dist.—Miss Conference.

FOURTH ROUND OF QUARTERLY MEETINGS.

Hazlehurst, Sept 1, 2 Chrystal Springs, at Bethesda 7, 8 Scotland cold dit., at Gallatin 14, 15 Meadville, at Beach Grove 21, 22 Dist Meeting Hazlehurst 27, 28 Holmesville, at Holmesville Oct 5, 6 Bayou Pierre, at Rehoboth 12, 13 Pearl River, at Sertains 19, 20 Bayou Chitto, 26, 27 Wesson, at Beauregard Nov 2, 3 Brookhaven, 9, 10 Scotland, at Gallatin 16, 17 The District Meeting will be held at Hazlehurst, Sept. 27, 28, 29. G. W. MILLARS, P. E.

Yazoo District—Mississippi Conference

FOURTH ROUND OF QUARTERLY MEETINGS.

Lexington, at Lexington Sept 14 15 Greenwood, at Greenwood 21 22 Carrollton, at Carrollton 28 29 Emory, at Emory Oct 5 6 Holmes, at Durant 12 13 Richland, at Richland 19 20 Black Hawk, at Black Hawk 26 27 Mount Olivet, at Dover Nov 2 3 Yazoo, at Midway 9 10 Yazoo City Station 16 17

APPOINTMENTS BY THE WAY.

Sweetwater, Sept 18 at 11 o'clock A. M. Acona 18 at 7 " P. M. Black Hawk 19 at 7 " Carrollton 27 at 7 " Valden Oct 3 at 7 " Durant 11 at 7 " Benton Nov 1 at 7 "

At these appointments marked with a star, I will lecture on Temperance. J. M. PRON, P. E.

DeKalb Circuit—Mobile Conference.

Mr. Editor: Please announce there will be a Camp Meeting, commencing on Friday before the fifth Sabbath in September, at LINWOOD CHURCH, in the South-west part of Kemper county, 18 miles from Marion Station, M. & O. R. R. Bishop Wightman, and Ministers are all invited. JAS. M. GANN, P. E.

Columbus District—Mobile Conference.

FOURTH ROUND OF QUARTERLY MEETINGS.

There will be a District Meeting for Columbus District, Mobile Conference, at Union Chapel, Pickens County, Ala., 8 miles east of Pickensville, and 6 miles north of Bridgeville.

All the members of Quarterly Conferences in the District are members, and are earnestly invited to attend. There will be sermons delivered on subjects, Thursday, Friday, and Saturday, at 11 o'clock, by Rev. A. S. Andrews, T. P. Crymes, and W. C. Hearn.

Members will come prepared to deliberate and report upon the various subjects of interest, usual at such meetings.

Pickensville and Carrollton Sept 21 22 Bridgeville, " 28 29 Columbus Station Oct 5 6 Columbus Circuit 12 13 Oakville 19 20 Brookville 26 27 Trinity Nov 9 10 Crawfordville 24 25 Green Dec 7 8 W. MURRAY, P. E.

Tuscaloosa District—Mobile Conference.

FOURTH ROUND OF QUARTERLY MEETINGS.

Havana Sept 28 29 New Berne and Oak Grove Oct 5 6 Marion " 12 13 Brush Creek " 19 20 Scottville and Carthage " 26 27 Tuscaloosa Nov 2 3 Eutaw " 9 10 Forkland " 16 17 Greensboro Nov 30 and Dec 1 J. L. COTTON, P. E.

OPELOUSAS DISTRICT.

The District Meeting appointed for 13th and 14th September, at New Iberia, is postponed for the present. Due notice will be given of the time, when it is proper to hold said meeting.

A. E. GOODWIN, P. E.

NEW ADVERTISEMENTS.

WANTED.

A lady to teach French, and assist in teaching music,—one thoroughly qualified. Address H. F. JOHNSON, Brookhaven, Miss., Sept 12-1m

SHARON FEMALE COLLEGE.

Is located in the village of Sharon, Madison County, Mississippi, seven miles east of Canton.

The fifth session will begin Monday, Sept. 30th, 1867, under the Presidency of Rev. W. L. C. HUMPHREY, A. M., assisted by an able corps of teachers. The curriculum is thorough and comprehensive. The location is a very desirable and healthy one. The place is free from many evils, connected with the larger towns and cities, and, especially those on rail roads—having always been free from epidemics.

Tuition per term of five months $15 00 Primary Department 20 00 Collegiate 25 00 Maslo and Piano 25 00 Use of Instrument 7 50 Vocal Music 2 50 Board, fuel and bedding, per month 18 00 Lights and washing, extra. Young ladies furnishing their towels, Sheets, blankets, washing and lights, will pay per month $16 00 The daughters of all ministers, in the regular pastoral work, will receive tuition in the English course free of charge. sep 21 2m

DEAFNESS CURED.

This Organic Vibrator fits into the ear, is not perceptible, stops ringing noises in the head and enables deaf persons to hear distinctly at church and at public assemblies. Send particulars to Dr. S. H. WELLS, Williamsburg, Kings Co., N. Y. aug 24-1m

EDUCATIONAL.

A young lady educated in Europe, with five years' experience in teaching there—desires an engagement. Prefers a pleasant home to a large number of scholars. Qualified in French and music. Will be here in October. Address, Rev. JAS. MACLENNAN, Greenville, Miss., stating terms, etc. aug 10

THOMAS MURRAY.

BUILDER.
Corner Rampart and Esato Streets,
NEW ORLEANS.

Orders left at Box 119, Mechanic's Exchange, will be attended to. sept 7

KICKERBUCKER LIFE INSURANCE CO., OF NEW YORK.

Mutual Plan. Assets $2,450,000
General Agent for the State of Mississippi,
H. S. FULKERSON. JACKSON, Miss.

Note: Ministers of the Gospel in the State of Mississippi, upon giving satisfactory reference, will be appointed agents of this Company, upon applying in person, or by letter, to the General Agent at JACKSON, Miss., or when more convenient to H. C. PAXSON, Manager, 60 and 62 Camp street, New Orleans, by whom the necessary blanks will be sent to them. aug 3-3m

$10 A DAY MADE BY ANY

one with my Patent Stencil Tools. I prepare samples free. Beware of imitations. My circulars will explain. Address: A. J. FULLMAN, Springfield, Vt. sept 7-4t

WANTED.

TEACHER'S SITUATION WANTED.

A lady who can produce the first testimonials of ability and success as an instructress, wishes to engage a position as teacher for the ensuing scholastic year: is well qualified to teach the English branches, French, and music. References given and required. Terms, for a limited number of scholars, $40 per month, and board, Address, A. B. C, care of Rev. Doctor Neely, Mobile.

SHARON FEMALE COLLEGE.

The fifth session of this school will begin Sept 30, 1867, under the Presidency of Rev. W. L. HUMPHREY, A. M., who will be assisted by an able corps of teachers. The course of study is large and comprehensive—equal to that of any similar institution in the Union. The location is pleasant and healthy. The moral and religious advantages are fine. Tuition, for five months, in the English branches, from $15 to $25. Music on Piano $25; use of Instrument, $5. Board, fuel, and bedding, $18 per month. Lights and washing, extra. When young ladies furnish sheets, towels, and blankets, board will be less. Incidental fee, $2 50; Languages $5 to $7 50, each.

For further particulars, address the President, or Rev. H. H. Montgomery, Sharon, Miss. sept 6-3m

EAST ALABAMA MALE COLLEGE.

AT AUBURN, ALA.

The Fall term of this Institution will open on the FIRST WEDNESDAY IN SEPTEMBER next, and close on the 20th December. Besides the regular course of studies for graduation, large facilities are afforded for instruction in the Commercial and Agricultural branches. Separate schools for these branches, in connection with the College, were authorized at the last annual meeting of the Board of Trustees. A student not wishing to take either the regular or a partial literary course in the College, may confine himself to either of these Departments, and in a short time become qualified for business.

The Preparatory Department, with competent teachers, will be under the special supervision of the Faculty. Tuition—Full Term in College $30 00 Contingent Fee 3 00 Tuition—Full Term in Preparatory School 25 00 Contingent Fee 2 00 Board in Private Families from $15 to $20 per month. C. RAIFORD, Sec'y of Board; aug 31-2m

JOHN G. FARHAM, BEVERLY BLUNT, Of New Orleans, Of Hinds Co., Miss.

PARHAM & BLUNT,
COTTON FACTORS,
Forwarding and Commission Merchants
and Purchasing Agents,
No. 75 Carondelet street, New Orleans.
aug 24 1y

SOMERVILLE FEMALE INSTITUTE.

The undersigned will re-open this old and well established school on MONDAY, SEPTEMBER 24, 1867.

EXPENSES.

Tuition per Session of Twenty Weeks $30 00 Music 25 00 Use of Instrument 7 50 Languages, each 10 00 Incidental Fee 2 50 Board, including everything except Bed Covering and Towels, per Month 20 00 Board, exclusive of Lights and Washing 16 00 aug 24 R. H. RIVERS.

EMORY & HENRY COLLEGE.

WASHINGTON CO., VA.

Our Fall Session begins on the 15th of August next. Charges for session of five months, payable in currency and in advance, are as follows:

Tuition in collegiate course, $30 00 Fuel, room rent and contingent fee, 10 00 Tuition in Preparatory Department is $5 less. Board can be had in private families at the College, for $13 per month, if paid or satisfactory references arranged, monthly in advance. Those seeking collegiate advantages are invited to investigate ours. For additional information, Address, E. E. WILEY, Pres't, Emory P. O., Va. je 29

READVILLE SEMINARY.

Baton Rouge, La.

Will open its next Session, Tuesday Oct. 1st, 1867. It is very desirable that the pupils be present at that time, and enter at once their regular classes. Parents will please notice this, and be as punctual as possible, in bringing their daughters. aug 17-6w MRS. MARY W. READ, Principal.

BELIZE, BRITISH HONDURAS.

Putnam & Cary.

General Commission
Receiving and Forwarding Merchandise—
and—
Custom House Brokers. je 15-3m
Belize, British Honduras.

THE CHILD'S CORNER.

For the N. O. Christian Advocate.

"Q, I wish I were in Heaven!"

Such was the exclamation of Kate Galloway, of Scooba, Miss., aged about ten or eleven years. How soon was the wish realized! She was lying upon a bed of suffering, and having been taught that Heaven is a world free from pain and care, how natural and appropriate the wish to be in that land of rest. A very few hours after this, Kate passed away to that blest abode.—Children, you may express a great many wishes that may never be realized; but you may all obtain a home in Heaven by giving your hearts to Jesus, and living the lives of Christians.

I wish I were in Heaven,
The land of peace and love;
To see my blessed Jesus,
And reign with him above.
With all the holy angels,
With all the blood-washed throng;
To praise my blessed Saviour,
With an immortal tongue.
There dwell the good and holy,
Redeemed from every land,
Who gave their hearts to Jesus,
And joined his faithful band.
Their joys are now immortal,
Their pleasures never cease—
One day of endless glory,
Of joy, and love, and peace.

September 7, 1867. J. C. HUCKABEE.

From Mary's Museum.

NED

BY FRANK T. GUERNSEY.

A cheerful and very happy fellow was little Ned. He lived out in the country, far away from the dust and din of the noisy city, where he breathed the fresh, pure air of heaven and roamed through the beautiful green fields. All day long he went about singing, for he felt light-hearted and merry. Indeed, I think no one had ever known him to be sad. But though up to this time his life had been a joyous one, free from sorrow and care, he was, alas! soon to meet with trouble which he little thought of, and prove in his own experience the uncertainty of all things earthly.

One day, while taking his usual ramble, little Ned came to a large forest. He had been close to this forest many times before, but was always afraid to enter it. This time, however, as he was looking into its vast depths, and saw but a little way off some beautiful wild flowers growing near an old oak, he could not resist the temptation to venture in and see them. At first he felt a little afraid, but soon he began to roam among the trees and flowers, and in a few minutes felt perfectly at home. And now he went farther and farther into the forest without a thought of danger. In a little while he came to a small brook, flowing through the forest, whose waters were as clear as crystal. Ned thought he would take a drink, as he felt thirsty, and was about doing so, when suddenly he was seized from behind by a tall, ugly-looking giant. The giant was many, many times larger than Ned, and was so delighted at his capture, that he opened his mouth and made a noise that sounded terrible to the little fellow. He now started off, carrying his trembling, unresisting captive; and after traveling a long way, the giant reached his house—a most gloomy-looking place—which he entered. He then thrust his captive into what Ned thought was a prison, for there were bars all around him.

You may imagine that the little fellow was very much frightened at this treatment, for he had never been shut up in this way before, and he could not understand at all why it was done. The giant now gave him a piece of bread and a cup of water, and left him. But Ned could not eat, for he felt so badly. He was left alone until the next morning. The giant then came, and was very angry when he found that none of the bread had been eaten, and he took little Ned and crammed some of the bread down his throat. When he had done this, he went away again.

All that long day, shut up in his prison, poor Ned felt very sad. He thought how happy he had been in his own pleasant, comfortable home, and of the many nice things he had to eat. Now he was deprived of his freedom, and the thought of this almost maddened him. How hard he tried to get between the bars of his prison and escape!—but it was all in vain.

By-and-by the giant came again, and told Ned that he wanted him to sing a song—one of the songs he used to sing at home. But poor little Ned felt too wretched to sing. Then the giant took him out of his prison, and said he would make him sing, or kill him. But he could not force him to sing. The poor little fellow now felt the giant's finger tightening around his throat. He screamed and struggled, but to no avail. The next moment he sank back dead in the giant's hand. Can any of you guess who Ned was? He was a little bird; and the giant was a cruel boy!

From the Little Corporal.

STOP THIEF!

Such a sight as that cake closet was! A swarm of big, black ants had taken possession of the sugar bowl, and the cake basket, and the dish of honey. It was of no use to brush them off, or try to shut them out; they knew of fifty ways to get in, and in they came.

"Camphor will drive them out," said a wise woman, who understood all such mysteries.

"Put a lump of gum camphor in the closet."

So we put the camphor on the shelf, shut the door, and left the ants to their fate.

When we came back from the country after a few days, sure enough, the ants had vanished; not a single one remained to tell the tale. But, strangely enough, the camphor was gone, too. Could the ants have eaten it?

"O no," said the wise woman, "it has only evaporated."

"Will it kill him?" asked a little girl, dubiously, not quite understanding about the thief.

That night we brought out the sugar in triumph, and out the loaf of nice cake for tea, thinking ourselves very fortunate that it had kept so nicely. But when papa had tasted his tea, he made a wry face; and even the wise woman said, "This tea tastes abominable like some kind of medicine." Nobody could drink it; but the milk was all right, and the water as refreshing as ever, so it wasn't much matter.

But when it came to the cake, papa looked at the wise woman, and the wise woman looked at papa; and they both scowled first, and laughed afterwards; and a little girl said,

"Seems to me, mamma, this cake is 'fumed with camphor.'"

"That accounts for the camphor!" said mamma; "it evaporated in that close closet, and was all absorbed by the cake and sugar!"

"No wonder the ants wouldn't touch it," said papa; "it is nothing but a sponge saturated with camphor!"

So the air was the thief who stole the camphor, and the cake and sugar received the stolen goods.

FARM AND GARDEN.

Gathering and Keeping Fruit.

It is becoming a well understood principle that pears are improved by being gathered before fully ripe. Some should approach nearer maturity than others. But early apples should be fully ripe, as a general rule before gathering. Late full and winter apples should not be eatable when picked, and all the late winter varieties should be gathered when too hard to yield to the pressure of the thumb, and always before heavy frosts. A dry time should be selected, if possible. There will be a few specimens not yet mature, but you can afford to throw them out to save the best and the main crop. When a good keeping variety begins to drop freely from the tree, as is sometimes the case, secure the balance of the crop that remains on the tree as soon as possible; but they should not be mixed with those on the ground—not one should be saved with those picked. Windfalls will not keep, for in addition to the injury sustained from the fall they become heated by lying upon the ground exposed to the sun and hot air, and the ripening process already commenced is hastening it to a rapid decay. No matter how hot the weather is, an apple is always cool upon the tree, and in that condition should be taken care of, if we would have it kept in its most perfect condition for the full development of all the delicious juices with which it is so abundantly supplied. How to obtain it in that condition will be our purpose now to show. We have seen that it must be carefully gathered before it is too ripe, as it is commonly termed; for, when it is ripe it is fit to eat, and that certainly should not be the case with winter apples when gathered.

We have also seen that heat hastens the ripening process, and that cold retards it. Apples should therefore be kept cool, barely so as not to freeze. A minimum temperature of thirty-four degrees is probably about right, with as little fluctuation as possible.

Whether we regard the ripening process as a vital or chemical action, it is quite sure that it should go on gradual and unchecked until all the good qualities are fully developed, and when the highest point of excellence is attained; then the fruit should be used. It is never so good as when just fully ripe; but it is frequently eatable for a long time. Some varieties become dry and mealy, others tough and leathery. Others by being kept very cool, will frequently remain in a very cool condition for a very long time, or by the use of artificial means may be kept for an almost indefinite period.

The ripening process once commenced, goes on, no matter how cold, if frost is not present, slowly, perhaps, but uninterruptedly, until full maturity. Hence the importance of a cool cellar, which should always be dry and dark. It should be frequently aired, when the outside temperature will allow it.—Some varieties are much more sensitive to this treatment than others.

The Winesap, for instance, which has a thick skin, may be abused a great deal in handling, and but, in different care in the cellar, and yet it will keep pretty well; that is, it will rot but little; but, if kept close and warm, it is subject to a fungus that renders it scarcely tolerable to eat. But if it is kept cool and dry, all its best qualities are retained. It is also one of the varieties that does best on open shelves. The Belmont, on the other hand, one of the best and most profitable apples, is very impatient of bad treatment. Its skin is smooth and thin, and flesh of a delicate texture. If roughly handled and kept in a warm room, it soon decays. If carefully handled and kept in a cool place, it keeps with very little waste till April or May. Indeed it is one of the very best of keepers.

HOUSEKEEPER'S DEPARTMENT

BAKED PEACH PUDDING.—Line a deep pudding dish with slices of baker's bread cut thin. Fill up the dish with ripe peaches cut in pieces and sugared, cover the top with some bread sliced thin, buttered and dipped in the yolk of an egg well beaten. Set the pudding in the oven and bake it. Serve it with milk or cream.

CANNING GRAPES.—To can grapes make a syrup of a quarter of a pound of sugar for one pound of fruit. Put the grapes whole into the scalding syrup and skim them out soon, and let them partly cool; it prevents the berries from breaking; then put them in the can, either glass or tin (if glass heat it so as not to break). Then pour in a little hot syrup; then put a piece of paper in the can to cover the fruit; then fill up with hot syrup, and seal.

SPICED ELDERBERRY WINE.—Ten gallons of elderberries, ten gallons of soft water, boil and strain; eight ounces red tartar, forty-five pounds of white sugar; ferment with yeast. When in the cask, add ginger, cloves, nutmeg, mace, in all four ounces of spices, and three ounces of bitter almonds. After fermentation has ceased, close the barrel tight, and rack it off when convenient.

TO PRESERVE CRAB APPLES.—Extract the stem and core them with a pen-knife, without cutting them open. Weigh a pound of white sugar for each pound of prepared fruit; put a teaspoon of water to each pound of sugar; put it over a moderate fire. When the sugar is all dissolved and hot, put the apples in; let them boil gently until they are clear, then skim them out and place them on flat dishes. Boil the syrup until it is thick; put the fruit in whatever it is to be kept in, and when the syrup is cooled and settled, pour it carefully over the fruit. Slices of boiled lemon with the fruit may be considered an improvement; one lemon is enough for several pounds of fruit. Crab apples may be preserved whole, with only half an inch of the stem on; three-quarters of a pound of sugar for each pound of fruit.

BEANS A LA FRANCAISE.—Select small, young beans, and strip off the ends and stalks, washing them, as prepared, into a dish full of cold spring water, and when all are finished wash and drain them well. Boil them in salted boiling water, in a large saucepan, and drain them; after which put them into an enameled stewpan, and shake them over the fire until they are quite hot and dry; then add about three ounces of fresh butter and a tablespoonful of veal or chicken broth; the butter must be broken up into small lumps. Season with white pepper, salt, and the juice of half a lemon, strained. Stir them well over a fire for five minutes, and serve them in a vegetable dish, very hot.

MOCK OYSTERS.—Mix a pint of grated green corn, with three spoonful of milk, a teaspoon of flour, half a teaspoon of drawn butter, a teaspoonful of salt, half a teaspoonful of pepper, and one egg. Drop by the spoonful into the hot butter; let the cakes fry from eight to ten minutes.

CRISPED POTATOES.—The French method of cooking potatoes affords a most agreeable dish. The potatoes are peeled, wiped and cut into thin slices, and thrown into a frying-pan containing an abundance of hot lard. As soon as they become brown and crispy, they are thrown into a colander, to drain them, then sprinkle with salt, and serve hot.

COW-HEEL JELLY.—Boil two cow-heels in one gallon of water, until the bones come quite out. Take the juice of three lemons, strain them through a sieve into the jelly; add loaf-sugar and cinnamon to your taste; boil them together; then add three eggs. Let the jelly boil five times. After the jelly is first boiled it must stand still cold, and the fat then be taken off.

BREAKFAST PIE.—Cover the bottom of a deep plate with paste. Cut the beef into pieces convenient for the month; spread them evenly over the paste; then add butter, flour, pepper, salt, and water; cover with paste, press the edges firmly, and cut a gash in the center of the pie. It is good cold or hot. If to be used cold, make a gravy by boiling a bit of the bone, seasoning it the same as the pie; heat the gravy, and serve it with the pie. Potatoes are all the vegetables needed—they should be mashed. These pies can be made from cold beefsteak left the day before, but are not quite as good. It is an important fact that, if meat pie is made without a hole in the crust, to let out certain emanations from the meat, colic, vomiting, and other symptoms of slight poisoning will occur.

LAMB AND RICE.—Half roast a neck of lamb, take it up, and cut it into steaks. Take half a pound of rice boiled ten minutes in a quarter of water, put it into a quart of good gravy, with two or three blades of mace and a little nutmeg; do it over a stove or slow fire till the rice begins to thicken; then take it off, stir in a pound of butter, and when this is quite melted stir in the yolks of six eggs well beaten. Then take a dish and butter it all over; take the steaks and put a little pepper and salt all over them; dip them in a little melted butter, lay them into the dish, pour the gravy that comes out of them over them, and then the rice. Beat the yolks of three eggs and pour all over. Send it to the oven and bake it better than half an hour.

The Ephesian Matron.

It used frequently to be quoted and referred to, but having of late rather fallen into oblivion, we venture to give an abstract of it.

There was a matron at Ephesus, the narrative says, of such exemplary affection and fidelity to her husband that she was the wonder and talk of all the country round. Having unhappily lost her cherished spouse, she was not content with the ordinary testimonials of grief, but placing his body in a vault, took up her abode there, with the intention of starving herself to death. Attended by a faithful maid, she thus passed five days without food, occupied in bewailing her irreparable loss; nor could the remonstrances of her kindred, nor of the city magistrates themselves, avail to shake her resolution.

It so happened that the proconsul had ordered the crucifixion of some robbers at a place in the vicinity, and according to roman custom, a soldier was stationed as a guard over the bodies. In the night, this soldier's attention was attracted by the gleam of a lamp and by sounds of lamentation proceeding from the vault, and with natural curiosity he set himself to find out the cause. As soon as he understood the matter, he hastened to bring his own supper, and entering the vault, besought the widow to forego her desperate purpose. The maid, as we can well believe, added her entreaties to his, and after much difficulty they persuaded her to consent to live. Our military friend's success so far, encouraged him to a yet more audacious attempt. Representing that her late spouse was effectually gone, and that his moan had already been more than sufficiently made, he modestly suggested himself as a candidate for the vacant place in her affections. This plan, like the former, was emphatically approved by the maid, and, after some reluctance, was consented to by the inconsolable. But these negotiations took time, and while the lover was pleading his cause, the friends of one of the executed malefactors stole his body from the cross. When the soldier discovered the theft, which, by Roman military law, forfeited his life, he hurried back to the lady and, explaining the case, announced his intention of killing himself. "The gods forbid," cried the compassionate fair one, "that I should have to lament the death of two so dear to me. Take the body of my late husband, and hang him up in the place of the other!"—Southern Review.

At the Agricultural Museum, Washington, there is a pear from Oregon weighing four pounds, a plank from California seven feet five inches wide, and a tobacco leaf from Wilmington thirteen inches wide and three feet long within two inches. In the Smithsonian Institute there is a meteoric stone weighing 1400 pounds, and a mass of copper from Michigan which cost the United States nearly six thousand dollars.

PORT GIBSON COLLEGIATE ACADEMY.

A College for Young Ladies with a Preparatory and a Primary School.

BOARD OF INSTRUCTION AND GOVERNMENT.
A. J. Wright, A. M., President.
Mrs. A. A. Wright, Principal.
Mr. R. Scott Ricketts.
Miss Anna M. Ross.
Miss C. A. Murphy, Instructress in Vocal and Instrumental music.
Other instructors will be announced.

This Institution was founded about 1830, and incorporated in 1834, and has a bright record of usefulness. It has been under the present direction four years. The course of study is a full one, and upon its satisfactory completion, a diploma will be awarded.

The younger pupils have the same instructors, and receive the same attention as their seniors. Exercises are continued throughout the course. In Penmanship, Elocution, Orthography, the science of English Grammar, the Art of Composition, and Arithmetic.

The buildings are spacious, retired, well shaded, and well designed for Academic uses. PORT GIBSON is noted for its beauty, salubrity, order and good society. Transportation from Grand Gulf will be by railroad in a few days.

SESSION COMMENCES SEPT. 16.
Boarders are under special charge of the Lady Principal. Board and English Tuition, $70 00 per quarter. For circulars and particulars apply to
A. J. WRIGHT,
D. O. Humphreys, President Board of Trustees.
Port Gibson, Miss., Aug 24.

COLLEGIATE INSTITUTE AT BATON ROUGE.

TENTH SESSION.

The exercises of the school will be resumed on Wednesday, October 23, 1867.

The best facilities are afforded for the acquisition of a first-rate education:

Particular care is bestowed upon the moral and social culture of the pupils.

There is but one session in the year and every student who enters the school is expected to continue to the close of the session in July, and will be held liable for the bills in all cases, unless protracted illness shall compel his removal.

Every pupil is required to furnish his own bedding, towels, wash-basin, mosquito-net and all marked distinctly with his own name—also a sack for dirty clothes.

It is urgently requested that Students be prompt in their attendance. A few days absence at the beginning is often a serious disadvantage during the entire session.

TERMS: Board and Tuition per session, $300.
PAYMENTS: $200 in advance—balance 1st March.

Tuition of Day Scholars, per session, $75 00 payable—one half in advance—balance 1st March.

Modern languages will be taught when the wants of the School demand it, at an extra charge as low as it can be made.

No expense is spared to secure as Teachers, gentlemen of the highest character and ability.
W. H. N. MAGUIRE,
Baton Rouge, La., June 1867. Aug 3 6pm

THE "ARROW" TIE.

AND PAINT IN IRON BANDS.

For sale at the lowest prices, by

H. T. BARTLETT & R. W. RAYNE.

General Agents, No. 43 Carondelet street.

The above popular fastening is the best now in use for hating Cotton. They are approved by the Insurance Companies of this city, and are used at the Cotton Presses in New Orleans, Memphis, Mobile, Galveston, Savannah, and by Planters everywhere with success and approbation.

N. B.—Said ARROW TIES are for sale by dealers in New Orleans, and everywhere throughout all the Cotton growing States, at the lowest prices. Je 22-67-6m

A TREATISE ON DEAFNESS

AND CATARRH.

Their causes and means of immediate relief and speedy cure sent free for 10 cents.

By Dr. T. H. STILLWELL.

ang 24-1m Williamsburg, Kings Co., N. Y.

MRS. DYER'S BOARDING HOUSE.

This is situated on Camp street, the first door above St. Patrick's Cathedral, No. 174.

References: Rev. Dr. Keener, Dr. Walker, Messrs. Parker, R. J. Harp. Je 8 6m

It is an unfailing remedy in all cases of Neuralgia, Facialis, often effecting a perfect cure in less than twenty-four hours, from the use of no more than two or three pills.

No other form of Neuralgia or Nervous Disease has failed to yield to this wonderful remedial agent.

Even the severest cases of Chronic Neuralgia and general nervous derangements, of many years standing, affecting the entire system, its use for a few days, or a few weeks at the utmost, always affords the most astonishing relief, and very rarely fails to produce a complete and permanent cure.

It contains no drugs or other materials in the slightest degree injurious, even to the most delicate system, and can always be used with perfect safety.

It has long been in constant use by many of our most eminent physicians, who give it their unanimous and unqualified approval.

Sent by mail on receipt of price, and postage.

One package, $1 00 Postage, 6 cts

Six packages, 5 00 " 27 "

Twelve packages, 9 00 " 43 "

It is sold by all wholesale and retail dealers in drugs and medicines throughout the United States, and by

Turner & Co., Sole Proprietors,

120 Tremont street, Boston, Mass.

NORTH, BRUSH & M. SON.

Wholesale Dealers in

Fancy Goods,

STATIONERY, PERFUMERY, CUTLERY

HOSIERY,

Furnishing Goods, etc.,

35 MAGAZINE STREET,

Opposite the St. James Hotel, New Orleans, La.

ang 25 1y

J. H. MASSEY & CO.,

WHOLESALE DEALERS IN

DRY GOODS AND CLOTHING

100 Common Street, opposite City Hall,

mar 2-67

HENDERSON A. MORSE,

ATTORNEY AT LAW,

—and—
Commissioner of Deeds.

For the States of South Carolina, Mississippi, Kentucky, Tennessee, Georgia, Alabama, Florida, Louisiana, Missouri, Maryland, Texas, Arkansas, No. Commercial Place, Third Floor.

april 20 1y

DOLBEAR COMMERCIAL COLLEGE

(On the corner of Camp and Common Streets.)

It was founded in 1832, and is chartered by the State. Its former students may be seen in the old homes of this city and over the Southern States. Ladies or gentlemen can attend COMMERCIAL COURSE; or Book-keeping, Penmanship, Mathematics, English, French, Spanish, separately. A business education enables one to earn $1000, $2000, or $3000 a year. A DIPLOMA from this College can give the holder in all Commercial communities, and gentlemen are invited to call. We make arrangements for 1000 students each year. Liberal arrangements made for Clergymen or their sons and crippled students. Catalogues sent to all who desire them.

RUFUS DOLBEAR, President.

nov 17 1y

BELL'S BELL FOUNDRY

Established in 1837.

VANDUZEN & TIFT,

Of the late Firm and Successors to

COFFIN & CO.,

102 & 104 East Second Street,

Cincinnati, Ohio.

Manufacturers of BELLS for Churches, etc.

Made of Genuine Bell Metal, and mounted on our improved Rotary Yokes.

All Bells warranted to prove satisfactory, subject to be returned.

Illustrated Catalogue and Price List sent upon application.

KNIGHT & CO.,

Dealers in

PLANTATION, MILL & WOOD-WORKING

MACHINERY,

And Agricultural Implements.

Keep constantly on hand a large assortment of articles peculiar to our business, and through our agents in the North and East, can fill promptly, and at a small advance, make manufacturers of every kind of work done at their establishments, and keep in this market.

The great change in our labor system, necessitating a corresponding change in the implements used, and we have prepared ourselves to offer the latest improved

LABOR-SAVING MACHINES,

both for Agricultural and Mechanical purposes, at prices that will warrant their purchase.

Also, LEEDS & CO'S Sugar Kettles, New Screw, Gun, Looming, &c.; and will contract any kind of work done at their establishments, and keep in this market.

172 GRAVER STREET, NEW ORLEANS.

oct 20 1y

NEW ORLEANS

Where is it located? Its Depository and the House is at its own building, No. 161 O Street, New Orleans.

When was it established? 1850.

Who is its General Agent to whom correspondence on its business should be addressed? Rev. W. H. Bayless.

What is the Society's field of labor? All Louisiana, and all of Mississippi, north of 33rd parallel of North latitude.

What is the object of the Society? To copy and supply (gratuitously where needed) the Bibles of the Holy Scriptures.

What are the resources and whence the funds of the Society? From the annual contributions of its members. Collections at public meetings within its field, collections at annual conferences and anniversaries. Appropriations of the plus funds of its auxiliaries, the donations of individuals, testamentary bequests, the annual donation in Books of the American Bible Society.

What is the Society's method of work? Cultivating its own local work in the city of New Orleans; then through Auxiliary Societies established or to be established every Parish in the County in the field, and employment by them of such means as will accomplish the object of the Society.

What are the terms of membership? The payment of $25 at one time constitutes life membership.

The payment of $150 at one time, constitutes life membership.

The payment of $1000 at one time, constitutes life membership.

The payment of $3 annually, constitutes life membership.

The taking up of a collection by a church constitutes the Parish or Auxiliary membership.

Having thus briefly stated the main objects of the Society's work, income and expenditure, the Board of Directors for the current year, respectfully ask the aid of all members of the Society, whether professors of religion or not, to strengthen the hands of the S. B. S. in the founding or reviving Auxiliary Societies, by urging donations, by expending, by expending or renewing memberships of all grades, and by establishing connections with the Society as the Lord prospers them according to that Scripture which says: "Let not us forget ourselves treasures upon earth where moth and rust doth corrupt, and where thieves break through and steal; but lay up for yourselves treasures in heaven, where neither moth nor rust doth corrupt, and where thieves do not break through and steal." "Forasmuch as ye have provided for the Lord, he will surely multiply your store, and enlarge your borders." "Forasmuch as ye have loved the word which I have commanded, I will send the Spirit of Wisdom and Understanding into your hearts, that ye may know the things which I have commanded you." "Forasmuch as

MARTHA WASHINGTON COLLEGE,
Abingdon, Va.

Under the patronage of the Holston Conference, Methodist Episcopal Church, South.
First term of twenty weeks, for the summer

Second term begins 19th February, 1888, and closes second Wednesday in July.

Board for Session of ten months..... $150
Tuition in Collegiate department, 10 mo., 60
" " Preparatory " " " " " " 60

| | | |
|--|-----|----|
| Music on Piano, | " " | 10 |
| French, German, Spanish or Italian, each, | " " | 50 |
| No extra charge for Greek or Latin. | " " | 20 |
| Young ladies pay for their own washing and lights. | | |
| No charge for use of room or use of | | |

Oil Painting, for use of room or use of piano. $30
Drawing, Water Colors, Crayon, &c. each, 20
No tuition charged to Ministers' daughters.
Bills payable semi-annually, in advance.
For further information, apply to July-6 3m B. ARBOGAST, Pres't.

"FEMALE COLLEGIATE INSTITUTE.
JACKSON, TENNESSEE.
Rev. A. W. Jones, President.
The Institution for young ladies of the South.

Send your daughters, and full satisfaction shall be given in all respects.
For particulars, address the President.
July 20-67

A GOOD COOKING STOVE

Is one of the most necessary and desirable articles of household economy, and if properly managed, will promote the health, comfort, and happiness of every member of the family.

Time, money, and extreme vexation, by delay of your daily meals, may be saved by using the

Over 10,000 of these celebrated cooking stoves are in daily use throughout the city of New Orleans. Every one of them has been sold under a full guarantee, and we offer them as a reference wherever found.

has but one damper, and is so simple in its construction that a child can manage it. The oven is larger, bakes more uniform, and the stove heavier than any cooking stove of corresponding size ever made.

The Hot Water Reservoir Boiler furnishes a constant supply of hot water for the house.

constant supply of hot water at all hours of the day, and for hours after the fire has been extinguished, without additional cost for fuel, a practical illustration of the economy in using the Charter Oak.

The Reflector Gridiron, original with the Charter Oak, and used on no other stove—the most perfect manner to broil meats and poultry.

The Hot Closet, in which meats and pastry are kept warm for hours when there has been a delay at meals, besides enabling the cook to furnish the greatest variety of dishes and deserts, and place them on the table in the most agreeable manner.

Importers and Dealers in Hardware, Nails, Castings, Guns, Carpenters' and Coopers' Edge Tools, etc.

RICE, BROS. & CO., Sole Agents,
59 and 91 Camp street, near Poydras,
and 565 Magazine st., near Magazine Market.
sept 1y

R. E. WALKER. THOS. M'KNIGHT. J. F. JOHNSON
P. K. WALKER & CO.

COTTON FACTORS,
And General Commission Merchants,
75 CARONDELET STREET, NEW ORLEANS.

E. L. PIERSON & CO.
Wholesale and Retail Dealers in CLOTHING.
AS

GENTLEMEN'S FURNISHING GOODS,
No. 27 Magazine Street, Corner of Gravier street,
NEW ORLEANS.

GEORGE STROUD,
Late of and successor to JOHN STROUD
MARBLE WORK
158, 160, 162, & 164 ST. CHARLES St.,
One door above Lafayette Square, New Orleans.

Machle Mantel Pieces, Grates, Tombs, Monuments, Slabs, Head and Foot Stones, Tablets, Vases, etc. jan12 1y

ROBERT SLARK, WM. A. KENT,
ISAAC H. STAUFFER, CHAS. MACREADY
SLARK, STAUFFER & CO

No 71 Canal St., No 11 to 23 Dorrisee St., and 52 to 56 Customhouse Street.
Importers and Dealers in
H A R D W A R E :

Iron, Steel, Nails, Hoes, Axes, Rope, Tin
Plates, Copper, Block Tin, Spelter, Lead, Shot, Paints, Oils, Glass, Hollow Ware, Circular Saws
MILL STONES,
INDIA RUBBER GIN BAND,
PLANT SIGNS

Constantly on hand a large assortment of
AGRICULTURAL IMPLEMENTS
Comprising PLOUGHS of the following celebrated makers: James H. Hall & Co., for Sugar and Cotton; Garrett & Cottman, for Sugar and Cotton; Calhoun, and Acklins.

toons; Hall and Spear, Wrought and Cast, for Cotton; B. F. Avery, Cast, for Cotton; John and Albert King, "Carey" for Cotton; Peoria Premium Steel, or "Prairie Plough;" Yeats' Patent Ploughs and Scrapers.

Agents for the Veilite Montagne Co.'s SHEET ZINC and ZINC PAINTS, of Belgium. 013 19

GAINES & RELE, (Successors to HENDERSON & GAINES.
Importers and Dealers, Wholesale and Retail,
EARTHENWARE,
GLASS, CHINA

GLASS, CHINA,
JAPAN WARE,
PLATED WARE,
SILVER WARE,
FINE TABLE CUTLERY

WATER PURIFIERS,
HOUSEKEEPING ARTICLES.
All articles carefully packed for shipment to the country.
No. 100 CANAL STREET, NEW ORLEANS.

THE SOUTHERN CULTIVATOR,
A Monthly Magazine of 40 pages; a Practical and Scientific newspaper, for the Farm, the Garden, and the Family Circle.

PRICE $4.00 PER ANNUM.
Published by
WM. N. WHITE,
Athens, Georgia.]

1990

ORGAN OF THE VOLUME XIII.—NUMBER 35.
WHOLE NUMBER 646.

$1.00 A YEAR IN ADVANCE
OFFICE-118 CAMP STREET

of Fear (2) and then his command

From Good Words.

Unwholesome Words.

Thomas Carlyle's theory that speech is silver but silence golden would have perplexed our English Chrysostom. "Though silence," says Jeremy Taylor, "be hapless as a rose's breath to a distant passenger, yet it is rather the state of death than life," and then taking fire, according to his manner, he exclaims, "By voices and homilies, by questions and answers, by narratives and invectives, by counsel and reproof, by praises and hymns, by prayers and glorifications, we serve God's glory and the necessities of men; and by the tongue, our tables are made to differ from man-gers, our cities from deserts, our churches from herds of beasts and flocks of sheep." Could we bring the fervid and eloquent bishop from his grave again, what a glorious might he and our living philosopher might make of it! and who could tell, for the first three or four hours, which of them was likely to have the best of the controversy? The philosopher, I think, might growl that the present age is "full of tongue and weak of brain," and remind the bishop that he himself had admitted that "the perpetual unavoidable necessity of sinning by much talking hath given great advantages to silence; and made it to be esteemed an act of discipline and great religion." But the bishop, though he would confess that he remembered that many saints had dreaded the perils of speech—that "St. Romualdus upon the Syrian mountain severely kept a seven years' silence," and that "Thomas Cantepatriensis tells of a religious person in a monastery at Brabant, that spoke not one word in sixteen years," and that "Ammonia lived with three thousand brethren in so great silence as if he were an anchorite," and that "Theonā was silent for thirty years together; and Johannes, surnamed Silentiarius, was silent for forty-seven years"—would go on to maintain that this morosity and silliness "must certainly draw with it, or be itself, an infinite omission of duty;" and I am inclined to think that before morning came he would make the philosopher admit that silence is not always the proof of wisdom, nor eloquent speech of folly; and with a gracious argument ad hominem—for the apostle of silence himself is one of the best of talkers—he would say farewell.

But though it is possible for men to sin by talking too little as well as by talking too much—as when silence is the result of sheer indolence, or of coldness and incapacity to sympathize with the common thoughts and cares, and pleasures of others—it is less necessary to insist on the duty of speaking, than to insist on the duty of speaking wisely and well.

St. Paul, in warning the Christians at Ephesus against certain sins of the tongue, uses a word which, if we may take it in the sense it very commonly bears, affords a most expressive description of many forms of mischievous talk. He charges them not to let any "corrupt communication" proceed out of their mouth. Perhaps the image which the word calls up was not distinctly present to his mind; but it might have been, for it is a very just one. The word is used to describe vegetables, meat, and fish which are beginning to go bad; and there are some people whose conversation is quite as unwholesome as food which is not quite fresh. Unsound itself, it injures the moral health and vigor of those who listen to it.

There are some words which are positively poisonous. St. Paul was not thinking of these. Falshood he had already forbidden. Violent speech comes under the general precept, "Be ye angry, and sin not." "Filthiness and foolish talking" he condemns in the next chapter. Words may be neither false, nor fierce, nor foul, and yet may be "corrupt" and unwholesome.

Among the kinds of speech which answer the Apostle's description, flattery is one of the worst. Perhaps this is not very common among Englishmen of the lower and English classes, of the rest I know nothing. Our language seems hardly ductile enough to assume the graceful forms which flattery requires. Its idiom has been fixed by the common people not by courtiers. Those pleasant phrases which glide so naturally from a Frenchman's tongue, and in which kindly falsehood "loses half its evil by losing all its grossness," refuse to grow on English soil. Our speech has too much blood and heat in it for us ever to be able to rival our neighbors. And yet we, too, can flatter, though with less refinement and delicacy.

The most fatal kind of flattery is that in which there is truth enough to sweeten the bitter taste of positive falsehood. Praise the scholarship of a dunce who has been thrice "plucked," the munificence of a miser, the eloquence of an orator, to whom no mortal will listen except at his own dinner-table, the courage of a coward who turns pale at a thunder-storm and has never crossed the Channel through the fear of being drowned, and you will do no great harm. It is when you dwell upon and heighten the advantages upon which a man plumes himself that you nurse his vanity. It is when you expatiate on his real excellencies and powers that you inflict upon him the worst injury. The perfect charm of generosity is when it thinks of nothing except the misery it relieves, the ignorance it instructs the vice it reclaims; if you insist upon making benevolence conscious of itself, by fawningly contrasting the niggardliness of a man's friends and neighbors with his own free-handed bountyfulness, you help to impair its simplicity and degrade its nobleness. Talk to a man of real genius as though he were already crowned with amaranth and enthroned among the stars, and you cherish a conceit which may imperil his future triumphs. Talk habitually about the defalcations and the scarcely disguised dishonesties of rival men who is proud of his integrity, and you encourage a self-satisfaction which may issue in his moral ruin.

I am very far from thinking that we should look upon noble deeds and great powers with cold indifference. To admire what is admirable is as much a duty as to despise what is worthless. There are children and men who need praise as much as flowers need sunshine. They have no faith in themselves, and only learn what they can do at second-hand; the confidence and approbation of others give them courage and hope. With some men the fear of failure makes failure certain, and their strength is gone when men do not recognize it. Lord Lytton, in his charming essay on the Efficacy of Praise, tells a story of Mr. Kean, who, when performing in some city of the United States, came to the manager when the play was half over and said, "I can't go on the stage again, sir, if the pit keeps its hands in its pockets. Such an audience would extinguish Edna." Upon this the manager told the audience that Mr. Kean, not being accustomed to the severe intelligence of American citizens, mistook their silent attention for courteous disappointment, and that if they did not applaud Mr. Kean as he was accustomed to be applauded, they could not see Mr. Kean act as he was accustomed to act. Of course the audience took the hint; and as their fervor rose, so rose the genius of the actor, and their applause contributed to the triumphs of the evening.

We live more than half our life in the sympathy of others, and their good opinion is a wholesome stimulant to well-doing. It sustains our own best purposes. It may help to keep our ideal of life from sinking. With many a lad, hearty praise of a well known copy of verses would be far more certain to keep him from careless blunders in his next exercise than the fear of a sound flogging; and many a man who would resent censure for stinginess will give freely if his liberality is cordially appreciated.

Nearly everything depends upon the intention of the speaker. Honest approbation seldom inflates vanity. It is when we praise a man in order to win his good opinion for ourselves, that we are likely to give him too good an opinion of himself. The selfishness of the motive will somehow corrupt even the most truthful words, and make them as rotten and unwholesome as the falsehoods of an unscrupulous sycophant.

Habitual disparagement of the character, the powers, the acquirements, or the doings of men in general is not less pernicious than flattery of those whom we desire to please. Cynicism is the temper of our times. We are becoming incapable of enthusiasm. We are always implying that not only "the age of chivalry," but the age of greatness and goodness of every kind, is gone. We are not sure that it ever existed. We are nothing if not critical. We carry the wretched spirit of depreciation into private life. It taints our estimate of public men.

There are people who have a preternatural faculty for detecting evil, or the appearance of evil, in every man's character. They have a fatal scent for carrion. Their memory is like a museum I once saw at a medical college, and illustrates all the hideous distortions, and monstrous growths, and revolting diseases by which humanity can be troubled and afflicted. They think they have a wonderful knowledge of human nature; I prefer to study it in the beautiful and majestic forms of heroes and gods. It is a blunder to mistake the Newgate Calendar for a biographical dictionary.

A less offensive type of the same tendency leads some people to find apparent satisfaction in the discovery and proclamation of slighter defects in the habits of good men and the conduct of public institutions. They cannot talk about the benefits conferred by a great hospital without lamenting some insignificant blot in its laws, and some trifling want of prudence in its management. Speak to them about a man whose good works everybody is admiring, and they cool your ardor by regretting that he is so rough in his manner, or so smooth, that his temper is so hasty, or that he is so fond of applause. They seem to hold a brief requiring them to prove the impossibility of human perfection. They detect the slightest alloy in the pure gold of human goodness. That there are spots in the sun is with them something more than an observed fact, it takes rank with a priori and necessary truths.

If native kindness or Christian charity has taught men to think generously of the character of others, it is still possible for this miserable cynicism to find its prey in infirmities or imperfections which involve no guilt. This is a comparatively innocent amusement, but it betrays a certain intellectual vulgarity, and is morally mischievous, as all real vulgarity must be. There you find out at once which are the poorest stops. If they listen to a great speaker, they remember nothing but some slip in the construction of a sentence, the consistency of a metaphor, or the evolution of an argument. While their friends are admiring the wealth and beauty of a tree, whose branches are weighed down with fruit, they have discovered a solitary bough, lost in the golden affluence, on which nothing is hanging. In the gun trade there are men whose occupation it is to sight the barrels and detect any fault in the bore; it is said that a good eye will discover a deflection measuring very much less than a thousandth part of an inch. Not less keen in the detection of small flaws in every work of genius—poem, oration, building, statue, or painting—are certain critics, some of whom air their powers in drawing-rooms and at dinner tables, and some of whom find their way, now and then, into print. Poor Hazlitt was sorely troubled with them in his time. "Littleless," he said, "is their element, and they give a character of meanness to whatever they touch. They creep, buzz, and fly-blow. It is much easier to crush than to catch these troublesome insects; and when they are in your power, your self-respect spares them."

Suppose that this habitual depreciation of character never sinks into actual falshood and slander, and that every fault alleged, or hinted, or suspected, can be proved; suppose that this ignoble criticism is not ignorant blundering, and that every imagined imperfection is real;—is this carping, cynical temper much less censurable, or are the words it prompts much less injurious? The influence of talk of this kind is gradually to lead people to believe that there is nothing in this world which it is safe to trust, honorable to love, or discriminating to admire. Reverence for saintly goodness vanishes; gratitude for kindness is chilled; and that enthusiastic admiration of great genius, which communicates to common men something of the strength, and inspires them with something of the dignity, belonging to genius itself, is ignominiously quenched.

It is a Christian grace to have pleasant and affectionate thoughts about men, to rejoice in their excellences, and charitably to forget, as far as may be, their shortcomings. It is the attribute of a pure and beautiful nature to have an eye quick to discern, and a heart warm to honor, all that is fair, and bright, and generous in human nature. The words which discourage the charity that "thinketh no evil," and give keenness, if not malignity, to the discovery of imperfection, are "corrupt" and unwholesome; they are not to be spoken by ourselves, and are not to be listened to when by others.

ANOTHER STEP DOWNWARD.—The Howe Street Congregational Church, New Haven, of which Rev. J. S. C. Abbott was recently pastor, held a fair not long since, among the attractions of which was fortune-telling, as announced by the Register of that city: "In connection with the many other attractions is the quaint old gipsy, Meg, with her attendant and fairies. She has been procured for this special and interesting occasion, and her very singular and grotesque mode of dress and living will be an object of interest to all who call to see and consult with her regarding the past, present, and future."

Honesty is prized and temptation resisted in the Hebrides. A remarkable case of honesty is recorded in a recent report on education in those islands, the statement being that a cask of whisky, driven ashore from a wreck, was carefully returned unmolested to the distillery of which it bore the brand.

Losses by fire in Chicago for the past three months were $167,769; insurance $709,037.

From Every Saturday, translated from the German.

Chorister School-Boys in Germany.

Some of our readers will doubtless remember the songs which they as children often used to hear in summer and winter evenings resounding from the courtyards of the houses or along the streets of Berlin. The airs were sacred chorale tunes, which were rendered, however, in an atrociously mutilated manner. Sometimes one could distinguish a voice which sang correctly and melodiously, and strove, though in vain, to keep in tune the other discordant singers. Amid the boyish voices of the little choir thundered the sonorous bass of the leader of the band, whom the boys used to call the "Chor-father." When you approached the group of musicians, you found that it consisted of eight or ten, often indeed of fewer boys. They wore gray or black cloaks of uniform shape, with a short collar, and on their heads great heavy turned-up hats, such as now-a-days are worn by the drivers of hearses. These lads, thus attired, wore the ramillar chorister-boys, "current scholars," as "Cur-rendjungs," as they are called in Berlin. The original intention of this youthful choir was to give to needy and industrious lads education and practice in vocal music and at the same time by their singing before the houses of the citizens to procure for them the means of carrying on their studies in the schools. This is the aim of these choristers or "Currende," not only in Berlin, but in every large city which has, or ever had, such an institution. The little fellows have often enough aroused our sympathies. When in winter the icy December storm roared through the streets, and the chill wind whirled in eddying gusts about the wide deserted squares, bearing with it flakes of snow, and drops of still colder rain, and the passengers, shivering and blue, hastened rapidly by, there was something sad in the sight of the little troop of poor children, making their way through the bustle and noise of the streets, and singing their hymns with trembling voices, changed by the cold into a plaintive tremble, in front of houses from the windows of which the bright lights of the warm comfortable rooms threw their rays upon the wet, dirty, cold streets without. The little lads with their grotesque hats and plaited cloaks could not but excite a smile of sympathy. Poor children!—who, in order to gain what is often enough lightly trifled away by the lazy children of rich parents,—a school education, have to wander freezing through the streets for hour after hour here and there carolling drearily a song, which they repeat quite mechanically and without a thought of its meaning, for they have already sung or drawled it, who knows how often. Frequently there is not even the semblance of a tune, for although the chor-father, who stands in the middle of his band, beats time with his hands, he hurries it along beyond all possibility for the singers to keep pace with him, for he too is shaking with the cold, and longing to go home, while he remembers that they have still to visit six or seven houses, in which dwell reputed patrons of the choristers, and where they can rely upon receiving a few groschen. When they have sung one of their chorale songs, or the well-known school song, "Glad praises to the Lord, ye youthful choirs, sing," (which, by the way, often sounds strangely enough amid wind and weather,) then one of the poor children draws forth from under his mantle a dark lantern, leaves his companions, and mounts the narrow steps of the house before which they have been singing, and which is very apt to be quite dark. Formerly, such an undertaking used to be by no means without its perils, for then there was no bright gas-jet to light his footsteps. Having gained the door, the lad rings or knocks. "Who is there?" asks a voice. "The choristers beg for a little gift." Often enough a snarly "No," is the answer given by some "rentier" disturbed in the perusal of his evening paper, or by the lodging-house keeper, who is looking for a visit of quite a different sort. Often the voice of a shrewish, stingy old woman croaks forth some abuse of the petitioner, and even when a more generous hand opens to meet the humble petition, it opens only—in most cases—to bestow upon the needy scholar a few groschen. There were, indeed, people who used to set aside a certain sum yearly for the Currende, and the latter sometimes received, also, legacies from deceased benefactors. On the whole, however, the institutions for these scholars only just succeeded in keeping themselves alive, and the poor boys could by no means boast of their income. Many a fine singer, nevertheless, has begun his career in one of these bands of street musicians, for the voices were in earlier years especially chosen on account of their strength. But many a one, too, has lost by exposure to wind and weather, drafts and colds, an organ, which perhaps with proper care, might have assured him a brilliant career. There have been, also, people of distinction enough, who once were numbered among these singing scholars. Fortune smiled upon many a one, whose voice gained him friends, and who was received into a household and advanced by patrons who assisted the poor singer in gaining a still more advantageous position.

We need only point to the great reformer, Luther, who owed his advancement to the institution of the Current scholars. By his wonderful voice he excited the attention and interest of the pious Fran Cotta of Eisenach, who prepared for him a happier lot in life. The name given to these children shows the age of the custom, Currende, to run, to rove about. Originally the mendicant monks pursued this same course; they used to sing in front of the doors of houses. Subsequently they acquired the name of "Bacchantes," people having in their minds the participants in the festive of Bacchus, particularly the nocturnal rites, for already in the twelfth and thirteenth centuries the monks had given way to the students, who were called Beal, or "Yellow-bills," (Gelbschnabel), and who likewise sang before the doors of the citizens. From these came, in the fourteenth, fifteenth, and sixteenth centuries, the travelling scholars. These sought to gain by song, and other productions and performances of theirs, the money needed for their education, and in this pursuit travelled from school to school. They were greatly aided by the customs of those times, but more especially by the piety of the people; and there were even to be found public institutions for their support and instruction, so that, in the sixteenth century, it was a matter of repute for a school to have many of such Bacchants among its members. These had still younger lads under them, which they called "Schutzen," but who were treated by them in the most tyrannical manner, and were often misled into stealing or begging. Frequently the Bacchants remained until late years at the schools, where they were provided with places as sub-teachers, and passed sometimes their whole life. Bachard Zingy and the famous Thomas Plater were Bacchants, and have, themselves, written of their adventures in this calling. With the better organization of the schools arose the necessity of providing for, and exercising some control over the itinerant singers. This was the origin of the Currende. The scholars were placed under the supervision of the Rector and the parish; their funds were regulated and their education superintended. The free scholars at the academies, however, seem not to have always answered the expectations which their benefactors were justified in entertaining. The Current scholars, especially, from the very first, must have distinguished themselves by frequent transgressions of the school-rules. In the "Berlin Cloister and School History of Martin Dietrich," we find that, "since it was seen that the Current-boys of these schools had become very unruly, and played all manner of mischievous pranks when they went about singing, an especial overseer was appointed over them; by the name of George Schutze, who went about with them and prevented all unseemly behavior. To which end, also, in the year 1704, from charitable contributions, on the precept of the Provost Blankenberg, a dwelling was built for this officer by the rear wall of the Cloister churchyard, and from this time forward, twenty-four boys of the Currende were provided, besides their daily food, with cloaks and other clothing, and also with some money, especially when they left the institution, and wished to learn some trade."

Among the school regulations declared by Elector John George in 1579, is the following:—

"The Choristers shall, in the streets, as well as in the houses on the occasion of weddings, in collecting contributions behave themselves discreetly, and in a Christian manner; stand in the churches before the pulpit, at Vespers, read a chapter from the Bible, but especially shall sing no drinking or lewd songs to please tipplers and dissolute persons."

In more recent times, the choristers very often did not have the reputation of being very commendable or order-loving pupils of the academies. The roving about in the streets probably contributed a good deal toward making the young people a little intractable. At least the writer of these lines remembers, that the chorister-pupils of the institution at which he attended, had the reputation of being high boys. That was the reverse of the medal. The choristers enjoyed, however, a great popularity in Berlin, to which the often truly conical exterior which has made them a fertile subject for the pencil of a Hosemann and the pen of humorous writers probably contributed. The choristers, among other things, to the New Year's morning, and individuals among the local choir-fathers, have become known in the city. The institution, however, outlived its original purpose, and became at last an asylum for the choir-leaders, who received little other assistance.

gymnasia, replaced the choir by choirs for the liturgical in the churches of the parishes, which the gymnasia belonged. Since 1851 an attempt was made to revive the institution, the Currende, and by its means keep up among the people, for the good old church. These newly established choirs, a yearly contribution of scholars, sing every month of the citizens, some of the chorales. Especially has been taken that the children present a neat and pleasing appearance. They are civil and have, and their performance is very favorably with the earlier choristers, and sound of their clear childlike voice, every one is ready to open for a donation to the little who enters the door of the with modest confidence, to and receive with thanks the return for the performance of self and comrades.

The Advance of Protestantism many.

Step by step the people are achieving liberation from the galling yoke of Rome. Step by step they are moving toward the march of Freedom and the era of more liberal ideas. The late shock of the Papacy in appropriating the uses of the State property of the has been followed by a blow dealt at the spiritual of the Pope in Austria. The Reichsrath adopted a motion 27th, to abolish the Concordat. One hundred and thirty the motion, and only two against it. This action and civil magistrates to celebrate testimony, emancipates the from the control of the grants to all freedom of It was by the Concordat Pope held Austria in the long chains of slavery. In Southern Germany retained its freedom from tyranny.

The result of the late war in capturing the Gospel in North many is thus stated by a missionary there: "The achieved by Prussia; and has, under God, secured a larger amount of civil and liberty. The infatuated ments and persecuting clergy in Saxony and Mecklenburg will no longer be able to exclude us from their territory. Hanover, where the sentence banishment was in full force, an integral part of Prussia, we can go there and labor without let or hindrance. Deliberations and decisions. Parliament of the North States, shortly to be convened the basis of the glorious Revolution of 1848, we may look for laws as shall secure to the States of the North German almost perfect religious liberty. My heart bounds with joy unifies the name of the Prince vah for the wonderful events have recently transpired, ever widening fields, while harvest, which invite us to in the sheaves of the garner heavenly Husbandman. We glorious prospect now before could faint wish to be once the prime of life—to labor with our youthful brethren the mission field thrown open now so widely, which, under "we took from the Amorite sword and bow" during a severe struggle. The general of the mission was never so encouraging as at present, would bespeak for it all the aid which your esteem can render."—United Presbyterian.

THE TEST ADMINISTERED.—A pondent of one of our religious changes says: "I once had conversation between a member and an infidel. Afterments were urged at some on both sides, the infidel dropped the subject of conversion, said he, 'I do not believe in you say, and more this, I am satisfied that you really believe it yourself; for certain knowledge you have given, for the last twenty years, much for the spread of Christianity—such as the building of churches, foreign and domestic missions, your last Durham cow cost, sir, if I believed the one what you say you believe, I make the Church my rule for and my farm the exception!'"

ONE DUST.

under Satan's force control,
the final rest bestow?
I know not, but I know a soul that might have fallen as darkly low.

these men, what depths of ill under their feet have found or trod;
a spirit and a will
to work, but for the grace of God.

men with full day laborers stand,
the hardly canst have pruned one vine?
now not, but I know a hand
that might have fallen as darkly low.

men, who hast with scoffers part,
the crown that Christian wears?
now not, but I know a heart that might have fallen as darkly low.

O Thou Crucified!
even while I name thy name, a longing that might have led the Peter, and am bowed with shame.

of good fights—just, unjust,
the weak who faint, the frail who fall—
the blood, of the self-same dust,
God of Love, hast made them all.

THE GREAT LAW.
BY BISHOP MARVIN.

has said that Philosophy greater than Religion, because comprehends Religion and exceeds it. There may be a touch of vanity in this—is. The ultimate Philosophy comprehends and ac-knows for all things can be reaching none but God. He only comprehends himself. He only comprehends his own work, significance and power.

Philosophy, as it is attainable by its lower function of perceiving and classifying phenomena, is not greater than Religion. But Religion, as a revelation of spiritual truth, contains pure and perfect Philosophy.

It does not, to be sure, go groping
staggering about amongst phenomena, developing a
series of relations in a half-bewil-
dered sort of way, but with an
acute comprehension of all relations it brings out the great fact
which is the end of thinking, in
just method, with regard to spiritual relations. It does not approach truth from one side and the other, but it approaches truth
from both sides, and it approaches
truth from all sides.

It does not, to be sure, go groping
staggering about amongst phenomena, developing a
series of relations in a half-bewil-
dered sort of way, but with an
acute comprehension of all relations it brings out the great fact
which is the end of thinking, in
just method, with regard to
spiritual relations. It does not approach truth from one side and
the other, but it approaches truth
from both sides, and it approaches
truth from all sides.

It does not, to be sure, go groping
staggering about amongst phenomena, developing a
series of relations in a half-bewil-
dered sort of way, but with an
acute comprehension of all relations it brings out the great fact
which is the end of thinking, in
just method, with regard to
spiritual relations. It does not approach truth from one side and
the other, but it approaches truth
from both sides, and it approaches
truth from all sides.

It does not, to be sure, go groping
staggering about amongst phenomena, developing a
series of relations in a half-bewil-
dered sort of way, but with an
acute comprehension of all relations it brings out the great fact
which is the end of thinking, in
just method, with regard to
spiritual relations. It does not approach truth from one side and
the other, but it approaches truth
from both sides, and it approaches
truth from all sides.

It does not, to be sure, go groping
staggering about amongst phenomena, developing a
series of relations in a half-bewil-
dered sort of way, but with an
acute comprehension of all relations it brings out the great fact
which is the end of thinking, in
just method, with regard to
spiritual relations. It does not approach truth from one side and
the other, but it approaches truth
from both sides, and it approaches
truth from all sides.

It does not, to be sure, go groping
staggering about amongst phenomena, developing a
series of relations in a half-bewil-
dered sort of way, but with an
acute comprehension of all relations it brings out the great fact
which is the end of thinking, in
just method, with regard to
spiritual relations. It does not approach truth from one side and
the other, but it approaches truth
from both sides, and it approaches
truth from all sides.

It does not, to be sure, go groping
staggering about amongst phenomena, developing a
series of relations in a half-bewil-
dered sort of way, but with an
acute comprehension of all relations it brings out the great fact
which is the end of thinking, in
just method, with regard to
spiritual relations. It does not approach truth from one side and
the other, but it approaches truth
from both sides, and it approaches
truth from all sides.

It does not, to be sure, go groping
staggering about amongst phenomena, developing a
series of relations in a half-bewil-
dered sort of way, but with an
acute comprehension of all relations it brings out the great fact
which is the end of thinking, in
just method, with regard to
spiritual relations. It does not approach truth from one side and
the other, but it approaches truth
from both sides, and it approaches
truth from all sides.

It does not, to be sure, go groping
staggering about amongst phenomena, developing a
series of relations in a half-bewil-
dered sort of way, but with an
acute comprehension of all relations it brings out the great fact
which is the end of thinking, in
just method, with regard to
spiritual relations. It does not approach truth from one side and
the other, but it approaches truth
from both sides, and it approaches
truth from all sides.

It does not, to be sure, go groping
staggering about amongst phenomena, developing a
series of relations in a half-bewil-
dered sort of way, but with an
acute comprehension of all relations it brings out the great fact
which is the end of thinking, in
just method, with regard to
spiritual relations. It does not approach truth from one side and
the other, but it approaches truth
from both sides, and it approaches
truth from all sides.

It does not, to be sure, go groping
staggering about amongst phenomena, developing a
series of relations in a half-bewil-
dered sort of way, but with an
acute comprehension of all relations it brings out the great fact
which is the end of thinking, in
just method, with regard to
spiritual relations. It does not approach truth from one side and
the other, but it approaches truth
from both sides, and it approaches
truth from all sides.

It does not, to be sure, go groping
staggering about amongst phenomena, developing a
series of relations in a half-bewil-
dered sort of way, but with an
acute comprehension of all relations it brings out the great fact
which is the end of thinking, in
just method, with regard to
spiritual relations. It does not approach truth from one side and
the other, but it approaches truth
from both sides, and it approaches
truth from all sides.

It does not, to be sure, go groping
staggering about amongst phenomena, developing a
series of relations in a half-bewil-
dered sort of way, but with an
acute comprehension of all relations it brings out the great fact
which is the end of thinking, in
just method, with regard to
spiritual relations. It does not approach truth from one side and
the other, but it approaches truth
from both sides, and it approaches
truth from all sides.

It does not, to be sure, go groping
staggering about amongst phenomena, developing a
series of relations in a half-bewil-
dered sort of way, but with an
acute comprehension of all relations it brings out the great fact
which is the end of thinking, in
just method, with regard to
spiritual relations. It does not approach truth from one side and
the other, but it approaches truth
from both sides, and it approaches
truth from all sides.

It does not, to be sure, go groping
staggering about amongst phenomena, developing a
series of relations in a half-bewil-
dered sort of way, but with an
acute comprehension of all relations it brings out the great fact
which is the end of thinking, in
just method, with regard to
spiritual relations. It does not approach truth from one side and
the other, but it approaches truth
from both sides, and it approaches
truth from all sides.

It does not, to be sure, go groping
staggering about amongst phenomena, developing a
series of relations in a half-bewil-
dered sort of way, but with an
acute comprehension of all relations it brings out the great fact
which is the end of thinking, in
just method, with regard to
spiritual relations. It does not approach truth from one side and
the other, but it approaches truth
from both sides, and it approaches
truth from all sides.

It does not, to be sure, go groping
staggering about amongst phenomena, developing a
series of relations in a half-bewil-
dered sort of way, but with an
acute comprehension of all relations it brings out the great fact
which is the end of thinking, in
just method, with regard to
spiritual relations. It does not approach truth from one side and
the other, but it approaches truth
from both sides, and it approaches
truth from all sides.

It does not, to be sure, go groping
staggering about amongst phenomena, developing a
series of relations in a half-bewil-
dered sort of way, but with an
acute comprehension of all relations it brings out the great fact
which is the end of thinking, in
just method, with regard to
spiritual relations. It does not approach truth from one side and
the other, but it approaches truth
from both sides, and it approaches
truth from all sides.

It does not, to be sure, go groping
staggering about amongst phenomena, developing a
series of relations in a half-bewil-
dered sort of way, but with an
acute comprehension of all relations it brings out the great fact
which is the end of thinking, in
just method, with regard to
spiritual relations. It does not approach truth from one side and
the other, but it approaches truth
from both sides, and it approaches
truth from all sides.

It does not, to be sure, go groping
staggering about amongst phenomena, developing a
series of relations in a half-bewil-
dered sort of way, but with an
acute comprehension of all relations it brings out the great fact
which is the end of thinking, in
just method, with regard to
spiritual relations. It does not approach truth from one side and
the other, but it approaches truth
from both sides, and it approaches
truth from all sides.

It does not, to be sure, go groping
staggering about amongst phenomena, developing a
series of relations in a half-bewil-
dered sort of way, but with an
acute comprehension of all relations it brings out the great fact
which is the end of thinking, in
just method, with regard to
spiritual relations. It does not approach truth from one side and
the other, but it approaches truth
from both sides, and it approaches
truth from all sides.

It does not, to be sure, go groping
staggering about amongst phenomena, developing a
series of relations in a half-bewil-
dered sort of way, but with an
acute comprehension of all relations it brings out the great fact
which is the end of thinking, in
just method, with regard to
spiritual relations. It does not approach truth from one side and
the other, but it approaches truth
from both sides, and it approaches
truth from all sides.

substant in absolute harmony. This law of the Christian Revelation, then, simply formulates the ultimate truth with regard to spiritual relations. It is not an arbitrary law, promulgated by mere authority, but an essential law of intelligent life. It is in the original constitution of things.

The only objection I have ever heard against the system of morality given in the Christian Scriptures is, that it is impracticable.
And let it be remembered that it is not alleged that the system is either impure or imperfect—it is simply impracticable. And it is impracticable (mark that) just because it is perfect. It is too high for man. The real objection lies against human nature; for if the law is perfect, and yet not adapted to man, it is because he is imperfect—or, in other words, depraved.

But is this really so? Does this mal-adjustment subsist between man and the perfect law? We cannot deny it. Yet sufficient traces of the original nobility of his nature remain to indicate the fact that this is really his law—that he was made to be governed by it.
But the history of the Fall is, alas! too true. The Destroyer is a mongst the works of God. Yet, also, there is hope, for the Restorer is at hand.

A man that is "born again,"
"enters into the kingdom of God."
Under redeeming agencies, man may be raised again to that high plane of consciousness on which it is possible for him to come under the dominion of the perfect law. The truly regenerate do
"love God with the whole heart, and their neighbor as themselves."

And when the soul does attain unto it, it makes the discovery that while this is the perfect law of adjustment in spiritual relations, it is also the perfect law of life in the individual. When it becomes subjective in personal life, it not only sets the man in good relations with all intelligent being, but produces in him the most perfect spiritual development, and prepares him for the highest activity and the noblest enjoyment. How it enlarges and enfranchises a man!

It purges him of all littleness and of every corrupt propensity. It destroys all hypocrisies and pretensions, by giving life such noble aims as to remove the temptation to concealment. To all base passions it is as the touch of fire to ice.

By mere virtue of its presence, the trait vanishes from consciousness upon its approach. It is the purifying flame that melts all evil out of character and renders it perfect.

To a man under the dominion of selfish interest the Christian law seems Utopian and intolerable.— Self-abnegation has no charms for him. The demand of Christ to deny self—is revolting. Religion is to him a most gloomy thing.—
How there can be any good in self-renunciation and self-mortification he cannot see. He cannot believe it possible to sink self and substitute motives of perfect love. He does not believe there is any such thing as disinterested love. And if he could actually deny himself, to him it appears that all happiness would be destroyed in the very act. He does not, and, in his present condition, cannot, comprehend the Divine Law of Love.—
He does not see that the highest ends of a true self-love are realized only when selfishness is destroyed.

But it is even so. Paradoxes are sometimes the most glorious truths. It is so here. When a man sinks self in perfect love, just where the self goes down, the soul emerges upon a higher plane of of consciousness, enjoyment and activity. Just there it establishes a vital connection with all the life and joy there are in the universe.

Now he begins to understand the mysteries of spiritual life. Now he comprehends the most glorious fact of the whole universe. "God is love," and responds to it with a profounder joy than he ever imagined. Now he has a vital interest in all the life and happiness of the entire universe.

The enjoyments of the selfish man are confined within very narrow limits. They are bounded by his own successes. The extent of his own achievements and acquisitions is the extent of his happiness. If he identifies himself with any party, he enjoys its success.—
The amount of money he makes, or the measure of reputation he secures, is the chief source of pleasure to him. Within the boundaries of his possessions lies the little domain of his enjoyments.

Poor man! he is confined within very narrow prison bounds. Now, just in proportion as he becomes unselfish the sphere of his enjoyments widen. Whatever he loves will extend the domain of his pleasure. Just in proportion as he loves his enjoyments will increase, and become more elevated and generous. And just at the point where love becomes absolutely unselfish, all envy, and jealousy, and animosity become impossible. Just at that point a perfect interest and pleasure arise in the prosperity and happiness of the person who is the object of love. You enter into all his happiness. You become a partaker of his prosperity.

Now let this perfect love subsist in you toward all men, and angels, and above all, toward God. You lay the universe under contribution to yourself. You levy a tax on all things, and become enriched from the incalculable resources of Jehovah's Empire. All the happiness you meet with you appropriate at once. The unbounded fullness and glory of the Godhead even is subsidized by the imperial soul that has ascended to the sphere of perfect love. From such not even God withholds himself. They are in vital connection with all the joy that comes to their knowledge. They are free of the universe, and are invited beforehand to the hospitalities of all worlds. They have the magic key which lays all treasures open before them.

Nothing is more clearly true than this. Wherever there is perfect love there is perfect participation of happiness. A mother enjoys the prosperity of her children more richly than they do themselves. A sister exults not less than himself in the honors of a brother. It is in virtue of love that we possess ourselves of the happiness of others. How incalculable, then, are the resources of the man who loves God supremely, and all other intelligent beings as himself!

Besides this, the state of the soul, in loving, is one of peace.
The converse of all this is also true.
Malignity is misery, and draws misery from all sources.—
Envy and jealousy are the methods by which a soul torments itself on account of the well-being of others. Mere selfishness shuts the soul up within contemptible bounds in the most favorable condition; and when it ripens into malignity, it turns every thing into gall.

All spiritual activities proceed from the common or true great law of Love. They not only proceed in harmony, but also to the most beautiful results. Every one contemplates the interest of others, and not of himself alone. The result is order and peace.

I have no doubt that it is this law realized in favoring conditions that will constitute heaven.
The hope of heaven indulged by many persons is extremely low. It fails to perceive the essence of the heavenly life—in fact, it mistakes the accidents for the essence.— Heaven culminates, with such, in the gorgeousness of the city of God. The true nature of the blessedness of that final state of the good is described in passages of the word of God that are often overlooked. "It doth not yet appear what we shall be." We are anxious as to where we shall be—the real question is as to what we shall be. When the interior life has in it the divine quality of love, it radiates from itself a celestial light on all that surrounds it. The subjective gives its character to the objective, in great measure.—
The world looks gloomy or bright to a man very much as his own temper may be.

To be pure, to be perfect in love, and to live in a society where there is nothing but purity and love, is, I take it, the essence of heaven. God will see to it that the accidental, external glory shall correspond with this. And so we read of the city in which the foundations, the very meaneast stones, are chrysoprasus, and beryl, and topaz.

There is a remarkable passage in the Apocalypse respecting the fortunes of a redeemed soul: "He that overcometh shall inherit all things; and I will be his God, and he shall be my son." St. Paul expresses the same fact in other terms: "Heirs of God and joint-heirs with Christ."

By what tenure shall any man possess all things? The title holds under the Great Law are have been considering. "Perfect love is perfect possession. And under this law titles do not interfere with each other. You will possess all things—so will I—and my title is all the more perfect on account of yours. For while your title invests you with this vast property equally with me, your enjoyment of it will enhance its value to me. Such is this divine system of ownership. The full proprietaryship of each enhances the value of the estate for all the rest. It is, therefore, all the more mine because it is yours.

Even on the earth we may find a type of this.
An opulent estate is the source of but little pleasure to a single owner. But let wife and children come in, and every new participant doubles the man's enjoyment of his wealth. Money is a contemptible thing until it is brought into the service of love. Where such is the case, its value cannot be computed.

Here, then, is the divine philosophy. The Christian religion alone has discovered it. And yet, once discovered, nothing is more evident. It is as simple as the principle of the lever, as clearly true as any proposition of Euclid.
The wonder is that the world did not see it from the beginning. It would have done so, verily, but men's eyes were holden by sin.—
Selfishness blinds us.

"God is love." What brilliant light blazes through the universe from that sun! And what attraction draws the remotest creature!
And when all subordinate life responds to the Supreme attraction—when the loving creature answers the outgoing love of God —government takes the form of the divine ideal, and all life becomes joy.

Since the divine order has been disturbed by sin, and wayward impulses have brought disorganizing tendencies into play, the divine attraction has been rendered more intense. Love has gone to the cross and intensified its power by pain. Thus reinforced, it "draws all men." It retains its ascendency over the aliens. It reduces the chaos of sin to a new and better established order. It overcomes the evil with good, the unity with peace. Only those whose will is too supremely selfish to respond to this divine attraction are at last given over to themselves. They choose the evil and are given up to their choice. The domain of confusion which they create is called hell. It is the culmination of self will. A man is lost when he becomes habitually inaccessible to the divine attraction.
He has no part in the kingdom of peace, nor in the law of love. He

"There is one God; and there is none other but he; and to love him with all the heart, and with all the understanding, and with all the soul, and with all the strength, and to love his neighbor as himself, is better than all whole burnt offerings and sacrifices."

THE TEST OF LOYALTY.—One of the English reviews finds us the following passage of a story of Artemus Ward, a specimen of American humor, and a palpable hit at the times:

"No, William Baker, you cannot have my daughter's hand in marriage until you are her equal in wealth and social position." The speaker was a haughty old man of 60 years, and the person he addressed was a fine looking young fellow of 35. With a sad aspect the young man withdrew from the stately mansión. Six months later he stood again in the presence of the haughty father, who thus addressed him: "What, you here again?"

"Ah, old man," proudly exclaimed William Baker, "I am here, your daughter's equal and yours." The old man's lips curled with scorn. A derisive smile lit up his cold features, when, casting violently upon the marble centre table an enormous roll of greenbacks, William Baker cried, "See, look on this wealth, and I've told you more. Listen, old man; you spurned me from your door, but I did not despair. I secured a contract for supplying the army of — with beef."

"Yes! yes!" eagerly exclaimed the old man. "And I bought up all the disabled cavalry horses I could find." "I see, I see," cried the old man; and very good beef they make, too." "They do, they do; and the profits are immense." "I should say so." "And now, sir, I claim your daughter's fair hand." "Boy, she is yours; but hold—look me in the eye. Throughout all this time have you been loyal?" "To the core," cried Wm. Baker. "And," continued the old man, with a voice husky with emotion, "are you in favor of a vigorous prosecution of war?" "I am, I am." "Then, boy, take her! Maria, child, come hitter. William claims thee. Be happy, my children, and whatever our lot in life may be, let us all support the Government."

The tree of life, said the holy Hy-perborean, grows in heaven; and humanity is the grace that climbs and touches the top of it.

The Carnival of Crime.

The fearful extent to which crime of every shade, is bursting out all over the country, must have arrested the attention of the most careless observer. The special causes of this raging epidemic are probably of a somewhat complex character, but there is, perhaps, no one cause that exerts so wide and powerful an influence in stimulating this mania, as that growing out of our late civil war. Men grown familiar with the sight of blood, have become indifferent to the sight of even innocent blood. The violence that storms over fields of carnage, has perpetuated and diffused itself over the serene fields of social peace and domestic tranquillity. Sons lift their hands against their fathers and imbrue their fingers in brother's blood. Wives hack to pieces husbands, and husbands bury hatch-ets and axes in the brains of wives.
Daughters pour molten lead into the ears of dying mothers, and household domestics pierce with butcher knives their mistresses, inflicting as many mortal stabs as those under which Caesar fell at the base of Pompey's statue. It is absolutely staggering to be perpetually confronted with such a catalogue of blood. It is a perfect mueter-roll of slaughtering and poisonings, and almost literal drawings and quarterings, flared before our eyes.

The fountains of domestic affection appear to be completely drying up.
Fireside peace seems to be taking wings and flying to the uttermost ends of the earth. Sons are alienated from their fathers; wives elope from their husbands. A confusion worse than the wrangling tongues at the Tower of Babel seems to have smitten the community everywhere, and a wide-spread, raging diabolism appears in all directions to dominate the land. What can be the inciting cause of this overflowing harvest of crime? What great national sin have we committed? From what department of God's moral economy does this terrible chastening influence proceed? Have we committed sins in the face of high Heaven, and in the very sight of the Divine countenance? Have we challenged the judgments of the Almighty in our mad lust for wealth, and the glory of a distinguished name? We fear that some of these offences may be truly charged to our account, whatever influence they may have had in developing the present all-pervading insanity for the commission of crime.

Our abounding material prosperity seems to have sapped away, to a fatal extent, the moral and spiritual life. We have followed in the labyrinthine ways of frauds, and deceptions, and treacheries. Truth and honor, and manly faith, and noble integrity, seem to have lost their charm to fascinate. But the more immediate practical cause of this comprehensive criminal epidemic, is, beyond all question, the late war from which the nation has so recently emerged. From that war has grown the mass of elopements that load, and of suicides that darken, the columns of newspapers. From that war has grown the destructive assaults on life and property that are now so rife thro' the land. Men accustomed for years to deal with human life and property by the summary process of war, inevitably perpetrate, in multitudes of instances, the same contempt for the rights of both property and life, long after the war has formally ceased.

The habits of wholesale sacrifice contracted in war, are brought home to the quiet shades of domestic life.
Conjugal alienations grow up during the war. Meanwhile household alienations and jealousies sprout up and fill the same dread interval.— Sons grow into disrespect for their fathers, and wives lose faith and confidence in their husbands. Here then we have just the combination of circumstances, especially auspicious for the production of the crimes to which we have been referring.

The prospect is sad in the extreme to contemplate, and calls for a remedy prompt and radical to arrest the fierce fanaticism. All that is good and pure and true and virtuous in the land, must combine in one compact mass, with locked shields, and confront the raging spirit with the whole unanimous moral power of the community. We know not that this remedy can prove effective, and perhaps the deep, distressing malady must be left to be handled with efficiency only by the healing influence of time. But we are sure that no influence less than that above indicated, can produce any present permanent reform. The whole moral power of the community must be summoned to the rescue. The surviving virtue of the people must combine in one unanimous effort.—
They must set their faces in one solidified front against the whole ravenous mob of crimes and vices, and then perhaps the fierce storm may be partially allayed. But nothing short of such an earnest, determined effort can reach the root of the disease. May God in His infinite clemency, inspire the public heart with this lofty resolution, and thereby save this nation from the consequences of their sins.—N. Y.

Public Gazette.

We give the concluding paragraph of a most excellent editorial of the Baltimore Episcopal Methodist upon this article.

Let the people of the South read the statement above, and be content with their relative condition. If sin, and shame, and despondency of virtue—if corruption in State, and Church, and Society—if a "carnival of crime" be the consequences of victory—better, a thousand times, eat the bitter fruit of defeat. As there a Southern man or woman, who would take the wealth and political supremacy of the North, if with it must be taken its worldly and heartless Churches; its general insensibility to right and wrong; its cool indifference to outrages upon property and decency; its almost total loss of faith in the professions of men? Would a Southern woman exchange her beggared home for a Northern mansion, if the story told by New England Divorce Courts be known to her? Would a Southern man or woman exchange all outward conditions with the North, if character, fame and social condition, must be exchanged too? Would they exchange the history of the last six years—the men of the war—the women of the war—the character of the war? How much gold could buy from the South the memory of Jackson? What amount of diamonds and fast horses, would induce the South to give the name of Robt. E. Lee to the North, and rob themselves of the possession of that great soldier, and greater gentleman? What amount of lace goods would equal the wealth of the memories and future legendary treasures of the noblest and sweetest women who ever shed radiance over the ghastly scenes of civil war? What amount of marble Churches and theological schools, and soi-disant missionaries would compensate for the holy discipline of a people purified and strengthened in the furnace of fire, and so-stripped of all things as to feel the heart laying bare to the touch of God? And, oh! what could pay a people to have forever fixed upon the tablet of their history, as the product of its deepest fermentation, such spirits as represent the patriotism, wisdom, purity, truth, and military greatness of the North?

Would the wealth of Boston pay a man to be obliged to recognize the name of Sumner, and Banks, as the great representative characters of this trying time, and to have their words and exploits transmitted to his children as the best lessons from the Fathers? Is it hard not to have a part in the present Congress? Is it a privation or possession, to be separated from all share and responsibility, in the wealth, and power, and corruption, and fearful degradation of the Northern part of our unhappy country, as these are depicted in its own chronicles? After all, where do we find happiness? Certainly where there is most heart. Where people most love and trust one another. Where poverty is not degradation. Where social position is not bought or sold for money. Where there is no curse of a political partisanship, which has taken the "not" out of the Commandments and "put it into the Creed." Let not the Southern people repine at their share of the awful consequences of the war. Bitter and evil as the lot of the conquered, that of the conqueror is worse.—
Adversity is your trial; prosperity is theirs. You see what this is making them. Were you victorious it might have made you the same.
Do not covet deceitful wealth and power, but "whatsoever things are true, whatsoever things are honest, whatsoever things are just, whatsoever things are pure, whatsoever things are lovely, whatsoever things

Official Organ of the Montgomery, Mobile, Mississippi, and Louisiana Conferences of the M. E. Church South.
Office: 112 Camp Street.
 TERMS OF SUBSCRIPTION:
THREE DOLLARS A YEAR.
 Invariably in Advance.
 Address: REV. J. C. KEENER,
 112 Camp Street, New Orleans.

AGENTS:
 All the Members of the Patronizing Conference.

PUBLISHING COMMITTEES.

FOR MOBILE CONFERENCE:
 Rev. J. Hamilton, D.D.,
 Rev. A. H. Mitchell, D.D.,
 Rev. Thos. W. Berman, D.D.

FOR MONTGOMERY CONFERENCE:
 Rev. M. S. Andrews,
 Rev. William A. Shapard,
 Rev. J. B. Cottrell.

FOR MISSISSIPPI CONFERENCE:
 Rev. W. H. Watkins, D.D.,
 Rev. H. H. Montgomery,
 Rev. William F. Barton.

FOR LOUISIANA CONFERENCE:
 Rev. J. C. Keener, D.D.,
 Rev. J. B. Walker, D.D.,
 Rev. Linus Parker.

New Orleans:
SATURDAY, SEPT. 28, 1867.

To SUBSCRIBERS.—Any person wishing to subscribe for this paper can do so, by paying the Methodist preacher in the circuit, and forwarding to us his receipt for three dollars, with the address of the subscriber upon it, setting Post office, State, Circuit, and Conference. The receipt ought to be taken in duplicate.

THE EPIDEMIO.

All of our cheer must come from without the circle of death which now hems in this city. All parts of it give evidence of the great sorrow which presses upon its atmosphere, and stifles the cheerfulness of every bosom. The busiest parts of the town, and most active hours of the day are quieted and checked by the passing hearse. The grave-yards are lively as at carnival. One company of mourners, jostle, in the way between the tombs, against another company, each following forms cold and decaying, but still precious.

The number of the victims of the yellow fever, it will be seen, increases daily, though slowly. Of these a very unusual proportion is of children between one and four years of age, but few from four until ten; from ten to fifteen, a good many. In some instances, whole families of six or seven persons are down at one time—all helpless. The number of persons attacked is very great, the percent. dying small: probably four thousand persons are now down with it.

If you have the power to do good, now is the time to do it. Send money either to the editor of this paper, or the Howard Association, or to any of the Preachers of our Church, and it will be acknowledged, and faithfully dispensed to the sick and the helpless, and publicly accounted for. We have many connected with the Southern Methodists sick, who need help.

New Orleans Daily Mortuary Report.

Dr. Dirmeyer, Secretary of the Board of Health, furnishes the following daily report of deaths in the city, beginning with Aug. 12th, at 6 A. M.:

| Date | Yellow Fever | Cholera | Other Diseases | Total |
|---------|--------------|---------|----------------|-------|
| Aug. 12 | 2 | 0 | 26 | 28 |
| " 13 | 5 | 0 | 27 | 32 |
| " 14 | 5 | 1 | 31 | 37 |
| " 15 | 2 | 1 | 22 | 25 |
| " 16 | 1 | 1 | 33 | 35 |
| " 17 | 5 | 2 | 20 | 27 |
| " 18 | 6 | 2 | 31 | 39 |
| " 19 | 12 | 0 | 22 | 34 |
| " 20 | 11 | 2 | 19 | 32 |
| " 21 | 10 | 0 | 13 | 23 |
| " 22 | 4 | 0 | 23 | 27 |
| " 23 | 19 | 1 | 17 | 37 |
| " 24 | 14 | 1 | 29 | 44 |
| " 25 | 17 | 1 | 19 | 37 |
| " 26 | 15 | 1 | 22 | 38 |
| " 27 | 14 | 0 | 22 | 36 |
| " 28 | 15 | 0 | 17 | 32 |
| " 29 | 20 | 0 | 27 | 47 |
| " 30 | 20 | 0 | 25 | 45 |
| " 31 | 22 | 1 | 19 | 42 |
| Sept. 1 | 17 | 0 | 18 | 35 |
| " 2 | 30 | 1 | 22 | 53 |
| " 3 | 25 | 0 | 29 | 54 |
| " 4 | 26 | 0 | 16 | 42 |
| " 5 | 44 | 0 | 24 | 68 |
| " 6 | 30 | 0 | 24 | 54 |
| " 7 | 43 | 0 | 23 | 66 |
| " 8 | 49 | 0 | 17 | 66 |
| " 9 | 51 | 1 | 26 | 78 |
| " 10 | 42 | 0 | 18 | 60 |
| " 11 | 57 | 1 | 18 | 76 |
| " 12 | 61 | 1 | 27 | 89 |
| " 13 | 43 | 0 | 21 | 64 |
| " 14 | 41 | 0 | 23 | 64 |
| " 15 | 53 | 0 | 27 | 80 |
| " 16 | 59 | 0 | 30 | 89 |
| " 17 | 68 | 0 | 34 | 102 |
| " 18 | 45 | 0 | 24 | 69 |
| " 19 | 55 | 0 | 37 | 92 |
| " 20 | 66 | 0 | 26 | 92 |
| " 21 | 61 | 0 | 32 | 93 |
| " 22 | 69 | 0 | 44 | 113 |
| " 23 | 77 | 0 | 36 | 113 |
| " 24 | 82 | 1 | 50 | 133 |
| " 25 | 68 | 0 | 33 | 101 |
| " 26 | 57 | 2 | 24 | 83 |

THE WORK OF SPIRIT.

The Southern Christian Advocate is filled with notices of revivals in Georgia, South Carolina, Alabama, and Florida—Greenville Circuit—N. Carolina Conference—85 whites, 149 blacks. Atlanta District, Georgia Conference, 191. Eastern Orange Circuit, South Carolina Conference, 11. Carrollton Circuit, Georgia Conference, 29. Tuskegee, Montgomery Conference, 30. Cleaveland Circuit, N. Georgia, 25. Forsyth, Georgia Conference, 40. Charlotte Circuit, S. C. Conference, 27. Hartwell Circuit, N. Georgia, 73. Greenville Circuit, N. Georgia, 150. Fayetteville, Alabama, 11. Clarks-ville, Georgia, 33. Leon Circuit, South Carolina Conference, 35 converted. Warren Circuit, Georgia Conference, 15.

This is the report of one week. In many places the number of conversions exceeded that of additions. We have good news of the same tenor from our own churches, in Mississippi and Louisiana. These are the glad strong evidences that our church still lives. Amid disasters and wreck enough, she takes hold upon God. The most fortunate condition of life is that one which is most favorable to "fervent effectual prayer." It should be a matter of overflowing gratitude, that our troubles have not worked the loss of this divine art. The immediate exclamation of thousands who survived the War was, "Curse God and die;" they had lived to see every confidence in life swept away, and every fountain of pleasure dried up, their lands waste, their houses burned, their children gone—forever gone—what remained worth living for? Let us hope that the Father of Mercies has forgiven such bitter words, mindful that we are but sin and dust, that our horizon is narrow, and our sight dim. He who wept even while possessing in himself the full hope and power of the resurrection, solely because others wept, knows how to be merciful to our transgressions and forgetful of our sins. Those quick passions have had time to subside, that confused reason, and that wavering faith to compose and reassure themselves. The accusation that God had "forgotten" is now known to be the whisperings of the dark Adversary. And now upon all this fated land, whose bosom has been torn by the plowshare of horrid War, there descends, as upon a prepared field, the vitalizing showers of the Holy Ghost. The clouds of our sky shudder with the Spirit's flash, they part, and the glory of God, the innermost glory, appears enveloping the hosts of our Israel. He that "dwelleth in the praises of Zion," is among us, and gladness, and song, and Christ's peace are all our own. For this time we have waited expectant. To see the compensating glory of God, vindicate his Providence, and answer the full measure of holy prayer that, for these long years of our desolation, has gone up to the ear of our God. We hope that our churches, and our people will quit everything else, and go forth to meet the Lord, now that he no longer "hides himself." Let the preachers yield themselves to the fresh inspiration of this gracious period, and preach a new sermon every day—new bottles for new wine—that the Holy Spirit may have opportunity to speak through them, and the "Word of God have free course and be glorified." Methodism is an Empire upon which the glory of God never goes down. Her altars filled with repenting sinners, yield to the angels in Heaven a constant joy; her shout of new-born souls is heard along the ecliptic, marking the golden orbit of the earth with continuous hosannas. Do not be ashamed of that Methodism, O Preacher; nor of that homely time-honored altar. Do not care to find a "more excellent way." Broadly call sinners to repentance; sweetly with tears, offer pardon through "the Beloved," state clearly the promises, and then stake your life on the result. Proclaim a present salvation—this the accepted hour: tell them that the "just live by faith," that "God is nigh to all that call upon him;" so shall the work of God prosper in your hands. May the arms of the "Mighty God of Jacob," that Jacob who met the Angel, aid you, help you to pray, as a man would wrestle against the superior force of Him, who would thus call forth your whole soul to a blessing: and He will help you to prevail!

Let the people come out of their homes quickly, all of them, with their hearts expecting to be filled, as the children of Israel ran to fill their pitchers when the water first gushed from Horeb, or came forth with their vessels, and with their children to gather the newly-fallen Manna.

OUR COLLEGES, ETC.

The article of our correspondent upon the superior advertisement and noticing, which private Institutions of Learning succeed in commanding, is timely. He stirs up that dignity which relies so confidently upon the public's ultimate and just appreciation of true merit. The contempt of mere clap trap and quack-puffing has kept many an honest man from opening his mouth, even when he ought to speak. The example of silence-in-excess is held to be meritorious in a world so full of bluster and parade as this one is. So far, so good. But beyond this there may be some positive, and not very praiseworthy, inaction: there may be advantage taken of the heathy of true moderation to indulge in a meaning-less silence.

The article has two edges, one for the professors, etc., of our schools, and one for the Editors of our Papers. The "disinterested" notice is referred to as the spicy one. May be so; there's a good deal of stimulus, to ordinary mortals, in the reward of labor. "The workman is (said to be) worthy of his hire;" and for one, we are free to confess that the toil which yields bread is sweeter than that which does not. It is therefore, not impossible that what is written with a relish will seem spicier and fresher to the reader than that which is written just "for conscience sake;" so frail is poor human nature! We say it is possible.

But now, that this sword may have done for some of our schools and colleges, that which we never did for private ones: we have written them once, and sometimes twice, before receiving an answer, offering to advertise a considerable time gratis, and pressing them to send out a full display of their claims for public patronage. We have a mind to name these schools: "but a word to the wise," etc.

It would be a good thing if unpracticed, studious Professors, and Presidents were to pay some go ahead worldly man "of middle earth" to bring their Institutions in true "Brandreth" style before the world. Some good soul that has a real admiration himself for the "Institute," who scarcely ever saw any other "Exhibition," or saw any other "Exhibition," or "President," or "Professors," or ever heard any other music than that which he heard and saw at "our Institute," during its Annual and Semi-Annual public exercises. He will do it con amore, lay himself out on it, tell the truth, and tell it tremendously. O, we like to read, and the people will read, the unvarnished truth. Let us have it. Wake up, brethren, or wake somebody else up.

THE HOME MONTHLY.—There is an edition now issued of this magazine with the imprint of NEW ORLEANS. The agent here resident, and the agent of the Southern Methodist Publishing House, show their accustomed enterprise in this arrangement. We call the attention of all our members who have growing and grown daughters, and reading wives, to the increased convenience this offers for procuring this excellent Magazine. It is full of polite and elegant information, of stirring narrative, of pleasing story, of pure morality, and of intellectual entertainment. Here are blended poetry and fiction, history, and the records of science, in proportions admirable to both the youthful and the mature.

We bespeak for this a large patronage. Price, $3 per annum. Address Rev. R. J. HARR, 112 Camp street, Methodist Publishing House, New Orleans.

NEW BOOKS.

COMMENTARY ON THE GOSPELS: intended for popular use. By D. D. WHEEDON, D.D., New York: Published by Carlton and Porter, 200 Mulberry street, 1867. Vols. 1 and 2, 12 mo.

The Northern General Conference of 1856 did a wise thing when it directed that a "commentary suitable for general popular use should be prepared;" and elected Dr. Wheedon to prepare it. The result of his labors, so far must be highly satisfactory to his publishers; if the sale of the work bears any proportion to its merit. They seem to have maintained a Methodist economy in adding to it a number of rude wood-cut embellishments quite in contrast with the intrinsic, and, we suppose, the commercial value of the publication. To present in a popular condensed form the result of modern Biblical investigation and criticism, was a task demanding accurate scholarship, erudition, and powers of a high order; and this work gives abundant evidence that the author possessed these requisite qualifications for it. The quantity of material at hand constituted not the least of the undertaking—to select, condense, resolve and luminously arrange for the common reader. This could only be done by the author's passing it all through his own brain; by fusing and recasting. The boldness and genius of the commentator in giving this unity and stamp of originality to his work is evident in every page.

Difficult Scriptures are not quietly passed by, as is too often the case in the commentary of Dr. Clark, but are fairly encountered, and often, very often, satisfactorily explained. We give a specimen of this—The message of John to the Saviour, "Art thou he that should come?"

There is here set forth a common sense and healthy way of rendering Scripture, new in style, and honest, which gathers the meaning from the full stream of the passage, realizing as much as possible the time, delivery. We cannot but think that this hearty treatment of the truth of God will impress itself through this work upon the Methodist pulpit.

Wesleyan Armenianism has been fortunate and rich in commentaries upon the Bible, but we value this one as not the least among them. If a man has a pair of saddle bags for his book case, and is given to preaching he could not do better than put one of those volumes in each end of it.

2. John—John the Baptist was like his prototype Elijah. See notes on Matt. i. 1; xvii, 10, 12. As the former was driven by Abah into the wilderness, so the latter was shut up in prison; and as the former at a certain period (1 Kings xix, 1-13) bore his solitude impatiently, so the evangelist now shows us of John that he bore his imprisonment impatiently.

John had heard . . . works of Christ.—Near eighteen months now had John remained in prison, a period about as long as the exercise of his active ministry. His disciples, apparently, had access to him, and through them the rumors of our Lord's works might reach his ears. Successfully he might have heard how Jesus had organized his twelve apostles—one for every tribe of Israel; how he had healed the servant of the centurion of Capernaum, had lately raised the widow's son at Nain, and had filled Palestine, and even Syria and Idumea, with the renown of miracle and preaching. These were indeed mighty works; but why did not the reign of righteousness and glory commence its era?

3. Art thou he that should come.—Here is no doubt a reference to Malachi iii, 1, where it is said: "Jehovah whom ye seek shall suddenly come to his temple." The slowness of our Lord to develop the glory of his kingdom seemed to John not to agree with the suddenness ascribed to the Messiah. Do we look for another? John here seems to be running into the same train of reasoning as that which induced the later Jews to adopt the theory of two Messiahs, one of whom (called by them the Son of Joseph) should fulfill the humiliations described by the prophets as belonging to the Messiah; and the other (whom they called the Son of David) should fulfill the glorious part of the prophecies. I do not mean that John adopted or was acquainted with this Jewish theory; but that the same idea (namely, the contrast lying between the humble suffering Messiah and the glorious Messiah, Prince of the kingdom of God) which prompted that theory prompted this question.

4. Show John again.—The words plainly show that it is John, not his disciples, who is to be taught the truth. To John's question Jesus gives no direct reply. To his "Art thou he?" the Saviour responds not, "I am he." He holds a reserve, partly severe and partly modest, or rather self-respecting. He performs most noted miracles, as Luke informs us, before the face of the messengers, and sends them back to John with a quotation from the prophets, which declares that those very miracles belong to the Prince Messiah. Just so the doubts of his type, Elijah, were relieved (1 Kings xix) by a sign.

5. The blind receive their sight.—Our Lord here refers to Isa. xxix, 18, and other passages where these works are made the proofs of the Messiah.

6. Offended in me.—The word offended, here as elsewhere, means to be made to stumble; that is, to fall into sin by some misunderstanding. The Lord here utters a warning to John. To John, we say, for the singular pronoun, "Blessed is he," is so pointed as to be very unaccountable if it be not intended. The Baptist is not in wickedness; but he is in danger of being offended in Jesus. This brief and somewhat stern procedure constitutes the epistles of John departed with it to their master.

7. Offended in me.—The word offended, here as elsewhere, means to be made to stumble; that is, to fall into sin by some misunderstanding. The Lord here utters a warning to John. To John, we say, for the singular pronoun, "Blessed is he," is so pointed as to be very unaccountable if it be not intended. The Baptist is not in wickedness; but he is in danger of being offended in Jesus. This brief and somewhat stern procedure constitutes the epistles of John departed with it to their master.

8. Offended in me.—The word offended, here as elsewhere, means to be made to stumble; that is, to fall into sin by some misunderstanding. The Lord here utters a warning to John. To John, we say, for the singular pronoun, "Blessed is he," is so pointed as to be very unaccountable if it be not intended. The Baptist is not in wickedness; but he is in danger of being offended in Jesus. This brief and somewhat stern procedure constitutes the epistles of John departed with it to their master.

NEWS FROM THE CHURCHES.

Mr. Editor: After a long and dreary night of trouble and sorrow, sin and unbelief, God hath graciously visited his people in Port Gibson.

In accordance with the recommendation of our Bishops, the pastor Rev. G. A. B. Jones, assisted by Rev. Geo. H. Blinton, our presiding elder commenced a series of meetings on Sunday the 11th of August.

On the following Saturday, the present writer had the privilege of uniting with them, and with occasional assistance from brother's Booth and Chamberlin, we continued our meeting until the first instant. On the second Sabbath of our meeting the work of the Spirit was manifested in the congregation, and His awakening and renewing power remained with us to its close. How sweetly and orderly everything moves on in a revival when both preachers and people are "led by the Spirit!" This was one of the most noiseless revivals I was ever in, where the work of grace was evidently so deep and scriptural. There was bitter weeping and earnest pleadings for pardoning mercy among the penitents at the communion rail, and there were tears of joy, and happy faces, irradiated with the love, peace, and joy of the new-born soul, but, apart from these evidences of intense and appropriate feeling, there was nothing that the most fastidious and stoical believer in the momentous truths of the gospel of Christ could consistently find fault with. The immediate result of our meeting was the admission of twenty-four candidates for membership, the most of whom professed faith in Christ. During the last week we set apart different times for baptism and the reception of the candidates into the fellowship of the Church, both of which was conducted according to our ritual with deep solemnity, and were very impressive and profitable services. On the last Sabbath of our meeting after a suitable discourse on text, "this do in remembrance of me," the holy sacrament of Lord's Supper was administered—a large number of communicants most of our young members partaking with us for the first time. Soon as the work of the Holy Spirit was apparent in the awakening sinners, and leading them by penitence and faith, to the Savior, we gave a general invitation to all who might wish to do so, to approach us without restraint, to converse with us about their spiritual interests. Many availed themselves of the invitation, and increased our opportunities for doing good. A group of lovely children came several times to the pastor's residence to converse with us on religious topics, which were suggested by their appropriate questions; until their numbers increased that we appointed special services for them, in the Kingdom of Heaven was sown young and tender hearts, that bear a rich harvest in coming years. By far, the greater portion of those who professed a change of heart, that the aged and middle-aged seem to be beyond our reach. But few of either class become members of any church. They are to be content to risk all the consequences of dying aliens to the commonwealth of Israel. The church is now in a more healthy condition in Port Gibson, than it has been for many long years. cannot record the conversion scores as some of our brethren permitted to do elsewhere; of those who have been acquainted with the condition of our church in this place, will "thank God and take courage," when they learn of the results.

Yours affectionately,
 J. G. Jones
 Port Gibson, Miss., Sept. 10, 1867.

Clover Hill, Miss., Sept. 13, 67.
Mr. Editor: Herewith I send you twelve dollars to be appropriated as directed in accompanying letter. The Advocate is very highly prized by all who read it here, and it is entirely owing to the fact that we have a very small community and money is very scarce, that we have added so few names to your list of subscribers.

In the midst of the gloomy prospect of the church in these "river counties," we have encountered prospects of better days dawning upon us here. Though, I have added but few members to our church, such as have been taken to the fold, are of the best material, and will greatly strengthen our cause, and enhance the prospect of Zion. There is an interest manifested on the part of the people seldom seen in any of the river counties, or elsewhere. Almost every individual within six miles of the Chapel, is a regular attendant at church, and scarcely one of the number who is not a member of the Bible class at our Sunday School, which is well conducted by W. L. Sibley. It is no mean spectacle to see old and young, parents and children, all bending their heads towards the sanctuary every Sabbath, to learn something of the blessed Jesus, and to chant the praises of the Donor of every gift, and perfect gift. One too rarely witnessed in this section.

I hope, ere the close of this conference year, to communicate you the glorious tidings of many conversions, and such times of refreshing from the presence of the Lord, as we have not witnessed here for many years.

Truly your friend and brother,
 S. E. Hall
 Buoxi, Miss., Sept. 18, '67.

Mr. Editor: The question "Why Thou not revive us again," that thy people may rejoice in Thee," has been asked. We rejoice in having been heard, and blessed. This is the seventh day of our meeting: We continue to labor. "These conversions," conversion, reclamation, and accessions to the church membership, "many of them may be heard afar off." "Let them shout for joy." Who dare say, "Would to God that all who oppose rejoicing in religion, shouting the praise of God, might be made happy in the love of God, and forever abide all objection. Spiritual Ghost religion, is too general. Ignored: perhaps, this is owing to the being so little experienced. Bro. Brewer is with us in the red of a 'true yoke fellow,' 'in an abundant,' in varied differences, eminently useful.

J. J. CLARK.

ATLANTA, LA., Sept. 16, '67.
Editor: We have had one of the most gracious revivals of religion here, that I have ever attended. The meeting lasted from Friday, Aug. 30th, till Sunday night, 8th, increasing in interest all the time. Bro. H. O. White was the laborer successfully. Scores of sinners were puny converted, twenty happily converted, old back sliders reclaimed, church powerfully strengthened, fifteen new members received full connection. Another point, across the Alabama, we found five members in a church who had been formerly by Methodist preachers, for more than a year, organized a little society, labored with them four and nights, had eight or nine members, and added eighteen to their number, leaving a society of twenty-two members. We had precious seasons at some of the other appointments also, but not to be too tedious now. To us name be the glory. We are going for, and expecting good throughout the entire circuit. When pray for us. Your Bro. JOHN F. WYNN.

PROVIDENCE DIST.—LA. CONFERENCE.—We have just finished our annual of Quarterly Meetings, at Lake Providence District, Louisiana. Notwithstanding the activity of our preachers have deserted their charges, some churches, others for the city, Mr. Bell for Heaven, we have precious revivals on the different circuits in the District; forty accessions and conversions. Harvest is great, but the laborers are few.

W. G. M'GAUGHEY, P. E.

FOREIGN MISSIONS.

THE MINISTRY AND MEMBERSHIP OF THE LOUISIANA CONFERENCE.

As the Chairman of your committee on Foreign Missions, I call attention to the duty and responsibility of responding as generously as our circumstances may allow to the loud and urgent calls for Foreign Missionary enterprise. The door is already wide open, and the Providence of God, it is growing wider. God is calling us without excuse. Nearly a heathen world now stand before us as an open door, and we are called to enter in and take possession. That so much remains to be done, our ministers remember that more than three months they will be called upon to report what they have done for God's cause in this direction.

We urge all to give—all to contribute to ability, and all to cheerfully—then shall the treasury be filled, and faithful laborers be sustained in their sacrificial toil. When you take up your collection for Missions, present (if at the time) the interest of the Foreign and Domestic Missions as distinctly, and according to their promptings. Let us have good report, one that you shall be proud to bring, and not with grief.

JOSEPH B. WALKER.

New Orleans, Sept. 1867.

REVIVALS IN ARKANSAS.—The Arkansas Christian Advocate brings cheering news of the work of God in that State.

Deeper and wider swells the tide of religious interest in our State. Revival notices come from every quarter. This is truly cheering. The interest is confined to no denomination. Presbyterian, Baptist, and Methodist, alike participate in it. Let the glad news be poured into the columns of the Christian Advocate from every quarter. It is a welcome record, and cheers all hearts. The news of one revival inspires another into joyous life. The news of a work of grace should no more be withheld from the community, than should individual experience from the church. Send in your revival notices, brethren, from all sections of our conference.

THE EFFECT OF RADICAL RULE.—The Philadelphia Age draws this picture of the financial effect of Radical rule upon the people and the nation:

One dollar and sixty cents per head was paid by the people through the customs in 1860. This was thought to be a heavy burden upon each person. But in 1866, after six years of Radical rule, $14 per head were drawn from the industry of the nation through the customs and internal revenue. In 1860, each man had to pay out of his labor $2.06 of the public debt. The Radicals came into power, and in six years they raised that sum to $19.50. The expenses of the National Government in 1860 were sixty-two millions. This year they will reach two hundred and twenty-five millions. A fearful increase in the short space of six years! In 1860, the government of this State cost four hundred and two thousand dollars. In 1866, it will take six hundred and sixty-nine thousand dollars to do all the expenses incurred by the Radical party. Twenty-five millions of dollars are annually taken from the labor of this State to pay the interest on debts of a National, State and municipal character, contracted by the Radical party in the short space of six years.

OBITUARIES.

Died in Farmerville, Union Parish, La., on the 16th of August, 1867, aged nine years and eight months, also, EMMA, on 27th of August, 1867, aged twelve years and one month, the only daughters of Mr. W. H. and Mrs. (S. B. Carson. Though young, their hopes were turned heavenward. During their sickness they often called upon their heavenly Father; whom they had been taught to love and pray to. They were obedient to their parents, and gave promise of being the solace of their declining years; but when death all their hopes, and when from the sorrows of earth to a higher and holier life, where their pure spirits await the coming of father and mother.

R. T. FARISH.

Mrs. MATILDA CANNON, died near Vernon, Miss., Sept. 3rd, 1867. She had been in bad health during the entire year, but congestion of the brain caused a rapid decline and speedy death. She joined the church when about sixteen years of age, and has lived a consistent member ever since, a period of about thirty-five years. She was unconscious during her severe sickness. We could not have her last Christian experience. But her precious life and conversation lead us to believe her faith was well founded, and cause the reasonable hope that she is now with the Father, enjoying the reward of the righteous.

She leaves a husband and three children to mourn her loss. May the Holy Spirit supply to them all his precious consolation.

W. F. GLENN.

SPECIAL NOTICES.

To the candidates for admission on trial in the Mississippi Conference.

The Committee to examine you preparatory to your application will meet you at Natchez, on Monday and Tuesday, preceding the Conference, and examine you on, first, the Bible; second, Wesley's sermons on Justification by Faith, and on the Witness of the Holy Spirit; and the rules concerning the duty of a preacher as laid down in the Discipline; and fourth, a Witness Essay or Sermon.

Will Presiding Elders please to call the necessary attention to this subject.

R. ABBY, Ch'm.

WANTED.

A lady to teach French, and assist in teaching music, one thoroughly qualified. Address H. F. JOHNSON, Sept 12-1m Brookhaven, Miss.

NOTICE.

To the preachers of the Montgomery Conference.—Owing to the crowded condition of our houses, I am compelled to request you not to bring your wives to Conference. J. W. GLENN.

Opelika, Sept. 9, 1867.

Greenville Dist.—Mississippi Conference.

FOURTH ROUND OF QUARTERLY MEETINGS. On account of the great and protracted overflow of the past season, the second and third rounds on this District, were served irregularly—having to take them as I could. It being impossible to get members to attend, there can be no official District Meeting held, and the duties of that meeting will have to be performed by the Quarterly Conferences separately.

| | | |
|---|--------|----|
| Greenville S. M. | Sept 7 | 8 |
| Princeton or Leota S. M. | 14 | 15 |
| Cloverhill S. M. | 21 | 22 |
| Union Chapel, D. C., S. M. | 28 | 29 |
| Upper Deer Creek, S. M. | Oct 5 | 6 |
| Boyd's store (Tallahatchie river) S. M. | 12 | 13 |
| Roebuck S. M. | 19 | 20 |
| Indian Meeting Q. M. | 26 | 27 |
| Lake Lee S. M. | Nov 2 | 3 |
| Greenville Q. M. | 9 | 10 |

The preachers in charge are requested to have all their reports, statistics, etc., as required by the Discipline, written and ready for their respective Quarterly Conferences, as this may not be supplied afterwards.

JAS. MACLENNAN, P. E.

Tuscaloosa District—Mobile Conference.

The District Conference for the Tuscaloosa District, will be held at Flat Woods, on Havana Circuit, commencing Thursday, 26th of September prox.

The Conference will be composed of all the traveling preachers and official members of the stations, circuits, and missions of the District.

The Introductory Sermon will be preached by Rev. J. C. Willis, of the Southern University, Thursday 11 o'clock A. M. Bishop Wightman will preside.

J. L. COTTON, P. E.

Shreveport Dist.—Louisiana Conference.

FOURTH ROUND OF QUARTERLY MEETINGS. Many, at Fort Jessup, Aug 31 and Sept 1. Annoco, at Holly Grove, " 7 8. Pleasant Hill, at Benah, " 14 15. Mansfield, at Mansfield, " 28 29. Caddo, at Greenwood, Oct 5 6. N. Rossier, at Walker's Chapel, Shreveport, " 12 13. Belle Bower, " 26 27. Springville, at Springville, Nov 2 3.

DISTRICT MEETING to be held at Mansfield, September 26, 27, 28.

B. F. ALEXANDER, P. E.

New Orleans Dist.—Louisiana Conference.

THIRD ROUND OF QUARTERLY MEETINGS. Carondelet Street, Aug 25. Felicity Street, Sept 1. Moreau Street, " 8. Jefferson City, " 15. N. O. Cir., Quar. Con., Advocate office, at 5 p. m., " 16. Ger'n Church, at Saragat, " 22. German Quarterly Conference, Dryades street, " 23.

Baton Rouge, " 28, 29. Thibodeaux circuit, at Houma Oct 6. Bayou Gros Tete at Plaquemine 13.

J. U. KEENER, P. E.

Natchez District Convention.

Will be held in Woodville, Miss., from Thursday, 26th, (10 o'clock A. M.) to Sunday the 29th of September next.

We deem it unnecessary to republish subjects to be reported upon by pastors, stewards, S. S. superintendents, presidents and teachers of our colleges and schools, but would refer them to a publication in N. O. C. ADVOCATE, June 8th, 1867. After deliberation, the published plan for addresses has been abandoned. There will be preaching at the usual hours, Saturday, P. M., and Sabbath day. We trust every official member of the District will be present the first day of the meeting, so as to serve on various committees, which will be needed.

JAS. A. GODFREY.

Vicksburg Dist.—Mississippi Conference.

FOURTH ROUND OF QUARTERLY MEETINGS. North Warren, at Oak Ridge, Sept 1, 2. Port Gibson, " 8, 9. Fayette, at Bethel, " 15, 16. Burtonton, at Pisgah, " 22, 23. Cayuga, at Ulica, " 29, 30. Raymond, " Oct. 6, 7. Warren, at Bethel, " 13, 14. Rocky Springs, " 20, 21. Vicksburg, " 27, 28.

Pastors will be ready with full reports of Statistics. Written reports of the condition of church property, Sabbath schools, etc., will be expected.

G. H. CLINTON, P. E.

Lake Providence Dist.—La. Conference.

FOURTH ROUND OF QUARTERLY MEETINGS. Carroll Circuit, at Oak Grove Oct 12 13. Delhi Ct., at Floyd, " 19 20. Ion Circuit, Little Creek, " 26 27. Tensas and Sicily Island, at Tensas, " Nov 9 10. Chapel, " 16 17. Waterproof & St. Joseph, Waterproof 23 24.

The District Meeting is postponed from the 27th September to the fourth day of October, at which time there will be a Camp Meeting, at Oakley Campground. Any of the preachers from Louisiana or Mississippi Conferences are cordially invited to attend.

W. G. McQUARRY, P. E.

CAMP MEETING.

NOTICE IS HEREBY GIVEN, that a CAMP MEETING will be held near Whitworth, Hoskins & Co's Steam Saw Mill, at Pin Oak Flag Station, on the Jackson and New Orleans Railroad, two miles North of Brookhaven, commencing on Thursday before the fifth Sabbath in September.

Everybody is invited to attend, and to bring their own provisions, and erect their own tents. All ministers of the Gospel attending, will be provided for during their stay—others will make their arrangements beforehand for their own accommodation. Wood, water, and lot for horses, convenient and free.

Applications for permission to build and keep boarding tents will be made to the Committee of Arrangements. Families and others from New Orleans, Jackson, and intermediate towns on the Railroad, and from neighborhoods contiguous to the Camping Ground, would do well to write or send agents beforehand, that arrangements may be made for their accommodation.

The trains will stop at the Ground for the accommodation of persons attending. Lumber for building purposes convenient.

Colored people will be provided as usual.

For further information, apply to L. R. REDDING, Chairman of Committee of Arrangements, or any of the undersigned: Wm. G. MILLSAPS, P. Elder, Brookhaven District;

B. JONES, Pastor, Wesson and Beauregard; A. B. NICHOLSON, Pastor, Bayou Pierre Circuit;

H. J. HARRIS, Pastor, Hazlehurst Circuit;

THOS. NIXON, " Crystal Springs " Circuit;

PETER E. GREENE, Pastor, Bogue Chitto Circuit;

GEO. E. THOMPSON, Pastor, pro tem, Jackson;

L. R. REDDING, Pastor, Brookhaven; COMMITTEE OF ARRANGEMENTS. L. R. REDDING, T. G. DECELL, M. J. WHITWORTH, JAS. A. HOSKINS.

Jackson Methodist, New Orleans Advocate, Crystal Springs News and Copiahian, please copy four times.

Ample preparations will be made to accommodate all editors who may honor them with their presence.

Mobile District—Mobile Conference.

FOURTH ROUND OF QUARTERLY MEETINGS. E. Shore & Fish River, at Donnelly's Sept 14 15. Citronelle, at Citronelle, " 21 22. Whistler, at Whistler, " 28 29. Pascagoula and Bay shore, Salem Camp, " Oct 5 6. Ocean Springs, at Red Hill, " 12 13. St. Stephens & State Line, Pine Grove Nov 2 3. Waynesboro, at Waynesboro, " 9 10. Mobile, at St. Paul's, " 16 17. " St. Francis street, " 23 24. " Franklin street, " 30 31.

prepared with a duplicate copy of the statistics of their charges, to be furnished the Presiding Elder, according to requirements of the Discipline—See ch 2, sec 6, par 9 page 67.

THOS. W. DORMAN, P. E.

DISTRICT MEETING.

A District Meeting for the Mobile District will be held in Franklin Street Methodist Church, in the city of Mobile, beginning on Friday, before the second Sunday in October, at 9 A. M., at which all the traveling and local preachers, and all the official members of the church in the bounds of the District, are earnestly requested to attend. Ample accommodations will be provided by calling on Doctors Hamilton and Neely. Bishop Wightman will be in attendance.

THOS. W. DORMAN, P. E.

Homer District—Louisiana Conference.

FOURTH ROUND OF QUARTERLY MEETINGS. Vernon Ct., at Vernon, Sept 7, 8. Haynesville at Collyette, " 14 15. Farmerville at Alabama, " 21 22. Homer at Forest Grove, " 28 29. Lake Bienville at Ringold, " Oct 5 6. Sparta at Sparta, " 12 13. Mt. Lebanon at Arcadia, " 19 20. Lewisville, " 26 27. South Bossier, " Nov 2, 3. Minden, " 9 10.

District Meeting at Forest Grove, seven miles east of Homer, commencing Friday, fourth of October. All traveling and local preachers, also all of the official members of the District are requested to attend.

JNO. A. MILLER, P. E.

Brookhaven Dist.—Miss Conference.

FOURTH ROUND OF QUARTERLY MEETINGS. Hazlehurst, Sept 1, 2. Chrystal Springs, at Bethesda, " 7, 8. Scotland col'd cir., at Gallatia, " 14, 15. Meadville, at Beach Grove, " 21, 22. Dist Meeting Hazlehurst, " 27, 28, 29. Holmesville, at Holmesville, " Oct 5, 6. Bayou Pierre, at Rehoboth, " 12, 13. Pearl River, at Sertains, " 19, 20. Bayou Chitto, " 26, 27. Wesson, at Beauregard, " Nov 2, 3. Brookhaven, " 9, 10. Scotland, at Gallatia, " 16, 17.

The District Meeting will be held at Hazlehurst, Sept. 27, 28, 29.

G. W. MILLSAPS, P. E.

Yazoo District—Mississippi Conference.

FOURTH ROUND OF QUARTERLY MEETINGS. Lexington, at Lexington, Sept 11 12. Greenwood, at Greenwood, " 18 19. Carrollton, at Carrollton, " 25 26. Emory, at Emory, " Oct 2 3. Holmes, at Durant, " 9 10. Richland, at Richland, " 16 17. Black Hawk, at Black Hawk, " 23 24. Mount Olive, at Dover, " 30 31. Yazoo, at Midway, " Nov 6 7. Yazoo City Station, " 13 14.

APPOINTMENTS BY THE WAY.

| | |
|---------------------|---------------------|
| Sweetwater, Sept 18 | at 11 o'clock A. M. |
| Acoma, " 18 | " 7 " P. M. |
| Black Hawk, " 18 | " 7 " " |
| Carrollton, " 27 | " 7 " " |
| Valden, Oct 3 | " 7 " " |
| Durant, " 11 | " 7 " " |
| Heaton, Nov 1 | " 7 " " |

At these appointments marked with a star, I will lecture on Temperance.

J. M. POON, P. E.

Columbus District—Mobile Conference.

FOURTH ROUND OF QUARTERLY MEETINGS. There will be a District Meeting for Columbus District, Mobile Conference, at Union Chapel, Pickens County, Ala., 8 miles east of Pickensville, and 6 miles north of Bridgeville.

All the members of Quarterly Conferences in the District are members, and are earnestly invited to attend. There will be sermons delivered on subjects, Thursday, Friday, and Saturday, at 11 o'clock, by Rev. A. S. Andrews, T. P. Crymes, and W. C. Hoarn.

Members will come prepared to deliberate and report upon the various subjects of interest, usual at such meetings.

Pickensville and Carrollton Sept 21 22.

Bridgeville, " 28 29.

Columbus Station, Oct 5 6.

Columbus Circuit, " 12 13.

Corksville, " 19 20.

Brooksville, " 26 27.

Trinity, Nov 9 10.

Crawfordville, " 24 25.

Green, Dec 7 8.

W. MURRAY, P. E.

Tuscaloosa District—Mobile Conference.

FOURTH ROUND OF QUARTERLY MEETINGS. Havana, Sept 28 29. New Berne and Oak Grove, Oct 5 6. Marion, " 12 13. Brush Creek, " 19 20. Scottsville and Carthage, " 26 27. Tuscaloosa, Nov 2 3. Eutaw, " 9 10. Forkland, " 16 17. Greensboro, Nov 30 and Dec 1.

J. L. COTTON, P. E.

NEW ADVERTISEMENTS.

THIRD ANNUAL SESSION OF THE COMMERCIAL AND CLASSICAL INSTITUTE. In charge of the undersigned and competent associates, was opened at 9 A. M., on Monday, Sept. 2, 1867, in the basement of the Church, at the corner of Camp and Terphouse streets, (entrance on Camp street,) opposite Coliseum Place.

Pupils will be carefully trained for business pursuits, or for admission to the Academic Department of the Louisiana State Seminary of Learning, or of any Southern College.

N. B. Parents who desire to enter their sons, are requested to communicate their wishes, as soon as practicable, to sept 25 1m R. M. LUSHER, Principal.

"EVERY MONTH" is the title of a monthly paper which reports the sermons of the Rev. Dr. Deems, and gives the history and progress of "the Church of the Strangers." To give it a wide circulation for usefulness, the price is merely nominal: single copy for one year, 30 cents; two copies 60 cents; five copies $1.00; if sent to one person. Specimen copies sent to any one enclosing a two-cent stamp. Address

S. F. TAYLOR, "Every Month," sept 28 3t 349 Canal street, N. Y.

THE HOME MONTHLY, New Orleans, for 1867.

THE HOME MONTHLY will contain forty eight pages of reading matter, printed upon fine paper and in clear type, and will, from time to time, be accompanied by elegant steel-plate engravings. The subscription price will remain in $3 per annum, or $1.50 for six months, invariably in advance. In order to build up a still larger circulation, we have concluded to offer the following

Liberal Inducements to Agents. To any person sending us three yearly subscriptions, with nine dollars, we will send the MONTHLY six months, or allow the subscriber to retain One Dollar and Twenty-five Cents of the amount.

To any person sending us six subscriptions, with eighteen dollars, ($18.) we will send the MONTHLY one year, or allow them to retain Two Dollars and Fifty Cents of this amount.

On amounts for subscription less than nine dollars, agents will be allowed to retain ten per cent.

Ministers, it is hoped, will act as agents, not so much from pecuniary considerations as from a laudable desire to assist in building up a home literature worthy of a place among the families of the South and on the center-tables of a Christian people.

All communications on business should be addressed to

ROBERT J. HARR, Publisher, N. O. En. sept 28 3t 112 Camp Street, New Orleans.

JOHN G. PARHAM, OF NEW ORLEANS. SEVERLY BLUNT, OF HINDS CO., MISS.

PARHAM & BLUNT, COTTON FACTORS, Forwarding and Commission Merchants and Purchasing Agents, No. 75 Carondelet street, New Orleans, aug 15

EDUCATIONAL. A young lady educated in Europe, with five years' experience in teaching (there desired) an engagement. Prefers a pleasant home to a large number of scholars. Qualified in French and music. Will be here in October. Address, Rev. JAS. MACLENNAN, Greenville, Miss., stating terms, etc. aug 10

THOMAS MURRAY.

BUILDER.

Corner Rampart and Esato Streets, NEW ORLEANS.

Orders left at Box 119, Mechanic's Exchange, will be attended to. sept 7

SHARON FEMALE COLLEGE.

Is located in the village of Sharon, Madison County, Mississippi, seven miles east of Canton.

The fifth session will begin Monday, Sept. 30th, 1867, under the Presidency of Rev. W. L. C. HUNNELL, A. M., assisted by an able corps of teachers.

The curriculum is thorough and comprehensive. The location is a very desirable and healthy one. The place is free from many evils, connected with the larger towns and cities, and, especially those on rail roads—having always been free from epidemics.

Tuition per term of five months $15 00

Primary Department, " 20 00

Collegiate, " 25 00

Musical and Piano, " 25 00

Use of Instrument, " 7 50

Vocal Music, " 2 50

Incidental fee, " 2 50

Board, fuel and bedding, per month, " 18 00

Lights and washing, extra.

Young ladies furnishing their towels, Sheets, blankets, washing and lights, will pay per month, " $16 00

The daughters of all ministers, in the regular pastoral work, will receive tuition in the English course free of charge. sept 21 2m

KICKERBOCKER LIFE INSURANCE CO., OF NEW YORK.

Mutual Plan, Assets $2,450,000

General Agent for the State of Mississippi, H. S. FULKERSON, JACKSON, Miss.

Note: Ministers of the Gospel in the State of Mississippi, upon giving satisfactory reference, will be appointed agents of this Company, upon applying in person, or by letter, to the General Agent at JACKSON, Miss., or when more convenient to H. C. PAXSON, Manager, 50 and 52 Camp street, New Orleans, by whom the necessary blanks will be sent to them. aug 3-3m

EAST-ALABAMA MALE COLLEGE.

AT AUBURN, ALA.

The Fall term of this Institution will open on the FIRST WEDNESDAY in SEPTEMBER next, and close on the 20th December. Besides the regular course of studies for graduation, large facilities are afforded for instruction in the Commercial and Agricultural branches. Separate schools for these branches, in connection with the College, were authorized at the last annual meeting of the Board of Trustees. A student not wishing to take either the regular or a partial literary course in the College, may confine himself to either of these Departments, and in a short time become qualified for business.

The Preparatory Department, with competent teachers, will be under the special supervision of the Faculty.

Tuition—Full Term in College, " $30 00

Contingent Fee, " 4 00

Tuition—Full Term in Preparatory School, " $15 to $20 00

Contingent Fee, " 2 00

Board in Private Families from $15 to $20 per month.

aug 31-2m C. RAIFORD, Secy of Board.

READYVILLE SEMINARY.

B

MANSFIELD FEMALE COLLEGE

The Fall Session of this Institution for the present year will open on Wednesday, the 25th day of September, with a full corps of experienced teachers, and ample facilities for instruction and comfort. The Institution is owned and controlled by the Louisiana Conference, and is in the enjoyment of a large patronage.

Charge for a session of four and a half months, payable in advance, one half at the time of entrance, and the remainder on the 1st day of December.

Board, including Washing, Fuel, in gold or its equivalent, $67 50
Tuition and incidental Fee, in currency, 25 00
French, with use of instrument, 13 00
Ornamental branches at usual prices.

The daughters of traveling ministers of the Louisiana Conference are charged no regular tuition.

Young Ladies desiring to board in the Institution will be brought a pair of blankets, a pair of sheets, a pair of pillow slips, and a coverlet, and must furnish towels and lights.

For Catalogues, containing full particulars, address
CHARLES B. STUART, President,
Mansfield, La.

CHAPPELL HILL, TEXAS.

The Board of Trustees take pleasure in announcing to the people of Texas and of Louisiana, the organization of the following faculty.

Dr. J. M. A. M. Pres't, and Prof. of Greek and Latin Languages.
Dr. J. M. A. M. Prof. of Mathematics.
Dr. J. M. A. M. Prof. of Biblical Literature.
Dr. J. M. A. M. Prof. of Natural Science.

The first Session of Collegiate year begins on Monday in September, and ends December 10th, 1867. The second Session opens Jan. 1, 1868; closes last Wednesday in June.

TERMS
SHORT TERM OF FOUR MONTHS.
Preparatory, $20 00
Primary, 13 00
Long Term of Six Months.
Preparatory, $24 00
Primary, 20 00
Secondary, 30 00
Extra $2 00 per month.

To students. Board can be obtained in families at $15 00 per month. Tuition upon entrance in Specials is a proportionate part of which will be returned in cases of protracted sickness, and in no other—Address, Mansfield, La., Chappell Hill, Texas.

WELTHORTH FEMALE COLLEGE,
BROOKHAVEN, MISS.
The next session will open on Wednesday, the 10th of September, 1867.

The building is large and well arranged; the play ground ample; the location healthy. The Institution is under the control of the M. E. Church, South.

The entire expenses in the Collegiate Department for board, tuition, books and incidentals (not including music and ornamental) will not exceed $125 00 for term of study.

Each boarder must furnish her towels, one of blankets and sheets.
For further information, address
REV. H. F. JOHNSON,
Pres't Whitworth Female College.

UNIVERSITY COLLEGE,
Jackson, Louisiana,
established by the State of Louisiana in 1845, and transferred to the Methodist Episcopal Church South in 1845. It is now under the patronage of the Mississippi and Louisiana Conferences.

The College exercises were necessarily suspended during the war; but were regularly resumed, after reorganization, on the first day of October, 1865. The approaching session will open on the first Monday of October next.

Tuition, $75 per annum, payable semi-annually in advance.
Boarding can be obtained at from $20 to $25 per month.

The Buildings, Libraries, Apparatus, Laboratory and School Hall, the location in point of health, ease of access and good society, and unsurpassed by those of any institution in the Southern States.

The past history of the College is the pledge of its future prosperity.
The Board and Faculty promise the public that nothing shall be wanting on their part to secure the thorough education of the young men committed to their care, in both Preparatory and Collegiate Departments.

For old students, alumni, and friends of the Institution, the Board is desirous of giving publicity to the reorganization and opening of the College, as stated above.

W. H. WATKINS, President.

THE GOOD SAMARITAN COOKING STOVE.

The greatest serious objection to Stove Ovens has been entirely overcome in the GOOD SAMARITAN.

By the adoption of a New Principle of Heating, the heat is given off by means of the fan, formed by the Ventilation of the Stove, and the temperature of the fire is so much increased that a large supply of fuel is never necessary, as the Oven can be thoroughly heated, and all the different operations of Cooking performed with a saving of fuel.

At least Thirty per Cent, as Compared with any other Stove.

At the same time rendering it the most perfect and easy Baking Stove now in use. For instance, the Tin Kitchen or Roaster, generally used, is so much defective, that it is most admirably adapted to the Good Samaritan, as its height allows the heat to reach a large mid capacity oven, and the heat is so much increased that a large supply of fuel is never necessary, as the Oven can be thoroughly heated, and all the different operations of Cooking performed with a saving of fuel.

At the same time rendering it the most perfect and easy Baking Stove now in use. For instance, the Tin Kitchen or Roaster, generally used, is so much defective, that it is most admirably adapted to the Good Samaritan, as its height allows the heat to reach a large mid capacity oven, and the heat is so much increased that a large supply of fuel is never necessary, as the Oven can be thoroughly heated, and all the different operations of Cooking performed with a saving of fuel.

At the same time rendering it the most perfect and easy Baking Stove now in use. For instance, the Tin Kitchen or Roaster, generally used, is so much defective, that it is most admirably adapted to the Good Samaritan, as its height allows the heat to reach a large mid capacity oven, and the heat is so much increased that a large supply of fuel is never necessary, as the Oven can be thoroughly heated, and all the different operations of Cooking performed with a saving of fuel.

At the same time rendering it the most perfect and easy Baking Stove now in use. For instance, the Tin Kitchen or Roaster, generally used, is so much defective, that it is most admirably adapted to the Good Samaritan, as its height allows the heat to reach a large mid capacity oven, and the heat is so much increased that a large supply of fuel is never necessary, as the Oven can be thoroughly heated, and all the different operations of Cooking performed with a saving of fuel.

At the same time rendering it the most perfect and easy Baking Stove now in use. For instance, the Tin Kitchen or Roaster, generally used, is so much defective, that it is most admirably adapted to the Good Samaritan, as its height allows the heat to reach a large mid capacity oven, and the heat is so much increased that a large supply of fuel is never necessary, as the Oven can be thoroughly heated, and all the different operations of Cooking performed with a saving of fuel.

At the same time rendering it the most perfect and easy Baking Stove now in use. For instance, the Tin Kitchen or Roaster, generally used, is so much defective, that it is most admirably adapted to the Good Samaritan, as its height allows the heat to reach a large mid capacity oven, and the heat is so much increased that a large supply of fuel is never necessary, as the Oven can be thoroughly heated, and all the different operations of Cooking performed with a saving of fuel.

At the same time rendering it the most perfect and easy Baking Stove now in use. For instance, the Tin Kitchen or Roaster, generally used, is so much defective, that it is most admirably adapted to the Good Samaritan, as its height allows the heat to reach a large mid capacity oven, and the heat is so much increased that a large supply of fuel is never necessary, as the Oven can be thoroughly heated, and all the different operations of Cooking performed with a saving of fuel.

At the same time rendering it the most perfect and easy Baking Stove now in use. For instance, the Tin Kitchen or Roaster, generally used, is so much defective, that it is most admirably adapted to the Good Samaritan, as its height allows the heat to reach a large mid capacity oven, and the heat is so much increased that a large supply of fuel is never necessary, as the Oven can be thoroughly heated, and all the different operations of Cooking performed with a saving of fuel.

COAL! COAL! COAL!!!

WOOD! WOOD! WOOD!!!

Yard on Josephine st. bet. Prytania and Coliseum

MR. GEO. O. BEATTY
Would inform his friends and the public that he is now prepared to fill orders for COAL and WOOD, and hopes, by giving his personal attention, to secure and merit their patronage.

Best ASH WOOD delivered at $10.
COAL, $3.
Orders left at Yard, or Price Current office, 129 Gravier street; or Peter Williams, corner Jackson and Iberville streets, will meet with prompt attention.

GEO. W. DACE, W. H. FOSTER, E. T. MERRICK,
RACE, FOSTER & E. T. MERRICK,
Attorneys at Law,
CORNER OF CANAL STREET and COMMERCIAL PLACE,
sept 15 ly New Orleans.

SUNDAY SCHOOL VISITOR.

112 CAMP STREET, NEW ORLEANS.

Our readers will be delighted to learn that this beautiful Sunday School Paper is to be resumed the first of January. It will be published by the S. M. Publishing House, Nashville, Tennessee, and simultaneously at 112 Camp st., in this city. Those desiring to subscribe should forward immediately to Rev. R. J. HARR, Agt., Lock Box 214, New Orleans.

SUBSCRIPTION PRICE FOR ONE YEAR.
For Single Copies, each 50c
For any number less than 5, each 50c
For any number over 5, and less than 25, to one address, each 40c
For any number over 25, each 30c
Will ship by Boat, Express or Mail as directed.

Send Cash in Advance.

EVERY SATURDAY:

A Journal of Choice Reading, Selected From Foreign Current Literature.

This popular Weekly reproduces promptly for American readers the best and most readable portions of European periodicals. These embrace Serial Tales, Short Stories, Essays, Biographical and Descriptive, Poems, Sketches, Travel and Adventure, Literary Intelligence, and popular papers on Science. Translations from the admirable French Periodicals are a prominent feature.

Among the Periodicals from which selections are frequently made are Once a Week, Chambers Journal, All the Year Round, The Spectator, The Reader, The Athenaeum, The Examiner, The London Saturday and Sunday Review, Fraser's, Blackwoods, Macmillan's, the Victoria, Argosy, New Monthly, and London Society Magazines; Revue des Deux Mondes, L'Evénement, etc.

Among the authors represented in FRANK SAMPSON'S many of the wisest and widest writers of Europe, as Henry Kingsley, Anthony Trollope, Matthew Arnold, Charles Kingsley, Edmund Yates, Frances Power Cobbe, Christina Rossetti, Alfred Austin, George Sand, Edmond About, Alexandre Dumas, Miss Oliphant, J. Reilly, Alexander Smith, A. C. Swinburne, Robert Buchanan, Jean Ingelow, and Miss Timmerley.

EVERY SATURDAY is intended for Town and Country for the President, the Senate, the House, and the Steamboat. The Publishers will aim to commend it to all classes of cultivated and intelligent readers by the freshness and variety of its contents.

EVERY SATURDAY contains weekly 40 double-column large octavo pages.
TERMS.—Single Number, 10 cents; Yearly Subscription, $4 00 in advance; $4 50 a year to subscribers for any other periodical published by TICKNOR AND FIELDS. Monthly Parts, 50 cents a number. Yearly subscription, same as for Weekly Part.

TICKNOR AND FIELDS,
Publishers, Boston.

BRITISH PERIODICALS.

THE LONDON QUARTERLY REVIEW (Con.)
THE EDINBURGH REVIEW (Whig)
THE WESTMINSTER REVIEW (Radical)
THE NORTH BRITISH REVIEW (Free Church)
AND
BLACKWOOD'S EDINBURGH MAGAZINE (Tory).

These foreign periodicals are regularly published by us in the same style as heretofore. Those who know them and who have long subscribed to them, need no reminder; those who have not, need to be reminded that they have been deprived of their only welcome supply of the best periodical literature, will be glad to have them again within their reach; and those who may never yet have met with them, will assuredly be pleased to receive so accredited reports of the progress of European science and literature.

TERMS FOR 1867.
For any one of the Reviews, $4 per annum
For any two of the Reviews, 7 " "
For any three of the Reviews, 10 " "
For all four of the Reviews, 12 " "
For Blackwood's Magazine, 4 " "
For Blackwood and one Review, 7 " "
For Blackwood and any two of the Reviews, 10 " "
For Blackwood and 3 of the Reviews, 13 " "
For Blackwood and the 4 Reviews, 15 " "

Clubs.
A discount of twenty per cent. will be allowed to clubs of four or more persons. Thus, four copies of Blackwood, or of one Review, will be sent to one club for $12 30. Four copies of the four Reviews and Blackwood, for $43 00, and so on.

Postage.
When sent by mail, the Postage to any part of the United States will be but Twenty-four Cents a year for "Blackwood," and but Eight Cents a year for each of the Reviews.

PREMIUMS TO NEW SUBSCRIBERS.
New Subscribers to any two of the above periodicals for 1867 will be entitled to receive gratis any one of the Four Reviews for 1866. New Subscribers to all five of the Periodicals for 1867 will receive, gratis, Blackwood or any two of the "Four Reviews" for 1866.

These premiums will be allowed to all new subscribers received before April 1, 1867. Subscribers may also obtain back numbers at the following reduced rates, viz:
The North British from January, 1863, to December, 1866, inclusive; the Edinburgh and the Westminster from April, 1864 to December, 1866, inclusive; and the London Quarterly for the years 1865 and 1866, at the rate of $1 50 a year for each or any Review; also Blackwood for 1866, for $2 50.

Neither premiums to Subscribers, nor discounts to Clubs, nor reduced prices for back numbers, can be allowed, unless the money is remitted direct to the Publishers.

No premiums can be given to Clubs.

The Leonard Scott Publishing Co.,
35 Walker street, N. Y.

The L. S. PUB. CO. also publish the FARMER'S GUIDE,
by HENRY STEPHENS, of Edinburgh, and the Lyle J. P. Norton, of Yale College. 2 vols., Royal Octavo, 1600 pages, and numerous Engravings.

Cost $7 for the two volumes—by Mail, post paid, $8.

Best Stove Ever Invented.

For sale only by the undersigned.

In addition to the above, we also have a large and complete assortment of Cookstoves, comprising all of the leading Stoves of the day, and for sale by any other house in this

ASTON & GOODYER,
Corner Customhouse street,
Opposite the Customhouse.

ASTON & GOODYER,
Corner Customhouse street,
Opposite the Customhouse.

ASTON & GOODYER,
Corner Customhouse street,
Opposite the Customhouse.

ASTON & GOODYER,
Corner Customhouse street,
Opposite the Customhouse.

HOMOEOPATHIC PHARMACY.

RICHARD ANGELL,

158 Julia street, bet. Camp and St. Charles

PURE AND FRESH MEDICINES,
Cakes, Books, Certificates, &c.

Chill Drops, the best medicine known for Ague, Bilious Fever, &c.; Barlett's Worm Drops, and other approved Remedies for domestic practice.

DR. JOHN G. ANGELL,
(Graduate of the Philadelphia Dental College.)
Has established himself at No. 109 Carondelet street, near Prytania, where he will perform all Dental Operations in a skillful and satisfactory manner. Teeth inserted upon Gold or Vulcanite base. Being familiar with all Anesthetics, he will extract teeth without pain, by the use of such the best suits the case. Particular attention given to the medical and surgical treatment of diseases of the mouth and teeth.

COAL OIL AND LAMPS.
HILL & VEAZIE,
Having removed from No 31 Chartres street to No 74 Camp street, have received large additions to their former stock, making their assortment of Coal Oil Lamps, and all the articles needful to use with them, very extensive; together with lights, suitable for lighting Churches, large Halls, Parlors, etc.; and every variety of Lamp-frames from the small Hand to the large Station FISH'S PATENT COOKING LAMPS for coal oil and gas, very neat, and economical; also EDDIE'S COOKING STOVES, assorted sizes, heated by coal oil; with many other useful and convenient articles.
Oil manufactured.
Call and examine.

HILL & VEAZIE,
No 74 Camp street,
Between Natchez street and Times Office

ST JAMES HOTEL,
MAGAZINE STREET,
Between Gravier and Natchez Streets,
NEW ORLEANS, LA.

CHAS. E. SMEDS, Manager.

This establishment is now open for the reception of guests.
It is newly furnished from the Kitchen to the roof. Spring Beds, Hair Mattresses, Linen Sheetings, etc. The Furniture and Table Ware all new, of the latest style and most costly material. The Table is furnished with every luxury the Market affords. The Bars with Liquors equal to any in the city. The accommodations are comfortable and pleasant, and as far as possible, guaranteed to its guests.
The House itself may be said to be entirely new and fresh. The undersigned will spare neither labor or expense to merit the continuance of the liberal support with which he has thus far been honored.

CHAS. E. SMEDS.

CARPET WAREHOUSE,
17 Chartres Street,
Lately received Carpeting of all kinds and qualities; Floor Oil Cloth of all qualities, which we are able to suit prices. Curtains, Materials, Lace and Linens, Corbels and Bureaus in great variety; Window Shades, Hair Cloth, Crumb Cloths, Table and Piano Covers, China and Cocoa Matting of all widths.

A. BROUSSEAU & CO.

H. P. BUCKLEY,
WATCHMAKER,
No. 8, Camp Street, No. 6

Dealer in fine WATCHES,
JEWELRY AND SILVERWARE,
SPECTACLES OF ALL KINDS.
—Also—
GUNS AND PISTOLS.

Every sort of Gun and Pistol Repairing attended to, by
J. E. BAILEY,
Formerly of Chartres Street.

PEET, SIMMS, & CO.,
Importers and Wholesale Dealers in
DRY GOODS,
Nos. 23 & 25 MAGAZINE STREET, NEW ORLEANS

A NEW THING UNDER THE SUN
PRICE'S
Patent Texas Tonic.
PURELY VEGETABLE.

It is a certain antidote against Constipation of the Bowels, Torpor of the Liver, Palpitation of the Heart, Determination of Blood to the Brain, Indigestion, Pain in the Head and Vertigo; also a remedy for CHILLS AND FEVERS.

For particulars, see accompanying Envelope with each bottle.

For sale at 35 Camp street, New Orleans,
THOS. K. PRICE, Vendor.

Read the following opinions of some of our old and well known citizens of
PRICE'S PATENT TEXAS TONIC,
Or, Vegetable Medicine.

T. K. PRICE, Esq., Vendor of "Price's Patent Texas Tonic," or Vegetable Medicine:
Dear Sir:—After a fair and deliberate use and experiment of your Vegetable Medicine, known as PRICE'S PATENT TEXAS TONIC, we give it as our decided opinion, that it is the best recipe that we have ever known, for Indigestion, Torpor of the Liver, Constipation of the Bowels, and Dyspepsia. We consider your Vegetable Medicine worthy of all commendation, and therefore feel no hesitation in recommending its use to all our friends, as well as the public at large, and that in doing so we are contributing to the all relief of many of our fellow citizens who have been suffering from these evils from ten to fifteen years, and have been greatly benefited.

Wishing you great success in introducing this valuable medicine,
We remain yours truly,
J. H. GILWELL, of Gas Works, City N. O.
SAMUEL SUMNER, of Home Insurance Office
GREEN L. L. of House of Fellows & Co.
LAWIS ELKIN, Merchant, New Orleans.
GEO. W. H. N. SON, ship Agent.
JACOB BARKER, Bank of Commerce,
New Orleans, June, 1863.

TERMS:
4 oz Bottles, $2 00
6 " " 2 50
8 " " 3 00
12 " " 5 00

Sold to Druggists by the dozen bottles or more at 33 per cent discount off retail price.

All orders will meet with prompt attention.

THOS. K. PRICE.

F. FOLGER, L. FOLGER, W. H. THOMAS
FOLGER & CO.,
Dealers in
Hardware, Iron, & Ship Chandlery,
37 & 39 MAGAZINE STREET, NEW ORLEANS.
(Opposite the St James Hotel)

Nails and Castings; Hoop, Sheet and Bar Iron, Shovels and Spades; Sheet Copper and Zinc; Plows, Axes and Hoes; Lead Pipe and Sheet Lead; India Rubber Hosing; Hose and Packing; Circular, Milled and Cross Cut Saws.

aug 25 ly

S. ANDERSON, PHOTOGRAPHER
And PHOTOGRAPHIC STOCK DEALER,
61 Camp street, New Orleans.

Cartes de Visite,
Halotypes, Ambrotypes,
Pictures on Porcelain,
And every description of Pictures known to the Art.

All kinds of Photographic Materials at the lowest price for cash.

J. A. BRASLAMAN & CO.,
Wholesale and Retail Dealers in
FOREIGN & DOMESTIC DRY GOODS
Possess great facilities for buying goods cheap which enables them to sell below market prices.
Special attention given to orders.

No. 586 and 588 Magazine Street
Corner of St. Andrew Street,
oct 1 ly NEW ORLEANS.

NEW CARPETS.
L. ELKIN,
Carondelet Street
Has just received from England, per steam ship Luxor, a large assortment of superior
WILTON, BRUSSELS, TAPESTRY & INGRAIN
CARPETS,
WINDOW SHADES,
CORNICES,
And a complete assortment of Curtain Material such as Brocade, Satin, de Laines, all-Wool Damasks, etc., with corresponding Trimmings.

oct 13 ly

E. GIQUEL,

Wholesale and Retail Dealer in

FOREIGN, FANCY AND STAPLE

DRY GOODS.

Also, a large and varied supply of

HOUSEKEEPING and

PLANTATION GOODS,
Constantly on hand, at 120 Canal Street,
sept 1 ly NEW ORLEANS.

S. ANDERSON, PHOTOGRAPHER
And PHOTOGRAPHIC STOCK DEALER,
61 Camp street, New Orleans.

Cartes de Visite,
Halotypes, Ambrotypes,
Pictures on Porcelain,
And every description of Pictures known to the Art.

All kinds of Photographic Materials at the lowest price for cash.

J. A. BRASLAMAN & CO.,
Wholesale and Retail Dealers in
FOREIGN & DOMESTIC DRY GOODS
Possess great facilities for buying goods cheap which enables them to sell below market prices.
Special attention given to orders.

No. 586 and 588 Magazine Street
Corner of St. Andrew Street,
oct 1 ly NEW ORLEANS.

NEW CARPETS.
L. ELKIN,
Carondelet Street
Has just received from England, per steam ship Luxor, a large assortment of superior
WILTON, BRUSSELS, TAPESTRY & INGRAIN
CARPETS,
WINDOW SHADES,
CORNICES,
And a complete assortment of Curtain Material such as Brocade, Satin, de Laines, all-Wool Damasks, etc., with corresponding Trimmings.

oct 13 ly

H. P. BUCKLEY,
WATCHMAKER,
No. 8, Camp Street, No. 6

Dealer in fine WATCHES,
JEWELRY AND SILVERWARE,
SPECTACLES OF ALL KINDS.
—Also—
GUNS AND PISTOLS.

Every sort of Gun and Pistol Repairing attended to, by
J. E. BAILEY,
Formerly of Chartres Street.

PEET, SIMMS, & CO.,
Importers and Wholesale Dealers in
DRY GOODS,
Nos. 23 & 25 MAGAZINE STREET, NEW ORLEANS

A NEW THING UNDER THE SUN
PRICE'S
Patent Texas Tonic.
PURELY VEGETABLE.

It is a certain antidote against Constipation of the Bowels, Torpor of the Liver, Palpitation of the Heart, Determination of Blood to the Brain, Indigestion, Pain in the Head and Vertigo; also a remedy for CHILLS AND FEVERS.

For particulars, see accompanying Envelope with each bottle.

For sale at 35 Camp street, New Orleans,
THOS. K. PRICE, Vendor.

Read the following opinions of some of our old and well known citizens of
PRICE'S PATENT TEXAS TONIC,
Or, Vegetable Medicine.

T. K. PRICE, Esq., Vendor of "Price's Patent Texas Tonic," or Vegetable Medicine:
Dear Sir:—After a fair and deliberate use and experiment of your Vegetable Medicine, known as PRICE'S PATENT TEXAS TONIC, we give it as our decided opinion, that it is the best recipe that we have ever known, for Indigestion, Torpor of the Liver, Constipation of the Bowels, and Dyspepsia. We consider your Vegetable Medicine worthy of all commendation, and therefore feel no hesitation in recommending its use to all our friends, as well as the public at large, and that in doing so we are contributing to the all relief of many of our fellow citizens who have been suffering from these evils from ten to fifteen years, and have been greatly benefited.

Wishing you great success in introducing this valuable medicine,
We remain yours truly,
J. H. GILWELL, of Gas Works, City N. O.
SAMUEL SUMNER, of Home Insurance Office
GREEN L. L. of House of Fellows & Co.
LAWIS ELKIN, Merchant, New Orleans.
GEO. W. H. N. SON, ship Agent.
JACOB BARKER, Bank of Commerce,
New Orleans, June, 1863.

TERMS:
4 oz Bottles, $2 00
6 " " 2 50
8 " " 3 00
12 " " 5 00

Sold to Druggists by the dozen bottles or more at 33 per cent discount off retail price.

All orders will meet with prompt attention.

THOS. K. PRICE.

F. FOLGER, L. FOLGER, W. H. THOMAS
FOLGER & CO.,
Dealers in
Hardware, Iron, & Ship Chandlery,
37 & 39 MAGAZINE STREET, NEW ORLEANS.
(Opposite the St James Hotel)

Nails and Castings; Hoop, Sheet and Bar Iron, Shovels and Spades; Sheet Copper and Zinc; Plows, Axes and Hoes; Lead Pipe and Sheet Lead; India Rubber Hosing; Hose and Packing; Circular, Milled and Cross Cut Saws.

aug 25 ly

S. ANDERSON, PHOTOGRAPHER
And PHOTOGRAPHIC STOCK DEALER,
61 Camp street, New Orleans.

Cartes de Visite,
Halotypes, Ambrotypes,
Pictures on Porcelain,
And every description of Pictures known to the Art.

All kinds of Photographic Materials at the lowest price for cash.

J. A. BRASLAMAN & CO.,
Wholesale and Retail Dealers in
FOREIGN & DOMESTIC DRY GOODS
Possess great facilities for buying goods cheap which enables them to sell below market prices.
Special attention given to orders.

No. 586 and 588 Magazine Street
Corner of St. Andrew Street,
oct 1 ly NEW ORLEANS.

NEW CARPETS.
L. ELKIN,
Carondelet Street
Has just received from England, per steam ship Luxor, a large assortment of superior
WILTON, BRUSSELS, TAPESTRY & INGRAIN
CARPETS,
WINDOW SHADES,
CORNICES,
And a complete assortment of Curtain Material such as Brocade

NEW ORLEANS MARKETS.

From the N. O. Price Current.

The general market has shown no improvement since our last review. The wholesale movement continues confined to the execution of moderate orders from the interior and the supply of a few parties who have braved the epidemic to lay in their fall supplies. But, as a general thing, business is nearly at a standstill in most departments of trade. Although the receipts of our leading staple are becoming more liberal, yet they are still on a limited scale, being, no doubt, checked by the epidemic. The new regulations with regard to the collection of the 2½ per lb excise will facilitate the movement to market, and relieve the planter and the transportation lines from many annoyances and inconveniences to which they were subject under the old regulations, but their practical operation is yet to be tried, and will no doubt suggest amendments which will give still more freedom to the trade, without impairing the claims of the Government. The sales of Sugar and Molasses are mostly confined to retail transactions, but the limited receipts are readily taken by dealers, on landing, at a fair margin from the jobbing rates. Very little has been done in Tobacco, and the movement in Western Produce has been of about the usual extent, with few variations in prices.

The weather has been variable in temperature, indicative, perhaps, of storms elsewhere. We have nothing to add to our previous remarks on the accounts from the interior. They continue to come in of a diverse complexion, but on the whole encourage the hope that the crop will hardly be much less than 2½ millions of bales. The most popular estimate, however, is only two millions. The long crop figures are 2½ millions. There has been no abatement in the epidemic, which seems destined to extend through every part of the city. Notwithstanding, however, the present increase, in the bills of mortality, we still cling to the hope we expressed in our last issue that there will be a decided decrease towards the close of the month.

COTTON.—We left the market, at the date of our last report, unsettled, since which the movement has been almost entirely suspended, the sales on Saturday and Monday having been confined to a few trifling lots, not exceeding 100 bales, while Tuesday, although there was more on sale, and a manifest disposition to meet the demand freely, even, if necessary, at some further concessions, yet, as most of the trading orders are at 1½ under the asking rates, which is a greater reduction than factors will submit to, the business embraced only 250 bales, while prices were represented as being too irregular and unsettled to serve as a basis for quotations. Buyers claimed to have bought Low Middling at 21 to 21½c and Middling at 22 to 22½c, which would indicate an irregular falling off of ½c to 1c per lb.

This makes an aggregate for the past three days of 350 bales, taken mostly for the North.

The receipts proper since Friday evening comprise 1155 bales, against 964 during the corresponding period last week, showing an increase of 191 bales.

Referring to our remarks above, we omit regular quotations.

TOBACCO.—We have but little alteration to make in our remarks concerning this market. The enquiry since our last review has been mostly in a small way, but with a light supply offering, factors have continued firm in their rates. The sales embraced about 75 hogsheads, within the range of the following quotations, viz:

| | Light. | Heavy. |
|-----------------------|-----------|-----------|
| Interior refused... | 4 to 4½ | 5 to 5½ |
| Common ref'd... | 5 to 5½ | 6 to 6½ |
| Fair... | 6 to 6½ | 7 to 7½ |
| Fine and choice do... | 7 to 7½ | 8 to 8½ |
| Common Leaf... | 7½ to 8 | 8½ to 9 |
| Medium... | 8 to 8½ | 9 to 9½ |
| Good... | 9 to 9½ | 10 to 10½ |
| Fine... | 10 to 10½ | 11 to 11½ |
| Choice Select... | 11 to 11½ | 12 to 12½ |

Cattle Market.

| Wednesday evening, Sept. 17, 1867. | |
|-------------------------------------|-----------|
| Western Beef, 2d quality, per lb... | 10 to 10½ |
| Western Cattle 2d qual, per head... | 10 to 10½ |
| Texas Cattle 2d qual, per head... | 10 to 10½ |
| Good... | 10 to 10½ |
| Sheep, 1st quality per head... | 10 to 10½ |
| Sheep, 2d... | 10 to 10½ |
| Milk Cows, choice per head... | 10 to 10½ |
| Milk Cows, per head... | 10 to 10½ |
| Yearlings, per head... | 10 to 10½ |
| Calves per head... | 10 to 10½ |

HORSE AND MULE MARKET.

| | |
|-----------------------------------|----------------|
| Buggy and light harness Horses... | $200 to $400 |
| Heavy draft Horses... | 175 to 300 |
| Common do... | 75 to 150 |
| Mules, 1st quality... | 200 to 250 |
| Do 2d do... | 140 to 180 |
| Do 3d do... | 75 to 120 |
| Mule and Mules... | 40 to 90 |

Monetary.

We have no material change to notice in the money market proper since our last report. The pressure for accommodations to enable factors to supply their constituents with the facilities required at this period of the year has been even greater than last week, and nearly all classes depending on the movement of the crop complain of great stringency in money matters.

N. O. WHOLESALE PRICES.

CAREFULLY CORRECTED AND REVISED WEEKLY.

(Made up from Actual Sales as they Transpire)

| ARTICLES. | FROM | TO |
|-------------------------------|-------|-------|
| Agricultural Implements... | 4.75 | 22.00 |
| Cotton and Sugar Hoses... | 9.20 | 10.30 |
| Yost's Plows and Scrapers... | 7.00 | 7.50 |
| Cotton Scrapers... | 7.00 | 7.50 |
| Shovelers... | 10.00 | 18.00 |
| Spades... | 11.00 | 20.00 |
| Axes... | 15.00 | 18.00 |
| Bagging, yard... | — | — |
| Kentucky... | — | — |
| East India... | 25½ | 27½ |
| Brass Rope, Kentucky, ½ lb... | 10 | 10½ |
| Brass, ½ lb... | 1.17½ | 1.20 |
| Crackers... | 11.00 | 11.50 |
| Bricks, Lake, ½ M... | 15.00 | 17.00 |
| English Fire... | 40.00 | 45.00 |
| Candles, ½ lb... | — | — |
| Sperm, N Bedford... | 42 | 43 |
| Tallow... | 16 | 20½ |
| Adamantine... | 19 | 25 |
| Star... | 19 | 25 |
| Chocolate, No 1 ½ lb... | 50 | 52½ |
| Sweet and Spiced... | 35 | 67 |
| Cider, Western ½ hbl... | none | here |
| Northern... | none | here |
| Coal, Cannel ½ ton... | 11 | 13.00 |
| Anthracite ½ ton... | 11 | 13.00 |
| Western, ½ barrel... | 55 | 60½ |
| Coffee, Rio, ½ lb... | 20 | 27 |
| Havana... | 30 | 38 |
| Java... | 30 | 38 |
| St. Domingo... | 26 | — |
| Cotton Seed... | 9.00 | 14.00 |
| Booth, ½ ton... | 35 | 36 |
| Copper Braziers ½ lb... | 35 | 36 |
| Sheathing... | 28 | 29 |
| Copper Bolts... | 28 | 29 |
| Yellow Metal... | 24 | 25 |
| Cordage, Manila, ½ lb... | 24 | 25 |
| Tarred, American... | 30 | 31 |
| Russia... | 30 | 31 |
| Corn Meal, ½ hbl... | 4.50 | 5.25 |
| Dyes, ½ lb... | — | — |
| Logwood, Campy... | — | — |
| St. Domingo... | — | — |
| Indigo, ½ lb... | 1.00 | 1.60 |
| Madder... | 19 | 20 |
| Eggs, ½ doz. Western... | 24 | 30 |
| Feathers, ½ doz... | 90 | 1.00 |
| Fish, ½ box... | 1.90 | — |
| Herrings... | 20 | 20½ |
| Mackerel, No 1, ½ hbl... | 19.00 | 19.00 |
| No. 2... | 13.00 | 14.00 |
| No. 3... | 4 | — |
| Flaxseed, ½ doz... | — | — |
| Superfine... | 9.25 | 13.50 |
| Extra... | 7.50 | — |
| Fine... | 19 | 20 |
| Fruit, Prunes, ½ lb... | 23 | 24 |
| Figs, Drum... | 23 | 24 |
| Dried Apples... | 4 | 6 |
| Curran's, Zante... | 34 | 35 |
| Almonds, soft shell... | 4 | — |
| Raisins, M R, ½ box... | 4.15 | — |
| Layers... | 4.85 | — |
| Lem's Sicily ½ box... | 11.50 | — |
| Malaga, ½ box... | — | — |
| Oranges, ½ box... | 7.00 | — |
| Sicily ½ box... | — | — |
| Glass, ½ box of 50 feet... | — | — |
| French, 8 x 10... | 3.75 | 4.00 |
| 10 x 12... | 4.25 | 4.75 |
| 12 x 18... | 5.75 | — |
| Grain, ½ bushel... | 1.00 | 1.80 |
| Malt, Western... | 1.90 | 2.00 |
| Oats... | 75 | — |
| Corn, shelled ½ bushel... | 14.00 | 16.00 |
| Hops, ½ lb... | 7.50 | 8.50 |
| Gunny Bags, ½ bag... | 24 | 25 |
| Hay, Western, ½ ton... | 24.00 | 25.00 |
| Northern... | none | here |
| Louisiana... | none | here |
| Hides, ½ lb... | 19 | 22 |
| Dry salted Mexican... | 10 | 10½ |
| Wet salted, city slaughter... | 11 | 11½ |
| Kip Skins... | 11 | 11½ |
| Wool, ½ lb... | 16 | 18 |
| Pelts ½ piece... | 10 | 12 |
| Iron, Pig ½ ton... | 10 | 12 |
| Country, Bar ½ lb... | 5 | 5½ |
| English, ½ lb... | 5 | 5½ |
| Hoop, ½ lb... | 7 | 10 |
| Sheet... | 7 | 10 |
| Bolter... | 8 | 9 |
| Nail Rods... | 12 | 14 |
| Iron Cotton Ties... | 12 | 14 |
| Castings, American... | 7½ | 8 |
| Lime, Western ½ hbl... | 2.50 | — |
| Rockland, ½ doz... | 2.75 | 3.00 |
| Cement... | 2.50 | 2.85 |
| Molasses, ½ gallon... | 52½ | 55 |
| Louisiana... | 52½ | 55 |
| Moss, ½ lb... | 34 | 35 |
| Gray, Country... | 44 | 45 |
| Black do... | 44 | 45 |
| Select, water rotted... | 6 | 6½ |
| Nails, Am. 4 d, ½ lb... | 6 | 6½ |
| Wrought, English... | 16 | 20 |
| Naval Stores, ½ hbl... | 18 | 20 |
| Tar... | 4.00 | 4.00 |
| Pitch... | 3.50 | 4.00 |
| Rosin A No. 1... | 3.50 | 4.00 |
| No. 2... | 3.25 | 3.75 |
| Spirits Turp ½ gallon... | 2.30 | 3.50 |
| Varnish, bright... | 1.10 | 1.15 |
| Oil, Lard ½ gallon... | 58 | 60 |
| Coal Oil... | 64 | 65 |
| Cotton Seed, Crude... | 85 | 85 |
| Cotton Seed, Refined... | 1.00 | 1.05 |
| Tanners' ½ gallon... | 37.50 | 37.50 |
| Cotton Seed... | none | here |
| Provisions, ½ hbl... | 23.00 | 24.00 |
| Beef, Mess, Northern... | 16 | 17.50 |
| Do, Western... | 10.00 | 11.00 |
| Dried, ½ lb... | 25.00 | 28.00 |
| Tongues ½ doz... | 10.00 | 11.00 |
| Pork, Mess ½ doz... | 25.00 | 28.00 |
| Prime Mess ½ doz... | 25.00 | 28.00 |
| Hog, round, ½ lb... | none | here |
| Bacon, Hams, ½ lb... | 24 | 25 |
| Do, canvassed... | 24 | 25 |
| Shoulders... | 20 | 21 |
| Green Shoulders... | 16 | 17 |
| Lard, Prime, in tierces... | 14½ | 15½ |
| Do, in kegs... | 14½ | 15½ |
| Butter, Northern... | 28 | 36 |
| Do, Western... | 18 | 24 |
| Cheese, American... | 8 | 18 |
| Onions, ½ hbl... | 4.00 | 5.00 |
| Apples... | 3.50 | 5.00 |
| Rice, ½ lb, Louisiana... | 9 | 12 |
| Do, Carolina... | 10 | 10½ |
| Salt, refined, ½ lb... | 14 | 15 |
| Crude... | 13 | 15 |
| Salt ½ sack... | 13 | 15 |
| Liverpool, fine, warehouse... | 2.45 | 2.50 |
| Do, coarse, cargo... | 2.10 | 2.15 |
| Do, from warehouse... | 2.30 | 2.40 |
| Turkey Island, ½ bushel... | 8 | 10 |
| Soap, ½ lb, Western... | 8 | 10 |
| Northern... | 8 | 10 |
| Southern... | 8 | 10 |
| Castile... | 18 | 19 |
| Sugar, Louisiana, ½ lb... | 15½ | 17½ |
| In the city... | 15 | 16½ |
| Havana, White... | 13 | 14½ |
| Yellow... | 12 | 13½ |
| Brown... | 12 | 13½ |
| Tobacco, in hbls, ½ lb... | 16 | 20 |
| Choice and Selectious... | 15½ | 18 |
| Fine Leaf... | 11 | 12½ |
| Medium Leaf... | 11 | 12½ |
| Fair Leaf... | 11 | 12½ |
| Common Leaf... | 12½ | 13 |
| Good House... | 5 | 6 |
| Common House... | 5 | 6 |
| Tobacco, Cut... | 5 | 5½ |
| Balling... | 10 | 12 |
| Washed, ½ lb... | 27 | 30 |
| Bury... | 10 | 12 |
| Louisiana, Native... | 15 | 21 |
| Texas, ½ doz... | 21 | 24 |

ADVOCATE CALENDAR, 1867.

| MONTH. | Sunday. | Monday. | Tuesday. | Wednesday. | Thursday. | Friday. | Saturday. |
|--------|---------|---------|----------|------------|-----------|---------|-----------|
| JAN. | 6 | 7 | 8 | 9 | 10 | 11 | 12 |
| FEB. | 3 | 4 | 5 | 6 | 7 | 8 | 9 |
| MAR. | 1 | 2 | 3 | 4 | 5 | 6 | 7 |
| APR. | 1 | 2 | 3 | 4 | 5 | 6 | 7 |
| MAY. | 1 | 2 | 3 | 4 | 5 | 6 | 7 |
| JUNE. | 1 | 2 | 3 | 4 | 5 | 6 | 7 |
| JULY. | 1 | 2 | 3 | 4 | 5 | 6 | 7 |
| AUG. | 1 | 2 | 3 | 4 | 5 | 6 | 7 |
| SEPT. | 1 | 2 | 3 | 4 | 5 | 6 | 7 |
| OCT. | 1 | 2 | 3 | 4 | 5 | 6 | 7 |
| NOV. | 1 | 2 | 3 | 4 | 5 | 6 | 7 |
| DEC. | 1 | 2 | 3 | 4 | 5 | 6 | 7 |

RANDOLPH MACON COLLEGE, VA.

The next session of this Institution commences on the 19th September, 1867. As evidence of her success as an educator of young men, she points to her graduates all over the South. No location surpasses this in point of health. The town of Boydton and surrounding country has but one physician, and he is but half employed. In addition to the schools of Moral Philosophy, Ancient Languages, Mathematics, Natural Philosophy and Modern Languages, we have also a school of Commercial Science, in which are taught the branches of a business education. Young men attend any schools they wish, and get a showing for whatever they accomplish. It is our intention hereafter, to fill up our vacations with a special session, so that young men can review any studies they wish, but more particularly to teach English grammar, Commercial Arithmetic, Book-keeping, Penmanship, and Commercial Law. Thus, our students can take the Literary and Scientific course during the session, and get a practical instruction in business during the vacations. The Special Session in vacation covers the heated term in the South when business is over, and young men already engaged in business can come here to perfect their knowledge of Commercial Science, and return to the South in time to resume business.

Expenses for ten months, including meals, use of furniture, (averaged), fuel, lights, washing, matriculation and contingent fee, tuition in three schools, as to occupy the student's whole time—$300, one-half payable at the commencement of each term.

A daily line of hacks, Sundays excepted, runs from Monrovia station (Richmond & Danville Railroad) to Boydton. Send for circulars.

Randolph, Macon College, Boydton, Mecklenburg Co., Va., July 20, '67.

Thos. C. JOHNSON, President.

SOUTHERN UNIVERSITY, GREENSBORO, ALA.

FACULTY.

Dean W. M. Wightman, D. D., LL. D.

Rev. E. W. Wadsworth, A. M., D. D.

Rev. J. C. Wills, A. M.

Rev. T. Lupton, A. M.

The next session of this Institution will begin on the first Wednesday in October next. Instruction will be given in the Schools of Ancient and Modern Languages, Moral Philosophy, Mathematics, Chemistry, Natural Philosophy, and Biblical Literature.

The Preparatory School will be under the direct supervision of the Faculty.

The Session is divided into two terms.

Tuition in University per term, $40.00

Incidental fee, 5.00

Tuition in Preparatory school per term $30 to $35

Contingent fee, $2.50

Board, exclusive of washing and lights, $20 to $25 per month. All dues invariably in advance.

July 27th O. F. CASEY, Sec. Faculty.

WOODVILLE FEMALE SEMINARY.

WOODVILLE, MISSISSIPPI.

Will begin its Third ANNUAL SESSION on Wednesday, September 25th, 1867, and close it on the First Wednesday in July, 1868.

CHARGES PER HALF SESSION.

BOARD IN PRIMARY GRADE, $150

" MIDDLE GRADE, 30

" COLLEGIATE GRADE, 50

MUSIC with use of Piano, 45

ORNAMENTALS AT FAIR PRICES.

For particulars send for Circular to W. T. J. SULLIVAN, Principal.

THE BRANCH OF THE SOUTHERN METHODIST PUBLISHING HOUSE, AT 112 CAMP STREET, IS READY TO FILL ORDERS FOR THE LATEST REVISED EDITION OF THE DISCIPLINE, WITH THE PARAGRAPHS RELATING TO LAY REPRESENTATION.

24 mo. muslin 60c.

Sent by mail 70c.

Prices for other qualities of binding, unchanged.

Also a doctored Edition of the Discipline with large margins for the convenience of those who wish to make notes.

Roan $1.50

Turkey Morocco 2.00

Sent by mail for 20 cts additional.

Also just received.

THE SUNDAY SERVICE, ordered by the late General Conference.

Sheep $1.25

Roan 1.50

Roan 2.00

Turkey Morocco 2.00

S. S. Bells (single) $1.25 per doz.

(Double) 6.00

Sent by mail for 20 cts additional.

July 13 R. J. HARR, Agt.

ST. LOUIS MUTUAL LIFE INSURANCE COMPANY.

GEO. H. LUCAS, Vice President.

Office No. 44 Camp Street, New Orleans.

July 13

J. R. POWELL, COTTON FACTOR.

AND COMMISSION MERCHANT.

190 Common Street, NEW ORLEANS.

W. R. STUART, NEW ORLEANS.

Represented by CAPT. J. A. BINFORD, Duck Hill, Miss.

S. H. KENNEDY & CO., General Commission Merchants, Cotton Office—102 Common Street—New Orleans.

W. C. TOMPKINS, Wholesale Dry Goods, No. 2 Magazine St., corner Canal, New Orleans.

A complete assortment of goods constantly on hand for the country trade.

PAYNE, HUNTINGTON & CO., Cotton Factors, No. 39 Union Street, NEW ORLEANS.

J. U. PAYNE, G. W. HUNTINGTON, W. H. DAMERON, H. M. PATRICK, Je23-1y

G. M. STEIRER & CO., GROCERS, 572 and 574 Magazine Street, (opposite Magazine Market).

Have always on hand, a large and fresh assortment of Tea, Coffee, Sugar, Bacon, Canned Fruits, Fish, Pickles, Sauces, and preserves.

CHOICE GOSHEN BUTTER, Goods delivered free of drayage; Particular attention given to PLANTATION and FARM orders.

D. A. BLACKBURN, OUN C. K. B. BLACKBURN & MILLER, COTTON FACTORS, General Commission Merchants, 13 ST. CHARLES STREET, NEW ORLEANS.

B. S. HARPER & CO., Cotton and Tobacco Factors, AND GENERAL COMMISSION MERCHANTS, No. 81 Carondelet street, New Orleans.

S. M. SWENSON, N.Y., late of Austin, Tex., W. M. FLEMING, D. L. PERKINS & CO., General Commission Merchants, No. 48 Carondelet, corner of Union and New Orleans.

SWENSON, PERKINS & CO.,

NEWS FROM THE CHURCHES.

For the N. O. Christian Advocate.

FROM THE BACKWOODS.

Mr. KOTTER.—I have heard people say a great deal against the itinerant system of our Church, and even I myself thought that it operated injuriously in the large cities, but I am now cured of all that. Indeed, no one was happier than your humble servant when, two weeks ago—the time when in New Orleans, the present epidemic first assumed its present fearful dimensions, he found himself an itinerant, with permission to look for some its ad system.

When embarked on the Ella May, the steamship which bore me and wife across the Ponchartrain, I made inquiries about the people of Covington, for this was the place of our destination. Being at once taken for a clergyman, my informant gave me all the current items pertaining to church-matters. All the denominations, I was told, were doing well, but the Methodists—they being the scum of the community.

Need I tell you, that this allegation is basely false? "Scum!" Would God that every community had such scum! "Scum!" Yes, I have known some such: they were guilty of deeds for which they would have been turned out of Church had they not in time, in order to "rise in society," joined elsewhere. Scum! Doubtless the Methodist Church is full of scum if, as the insolent aristocrats will have it, the poor and working classes among us are scum.

I'm proud of being a Methodist; for the narrated incident is only another proof that our Church is doing a noble work by following the footsteps of Christ. They that are whole need no physician; nor did Christ disdain to dine with Publicans and sinners. May our preachers never cease diligently to seek "the lost sheep, of the house of Israel," no matter how poor or socially insignificant they may be!

Bro. Vickers of the Miss. Conference, is doing here a fine work. Bro. Nickolson is the Presiding Elder. Both are greatly esteemed for their piety.

Long live Methodism at Covington!

Yours in Christ,

J. B. A. ARENS.

September, 20th 1867.

La Placa, Ala., Sept. 20th, 1867.

MR. EDITOR.—I have thought it might do good to give you an account of the work of God in this circuit. The Heavens have dropped fatness upon us.

Third Saturday and Sabbath in July, Bro. John C. Carter, formerly of the Alabama Conference, held a meeting at Creek Stand. I joined him on Sunday night, and the work continued for more than three weeks, resulting in 30 conversions, and the addition of 28 members to the Church. Leaving Bro. Carter in charge of the meeting, the writer left the second week for the Quarterly Meeting at Cotton Valley. Their P. E. Bro. Andrews was taken sick on his way thither, but Bro. Blue joined me on the following Monday, and the Local Brethren Bros. Tatom, Menefee and Park co-operated nobly, and the work went bravely on. This was the most wonderful meeting I ever attended. Three men, respectively 55, 65 and 73 years of age were driven from their worldly fastness. Two have joined the Methodist Church. The other, the Presbyterian. I have never seen such days of power as those on which the two eldest found Christ. The first was converted on the first day of the Week of Prayer. The second on the seventh day. The whole church on its knees from Oregon to Florida! No wonder that he, that had passed the usual line of mortal life found peace. Wave after wave of joy passed over the congregation for hours together.

Never shall I forget those days of power.

Now, the two waves meet at Warrior Stand, for it is between the two Churches above named. Bro. Carter goes ahead to begin the battle there as agreed on between us. We found "a people prepared unto the Lord." It was continued for more than two weeks, by Bro. C. and others, though the Pastor was compelled by sickness to retire after a nine days engagement. Bro. J. Motley, of Tuskegee, Bros. Park, Menefee and G. Carter helped in the good work at different times. Result about 20 conversions, from 60 years and downward.

Now while we are on the Southern part of the works, Bros. Zachary and Bradford kindle a fire at Carr's school house, and receive seven members into the Church.

Returning from the District Meeting at Auburn, on 7th Sept., we entered into a meeting already begun by preconcerted arrangement. The prospect was unfavorable to sight, but faith faltered not. Monday morning at Prayer-meeting 3 mourners came forward, were converted, and we had to call for a new supply, when 9 or 10 came very promptly. They sought the place where the Lord worked. The meeting has been going on now two weeks with unflagging interest, resulting in about 25 or 30 conversions. I received 18 into the Church last night, of whom there was 6 heads of families, ranging from 28 to 50 years of age. One a physician is the most active convert I have ever seen for he warns every man, and teaches every man day and night, privately and publicly.

Bishop Wightman stopped with us two days at La Place, and preached two sermons full of unction and power, which had a fine effect on the community. He left the meeting here, in the hands of Bros. J. Motley, Zachary and Green, who with other brethren came to our support.

We omitted to state that the work at Creek Stand embraced persons from 15 to 55 years. Family altars are being reconstructed, and we have great reason to hope that this gracious work will be abiding in its results.

We have written this account that it may encourage other pastors, and stimulate our Local Brethren to rally to the support of the pastors, as my good brethren have done. All honor to them. We have work ahead of which we may drop you a note.

We hope the Lord will send out some preachers from these meetings. Yours,

B. B. ROSS.

Tuskegee Circuit, Montgomery

Conference.

Vernon, La., Sept. 15th 1867.

DEAR BROTHER.—We have just closed quite an interesting meeting in this place, at which there were several conversions and accessions and the Church greatly revived. The Lord has done great things for us, whereof we are glad.

Your Bro. Thos. J. URRON.

Yazoo District—Miss., Conference.

MR. EDITOR.—I closed my second round of Quarterly Meetings on the second day of June. Nothing of unusual interest occurred during the quarter. We had some conversions and accessions, delightful love-feasts and refreshing communion seasons. The services could not be protracted, except in a few instances, as it was impracticable for the people, in the country, to attend on account of the pressure of work on their farms; yet quite a desire was manifested to wait upon God in the sanctuary. I know young ladies who, now, walk three miles to attend church, and an aged lady seventy-nine years old, who walked five miles to worship with God's people. At one of my appointments, on Sabbath afternoon, three young ladies were converted and united with the church, and though quite a revival interest was manifested, the meeting could not be protracted. I have been able to meet all my appointments but the one at Greenwood on the Yazoo River, which occurred during the unprecedented overflow. The town was under water, and the people had to either abandon their homes or live above stairs, but few of the dwellings being above water. The water was above the floor of the church, and if I had reached the place, by going through the swamp six miles in a boat, nothing could have been accomplished by the trip.

I closed my third round of Quarterly Meetings on the 8th inst. This being the season when the people are more at leisure, we were enabled to protract more of the meetings, and have had some gracious revivals.

Our District Meeting, which I will notice more fully in another communication, was continued eleven days and resulted in twenty-six or more conversions and nineteen accessions. The meeting of Fletcher Chapel, Mount Olivet Circuit, was continued six days resulting, in twelve conversions, nineteen accessions.

An incident occurred during this meeting worth relating. Bro. Wade, Preacher in charge, and myself visited a family on the kind invitation of the son-in-law, who felt a deep solicitude for the spiritual welfare of the family. The parents were members of the Church, but the children, several of whom were grown, with others connected with the family, were unconverted. They had not attended the meeting for want of conveyance, the vehicles being out of repair. One of the young ladies had united with the Church a few weeks previous, but had not been converted. The warm and cordial reception with which we were greeted made us feel at home, and our visit will long be remembered. Before evening prayers I took occasion to speak to the daughter who had united with the Church, on the subject of religion, and found her anxiously seeking salvation; and through her learned something of the spiritual condition of the family. At family prayers we took occasion to turn the services into a prayer-meeting, and before the exercises were closed, two of the daughters were converted, and all deeply and seriously impressed. We rejoiced and the good sister with others shouted the praise of God. One of the daughters with a countenance beaming with religious joy, said, "I have heard of this, and have dreamed about it, but never felt it before. I am happy." The next day the carriage was repaired, and the family went to Church; and before the meeting closed five of the family were converted, and ten are now members of the Church. We should be instant in season, and we should pray for, and expect conversions at the family altar.

The meeting at Mount Carmel, Yazoo Circuit, was continued seven days, and resulted in twelve or thirteen conversions and sixteen accessions to the Church. At Yazoo City the meeting continued about a week, and there were five or six conversions and two added to the Church. This meeting ought to have been protracted longer, but I had to leave, and additional help could not be procured.

Having one Sabbath intervening between my third and fourth rounds, I held a two days meeting for the colored people on the Bee Lake work, about twenty-two miles above Yazoo City on Yazoo River. I have a Local Preacher and several Exhorters there (all colored) who have been doing all the work that has been done during the year. I was unable to procure a preacher for them at our last Conference. They must, if possible, be supplied the coming year. I found them getting on finely, and had with them an interesting meeting. I baptized some adults and many children. There were about thirty accessions. The Preacher and Exhorters have their stated appointments. On one plantation a Church has been erected, in which a day school as well as a Sabbath-school is held, taught by a colored man who is teaching in the valley and who is also a preacher. And I have one who will apply for Deacon's orders at the next Conference. As early as practicable this people must be furnished with preachers of their own color.

I have heard of revivals in various parts of the District, but cannot report the number of conversions or accessions. At the close of my fourth round I may be able to make a full report.

The corn crop in this section is sufficient for the year's supply. The army worm is injuring the cotton crop materially. They will probably diminish the yield one third. The upland will I think, not exceed one fourth bale to the acre, and the valley will yield probably one half or two-thirds to the acre. A fatal disease has made its appearance among the stock, and the planters, especially in the valley, are losing their mules, cattle, and hogs. Some have lost all, and have not sufficient to haul their cotton to market. The cholera has subsided, but chills and fevers are prevalent.

I reached home yesterday, and leave tomorrow on my fourth round. Yours fraternally,

J. M. PROH.

Sharon, Miss., Sept. 12th 1867.

Ramer Circuit, Mont. Conf. Sept. 26th, 1867.

MR. EDITOR.—I have just closed a series of meetings on my Circuit, which has resulted in the addition of thirty-six members to the church, most of whom profess conversion, and the Church which was in a cold and backsliding state, has been graciously revived; and the people both in and out of the Church are eager to hear the word of the Lord preached. God be praised for such gracious visitations.

Yours in Christ. J. J. TATUM.

Homer, La., Sept. 21st 1867.

MR. EDITOR.—We held a meeting at Pisgah Church, of nine days continuance, embracing the first and second Sabbaths in this month, at which fifty-four (54) professed faith in Christ. Bro. Gordon, (Local) was present all the time and labored zealously and effectively. Bro. Davidson of the Presbyterian Church was present much of the time, and rendered us valuable assistance for which we were very thankful, and the Master will no doubt reward him. We left Pisgah on Friday, in charge of Bro. Gordon and Davidson. I repaired to Lisbon, where we labored in conjunction with Bros. Williams, Aklu and Clements five days. The Church was somewhat revived, and penitents presented themselves at the altar for prayer. We have just returned from a meeting at Haynesville, on Bro. Haslip's Circuit, at which ten professed religion and eleven joined the Church.

Yours truly, N. A. CRAVENS.

From the Good Words.

UNWHOLESOME WORDS.

CONTINUED FROM LAST WEEK.

The habit of depreciation makes us think ill of men; the habit of complaint makes us think ill of God. It is at least as bad to disparage God's goodness as to disparage human worth. No doubt every man has his troubles. It requires little ingenuity to find them out. The greenest pastures are not always fresh; the stillest waters are not always clear. Until we reach the land where God shall wipe away all tears from all eyes, and where "there shall be no more death, neither sorrow, nor crying, neither shall there be any more pain," it is in vain to expect perfect freedom from small anxieties and vexations, or any lengthened exemption from great troubles. The sun shines and the storm darkens on the evil and the good; the rain falls in kindly showers and in destructive torrents on the just and the unjust; and there are times when every man is ready to hate life, and to exclaim that all is vanity and vexation of spirit. But to be perpetually moaning and uttering words of complaint, is to permit a canker-worm to eat away the heart of gratitude and to ruin all our joy. The cheerful acknowledgment of God's bounty is an element of holiness, and the spirit of thankfulness confirms faith, and makes the fire of love burn more brightly. But there are some people with whom it is almost impossible to live without being infected with discontent. Their words are sighs; they look despair. Their calamities are "new every morning." Their disease is contagious, and only a vigorous constitution can escape unharmed. If it is an evil thing to forget God's mercies, and to have our joy in his love repressed, those who are habitually complaining are guilty of speaking "unwholesome" words. "Is any afflicted? Let him pray."

Then there are words which are properly called worldly, and which are most "corrupt" and mischievous.

By "worldly" conversation; I do not mean what some good people mean when they condemn it. Talk about music, and art, and politics; and literature, is in itself not a whit more worldly than talk about cotton and hardware, duties and discounts. There may be as much "worldliness" in conversation about ecclesiastical affairs as in conversation about dress, or about a flower-show, or an archery meeting. It is the spirit, not the subject of our words which determines their moral character.

Of course, if a man has never looked on the face of God, and does not live under the control of the realities of the invisible world, his conversation will show no trace of faith in the Divine and the Eternal. Where the faith does not exist in the heart, it cannot be revealed in the words. But some men are hypocrites to their own hurt and disparagement. With a deep and vigorous religious life they affect the manner of those who have no religious life at all. They like to travel incognito, and it cannot be said that their "speech bewrayeth them." They really care very little about the vanity of splendid furniture, but they sometimes talk as though human life had no higher end than to patronise upholsterers. They seldom think of their wine except when it is on the table; but they affect to be as absorbed in the discussion of bouquets and vintages as though they thought that to keep a good cellar is the supreme felicity of man. They have nothing of the epicure about them; but they pretend to an infinite interest in the science of cookery. In ethics they catch the tone of "society." Scrupulously honorable themselves, with a pure heart and an intense abhorrence of trickery and fraud, they half profess to accept a conventional morality which they inwardly despise. They are ashamed of their native dialect, and speak the language of the Philistines. Instead of letting their real life live in their words, they disguise the "good fruit" which is natural to them, under habits of speech of a meaner growth. They too—so it would appear—believe there is nothing sacred in human nature, and nothing awful in human destiny.
They are guilty of speaking "unwholesome" words. All words which are not true to the whole nature of the man who uses them are "corrupt," and words like these are, as the old writers would say, impertinently bad. Few of us, I am afraid, are so good that it is at all necessary for us to conceal our goodness. We may let what faith we have, color and shape our speech, without claiming transcendent saintliness. This "voluntary humility" has pride at the bottom of it. It gratifies our self-conceit to feel that we are better than we seem.

The harm which the affectation of worldliness inflicts on others is obvious. Men are in sufficient danger of forgetting God for it to be needless for those who remember Him to enter into a conspiracy to exclude all recognition of Him from their common speech. When, in the words of those who profess to be devout, there is no reflected light from heaven, unbelievers will be likely to maintain that faith in heaven is all a dream. It is not necessary to ask every man we meet to lay his hand on our breast that he may feel the beatings of our heart and know that we are alive unto God; but to affect the appearance of death, not to suffer the life which is in us to give color to the face and animation to the eye—this is to do our best to persuade the world that spiritual death is the universal condition, and that "the gift of God" of which we speak is unreal.

Just now, one of the most prevalent forms which this ignoble affectation assumes, is habitual flippancy and frivolity. Men do not care to seem too much in earnest about anything. Politics and religion—the social condition of the people—the morality of business—are all treated as though they were materials for jesting. Get at the heart of the very men who are guilty of this trifling, and you will often find that they have strong convictions, and that when there is need of hard work and self-sacrifice in a good cause they are ready for both. The "curled darlings" of the clubs fought like heroes at Inkermann and Balaclava. But it is the manner of the world to speak of nothing seriously, and so men invest their firmest convictions with fantastic and grotesque absurdities. We have had a "Comic History of England" in our time, and there are some men—not quite destitute of religious earnestness—who talk so lightly about religion when they talk of it at all, that they ought not to be shocked if some one published a "Comic Description of the Final Judgment," or a "Comic Summary of the Four Gospels." This incessant rattle and reckless jesting must, in the long run, lessen a man's own sense of the real gravity of human life, and it is certain to impair the strength and authority of the moral convictions of those who are always listening to it. It is as absurd as it is injurious. I suppose, had he chosen to do it, the wits of Charles's Court, and beaten them with weapons like their own, but of a more dazzling blade—a keener edge, and finer temper—treated this folly with the severity and contempt it deserves. He says that "to affect, admire, or highly value this way of speaking" (either absolutely in itself, or in comparison to the serious and plain way of speech) and thence to be drawn into an immoderate use thereof, is blameworthy. A man of ripe age, sound judgment, for refreshment himself, or in compliance to others, may sometimes condescend to play in this or in any harmless way, but to be fond of it, to prosecute it with a careful and painful eagerness, to dote and dwell upon it, to reckon a brave or a fine thing, a singular matter of commendation, a transcendent accomplishment, anywise preferable to rational endowments, comparable to the moral excellencies of the mind (to solid knowledge or sound wisdom, or true virtue and goodness), this is extremely childish or brutish, and far below man. What can be more absurd than to make a business of play, to be studious and laborious in trying to make a profession or drive a trade of impertinency? What more nonsense can there be than to be earnest in jest, to be continual in verbiage or constant in padding to make extravagance all our way and sauce all our diet? Is not the plainly the life of a child, that ever busy yet never hath anything to do? or the life of that which brute, which is always active playing uncouth and unlucky tricks which could it speak, might pass well for a professed wit?

But very religious words are also "corrupt." They are more than corrupt, if they are spoken with conscious insincerity; where there is no deliberate hypocrisy, they may be so exaggerated and unreal as to do more harm than the grossest worldliness. We good men, who have no great religious fervor, use fervent language which they have caught from others or which was the natural expression of what they felt in other better years, they cannot tell a disastrous impression it produces upon keen and discriminating minds. The cheat is at once detected, and the hasty inference drawn that all expressions of religious earnestness are affected and artificial. The honest and impressive utterance of strong conviction and deep emotion commands respect; but intense words are never to be used when the real life is not intense. Borrowed rhetoric and remembered passion are no use. The language of earnest feeling must be "when it is 'corrupt,' a healthy nausea it is as repulsive and wholesome, and is in danger of guarding with disgust what looks at all like it in all its come.

Happy are the friends of whose conversation "grace to the hearers." It may be always serious and grave, and dance and sparkle like a mountain stream, but it is always pure and innocent; it may not be so soft and gentle, but when it is as rough it is as bracing as north wind; it may not always be "instructive," but it is healthy as the scent of the hyacinth and cheerful as the song of the sun, musical as the song of the and the rustling of pines and sound of running waters. When it touches on the deeper subjects of human thought, it is as real as a mother's talk to her every word is sweet and honest. Next to the interior communion of the Holy Ghost, it is the solace in times of trouble; and to the words of Him who speaks man never spake, it is the most gentle, and yet the most electric stimulus to well-doing. No unadorned eloquence from the pulpit penetrates so deeply as the earnest words of a living, talking alone to the man he loves. Most of us need to be better than we are to speak after the manner to the people about us. We may all watch against "communications," and we cannot speak "wholesome" words we may at least be silent.

R. W. L.

FORTY-EIGHT MISSIONARIES.

or three days ago I took up ing paper, which stated that missionaries had left the Boston on the 5th inst. for foreign stations, but chiefly and India. A young student them from Chicago said that class there were eighteen had determined to become aries. What a joyful news!—forty-eight mission-at devoted to Christ—all pre-this month to enter the fore-perhaps, the domestic work.

Dedication of Antietam Cemetery.

The National Intelligencer in an editorial notice of this event, has copied the following poem, which was written by Col. Theodore O'Hara, in August, 1847, for the dedication of the monument erected in the cemetery at Frankfort to the memory of Kentucky's dead who fell in the Mexican war. Col. O'Hara served on the staff of Gen. John B. Breckinridge during the late war. He died a few months ago at Mobile. The poem is worthy of the occasion:

The muffled drum's sad roll has beat
The soldier's last tattoo;
No more on life's parade shall meet
The brave and daring few.
O'er time's eternal camping ground
Their silent tents are spread,
And glory guards with solemn round
The blood of the dead.

Answer of the foe's advance
How swells upon the wind;
No more thought at midnight haunts
Of loved ones left behind;
No vision of the morrow's strife
The warrior's dream alarms;
No hallowing horn nor screaming file
At dawn shall call to arms.

Their shivered swords are red with rust;
Their plumed heads are bowed;
Their haughty banner, trailed in dust,
Is now their martial shroud;
And plenteous funeral tears have washed
The red stains from each brow,
And their proud forms, in battle gashed,
Are free from anguish now.

The gleaming sword, the flashing blade,
The trumpet's stirring blast,
The charge, the shout, the cannonade,
The din and tumult, are past.
No war's wild note, nor glory's peal,
Shall thrill with fierce delight
Those breasts that nevermore shall feel
The rapture of the fight.

Like the dread Northern hurricane That sweeps his broad plain,
Flashed with the triumph yet to gain,
Came down the serried line.
On either side the shock, and leapt
To meet them on the plain,
And long the plying sky hath wept
Above our gallant slain.

Sons of our consecrated ground,
Ye must not slumber there,
Where stranger steps and tongues resound
Along the heedless air.
Your own proud land's heroic soil
Shall be your latter grave;
She claims from war her richest spoil—
The ashes of her brave.

So 'neath their parent turf they rest,
Far from the gory field;
Borne to a Spartan mother's breast,
On many a bloody shield.
The machine of their native sky
Smiles sadly on them here,
And kindred hearts and eyes watch by
The heroes' sepulchre.

Rest on, embalmed and snuffed dead!
Dear as the bloody grave;
No impious foot-trode here shall tread
The herbage of your grave;
Nor shall your glory be forgot
While fame her record keeps,
Or honor points the hallowed spot
Where valor proudly sleeps.

Ye marble minstrel's voiceless tone
In deathless songs shall tell,
When many a vanquished age hath flown,
The story how ye fell.
Nor wreck, nor change, or winter's blight,
Nor time's remorseless doom,
Shall dim one ray of holy light
That glows your glorious tomb.

From the Old Guard.

Reminiscences of the Late Bishop Soule.

BY REV. W. F. SANFORD, LL. D.

The death of Rev. Joshua Soule, D.D., the senior bishop of the Episcopal Methodist Church, calls to mind many interesting incidents in his life. A really great and sublimely good man was he!—"a prince in Israel." In 18—, the bishop presided over the Georgia Conference. The father of the writer, who was a presiding elder, urged the bishop to release him from "the district," and appoint him to "a circuit." The good shepherd, who had the tenderest regard for his flock, and a high opinion of my father's fitness for his office, begged him not to persist in his too modest choice of work. Inflexible, however, as gifted and modest, he did persist, and Bishop Soule reluctantly consented to relieve him, and appointed him to a circuit. Ten years afterwards the venerable man returned to preside over another Conference in Georgia. My father, who loved him with the utmost devotion, called at his room, as soon as he heard of his arrival, to embrace him. The bishop met him at the door, and, extending his hand in the warmest salutation, said: "Good morning, Brother S—, God bless you! I hope you are now willing to resign your place on the district!" All the stirring events and variety of scenes through which he had passed, during the long intervening years, had not effaced the impression of this official act, or abated the interest he had in the welfare of the church involved in it. He resumed the conversation while he and my father had left it ten years before! Touched by the incident, my father quickly replied: "Yes, bishop, if you still think so,

I will go upon the district," and he accordingly went!

Bishop Soule was once treasurer of the Missionary Society in New York, and followed by a suspicious man, through a narrow street, on a dark night, as he returned to his lodgings from a meeting of the society, with the money that had been collected in his possession. He was once relating the incident to an interested group of ministerial brethren, among whom was a well-known non-combatant advocate of the passive submission doctrine. "And, bishop," inquired the man ready to "turn the other" when "smitten on one cheek," "If that man had attacked you, what would you have done?" "He did attack me," said the bishop. "He turned square upon me at one corner of the street, and demanded the money." "What did you do?" simultaneously asked half a dozen of the listeners. "I lifted myself up to my full height, and looked at him." "Did you say nothing?" still inquired they. "Not a word," he replied. "Suppose the man had seized you, or struck you, and had attempted to forcibly deprive you of the money, what would you have then done?" Very deliberately turning to his passive brother, he calmly replied: "Some people believe in non-resistance, under whatever circumstances. I should not have given the robber the Lord's treasure." After a short pause, he added: "It would have been dangerous for him to have attempted it. Was I right, brother?" "I think so," replied the meek disciple. "I think so too," said the bishop.

A distinguished minister, who was a rather over-zealous opponent of tobacco smoking, Dr. H., was one day in conversation with the bishop. A polite friend offered the doctor a cigar; rejecting it with a stern refusal, almost bordering upon rudeness, as if insulted by the offer, the doctor said, with rather startling emphasis: "I never smoke!" The good-humored, venerable man held out his hand, saying: "Give it to me, brother; I always do!" A holy and devoted man, and minister of God, he was without taint of Puritanism or Phariseism. He was always calm. When after the division of the Methodist Episcopal Church, he became identified with the Southern branch of it, he was bitterly denounced by the northern papers. Dr. Capers, then editor of the Southern Christian Advocate, published in Charleston, S. C., began to defend him. "Let them alone, my good Brother Capers," wrote the noble and unselfish old Christian hero; "I can take care of myself—I my record is with God. They cannot carry the unbrotherly persecutions into heaven!"

I have thought one of the most touching scenes of moral sublimity which ever transpired on this Continent was exhibited by Bishop Soule during his visit, in extreme age, to the infant church in California. He had dined with a Christian friend from the old States, under the shade of a broad tree, and the repast being ended, he rose from the table, and, turning his face, upon which had beamed so many Atlantic storms, towards the calm Pacific, which lay out before him, so like a prophecy of the eternal rest to which he was hastening, and, as introductory to the pastoral prayer he was about to offer, in that rural household, repeated and sang the affecting hymn of Dr. Watts, beginning:

"Thus far the Lord has led me on,
Thus far His power prolongs my days."

Let some one of our best painters attempt the picture!

Deeply affected as he always was, by the evidences of affection which his brethren could no more withhold than the elders of the Church at Ephesus, who "wept sore, and fell upon the neck of St. Paul," and "kissed him," could refrain from "sorrowing most of all for the words which he spoke, that they should see his face no more," he yet had a profound contempt for flattery. A striking illustration of this occurred when a foreign Minister of the United States Government, who had then recently returned from Europe, told him that he "greatly resembled in his person the Duke of Wellington." "Ah," said the Bishop, "I have been often told so," and made no farther allusion to the subject. His manner was such that the distinguished official felt rebuked into silence. The fact is, the good bishop felt it to be no compliment to be told that he was like anybody but St. Paul or John Wesley, and these comparisons humbled him into the dust, and melted him to tears. His eloquence was solemn and impressive, deriving its beauty from its simplicity, and its power from the force of truth and the genuineness of his spirituality. The best illustration of it I can call to mind is an almost literal extract drawn from memory of his Episcopal address to the preachers of the Georgia Conference many years ago, when their "appointments were read out." Looking with ineffable affection upon them, as if they were his own children, he exclaimed: "Dear Brethren!—You go not, like the knights of chivalry, to disturb 'the sepulchre of Christ' with clamorous war, but to proclaim the saving power of His cross and the triumphs of His resurrection; you will not expect the plaudits of an admiring world; you will not court its wealth; you will despise its slothful ease and wicked pleasures. It is sufficient that the servant be equal to his master. You will embrace death itself rather than fail to declare 'all the counsel of God.' The powers you combat are more terrific and implacable than any of earthly potentates; the interests you champion sublimer than any which ever entered into the conception of human statesmanship. Remember that your weapons 'are not carnal,' nor your ministry one of cunning diplomacy. The one is 'powerful to the pulling down of strongholds,' and the other 'yea and amen' in Christ the Lord, now and forever! Brethren—beloved soldiers of the 'Prince of Peace'—I witness to you to-day, in my infirmity, that the glorious 'Captain of our salvation' will go before you in all your wanderings, and stand by you and support you in every trial of your faith and strength. 'Lo, I am with you always!' You will hear the reassurance of His ever presence, whispering its gladdening echoes in the silence of the desolate mountains, in the noisy thoroughfares of the great cities. For more than forty years have I gone up and down, to and fro, over this Continent, proclaiming Jesus and the resurrection, pointing-discussing sinners to their crucified 'Friend' and eternal High Priest in the heavens. Since I began my course, O! what an army of preachers and people have gone with their triumphant songs and banners of love into the mansions of the ever-blessed! I have preached in all the great cities, from Boston to New Orleans, being made partaker of all the comforts their wealth could supply, and all the rational pleasures of refined society. I have rolled through their avenues in the splendor of their princely equipages, and slept in their stately parlors, upon cushions of down, feasting, in moderation, I hope, with thankfulness, upon the luxuries of every clime. I was happy, not in worldly condition, for I have coveted no man's silver or gold, or apparel, but in the word of His grace. I have gone into the most desolate regions of our frontiers, among the Indian tribes, taking my solitary way through the pathless wilderness, living precariously, am sleeping with my saddle-bags for my pillow, and no covering but the curtains of the sky, in the midst of perils by day and night. I declare to you to-day that I have been just as happy in one place as another. No earthly conditions have ministered to, or marred the sustaining power of the great commission: 'Go preach!—Preach My gospel!'

The effect was complete. The preachers were inspired; their banners were blessed; they were ready to count all sufferings "gain." For a moment, the bishop paused; then, elevating himself to the height of his imposing manhood, while his features glowed in the light of his divine philosophy, he lifted his hand towards heaven, and, in slow and solemn tones, concluded his address with this sublime declaration: "Forty years ago, I determined that the absence of that which could not make me happy should not make me miserable!" Search the records of antiquity for a sentiment worthy to be compared with that! I know nothing like it. God have mercy on a world of which such a man as Joshua Soule can die without producing the profoundest grief! Verily was he a "minister of God"—an "ambassador of heaven!"

ACROSS THE SIERRA NEVADA.—The great tunnel of the Central Pacific Railroad at the summit of the Sierra Nevada Range is opened. The truck is being laid on the eastern slope, a locomotive is already running in the Truckee valley, and in a few days the road will have reached the open country of the Salt Lake Basin, after which progress will be rapid and easy. This overcomes the only noticeable obstacle on the Western portion of the through line; and its significance is understood when we are told that the cost and difficulty of grading the 150 miles now nearly completed are greater than for the 650 miles next following. The Chief Engineer expects to average a mile a day across the interior valley next year. The local traffic on the completed portion surpasses all previous estimate, and is lucrative without the immense through business which we may expect to flow over it.

You can never catch the word that has once gone out of your lips. Once spoken, it is out of your reach; try your best, you can never recall it. Therefore, take care what you say. Never speak an unkind word, an impure word, a profane word.

WADE HAMPTON'S VIEWS.

The following is the concluding portion of "Wade Hampton's letter," published recently in the Southern papers:

WHAT WILL BE GAINED BY CONCESSION?

But to return to the subject of the Reconstruction act, from which this digression has led me. What inducements do the advocates of these measures hold out to us to accept them? Can they promise us peace? Look at Tennessee, and learn what kind of peace we are to have. Can they promise us an acceptable State constitution—one that will not be interfered with by Congress? Look at Delaware, Maryland and Kentucky, three "loyal" sovereign States—which are to be put on trial before a star chamber committee, on the charge of not having republican constitutions. Can they promise a restoration of the Union?

The Radical rulers expressly declare that their measures are not "finalities." Can they promise, even that doubtful good, representation in the Congress of the United States? I refer you to Kentucky, whose representatives are ignominiously rejected, because rebels voted for them. But suppose that the State accepts the terms proposed by the military bills; that she agrees to the permanent and total exclusion from her councils of the intellect, the experience, the wisdom and the patriotism which, in times past gave her history; that, instead of these noble qualities and virtues, she commits her political destinies to the guidance of ignorance, inexperience, folly and radicalism; that she adopts a constitution disfranchising forever the men who in obeying her command to defend her, believed that they were serving God; that she—

"Buys—ignominious purchase—short repose, With dying curses and the groans of those
That served and loved, and put in her their trust."

Suppose she does all these things, and that the Radicals then graciously permit her to send her representatives to Washington, from what class will she select the men who are to fill the places once honored by Lowndes, Calhoun, McDuffie, Preston, Cheever, Hayne, Huger, and their glorious compeers? The same body which has shown such wisdom and magnanimity in framing these Reconstruction acts, that are to bring us so many blessings in their train, gives you the answer in the following act of Congress:

"I. Hereafter any person elected or appointed to any office of power or profit under the Government of the United States, either in the civil, military or naval departments of the public service excepting the President of the United States, shall, before entering upon the duties of such office, and before being entitled to any of the salary or other emoluments thereof, take and subscribe the following oath: 'I do solemnly swear that I have never voluntarily borne arms against the United States since I have been a citizen thereof; that I have voluntarily given no aid, countenance, counsel or encouragement to persons engaged in armed hostility thereto; that I have neither sought nor accepted, nor attempted to exercise, the functions of any office whatever, under any authority or pretended authority in hostility to the United States; that I have not yielded a voluntary support to any pretended government, authority, power or constitution within the United States, hostile or inimical thereto. And I do further swear, that to the best of my knowledge and ability I will support and defend the Constitution of the United States against all enemies, foreign and domestic; that I will bear true faith and allegiance to the same; that I take this obligation freely, without any mental reservation or purpose of evasion; and that I will well and faithfully discharge the duties of the office on which I am about to enter—so help me God!' And any person who shall falsely take the said oath shall be guilty of perjury, and on conviction, in addition to the penalties now prescribed for that offense, shall be deprived of his office, and rendered incapable of ever after holding any office or place under the United States."

BETTER NO REPRESENTATION THAN FALSE REPRESENTATION.

Is representation in Congress so very desirable, that we should send men there who can take that oath, rather than that we should remain unrepresented longer? Can the people of the State trust those who could or would take it? For the honor of our State, I should prefer that she should not be represented in the halls of Congress until her delegates, can enter them as free men, representing a sovereign State, with all her "dignity, equality and rights unimpaired," when that day comes, there may be a restoration of the Union in fact, as well as in theory; when North and South, forgiving the past, even if they cannot forget it, may meet as equals on some common ground, where the honor, the rights and the feelings of both can be recognized and respected. But until that day does come, in the words of Patrick Henry, "Gentlemen may cry peace! but there is no peace!"

CONTINUED MILITARY RULE BETTER THAN VOLUNTARY ACCEPTANCE.

It is scarcely necessary for me to say that, entertaining the views I have expressed, I think it far preferable the State should remain in its present condition, under military rule, than that it should give its sanction to measures which we believe to be illegal, unconstitutional and ruinous. It is my honest and firm belief, that the voluntary acceptance of these measures by our people would surely bring, not only to the South, but to the whole country, evils far greater than any we have yet suffered. The North, flushed with success, and drunk with power, may not be able to realize this fact; but as surely as the South falls a victim to irresponsible and unlicensed power, so surely will the North lose its liberties. Ruin to the South will react on the North, and if we are crushed into the dust, the Northern people will see but the foreshadowing of their own certain doom. Recognized, as an established principle, the right of any political party that may be in the ascendancy to fix upon all who differ with them laws unauthorized by the Constitution of the United States, and we shall begin that downward career which will lead us steadily, through confusion, anarchy and blood, to the certain overthrow of republican institutions and free government. Believing this, I regard it the duty of every man, in the exercise of the right accorded to all by these military bills, to oppose their adoption by all lawful means. As the people have the privilege, then, of expressing either assent or dissent on this question, I advise them, earnestly, to record the latter as fully and solemnly as possible. Let every man register, and cast his vote against the convention, since the question will be made on that issue.

These, gentlemen, are the conclusions to which I have been brought by the most anxious consideration of those "important matters soon to be submitted to the people of the State." They have been laid before you at greater length than I intended, but it seemed to me best to let you have my premises, as well as my conclusions, in order that you might judge of the correctness of both. I can only declare that I have discussed this momentous question with the single desire to arrive at the truth, and I hope that it has at least been discussed in a temperate and dispassionate spirit.

The New York Herald on the Louisiana Election.

WASHINGTON, Sept. 27.—As an illustration of the arguments upon which the elections in Pennsylvania, Ohio and New York are expected to turn, the following, from to day's Herald is telegraphed:

THE ELECTION IN LOUISIANA TO DAY. The negro supremacy views of Congress will be carried into practical effect in the State of Louisiana to-day. From early dawn this morning until to-morrow evening, eighty-three thousand semi-savages will go up to the polls, led by unprincipled white men, and, by sheer force of numbers, sweep from power the wealth and intelligence of the State. The thirty-five or forty thousand whites who have been permitted to register will, we are told, content themselves with simply depositing the votes against a convention, thus protesting against the execution of a political doctrine they had no power to avert, and the success of which they feel assured will entail irreparable injury upon themselves and their posterity. The call for a convention having thus been carried by the negro hordes, let us see of what material the convention itself will be composed. Not a prominent Louisiana will be there. Not a man of standing in the community. The Republican nominees, who will certainly be elected, stands as four negroes to three whites, four illiterate, semi-barbarous negroes, to three white adventurers. This will be the composition of the convention called to frame a constitution for the State that gave a Taylor for President of the United States. Is not this entire thing utterly revolting? Can we of the North palatably swallow so gigantic a fraud upon rights, and so beastly a caricature upon human liberty? Forty five or fifty negroes assembling in convention, to do what? To perform an act of the very meaning of which they are most ludicrously ignorant. And who are their assistants? A handful of white men whose very course in consenting to such an affiliation stamps their characters as being thoroughly worthless. There is one instinct which cannot be eradicated from the mind of a white man, and that is the supremacy of his race above all others. Prejudice against color is but the natural instinct of the superior against contamination, and try what theorists may, the barriers which caste in that sense has erected, can never be broken through successfully. The present force in Louisiana will be successful for a while, but the signs of the times too plainly indicate that the hour is approaching when it and all other kindred dogmas will be swept away in the torrent of public indignation. We cannot stand quietly by and witness the debasement of our own race in Louisiana. California, Connecticut and Maine have already rebuked the effort at negro supremacy before its practical effects have been seen, and we tell the Radicals of these United States that their cheers of joy at the success of their dogmas in Louisiana, this day will be answered back by the people of the loyal North in October and November next in such tones of indignation and disgust as will inform the world whether our recent war was fought for the preservation of the Union, or for the exaltation of the negro and the enslavement of men of our own color.

From the London Times, Sept. 9.

American Reconstruction.

The complication in the domestic affairs of the United States was never more remarkable than at the present moment. The work of reconstruction has not actually made progress, for all sections of parties admit that the framework of society in the Southern division of the Union is as much deranged now as it ever has been. Government by the bayonet and the forcible suppression of thought, which every reflecting man in the country heartily deprecates and even the most extreme regard with secret aversion and misgiving, seem likely to be extended through the present generation. The longer a rule of this kind is maintained the more difficult it becomes to terminate it, because the discontent which it excites renders severe repressive measures indispensable. The American people are at length accustomed to a state of affairs from which they would formerly have turned with indignation—to the existence on their continent of a purely military government over ten millions of their fellow citizens, whose representative men are put under a ban, who are not only excluded from the federal legislature and federal offices, but are deprived of all voice in the government of their several States. The community which is subjected to this treatment accepts it without murmuring, but the passive attitude of submission into which it has fallen is even more unpromising for the peace and welfare of the country than open resistance. Forbidding opposition, if any could be made, might easily be quelled; but when one-third of a great nation, whose concurrence in the general government is necessary to its prosperity and security, declines to take any part in it and sits down in listless indifference or despair, either coercive or conciliatory measures will prove unavailing. The Southern people say that since Congress has determined that the negroes must govern, so shall it be, but they will not give their sanction to the proceeding by recording their names in an assured minority at the polls. There are not many even in the radical party who look with satisfaction on the probably perpetual estrangement of the Southern people, and the incorporation into the main structure of the government of the five military districts which have virtually superseded ten organized states.

ROBERT PEEL AND JOHN WESLEY.—The father of distinguished statesman had a high esteem for the great Methodist leader; and Mr. Dunn gives the following incident in their intercourse:

When the first Sir Robert Peel was solicited to give ground for a Wesleyan chapel at Tamworth, near to which was his mansion, he said to the applicants, some of whom were his own workmen, "My lady, do not build your chapel too large; people like to go to a little chapel well filled better than a large one half full. Often go into your chapels at Manchester, Liverpool, and London, and have no wish to find myself alone in a large pew, and pointed at as Sir Robert Peel." He also added, "I have left most of my works in Lancashire under the management of Wesleyans; they make most excellent servants. Also, when I resided in Lancashire I asked Mr. Wesley, at one of the Manchester conferences, to come to breakfast with me. He agreed, on condition that he might bring some of his children, and he brought thirty-six preachers with him." Wesley refers to the occasion in his journal thus: "August 27, 1787, I was invited to breakfast at Borby by Mr. Peel, a calico printer, who, a few years ago, began with five hundred pounds, and is now supposed to have gained fifty thousand pounds. O what a miracle if he lose not his Official Organ of the Montgomery, Mobile, Mississippi, and Louisiana Conferences of the M. E. Church South.

Office: 112 Camp Street.
 TERMS OF SUBSCRIPTION:
THREE DOLLARS A YEAR.
 Invariably in Advance.
 Address: REV. J. C. KEENER,
 112 Camp Street, New Orleans.
 AGENTS:
 All the Members of the Patronizing Conference.

PUBLISHING COMMITTEES.

FOR MOBILE CONFERENCE:
 Rev. J. Hamilton, D.D.,
 Rev. A. H. Mitchell, D.D.,
 Rev. Theo. W. Dorman, D.D.
 FOR MONTGOMERY CONFERENCE:
 Rev. M. S. Andrews,
 Rev. William A. Shepard,
 Rev. J. B. Cottrell.
 FOR MISSISSIPPI CONFERENCE:
 Rev. W. H. Watkins, D.D.,
 Rev. H. H. Montgomery,
 Rev. William P. Barton.
 FOR LOUISIANA CONFERENCE:
 Rev. J. C. Keener, D.D.,
 Rev. J. B. Walker, D.D.,
 Rev. Linus Parker.

New Orleans:
 SATURDAY, OCT. 5, 1867.

To SUBSCRIBERS.—Any person wishing to subscribe for this paper can do so, by paying the Methodist preacher in the circuit, and forwarding to us his receipt for three dollars, with the address of the subscriber upon it, stating Post office, State, Circuit, and Conference. The receipt ought to be taken in duplicate.

Mrs. SARAH ANN ROBERTSON, the wife of Captain R. L. Robertson, departed this life in this city, on September 29th, in the 62d year of her age, after a long and painful illness.
 She died in peace, strong in hope, and faith. Her generous, patient loil, as the friend of the Orphan, and her faithfulness in the service of the Saviour, as a member of the Church of Christ, are appreciated by a large circle of bereaved friends, and will receive hereafter a more minute and extended notice.

New Orleans Daily Mortuary Report.

Dr. Dirmeyer, Secretary of the Board of Health, furnishes the following daily report of deaths in the city, beginning with Aug. 12th, at 6 A. M.:

| Date | Yellow Fever. | Cholera. | Other Diseases. | Total. |
|-------------|---------------|----------|-----------------|--------|
| Aug. 12.... | 2 | 0 | 26 | 28 |
| " 13.... | 5 | 1 | 27 | 33 |
| " 14.... | 6 | 1 | 31 | 37 |
| " 15.... | 2 | 1 | 22 | 25 |
| " 16.... | 1 | 1 | 33 | 35 |
| " 17.... | 5 | 2 | 20 | 27 |
| " 18.... | 6 | 2 | 31 | 39 |
| " 19.... | 12 | 0 | 22 | 34 |
| " 20.... | 11 | 2 | 19 | 32 |
| " 21.... | 10 | 0 | 13 | 23 |
| " 22.... | 4 | 0 | 23 | 27 |
| " 23.... | 7 | 1 | 19 | 27 |
| " 24.... | 10 | 1 | 29 | 40 |
| " 25.... | 14 | 1 | 17 | 32 |
| " 26.... | 15 | 1 | 22 | 38 |
| " 27.... | 14 | 0 | 22 | 36 |
| " 28.... | 15 | 0 | 17 | 32 |
| " 29.... | 20 | 0 | 27 | 47 |
| " 30.... | 26 | 0 | 25 | 51 |
| " 31.... | 22 | 1 | 19 | 42 |
| Sept. 1.... | 17 | 0 | 18 | 35 |
| " 2.... | 30 | 1 | 22 | 53 |
| " 3.... | 25 | 0 | 29 | 54 |
| " 4.... | 26 | 0 | 16 | 42 |
| " 5.... | 44 | 0 | 22 | 66 |
| " 6.... | 39 | 0 | 24 | 63 |
| " 7.... | 43 | 0 | 23 | 66 |
| " 8.... | 49 | 0 | 17 | 66 |
| " 9.... | 51 | 1 | 26 | 78 |
| " 10.... | 42 | 0 | 18 | 60 |
| " 11.... | 67 | 1 | 18 | 86 |
| " 12.... | 61 | 1 | 27 | 89 |
| " 13.... | 43 | 0 | 21 | 64 |
| " 14.... | 41 | 0 | 23 | 63 |
| " 15.... | 53 | 0 | 27 | 80 |
| " 16.... | 50 | 0 | 30 | 80 |
| " 17.... | 68 | 0 | 34 | 102 |
| " 18.... | 46 | 0 | 24 | 70 |
| " 19.... | 65 | 0 | 37 | 102 |
| " 20.... | 66 | 0 | 25 | 91 |
| " 21.... | 64 | 0 | 32 | 96 |
| " 22.... | 69 | 0 | 44 | 113 |
| " 23.... | 77 | 0 | 35 | 112 |
| " 24.... | 82 | 0 | 33 | 115 |
| " 25.... | 68 | 0 | 50 | 118 |
| " 26.... | 57 | 2 | 24 | 83 |
| " 27.... | 77 | 0 | 30 | 107 |
| " 28.... | 67 | 0 | 36 | 103 |
| " 29.... | 61 | 0 | 32 | 93 |
| " 30.... | 64 | 0 | 34 | 98 |
| " 31.... | 63 | 1 | 34 | 97 |
| Oct. 1.... | 54 | 4 | 38 | 96 |
| " 2.... | 56 | 2 | 39 | 97 |

A NEW CABINET.—The Pittsburg publishes the following telegram.

WASHINGTON, Oct. 3.—I have authority for saying that the President, convinced that his enemies, and the enemies of the constitution and the Union, are not to be overcome by passive measures, has determined to adopt a more active and decisive course. In pursuance of this determination, he has begun by arranging an entirely new Cabinet, which will be thoroughly Democratic, the members of which are pledged to resist the suspension of the President, should the aggressive Congress be mad enough to resort to such an act.

The new Cabinet will not be announced until after the ensuing fall elections, which occur before Congress meets.

There are breakers ahead for the Radical party, be assured.

It is officially announced that the Prussian government intends to extend the telegraphic system to every town with a population of one thousand five hundred. The extension will first commence in the province of Saxony.

"GHASTLY DEATH."

The immediate passages by which the spirit approaches the invisible world, and prepares for a new state of existence, are painful to contemplate. The Body resolutely clings to its companion and will not loosen, without violence, its grasp upon its long-wedded spouse. The Soul, weeping, attempts to pass quietly out by every avenue of sense, but in vain. Then comes the breaking up, more terrible just as the union has been well knit. At last, life retires firmly, steadily, and leaves one part of the body after another to the pressing force of the natural elements, as an army falls back before the foe through a city, leaving in his possession one street after another full of beautiful houses. The work of destruction goes on almost in sight of the departing spirit. The rounded form now sinks and shrivels, its elasticity and action cease, and it falls into a mere weight of confused matter. It has no longer power over the air, or any force. Its wonderful instruments of vision have in a moment lost their refracting power, their lenses are blurred and incapable of admitting one single ray of light. Its inviolated galleries of sound no longer lead to the soul, or read the quick vibrations of the atmosphere. The month now hangs open, it utters no strong persuasive thoughtful word, nor sends forth upon a breath of roses and jessamine the prolonged thrilling measures of song. Its voice went out in low gurglings and now seems hushed forever. A single day has wrought such havoc with this sacred temple of the soul, that now it is loathsome with the smell of death, and is so devoid of all spirit, life, and consciousness that the vilest insect attacks it and feeds upon it without disturbance. The tenant has gone, and taken with him all that was desirable: the tree has been hewn down at the roots: the stream is cut off from its fountain: the dismantled, abandoned hulk rolls heavily upon the deep and is breaking up.

These forms we most delighted in, in a few hours lose their pleasant warmth, their color, and all their sweet attractions, and their presence has become insupportable. We feel instinctively as the Patriarch Abraham, towards the body of his beloved Sarah: "Let me bury my dead out of my sight;" we shut them up from "the warm precincts of the cheerful day."

This condition of the body inanimate is a powerful argument in the mind against its immortality. The thought that, "By this time he stinketh" made it quite impossible for Martha to realize that her brother could "live again." And surely there is no force of reasoning, or lessons from human experience that can convince us of that sublime possibility: but the approach of Jesus, and the presence of Jesus at the tomb; his word of power, "come forth!"—the actual reappearance of him "that was dead" standing there, bound hand and foot with grave-clothes, the face covered about "with a napkin;" surely nothing else but this, and scarcely this may be sufficient. In all this doubt of our dying nature, we have more than the resurrection of Lazarus to confirm and establish the power of Jesus over the grave. He himself died at the hands of the public executioner, to make it certain to us that He did die; and then He came forth out of a tomb guarded by the public seal, to make it also sure to us that He has arisen. The body of Christ awakened, moving, moving freely, with liveliest action; his voice again heard in its well known tones blessing and teaching; his hands offered for inspection; his "bones and flesh;" his standing in the "upper room;" or by the seaside conversing, eating, working miracles, as he was wont: this is strong, sufficient, clear assurance that a body once touched by His Spirit can survive the grave.

Purged of the elements of death, "this temple" rises in now splendor, as the city of jasper, pure and strong, descending from Heaven, all beautiful as a bride adorned for her husband. So this ghastly appearance of our dead shall be changed; whatever fate may await other particles of matter the bodies of the saints have been made immortal by the indwelling spirit of life from the Saviour. The life of faith does not die itself, and the body in which it lives, it can also preserve ultimately and forever.

"Corruption, earth, and worms,
 Shall but refine this flesh,
 Till my triumphant spirit comes
 To put it on afresh."

THE REV. LEOPOLD LENZ.

On Sabbath last, the 29th ult., about the time of the offering up of the evening sacrifice, this patient servant of God ceased to breathe. He suffered little pain during his whole sickness, and his dying was attended with scarcely a convulsive tremor. The last word upon his lips was the name of his beloved wife; she had died the week before, exclaiming—"Do not grieve, my husband, you will soon be with me." In about a week after her death he was taken with yellow fever. The attack was a violent one from the beginning, aggravated by a dose of salts and seina, unfortunately taken by him as a preventative, a few days previous. All that kind attention and medical skill could do was done. The congregation to which he was sent had, even in so short a period, learned to admire the modest, patient worth of both husband and wife,—and now waited with tender solicitude around his bed. The writer was in the room, waiting upon him, when that symptom occurred—terrible as the shaking of Death's dart. "That looks like black vomit," he said. And so, indeed, it was, pouring forth as dark and clear as strong coffee. Patents sometimes recover after vomiting for days—we knew one or two such cases in 1853—so that all the known remedies were persistently used to save him, lime water, beef tea, peppermint, champagne, brandy, &c., but in vain; he lived only thirty hours. During his sickness he remarked once that a sick bed would be a poor place to prepare for death; beyond this scarcely a word was uttered by him in those long hours; all the while he was heavy with the sleep of death. He was transferred to the Louisiana Conference from the Baltimore Conference last March, and came to this city, accompanied by his devoted wife, four weeks ago. He was appointed to the Saraparu street German church. He preached but twice.

As far as we can learn, he was a native of Barmen, Germany; about 32 years of age; had been preaching some nine years within the bounds of the Baltimore Conference. When the major part of that body adhered to the Church South, he accompanied it. He possessed dignity of manner, christian zeal, and unaffected piety. His ministry has been highly successful, and he had an excellent art of winning the interest and affection of those with whom he labored.

There seemed as if open to him an "effectual door;" and is if he had just entered upon his proper sphere of usefulness; but—

"The Lord's appointment is the servant's hour."

He was buried in the same tomb with Rev. Elijah Steele, and Rev. Wm. F. Brown, both of whom fell victims to the yellow fever while in the morning of life, and after a few months of labor in this city. The very same sexton who twenty-six years ago, in the month of September, entombed the remains of the youthful Steele, now performed the same office for the body of our beloved Lenz.

We hope that the brethren of Baltimore who are conversant with the religious history and personal traits of this heroic, godly pair will contribute to their memory a more accurate notice, and communicate the sad intelligence to their surviving friends.

We venture as a tribute to this devoted minister and wife to publish the following letter of condolence from Dr. Huston, which came, alas! too late.

BALTIMORE, Sept. 26th, 1867.

REV. LEOPOLD LENZ.

Dear Bro: I have just this minute heard of the death of my devoted and heroic sister, your dear wife. You had not got out of the Chesapeake Bay, before I would have given everything I possessed, to have had you both back; for, in the interval, I had a letter from my sister-in-law, stating that the fever was really bad. That was the first news to that effect that we had received; and I knew when she said it was bad, what to understand.

We offer you, dear brother, our sincerest sympathy, and shall remember you earnestly in prayer to God. I know that no words of human kindness can do you good now, but beg you to remember that it has some good and great meaning in it. You both went to New Orleans to glorify God, and he will accept the will and deed, and one of these happy days indemnify you for this great loss. A notice will appear in the "Episcopal Methodist."

Bros. Poissal and G. G. Smith, who are in the office, join in assurances of earnest, brotherly sympathy, love and prayer.

My heart prays, again and again, that God may comfort and preserve you, my dear afflicted and bereaved brother.

Very affectionately and sorrowfully your brother.

LORENZO D. HUSTON.

THE PUBLIC SCHOOLS.

During this week Judge DuPlantier has decided the School question: maintaining the Old Board of Directors in their rights; ruling that their successors had not yet been appointed, and that in fact there was no vacancy. The ordinance dissolving the Board is a nullity, because it lacked the constitutional majority. He also decides that the ordinance repealing former school ordinances are nullities because passed, signed, and promulgated in an illegal way.

The school system has thus been saved from the destructive and degrading policy adopted by the City Aldermen and inaugurated by Gen. Sheridan. Thanks to the firm resistance of gentlemen of the School Board and the Courts, this purpose of placing white children under the control of black Directors, and black teachers, has for the present, been foiled. The success of this course will we trust induce our people not to abandon their rights, but to calmly, and by due course of law, maintain them against all attempts, military, and other, to override the law and the constitution of the country.

VOMITO NIGRA.

The New York Times, a Radical sheet, begins to see the true effect of an attempt to place the whole population in the South under the control of the blocks. A system of Registration which registers thousands of negroes and but few white men which secures in ten States Negro Congressmen, Negro Aldermen, Negro Recorders, Negro School Directors, Negro Juries, and Negro voters, to the exclusion of all the really intelligent, tax-paying, white citizens, will after a white correct itself. The Radical party already gives signs of being violently seized with Black vomit.

"That the public mind has become disgusted with the extreme measures of many prominent men in the Union party we have little doubt. The evident determination of some among them not only to secure the colored race in the enjoyment of equal rights but to give them absolute ascendancy in the government of the country, has repelled very many who have hitherto acted with the Republican party. There is no doubt, moreover, that the violence and reckless partisanship which has marked much of the action, and more of the speeches of Republican leaders, the disregard of constitutional obligations, the manifest determination to keep political power in their own hands by whatever means, and the evident purpose to exclude the Southern States from the union until they can rely on their support of the most radical measures of public or party policy, have caused very many members of that party to distrust the wisdom and the patriotism of those who have usurped its leadership and control."

YELLOW FEVER.

We gather from the Planters Banner the following sad items of information as to the ravages of this pestilence in the Attakapas country.

Last week three worthy citizens of New Iberia fell by that ruthless destroyer, the yellow fever. We refer to Dr. Hilliard, Harvey Hopkins and J. Lloyd Lewis. Many a heart is pained by the loss of these estimable citizens of our neighboring town. Anguish, deep, bitter, and poignant, has taken possession of the hearts of their bereaved families, and none but those who have tasted bitter griefs, from whom the idols of their hearts have been ruthlessly torn never more to be restored till the graves give up their dead, can know the depth and bitterness of that anguish. Deeply and sincerely do we sympathize with these grief-stricken. Other families have suffered as much, but their lists of acquaintances are not so large, and their bereavements are not so extensively known.

We have been furnished by a friend with the following list of deaths at St. Martinville, to the 16th instant: Dr. B. J. Salles, child of Z. Doncet, Pouponne (freedwoman), C. Neven, C. H. Eastin, Mmc. Jean Billeaud, J. J. Neven, Jr., Mmc. Theogene Judice, Miss Ermina Patin, Dupre Patin, Moise Dugat, P. Z. Doncet, Miss Adaline Martin and of Z. Doncet. Total—16.

New Iberia, Sept. 23.—The following in relation to the fever at Vermilionville, is an extract from a private letter dated Sept. 22:

"Eighty-nine cases yesterday, and fifty-two sick. Great distress here. Only two hundred people in town, black and white."

We sent more nurses up this morning. The Texas papers are filled with long lists of the dead—victims of yellow fever.

Death of Ministers by Yellow Fever.

The Texas Christian Advocate announces the death of several Ministers of our Church by yellow fever—men of much experience and usefulness.

REV. W. M. LAMBIN, D. D.—The Waco Register, of the 11th inst., received just as we go to press, brings us the mournful intelligence of the death of Rev. William McK. Lambin, D. D., at his home in that place. Many hearts in Texas will feel sad when they read these words. Another good man has fallen, and the N. W. Texas Conference will mourn the loss of one of her most able and devoted members. May God sustain his family under this heavy stroke. This has been to us a sad week. The ways of God, though mysterious to us, are always wise and kind.

GOD Buries HIS WORKMEN, &c.—In another column may be found an appropriate tribute to the memory of Rev. Q. M. Meniffee, Preacher in charge, of LaGrange station, Texas Conference, who has fallen a victim to yellow fever, which is desolating many homes in that beautiful town. A dispatch just received from Prof. W. J. Hancock, informs us of the death, on the 14th, by the same disease, of the Rev. Wm. Rees, of Houston station. Only one week before his death Bro. Reese had been called to mourn the loss of his wife. Their parting was brief.

We have been associated with both these brethren in the work of the ministry, and can estimate the great loss the church has suffered in their death. They were able and faithful ministers of the word of God.

"God buries His workmen, but carries on His work." We cannot doubt this truth, yet it takes all our faith to accept it just now. The scourge has rested heavily upon us; W. T. Harris, from Lavaca, J. P. Perham, from Corpus Christi, and now Bros. Meniffee and Rees—and the scourge is yet upon the land. While we write these lines the calls to bury the dead, and visit the sick and the dying are coming in. A quiet, more solemn and impressive than Sabbath stillness, is in our midst. The bells are not rung, lest their tones disturb the sick, and no funeral note is sounded that, more quietly and promptly, we may bury our dead. The watchers, pale with watching, stand by the sick bed and wipe the foam from the quivering lips of the dying. The good and the bad go down together. God help us! Who will next be called?

THE EPIDEMIC AMONG THE PRIESTS.—Eight Catholic priests, Fathers Seclers, Jacobs, Meredith, Weidhart, of St. Alphonsus church, Fathers Ryan and Smith, of St. Joseph church, Father Coppens, of the Carrollton church, also the assistant priest of St. Augustine's church, of this city, are prostrated with the yellow fever.

Lay Brothers Gerard and Lawrence, of the Redemptorist order connected with the St. Alphonsus church, died on Friday. N. O. Republican.

From the N. Y. Herald, 24th.

The Yellow Fever.

LECTURE AT BELLEVUE COLLEGE BY PROFESSOR WARREN STONE, OF NEW YORK.

A lecture was delivered day morning, at Bellevue College, professor Warren Stone, of New York, on yellow fever, its origin, and treatment. There was usually large attendance of students and the medical profession of the city was also well represented. Professor began by saying the low fever was a disease peculiar to warm climates, and was the of something purely atmospheric, and which totally differed from other known causes of disease, filth of cities and unhealthy surrounding, though of course would render the disease more likely lowering the vitality and never generate yellow fever. fever, frequently attached to heatless locations, and neglected did not seem to be a presence. Whenever the spread throughout the country, it was invariably not it raged with yet greater violence and severity than in the cities believed yellow fever to originate some peculiar condition of the atmosphere, and to be spread by personal infection, but by transmission through the sphere of the poison which created this peculiar and dangerous disease. He was especially that it should be understood the fever was not personally contagious, because of its bearing the quarantine question, and to prevent the needless alarm which many persons were when yellow fever was discovered in their houses. He had not New Orleans that business compelled to go through the of the city where yellow fever raged, would be attacked, their families, who resided in the city, or in a healthy place, to which the atmosphere had not spread; would escape, though they dwelt for days in same house with the persons with the disease. At the Hospital there were at one time many patients, and nurses scarce, that the filth created patients could not be cleared away. If yellow fever contagious every one ought to then to have caught the fever, but instead of that they fell with a peculiar disease, which resembled house fever, so mon in the army hospitals regard to the best treatment yellow fever, he said most had an idea that yellow fever a violent disease, and could be controlled and mastered by remedies. The best treatment, his opinion, was that which the least annoyance to the patient allowed him to remain in and composed as possible, being taken to properly nourish with articles of diet easily assimilated, such as beef tea and similar. Many physicians erred in even good remedies too far. undoubtedly well to encourage moderate perspiration and keep patient warm, but it was necessary and injurious to bring on excessive sweating, and the thing applied in many other respects.

The following telegram from N. O. Republican, is important showing what the Radical toward the President expected.

WASHINGTON, October 1. Johnson no longer conceals his programme in case of impeachment. He contends that the president not be suspended from his office during the charges and trial impeachment, and that the Congress allows a removal of the official only after a conviction.

He says if he is impeached will maintain his constitutional rights and hold on to the until a judgment is rendered by thirds of the senators ordered removal, and in the mean will resist by physical force a violation of his rights.

Congress will, however, a bill providing for suspension officers immediately on a petition of articles of impeachment the house of representatives soon as this bill becomes a judiciary committee will press charges and evidence against president and demand his removal. A vote of the house of the report will of itself be the president.

General Grant and the commanders, and both congress will then recognize B. F. Wade only as president withstanding the threats of Johnson and Governor Swain.

The City Council of Mobile have presented the colored lot or which to erect a school for their children.

Serious rows between sold freedmen are becoming quite mon in Augusta and Atlanta.

MARRIED.

On the 15th September, in the Church, in Vernon, La., by Rev. J. Upton, Rev. JOEL SANDERS, county, Texas, and superannuated, to Miss HATTIE BURNETT, of the Louisiana Conference, to Miss H. ASHLEY, of Jackson Parish, residence of the bride's mother, on the 5th of September, by Rev. W. B. DENNIS, Mr. GREENBURY, to Miss HATTIE BURNETT, all of Burnett County, Ala.

Rev. W. B. DENNIS, at the residence of Mr. Samuel S. Comwell, on the 25th of September, Mr. A. ROBY, to Miss J. ADRAIDE, all of Burnett County, Ala.

At the Graceland Methodist Church, on the 1st of October, by Rev. Robert J. Harp, to Miss S. BRENFORD, to Miss EMILIE, daughter of William G. Chapin, of this city.

OBITUARIES.

On the 15th September, in the Church, in Vernon, La., by Rev. J. Upton, Rev. JOEL SANDERS, county, Texas, and superannuated, to Miss HATTIE BURNETT, of the Louisiana Conference, to Miss H. ASHLEY, of Jackson Parish, residence of the bride's mother, on the 5th of September, by Rev. W. B. DENNIS, Mr. GREENBURY, to Miss HATTIE BURNETT, all of Burnett County, Ala.

Rev. W. B. DENNIS, at the residence of Mr. Samuel S. Comwell, on the 25th of September, Mr. A. ROBY, to Miss J. ADRAIDE, all of Burnett County, Ala.

At the Graceland Methodist Church, on the 1st of October, by Rev. Robert J. Harp, to Miss S. BRENFORD, to Miss EMILIE, daughter of William G. Chapin, of this city.

To the candidates for admission on trial in the Mississippi Conference.

The Committee to examine you preparatory to your application will meet you at Natchez, on Monday and Tuesday, preceding the Conference, and examine you on, first, the Bible; second, Wesley's sermons on Justification by Faith, and on the Witness of the Holy Spirit; and the rules concerning the duty of a preacher as laid down in the Discipline; and fourth, a Witness Essay or Sermon.

Will Presiding Elders please to call the necessary attention to this subject.

R. ABBEY, Chm.

WANTED.

A lady to teach French, and assist in teaching music, one thoroughly qualified.

Address H. F. JOHNSON, Brookhaven, Miss.

NOTICE.

To the preachers of the Montgomery Conference.

DEAR BRETHREN: Owing to the crowded condition of our houses, I am compelled to request you not to bring your wives to Conference.

J. W. GLENN.

Opelika, Sept. 9, 1867.

Mobile District—Mobile Conference.

FOURTH ROUND OF QUARTERLY MEETINGS.

Shore & Fish River, at Donnelly's Sept 14 13
Citronelle, at Citronelle 21 22
Whistler, at Whistler 28 29
Pascagoula and Bay shore, Salem Camp Ground Oct 19 20
Ocean Springs, at Red Hill 26 27
St Stephens & State Line, Pine Grove Nov 2 3
Waynesboro, at Waynesboro 9 10
Mobile, at St. Paul's 17 18
St. Francis street Dec 1
Franklin street Dec 1

The preachers in charge are requested to be prepared with a duplicate copy of the statistics of their charge, to be furnished the Presiding Elder, according to requirements of the Discipline—See ch 2, sec 6, par 9 page 67.

THOS. W. DORMAN, P. E.

DISTRICT MEETING.

A District Meeting for the Mobile District will be held in Franklin Street Methodist Church, in the city of Mobile, beginning on Friday, before the second Sunday in October, at 9 A. M., at which, all the traveling and local preachers, and all the official members of the church in the bounds of the District, are earnestly requested to attend. Ample accommodations will be provided by calling on Doctors Hamilton and Neely. Bishop Wightman will be in attendance.

THOMAS W. DORMAN, P. E.

Homer District—Louisiana Conference.

FOURTH ROUND OF QUARTERLY MEETINGS.

Vernon Ot., at Vernon Sept 7, 8
Haynesville at Collynette 21, 22
Farmerville at Alabama 28, 29
Homer at Forest Grove Oct 5, 6
Lake Bisteneau at Ringold 12, 13
Sparta at Sparta 19, 20
Mt. Lebanon at Arcadia 26, 27
Lewisville Nov 2, 3
South Bossier 9, 10
Minden 16, 17

District Meeting at Forest Grove, seven miles east of Homer, commencing Friday, fourth of October. All traveling and local preachers, also all of the official members of the District are requested to attend.

Jno. A. MILLER, P. E.

Brookhaven Dist—Miss Conference.

FOURTH ROUND OF QUARTERLY MEETINGS.

Hazlehurst, Sept 1, 2
Chrysal Springs, at Bethesda 7, 8
Scotland col'd cir., at Gallatia 14, 15
Meadville, at Beach Grove 21, 22
Dist Meeting Hazlehurst 27, 28, 29
Holmesville, at Holmesville Oct 5, 6
Bayou Pierre, at Rehoboth 12, 13
Pearl River, at Sertains 19, 20
Bayou Chitto, 26, 27
Wesson, at Beauregard Nov 2, 3
Brookhaven, 9, 10
Scotland, at Gallatia 16, 17

The District Meeting will be held at Hazlehurst, Sept. 27, 28, 29.

G. W. MILLSAP, P. E.

Columbus District—Mobile Conference.

FOURTH ROUND OF QUARTERLY MEETINGS.

There will be a District Meeting for Columbus District, Mobile Conference, at Union Chapel, Pickens County, Ala., 8 miles east of Pickensville, and 6 miles north of Bridgeville.

All the members of Quarterly Conferences in the District are members, and are earnestly invited to attend. There will be sermons delivered on subjects, Thursday, Friday, and Saturday, at 11 o'clock, by Rev. A. S. Andrews, T. P. Crymes, and W. C. Hearn.

Members will come prepared to deliberate and report upon the various subjects of interest, usual at such meetings.

Pickensville and Carrollton Sept 21 22
Bridgeville, 28 29
Columbus Station Oct 5 6
Columbus Circuit 12 13
Corksville 19 20
Brooksville 26 27
Trinity Nov 9 10
Crawfordville 24 25
Green Dec 7 8

W. MURRAY, P. E.

Greenville Dist—Mississippi Conference.

FOURTH ROUND OF QUARTERLY MEETINGS.

On account of the great and protracted overflow of the past season, the second and third rounds on this District, were served irregularly—having to take them as I could. It being impossible to get members to attend, there can be no official District Meeting held, and the duties of that meeting will have to be performed by the Quarterly Conferences, separately.

Greenville S. M. Sept 7 8
Princeton or Leota S. M. 14 15
Cloverhill S. M. 21 22
Union Chapel, D. C. S. M. 28 29
Upper Deer Creek, S. M. Oct 5 6
Boyd's store (Tallahatchie river) S. M. 12 13
Rockuck S. M. 19 20
Indian Meeting Q. M. 26 27
Lake Lee S. M. Nov 2 3
Greenville Q. M. 9 10

The preachers in charge are requested to have all their reports, statistics, etc., as required by the Discipline, written and ready for their respective Quarterly Conferences, as this may not be supplied afterwards.

JAS. MACLENNAN, P. E.

Tuscaloosa District—Mobile Conference.

The District Conference for the Tuscaloosa District, will be held at Flat Woods, on Havana Circuit, commencing Thursday, 26th of September prox.

The Conference will be composed of all the traveling preachers and official members of the stations, circuits, and missions of the District.

The Introductory Sermon will be preached by Rev. J. C. Wills, of the Southern University, Thursday 11 o'clock A. M.

Bishop Wightman will preside.

J. L. COTTEN, P. E.

Shreveport Dist—Louisiana Conference.

FOURTH ROUND OF QUARTERLY MEETINGS.

Maay, at Fort Jessup, Aug 31 and Sept 1
Anacoco, at Holy Grove, " 7 8
Plainsville, at Beulah, " 14 15
Mansfield, at Mansfield, " 28 29
Caddo, at Greenwood, Oct 5 6
N. Rossier, at Walker's Chapel, 12 13
Shreveport " 19 20
Belle Bower " 26 27
Springville, at Springville Nov 2 3

District Meeting to be held at Mansfield, September 26, 27, 28.

B. F. ALEXANDER, P. E.

New Orleans Dist—Louisiana Conference.

THIRD ROUND OF QUARTERLY MEETINGS.

Carondelet Street, Aug 25, 26
Felicity Street, Sept 1, 2
Moreau Street, 8, 9
Jefferson City, 15, 16
N. O. Cir., Quar. Con. Advocate office, at 5 P. M. 16, 17
Ger'n Church's, at Saraput st. 22, 23
German Quarterly Conference Dryades street, 28, 29
Baton Rouge, " 3, 20
Thibodaux circuit, at Houma Oct 6, 7
Bayou Gros-Tete at Plaquemine 13, 14

J. C. KEMNER, P. E.

Natchez District Convention.

Will be held in Woodville, Miss., from Thursday, 26th, (10 o'clock A. M.) to Sunday the 29th of September next.

We deem it unnecessary to republish subjects to be reported upon by pastors, stewards, S. S. superintendents, presidents and teachers of our colleges and schools, but would refer them to a publication in N. O. C. ADVOCATE, June 8th, 1867. After deliberation, the published plan for addresses has been abandoned. There will be preaching at the usual hours, Saturday, P. M., and Sabbath day. We trust every official member on the District will be present the first day of the meeting, so as to serve on various committees, which will be needed. Respectfully,

JAS. A. GODFREY.

Vicksburg Dist—Mississippi Conference.

FOURTH ROUND OF QUARTERLY MEETINGS.

North Warren, at Oak Ridge Sept 1, 2
Port Gibson 8, 9
Fayette, at Bethel 15, 16
Horton, at Pisgah 22, 23
Cayuga, at Utica 29, 30
Raymond Oct 6, 7
Warren, at Bethel 13, 14
Rocky Springs 20, 21
Vicksburg 27, 28

Pastors will be ready with full reports of Statistics. Written reports of the condition of church property, Sabbath schools, etc., will be expected.

G. H. CLINTON, P. E.

Lake Providence Dist—La. Conference.

FOURTH ROUND OF QUARTERLY MEETINGS.

Curro Circuit, at Oak Grove Oct 12 13
Delhi Ct., at Floyd 19 20
Ion Circuit, Little Creek 26 27
Tensas and Sicily Island, at Tensas Chapel Nov 9 10
Waterproof & St. Joseph, Waterproof 23 24

The District Meeting is postponed from the 27th September to the fourth day of October, at which time there will be a Camp Meeting, at Oakley Camp-ground. Any of the preachers from Louisiana or Mississippi Conferences are cordially invited to attend.

W. G. McLAGHERY, P. E.

Yazoo District—Mississippi Conference.

FOURTH ROUND OF QUARTERLY MEETINGS.

Lexington, at Lexington Sept 14 15
Greenwood, at Greenwood 21 22
Carrollton, at Carrollton 28 29
Emory, at Emory Oct 5 6
Holmes, at Durant 12 13
Richland, at Richland 19 20
Black Hawk, at Black Hawk 26 27
Mount Olivet, at Dover Nov 2 3
Yazoo, at Midway 9 10
Yazoo City Station 16 17

APPOINTMENTS BY THE WAY.

Sweetwater, Sept 18 at 11 o'clock A. M.
Acona 18 at 7 " P. M.
Black Hawk 19 at 7 " "
Carrollton 27 at 7 " "
Validea Oct 3 at 7 " "
Durant, 11 at 7 " "
Benton Nov 1 at 7 " "

At these appointments marked with a star, I will lecture on Temperance.

J. M. POON, P. E.

NEW ADVERTISEMENTS.

JAMES A. GRESHAM.

BOOKSELLER & STATIONER.

92 CAMP STREET, New Orleans.

Would respectfully call the attention of the members of the Methodist Church to his large collection of

FAMILY, PUPIL, AND POCKET BIBLES, to his assortment of UNIONIST HYMN BOOKS, and to a collection of leading Methodist publications.

He is Agent for Gen. Hill's great Southern Magazine, the

"LAND WE LOVE," and of the RIVER SIDE MAGAZINE for children, the two best Magazines in the South.

He will furnish to his patrons any books that may be ordered—and at publisher's prices.

Oct 5

The Branch of Southern Methodist Publishing House, at 112 Camp street, is receiving large additional stock, and the Agent invites orders, especially from dealers, with whom liberal terms will be made. Catalogues will be sent to all ministers, schools, teachers, and dealers who request it.

AGENTS WANTED.—$10 to $20 a

SHUTTLE NEWSPAPER MACHINE. Price $20. It uses two threads, and makes the genuine Lock Stitch. All other low-priced machines make the Chain Stitch. Exclusive territory given. Send for circulars. S. E. HENDERSON & CO., 505 North Fourth St., St. Louis, Mo. Oct 5 3m

UPHAM'S ASTHMA CURE.

Relieves the most violent paroxysms in five minutes, and effects a permanent cure. Price $2. Sent post paid to any address by S. F. UPHAM, 25 South Eighth St., Philadelphia, Pa. Oct 5 3m

THIRD ANNUAL SESSION OF THE

Grammar and High School for Boys. (COMMERCIAL AND CLASSICAL INSTITUTE)

In charge of the undersigned and competent assistant, will be opened at 9 A. M. on Monday, Sept. 2, 1867, in the basement of the Church, at the corner of Canal and Trenchard streets, (entrance on Canal street), opposite Coliseum Place.

Pupils will be carefully trained for business purposes, or for admission to the Academic Department of the Louisiana State Seminary of Learning, or of any Southern College.

N. B. Parents who desire to enter their sons, are requested to communicate their wishes, as soon as practicable to

R. M. LUSHER, Principal.

"EVERY MONTH"

Is the titled a monthly paper which reports the sermons of the Rev. Dr. Deems, and gives the history and progress of "the Church of the Strangers." To give it a wide circulation for usefulness, the price is merely nominal: Single copy for one year, 50 cents; two copies 50 cents; five copies $1.00; if sent to one person. Specimen copies sent to any one enclosing a two-cent stamp. Address

S. F. TAYLOR, "Every Month," Sept 28 31 349 Canal street, N. Y.

THE HOME MONTHLY, New Orleans, for 1867.

The HOME MONTHLY will contain forty eight pages of reading matter, printed upon fine paper and in elegant type, and will, from time to time, be accompanied by elegant steel-plate engravings. The subscription price will be $3 per annum, or $1.50 for six months, invariably in advance. In order to build up a still larger circulation, we have concluded to offer the following

Liberal Inducements to Agents.

To any person sending us three yearly subscriptions, we will send the HOME MONTHLY one year, or allow them to retain Two Dollars and Fifty Cents of the amount.

To any person sending us six subscriptions, with eighteen dollars ($18.) we will send the HOME MONTHLY one year, or allow them to retain Two Dollars and Fifty Cents of the amount.

On accounts for subscriptions less than nine dollars, agents will be allowed to retain ten per cent.

Ministers, it is hoped, will act as agents, not so much from pecuniary considerations as from a laudable desire to assist in building up a home literature worthy of a place among the families of the South and on the center-tables of a Christian people.

All communications on business should be addressed to

ROBERT J. HARR, Publisher, N. O. City, Sept 28 112 Camp Street, New Orleans.

JOHN G. PARHAM, "EVERY MONTH,"

OF New Orleans. OF Hinds Co., Miss. PARHAM & BLUNT, COTTON FACTORS, Forwarding and Commission Merchants and Produce Agents, No. 75 Carondelet street, New Orleans. Aug 21 1y

EDUCATIONAL.

A young lady educated in Europe, with five years' experience in teaching there—desires an engagement. Prefers a pleasant home to a large number of scholars. Qualified in French and music. Will be here in October. Address, Rev. JAS. MACLENNAN, Greenville, Miss., stating terms, etc.

Aug 10

THOMAS MURRAY.

BUILDER.

Corner Rampart and Brato Streets, NEW ORLEANS.

Orders left at Box 119, Mechanic's Exchange, will be attended to. Sept 7

SHARON FEMALE COLLEGE.

Is located in the village of Sharon, Madison County, Mississippi, seven miles east of Canton.

The fifteenth session will begin Monday, Sept. 30th, 1867, under the Presidency of Rev. W. L. C. HUNTLINT, A. M., assisted by an able corps of teachers.

The curriculum is thorough and comprehensive. The location is a very desirable and healthy one. The place is free from many evils, connected with the larger towns and cities, and, especially those on rail roads—having always been free from epidemics.

Tuition per term of five months $15 00
Primary Department 20 00
Collegiate 25 00
Music and Piano 25 00
Use of Instrument 7 50
Vocal Music 2 50
Incidental Fee 2 50
Board, fuel and bedding, per month 18 00
Lights and washing, extra.

Young ladies furnishing their towels, Sheets, blankets, washing and lights, will pay per month $16 00

The daughters of all ministers, in the regular pastoral work, will receive tuition in the English course free of charge. Sept 21 2m

KICKERBOCKER LIFE INSURANCE CO. OF NEW YORK.

Mutual Plan Assets $2,450,000
General Agent for the State of Mississippi, H. S. FULKERSON, JACKSON, Miss.

Note: Ministers of the Gospel in the State of Mississippi, upon giving satisfactory reference, will be appointed agents of this Company, upon applying in person, or by letter, to the General Agent at JACKSON, Miss., or when more convenient to H. C. PAXSON, Mayor, 30 and 32 Camp street, New Orleans, by whom the necessary blanks will be sent to them. Aug 3 3m

EAST ALABAMA MALE COLLEGE

AT AUBURN, ALA.

The Fall term of this Institution will open on the FIRST WEDNESDAY IN SEPTEMBER next, and close on the 20th December. Besides the regular course of studies for graduation, large facilities are afforded for instruction in the Commercial and Agricultural branches. Separate schools for these branches, in connection with the College, were authorized at the last annual meeting of the Board of Trustees. A student not wishing to take either the regular or a partial literary course in the College, may confine himself to either of these Departments, and in a short time become qualified for business.

The Preparatory Department, with competent teachers, will be under the special supervision of the Faculty.

Tuition—Full Term in College $30 00
Contingent Fee 3 00
Tuition—Full Term in Preparatory School $15 to $20 00
Contingent Fee 2 00
Board in Private Families from $15 to $20 00
Aug 31 2m Sec'y of Board.

READVILLE SEMINARY.

Baton Rouge, La.

Will open its next Session, Tuesday Oct. 1st, 1867. It is very desirable that the pupils be present at that time, and enter us give short regular classes. Parents will please notice this, and be as punctual as possible, in bringing their daughters: Aug 17-67 MRS. MARY W. READ, Principal.

WANTED.

TEACHER'S SITUATION WANTED.

A lady who can produce the first testimonials of ability and success as an instructress, wishes to engage a position as teacher for the ensuing school year; is well qualified to teach the English branches, French and music. References given and required. Terms, for a limited number of scholars, $40 per month, and board, Address, A. B. C. care of Rev. Doctor Neally, Mobile.

SOMERVILLE FEMALE INSTITUTE.

MONDAY, SEPTEMBER 2, 1867.

EXPENSES.

Tuition per Session of Twenty Weeks $30 00
Music 25 00
Use of Instrument 7 50
Languages, each 10 00
Incidental Fee 2 50
Board, including everything except Bed Covering and Towels, per Month 20 00
Board, exclusive of Lights and Washing 10 00
Aug 24 B. H. RIVERS.

EMORY & HENRY COLLEGE,

WASHINGTON CO., VA.

Our Fall session begins on the 15th of August next. Charges for session of five months, payable in currency and in advance, are as follows:

Tuition in collegiate course, $30 00
Fuel, room rent and contingent fee, 10 00
Tuition in Preparatory Department is $5 less.

Board can be had in private families at the College, for $13 per month, if paid or satisfactorily arranged, monthly in advance. Those seeking collegiate advantages are invited to investigate. For additional information, Address, E. E. WILLY, Pres't, Emory P. O., Va. Je 29

$10 A DAY MADE BY ANY

one with my Patent Stencil Tools. I prepare samples free. Beware of imitations. My circulars will explain. Address, A. J. FULLMAN, Springfield, Vt. Sept 7-67

BELIZE, BRITISH HONDURAS.

Putnam & Cary.

General Commission Merchants. Receiving and Forwarding. Belize, British Honduras. Je 15-3m

PAUL J. CHRISTIAN.

GENERAL

MERCANTILE AND STEAMBOAT

SITATION FR.

BLACK BOOK MANUFACTURER

JOB PRINTER,

NO. 38 CAMP ST.

All orders in my line promptly filled. July 13 6m

MANFIELD FEMALE COLLEGE.

The Fall Session of this Institution for the present year will open on Wednesday, the 25th day of September, with a full corps of experienced teachers, and ample facilities for instruction and comfort. The Institution is owned and controlled by the Louisiana Conference, and is in the enjoyment of a large patronage.

TERMS:

Charges for a session of four and a half months, payable invariably one half at time of entrance; and the remainder on the 1st day of December.

Board, including Washing, Fuel, in gold or its equivalent $67 50
Tuition and Incidental Fee, in currency 25 00
French, 15 00
Music, with use of instrument, 37 50
Ornamental branches at usual prices.

The daughters of traveling ministers of the Louisiana Conference are charged no regular Tuition.

Young Ladies desiring to board in the Institution will each bring a pair of blankets, a pair of sheets, a pair of pillow slips, and a coverlet or spread; and must furnish towels and lights.

For Catalogues, containing full particulars, address

CHARLES B. STUART, President, Mansfield, La.

SOULE UNIVERSITY.

CHAPEL HILL, TEXAS.

The Board of Trustees take pleasure in announcing to the people of Texas and of Louisiana, the re-organization of Soule University, under the direction of the following faculty:

O. H. MCCLINTON, A. M., Pres't, and Prof. of Greek and Latin Languages.
G. A. MOORE, A. M., Prof. of Mathematics.
B. F. KATZMAN, M. D., Prof. of Natural Science.
B. F. BROWN, A. B., Principal Preparatory Department.
B. F. KATZMAN, M. D., Prof. of Natural Science.

The first Session of Collegiate year begins on the First Monday in September; and the December term, 1867. The second Session opens Jan. 4, 1868; closes last Wednesday in June.

SHORT TERM OF FOUR MONTHS.

Collegiate $24 00. Preparatory $20 00
Elementary 16 00. Primary 13 00

LONG TERM OF SIX MONTHS.

Collegiate $36 00. Elementary $24 00
Preparatory 30 00. Primary 24 00
Modern Languages, (extra) $2 50 per month.

No incidentals. Board can be obtained in private families at $15 00 per month. Tuition due upon entrance in specie—a proportionate part of which will be returned in cases of protracted sickness, and in no other—Address—O. H. McCLINTON, Pres't, Chapel Hill, Texas. July 13-67

WHITWORTH FEMALE COLLEGE,

BROOKHAVEN, MISS.

128 miles from New Orleans, on N. O. & G. N. Rail Road.

The next session will open on Wednesday, the 11th of September, 1867.

There is a full corps of teachers; the instruction will be thorough; the discipline firm and strict.

The building is large and well arranged; the play ground ample; the location healthy.

The Institution is under control of the M. E. Church, South.

The entire expenses in the Collegiate Department for board, tuition, books and incidentals (not including music and the ornamental branches) need not exceed $125 00 for term of twenty weeks.

Each boarder must furnish her towels, one pair of blankets and sheets.

For further information, address

REV. H. F. JOHNSON, Jr. 13-6m Pres't Whitworth Female College.

CENTENARY COLLEGE,

JACKSON, LOUISIANA.

was established by the State of Louisiana in 1826, and transferred to the Methodist Episcopal Church South in 1845. It is now under the joint patronage of the Mississippi and Louisiana Conferences.

The College exercises were necessarily suspended during the war; but were regularly resumed, after re-organization, on the first Monday in October, 1865. The approaching session will open on the first Monday of October next.

Tuition, $75 per annum, payable semi-annually, in advance.

Boarding can be obtained at from $20 to $25 per month.

The Buildings, Libraries, Apparatus, Laboratory and Society Halls, the location in point of beauty, health, ease of access and good society, are all unsurpassed by those of any Institution in the Southern States.

The past history of the College is the pledge of its future prosperity.

The Board and Faculty promise the public that nothing shall be wanting on their part to secure the thorough education of the young men committed to their care, in both Preparatory and Collegiate Departments.

The old students, alumni, and friends of the Institution, are requested to give publicity to the full reorganization and opening of the College, as stated above.

W. H. WATKINS, President.

THE GOOD SAMARITAN COOKING

STOVE.

The great and serious objection to Stove Ovens has been entirely overcome in the

GOOD SAMARITAN,

by the adoption of a New Principle of Heating and Ventilating the Oven, as by means of the Hot Draft formed by the Ventilation of the Oven, the temperature of the fire is so much increased that a large supply of fuel is never necessary, as the Oven can be thoroughly heated, and all the different operations of Cooking performed with a saving of fuel and

At Least Thirty per Cent. as Compared with any other Stove.

and at the same time rendering it the most perfect and even Baking Stove now in use. For Roasting, the Tin Kitchen or Roaster, generally known as the "Dutch Oven," is most admirably adapted to this Good Samaritan, as its height above the hearth is such that a large and capacious oven can be used. That meats roasted in such an oven are always preferable in every way to those baked in the Stove Oven, we believe no one will deny; and we therefore do not deem it necessary to dwell upon these advantages, which are peculiar to this Stove.

It also has a most complete arrangement for Broiling on the front hearth, thus enabling this very important branch of the culinary department to be successfully carried on without interfering with the other work, and thus avoiding the serious objection made to those Stoves which possess no other convenience for Broiling than on the top. One trial of this apparatus for Broiling will be sufficient to commend it to the approbation of the operator, as it works well, and the food retains all its flavor and tenderness. Believe us, as we do, THE GOOD SAMARITAN to be all, and even more than it is here described, it is confidently recommended to all. A fair and impartial trial will all that is necessary to any unprejudiced mind, to satisfy them that it is in all respects the

BEST STOVE EVER INVENTED.

For sale only by the undersigned.

In addition to the above, we also have a large and complete assortment of Good Stoves, comprising all of the leading Stoves of the day, equal to any offered in any other house in this city.

ACSTIN A. GOODWIN, Corner Customhouse street, Opposite the Customhouse.

SPECIAL NOTICES.

POSTPOKEMENT.

The District Meeting appointed for Mobile District, is postponed on account of the epidemic and prevalence of Yellow Fever in this city.

THO. W. DORMAN, P. E. Mobile, Sept. 30, 1867.

W. MURRAY, P. E.

THE CHILD'S CORNER.

From the Little Corporal.
GOING TO SCHOOL.

Through meadow grass, waist high, they wind
Along the path so narrow,
And pick the pliant spires, to bind
Some sprigs of homely yarrow;
They go by brooks that softly drip
Among their flow'ry sedges,
Where minnows through the ripples slip,
Where flocks of wrens and robins dip
And drink, along the edges.

Across the ruddy clover lots
And pastures wide and knolly,
Where sheep lie, here and there, like knots
Of drowsy, of lilies holy.
They drop the bars and call the cows,
"Come, Bridle, Pink, and Cherry;"
They stroke them gently on the brows,
They bind with wreaths of oaken boughs
The necks, so rough and hairy.

A sudden wind, that sweeps the dell,
A spicy scent is blowing;
The children need no more to tell
Where peppermint is growing,
They thread the rustling rows of corn,
Whose ears are fit for roasting,
And run a foot race down the hill,
Where, in the winter evenings chill,
They always go a-coasting.

O, still the woodlands are, and dim,
Great trunks above them heighten;
And 'mong the leaves on every limb,
The eyes of squirrels brighten!
A hom-bird through the maple whirrs—
Near by she must be nested.
A rainbow wing the branches stirs—
Ah, ha! this downy thing is hers,
With snowy eggs invested!

They skip between the orchard rows,
Where apples hang and mellow,
While sunlight stains with rosy glows,
Or stripes them with its yellow,
Through fields of barley, set in sheaf,
Or ready for the reaping.
But, hark! the school bell ringeth brief,
And, o'er the beech's topmost leaf,
They see the beltry peeping.

From the little Corporal.

Kisses for Boys.

"Kisses! That's for girls!"
No, my dear little man, please read this story, and see if these
"two kisses" are not for you.

"What do boys want with kisses?"
did you say?
"Ah! you have a mistaken idea, which has hardened many a boy, before to day. There was once a motherless boy, not ten years old, that refused to kiss his own sister, who was going away to boarding school; and an elderly lady, with whom he lived, who had neither husband nor child, and whose heart must have been a crab-apple, said as she took a pinch of snuff, "Edward will shake hands with you, he is really getting too old to kiss!"

May heaven help all children who are so old as that.

Not long ago, the mother of four noble boys and two girls was talking, as she often did, of the loveliness of girls and the care and trouble of boys, when her youngest son came to her, and laying his curly head in her lap, asked,

"Mamma, does God love little boys as well as He does little girls?"
Why didn't she take him in her arms, and tell him that the dear Saviour, who was once a boy himself, and knows every temptation and every thought that can come to a boy's heart; how He watches from their first tottering steps until opening manhood comes; and He does now as when He was on earth, when He looked upon a young man He loved him? "No! the thoughtless mother did not soothe that anxious, little heart, but answered,

"Well, perhaps if they are good and quiet, He loves them almost as well."

Frankie went away, and hung on the neck of his rocking horse, clasping his arms around it, to dream and wonder, as he often did, why he could not be as good and lovely as sister Nell.

To a lady, sitting by, there seemed to come the image of two beautiful boys, whom the wise Heavenly Father loved so well. He took them from her arms to live forever with Him; and if He should send for this dear Frankie, would not that mother's heart ache to remember he was less loved than sister Nell?

You have all heard of Sir Joshua Reynolds, the greatest artist of his time. When a boy, he was constantly sketching and drawing, and one day his father reproved him for his idleness; but his mother looked at the sketches and saw talent in them, and she gave him an approving smile and a kiss. Years after, in telling of it, he said, "That kiss made me a painter."

A SHORT CATECHISM ON EXTORTION.

Q. What is extortion?

A. To pay a minister no more or less than in former years, for his labor, and then charge him double or treble the old price for corn, flour, or whatever else he may need.

Q. What does the Bible say about extortioners?

A. "They shall not inherit the kingdom of God." 1 Cor. vi: 10.

A twenty-five franc piece is to be added shortly to the existing money in France.

FARM AND GARDEN.

From the Northwestern Farmer.
Scientific Farming.

It is not our purpose, in these papers, to attempt to explain the mysteries of planting, or to advocate any particular theory of vegetable growth. We propose merely to state the facts that fall within the range of common observation, and to trace the connection of these with their obvious causes.

The subject of ammonia, and its influence on the growth of plants, which we introduced in the last number, is when properly understood, a key to unlock many mysteries that surround the observing farmer. Remembering that ammonia furnishes plants with all the nitrogen they contain, and that animal—every tissue of whose bodies (excepting the fat) contains nitrogen—derive it all, through the vegetable, from ammonia; and that these organized structures, both animal and vegetable, when they decay, return their nitrogen to the air, in combination with hydrogen, in the form of ammonia; and when we furthermore bear in mind the very light and volatile character of this gas, and its high solubility in cold water, and the readiness with which it is liberated again when the water is warmed but a little, we shall be able to solve many problems which have often presented themselves to the observing farmer. You have all observed how much more vigorously plants grow after a shower of rain, than after artificial watering, however well it may have been done. This is especially observable if the shower has been preceded by a drought of some weeks. You need have no difficulty in explaining this. From the decay of organic bodies the ammonia has accumulated in the air—the water, descending through the atmosphere, washes out the ammonia and carries it to the roots of the thirsty plants, which drink it up greedily, supplying at once two of the important elements of plant growth—water and ammonia; while in artificial watering we supply only one of these. If, however, the soil is deficient in vegetable matter, the lack of carbon will soon be seen in the rapid loss of ammonia when the surface is exposed to a warm sunshine. Or if but a few inches of the surface soil has been pulverized, the heat of a summer's day will certainly drive back into the air all the ammonia that yesterday's shower brought down to the earth. Deep cultivation holds the ammonia at a depth below the heating influence of the sun's rays. This is by no means the least important advantage of deep tillage and thorough pulverization of the soil; nor is it only the ammonia and carbonic acid brought down by the showers that a soil properly tilled will appropriate.
A porous, finely pulverized soil admits the air to circulate freely through it, and the fertilizing gases mixed with it are absorbed by the soil and retained for plant food.

Another fact, which every observing farmer has noticed, may be noted in this connection. The good effect of a shower depends much on the time of its falling, and the subsequent condition of the air. If a shower falls early in the morning, and is immediately succeeded by a hot sunshine, farmers say that the crop gets but little good from it.
But if the shower comes in the evening, then plants will be greatly benefitted by it. Now the reason of this is obvious. The ammonia brought down by the morning showers has hardly time to reach the roots of plants, before the heat of the sun sends it back again into the air; but the evening shower carries its fertilizing gases to the roots of plants, and they quietly feast on it all night long, and the remainder of the plant food thus furnished has, by the time the sun warms the earth on the following day, been carried downward, in the well pulverized soil, so far that it is but little effected by the sun's heat.
The careful farmer who understands the science of his business, will not only prepare the soil so as to give it the highest capacity for absorbing ammonia and carbonic acid from the air, but he will furnish these indispensable articles of plant food for the use of his growing crops, from every available source. A very effectual method of doing this is the plowing in of green crops. Growing vegetables contain a larger proportion of the nitrogenized elements, than is found in them after they have fully matured and ripened. These, when plowed under in the green state, are rapidly converted into carbonic acid, water and ammonia; and these being disengaged under the earth, are absorbed by the soil, and held subject to the demands of the subsequent crop. The farmer, whose stubble field, last fall, was covered with a heavy crop of ragweed, which he suffered to ripen and stand exposed to the storms of the winter and spring, has but a faint idea of how much his corn crop of this summer will lose by his neglecting to turn his ragweed under while it was in bloom.

Clover is the crop commonly used for turning under, and, if plowed in when in the vigor of its growth, is probably the best; but almost any thick coat of growing vegetation will serve a good purpose, if deeply turned under. There is an inconvenience, or perhaps two of them, attending the use of clover as a green dressing for fallows. If we turn under the first crop, it will require to be done about the middle of June—a time when the corn crop demands all the force usually available on the farm. If the second crop be used, it furnishes less green material than the first, and is dryer, harder, and decomposes more slowly, and furnishes proportionably less ammonia to the soil.

If the farmer, however, manages to spare the labor from the corn field to plow in the June crop of clover, his naked field must be exposed to the direct rays of the sun, without any protection during the long, hot months of summer. The damage from this exposure will nearly offset the advantages of the green dressing.

From this cause a fall crop, if it be but weeds, should always be preferred for plowing in, whether the ground is to be sowed in wheat or planted in corn the next spring.

In plowing in green crops, care should be taken to have the vegetable matter well covered. Indeed the crop should be turned under so deep that if the corn be raised on it the following year the vegetable matter will not be disturbed by the cultivator.

To SAVE TOMATO SEED.—Cut off a slice from the smooth side, or bottom of the tomato so as to expose the seed cavities. Then clasp it up and squeeze out the seed into a tin can or pan. A half peck of tomatoes will give ten thousand seeds. Set the can away and let the seeds ferment, after which pour in some water, stir briskly, and the seeds will settle to the bottom when the refuse matter may be poured off and seeds put to dry in the sun.—These directions are valuable, for the seed are troublesome to save otherwise, and few know this method.

SCIENTIFIC.

ICE MACHINE.—A simple instrument for making artificial ice is now manufactured in Paris, by which a beautiful cylinder of ice is produced in ten minutes, of a bottle of wine or other articles can be reduced to the freezing-point of water in the same receptacle. The instrument consists of two metallic cylinders united, one within the other; the space between them being devoted to the freezing mixture, and the interior of the small cylinder to the water or other article to be cooled.
These being introduced, the cover is put on, and the cylinder is rolled to and fro on a table by the hand.
The chemicals consisted formerly of one part each of water, sub-carbonate of soda, and nitrate of ammonia; but for the latter a cheaper salt not mentioned is now substituted, and the mixture is put up in quantities sufficient to make seven pounds of ice (if we reckon correctly for the indirect statement before us) for fifty centimes; or less than one dime. The instrument costs ten francs. It is called the glacier roulant.—Scientific American.

ELECTRIC GUNS.—At a late meeting of the Society of Natural Science of Seine et Oise, M. De Brettes exhibited a rifle on the Flobert system, and which is fired by means of electricity. This new invention, with which the Emperor appears to be much pleased, has the following characters: Two small electric batteries are enclosed in the stock;
there conducting wires arrive at the surface of the breach, and can be put in communication with the extremity of a platinum wire, which traverses the cartridge. "A simple pressure of the finger upon the trigger closes the electric circuit; the current passes; the platinum wire becomes at once red hot, and inflames the powder which surrounds it. The cartridges prepared for the needle-gun carry their own priming, and a shock might inflame them; the cases are thus liable to explode, and deprive the troops of their ammunition. With the new system, this danger is impossible. It can, as the expense is trifling, be easily applied to guns of the ancient model.
This ingenious weapon does not, however, seem likely to come into general use. Though exhibited by M. De Brettes, it was invented by
M. Trouve.—Chemical News.

The Emperor Napoleon, well known to be a first rate artilleryman, has invented a new field gun.
Its power is so great that a single charge is expected to destroy a battalion. Workmen are busily engaged in manufacturing this weapon;
they are locked up day and night, and never allowed to leave the premises, whereof his Majesty himself keeps the key; and the secret is not to be divulged until European complications render prominent necessary.

"Where Ignorance is Bliss," Etc.

The first step in education is to learn one's ignorance. In an article on "Authors and Authorship," which we find in an exchange, the writer opens with the following curious story, as illustrative of the possible effects which his exposé of the difficulties of authorship may have on some of his readers who are troubled with the cacthes scribendi.

"Some years since a great French surgeon—whether it was Larrey or Velppeau, does not matter—went down to the provinces. He had taken a holiday from his profession, and was travelling in his own coach, with a sufficiency of lackeys. One of his horses, as it so happened, had cast a shoe, and he stopped at a smithy to have the defect made good. While the shoe was being replaced, the surgeon took a stroll in the neighborhood. The very first man he met had only one arm, the missing member having been amputated at the shoulder. The surgeon asked the cripple who had relieved him of the limb, and was told it was the blacksmith then at work on the horse's shoe. The surgeon was rejoiced, and obtained permission to examine the shoulder.
He looked at it critically. Certainly it had been well done. A little farther on he met a woman with a scar on her forehead. On inquiring, he learned that it marked the site of an enormous wen of which she had been relieved by the blacksmith.

Back went the surgeon to see the rural operator. He found him intelligent—a fellow with a large head, a keen eye, and the lines around his lip denoting firmness and coolness. He learned that the smith had performed over fifty such operations. Here, thought the surgeon, is a man of genius and ability, who only requires education to become at once a wonderful operator.
I must take him, and put him in his proper sphere. So he urged him to go to Paris, offered him a sum of money sufficient to defray his expenses, and a letter commending him to the attention of his colleagues of the faculty. The blacksmith consented, and the surgeon, his horse now being shod, entered his coach and went on his way.

"The surgeon got back to Paris in due time, but forgot about his student, in the press of his professional duties. At length, however, he was called on to couch a cataract for a high dignitary of the church who was too infirm to leave his diocese. On his way, he passed by the village where he had before-found the surgical maker of horseshoes, and stopped at the smithy to see who had succeeded his friend at the anvil and forge. To his great surprise, there stood, making the sparks fly in showers around him, the identical blacksmith whom he had sent to the university.

"Why, what do you do here, my friend?" he asked. "You promised me to go to Paris."

"I went."
"And to study surgery?"
"I studied."

"But what brings you back?"
"I learned as much as I cared to know. I was there for two years."

"That was a rather short time."

"Long enough to learn what I ought to have known before."

"I do not understand you. Have you performed any major operations since you returned?"

"No, and shall not again, I promise you."

"Explain."

"Why, you see," said the blacksmith, "I went to Paris and I studied.
I got acquainted with the skeleton—with the bones and ligaments.
It was very well. I mastered most of the muscles. It was better.
They said I picked up everything marvellously quick. Then I began at the arteries. My faith, it was terrible!"

"Here the blacksmith passed his horny hand over his forehead, and wiped off a perspiration rising from horror, and not from labor.

"I began to see that I had narrowly escaped committing murder fifty times. I remembered my uncle, whose crushed thigh I amputated within two inches of the hip-joint. I used the actual cautery to the femoral artery. If it had failed, he would have bled to death like an ox. Let who will operate, I will not. I have learned enough to know that I know nothing."

WORTH KNOWING.—An exchange says:—A poison of any conceivable description and degree of potency, which has been swallowed, intentionally or by accident, may be rendered instantly harmless by swallowing two gills of sweet oil. An individual with a very strong constitution should take twice the quantity.

It is said that, upwards of five thousand different articles in common use are manufactured of the ordinary willow.

PORT GIBSON COLLEGIATE

ACADEMY.

A College for Young Ladies with a Preparatory and a Primary School.

BOARD OF INSTRUCTION AND GOVERNMENT.

A. J. Wright, A. M., President.
Miss A. A. Wright, Principal,
Miss R. Scott Ricketts,
Miss Anna M. Ross,
Miss C. A. Murphy, Instructress in Vocal and Instrumental Music.

Other instructors will be announced.

This Institution was founded about 1830, and incorporated in 1834, and has a bright record of usefulness. It has been under the present direction four years. The course of study is a full one, and upon its satisfactory completion, a diploma will be awarded.

The younger pupils have the same instructors, and receive the same attention as their seniors.
Exercises are continued throughout the course, in Penmanship, Elocution, Orthography, the science of English Grammar, the Art of Composition, and Arithmetic.

The buildings are spacious, retired, well shaded, and well adapted for Academic uses.
PORT GIBSON is noted for its beauty, salubrity, order and good society. Transportation from Grand Gulf will be by railroad in a few days.

SESSION COMMENCES SEPT. 16.

Boarders are under special charge of the Lady Principal. Board and English Tuition, $70 00 per quarter. For circulars and particulars Apply to
D. G. Humphreys, President Board of Trustees,
Port Gibson, Miss., Aug 21

COLLEGIATE INSTITUTE AT

BATON ROUGE.

TENTH SESSION.

The exercises of the school will be resumed on Wednesday, October 23, 1867.

The best facilities are afforded for the acquisition of a first-rate education.

Particular care is bestowed on the moral and social culture of the pupils.

There is but one session in the year and every student who enters the school is expected to continue to the close of the session in July, and will be held liable for the bills in all cases, unless protracted illness shall compel his removal.

Every pupil is required to furnish his own bedding, towels, wash-basin, mosquito-net and all marked distinctly with his own name. Also a satchel for dirty clothes.

It is urgently requested that Students be prompt in their attendance. A few days absence at the beginning is often a serious disad-vantage during the entire session.

Trans: Board and Tuition per session, $300.

Payments:—$200 in advance—balance 1st
March.

Tuition of Day Scholars, per session: $75 00 payable—one half in advance—balance 1st March.

Modern languages will be taught when the wants of the School demand it, at an extra charge as low as it can be made.

No expense is spared to secure as Teachers, gentlemen of the highest character and ability.

W. H. N. MAGUIRE, D. C.

Baton Rouge, La., June 1867. Aug 21

THE "ARROW TIE."

AND PAINTED IRON BANDS.

For sale at the lowest prices, by

H. T. BARTLETT & R. W. RAYNE.

General Agents, No. 45 Carondelet street.

The above popular fastening is the best now in use for baling Cotton. They are approved by the Insurance Companies of this city, and are used at the Cotton Presses in New Orleans, Memphis, Mobile, Galveston, Savannah, and by Planters everywhere with success and approbation.

N.B.—Said ARROW TIES are on sale by dealers in New Orleans, and everywhere throughout all the Cotton growing States, at the lowest prices. je 22-67-6m

A TREATISE ON DEAFNESS

AND CATARRH.

Their causes and means of immediate relief
and speedy cure sent free for 10 cents.

Dr. H. STILLWELL.

Aug 21-1m Williamsburg, Kings Co, N. Y.

MRS. DYER'S BOARDING HOUSE.

This is situated on Camp street, the first door above St. Patrick's Cathedral, No. 171.

References: Rev. Dr. Keener, Dr. Walker,
Clous Parker, R. J. Harp. je 8 62

SOUTH-WESTERN BIBLE

Where is it located? In Depot street, New Orleans.

When was it established? In 1854.

Who is its General Agent?
Rev. W. H. Baylis.

Where is the Society's field of operation? In Louisiana, and all of Mississippi, Alabama, Georgia, and Florida.

What is the object of the Society?
To supply (gratuitously) where want of the Holy Scriptures.

What are the resources and means of the Society? From the contributions of its members. Collected within its field, collections are made, and the proceeds are used for the purchase of Bibles, and the distribution of the same.

What is the Society's method of cultivating its own local work?
The Society of New Orleans: the Society of Louisiana: the Society of Mississippi: the Society of Alabama:
the Society of Georgia: the Society of Florida: the Society of the South:
the Society of the North: the Society of the West: the Society of the East:
the Society of the South-West: the
Society of the North-West: the Society
of the South-East: the Society of the
North-East: the Society of the South-
West: the Society of the North-West:
the Society of the South-East: the
Society of the North-East: the Society
of the South-West: the Society of the
North-West: the Society of the South-
East: the Society of the North-East:
the Society of the South-West: the
Society of the North-West: the Society
of the South-East: the Society of the
North-East: the Society of the South-
West: the Society of the North-West:
the Society of the South-East: the
Society of the North-East: the Society
of the South-West: the Society of the
North-West: the Society of the South-
East: the Society of the North-East:
the Society of the South-West: the
Society of the North-West: the Society
of the South-East: the Society of the
North-East: the Society of the South-
West: the Society of the North-West:
the Society of the South-East: the
Society of the North-East: the Society
of the South-West: the Society of the
North-West: the Society of the South-
East: the Society of the North-East:
the Society of the South-West: the
Society of the North-West: the Society
of the South-East: the Society of the
North-East: the Society of the South-
West: the Society of the North-West:
the Society of the South-East: the
Society of the North-East: the Society
of the South-West: the Society of the
North-West: the Society of the South-
East: the Society of the North-East:
the Society of the South-West: the
Society of the North-West: the Society
of the South-East: the Society of the
North-East: the Society of the South-
West: the Society of the North-West:
the Society of the South-East: the
Society of the North-East: the Society
of the South-West: the Society of the
North-West: the Society of the South-
East: the Society of the North-East:
the Society of the South-West: the
Society of the North-West: the Society
of the South-East: the Society of the
North-East: the Society of the South-
West: the Society of the North-West:
the Society of the South-East: the
Society of the North-East: the Society
of the South-West: the Society of the
North-West: the Society of the South-
East: the Society of the North-East:
the Society of the South-West: the
Society of the North-West: the Society
of the South-East: the Society of the
North-East: the Society of the South-
West: the Society of the North-West:
the Society of the South-East: the
Society of the North-East: the Society
of the South-West: the Society of the
North-West: the Society of the South-
East: the Society of the North-East:
the Society of the South-West: the
Society of the North-West: the Society
of the South-East: the Society of the
North-East: the Society of the South-
West: the Society of the North-West:
the Society of the South-East: the
Society of the North-East: the Society
of the South-West: the Society of the
North-West: the Society of the South-
East: the Society of the North-East:
the Society of the South-West: the
Society of the North-West: the Society
of the South-East: the Society of the
North-East: the Society of the South-
West: the Society of the North-West:
the Society of the South-East: the
Society of the North-East: the Society
of the South-West: the Society of the
North-West: the Society of the South-
East: the Society of the North-East:
the Society of the South-West: the
Society of the North-West: the Society
of the South-East: the Society of the
North-East: the Society of the South-
West: the Society of the North-West:
the Society of the South-East: the
Society of the North-East: the Society
of the South-West: the Society of the
North-West: the Society of the South-
East: the Society of the North-East:
the Society of the South-West: the
Society of the North-West: the Society
of the South-East: the Society of the
North-East: the Society of the South-
West: the Society of the North-West:
the Society of the South-East: the
Society of the North-East: the Society
of the South-West: the Society of the
North-West: the Society of the South-
East: the Society of the North-East:
the Society of the South-West: the
Society of the North-West: the Society
of the South-East: the Society of the
North-East: the Society of the South-
West: the Society of the North-West:
the Society of the South-East: the
Society of the North-East: the Society
of the South-West: the Society of the
North-West: the Society of the South-
East: the Society of the North-East:
the Society of the South-West: the
Society of the North-West: the Society
of the South-East: the Society of the
North-East: the Society of the South-
West: the Society of the North-West:
the Society of the South-East: the
Society of the North-East: the Society
of the South-West: the Society of the
North-West: the Society of the South-
East: the Society of the North-East:
the Society of the South-West: the
Society of the North-West: the Society
of the South-East: the Society of the
North-East: the Society of the South-
West: the Society of the North-West:
the Society of the South-East: the
Society of the North-East: the Society
of the South-West: the Society of the
North-West: the Society of the South-
East: the Society of the North-East:
the Society of the South-West: the
Society of the North-West: the Society
of the South-East: the Society of the
North-East: the Society of the South-
West: the Society of the North-West:
the Society of the South-East: the
Society of the North-East: the Society
of the South-West: the Society of the
North-West: the Society of the South-
East: the Society of the North-East:
the Society of the South-West: the
Society of the North-West: the Society
of the South-East: the Society of the
North-East: the Society of the South-
West: the Society of the North-West:
the Society of the South-East: the
Society of the North-East: the Society
of the South-West: the Society of the
North-West: the Society of the South-
East: the Society of the North-East:
the Society of the South-West: the
Society of the North-West: the Society
of the South-East: the Society of the
North-East: the Society of the South-
West: the Society of the North-West:
the Society of the South-East: the
Society of the North-East: the Society
of the South-West: the Society of the
North-West: the Society of the South-
East: the Society of the North-East:
the Society of the South-West: the
Society of the North-West: the Society
of the South-East: the Society of the

NEW ORLEANS MARKETS.

From the N. O. Price Current.
We have no improvement to notice in the general market. The continued prevalence of the epidemic and its having extended more widely among our business community, paralyzes nearly every department of trade. In fact, almost the only exception is in the execution of orders from merchants in the interior, which we are assured are filled at as low figures as could be obtained were the parties personally present. There has, also, been about the usual movement in Western Produce, without any material change in prices. Operations in our leading staple are still on a limited scale, and must remain so until the receipts and the supplies become more liberal. Whenever the former reach the figures presented by last year's tables, the demand will undoubtedly improve. Notwithstanding the epidemic it will be found that buyers will come forward freely on ample scope being furnished by the stock on sale. Operations in Sugar and Molasses are still confined to retail transactions, and nothing of any moment has been done in Tobacco.

COTTON.—We left the market, at the time of our last report, with a tendency to lower figures, especially for the higher descriptions. The business since indicates easier prices for both Middling and Low Middling, but no quotable change in the Ordinary grades. At the same time, the movement has continued on a limited scale, although there has been some enquiry, and a larger business would have been done had parties agreed on prices. With increased receipts there is manifestly more disposition to operate, and with wider scope afforded to buyers we may look for more liberal sales. During the early part of the morning on Saturday there appeared to be very little enquiry, but as factors evinced a disposition to meet the demand more freely, four or five buyers came forward subsequently and took 825 bales at rates generally in accordance with the above figures, but in some cases at a reduction of 1/2c. On Monday there was more enquiry, with less difference between the views of factors and buyers, but as there was still a fraction to divide the parties which could not be overcome, the sales were confined to 125 bales, at figures showing increased weakness in Low Middling and Middling, which were respectively quoted at 18 1/2c and 20c. Yesterday comparatively liberal receipts, including 1843 by one boat, the Grey Eagle, from Greenville, inspired a more cheerful feeling, but rather checked the demand, inducing buyers to await the offering of the new arrivals. The business consequently embraced only 100 bales, while prices indicated that the advantage was still on the side of the buyer. At the same time, it was manifest that only a limited amount could be bought at the ruling rates, and that to fully execute pending orders the parties would have to pay outside figures, if not, in some cases, a fraction more.

This makes an aggregate for the past three days of 550 bales, taken mostly for the North.

The receipts proper since Friday evening comprise 1927 bales, against 1155 during the corresponding period last week, showing an increase of 772 bales.

Referring to our remarks above, and adding that our quotations must be regarded to a great extent as nominal, we slightly modify our figures to approximate the business of yesterday and the day before, as follows:

| | | | |
|---------------|--------------|----|--------|
| Low | 14 to 15 | to | 15 |
| Ordinary | 15 to 16 | to | 16 |
| Good Ordinary | 16 to 17 1/2 | to | 17 1/2 |
| Low Middling | 17 1/2 to 18 | to | 18 |
| Middling | 18 to 19 1/2 | to | 19 1/2 |

TOBACCO.—We have no alteration to make in our remarks concerning this market. The enquiry since our last review has been mostly in a small way, but, with a light supply offering, factors have continued firm in their rates. We quote:

| | | | |
|-----------------|----------|-------|--------|
| Light | 5 to 6 | Heavy | 5 to 6 |
| Common ref'd | 5 to 6 | to | 6 |
| Fair | 6 to 7 | to | 7 |
| Fine and choice | 7 to 8 | to | 8 |
| Common Leaf | 7 to 8 | to | 8 |
| Medium | 8 to 10 | to | 10 |
| Good | 10 to 12 | to | 12 |
| Choice | 12 to 15 | to | 15 |
| Choice Selects | 15 to 18 | to | 18 |

FLOUR.—The market continues bare, or nearly so, of Superfine, and the lower grades of Extra, which are most in request and command full prices. Other grades are also in request and prices for them are also very firm.

| | | | |
|-----------------|----------|-------|----------|
| Light | 15 to 16 | Heavy | 15 to 16 |
| Common ref'd | 15 to 16 | to | 16 |
| Fair | 16 to 17 | to | 17 |
| Fine and choice | 17 to 18 | to | 18 |
| Common Leaf | 17 to 18 | to | 18 |
| Medium | 18 to 20 | to | 20 |
| Good | 20 to 22 | to | 22 |
| Choice | 22 to 25 | to | 25 |
| Choice Selects | 25 to 28 | to | 28 |

CATTLE MARKET.
Jefferson City, Wednesday evening, Sept. 17, 1867.
Western Beef, 2d quality, per lb net... 10 to 12
Texas Cattle Choice per head... 40 to 45
Texas Cattle 2d qual, per head... 30 to 40
Texas Cattle 3d qual, per head... 15 to 20
Hogs per lb gross... 12 to 14
Sheep, 1st quality per head... 10 to 12
Sheep, 2d... 8 to 10
Sheep, 3d... 6 to 8
Milk Cows, choice per head... 50 to 60
Milk Cows, per head... 40 to 50
Texas Cows, with Calves... 40 to 50
Yearlings, per head... 10 to 12
Calves per head... 10 to 12

N. O. WHOLESALE PRICES.

CAREFULLY CORRECTED AND REVISED WEEKLY.
(Made up from Actual Sales as they Transpire)

| ARTICLES. | FROM | TO |
|------------------------------|---------|--------|
| Agricultural Implements. | 1 1/2 | 22 00 |
| Cotton and Sugar Haws. | 4 75 | 10 50 |
| Yost's Haws and Scrapers. | 9 50 | 10 50 |
| Cotton Scrapers. | 7 00 | 7 50 |
| Cultivators. | 7 00 | 7 50 |
| Shovels. | 10 00 | 13 00 |
| Spades. | 11 00 | 20 00 |
| Axes. | 15 00 | 18 00 |
| Buggies, per yrd. | 21 | 26 |
| East India. | 25 | 26 |
| Bale Rope, Kentucky, per lb. | 10 | 10 1/2 |
| Brass, 100 lbs. | 1 72 | 1 72 |
| Crackers. | 10 00 | 11 00 |
| Bricks, Lake, per M. | 15 00 | 17 |
| English, Fire. | 55 00 | 60 00 |
| Candles, per lb. | 42 | 43 |
| Spices, Bedford. | 20 | 20 |
| Tallow. | 16 | 21 |
| Adamantine. | 19 | 25 |
| Star. | 50 | 52 |
| Chocolate, No 1 per lb. | 50 | 52 |
| Sweet and Spiced. | 35 | 35 |
| Cider, Western per hbl. | none | here |
| Northern. | none | here |
| Coal, Cannel per ton. | 11 | 13 00 |
| Anthracite per ton. | 55 | 60 |
| Western, per ton. | 22 1/2 | 27 1/2 |
| Coffin, No 1, per lb. | 30 | 30 |
| Havana, per lb. | 26 | 38 |
| St. Domingo. | 9 00 | 14 00 |
| Cotton Seed. | 35 | 36 |
| Shedding. | 28 | 29 |
| Copper Bolts. | 24 | 25 |
| Yellow Metal. | 24 | 25 |
| Cordage, Manila, per lb. | 21 | 21 |
| Tarred, American. | 30 | 30 |
| Russia. | 4 8 1/2 | 5 25 |
| Corn Meal, per bbl. | 10 25 | 11 00 |
| Dyes, per lb. | 10 25 | 11 00 |
| Logwood, Campy. | 10 25 | 11 00 |
| St. Domingo. | 10 25 | 11 00 |
| Indigo, per lb. | 7 50 | 7 50 |
| Madagascar. | 20 | 20 |
| Eggs, per doz. Western. | 28 | 28 |
| Feathers, per lb. | 85 | 90 |
| Fish, Cod, per box. | 75 | 75 |
| Herrings. | 24 00 | 24 00 |
| Mackerel, No 1, per bbl. | 19 00 | 19 00 |
| No. 3. | 13 00 | 14 00 |
| Flaxseed, per lb. | 10 25 | 10 25 |
| Superfine. | 10 50 | 11 00 |
| Extra. | 7 50 | 7 50 |
| Fruit, Prunes, per lb. | 20 | 20 |
| Figs, Dried. | 17 | 19 |
| Dried Apples. | 17 | 19 |
| Currents, Zante. | 34 | 34 |
| Almonds, soft shell. | 4 15 | 4 15 |
| Raisins, M. R. per box. | 4 85 | 4 85 |
| Lemon-Layer. | 11 50 | 11 50 |
| Lem's Sicily per box. | 7 00 | 7 00 |
| Oranges, La. per 1000. | 3 75 | 4 00 |
| Sicily per box. | 4 25 | 4 75 |
| Glass, per box of 50 feet. | 4 25 | 4 75 |
| French, 8 x 10. | 1 00 | 1 80 |
| Canada. | 1 90 | 2 00 |
| Malt, Western. | 1 40 | 1 45 |
| Corn, shelled, per bushel. | 7 50 | 7 50 |
| Beans, per bushel. | 7 50 | 8 50 |
| Hops, per lb. | 23 | 24 |
| Gumpowder, per keg. | 30 00 | 30 00 |
| Gunny Bags, per bag. | 23 60 | 23 60 |
| Hay, Western, per ton. | none | here |
| Louisiana. | none | here |
| Hides, per lb. | 10 | 10 1/2 |
| Dry salted Mexican. | 11 | 11 1/2 |
| Wet salted, city slaughter. | 16 | 16 |
| Kip Skins. | 18 | 18 |
| Dry country. | 19 | 19 |
| Pelts, per piece. | 54 | 64 |
| Iron, per ton. | 5 | 5 1/2 |
| County, Bar, per lb. | 7 | 10 |
| English, per lb. | 7 | 10 |
| Hoops, per lb. | 7 | 10 |
| Blacked. | 12 | 12 |
| Nail Rods. | 8 1/2 | 8 1/2 |
| Iron Cotton Ties. | 7 1/2 | 7 1/2 |
| Castings, American. | 2 50 | 2 50 |
| Lime, Western per bbl. | 125 | 125 |
| Shell Lime. | 2 75 | 2 75 |
| Rockland. | 2 50 | 2 50 |
| Cement. | 52 1/2 | 52 1/2 |
| Molasses, per gallon. | 60 | 60 |
| Louisiana. | 52 1/2 | 52 1/2 |
| Muscovado. | 60 | 60 |
| Refinery, Rebilled. | 34 | 34 |
| Mow, per lb. | 43 | 43 |
| Black do. | 6 | 6 1/2 |
| Select, water rotted. | 6 1/2 | 6 1/2 |
| Nails, Am. 4 & 8d. per lb. | 15 | 20 |
| Wrought, English. | 18 | 20 |
| Naval Stores, per bbl. | 6 00 | 6 00 |
| Pitch. | 3 50 | 4 00 |
| Rosin A No. 1. | 3 50 | 3 75 |
| No. 2. | 3 25 | 3 25 |
| Spirits Turp. gallon. | 2 00 | 3 50 |
| Varnish, bright. | 1 10 | 1 15 |
| Oils, Lard per gallon. | 68 | 68 |
| Coal Oil. | 64 | 66 |
| in cases. | 64 | 66 |
| Cotton Seed, Crude. | 1 05 | 1 05 |
| Carolina. | 1 25 | 1 25 |
| Tunners' per gallon. | 1 00 | 37 50 |
| Oil Cake, Linseed per ton. | 37 50 | 37 50 |
| Cotton Seed. | none | here |
| Meal. | none | here |
| Provisions, per bbl. | 23 00 | 24 00 |
| Beef, Mess, Northern. | 16 | 16 |
| Western. | 10 00 | 11 00 |
| Dried, per lb. | 27 50 | 28 00 |
| Tongues, per doz. | 25 00 | 25 00 |
| Pork, Mess. | 24 | 24 |
| Hog, round, per lb. | 24 | 25 |
| Bacon, Hams, per lb. | 24 | 25 |
| Do., canvassed. | 20 | 20 |
| Shoulders. | 16 | 16 |
| Green Shoulders. | 14 | 14 |
| Lard, Prime, in tierces. | 14 | 14 |
| in kegs. | 14 | 14 |
| Fair, in tierces. | 28 | 36 |
| Butter, Northern. | 18 | 18 |
| Choice, American. | 4 00 | 4 00 |
| Potatoes, per bbl. | 3 50 | 3 50 |
| Onions. | 3 50 | 3 50 |
| Green Apples. | 3 50 | 3 50 |
| Rice, per lb. Louisiana. | 10 | 10 1/2 |
| India. | 10 | 10 1/2 |
| Carolina. | 14 | 22 |
| Saltpeetre, refined, per lb. | 13 | 15 |
| Crude. | 2 30 | 2 30 |
| Salt sack. | 2 10 | 2 10 |
| Liverpool, fine, warehouse. | 2 45 | 2 50 |
| from store. | 2 10 | 2 10 |
| coarse, cargo. | 2 10 | 2 10 |
| from warehouse. | 2 30 | 2 40 |
| Turkey Island, per bushel. | 8 | 10 |
| Soap, per lb. Western. | 10 | 12 |
| Northern. | 8 | 10 |
| Castile. | 8 | 10 |
| Sugar, Louisiana, per lb. | 15 | 19 |
| In the city. | 15 1/2 | 17 1/2 |
| Havana, White. | 15 | 16 1/2 |
| Yellow. | 13 | 14 1/2 |
| Tobacco, Brown. | 12 | 12 1/2 |
| Yellow. | 12 | 12 1/2 |
| Tobacco, White. | 12 | 12 1/2 |
| Choice and Selections. | 16 | 20 |
| Fine Leaf. | 15 1/2 | 16 1/2 |
| Medina Leaf. | 12 | 12 |
| Common Leaf. | 11 1/2 | 12 1/2 |
| Common Refused. | 6 | 6 1/2 |
| Isling. | 19 | 20 |
| Medina Washed, per lb. | 27 | 30 |
| Barry. | 10 | 12 |
| Lowland, New York. | 18 | 21 |
| Texas, 402, New York. | 21 | 21 |

ADVOCATE CALENDAR, 1867.

| MONTHS. | Sunday. | Monday. | Tuesday. | Wednesday. | Thursday. | Friday. | Saturday. |
|---------|---------|---------|----------|------------|-----------|---------|-----------|
| JAN. | 6 | 7 | 8 | 9 | 10 | 11 | 12 |
| FEB. | 27 | 28 | 29 | 30 | 31 | | |
| MAR. | 1 | 2 | 3 | 4 | 5 | 6 | 7 |
| APR. | 1 | 2 | 3 | 4 | 5 | 6 | 7 |
| MAY. | 1 | 2 | 3 | 4 | 5 | 6 | 7 |
| JUNE. | 1 | 2 | 3 | 4 | 5 | 6 | 7 |

RANDOLPH MACON COLLEGE, VA.

The next session of this Institution commences on the 19th September, 1867. As evidence of her success as an educator of young men, she points to her graduates all over the South. No location surpasses this in point of health. The town of Boydton and surrounding country has but one physician, and he is but half employed. In addition to the schools of Moral Philosophy, Ancient Languages, Mathematics, Natural Philosophy and Modern Languages, we have also a school of Commercial Science, in which are taught the branches of a business education. Young men attend day schools they wish, and get a showing for whatever they accomplish. It is our intention hereafter, to fill up our vacations with a special session, so that young men can review any studies they wish, but more particularly to teach English grammar, Commercial Arithmetic, Book-keeping, Penmanship, and Commercial Law. Thus, our students can take the Literar and Scientific course during the session, and get a practical instruction in business during the vacations. The Special Session in vacation covers the heated term in the South when business is over, and young men already engaged in business can come here to perfect their knowledge of Commercial Science, and return to the South in time to resume business.

Expenses for ten months, including meals, use of furniture, (averaged), fuel, lights, washing, matriculation and contingent fee, tuition in three schools, so as to occupy the student's whole time—$300, one-half payable at the commencement of each term.

A daily line of hacks, Sundays excepted, runs from Roanoke station (Richmond & Danville Railroad) to Boydton. Send for circulars.

Randolph, Macon College, Boydton, Mecklenburg Co., Va., July 20, '67.

Thos. C. Johnson, President.

SOUTHERN UNIVERSITY, GREENSBORO, ALA.

FACULTY.
Bishop W. M. Wightman, D. D., LL. D.
Rev. E. Wadsworth, A. M., D. D.
O' as A. M.
Rev. J. C. Williams, A. M.
EN T. Lupton, A. M.

The next session of this institution will begin on the 1st Wednesday in October next. Instruction will be given in the Schools of Ancient and Modern Languages, Moral Philosophy, Mathematics, Chemistry, Natural Philosophy, and Biblical Literature.

The Preparatory School will be under the direct supervision of the Faculty.

The Session is divided into two terms. Tuition in University per term... $40 00
Incidental fee... 5 00
Tuition in Preparatory school per term $30 to $45
Contingent fee... $2 50
Board, exclusive of washing and lights, $20 to $25 per month. All dues invariably in advance.

July 27-4t O F CASEY, Sec. Faculty.

WOODVILLE FEMALE SEMINARY.

WOODVILLE, MISSISSIPPI.

Will begin its THIRD ANNUAL SESSION on Wednesday, September 25th, 1867, and close it on the First Wednesday in July, 1868.

CHARGES PER HALF SESSION.

| | |
|--------------------------|-------|
| BOARD | $150 |
| TUITION IN PRIMARY GRADE | 30 |
| " MIDDLE GRADE | 40 |
| " COLLEGIATE GRADE | 50 |
| MUSIC with use of Piano | 45 |

ORNAIENTALS AT FAIR PRICES. For particulars send for Circular to W. T. J. SULLIVAN, Principal.

THE BRANCH OF THE SOUTHERN METHODIST PUBLISHING HOUSE, at 112 Camp street, is ready to fill orders for the latest revised edition of the Discipline, with the paragraphs relating to Lay Representation.

24 mo muslin 50c.
Sent by mail at 70c.

Prices for other quantities of binding, unchanged.

Also a double-Ed. Edition of the Discipline with large margins for the convenience of those who wish to make notes.

Bound $1 50
" Gift 2 00
Turkey Morocco 3 00
Sent by mail for 20 ms additional.

Also just received.

THE SUNDAY SERVICE, ordered by the late General Conference.

Sheep 1 25
Rox 1 50
Rox Gift 2 00
Turkey Morocco 3 00
S. S. Bells (single) 4 25 per doz.
" (double) 6 50
Sent by mail for 20 cents additional.

July 13 R J. HARR, Agt.

ST. LOUIS MUTUAL LIFE INSURANCE COMPANY.

D. A. JANTARY, President.
GEO. H. LUCAS, Vice President.
J. B. HAYES, Secretary.

Office No. 24 Camp street, New Orleans.

April 13 1867

JNO. C. BULL & CO.

GENERAL COMMISSION AND FORWARDING MERCHANTS.
No. 64 North Commercial street.

SAINT LOUIS, MO.
Dealers in Bagging, Rope, Cotton, &c. Plantation Orders Filled.

Aug 21-ly

RICHARDSON & MAY.

COTTON FACTORS, AND General Commission Merchants.

No 40 Perdido Street, New Orleans.

July 27-ly

W. H. MAYO, C. W. HODGE.

Union Parish.

COTTON FACTORS

And General Commission Merchants.

No. 56 CARONDELET ST., NEW ORLEANS.

July 1-ly

H. F. GIVEN, W. G. BROWN, D. A. GIVEN, R. K. DICKERSON.

GIVEN, BROWN & CO.

(Successors to Given, Watts & Co.)

COTTON FACTORS

General Commission Merchants.

No. 110 Camp street, next door to Christian Advocate office, New Orleans.

June 29-6m

BURKETT, WHITAKER & CO.

COTTON FACTORS.

Commission Merchants.

No. 110 Camp street, next door to Christian Advocate office, New Orleans.

June 29-6m

JOHN W. MADDEN.

LATE FIRM OF

PAUL J. CHRISTIAN & CO.

GENERAL MERCHANDISE STATIONERS, Printers, Ruler and Blank Book Manufacturers, and Lithographers.

No 73 Camp street, New Orleans.

Blank Books made to any pattern desired and at reasonable rates.

June 13-3m

HARVEY, McMAHON & CO.

COTTON FACTORS.

Commission and Forwarding Merchants.

122 Carondelet street, Davidson's Row.

NEW ORLEANS.

Wm. Forrester, New Orleans.

June 13-6m

J. B. JENNINGS, J. W. WICKS, M. J. WICKS.

JENNINGS, WICKS & BRO.

Cotton Factors & Commission Merchants.

39 PERDIDO STREET, NEW ORLEANS.

 July 1-6m |

SHAKESPEARE IRON FOUNDRY.

308 Girod street, New Orleans.

(John Geddes, Jos. A. Shakspeare—S. Swoop.)

Geddes, Shakspeare & Co.

Iron and Brass Founders and Machinists, manufacture every variety of Steam Engines, Sugar Mills, Draining Machines, Mill and Gearing, Grate Bars, Store Fronts, Columns, Sash Weights, etc. Blacksmith work of all kinds.

May 18 '67, 6m

ALEX. BRITTON, RICH'D F. BRITTON.

A. BRITTON & CO.

General Steamboat Agents,

CHRISTIAN ADVOCATE

ORGAN OF THE M. E. CHURCH SOUTH FOR THE MOBILE, MONTGOMERY, MISSISSIPPI AND LOUISIANA CONFERENCES.

NEW ORLEANS, SATURDAY, OCT. 12, 1867.

18300 A YEAR IN ADVANCE
OFFICE—114 CAMP STREET

AT NEWSTEAD.

my heart, at Newstead, fullest thought of Byron, of his cry his reason flickered, and did die.
the picture doth the story tell.
matted father, staff in hand,
his head bowed, with vacant gaze, more light of sense or knowledge the woe which made that father remorse to future days, than Byron's woe more tragic far."

FROM BISHOP MARVIN.

In the fall of 1841 admitted on trial into the connection in the Mission
I did not attend that My work for the following
"Grandy Mission," ex-work on North Grand
I went to it with about as knowledge of life or society as to have. My knowledge was limited enough—but I knew nothing. Still I got among the people and was in my work, and the log cabin told me exactly. The next to Conference. It met Macon City, the capital of the opened up to me a new I enjoyed the hospitality of the most elegant families of the place. For the first time I saw of the most distinguished men in the Church. Bishop Roberts, on the 14th, presided.—

looked as white as snow.
of the young preachers observations to him, and they shook hands with him. I was between him and me seemingly. If I chanced to the way at any time as he went, I involuntarily received a considerable space.

the formidable Swarnstedt him I had, perforce, to I had brought books that I had sold again, and had no other resources. I dramatic culprit before the agent and faltered on my Then the august representathe Book Concern searched his eyes, and then—scolding me, in no gentle terms, ever been so nearly killed but that one time. I knew to hide my shame. I that the Conference trust-with another appointment.

great men were there whom I did not name. The entire business of the Conference, the worship, teaching, the missionary meetings, the ordinations, the Bishop's address to the Conference, the moment of the appointments was almost like the opening of a new world—all, all was so solemn, so sacred, so august, so full of a century has the Missouri Conference again—in Macon City which was held praeteritum (and much less) ago—the old Roberts' seat. Pardon me, Editor, this reminiscence.
I was one of ever-ing interest to me. Episcopals were not of my in the slightest degree.—
I heard voice of the Church and me here, and I trembled at the reins from which the of the venerable Roberts had been by death so long ago, and I saw me so greatly when a boy.

important business was in a most satisfactory manner,
I have to be "reconstructed"
the magnitude of the occasion.
Differences arose as to the manner of managing some of the interests. Debate was heated, but without understanding. I think there was not a single unbecoming in n of Christ. Brethren had been carried out in the policy of the Church. Yet if other views were ready to enter into any plan that might be published interests, too; are we aware that had to be over-and understood. Some new too, had to be discussed enterprises proposed by brethren for the more perfect development of the interests of the Church in our bounds. Good temper, and a mind to work for God, prevailed through all these discussions, and I believe a sensible advance in the great work of God was made.

The missionary meeting was a happy one. Dr. McFerrin was there. Need I say any more about the missionary meeting after stating that fact? Yes, there are some facts connected with the occasion that even the Doctor's presence does not imply. A letter was read from a destitute preacher in South Carolina, and although no call was made for money for him, one hundred dollars was contributed for him. I made a call for help for the Indian missions, and three hundred and seventy-six dollars was contributed for that object. The entire collection amounted to about eight hundred dollars. Taking into account that Macon City is a new town, and that our Church had to begin there de novo after the war; that the society there numbered only thirty, mostly women, and that they had just completed a fine, spacious brick church, and were still in debt for it, this result was grand. Much of it, however, was contributed by members of the Conference and visitors.

On Sunday morning after the ordination of deacons, a statement of the debt on the new church was made. It was one thousand eight hundred dollars—an alarming sum to hang over so feeble a church. I asked the congregation if they would not pay it off on the spot.—
They seemed to be almost stunned by the suggestion. But I appealed in behalf of the little band that had struggled so nobly to build the house, and of the pastor, Rev. J. D.
Vincil, who had labored with his own hands in the work. I appealed also to their conscience in the name of the suffering Redeemer, whose cause must suffer if a harassing debt were permitted to hang over the house. I did not talk more than five minutes. Subscriptions began at once. I hurried the floor to Dr. McFerrin. He pressed the case with a few timely and telling remarks, and in some twenty or thirty minutes the congregation had completely surprised itself by paying the uttermost farthing. Brother Vincil was glad, the little society at Macon City rejoiced, and so did I.

By the way, if I should tell how we lost our house of worship three during the war, there are people in the world who I was going to say, would blush. So they would, indeed, if they are not past blushing.

The religious interest of the occasion was very great. Quite a revival was going on when the Conference closed. Some twelve or fifteen persons had united with the Church—a very substantial sort of people. And I think I may safely say we parted with a deeper sense of consecration to God.

The "lay element" worked admirably. Only one drawback was noticed. Most of the lay-members could remain only a part of the time.
But they participated in the committee work and in Conference discussions with great good feeling.—
Their remarks on the floor of the Conference were characterized by good sense and brevity—two admirable qualities. They did not consume so much time as they might have done with propriety. I believe it was a means of grace to them, and that their presence had a good effect on the preachers. I look for a deeper interest in the affairs of our Church henceforth, among laymen.

It is a good thing. I like the "lay element." I believe God will be honored and his cause advanced by this means. It is a good thing for them in the Annual Conference Missionary Board to stand face to face with the fact that some of our most laborious men with families get only two or three hundred dollars to live on, and to see how inadequate the appropriations are to the demands of the work. Our missionary collections will be better.

The visit of Dr. McFerrin was a great treat to the brethren. His remarks to the brethren in Conference, his missionary address, his short sermon, his genial humor and Christian bearing in the social circle, refreshed the spirits of all.

The Missouri Conference is full of vigor and hope. The Church, as I verily believed, has greater power in Missouri than it ever had before.

We are in a position which will enable us, if we maintain humility and good works, to do a vast amount of good. But if pride should come in, our power is gone.

E. M. MARVIN.
Kansas City, Sept. 17, 1867.

From the Nashville Christian Advocate.
LETTER FROM BISHOP ANDREW.

I see in the last number of the Advocate a letter from a traveling preacher of the South Carolina Conference, appealing loudly to the hearts and pockets of every one who loves Christ and his cause. I had received the same letter on my return from my trip, and should have answered it at once, but that by some means it has been mislaid; and now that you have offered to be the almoner of any who choose to send any help, enclosed please find ten dollars, which you will be kind enough to send to this afflicted servant of God as early as may be.— How my heart bleeds for him and his suffering family! May God bless and sustain them in this their hour of suffering! I wish it was more, but I have little besides;
however, God will provide.

A similar case of suffering was told me at the District meeting at Auburn. An old traveling-preacher with a large family has been—said the brother who was my informant—living almost all this year upon bread alone, and that has been furnished daily from the tables of a few friends who were not much better off than himself; so that it seems that after all the kindness of Western friends, by which hundreds of our people have been saved from actual starvation, there yet remains many instances of painful sufferings; there are yet many homes where want still presides. It was taken for granted that as the harvest had been gathered in, there was no need any longer of aid from abroad; but this judgment was incorrect. In the first place the harvest fell considerably short of its early promise; and secondly, thousands of the poor had no wheat to reap. Whenever the history of this year of famine shall be properly written, it will draw tears from eyes which have hitherto refused to weep. But alas! many of these sad stories will never see the light. But while for the last year we have passed through days of darkness, many important lessons have been taught us. While the West has given us a most glorious example of a large and unselfish liberality, the suffering South has called forth the sympathy of all classes of our countrymen with only a few dark exceptions. It has at the same time exhibited to the world the most glorious example of patient suffering on the part of Christian ministers, especially witness the zeal of that suffering brother who, after selling his horse to buy bread for his family, patiently trudged around his circuit on foot, that his people should not in the midst of starvation and death be deprived of the consolations and comforts of the precious word of God.

By the way, can that Church be dead which can exhibit such specimens of faith and endurance as the Southern Church is at this moment presenting to the world? Scores of our preachers are very poor, with large families to support; and although their people are not able to help them much, and large sums have been offered them if they would desert the Church of their choice and unite their fortunes with the Northern Methodist Church, yet they have, with very few exceptions, remained true to the Church of their love. Some, indeed, have been bought up by Northern gold;
but who are they? Just such men as might have been expected to identify themselves with such a cause.

In the midst of events such as those to which we have referred, what is to be thought of Christians who can give fashionable dinners and dress in costly array?

I reached home last week in rather improved health. The Lord is pouring out his Spirit most gloriously in almost all parts of Georgia.

JAS. O. ANDREWS.

Summerfield, Sept. 19, 1867.

THE MISSIONARY RECORDER.—This periodical is published monthly by our mission in Foochow, China. It is an octavo form of sixteen pages, well printed on good paper, and is full of useful matter about China, and missions in the East.—The editorial articles are well written, and the selections are judicious. We have just been reading number 7, for July, and have been instructed and interested, particularly with the first article, original, on "Native Agency in Missionary Work," and "The Cotton Plant in China."

We would be glad if we could extend its circulation. One dollar per annum, gold, of course. Send us subscriptions, paid.

From the Louisville Courier.
KENTUCKY CONFERENCE.

FIRST DAY.
LEXINGTON, Ky., Sept. 18, '67.

OPENING SERVICES.
The forty-seventh session of the Kentucky Conference of the M. E.
Church, South, which embraces the upper portions of the State, commenced this morning in the Methodist Church, in Lexington, Ky., Bishop Pierce, of Georgia, presiding;
G. S. Savage and W. F. Tylor were elected secretaries.

The Conference was opened with religious services by Bishop Pierce.
There are nearly sixty ministers and a number of lay delegates present, and many more expected.—
There are also a number of visitors from different points not connected with the Conference.

DEATHS.
Two deaths have occurred, viz:
Rev. G. W. Maley and W. G. Johns.

LAY DELEGATION.
In the committees are the names of many laymen. This is the first Conference in which lay delegation has been introduced. It will be a feature of all Conferences in the future, having been adopted by the late General Conference and approved by the Annual Conferences.

COMMUNICATIONS.
Communications were read from the Missionary Secretaries, E. W.
Selon and J. B. McFerrin, Foreign and Domestic Missions.

VISITORS INTRODUCED.
Rev. R. Y. McReynolds, of Scotts-ville, Ky.; Richard Valentine, of the Presbyterian Church; C. T. Widney,
J. W. Cunningham, of the Louisville Conference; H. A. C. Walker and W. W. Wightman, transfers from the South Carolina Conference, and R. K. Hargrave, of the Mobile Conference, were introduced.

SECOND DAY.
LEXINGTON, Sept. 16, 1867.

The Conference was opened with religious services by Rev. Isaac Collard, Bishop Pierce in the chair.

A MORE THAN SEMI-CENTENARIAN.—AN INTERESTING RELIC OF THE OLDEN TIME.
Rev. Isaac Collard is the oldest man and member of the Kentucky Conference. He was 73 years old on the 25th of June last. He was born in New York City, was baptized by Joseph Pillmore, one of the first two missionaries sent by Mr.
Wesley to America; joined the Church August 15, 1810, at the age of 16 years, in old John street, New York, the first Methodist chapel built in America. He worked, when a boy, at sail making in New York, and made sails, awnings, and bottom for the berths for the first steamboat that Robert Fulton successfully ran upon the Hudson river, before he obtained his patent. He came to Cincinnati in 1811 when it was a town of a few thousand inhabitants, and joined the old Stone Church, on Fifth street, now Wesley Chapel, the only Methodist Church then in Cincinnati. The only Presbyterian Church then in Cincinnati was that of Dr. Joshua L. Wilson, father of Dr. Samuel Wilson, of Louisville. Father Collard was licensed to preach in July, 1818, by the Quarterly Conference of the old Stone Church in Cincinnati.—Joseph Crume, presiding elder, Alexander
Comings, pastor; joined the Ohio Conference at Cincinnati in 1819, and was appointed to the Limestone Circuit (now Maysville) in Kentucky. In 1821 he joined the Kentucky Conference, just organized at Lexington, and was at the same time ordained deacon. What a change has occurred within his day!
Since he was baptized by one of the first Methodist missionaries in America, how numerous have become the clergy and membership of that Church. Since he made sails for the first clumsy craft of Fulton, what gigantic strides has steam enginery made on the rivers, lakes and oceans, and the land. Since he knew Cincinnati how vastly has she extended her borders, and how many great cities in the West have sprung into existence or risen from inconsiderable villages. Since he joined the Kentucky Conference what a change has occurred in it!
Of all the men who were identical with him in Conference deliberations in this city forty-six years ago, not one remains in Kentucky, and only two live elsewhere—Andrew Monroe, of Missouri, and Peter Car-wright, of Illinois.

The venerable man sits as a father among a new Conference of clerical sons, honored and beloved by all—the only relic of the olden time.
Peaceful and prosperous be his last days, calm be his dying moments, and heaven his final home.

VISITORS INTRODUCED.

The following clerical visitors were introduced: J. H. Linn, W. H.
Anderson and A. H. Reelford, of Louisville, Mr. Brauk, of the Presbyterian, Mr. Felix, of the Baptist, and J. R. Eads, of the M. E. Church (North).

MONUMENT TO BISHOP BASCOM.

Rev. Dr. Linn, of the Louisville Conference, announced the fact that the body of Bishop Henry B. Bascom, Kentucky's favorite pulpit orator, reposes in a cemetery at Louisville, unhonored by a monument. There has been a reason which need not be stated why a monument was not long since erected. The reason was not want of respect for the deceased Bishop, or sympathy for the object proposed. The time has now arrived when it is believed the difficulty can be surmounted and the monument erected. The proposition of Dr. Linn met with great favor. Revs. G. W. Merritt and H. W. Abbott spoke feelingly in favor of it. The proposition was referred to a committee, viz: S. L.
Robertson, G. W. Merritt, R. A.
Holland, H. W. Abbott, and D. Wel-burn, with instructions to inaugurate a plan for accomplishing the object proposed.

It is proposed to complete the monument this winter, and dedicate it next May, when there will be a convocation of Bishops and other clergy in Louisville.

RECEIVED ON TRIAL.

The following ministers were received on trial in the Conference:
F. W. Noland, son of Rev. S. Noland, of Nicholasville; W. T. Poynter, of Winchester, who resigns his position of cashier of Clarke county National Bank for the work of a Methodist itinerant preacher, in which position he is likely to handle fewer greenbacks than in his late office as banker; D. H. Harrison, from Bryantsville circuit; Robt. Hart, of Pikeville circuit; B. P. Bristow, a brother of Rev. J. H. Bristow, one of the Louisville Conference but now of the M. E. Church (North).
Mr. B. P. Bristow was for many years a popular local preacher at Jacksonville, Illinois. While his erratic brother went North, he remained in Illinois to Kentucky and located in Owen county, whose atmosphere he found more congenial than that of Illinois, where he has supplied a circuit as pastor for several months with considerable success. To use the language of his priding elder, "He has almost revolutionized sweet Owen metho-distically," having added a considerable number to the Church.

READMITTED.

W. J. Snively was readmitted.

THIRD DAY.

LEXINGTON, Sept. 20, 1867.

LAY DELEGATION.

T. N. Ralston, S. L. Robertson, and G. S. Savage were appointed a committee to designate the mode of electing lay delegates to this Conference.

ELDERS ELECTED.

French Strother, Jefferson Bannon, local deacons, were elected elders.

PUBLISHING HOUSE.—AN ADDRESS FROM ITS AGENT.

Rev. A. H. Redford addressed the Conference in reference to the publishing house at Nashville. At the close of the war it was without credit and oppressed with debt.—
Now it has credit for any required amount, though its indebtedness has not been removed. The prospect is favorable for a successful future, and, without great disaster to the South, on which it chiefly relies for support, it must, under the management of its present efficient agent, be a complete success.
The agent pressed the claims not only of the books of the publishing house, but of its Church periodicals, the Nashville Christian Advocate and Sunday School Visitor. His address, earnestly delivered, was received with manifest favor by the audience.

SOUTHERN RELIEF.

Rev. B. M. Messick reported the amounts sent through the Conference commission in this city, from the various circuits and stations for the relief of the poor of Georgia.— Considerable sums were sent through other sources to various portions of the South not mentioned in this report. The places contributing and amounts paid we did not obtain. The thanks of the Conference were voted to Messrs. Headly and Pugh for efficient services rendered the Southern relief commission of the Conference.

CHURCH HISTORY.

The committee to whom was referred the communication of Rev.
A. H. Redford, in relation to a history of Kentucky Methodism, submitted a report in favor of the proposition of Mr. Redford, which was adopted.—The following resolutions are a part of the report:

Resolved, That Brother Redford have free access to the records and historical documents of the Conference.

Resolved, That each preacher of this Conference owes to the memory of the worthy dead, to the Church in her conflicts and triumphs, to themselves and those who may come after them, to collect all the material within the bounds of the work to which they may be assigned the ensuing year, and forward them with as little delay as possible to the publisher.

APPOINTMENTS.

LEXINGTON DISTRICT.—H. P. Walker, P. E.; Lexington, to be supplied; Frankfort, H. A. M. Henderson;
Versailles and Georgetown, P. L.
Henderson; Nicholasville, S. S.
Deering; Jessamine, S. Noland; Mortonsville, to be supplied; Winchester, W. T. Pointer; Mount Sterling, D. B. Cooper; Greenwich,
T. J. Dodd; Leesburg, T. P. A. Bibb; Paris, W. F. Taylor; North Middletown and Mt. Zion, J. W. Fitch.
McD. Abbott, Superintendent of the Institution for the Education of Feeble minded Children. Geo. S.
Savage, Agent American Bible Society.

HARRISBURG DISTRICT.—Geo. W.
Merritt, P. E.; Harrisburg, S. K.
Hall; Lawrenceburg, W. R. Johnson; Anderson, Miss., to be supplied; Perryville, W. H. Winter; Perryville, to be supplied;
Washington, to be supplied;
Maxville, W. F. Vaughan; Danville,
J. C. Morris; Bryantsville, W. C.
Campbell; Stanford, to be supplied;
Mallison, to be supplied; Richmond and Providence, E. L. Southgate; Lancaster, Anselm Miner. W. T.
Godbey, President Harmonia College.

SHELBYVILLE DISTRICT.—D. Wel-burn, P. E.; Shelbyville, H. A. C.
Walker; Shelby, to be supplied;
Taylorsville, J. C. Miner; Bloomfield,
G. T. Gould; LaGrange, Jeremiah Strother, one to be supplied; Bedford, to be supplied; Milton, F. W.
Noland; Carrollton, N. G. Berryman; Newcastle, D. A. Beardsley; one to be supplied; Simpsonville, T. F.
Vannier; Lockport, to be supplied.

COVINGTON DISTRICT.—R. Hiner, P.
E.; Covington, R. A. Holland; Newport, John R. Deering; Alexandria, W. B. Kavanaugh; Falmouth, to be supplied; Oldville, H. H. Kavanagh, Jr.; Millersburg, to be supplied; Cynthiana, J. W. Wightman; Russell's Mills, to be supplied; Carlisle, S. L. Robertson; Milton Mann, Sup.; Irvinville, to be supplied; Warsaw, J. T. Smith; Williamstown, G. W. Smith; Downingsville, to be supplied; Burlington, Orson Long; Owen, Miss., E.
F. Bristow; Kenton, Miss., W. H.
Parker; Bonrbon, J. E. Letton. Geo.
Taylor, President Kentucky Wesleyan University and Agent for the same. H. W. Abbott, Professor Languages, Wesleyan University.
T. P. G. Shelman, Sunday-school Agent.

MAYSVILLE DISTRICT.—T. N. Ralston, P. E.; Maysville, J. Ramey; Washington and Germantown, W.
T. Benton; Shannon and Sardinia,
H. Hoffman; Mt. Olivet, R. Lancaster; Flemingsburg, to be supplied;
Tilton, Elkanah Johnson; Poplar
Plains and Hillsboro, B. F. Sedwick; Owingsville, Robert Hart; Sharpburg and Bethel, William Bickens; Lewis, L. G. Waters; Orangeburg,
P. E. Kavanaugh; Brookville, H. E.
Coleman, Geo. B. Poague, Sup.

WEST LIBERTY DISTRICT.—W. W.
Chamberlin, P. E.; West Liberty, to be supplied; Prestonsburg, N. G.
Robinson; Morehead, Miss., to be supplied; Pikeville, Miss., to be supplied; Jackson and Perry, Miss., to be supplied; Stanton, Miss., to be supplied; Irvine, Miss., D. H. Mori-mon.

SOMERSET DISTRICT.—T. G. Bosley,
P. E.; Somerset, W. J. Savely;
Cumberland, Miss., to be supplied;
Fishing Creek, Miss., to be supplied; Bloomville and Proctor, Miss., to be supplied; Barboursville and Yellow Creek, Miss., to be supplied; Louisa and Mt. Vernon, Miss., to be supplied; Manchester, Miss., to be supplied;
Williamsburg, Miss., to be supplied.

J. H. Dulany, transferred to Bal-more Conference. James A. Lewis and B. M. Messick transferred to Louisville Conference.

For the N. O. Christian Advocate.

NEWS FROM THE CHURCHES.

Jacksonville District—Montgomery Conference.

Mr. Editor: I have just closed my third round of appointments in this District, and thinking it would be interesting to the friends of Zion to hear from the section of the Conference, I have concluded to write you some items of religious interest for publication. The first appointment was at Ebenezer, Montevallo circuit, C. L. Dobbs, pastor. The meeting continued one week, resulting in thirty conversions, and near the same number of accessions to the church. The membership was greatly blessed, and several old neighborhood friends turned up with the hallowed fires of religion. The next appointment was for the Montevallo Station. Did not protract, had a good Lovefeast, and pleasant communion season. Several joined the Church who had been converted at the country meeting. Bro. Woodward, has since had a good meeting, with seventeen conversions, at Briarfield; an appointment he fills connected with the Station. At Montevallo, we have been much troubled with the dancing devil, and some of the lambs of the flock, have been enticed away from the green pastures which religion provides, to seek pleasure, "so-called," in the barren waste of the dancing party or ball room. In my heart, I pity the church member who lets him, or herself, down from the high and exalted position of uncompromising Christian integrity, (to which position is secured by God's promise, solid enjoyment, and rational pleasure,) to the meretricious allurements of the dance. It is a diminutive specimen of a Christian, that does not realize that the converted soul is a kingdom within itself, and has fountains of comfort, which the world cannot give, neither take away, and to its own mighty resources, and does, and looks for pleasure and happiness. The true Christian is freed from a vassalage to outside circumstances for enjoyment. How dwarfed must be the spiritual and intellectual nature, that leaves the vast and boundless fields of religious and intellectual exploration, for the irrational thing of shaking the feet for pleasure, or the attitudinizing indecencies of modern or fashionable dances, ministering only to the baser passions of fallen human nature.

From Montevallo, I fell back to Camp Branch, on the Circuit, where Bro. Dobbs has commenced another meeting. He is an indefatigable worker, the right man in the right place. The meeting continued nine days, resulting in forty conversions and many accessions to the Church. Bro. D. has had several good meetings since I left him, and is still engaged in holding protracted meetings. The good work goes gloriously on, under his ministrations, aided by others who faithfully co-operate with him.

The next appointment was for the Harpersville Circuit, at Enon, D. S. McDonald, Pastor, a workman blessed of God, and approved by his charge. This was the fast week meeting. Commenced good, continued, prosperous, and ended well. The Lord gave us forty souls for our hire. I wish I could describe the glorious manifestations of God's Spirit, on Friday, the fast day. I was holding the prayer meeting, and the thought came into my mind, that just at that moment, multiplied thousands of God's faithful ones were kneeling, and supplicating the throne of mercy for the gift of the Holy Spirit, in large measure. The thought was overwhelming, and my faith laid fast hold of God, as did also the praying part of the congregation, and there was such a melting mellowing influence came upon us, as I scarcely ever felt before. It was a happy day, and I thank the one in my heart, who first suggested the idea of this protracted fast-week meeting. My next visit was to the Coosa River Circuit, Henry Young, Pastor. A plain unassuming good man, full of faith and zeal, and thoroughly baptized into the Spirit of the work. He has been somewhat of the M. E. Church. At two points, by misrepresentations and stirring up political prejudices, they had succeeded in drawing off some of his members. He had, however, just closed a meeting at one of those places, where sixteen members had gone off, had over twenty conversions, and twenty-two joined the church, leaving it stronger numerically and spiritually than before. These "emissaries" have done us about all the harm they can, they are whittling down, and will soon whittle down to the fuzzle end of nothing. The people soon tire on the style of men they have brought up to do this dirty work; men so destitute of worth or merit, they never could succeed with us, and so destitute of principle, that they can be galvanized with green backs, into anything, yankee fanaticism may desire.

The Quarterly Meeting for this work was at Gibson's Mill. We continued only four days, had a gracious time. Eight or ten conversions and accessions, and the membership much refreshed. From this point, I went to Jacksonville, to join in holy matrimony, F. T. J. Brandon, of the Montgomery Conference, to Miss Carrie Woodward, one of our most estimable young ladies, highly gifted with native mind, cultivated with patient application and care, and last, but not least, deeply and earnestly pious. She exerted an influence for good in her native place, especially over the young, above that of any one else of her age, and had embalmed herself in our hearts, and held a place in our affections that will not soon be filled by another. Possessing in an eminent degree, qualities of head and heart, that peculiarly fitted her to be the companion and co-laborer of the faithful itinerant minister, to whom she has joined her destiny. We all shed tears when we parted with Miss Carrie, but we will not, indulge the selfish desire to withhold her from a wider field of usefulness, than she had with us. The Jacksonville church under the pastoral care of C. A. King, is in a healthy condition. We had at this place a gracious revival in the Spring, with an addition to the membership of thirty-three members. The Sunday school is doing well, with an average attendance of about one hundred scholars, and a full corps of efficient and competent teachers. The church in all its departments is in good running order.

My next appointment was at Morrisville, Alexandria Circuit, Wm. M. Taylor, Pastor. Bro. T. is a local preacher supplying this work, and has been raised with this people, and yet, is not worn out with them. The work has grown and prospered during the year, under his ministrations, beyond my most sanguine expectations. On the first day of the meeting, all the seat room of a tolerably sized house was occupied, and every official member of the Circuit was present, and on Sunday, the house did not hold more than half the congregation. The meeting continued one week, resulting in forty-three conversions, and forty-two accessions to the church. The next meeting was at Alexandria. Only continued a few days; it rained every day, and the character of the soil was muddy and disagreeable. We had a few conversions, and hope the church was much benefited. In addition to the above, Bro. T. has had several rather extensive and gracious revivals on his work, and when I last heard from him, was in the midst of a glorious revival. May God send it out in glorious inundating waves all over this smitten and afflicted land, let every Christian heart say amen. Next we concentrated our forces at Oxford White Plains Circuit, R. B. Crawford, Pastor. Than whom, a more faithful, earnest, and efficient, Methodist preacher, is not upon the rolls of the Montgomery Conference. Oxford, is a growing village on the Selma and Dalton Rail Road, twenty-one miles above Talladega, and is the key or strategic point to the Choccoloe Valley, one of the richest and most desirable valleys in all this up country. Oxford, has also a fine back country trade, other than the valley, it is therefore a place of some prospective importance. A large and commodious brick Academy is going up, soon to be completed, and the eyes of many are turned to this point, in search of educational facilities for their children.

We, therefore, felt it important to make an earnest and persistent effort for the cause of our Master here. Not only because of the interest felt in the present population, but to so shape, and give tone and direction to the sentiments of the place, that the ingathering population might be absorbed in the prevailing feelings, laid in, and based upon the religion of the Bible.

I fear we are sometimes wanting in enterprise, in not laying our foundations broad and deep at points that any discerning man can see, are to prospectively become great centers of society. The meeting continued two weeks, resulting in quite a number of conversions, and thirty-five accessions to the church. The membership were greatly strengthened, and encouraged. This closes my round, and I have mentioned mainly the meetings that in God's good Providence, I have been enabled to attend. The preachers of the District have had many refreshing seasons with the different churches where they preach. And the revival work is still going gloriously on. Bro. McDonald closed a meeting at Chapell, last night, six miles above this place, with eighteen conversions, closed only to commence another.

A want of unusual success at every place that efforts have been made, is an exception to the rule this year. My co-laborers on the District, are a set of young, vigorous, working Methodist preachers, each one willing to meet his full measure of responsibility. And if the Bishop and Cabinet will agree to it, at the Conference, I will close my work with them at the first meeting, by asking that the preachers remain just as they are. We hope the Conference session, the Lord will give us a thousand souls for our hire. The Freedmen have had due attention, and many of them have been converted, but what number I do not know. The crops are good in all this section, and the preachers will be supported a hundred per cent. better than last year. The dark cloud of adversity and want, that has so long hung over this up country, is breaking, and a streak of light is seen belting the heavens here and there. God has graciously given us the seed time, and the early and latter rain, and now we have the harvest, and will therefore have "seed for the sower, and bread for the eater." We not only ought to; but we do say, "Bless the Lord, O my soul, and all that is within me, bless His holy name."

L. M. WILSON.

Columbiana, Ala., Sept. 27, '67.

Letter from Morehouse Parish, La.

Mr. Editor: I regret that I have no interesting religious intelligence to communicate. The spiritual condition of this swamp country is by no means such as the truly pious would desire to see it. Our people seem perfectly bewildered by the troubles of the present; and the dark future of the country, which is illumined by no bow of promise. A total failure of the crops last year, both cotton and corn, left them still struggling on the verge of temporal ruin, to which the war had dragged them. By kind assistance from Commission Merchants of your city, they staked all upon another venture, with "free labor," and all is lost. The flood in the Spring, delayed the planting, continued rains after the waters subsided, rendered the cultivation of the crops an impossibility—with lazy, demoralized, vagabond negroes—and to-day, (Sept 14th), they look as if a devouring fire had swept over them. The caterpillar, not content with destroying the leaf, turns to all the bolls, not fully grown, and then makes the work of devastation complete. In all the hill portions of this Parish, the corn is good; not superlatively so, but good compared with the crop of last year. While in the swamp portions of the Parish, the crop will be very short, and the planters being forced to gather from the fields, for immediate use, will reduce the supply very materially. This great cotton growing region of North Louisiana is destined soon to be a wilderness. Already whole plantations have been abandoned. And thus, practical confiscation has been accomplished by making citizens of the plantation bores. They call the negroes free, and talk much about the emancipation of slaves; but the poor negro never knew a bondage so fearful as that which Radical fanaticism has forced upon him.

I cannot now see how our people are to remain in this country. Lands without labor are worthless, and the labor is lost forever.

How is the ministry to be supported? This (Jefferson) Circuit, where before the war, any reasonable amount of money could easily have been raised for the church, is now so impoverished, that the people find it difficult to supply their families with bread. Anything beyond the absolute necessities of life, is thought of only as beyond the reach, even of the most fortunate among us.

The Presiding Elder, J. L. Wright, is active, prompt and diligent, and by his case, I am forcibly impressed with the great good resulting from your system of change; you may keep a man in the Presiding Elder's office, until he is about good for nothing; but change him and you, spring him to real usefulness. And so you keep a man digging as a "Circuit rider," until he wears out, and then place him in another field, and the church realizes that she has in him a workman approved of God. Your Conference (filled as it is with good men,) could not furnish material out of which could be made a more acceptable and useful Presiding Elder than J. L. Wright. As an outsider, I may be allowed to express an opinion. Rev. Horace Jewell, the "Arkansas" preacher, now stationed at Monroe, seems to be the right man in the right place. In that place, where only Romanism has held sway for nearly half a century, and where Protestants have hitherto labored, almost in vain—he has organized a Methodist Society, respectable in members, and embracing some of the very best people of the place.

Of political news we have none. The Convention election will be attended by all the freedmen, and many of the freed women—but white people generally will stand aloof. Of the few who have been allowed to register, very few will offer to vote. They say, and rightly too, that the Radicals have determined to have everything their own way, that the complete ruin of the South has been resolved upon; they have no power to avert the calamity, so they will sit down in supineness, look on in stoic apathy, and let the ear of the juggernaut roll on.

ELEN.

Miss. Conference, Greenville, Oct. 4.

After an interval of some two weeks, upon the return of Bro. McClennan, from District Quarterly Meetings, we resumed the protracted meeting of which I gave you an account. Bro. Anchor, pastor of Presbyterian Church, and Bro. Ashford, also labored with zeal and success. I have never seen a more manifest work of God—so undeniable has this been, that it has stopped the mouth of gainsaying. Only ten, I believe, have experienced religion; but many of them were the brightest conversions I ever saw; and though formerly ignorant of our usages, or enemies to them, they now fall into our customs and practices, with wonderful zeal. Thirteen have joined the two churches—seven of them young men, many more are almost persuaded to be Christians, and the spirit of revival is still alive, though we have had to discontinue our meetings. To the last, the interest became more intense, and our prospects enlarged. As we have labored before, we have been burdened and bowed down; but we now feel that a load has been removed, for God has risen in the majesty of his arm, to do his own work—it seems to go on, and spread without human instrumental-ity. Thanks be to God, for His goodness, to us as well as all the churches.

Your brother in Christ,
W. W. DRAKE.

Mr. Editor: We commenced religious services in the Franklin street church, on the Sabbath of the "octavo," that embraced the 16th of August—the day of the general fast, and continued through the period, with two prayer meetings a day. The members of the church entered into the work, and were very much blessed. A religious interest was soon manifested in the congregation, and we protracted the services, with occasional preaching through several weeks. As the result, we have had unusual congregations, much religious enjoyment, a decided increase in the piety and activity of the church, some thirty conversions, and twenty-eight added to our membership; and hope to have others.

That fast day was a gracious day for the church. I trust the fruit of it will be seen for a long time to come.

J. HAMILTON.

Mobile, Sept. 30, 1867.

A letter just received from Rev. Wm. Moore, of Little Rock Conference, dated Leaks Store, Ark., Sept. 19, says: "We are having some gracious meetings on this District—professors renewed, and sinners converted."

Montgomery District Meeting.

COMMITTEE ON EDUCATION—REPORT NO. 4.

East Alabama College Association.

By the issues of War, East Alabama College has lost the greater part of its own handsome endowment. The Institution has been sustained during last year, by the noble sacrifices of the Professors, who have worked for a bare pittance. The College is in the crisis of its history. It was, before the war, a very successful Seminary of learning, and an excellent nursery of the ministry of our church. The Institution must be sustained, and that by immediate effort. We propose a temporary system of relief upon the same plan as that proposed for the help of Emory College, by Bishop Pierce. Let us organize "A College Relief Association," with a President, Secretary and Treasurer, (to be annually elected by the subscribers to this fund.)

Let us have an annual reunion, at Auburn, with appropriate commemorative exercises. Let us become subscribers to this Association, pledging ourselves to pay annually, on the first day of January of each succeeding year, for the term of five years, from January, 1868. The sum of twenty dollars for the support of East Alabama College. Let us pay this sum punctually to the Treasurer of this Association, who shall be authorized to turn over the same to the Executive Board of Trustees of the College, to be, by them distributed, in such sums and at such times as they may deem advisable, for the support primarily of the Faculty of the Institution. In case the annual income from this source should exceed the amount necessary to supply any deficiencies in the salaries of Professors, then the surplus is to be converted into a part of the "Permanent Endowment Fund" of the College.

Our signatures bind us to the terms of this Agreement.

RESOLUTIONS.

Resolved, That the members of this District meeting raise the sum of $300 to be used for the education of our young men from this District, for the ministry.

Resolved, That a Committee of five pastors, be authorized to make selection of said beneficiary, and to take steps to enter him in the East Alabama College.

Resolved, That the pastors of this District are not expected to subscribe to this fund.

Resolved, That the pastors of this District, and their successors, are hereby appointed agents of the Relief Association of East Alabama College, and are requested to act as such, and present subscription lists to the membership of their charges, and others—and wards to forward the same to the President of the Association, before the close of the Conference.

W. W. DRAKE.
Auburn, Sept. 10, 1867.

For the N. O. Christian Advocate.

Summerfield District Meeting—

Conference.

Mr. Editor: This body was organized on Thursday, September 1st, Bishop Wightman presiding the first day. There were in attendance about twenty-five members. The introductory sermon preached by Rev. J. L. Cotton, gave us an interesting discourse full of thought and of wisdom founded on Matt. V. 13. 14.

Committees were appointed the various subjects, usually considered in such meetings. The various pastoral charges in the district were then represented by pastors, and others, and much information was elicited that was constructive and encouraging. Discussions on the various and resolutions presented, of fine taste and spirit, both lay and preachers taking part in them. The impression was very great that our meeting was a success, that great good would result from our conferring together. The members, particularly, expressed their gratification at what they heard, and they went away convinced that these meetings were sources of much good to the churches.

The following lay-brethren elected delegates to the Conference: Hon. Wm. M. Wood, P. G. Wood, Warren E. Nedy, and Abram L. Pope. Robt. D. Hoot. The citizens of Uniontown, expressed their appreciation of the occasion, by a most genial hospitality, which in return more than repaid the services of the District meeting. At the last account, thirty had joined the church, more than fifty were at the penitents.

I deem it unnecessary to go into the details of our proceedings. I herewith enclose such reports, committees, as the meeting expressed a wish to have published. I can use your own discretion in giving them a place in your numbers.

JOHN S. MOORE, Secy.

REPORT OF COMMITTEE ON MISSIONS.

AND CONFERENCE COLLECTIONS.

The Committee to whom was referred the duty of estimating the amount necessary to be raised, the several Circuits and Stations of the Summerfield District, for missions and for the Conference collection, beg leave to report that in opinion, $1700 ought to be raised for the above stated purposes, to be distributed among the several charges as follows:

Demopolis, $200; Selma, $300; Uniontown, $300; Summerfield, $300; McKinly $200; Perry, $100; Cahola and Orrville, $100; Randolph, 100.

This amount to be equally divided between the Missionary and Conference collections, and the missionary money divided equally between Foreign and Domestic Missions, that the preachers of this District use their best efforts to collect above amount.

G. GARRETT, Ch'n Com.

DEPARTURE OF MISSIONARIES.—The departure of three missionaries for India, occurred on the 11th of September, at half past one o'clock. They were met on board the steamer Manhattan, William Guyon, agents, by the officers and board and many friends and relatives, which made the occasion one of great interest, many having been attracted to the place, both of reports made to them of the meeting held on the previous evening. The Manhattan is one of a fine line of steamers for Liverpool. Our missionaries, upon their arrival in that port, take passage in one of the "regular line" sailing vessels for Calcutta, and will probably make their passage in from ninety to one hundred and ten days.

MISSIONARIES FOR CHINA.—Rev. S. Todd and wife will leave for China on Saturday, September 21, in the Rising Star, from the foot of Canal-street, at twelve o'clock.

THE DYING MOTHER.

BY MRS. BRUCE.

Greatly over land and sea,
Came down the winter's night,
Singing upon its ebon wings
A mantle purely white.

A spangled robe as beautiful
As the immortal's wear,
And over vale and glade it spread
The vesture soft and fair.

And o'er the frozen river's breast,
And o'er the town's twined spread,
And o'er the mountains and mounds above
The quiet dead.

Upon the mountain's lofty brow,
And o'er the fields below—
O'lightly, lightly, everywhere,
Came down the gentle snow.

Within our peaceful, sheltered home,
Where all was bright and warm,
Was one preparing to go forth,
But not into the storm.

A stranger to our home had come,
A message there to bring;
Our mother took the scroll, and knew
The signet of the king.

O God! the parting hour had come—Husband, nor child, nor friend
Could stand against the stranger's power,
Nor with his will contend.

We gathered round our mother's bed
To catch her parting breath,
And stood nearer to her heart—
We knew his name was Death.

And from our love, and from our grief,
And from our dwelling warm,
We saw our mother in her arms,
But not into the storm.

She went unseen, but not alone,
Dear pilgrim of the earth,
Who held her by the hand,
As Israel bore her forth.

And the sweet word she left for us
Shall our life's watchword be,
As I have followed Jesus' steps,
Beloved ones, follow me.

She held her body down to sleep
Where all is sweet and still,
Where the last rays of the sunlight fall
Upon the westward hill.

And in close, precious to our hearts
Shall be that hallowed spot;
While by the Lord she loved so well
It will not be forgot.

Wanted and wan we laid her down,
Worn out by mortal strife,
But fair and glorious shall she spring
To God immortal life.

O Heavenly Father, teach us how
To live and how to die,
And we may with our mother rise
To immortality.

—Religio-ist.

Consider yourselves as agents for the Association, and get all the subscriptions you can possibly obtain by the end of the Conference year, and inclose them, when you leave your work, to Geo. C. Dillard, Secretary, Auburn, Alabama.

This "College" is the special property of this Conference, and in every sense well worthy of your aid and efforts, the patronage and support of all our people, and the only male College within its bounds.

Brethren, please fail not to prepare your subscription lists, and do not let them slumber on your hands; but do all you can, and the blessings of "God," and present and future generation will be upon you. Let us sustain and build up "our College" where our sons may be fitted for "polished shafts" in the Temple of Righteousness; and our young men filled with all knowledge, and blessed with the anointings from on high, may go forth Embassadors for God, to proclaim the unspeakable riches of Christ's Kingdom. Brethren, encourage our people and let us do our part.

DAVID BROWDER, Pres't.

East Ala. College Relief Association.

Montgomery, Ala., Sept. 24th, 1867.

College Relief Associations.

In compliance with an earnest request made at the Montgomery and Selma District Meetings, just held, I beg to call the attention of the members and friends of the M. E. Church, South, within the bounds of the Montgomery and Mobile Conferences, to a plan formed at those meetings to relieve the necessities of the East Alabama College, at Auburn, and the Southern University, at Greensboro. This is similar to the plan set on foot in Georgia, by Bishop Pierce, for the relief of Emory College. By the fortunes of war, the endowments of these institutions have been so far damaged as to render it necessary that they should be thrown upon the benevolence of the church at large, for aid to carry them through the next session or two. Accordingly, Relief Associations were formed, officers elected, and a promising beginning made, at the District Meetings aforesaid.

For the College of the Montgomery Conference, at Auburn, the subscribers pledged themselves to pay $20 annually, for five years. For the Southern University, the subscribers pledged themselves to pay the same amount annually, for two years;—it being understood that in case of death or removal from the State, the subscription should not be binding; and that the payment should be paid on or before January 1st, 1868.

This plan of sustaining the Colleges temporarily, until the country passes through the present crisis, and sees the troubles which now environ it, far in the rear, meets my cordial approval. I earnestly appeal to every thoughtful, large-hearted member of the church, in the two Alabama Conferences, to put his name on the list of subscribers. I beg the Presiding Elders and Preachers in charge, to bring the subject to the notice of all who might and ought to lend a helping hand, just now when a united effort will be sure to afford effective relief. Let us push this good plan. These important Institutions of learning must not be abandoned in time of trouble. Having weathered the storm so far, they must not be allowed to founder now. A few thousand dollars a year, for a year or two, will save them to the church and to posterity. The Relief Associations, without pressing any one, will give us the means.

W. M. WESTMAN

Greensboro, Sept. 17, 67.

The London Baidler, in an article on the prospective or possible exhaustion of the English coal fields, suggests, as a practicable resort, the employment of the tidal power in the direct production of heat, by compressing air.

The following merited tribute to the lamented Perham, precludes the necessity for us to say more. It is from the Corpus Christi Ranchero of Sept. 1st:

Rev. J. P. Perham.

The death of Rev. J. P. Perham, of yellow fever, at Corpus Christi, is one of the saddest calamities which has befallen that place. Mr. Perham was a man of decided ability, and beyond all question was one of the most eloquent and powerful speakers in Western Texas. And it may with propriety be questioned whether he had a superior anywhere. He possessed an expansive intellect, and when taken all in all, was about the best specimen of a self-made man on the continent. We have listened to many public men, but never have we been more entertained than when listening to the voice of Rev. J. P. Perham. With the exception of Stephen A. Douglas, we regarded Mr. Perham as fully a match for any public speaker we ever listened to.

As evidence of Mr. Perham's forensic power, we quote the statement of Senator Danl. E. Watrous, of Alabama, brother to John C. Watrous. Senator Watrous said that, "he regarded Mr. Perham as the most captivating speaker to whom he had ever listened." But Mr. Perham's power was not felt so much when he was in the pulpit, as when he addressed mass meetings. Mr. Perham was from one of the New England States. He first settled in Alabama, where he was when the subject of internal improvement, and especially that of railroading, was mooted in that State. On those questions Mr. Perham took the stump. Wherever he went, wherever he was advertised to speak, which was always in favor of improvement, the whole people turned out to hear him. On every dry improvement question, he raised a furor never before witnessed in Alabama. The ablest men of that State listened to him, and were enraptured by his simple, his profound, his real irresistible eloquence.

But as we said, Mr. Perham was not in his element, when in the pulpit. When there he was cramped, and his remarkable powers narrowed to prescribed limits. His soul was in the cause of religion and it appeared to us that he preached from duty. But even in that capacity he was among the most entertaining of his profession.

Mr. Perham, whilst in Alabama, engaged successfully in boring artesian wells; and when the State of Texas appropriated lands to aid in boring artesian wells between the Nueces and Rio Grande, Mr. Perham came to Texas and vigorously undertook the work. But in this undertaking he failed entirely. He soon discovered that the expense of boring wells between the Nueces and Rio Grande would be severally greater than the value of the lands donated. He abandoned the project after sinking a well near King's Ranch several hundred feet deep.

From that time he has resided in the vicinity of Corpus Christi; lecturing and preaching occasionally. During the war Mr. Perham delivered several very able and stirring addresses to the people, and clearly foreshadowed the consequences of a failure on the part of the South to maintain the position assumed. From the first he said slavery was doomed. "If," he once said, "the South does not immediately free her slaves, and use them for war purposes, the North will overcome her, and will abolish slavery, and turn the slaves against their masters. In any event negro slavery would be destroyed." Such were the prophetic words of Mr. Perham during the first year of the wonderful struggle.

Mr. Perham's light, so to speak, had ever been under a bushel. This may be accounted for in various ways. He was not ambitious of distinction. He was a preacher, and therefore not the admiration of the voting rabble. He was a Northern man, and of course was not pushed forward by the Southerners. He was not a rich man, and had neither money, nor the ambition to spend it, for political aggrandizement and notoriety. He was pressed into running for the legislature once, but with all his great talents, failed of an election, was beaten by a consolidated Mexican vote.

When yellow fever broke out in Corpus Christi, over a month since, he was chosen President of the Howard Association. He was a man of splendid physical development, in the very prime of life, though a little past middle age. He labored day and night in the epidemic, and finally fell a victim to the terrible scourge.

The funeral of Gen. Sterling Price at St. Louis on the 30th ult., was one of the largest ever seen in this city. The ceremonies took place at the first church of Dr. Boyle, where the remains lay in state all the morning, and were visited by a very large number of citizens.

Mock Gems at the International Exhibition.

"I am coming to a great Parisian manufacture, the greatest of its kind in the world. It is that of sham jewelry. Now, the French make no secret of this manufacture. It is literally proclaimed upon the house-tops. You see in gigantic letters Imitation d'or et d'argent et fondlerie, announced in eager rivalry of other practitioners in the trade, which, however, tries to keep its secrets of manipulation, if not to deny its own existence. But the whole affair is a very simple one. For more than a century this form of industry has been practised in almost every country of Europe, and there is, no matter what the artist may pretend, no mystery whatever about it. The demand for false diamonds is prodigious, and the supply is a wonder of the age. To make a diamond—apart from the palming off of mere crystal or glass tricked into a resemblance of it—there are many processes, all, however, resulting in the production of what is called crystal-water, which, hardened and cut, is perfect as an imitation.

"It may not happen very often, but sometimes Lady Clara Vere de Vere goes to her first ball wearing a composition of white sand, treated with hydrochloric acid, minium, calcined potash, borax, and arsenic, which scintillates 'with white fire' as though the garland had really come from the rock of Golconda. Take the paste which is the basis of this, and a little oxyd of cobalt, and, daughter of an ancient line, there are the fac similes of your great grandmother's celebrated collection of sapphires, parted with in the hard times long ago. Give me the colorless material, with a little antimony and purple of Cassin, and I will give you back a topaz bright as that of Jabam; or some oxyde of copper or cobalt, and you shall have an emerald, 'the bride of the diamond,' as the orientals say, because a diamond never glitters so richly as when an emerald is near to receive the lights from its prism and paint it anew.

"I have seen some specimens of Turkey rose pearls. These are actually made of roses. The leaves are heaped in a mortar with a very highly-polished interior surface and pounded into a soft mass; this is dried in the sun, but not rapidly, for rose-water of the very finest perfume is sprinkled over the pink paste every now and then; the damping and drying are repeated, and the pearls—which of course, are not pearls in any way—are molded into form, polished, steeped in oil of roses, and polished again, so that they are lustrous and sweet-scented. Some are tinted blue; others are odorous of storax and musk; a few—the most difficult to produce in perfection—are black. The Japanese have artificial pearls made of rice paste, better known as Japanese cement, harder than marble. The Roman pearls are chiefly made of fish-scales, treated with the purest spirits of wine, and the manufacture must be carried on in highly heated rooms; but they are as light as wax and cannot possibly deceive.

"Well, this being the state of things, I am not surprised to discover that full two-thirds of the French jewel exhibition are occupied by 'make-believes.' In this department—and I make the remark in no ironical sense—they utterly eclipse the rest of the world. Le Blanc Granger, of the Boulevard Magenta, has a collection of artificial diamonds, emeralds, sapphires, amethysts, and pearls, truly wonderful. His restorations of historical jewels are even more extraordinary—his orders of the Garter and Golden Fleece, and all the proud collars and stars of chivalry—his oriental hilts and dagger-hilts, such as might have been seen at Lahore when princes gathered around Runjeet Singh—his crowns of the East and West, and all periods—his Marie Stuart pearl and velvet coiffure, and rare erelets of amethysts and emeralds, royally brilliant.

"Fruchy, of the Rue Tiquionne, is another master of this deceptive art. He has pearls which he might have fished from anywhere between the Mexican and Persian gulfs—white, gray, leaden, lilac; a pair of curtains in seed pearls, and illustrations of the process at its several stages. Audy, of the Rue Montmorency, displays ropes, chains, cables of pearls, which he exports on a large scale to Turkey, where damsels with duncleims very likely admire them quite as joyfully as though they had actually been brought up from the eaves of the mermaids by les travailleurs de mer. In one case an exhibitor has deposited six rows of pearls, three real and three artificial; the former are worth 15,000*fr.*, the latter 150*fr.* I do not any one expect a jeweler or pawnbroker to distinguish between them."—Paris Letter to the London Herald.

A cheap funeral car is the latest French invention. It is a hearse which carries priest and mourners, as well as the cffin.

NUT-BEARING TREES.

Nuts and fruits undoubtedly constituted the food of the early inhabitants of the earth. It was not until the human race was two thousand years old, that God gave them the permission to eat animal food.

To Adam he gave every fruit-bearing tree and every herb bearing seed, and said, this shall be your food; but to Noah, he said, "Even as the green herbs have I given you every moving thing that liveth; to you it shall be for meat." In those glorious old days, when the earth was fresh and unexhausted, the antediluvian sages walked amid their lofty groves, the trees of which dropped at their feet their daily food.

When Enoch's friends dined with him, their dinner did not consist of soups, roasts and stews. If it had, one of the early men of renown would have been, not Jubal, whose harp and organ filled the new and beautiful world with melody—not Tubal-Cain, whose artistic creations in metal sent his name down the vista of ages to immortality—not Jubal, who taught his sons to dot the green plains with tents, and cover the rich meadows with flocks and herds—but a physician, whose pills and lotions should ease the aching head and uneasy stomach, and who would have been characterized, as the "father of all such as administer drugs and apply plasters."

No, Enoch's guests, hearty gentlemen of six and eight hundred years of age, dined upon

"Fruits of all kinds, in conl,
"Rough, or smooth rind, or bearded husk
"or shell,"
"She (some fair Eve, Adah or Zillah) gathers tribute large; and
"On the hoard heaps with unsparing hand;
for drink,
"The grape, she crushes, inoffensive must,
and meathes from "Many a berry; and from sweet kernels pressed she tempers
"Dulcet creams."

How nice it would have been to have dined with Enoch!

Long after the permission was given to eat "every moving thing that liveth," there was issued a divine law to the effect that no fruit-bearing trees, in scripture language, "trees for meat" should be destroyed. Even in the time of war, no plea of "military necessity" the most unanswerable of pleas, was admitted for such destruction; for said the only perfectly wise Law-giver, "the tree of the field is man's life." The presents carried down by the twelve sons of Jacob to the dread ruler of Egypt, were spices, honey, nuts, and almonds. The "nuts" referred to, as distinct from almonds, were probably Persian walnuts, which form one of the staple commodities of the East.

In Ecclesiastes we find the following verse:
"I went down into the garden of nuts, to see the fruits of the valley, to see whether the vine flourished, and the pomegranates budded."

The garden of nuts seemed to have been part of the "home arrangements" of Solomon's luxurious residences. In these wonderful mounds recently opened around Kertch, in the Crimea, where tombs have been opened to the light of the sun, which have lain in darkness and silence for near three thousand years, the dead are found with walnuts in the hands, which have fallen to dust around them, and near them are also found bottles of wine, which, in some cases, still retain a small portion of the ruby liquid. It was the custom of the age and people to place food beside the dead. The Greeks called chestnuts and other nuts by a name signifying "to eat" and from this word is derived our botanical name, Fagus, which is still applied to some nut-bearing trees.

Learned men of the present day are much exercised about the kind and quantity of food necessary to produce the greatest amount of muscular strength and health. The British and other European periodicals abound in articles on "Food and Drink." "The relation of food to muscular strength," etc. Blackwood's last gives a funny poem on "The true Regiment for Irish Evils" which ends with "A very fine match is good legislation

And a very fine matter is good education
That to make people living contented and quiet
'Tis a sine qua non to begin—with their Diet."

They tell you that Prussia owes her recent victories to her knowledge of the food necessary to put strength and nerve into her soldiers.

*Antiquities of Kertch, and Researches in the Taurian Bosphorus. By D. McPherson, M. D., London.

them, and they nearly all agree in insisting on large quantities of animal food.

One of the contributors to the Edinburgh Review says, "It is scarcely necessary here to insist upon the value of animal food to all classes of consumers. Its absence is noted by a lowered physique, its presence by superior tone and vigor. Those who study the vital statistics of the nation can place their fingers, guided by pathological indications, upon years of high price, which to a very large class of the community are years of virtual scarcity, and consequently of increased debility and disease."

This is probably true of people whose food is almost exclusively bread and meat, for when the meat is withdrawn the bread alone is not sufficient to support health and strength; but if they had, like the inhabitants of southern Europe, olive yards and vine yards, and like the Persians, innumerable groves of nut trees, we doubt if the absence of animal food would be noted by anything except absence of disease. For, notwithstanding the arguments of these learned gentlemen, we can never forget the fact, that the armies of the 1st Napoleon were composed of the simply reared peasants of France, whose food usually consists of coarse bread, salads, olive-oil and wine. The Russian grenadiers are celebrated for their splendid physique, and are thus described by an English tourist as long ago as 1779. "They are the finest body of men I ever saw. Not a man under six feet high. Their rations consist of eight pounds of black bread (made from the whole grain) four pounds of oil, add one pound of salt for eight days." "In 1854, when the Russians surprised the world by standing against the combined forces of France and England, on the bloody field of Alma, dead Russians were found with their rations in their knapsacks, and these rations were simply bread saturated with oil.

But of all the men who have ever lived, the Spartans have gained the greatest distinction for enduring strength and invincible courage. At their public tables, each individual was required to furnish one bushel of flour, eight measures of wine, five pounds of cheese and two and a half pounds of figs per month. Bread, wine, cheese and figs, was the food of the Spartan heroes; and the Greeks all lived chiefly upon vegetable food. For Beauty of person, superiority of mind, artistic taste and skill, physical strength and courage, has any people ever surpassed them. So, with all due respect for Liebig and his brother chemists, with their theories regarding nitrogenous and non-nitrogenous foods, we are compelled to think that the striking fact of the great longevity of people before the Flood, and the immediate shortening of life attendant on the commencement of the use of animal food after it, has not been sufficiently considered, or more probably, believed, by modern scholars. Noah lived nine hundred and fifty years, but Abraham only one hundred and seventy-five years, and the decline gradually went on until in our day, thirty years is the average life of a generation.

These theories, however being only theories, bring us to the conclusion of St. Paul in such matters. "Let every one be fully persuaded in his own mind." Our Saviour himself taught that no spiritual defilement can be caused by food.

THE LATE PROF. ANTHON.—Professor Anthon, widely known as the editor of a series of classical school books, died at his residence in New York City, on the 29th ult., in the seventieth year of his age. He was one of the most prominent scholars of which New York could boast. He entered Columbia College in 1811, and in 1815 graduated with honor. In 1819 he was admitted to the bar of the Supreme Court, having studied with his brother, John Anthon. He devoted much time to the classics, and in 1819, when only twenty-three years of age, was appointed adjunct professor of languages in Columbia College.

In 1830 he produced his large edition of Horace, and in the same year became rector of the grammar school attached to the college. In 1835 Mr. Anthon was placed at the head of the classical department of Columbia College. He was an excellent instructor, and took great interest in the education of the young. When first made rector of the grammar school he conferred six free scholarships on the public schools of this city.

Official Organ of the Montgomery, Mobile, Mississippi, and Louisiana Conferences of the M. E. Church South.
Office: 112 Camp Street.
TERMS OF SUBSCRIPTION:
THREE DOLLARS A YEAR.
Invariably in Advance.
Address: REV. J. C. KEENER,
112 Camp Street, New Orleans.

AGENTS:
The Members of the Patronizing Conference.

PUBLISHED BY THE

FOR MOBILE CONFERENCE:

Rev. J. Hamilton, D.D.,
Rev. A. H. Mitchell, D.D.,
Rev. Theo. W. Dezman, D.D.

FOR MOBILE CONFERENCE:

Rev. M. S. Andrews,
Rev. William A. Shapard,
Rev. J. B. Cottrell.

FOR MISSISSIPPI CONFERENCE:

Rev. W. H. Watkins, D.D.,
Rev. H. H. Montgomery,
Rev. William P. Barton.

FOR LOUISIANA CONFERENCE:

Rev. J. C. Keener, D.D.,
Rev. J. B. Walker, D.D.,
Rev. Elias Parker.

New Orleans:

SATURDAY, OCT. 12, 1867.

To Subscribers.—Any person wishing to subscribe for this paper can do so, by paying the Methodist preacher in the circuit, and forwarding to us his receipt for three dollars, with the address of the subscriber upon it, stating Post office, State, Circuit, and Conference. The receipt ought to be taken in duplicate.

New Orleans Daily Mortuary Report.

Dr. Dirmeyer, Secretary of the Board of Health, furnishes the following daily report of deaths in the city, beginning with Aug. 12th, at 6 A. M.:

| Date | Yellow Fever. | Cholera. | Other Diseases. | Total. |
|---------|---------------|----------|-----------------|--------|
| Aug. 12 | 2 | 0 | 25 | 27 |
| 13 | 5 | 1 | 27 | 33 |
| 14 | 5 | 1 | 31 | 37 |
| 15 | 2 | 1 | 22 | 25 |
| 16 | 1 | 1 | 33 | 35 |
| 17 | 5 | 2 | 20 | 27 |
| 18 | 6 | 2 | 31 | 39 |
| 19 | 12 | 0 | 22 | 34 |
| 20 | 11 | 2 | 19 | 32 |
| 21 | 10 | 0 | 17 | 27 |
| 22 | 4 | 0 | 23 | 27 |
| 23 | 7 | 1 | 19 | 27 |
| 24 | 19 | 1 | 29 | 49 |
| 25 | 14 | 1 | 17 | 32 |
| 26 | 15 | 1 | 22 | 38 |
| 27 | 14 | 0 | 22 | 36 |
| 28 | 15 | 0 | 27 | 42 |
| 29 | 20 | 0 | 27 | 47 |
| 30 | 26 | 0 | 25 | 51 |
| Sept. 1 | 22 | 1 | 19 | 42 |
| 2 | 30 | 1 | 19 | 50 |
| 3 | 25 | 0 | 29 | 54 |
| 4 | 26 | 0 | 16 | 42 |
| 5 | 44 | 0 | 22 | 66 |
| 6 | 30 | 0 | 24 | 54 |
| 7 | 43 | 0 | 23 | 66 |
| 8 | 43 | 0 | 17 | 60 |
| 9 | 51 | 1 | 18 | 70 |
| 10 | 42 | 0 | 18 | 60 |
| 11 | 67 | 1 | 18 | 86 |
| 12 | 61 | 1 | 27 | 89 |
| 13 | 43 | 0 | 31 | 74 |
| 14 | 41 | 0 | 39 | 80 |
| 15 | 53 | 0 | 27 | 80 |
| 16 | 50 | 0 | 30 | 80 |
| 17 | 68 | 0 | 34 | 102 |
| 18 | 46 | 0 | 24 | 70 |
| 19 | 45 | 0 | 37 | 82 |
| 20 | 66 | 0 | 25 | 91 |
| 21 | 64 | 0 | 32 | 96 |
| 22 | 69 | 0 | 44 | 113 |
| 23 | 77 | 0 | 35 | 112 |
| 24 | 82 | 1 | 50 | 133 |
| 25 | 68 | 0 | 34 | 102 |
| 26 | 57 | 2 | 30 | 89 |
| 27 | 77 | 0 | 30 | 107 |
| 28 | 67 | 0 | 36 | 103 |
| 29 | 61 | 0 | 32 | 93 |
| 30 | 64 | 0 | 32 | 96 |
| Oct. 1 | 64 | 1 | 34 | 99 |
| 2 | 64 | 4 | 34 | 102 |
| 3 | 56 | 2 | 29 | 87 |
| 4 | 75 | 3 | 29 | 107 |
| 5 | 59 | 0 | 31 | 90 |
| 6 | 60 | 0 | 37 | 97 |
| 7 | 68 | 0 | 32 | 100 |
| 8 | 50 | 0 | 29 | 79 |
| 9 | 64 | 3 | 31 | 98 |
| 10 | 56 | 2 | 51 | 109 |

Mrs. SARAH H. ROSS.

Among the severe losses of the present season we have to record the death of this excellent Christian lady, in the 64th year of her age. Mrs. Ross was ever diligent in the work of doing good; for many years she was a manager of the Orphans Home, of this city. Twenty-six years ago she took the Rev. Elijah Steele, in his last sickness, to her own house, and nursed him until his death. Last week we recorded the death of Mrs. Sarah A. Robertson. The places of two such useful Christians cannot be easily filled. The mature experience of godly men and holy women constitutes in great part the wealth of the Christian church; and the death of such in the full power of an active life of faith is a positive loss not soon repaired. The saying that, "God buries his workmen, and carries on his work," and that other saying "The Christian cannot die before his time," do not reconcile us to the death of useful men and women.

HUMAN TROUBLE.

One human heart is capable of more anguish than the world can estimate. All the resources of our nature, its purest joys, its highest pleasures, its greatest powers, and all that it can imagine or possess, or do, are but so many tributaries to its boundless sorrow. On every side our affections, seeking the embrace and support of kindred spirits, fasten upon those dear ones whom the Providence of God has placed near to us. They soon seem to be as a part of our own being, necessary to its daily hopes, its plans, its continuance. Yet from these forms, of love we are to be torn, must be, as the tendrils of a vine are torn when the tree to which it clings is thrown down by the passing storm. Alas, who can raise those branches from the ground, or restore again the beauty of that growth!

To love and to be loved are the chief pleasures of life. If our friends are left to us we can afford to encounter any misfortune, but when they are parted from us, then do we exclaim! "by this I am twice bereaved."

The heart earnestly seeks to know, why has this framework been built only to be broken? the boldest mariner would not embark upon the stanchest vessel in the world if he knew that its inevitable end and fate was to go to pieces on a distant shore. But such is the certain end of this life of ours. No craft has ever yet floated which can survive the tempests which sweep over the sea upon which we sail. Knowing all this, how hard it is to lie down with composure amid the raging of the waves and, like the Master "in the hinder part of the ship" go to sleep "on a pillow."

Yet this is the problem of life, to be composed in the midst of universal storm, to be at peace in a world of sorrow. This life is one storm, and Christ is our peace—"He is our peace." "In the world ye shall have tribulation, but in me ye shall have peace." Such is the truth, we might say the sentence, pronounced by Him who knew life better than we know it, and whose tender love for us cannot be questioned. This trouble may not, cannot be escaped: no extent of earthly good can lessen its force, or avoid it; we are, "prone to it" "as the sparks fly upward." If it come not by one route it will by another; if our youth does not meet its stern force, our age will; and "it is good for a man that he bear the yoke in his youth." No virtue, or obedience, or patience can quell the violence of the storm without; but within all may be peace. The "outward man" may "perish," "yet the inward man is renewed day by day." Our reason cannot endure the shock of human life, but our faith can. Even a general consent to the existence and Providence of God is inadequate to quiet a distracted soul, or to stay the tears of the bereaved, but a consciousness of the love of Him who died for us can. His "grace is sufficient" for us, because he has said it shall be. If one measure is not enough, "He giveth more grace." What could the Saviour have meant when he invited us to specially trust in Him—"ye believe in God, believe also in me." "Is he indeed equal to so great an undertaking, can he share with me my grief? can he lessen it? can he assuage it? O, if he can, I will gladly lean my head upon his breast, and pour into his ear all the story of this trouble that now weighs me down to the earth. O wretched one that "will not be comforted," try it, lean your head upon Christ, tell him all your soul, let him share this living death with you, and know and believe that "He is touched with the feeling of your infirmities," that He is able to save you out of all your troubles.

Yes, he that is not composed amid the strife of the wildest elements does not, as he ought, realize the presence of Christ. The voice of the Saviour commanding "peace" is heard by the sea to its profoundest depths, and "even the winds" obey Him. "O Disciple," "where is your faith?" not we, but the Master asks. And do you not feel his look of reproach? what, in a moment, has become of your faith in Him! His one blast of misfortune dissipated all your confidence in the Saviour! No, no, if this round universe collapse—"we will not fear." Through all the spray and night we see Christ who is invisible. "He is at our right hand, we shall not be moved."

Stand thou omnipotent decree!
Jehovah's will be done!
Nature's end we wait to see,
And hear her final groan;
Let this earth dissolve, and blend
In death the wicked and the just;
Let those pond'rous orbs descend,
And grind us into dust.
Rest secure the righteous man!
At his Redeemer's beck,
Sure to emerge, and rise again,
And mount above the week;
Lo! the heavenly spirit lowers,
Like flame, o'er nature's funeral pyre,
Triumphs in immortal powers,
And claps his wings of fire!

NEGRO JURIES.

First District Court.—At upon yesterday Judge Leamont, in the absence of Judge Thomas, took his seat in the First District Court, and ordered that the New Grand Jury, half black and half white, be dismissed until Monday next, 14th inst. There were at least one hundred and ninety of the two hundred jurors who were drawn that were black. The court opened about noon. Gen. Harry Hays, Sheriff, was absent on account of the sickness in his family, hence the nominations to be made by this officer could not be accomplished. It is anticipated a majority of the Grand Jury drawn at this term will be colored. Judge Leamont discharged the venire until Monday next.

Another item quite as significant occurs in the city news of the week to wit:

The exception of Judge Abell against Dunn, holding his seat as Recorder of the Second District, "that he was a negro and not entitled to hold office," has more in it than meets the eye. Recognizing the military order which made Dunn an Assistant Alderman, the point yet to be decided is: What is the precise nature and what are the limits of the civil authority with which it is assumed Gen. Sheridan has been invested by the third act Congress passed to define the military bill? True, the Supreme Court says "a military order is the law paramount," but the order nominating the Council is not a military order; it is a civil order nominating civil officers, and it is yet a question whether Gen. Sheridan did not transcend his powers.—N. O. Times.

The Dunn mentioned, on last Friday presided at the Recorder's Court. The statement of a case that came before him, on that day, is found in the N. O. Times, in the shape of a "communication" signed Ernest J. Wenck. We give an extract from it:

On yesterday evening, the 3d inst., was to have occurred the preliminary examination of the charge of perjury preferred by myself against one H. Schmidt, before the committing magistrate of the Second District of this city, Recorder Gustinel. I received a summons at about 9½ o'clock A. M., signed by A. Gastinel, Recorder, to appear as a witness at 10 o'clock, on the same day—which summons I obeyed—when Recorder continued the case for 4½ o'clock P. M. At 4½ P. M., at the court said hour, I found a black man, (said to be one Dunn), in the chair, and Recorder Gastinel acting as attorney and taking part in the case. I was informed, that Mr. Gastinel had excused himself on the ground that he was a witness in the case, and had invited the so called Assistant Recorder Dunn to assume the seat in his stead. Being called upon to give my testimony, I declined to do so, deeming the whole proceeding to be but an illegal farce; and for persisting in my refusal, the negro usurper Dunn thought proper to sentence me to a fine of $25, or to suffer twenty-four hours imprisonment. I was then seized and roughly handled by the police, and forced to pay the fine, which was done under protest.

I protested against this odious tyranny and usurpation in strong language, well knowing my rights as a white American freeman and citizen.

Recorder Gastinel, then acting as counselor, sustained the action of his ambitious assistant, and although not acting as Recorder, presumed to intermeddle upon my conduct.

Mr. Wenck then goes on to state that he is a Radical of the 1864 school, and not a rebel. He says with some warmth:

My record as a consistent Union man, a Pharisee of the Pharisees, will bear inspection better perhaps than his. A member of the Convention that framed our last Constitution, an advocate of the indivisibility of the Union of these great States, a friend of the negro race, I invite the inquiry. Still I cannot, like some, prostitute my manhood to the ignominious purpose of gaining popularity.

Perhaps they have been amused whilst

I paid the piper, but let them remember that there is a higher authority than theirs whence relief can be obtained, and be assured that the matter will not rest where they have ended.

ERNEST J. WENCK.

New Orleans, October 4th, 1867.

This is not the first instance in which a man's chickens have come home to roost. He tastes a few drops of the cup he has helped to mix. "Of two hundred jurymen drawn, one hundred and ninety are blacks." This is "reconstruction." The reconstruction of Congress, which placed Registration in the hands of the Registrars: and the Registrars in the hands of a Military Commander. This is General Sheridan's reconstruction. By special order he decides that juries shall be made up only from the list of registered persons. So that the lives of citizens are put into the hands of the Registrars, as well as elections, and the determining who shall and who shall not vote.

Grand Juries and petty Juries composed of blacks! we can conceive of no condition of affairs more significant of the insatiable revenge that moves and shapes the legislation of the Radical party in Congress. Confiscation, which is held up as the final threat, is not only a less evil, but is itself included in a law that places the negro in possession of the citadel of all our rights—the jury-box. Ignorant and utterly incapable of understanding, or administering law, he is put in the highest places of justice, supported by bayonets, that thousands of men, and women, and children in whose veins flows the purest white blood may be placed at his mercy. Let these Radicals learn a lesson from Mr. Wenck, that in the changes of human fortune it is not impossible but they may some day have the chalice which they have mingled, commended to their own lips. Judge Abell, an original Union man, and member of the Convention of 1861, is now resisting before the courts the very same party that was dominant then, and is in power still. Mr. Wenck and he, were both members of the body "that formed our last Constitution." True enough, but "our last Constitution" has but a small chance before a negro Recorder, a Reconstruction Act and a Gen. Sheridan. It will take "our last Constitution" and our next, and a good many Constitutions to hold in check such Apostles of Liberty as are now in power.

We see that the Attorney and the Judge of the Second Judicial District, have boldly met this military-condition of affairs and have set aside the Negro Jury. Every citizen will honor Judge Cazabat and Mr. Elliot for taking the initiative, and squarely opposing this mischievous and unconstitutional order.

On Monday last the 7th inst., Judge Cazabat of the Second Judicial District, opened court in the Parish of St. Bernard according to law. When the names of the Jury, (composed of white, black and yellow elements) were called, Mr. B. C. Elliot, District Attorney, moved that the panel of the jury be set aside, on the grounds that the jury had been drawn exclusively from a list furnished by the Board of Registry of voters, without reference to the assessment rolls, from which alone the jury is to be formed by the laws of Louisiana. This objection was sustained by the Court which gave as an additional reason that the military order requiring the jury to be drawn from the rolls of the Registry office had not been repealed, either expressly or impliedly, the Louisiana law relative to juries; that the Court was in duty bound to follow the law of this State, although disposed to yield implicit obedience on all occasions to military orders. The jury was accordingly discharged. It is held by responsible gentlemen that the Judge was entirely right in his ruling, and should have stated more boldly and independently that the formation of juries is a subject which does not concern the military authorities, and that the command of the Constitution of all free nations, ancient and modern, is, and ever was: Cedant arma togæ.

The main argument to our mind against Negro Juries is to be found in their brain deficiency. The irrevocable permanence of type in the physical structure of different races none will deny. And it is equally certain that the brain of a race cannot be enlarged by any amount, or continuance, of education. The Teutonic group has a brain measuring, by average, 92 cubic inches: The Celtic 88; the Negroes (African) 83; the Hottentot, Australian and Peruvian 75 inches each. A white man, in this country is entitled to be tried by a jury of twelve men averaging each 92 cubic inches of brain: and not by a jury of twelve negroes, each having but 83 inches, or it may be but 75 inches of actual brain.

OUR COLLEGES AND SCHOOLS.

As yet we are not prepared to take the advanced position of "Paul," our able correspondent of last week; we cannot say that a Methodist who sends his child to an Episcopal school sins against God and his own soul; but we do say that, as a Methodist, he does his church a grievous wrong. The Doctor had his "spirit stirred within him" as he walked among our "Porches" and "Academies" and saw how many of our own institutions of learning were languishing for the want of the patronage of our people. Colleges upon which the friends of our church have bestowed thousands of dollars; and at which are to be found Professors and teachers of a high order teaching, under all imaginable discouragement, for the merest pittance, in order that Methodism may take her proper place in controlling the mind and the youth of the country. No denomination can flourish without a just measure of connoisseurial jealousy and pride, whether the Methodist or Baptist, the Episcopal or Presbyterian. As we rally around our altars, so must we around our schools; and without discussing the merits of other schools, it is enough for us to know that we have our own. If Methodism should have colleges, and schools, she cannot afford to send her children elsewhere. It is a marvellous logic which loves Methodism, but delivers up a child into the hands of the Catholic. All the money we have in the world is not worth so much to the church we love as the gift of our children. We cannot conceive of more mischievous folly than that which consigns the tender minds of our offspring to the care of systems and a people whom we are ourselves combating, and believe to be essentially opposed to the spiritual welfare of our race.

We are disposed to believe that the present agitation of the country, and the doctrines of equality now rife, will largely tend to the building of private and denominational institutions. Of the immediate necessities of our Colleges we have no addition to make to the article to which we have called attention. The pointed appeal from the pen of Bishop Wightman, will be found on our third page.

NEW BOOKS, ETC.

We are in receipt of the October number of the LAND WE LOVE, from Mr. James A. Gresham, Bookseller & Stationer, No. 92 Camp Street. Mr. G. has just returned from the North, and with characteristic enterprise has replenished his stock with books, the most recent and popular.

THE MARTYRS OF SPAIN, by the author of the Schonberg-Cotter Family. New York, Curtin & Brothers. 1866. 12 mo.

The times of William the Silent, and the heroic endurance of the Protestants under the persecution of Philip II, are reproduced by the author with vivid, realizing effect. It is an admirable work for the young. For sale by James A. Gresham, 92 Camp Street.

PERSONAL.

P. Richardson, address Summerfield, Alabama.
Be glad to hear from all parts of the State, from the friends of the Bible Cause.
Very truly yours,
S. P. RICHARDSON.
Summerfield, Ala., September, 30th, 1867.

THE YELLOW FEVER.

It will be seen that the fever somewhat on the decrease. Caution our friends against tiring back before it is entirely gone. At the close of every epidemic valuable lives have been lost by this impatience to return to the city. The danger of dying from an attack of fever becomes greater as its season advances, because nurses, physicians, friends, are so worn out with protracted anxiety and labor, that they become in a measure incapable of giving patients the attention which they receive during the earlier stage of an epidemic.

EPIDEMIO FUND.

We have received an answer to the call made two weeks ago. Mrs. Ira W. Parker of Mobile, $400. We have appropriated to a family from Alabama, who lost a father and a son by the fever.

Report on Sabbath Schools.

The information of which we are in possession, in reference to the most important auxiliary to the church of God, may not be as complete as we would desire, yet, your Committee would say for the encouragement and comfort of the church, well as to all who may be interested, that there is manifested a commendable zeal, and growing interest in this good work, throughout the entire District. The State and nearly all the Circuits have tokens of good and a hopeful promise of better times.

The reports which came up from Demopolis and Summerfield, are gratifying and encouraging, and present an example of an emulation. In the Demopolis charge, besides the successful progress of the regular duties and instructions of her mission, she is pushing her conquests with the Mic's country, and returning trophies worthy of her zeal and charity—the poor are not neglected, the destitute are provided for, all being brought under the halo of influence of song, prayer, and pious teachers, and trained out to bless the world, and the needy. It is, emphatically a Missionary Sabbath School.

Summerfield, commands an admiration, and well deserves notice for this body for the success of earnest and faithful teachers, in organizing infant classes to be taught orally in the simpler catechisms of the church, and receive lectures the more interesting histories of the Bible, as well as the zeal and interest manifested in teaching the children to sing the praises of God. Your Committee, are of the opinion that the church needs an awakening on this subject, as the history of Sabbath Schools justifies us in saying that it is one of the most successful means of keeping the church alive, and of spreading the triumphs of the Cross.

Your Committee, would therefore recommend that the preachers have an eye constantly to this interest of the church, and further, that they bring this subject up at the monthly meetings of the church, and have the people consider well their duty to God, their friends and their children. All of which is respectfully submitted.

W. E. KENNEDY,
J. W. VEST,
WM. M. WINN.

Uniontown, Ala. Sept. 14, '67.

P. S. The meeting was especially desirous to have the report of the Stewards on the proper method of meeting the expenses of the various charges, published, and they gave instructions to the Secretary, to that effect; but upon reaching home, he finds that he has lost that report, or rather, did not bring it away.

J. S. M.
MARRIED.
At the residence of the bride's father, Miss Mollie Robertson, to Mr. L. W. Byrd, all of Carroll County, Miss.
At the residence of the bride's father, Mr. William Propert to Miss India Astor, all of Carroll county, Miss. Both marriages by myself.
Yours,
JOSEPH D. NEWSON.

CONFERENCE.—We are informed that the Missouri Conference, the Rev. D. Vincil, for a prompt transmission of the Minutes, from which it is seen that 11 were admitted on full connection, 3 received by transfer, 21 traveling and 6 local deacons were ordained. There are 334 colored members, 105 local preachers, being an increase of 2,250 in the Conference the past year. The Secretary will please, at his convenience, forward to the numbers of the reports charges in every District, in the General Conference. The reports of baptisms are obviously imperfect—354 in 1866, as the Methodist in Missouri are not antipodal. We hope our ministers will keep correct registers and send full returns of baptisms in all Districts. There are 126 churches, 1,087 teachers, 1,087 superannuated preachers, was $3,856, and $956 36 was raised for it. Amount raised for Missions, $1,564 42; for $708 81; missionaries debt, $1,000. The next session is to be at St. Joseph, Mo. The Ap- plicants may be seen on the first of our last issue.

ENGLISH PSEYITES RECEIVE A HAND AT THE HANDS OF THE PSEYITES.—The Pseuyites in the Church of England, who have been a very cordial response, they have decided to leave. Doctor speaking for the Greek Church, says: "The orthodox Catholic Church do not recognize the English Church as a church in her own right, no more than the Roman Church, or any other Protestant Church. If we, however, use the term church in this country, it is only a convention of speaking, adopting the nomenclature of a 'fact' account, while disproving the fact and the truth of the underlain. No other Protestant church ever so full of contradictions, of variegated heresy, as the Church was and is, and to the end of her existence. The Church would never allow to transact. With in- creased, accompanied by rain. From that time the waters began to rise and overflow the islands, creeping up from one street to another, until, at noon, it had, on Tremont street, reached as high as Church street. The lower floors of the stores on the Strand were from two to four feet under water at noon, and goods and property damaged to the amount of near a quarter of a million of dollars. It is impossible at this time to estimate with any degree of certainty the damage already resulting throughout the city. To the warves, the shipping, and to goods and buildings, some estimate it at half a million dollars, and some go even beyond this figure.

POLITICAL NEWS.
Domestic news is still more encouraging, Oct. 9.—The Cincinnati and Commercial both telegraph the negro suffrage is defeated by 50.
The Legislature is Democratic.
That Hays is elected by 3500.
Howard (Dem.) is elected in the Pennsylvania District. Democracy in the State about 9000.
Oct. 9.—The Leader confirms the election by 5000 majority of Columbus Journal, on the other maintains the election of Hays by a small majority. The Journal says the Re- ceedes the Senate to the by one majority.
Oct. 9.—Private discuss Thuman's election highly favorable.
Oct. 9.—Correy's majority publican lost 2800. Amendment by 5000 in Hamilton county.
Oct. 9.—11:30 P. M.— definite from Ohio. The impression of the election amounts almost certainly. We have had nothing through the channels.
Oct. 9.—The returns from are too meagre to approximate the majority. The counties along the Ohio give increased Democratic majority.

OBITUARIES.
JOHN FORB, the subject of this notice, died of pneumonia, at his residence, in Salem Parish, La., Aug. 13, 1867. He was a native of Catahoula Parish. In 1858, he left that parish for Texas, where he remained for one year, and then returned to the scene of his last illness and death. Some thirty-five years ago he joined the Methodist Church, and continued a devout and consistent Christian until death. When informed by his physician that he could not recover, he requested those about him to enter with him into a written covenant to meet him in heaven. And at his request, and by his dictation, the following instrument was prepared, and signed by himself and twenty-three others:

territory with troops, but they must not enter the City of Rome.
FLORENCE, Oct. 7.—Reports hourly received here from the South show that revolutionary volunteers are invading Roman territory on all sides. Yesterday, a detachment of troops was sent out from Rome to meet the invaders in Frasmore—a province lying southeast of the city. A fight took place between them and the Garibaldians, near the Abruzzo frontier.
The Papal troops were again defeated and compelled to fall back towards Rome.

PARIS, Oct. 7.—Reports are current that Prussia receives with favor the appeal of the Italian Government to the European powers against the treaty of September, and will support the demands of Italy in regard to Rome.

From the Buffalo Commercial Advertiser, (Rep.) September 23.

Mixed Schools.
For a time past a degree of excitement has been occasioned in some of the public schools on account of the fact that a number of colored children insisted on attending, and remained, despite the efforts of the teachers to compel them to leave. Recently, a petition by colored people, asking permission to send their children to other schools than those set apart for them, was referred to the Common Council Committee on Schools. The committee reported that the Council had no authority to grant the permission asked, and the report was adopted. Notwithstanding this action, the parents of the children continued to send them to the schools, and yesterday Superintendent Fosdick went to Districts Nos. 11 and 12 and ordered the colored children to leave. This they refused to do, when they were ejected. This morning the colored children in No. 32 were also ejected by the Superintendent. It is understood that Mr. Fosdick has adopted this course in pursuance of the action of the Council, and it is rumored that the parties considering themselves aggrieved threaten to have him arrested and arranged before the United States Court under the Civil Rights bill. The school set apart for colored children, on Vine street, will accommodate two hundred, we are told, the average daily attendance is only about forty-five.

GREAT STORM AT GALVESTON.
We copy as follows from the Galveston News of the 4th:
All Wednesday night the strong winds from the east prevailed, doing, however, very little damage. About 5 o'clock Thursday morning a increased, accompanied by rain. From that time the waters began to rise and overflow the islands, creeping up from one street to another, until, at noon, it had, on Tremont street, reached as high as Church street. The lower floors of the stores on the Strand were from two to four feet under water at noon, and goods and property damaged to the amount of near a quarter of a million of dollars. It is impossible at this time to estimate with any degree of certainty the damage already resulting throughout the city. To the warves, the shipping, and to goods and buildings, some estimate it at half a million dollars, and some go even beyond this figure.

This is the highest overflow since October, 1837, just thirty years ago. Messrs. Wallis, Landes, & Co. have been damaged about $5000. Messrs. Droege & Co. $50,000 to $75,000 in damage to coffee. Messrs. Stubbs & Co. $5000. Messrs. A. Scamman & Co. $10,000. Messrs. Westcott & Co., $4000. Messrs. Dargan & Tobyn, $3000 to $4000. Messrs. Pipkin & Weodard, heavily damaged. Mr. Geo. Frosh, $1000—and many others damaged in argea and small sums. The waters at midday had so inundated the gas works that it became impossible to build fires, and the city was without gas light last night.

The following news of Oct. 8 presents a new item for Millionaires.
PARIS, Oct. 8.—The following plan has been agreed upon at Biarritz: Italy to take possession of Rome, the Pope to remain until his death, when the temporal power of the Pope will terminate.
FLORENCE, Oct. 8.—The Garibaldians are marching on Rome. The Florence press urges the Government to anticipate them. Garibaldi has issued an address denouncing Rattazzi.

OBITUARIES.
JOHN FORB, the subject of this notice, died of pneumonia, at his residence, in Salem Parish, La., Aug. 13, 1867. He was a native of Catahoula Parish. In 1858, he left that parish for Texas, where he remained for one year, and then returned to the scene of his last illness and death. Some thirty-five years ago he joined the Methodist Church, and continued a devout and consistent Christian until death. When informed by his physician that he could not recover, he requested those about him to enter with him into a written covenant to meet him in heaven. And at his request, and by his dictation, the following instrument was prepared, and signed by himself and twenty-three others:

"Feeling that I shall soon be separated from friends and relatives most dear, and my spirit transported to realms of a blissful immortality, I desire that those of you who are left behind, will try to meet me in that better land where parting will be no more. Those who will endeavor to meet me, will signify it by subscribing their names."

A number of those who subscribed the above, have joined the church since that time, and are trying to keep the engagement.

Bro. Ford has left a large family, and an extended circle of friends to mourn his absence.

HENRY L. SMITH.

Sabine Parish, La., Sept. 2, 1867.

"The covenant we this moment make Be ever kept in mind." En.

LUCINBA LUSK, (Boswell) was born in Rowan County, N. C., 1807, came with her parents to Alabama, was married in 1836, to J. D. Lusk, and from thence emigrated to Louisiana with her husband, resided for a length of time in Bossier Parish, and died in Morehouse Parish, on the 10th of September, 1867. She had for forty-nine years been a faithful, consistent member of the M. E. Church. She was a peace-loving, quiet, unobtrusive, Christian woman. She died in great peace, and in full assurance of an "inheritance, incorruptible, undimmed, and that fadeth not away." H. T. L.

SPECIAL NOTICES.

DISTRICT MEETING.

A District Meeting, for the Mobile District, will be held in the Franklin Street M. E. Church, in this city, beginning Friday, November 15th, at 9 A. M.

All the official members of the several Stations, Circuits and Missions, traveling and local, are expected to be present.

Bishop Wightman, and possibly Bishop Andrew, will be in attendance.

THOMAS W. DORMAN, P. E.
Mobile, October 8th, 1867.

New Orleans Dist.—Louisiana Conference.

FOURTH ROUND OF QUARTERLY MEETINGS.
Moreau Street, Oct. 20.
N. O. Cir., Algiers (Q. Con.) 27.
at 112 Camp street at 5 P. M. 26.
Felicity Street Nov. 3.
Goth Church, Craps street. 10.
German Quarterly Conference
Dryad's street at 7 P. M. 9.
Baton Rouge. 16, 17.
Thibodaux circuit. 23, 24.
Carondelet Street Dec. 1.
Byroad Gros Tete at Plaquemine 8.
J. O. KERNER, P. E.

Tuskaloosa District—Mobile Conference.

FOURTH ROUND OF QUARTERLY MEETINGS.
Havanna Sept. 24, 29.
New Berne and Oak Grove Oct. 5, 6.
Marion " 12, 13.
British Creek " 19, 20.
Scottsboro and Carthage " 26, 27.
Tuskaloosa Nov. 2, 3.
Eataw " 9, 10.
Forkland " 16, 17.
Greensboro Nov. 30 and Dec. 1.
J. L. COTTER, P. E.

To the candidates for admission on trial in the Mississippi Conference.

The Committee to examine you preparatory to your application will meet you at Natchez, on Monday and Tuesday, preceding the Conference, and examine you on, first, the Bible; second, Wesley's sermons on Justification by Faith, and on the Witness of the Holy Spirit; and the rules concerning the duty of a preacher as laid down in the Discipline; and fourth, a Witness Essay or Sermon.

Will Presiding Elders please to call the necessary attention to this subject.

R. ABBEY, Clerk.

WANTED.

A lady to teach French, and assist in teaching music;—one thoroughly qualified.

Address H. F. JOHNSON,

Sept. 12-1m Brookhaven, Miss.

Lake Providence Dist.—La. Conference.

FOURTH ROUND OF QUARTERLY MEETINGS.
Carroll Circuit, at Oak Grove Oct. 12, 13.
Delhi Ct., at Floyd 19, 20.
Ion Circuit, Little Creek 26, 27.
Tensas and Sicily Island, at Tensas Chapel Nov. 9, 10.
Waterproof & St. Joseph, Waterproof 23, 24.
Shreveport Dist.—Louisiana Conference.

FOURTH ROUND OF QUARTERLY MEETINGS.

Many, at Fort Jessup; Aug. 31 and Sept. 1.
Anacoco, at Holly Grove. " 7, 8.
Pierant Hill, at Beulah. " 14, 15.
Mansfield, at Mansfield. " 28, 29.
Caddo, at Greenwood. Oct. 5, 6.
N. Rossier, at Walker's Chapel. 12, 13.
Shreveport " 19, 20.
Belle Bower " 26, 27.
Springville, at Springville Nov. 2, 3.
District Meeting to be held, at Mansfield, September 26, 27, 28.
B. F. ALEXANDER, P. E.

Greenville Dist.—Mississippi Conference.

FOURTH ROUND OF QUARTERLY MEETINGS.

On account of the great and protracted overflow of the past season, the second and third rounds on this District, were served irregularly—having to take them as I could. It being impossible to get members to attend, there can be no official District Meeting held, and the duties of that meeting will have to be performed by the Quarterly Conferences separately.

Greenville S. M. Sept. 7, 8.
Princeton or Leota S. M. 14, 15.
Coverhill S. M. 21, 22.
Union Chapel, D. C. S. M. 28, 29.
Upper Deer Creek, S. M. Oct. 5, 6.
Boyd's store (Tallahatchie river) S. M. 12, 13.
Roebuck S. M. 19, 20.
Indian Meeting Q. M. 26, 27.
Lake Lee S. M. Nov. 2, 3.
Greenville Q. M. 9, 10.

The preachers in charge are requested to have all their reports, statistics, etc., as required by the Discipline, written and ready for their respective Quarterly Conferences, as this may not be supplied afterwards.

JAS. MACLENNAN, P. E.

Mobile District—Mobile Conference.

FOURTH ROUND OF QUARTERLY MEETINGS.

Eshoro & Fish River, at Donnelly's Sept. 14, 15.
Citronelle, at Citronelle 21, 22.
Whistler, at Whistler 28, 29.
Pascagoula and Bay shore, Salem Camp Ground Oct. 19, 20.
Ocean Springs, at Red Hill 26, 27.
St. Stephens & State Line, Pine Grove Nov. 2, 3.
Waynesboro, at Waynesboro 9, 10.
Molite, at St. Paul's 17.
St. Francis street Dec. 1.

The preachers in charge are requested to be prepared with a duplicate copy of the statistics of their charges, to be furnished the Presiding Elder, according to requirements of the Discipline—See ch. 2, sec. 6, par. 9 page 67.

THOMAS W. DORMAN, P. E.

Homer District—Louisiana Conference.

FOURTH ROUND OF QUARTERLY MEETINGS.

Vernon Cir., at Vernon Sept. 7, 8.
Haysville at Collynette 21, 22.
Farmville at Alabama 28, 29.
Homer at Forest Grove Oct. 5, 6.
Lake Bistean at Biagoil 12, 13.
Sparta at Sparta 19, 20.
Mt. Lebanon at Arcadia 26, 27.
Lewisville Nov. 2, 3.
South Bossier 9, 10.
Minden 16, 17.

District Meeting at Forest Grove, seven miles east of Homer, commencing Friday, fourth of October. All traveling and local preachers, also all of the official members of the District are requested to attend.

JNO. A. MILLER, P. E.

Vicksburg Dist.—Mississippi Conference.

FOURTH ROUND OF QUARTERLY MEETINGS.

North Vicksburg, at Oak Ridge Sept. 1, 2.
Port Gibson 8, 9.
Payette, at Bethel 15, 16.
Hinton, at Piqua 22, 23.
Jaysa, at Ulica 29, 30.
Raymond Oct. 6, 7.
Warren, at Bethel 13, 14.
Rocky Springs 20, 21.
Vicksburg 27, 28.

Pastors will be ready with full reports of Statistics. Written reports of the condition of church property, Sabbath schools, etc., will be expected.

G. H. CLINTON, P. E.

Brookhaven Dist.—Miss Conference.

FOURTH ROUND OF QUARTERLY MEETINGS.

Fl. Zehorst, Sept. 1, 2.
Chrysler Springs, at Bethesda 7, 8.
Sealand col'd cir., at Gallatin 14, 15.
Meadville, at Beach Grove 21, 22.
D. St Meeting Hazlehurst 27, 28, 29.
Holmesville, at Holmesville Oct. 5, 6.
Bayou Pierre, at Raboth 12, 13.
Pearl River, at Sertains 19, 20.
Bayou Chitto, 26, 27.
Wesson, at Beauregard Nov. 2, 3.
Brookhaven, 9, 10.
Scotlaud, at Gallatin 16, 17.

The District Meeting will be held at Hazlehurst, Sept. 27, 28, 29.

G. W. MILLER, P. E.

Columbus District—Mobile Conference.

FOURTH ROUND OF QUARTERLY MEETINGS.

There will be a District Meeting for Columbus District, Mobile Conference, at Union Chapel, Pickens County, Ala., 8 miles east of Pickensville, and 6 miles north of Bridgeville.

All the members of Quarterly Conferences in the District are members, and are earnestly invited to attend. There will be sermons delivered on subjects, Thursday, Friday, and Saturday, at 11 o'clock, by Rev. A. S. Andrews, T. P. Crymes, and W. C. Hearn.

Members will come prepared to deliberate and report up in the various subjects of interest, usual at such meetings.

Pickensville and Carrollton Sept. 21, 22.
Bridgeville, 28, 29.
Columbus Station Oct. 5, 6.
Columbus Circuit 12, 13.
Corksville 19, 20.
Trinity 26, 27.
Crawfordville Nov. 9, 10.
Green 24, 25.
Dec. 7, 8.
W. MURRAY, P. E.

Yazoo District—Mississippi Conference.

FOURTH ROUND OF QUARTERLY MEETINGS.

Lexington, at Lexington Sept. 11, 12.
Greenwood, at Greenwood 18, 19.
Carrollton, at Carrollton 25, 26.
Emory, at Emory 27, 28.
Holmes, at Durant 29, 30.
Richard, at Richard Nov. 1, 2.
Black Hawk, at Black Hawk 2, 3.
Mount Olive, at Dover 9, 10.
Yazoo, at Midway 16, 17.
Yazoo City Station 19, 20.

APPOINTMENTS BY THE WAY.

Sweetwater, Sept. 18, at 11 o'clock A. M.
Aona 18, at 7 " P. M.
Black Hawk 24, at 7 " P. M.
Carrollton 27, at 7 " P. M.
Valdun Oct. 3, at 7 " P. M.
Durant, 11, at 7 " P. M.
Benton Nov. 1, at 7 " P. M.

At those appointments marked with a star, will lecture on Temperance.

J. M. PIERCE, P. E.

NEW ADVERTISEMENTS.

TRY IT A QUARTER!—A New Quarter of Moore's Library, New-Yorker, the Great Rural and Family Weekly, begins Oct. 5, and the 11 numbers (Oct. to Jan.) will be sent, on trial, for only FIFTY CENTS. Full price $3 a year. Vol. XIX begins in January. Try it a Quarter in Year! Address D. H. T. MOORE, Rochester, N. Y.

AGENTS WANTED.—$10 to $20 a day, to introduce our new patent SEWING MACHINE. Price $20. It uses two threads, and makes the genuine Lock Stitch. All other low-priced machines make the Chain Stitch. Exclusive territory given. Send for Circulars. S. E. HENDERSON & CO., 303 North Fourth St., St. Louis, Mo. oct 5-3m

JAMES A. GRESHAM.

BOOKSELLER & STATIONER.

92 CAMP STREET, New Orleans.

Would respectfully call the attention of the members of the Methodist Church to his large collection of

FAMILY, PULPIT, AND PAPER BOOKS.

to his assortment of

METHODIST HYMN BOOKS.

and his collection of leading Methodist Publications.

He is Agent for Gen. Hill's great Southern Magazine, the

"LAND WE LOVE,"

and of the

RIVER-SIDE MAGAZINE

for children, the two best Magazines in the South.

He will furnish to his patrons any books that may be ordered—and at publisher's prices.

act5

The Branch of Southern Methodist Publishing House, at 112 Camp street, is receiving large additional stock, and the Agent invites a orders, especially from dealers, with whom liberal terms will be made.

Catalogues will be sent to all ministers, schools, teachers, and dealers who request it.

UPHAM'S ASTHMA CURE.

Relieves the most violent attacks in five minutes, and effects a permanent cure. Price $2. Sent post paid to any address by S. G. UPHAM, 25 South Eighth St., Philadelphia, Pa. oct 5-6t Circulars Free. Sold by Druggists.

THIRD ANNUAL SESSION OF THE

Grammar and High School for Boys (COMMERCIAL AND CLASSICAL INSTITUTE)

In charge of the undersigned and competent associates, was opened at 3 A. M., on 3d and 4th, at the corner of Camp and Tepechere streets, entrance on Camp street, opposite Coliseum Place.

Pupils will be carefully trained for business pursuits, or for admission to the Academic Department of the Louisiana State Seminary of Learning, or of any Southern College.

N. B. Parents who desire to enter their sons, are requested to communicate their wishes, as soon as practicable, to sept 28-1m R. M. LUSHER, Principal.

"EVERY MONTH"

Is the title of a monthly paper which reports the sermons of the Rev. Dr. Deems, and gives the history and progress of "the Church of the Strangers." To give it a wide circulation for usefulness, the price is merely nominal: Single copy for one year, 30 cents; two copies 50 cents; five copies $1 00; if sent to one person. Specimen copies sent to any one enclosing a recent stamp. Address sept 25-3t 319 Canal street, N. Y.

S. F. TAYLOR, "Every Month,"

THE HOME MONTHLY, New Orleans, for 1867.

The HOME MONTHLY will contain fifty-eight pages of reading matter, printed upon fine paper and in clear type, and will, from time to time, be accompanied by elegant steel-plate engravings. The subscription price will remain $3 per annum, or $1.50 for six months, invariably in advance. In order to build up a still larger circulation, we have concluded to offer the following

Liberal Inducements to Agents.

To any person sending us three yearly subscriptions, with nine dollars, we will send the MONTHLY six months, or allow them, if they prefer, to retain One Dollar and Twenty-five Cents of the amount.

To any person sending us six subscriptions, with eighteen dollars, ($15.) we will send the MONTHLY one year, or allow them to retain Two Dollars and Fifty Cents of the amount.

On amounts for subscription less than nine dollars, agents will be allowed to retain ten per cent.

Ministers, it is hoped, will act as agents, not so much from pecuniary considerations as from a laudable desire to assist in building up a home literature worthy of a place among the families of the South and on the center-tables of a Christian people.

All communications on business should be addressed to

ROBERT J. HAIR, Publisher, N. O. Ea. sept 25-3t 112 Camp Street, New Orleans.

EDUCATIONAL.

A young lady educated in Europe, with five years' experience in teaching there—desires an engagement. Prefers a pleasant home to a large number of scholars. Qualified in French and music. Will be here in October. Address, Rev. JAS. MACLENNAN, Greenville, Miss., stating terms, etc.

THOMAS MURRAY.

BUILDER.

Corner Rampart and Esato Streets,

NEW ORLEANS.

Orders left at Box 119, Mechanic's Exchange, will be attended to. sept 7

SHARON FEMALE COLLEGE.

Is located in the village of Sharon, Madison County, Mississippi, seven miles east of Canton.

The fifth session will begin Monday, Sept. 30th, 1867, under the Presidency of Rev. W. L. C. HUNNELL, A. M., assisted by an able corps of teachers.

The curriculum is thorough and comprehensive. The location is a very desirable and healthy one. The place is free from many evils, connected with the larger towns and cities, and, especially those on rail roads—having always been free from epidemics.

Tuition per term of five months $15 00

Primary Department " 20 00

Collegiate " 25 00

Music and Piano " 25 00

Use of Instrument " 7 50

Vocal Music " 2 50

Incidental fee " 2 50

Board, fuel and bedding, per month " 18 00

Lights and washing, extra.

Young ladies furnishing their towels, Sheets, blankets, washing and lights, will pay per month " $16 00

The daughters of all ministers, in the regular pastoral work, will receive tuition in the English course free of charge. sept 21-2m

KICKERBOCKER LIFE INSURANCE CO.

OF NEW YORK.

Mutual Plan—Assets $2,450,000

THE CHILD'S CORNER.

From the Family Treasury.
BY THE WAY.

As onward till we journey
To our Father's House above,
In the path which he has chosen,
We are guided by His love.
Though it lead through pleasant places,
We do not dare to stray;
Our home is not among them,
Though we pass them by the way.

We pass the breezy mountains,
We pass the dashing rills,
We pass the shady forests,
And we pass the sunny hills:
To rest us here were pleasant,
But we must not, cannot stay;
Our home is yet beyond us,
And we pass them by the way.

But should the stormy tempest
Hang lowering in the sky;
Or pass we through the desert,
Where all is parched and dry;
These things but make our journey
More dreary for a day;
Our home is yet beyond us,
And we pass them by the way.

We dearly love the beauty
Of the woods and meadows fair,
And gladly thank our Father,
If he should lead us there;
We are weary on the mountain
If the hot and sultry day;
But our home is still beyond us,
Though we suffer by the way.

For walking still before us
Is Christ the ever blest,
And the road by which He leads us
Will bring us to His rest:
And little shall we reckon
To that bright and glorious day,
If the path were smooth or stony,
Where He led us by the way.

LAZY SUSY.

BY A. L. O. E.

"Wasters come to want!" If that is a true proverb I'm sure Mrs. Garry will come to the workhouse one of these days," said Susy Bangham stretching herself and yawning as she spoke.

"Suppose that instead of foretelling mischief to poor Mrs. Garry, you were to get up and look after the fire, and stir it a bit," said Susy's grandfather, a cheery old man, with cheeks like a rosy apple, who sat in a corner of the room. Benson had partly lost the use of his hands from rheumatism, but neither the helplessness nor the pain ever made him fret; he had worked hard as long as he could, and now that he could work no more, he was thankful for a quiet and happy home with his married daughter.

Susy yawned again, and rose slowly and unwillingly, though she had delayed two minutes longer than the fire would have been out.

"And suppose now that you fill the kettle and put it on the fire, that when your mother and sister come home tired from their gleaming, they may find a cup of warm tea ready for them."

"There's not a drop of water here," observed Susy.

"Suppose that you get some from the well just outside."

Susy looked as though she thought it a terrible trouble to do so, and when she brought in the water observed, "Molly might have done this before she went out."

"Molly is as willing a little creature as ever lived," said the grandfather warmly, "and she has been gleaming all the day long. By-the-by, Susy, why are you not gleaming also?"

"I did gleam; look there," said Susy, pointing to a small bundle of wheat-ears which she had thrown down in a corner: she had not so much as taken the trouble to tie them together.

Old Benson burst out laughing. "You're not broken your back with stooping, Susy: I could have gathered as much when I was a little chap of four years old. Why did you come in so soon from the field?"

"I was tired," said Susy sulkily. "Oh! there is some one who is always tired when there is work to be done; but I should change the word, and call it tiresome." And Benson laughed at his own little joke against "lazy Susy," as his grandchild was called, in the village.

Susy did not like being laughed at, and having filled the kettle and returned to her seat, she began again finding fault with Mrs. Garry, her neighbor, that her grandfather might forget to find fault with herself.

"I wonder that Mrs. Garry can waste so, with four children to provide for. She lights her candle before it gets too dark to sew by, and throws all her candle-ends away. It's a shame to see how she wastes her coals; and her way of peeling potatoes is quite disgraceful,—half of them goes to the pigs. Well, well, wasters will come to want."

"You're ready enough with your proverbs when they hit at others, my girls," said Benson, shaking his head;—"did you ever hear of one taken from the Bible itself, and written by wise king Solomon? He also that is slothful in his work is brother to him that is a great sinner."

"You are always taking me up sharp, grandfather. If I don't work quite so hard as I might, at least no one can say that I ever waste so much as a pin. Now Mrs. Garry—I daresay that she wastes as much as would come to—"

"Come make a guess,—how much?" said Benson. "I think that we'll find out soon that the balance is pretty even between you."

"Candle-ends, cabbage-leaves, coals, potatoes and all, I daresay that she wastes nupence worth a week," replied Susy, "and that comes to a pretty round sum in the year."

"Ay, it comes to—let's see; I was a sharp lad once for reckoning: nupence a week comes to thirty-nine shillings in the year, nigh two pounds—enough to get new boots for husband, wife, and all the four children, and leave something over to boot," again the merry old man laughed at his own little joke.

"She ought to be ashamed of herself!" exclaimed Susy.

"Now I think that I can prove to you," old Benson began, but his remark was cut short by the return of Mrs. Bangham and little Molly from the field, where they had remained gleaming till after the sun had set. They had come home by twilight weary with a long day's work, but rejoicing in the success of their labors.

"There, grandfather, is not that like a little sheaf?" exclaimed Molly, as she wearily laid down her corn.

"A famous sheaf, my brave little gleamer! Now, Susy, I've something for you do," said the old man, with a merry twinkle in his black eye.

"Take three quarters—or rather more—of Molly's heap of corn, carry it away as fast as you can, and fling it back into the field."

Both of the girls uttered an exclamation of surprise, and even quiet Mrs. Bangham gave a wondering look, though suspecting that some joke was on foot.

"I should never waste all that wheat by throwing it away," cried Susy.

"Now," said the old man, leaning forward in his chair, "I suppose that if you had gleaned as busily as Molly has done, you would have gathered at least as much. Now, I reckon that what lazy Susy left in the field is just as much wasted, to her and to us, as if she had taken it home, and then carried it back to the field."

Nobody could deny this, though Susy looked as if she did not wish to understand. To change the conversation, she turned to her mother and said, "I must get a new dress you see; this one is worn all to rags; it scarcely will hold together."

"My dear child, I have seen that for a long time," observed Mrs. Bangham; "but if you had mended the holes at first, the dress would have lasted till spring. A stitch in time saves nine." If the gleaming had not been so good this year, we could hardly have afforded five shillings to buy you a nice new dress."

"Come, Susy," said her grandfather smiling, "I think that we must put that five shillings into the scale of sloth, to weigh against the waste of neighbor. And we must not forget all the broken branches which we are allowed to pick up in the great park after a storm; Molly has brought home many a fagot; if you had worked as hard as she, we should have saved as much in fuel, I guess, as Mrs. Garry has wasted."

"I do work; I do what I can. I wash and I sew," cried Susy.

"Come, my girl, be honest and frank. You do something, I own; but you had better stop and think, before you say 'I do what I can.' You know how late you lie in bed of a morning; I hear your mother calling you to get up, when every one else has long been astir. You lose at least one hour every day by this lazy habit alone; and another by the slow, idle way in which you set about work, moving as if you had weights on your hands and your feet. Here are two hours lost every day, and I'm afraid that we must set another to the account of idle gossip."

Susy knew not what to reply: she knew that the truth was not over but under stated.

"Now, counting your working-day as nine hours, clear of eating and sleep, at least a third part of it is quite thrown away and wasted. The parings of time are more precious, Susy, than parings of potatoes. A stout girl like you, doing her best, might earn six shillings in the week; I doubt your work has never brought four. Two shillings a week, that's easier to reckon than nupence; I make it come to just five pounds, four. I think you must own how true is the text, He also that is slothful in his work is brother to him that is a great sinner."

"Susy's eyes filled with tears. 'You are hard on me, grandfather,' she said.

"I don't wish to be hard on any one, least of all my own girl," said old Benson. "I would not talk so much on the matter if I thought that you looked upon lazy habits as sin."

"I don't think it any sin to like a little sleep of a morning, and a little chat with a neighbor in the day. There's no harm in taking things easy," and the lazy girl leant back on her chair, while Molly, tired as she was, began laying the table for the evening meal.

"I fancied that I had shown you that to waste time is to waste money, and you think that a sin," observed Benson.

"Not exactly a sin," replied Susy; "it is not like breaking one of the commandments."

"Have you ever thought over the parable of the talents, my girl? The different servants had, one five, another two, another one talent, to lay out for their master. Now, we know that this means talents lent to us by God, for which we must give account at the last. Now some people have riches, that is a talent; some great power, that is another; others are so clever and sharp that they are able to do more with their wits than the rich with their silver and gold. These are all talents which have never been given to us."

"No, indeed," said Molly playfully, as she set down the bread on the table; "we're poor enough, and as for cleverness, teacher says that if I did not take such pains with my reading, I should turn out a regular dunce."

"But now mark me," continued old Benson; "every servant had at least one talent, and I used to puzzle my head to make out what that one talent could be. At one time I thought it was strength to labour, but then not all men have that; then I fancied that knowledge of the Bible was the talent,—but not every one has a Bible, and some could not read it if they had. At last I hit upon one talent which every one living must have—the beggar as much as the Queen—you and I as much as the cleverest man in the world."

"Can't think what that talent can be," cried Molly; but Susy, who was much older, observed, "You mean the talent of time."

"You're right, you've hit it!" cried Benson. "Every one has an equal share of hours in the day: the poorest must have four-and-twenty,—the Queen could not have twenty-five if she gave her crown for the odd one. But though every one has exactly the same length of day, there's a wonderful difference in the profit that is made out of it by the industrious or the lazy. What have you done to-day, Susy, my girl, with your talent of time? I fear that the greatest part of it has been like the idle servant's one talent."

"I've done no mischief, at least," murmured Susy.

"And what mischief had the idle servant done? He only buried his money, you have only wasted your time. But what did his master say unto him at the end?" The face of Benson looked very grave as he repeated the solemn words of Scripture: "Cast ye the unprofitable servant into outer darkness; there shall be weeping and gnashing of teeth."

Nothing more was said that evening on the subject: poor Susy sighed so sadly that the old man was almost sorry that he had said so much; but when Susy went to rest that night, she lay awake thinking over her grandfather's words and seriously considering whether her lazy habits were not indeed sin before God.

"Certainly I might have been a much greater help and comfort to my mother, had I been active like Molly," thought Susy: "she does twice as much as I do, though I am four years older. I will, God helping me, turn over a new leaf to-morrow; I'll be up before the sun, and see if I can't glean enough before breakfast to make my gatherings as large as those of my sister."

So the first moment that Susy awoke in the morning, though it was scarcely dawn, she sprang from her bed and dressed; not in her usual slow, lazy manner, but using her fingers briskly. Then Susy knelt down to pray, ashamed to remember how often she had hurried over her prayers and Bible reading, or had missed them altogether, because she had risen so late. Though Susy on this morning both read and prayed, she was able to leave the cottage at sunrise, and with a brisk, cheerful step, she made her way to the field. "How pleasant it will be," thought Susy, "to give grandfather a surprise!"

Sweet and fresh was the morning air, glorious the rose-tinted sky! Susy felt that she had been accustomed to waste in sleep the best hours of the day. She reached the field, but here disappointment met her. The gleaners had so thoroughly cleared the stubble, that Susy could find no wheat-ears save a few left by the winnow on the hedge! She had had her opportunity—now it was gone for that year.

"Ah me!" sighed Susy, "I see that one cannot recall the past even by good resolutions for the future. The stubble-field is stripped and bare: my dress, which I might have repaired at first, is now not even worth mending. The hours which I have wasted will never, never return!"

As Susy turned sorrowfully towards her home, she glanced towards Farmer Brown's sick yard, where stood the large stacks of that year's harvest.

"Why, surely that hay-stack is smoking!" exclaimed Susy; "it must have been put up damp. I fear in a few minutes 'twill burst into a blaze! I'm so glad that I chanced to see it."

No one could have called Susy lazy who had seen the speed with which she ran to the farm-house to give the alarm of fire, and then off to the town for the engine; for the flames had burst forth and were curling and flaring round the stack. The farmer and his men were soon at the spot, labouring to put out the fire, and prevent it spreading to the other stacks in the yard. Susy reached the town so quickly that within an hour the fire-engine was in full play, and with such success that all of the corn and most of the hay was saved. Had there been ten minutes' delay, the flames might have spread to the farm-house itself, for the wind was blowing towards it!—It was not for nothing that Susy had risen so early on that morning.

"Why, you don't mean to tell me that lazy Susy was up and about at sunrise?" said Mrs. Garry when she dropped in to talk over the news with Mrs. Bangham that evening.

"Don't tickle her with that name, Mrs. Garry," said old Job Benson; "she is lazy Susy no more."

"But it is really true that she gave the first alarm of fire at the farm, and ran off herself for the engine! I'm sure I never should have thought that Susy could have bestirred herself so!"

"It's true enough," said the smiling grandfather; "and it's true also that Farmer Brown has given her a good winter dress to reward her for saving his stacks. I think that I can answer for it," he continued, glancing at Susy, who entered the room at that moment, "that the new dress won't go into rags for want of the 'stitch in time.'"

Chemistry in Common Schools.

A teacher in Nottingham, England, writing to the editor of the Chemical News, earnestly recommends, on the strength of his own experience, that chemistry form one of the branches of regular school education. The boys under his charge, with this enlargement of their studies, did not learn less of languages, while learning more of science. Of course they take more interest in the experiments than in the explanations. Chemistry teaches habits of careful observation, patience, caution, neatness, and quickness. The applications of this science, are of the most diversified kind; they are made in the kitchen and in the laboratory; they are seen in animal and vegetable physiology—in an explanation of the leading symptoms in many diseases; in the study of geology, mineralogy, meteorology, and in the most sublime phenomena. Chemistry deserves to be taught in all our common schools and private academies.

The "Queen's English" at Paris.—The following is a literal copy of a hand-bill which has been extensively circulated in the Paris Exhibition by a Spanish firm:—Blacking, ooly and resinous, titled the "Emperor of the Blackings," black ink and of all colors to write with, of D. J. G., member of the national academy of Great Britain. This Blacking is known to be the most useful for the conservation of the shoes, for its brilliancy, solidity, and complete discomposure of the black animal. Mr. J. G. has a present of £20 sterling to the person that will present him a Blacking in paste, that will reunite the same conditions, as the "Emperor of the Blackings."—Chemical News.

A French savant likens the quickness of volition in an animal to the telegraph. When a whale is harpooned, he says, the nerve telegraphs to the creature's brain: "Harpoon in tail," upon which the brain telegraphs back; "Jerk tail and upset boat."

Many people have laughed over the determined conduct of Bishop Tuck, who, among the doors of Bishop Odo's church in which he intended to preach locked against him, had them broken in with sledgehammers. A Natal letter-writer adds the additional circumstance that the manuscript sermon which the bishop had in his pocket, and which he actually preached, was from the text: "Our weapons are not carnal."

PORT GIBSON COLLEGIATE ACADEMY.

A College for Young Ladies with a Preparatory and a Primary School.

BOARD OF INSTRUCTION AND GOVERNMENT.

A. J. Wright, A. M., President.
Mrs. A. A. Wright, Principal.
Mr. R. Scott Ricketts.
Miss Anna M. Ross.
Miss C. A. Murphy, Instructress in Vocal and Instrumental music.

Other instructors will be announced.
This Institution was founded about 1830, and incorporated in 1834, and has a bright record of usefulness. It has been under the present direction four years. The course of study is a full one, and, upon its satisfactory completion, a diploma will be awarded.

The young pupils have the same instructors, and receive the same attention as their seniors. Exercises are continued throughout the course, in Penmanship, Elocution, Orthography, the science of English Grammar, the Art of Composition, and Arithmetic.

The buildings are spacious, retired, well-shaded, and well designed for Academic uses. PORT GIBSON is noted for its beauty, salubrity, order and good society. Transportation from Grand Gulf will be by railroad in a few days.

SESSION COMMENCES, SEPT. 16.

Boarders are under special charge of the Lady Principal. Board and English Tuition, $70 00 per quarter. For circulars and particulars, apply to
A. J. WRIGHT,
D. G. Humphreys, President Board of Trustees, Port Gibson, Miss.

COLLEGIATE INSTITUTE AT BATON ROUGE.

TENTH SESSION.

The exercises of the school will be resumed on Wednesday, October 23, 1867.

The best facilities are afforded for the acquisition of a first-rate education. Particular care is bestowed on the moral and social culture of the pupils.

There is but one session in the year and every student who enters the school is expected to continue to the close of the session in July, and will be held liable for the bills in all cases, unless protracted illness shall compel his removal.

Every pupil is required to furnish his own bedding, towels, wash-basin, mosquito-bar and all marked distinctly with his own name—also a satchel for dirty clothes.

It is urgently requested that Students be prompt in their attendance. A few days absence at the beginning is often a serious disadvantage during the entire session.

TERMS: Board and Tuition per session, $300.

PAYMENTS:—$200 in advance—balance 1st March.

Tuition of Day-Scholars, per session, $75 00 payable—one half in advance—balance 1st March.

Modern languages will be taught when the wants of the School demand it, at an extra charge as low as can be made.

No expenses are spared to secure as Teachers, gentlemen of the highest character and ability.

W. H. N. McNEIDER.

Baton Rouge, La., June 1867. aug 7 6m

THE "ARROW" TIE.

AND PAINTED IRON BANDS.

For sale at the lowest prices, by

H. T. BARTLETT & R. W. RAYNE.

General Agents, No. 41 Carondelet street.

The above popular fastener is the best now in use for holding Cotton. They are approved by the Insurance Companies of this city, and are used at the Cotton Presses in New Orleans, Memphis, Mobile, Galveston, Savannah, and by Planters everywhere with success and approbation.

N.B.—Said ARROW TIES are on sale by dealers in New Orleans, and every where throughout all the Cotton growing States at the lowest prices.

je 22 67 6m

A TREATISE ON DEAFNESS.

AND CATARRH.

Their causes and means of immediate relief and speedy cure sent free for 10 cents.

In T. H. STILLWELL,

aug 21 6m Williamsburg, Kings Co., N. Y.

It is an infallible remedy in all cases of Neuralgia, Rheumatism, chronic catarrh of the bladder, and all other diseases of the urinary system. It is also a powerful tonic, and restores the system to its normal state.

Even the severest cases of Chronic Neuralgia and general nervous derangement, of many years standing, affecting the entire system, its use for a few days, or a few weeks at the utmost, always affords the most astonishing relief, and very rarely fails to produce a complete and permanent cure.

It contains no drugs or other materials in the slightest degree injurious, even to the most delicate system, and can always be used with absolute safety.

It has long been in constant use by many of our most eminent physicians, who give it their unqualified and unqualified approval.

Sent by mail on receipt of price, and postage.

One package, $1 00 Postage 6 cts.

Six packages, 5 00 " 27

Twelve packages, 9 00 " 43

It is sold by all wholesale and retail dealers in drugs and medicines throughout the United States, and by

Turner & Co., Sole Proprietors,

je 22 120 Tremont Street, Boston, Mass.

NORTH BRUSH & M. SON,

Wholesale Dealers in

Fancy Goods,

STATIONERY, PERFUMERY, CUTLERY

JEWELRY

Furnishing Goods, etc.,

25 MAGAZINE STREET,

Opposite the St. James Hotel, New Orleans, La.

aug 25 1y

JOHN O. PARHAM, OF NEW ORLEANS.

DEVERLY HALL, OF HINDS CO., MISS.

PARHAM & BLUNT,

COTTON FACTORS,

Forwarding and Commission Merchants

and Purchasing Agents

No. 75 Carondelet street, New Orleans.

aug 24 1y

DOLBEAR COMMERCIAL COLLEGE.

On the corner of Camp and Common.

It is constantly in session under able Principal. It is the former students may be seen in the old houses of this city and over the States. Ladies or gentlemen can earn a Penmanship, Mathematics, English, Spanish, separately. A business education, usually, is the best fortune parents can give their children. A DIPLOMA from this College is a passport in all Commercial communities, and Gentlemen are invited to call. We make arrangements for 1868. Admissions are open. Liberal arrangements for Clerical or their sons and crippled students. Catalogues sent to all who desire them.

RUFUS DOLBEAR.

nov 17 1y

BELLS! BELLS! BELLS!

BUCKEYE BELL FOUNDRY.

Established in 1837.

VANDUZEN & TIPPIN.

Of the late Firm and Successors to the

COFFIN & CO.

104 & 104 1/2 East Second Street, Cincinnati, Ohio.

Manufacturers of Bells for Churches, Schools, Colleges, etc.

Made of Genuine Bell Metal, and mounted on Improved Rotary Yokes.

All Bells warranted to prove satisfactory.

Illustrated Catalogue and Price List sent upon application.

KNIGHT & CO.,

Dealers in

PLANTATION, MILL, & WOOD-WORK

MACHINERY

And Agricultural Implements.

Keep constantly on hand a large assortment of articles peculiar to our business, and our agents in the North and East, can fill any order, at a small advance above cost. We have a large stock of all the machinery and tools in the market.

The great changes in our labor system, and a corresponding change in the machinery used, and we have prepared ourselves to the latest improved.

LABOR-SAVING MACHINES.

both for Agricultural and Mechanical purposes, at prices that will warrant their purchase.

Also, LEEDS & CO'S Sugar Kettles, etc.

Screws, Gears, etc., and will warrant any kind of work done at their establishment.

their prices.

172 GRAVIER STREET, NEW ORLEANS.

n 17 1y

AUSTIN & GOODWIN,

Wholesale Dealers and Manufacturers of

TINWARE.

COOKING AND HEATING STOVES.

Of all kinds, sole Agents for the Good Cook

Cooking Stove.

25 Peters, formerly Front Street, New Orleans.

oct 20 1y

SOUTH-WESTERN BIBLE SOCIETY.

Where is it located? Its Depot is at the House is at its own building, No. 100

street, New Orleans.

When was it established? 1850.

Who is its General Agent to whom pamphlets, etc., business should be addressed?

Rev. W. H. Dayles.

Where is the Society's field of labor?

Louisiana, and all of Mississippi, north of 34th parallel of North latitude.

What is the object of the Society?

NEW ORLEANS MARKETS.

From the N. O. Price Current.

The increased vitality in the general market noticed in our last issue has hardly been maintained since. The receipts of our leading staples have been limited, and the movement in it has consequently been to a decreased extent. The sales of Sugar Molasses have been confined to retail transactions, and operations in Western Produce have been restricted by light supplies. The stocks are now reduced to a very low point, and prices are consequently firm. In Tobacco parties have at last come together, and quite a large business has transpired, as will be seen from reference to the proper head.

On Friday night we were visited with a heavy storm from which we hear of serious disasters on the Gulf coast. On Saturday and Sunday the weather continued unsettled, and on Monday it was again heavy and windy, but has since cleared up, with a low temperature, such as may be expected at this period. The epidemic is undoubtedly abating, but perhaps as much from the decreased number of persons exposed to it, as from any diminution in the latent poison in the atmosphere. The unacclimated, or those who, from long absence, regard themselves as subject to attack, should wait some longer before they return to the city.

COTTON.—We left the market, at the date of our last report, with scant supplies, and prices have shown but little variation. On Saturday buyers stood aloof in the hope of soon having wider scope and a better assortment on sale, but still the business was to a fair extent, embracing 450 bales, at prices generally in accordance with the above figures. On Monday, with continued complaints of the insufficiency of the supply, 300 bales changed hands at about previous rates. Yesterday the market opened with a moderate enquiry, and although there was general complaint of the poor character of the limited assortment offering, yet 450 bales were taken at figures in accordance with the subjoined quotations, and showing but slight variation from last Saturday's figures.

This makes an aggregate for the past three days of 1200 bales, taken mostly for the North.

The receipts proper since Friday evening comprise 659 bales, against 1927 during the corresponding period last week, showing an increase of 1268 bales.

With the remark that there is a good deal of irregularity in prices, and that it is difficult to give regular quotations, we now modify our figures as follows:

| | |
|---------------|--------------|
| Low | to |
| Ordinary | 14 to 15 |
| Good Ordinary | 16 to 16 1/2 |
| Low Middling | 17 to 18 |
| Middling | 18 to 19 |

TOBACCO.—The movement in this market since our last review has been characterized by a moderate degree of animation. There has been some little enquiry on the part of buyers, but transactions have been restricted by the firmness of holders, who do not seem disposed to operate unless at figures in accordance with the present advance quotations. About 130 bbls have been sold within the range of the following quotations:

| | |
|------------------|----------------|
| Light | Heavy |
| Inferior refused | 4 to 4 1/2 |
| Common ref'd | 4 1/2 to 5 1/2 |
| Fair | 5 1/2 to 6 1/2 |
| Fine and choice | 6 1/2 to 7 1/2 |
| Common Leaf | 7 to 8 |
| Good | 8 to 10 |
| Choice | 10 to 12 |
| Choice Select | 12 to 15 |

